

These are the words that speak of the beginning.

BIBLIA

The Byble, that is the holy Scripture of the Olde and New Testament, wonderfully translated in to English.
M. D. XXXV.

Let them that are in the world, and in the church, be wise.

Let them that are in the church, be wise.

St. Paul. II. Cor. II. III.
Blessed be the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, who hath made us partakers of his inheritance in heaven.

St. Paul. II. Cor. II. III.
Let the word of Christ dwell in you plentifully, in all wisdom.

Jesus. P.
Let not the door of this house be opened out of the mouth, but whoever the little shall say, Amen, shall be blessed.

Let them that are in the church, be wise.

¶ Because that whan thou go est to schy in holy scripture, thou shuldest do it with reuerence, ther foze for thy instruction & louynge admonicion thereto, the reuer rende father in god, Nicolas, Bishpope of Southwarke hath pseferred the this prayer folowynge, taken out of the launce.

- Psal. 110. Lorde God almyghtye whiche longe agoon saydest by thy mouthe of James thyn Spokie: If any of pou lacke wyf dom, let hym aske it of God whiche geueth it plentifully to all men, and casteth no man in the carhe, and it shal be geuen hym. Heare my petition for this thy promysed he.
Let my prayer ascende luckely in to thy syght I praye mercifully. Let thy gra ce be attend vnto my depe desyre. Geue me wysdome: whiche is cur assistent about thy seate. And put me not out from amonge thy ser uants, for I am thy seruaunt and þ sonne of thy handmaide. Let me her (I meane thy godly wyseholme) out of thyne holy heauen, and from the throne of thy maiesty, that the maye be with me, and labour with me, þ I may knowe what is acceptable in thy syght. Oh let me me goodnes, nurture, and knowlege, for I beleue thy commande mentes. Thou art good and gracious, instructe me in thyne ordi nances. Let myne herte beseeche ascende in to thy presence. Geue me vnderstandynge accordynge to thy woorde. Oh geue me vnder standynge, and I shall kepe thy lawe, þee I shall kepe it with all myne herte. Behelpe me thy wayes o Lorde, & teache me thy pathes. I came me in to thy trueth and let me, for thou art the God of my herte.
Psal. 124. And on the do I depende alway. Heare now my voyce o Lorde with whiche I haue cryed vnto the. Haue mercy vpon me, and graciously heare me for Iesus Christes sake oure Lorde, which spureth and crye th with the his father & the holy goost woyle without ende. Amen.

¶ After the ende of any Chapter (if thou wilt) thou mayest saye these verses folowynge.

- Psal. 118. Lade me (o Lorde) in thy waye, and let me walke in thy trueth.
Oh let myne herte delihte in fearynge thy name.
Whye my goynge after thy woorde, that no wyckednes regyne in me.
Kepe my steppes within thy pathes, lest my fete tume in to any contrary waye.

Unto the most victorious Prince and our most gracious soueraigne Lorde, Kinge Henry the eighth of Englonde and of Fraunce, Lorde of Irelande, &c.

Defendour of the fayth, and vnder God the cheefe and suppreme heade of the Church of Englonde.

¶ The right a lust administracyon of the lawes that God gaue vnto Moses and vnto Josua: the testimonie of faythfulnes that God gaue of Dauid: the plentiful abundance of wysdome that God gaue vnto Salomon: the lucky and prosperous age with the multiplicacyon of fede whiche God gaue vnto Abraham and Sara his wyfe, be geue vnto you most gracious Prince, with your dearest iust wyfe, and most vertuous Princesse, Quene Anne, Amen.

Caiphas beinge by hope of that yere, like a blinde prophete (not vnderstandyng what he sayd) propheticke, that it was better to put Christ vnto death, then that all the people shulde perceyue: he meanyng, that Christ was an heretike, a deceauer of the people, & a destroyer of the lawe, and that it was better therfore to put Christ vnto death, than to suffer hym for to lyue, and to deceaue the people, &c. where in very dede Christ was the true prophete, the true Messias, and the onely true Sauiour of the worlde, sent of his heauenly father to suffer the most cruell, most shamefull, and most necessary death; for our redemption: accordyng to þe myng of the propheticke truly vnderstonde.

¶ Euen after the same maner þe blinde byshoppe of Rome, (that blinde Baalam I saye) not vnderstandyng what he doyd, gaue vnto your grace this tytle: Defendour of the fayth, onely because your highnes suffered your byshoppes to burne Gods worde the rote of fayth, and to persecute the louers and mynisters of þe same, where in very dede the blinde byshoppe (though he knewe not what he doyd) propheticke, that by the righteous administracyon and continuall diligence of your grace, the fayth shulde so be defended, that Gods worde the mother of fayth with the frutes thereof, shulde haue his free course throughte out all Christendome, but specially in your realme.

¶ If your highnesse now of your princely benignite wyll pardon me to compare these two byshoppes (I mean byshoppe Caiphas and the byshoppe of Rome) & thei propheticke together, I doute not but we shal fynde them agree like brethren, though the one be a Jewe and the other a countrysyte Christian. First, Caiphas propheticke that it was better to put Christ vnto death, then that the people shulde perceyue. The byshoppe of Rome also, not knowyng what he propheticke, gaue your grace this tytle: Defendour of the fayth. The truely of both these propheticcies is of the holy goost (as was Baalamis propheticke) though they that spake the, knewe not what they sayd. The truely of Caiphas propheticke is, that it was necessary for mans saluacyon, that Christ by his death shulde overcome death, and re-deeme vs. And the truely of our Baalamis propheticke is, þe your grace in very dede shulde defende the fayth, see vnto the true fayth of Christ, no dreames, no fables, no heresie, no papisticall inuencions, but the vncorrupte fayth of Gods most holy wyrd, whiche to set forth þe goodnes of God, and increase your gracyous purpose; your highnes with your most honorable counsell, applyeth all his flour and endeuoure.

¶ These two blinde byshoppes now agree in þe vnderstandyng of thei propheticcies: Caiphas taketh Christ for an heretike, our Baalam taketh the wyrd of Christ for heretike. Caiphas iudgeth it to be a good dede to put Christ vnto death, that he shulde not deceaue the people. Ourc Balaam callcth defendyng of the fayth, the suppressyng, keepyng secreete, and burnyng of the woorde of sayth: lest the light thereof shulde bette his darkness: lest his owne Decretales & Decrees, his owne lawes and constitutions, his owne Statutes and inuencions shulde come to none effecte: lest his intollerable exactions and usurpacions shulde lose theyr strengthe: lest it shulde be knowen what a theefe and murderer he is in the cause of Chyffe, and howe dangerous a traytoure to God and man in defraudyng all Chyften kynges & pynces of theyr due obedience: lest we your grace subiectes shulde haue eyes in the woorde of God, at the last to spy out his crafty couerpaunce and iuglynges: and lest men shulde se, howe soe he and his falsse Apostles haue deceaued all Chyftenhome, especially your noble realme of Englonde.

An Epistle

Thus your grace seyth howe bothe the Jewysh byshoppe and ourc Balaam agree together, not onely in myre and outwarde apperaunce: but as the one persecuted the Lawe: Iesus in his owne person, so doth the other persecute his woorde and retyeth his holy ordynaunce in the auctoryte of his anoynted kynge. For so moche we are as the woorde of God is the onely trueth that bypuctly awaye all lyes, and discloseth all iuglyng and disceite, therefore is ourc Balaam of Rome to lothe that the scripture shulde be knowen in the mother tonge: lest pynnes and pynnes (specially aboute all othre) were excepted therein, they shulde reclame and challenge agayne theyr due auctoryte, which he falsely hath usurped for many yeres, and so to tye hym tighter: and lest the people beyng taught by the woorde of God, shulde fall from falsse sayned obedience of hym and his disguised Apostles, vnto the true obedience commaunded by Gods owne mouth: as namely, to obey theyr pynce, to obey father and mother, &c. and not to slepe ouer father and mothers beye to enter in to his paynted religions, as his pporcrites teach: for he knoweth well enoughe, that if the cleare Sporne of Gods woorde come ones to the heate of the dape, it shal burne awaye all the foule myt of his deuylsh doctryne. Therefore were it moze to the maintenaunce of Antichyistes kyngdome, that the woorde were still in ignorance and blyndnes, and that the scripture shulde neuer come to light. For the scripture (both in the olde testamēt and in the new) declareth most aboudauntly that the office, auctoryte and powere geuen of God vnto kynge, is in each coue all other powere: let them call the selues Popes, Cardynalles, or what so euer they will, the woorde of god declareth them (pe) and commaundeth them vnder paine of dampnation to be obedient vnto the tempoall swerbe. As in the olde Testamēt all the pphoytes, pnytes and Lewites were. And in the new Testamēt Chyffe & his Apostles both were obedient them selues, and taught obedience of all men vnto theyr pynces and tempoall rulcers: which here vnto vs in the woorde present the person of God, and are called Goddes in the scripture, by cause of the excellēcy of theyr office. And though there were no mo auctorytes but the same, to poue the pominēce of the tempoall swerbe, yet by this the scripture declareth playnly, that as there is nothyng aboute God, so is there no man aboue the bynge in his realme but that he onely vnder God is the chefe heade of all the cōgregation and church of the same. And in token that this is true, there hath ben of olde antiquite (and is yett vnto this dape) a souerayn ceremonye vsed in your realme of Englonde, y whā your graces subiectes reade your letters, or begynne to talke or come of your hyghnes, they moue theyr bowettes for a signe & token of truezēce vnto your grace, as to the) most souerayn heade & heade vnder God, which thyng no man vlyeth to do to any byshoppe, whetsoe (yf ourc vnderstondyng were not blynded) we myght euidently perceiue, that euen theyr nature teacheth vs the same, that scripture commaundeth vs: and that lyke as it is agaynst Gods woorde that a kynge shulde not be the chefe heade of his people, euen so it saie, as it agaynst kynde that we shulde knowe any other heade aboute hym vnder God.

And that no pnyce nor byshoppe is exempte (nor) can be lawfully from the obedience of his pynce, the scripture is full both of stryke commaundēcētes, & pnyces of the

What is now the cause of all these intollerable and nomoze to be suffred abhominacions? Euery euen the ignorance of the scripture of God. For how had it els ben possible, that such bypndes shulde haue come in to þe world, had not þe lychte of Gods word bene extynged? how coulde men (I saye) haue bene so farre from the true scripture of God, and from the due obedience of theyr pyppce, had not the lawe of God bene cleue thur by, depeyled, cast asyde, and put out of remembrance: I as it was afore the tyme of that noble kynge Josias, and as it hath bene also among vs into poure graces tyme: by whos most righteous administracion (thow we the mercifull goodnes of God) it is now founde agayne, & as it was in the dayes of that most vertuous kynge Josias. And passed be the father, the sonne, and the holy goost wolde without ende, which so excellently hath cadmed poure Wyne by hert with such seruenites to his honoure, and to the welch of poure louping subiectes, that I maye rightuously (by iust occasioun in poure pcediōe) compare poure bypndes unto that noble and gracious kynge, þe lantern of lychte amonge pyppces, that feruent protectour and defendre of the lawes of God: which commaunded dreaply (as poure grace both) that the lawe of God shulde be redde and taught bn to all þe people: set the pyppes to theyr office in the worde of god: destroyed Idolatry and false byools: put doayne all euell customes and abusyngs: set by the true honoure of God: applyed all his iudges and endeuoure to the rightuous administracion of the most incorrupte lawe of God. &c. What felicity was amonge þe people of Ierusalem in his dayes: And what prosperous health both of soule & body foloweth the lyke ministracion in poure bypndes, we begynne now (passed be God) to haue experyence. For as false doctryne is the otygenall cause of all euell piages and destruction, so is þe true excecuyng of the lawe of God ad the preaching of the same, the mother of all godly prosperite. The onely worde of god (I saye) is the cause of all felicity, it byngeth all goodnes with it, it byngeth learninge, it geueth vnderstandyng, it causeth good woikes, it maketh chyldeyn of obedience, it teacheth, it teacheth all states theyr office and duty. Seinge then that the scripture of God teacheth vs euery thyng sufficiently, both what we oughte to do, and what we oughte to leaue vndone: whome we are bounde to obey, and whome we shulde not obey: therfore; (I saye) it causeth all prosperite, and setteth euery thyng in frame: and whete it is taught and knowen, it lychteth all darknesse, it coloureth all sope hertes, it teacheth no poore man vnhelped, sufferyth nothyng amysse vnder ment, letteth no pyppce be disobeyed, permitteth no heresie to be preached: but reformeth all thynges, & medeth that is amysse, and setteth euery thyng in order.

Aples Courtdale Unto the Christen reader.

Consideringe how excellent knowledge and learninge an interpreter of scripture oughte to haue in the tongues, and pondering also myne owne insufficiency therein, & how wrake I am to performe þe office of a translatoure, I was the more lothe to medle with this worke. Notwithstandyng whan I considered how greute pte it was that we shulde waite it so longe, & called to myn encumbraunce þe aduersite of them, which were not onely of type knowledge, but wolde also wryt all theþe heretd haue performe þe they beganne, yf they had not had impediment: consideryng (I saye) that by reason of theþe aduersyte it coulde not so soone haue bene broughte to an ende, as oure most pofperous nacyon wolde sayne haue had it: the se and other reasonable causes considered, I was the more bolde to take it in hande. And to helpe me herin, I haue had sondyge translatiouns, not onely in latyn, but also of the Douche interpreters: whomy (because of theþe syngular gyftes a speciall diligence in the Bible) I haue ben the more glad to folowe for the most parte, accordyng as I was requyred. But to sape the truth befoze God, it was nether my laboure nor desyre, to haue this worke put in my hande: neuertheless it greued me yf other nacyns shulde be more plentifully ppyouyded for wryt þe scripture in theþe other tongues, then we: therfoze whan I was instantly requyred, though I coulde not do so well as I wolde, I thought it yet my dewtye to do my best, and that with a good wyll.

where as some men thynke now þe many translatiouns make diuision in þe fapth and in the people of God, þe is not so: for it was neuer better with the congregation of god, then whan euery church almost had þe Wyble of a sondyge translatioun. Amonge the Grekes had not wrygen a speciall translatioun/ Had not Vulgarius one peculiar, & yherospe Chyphosom: beyde the seuentye interpreters, is there not the translatioun of Aquila, of Theodobios, of Symachus, and of sondyge other: I gayne amonge the Latyn men, thou findest þe euery one almost dyed a speciall a sondyge translatioun: for in so moch as euery byshoppe had the knowlege of þe tongues, he gaue his diligence to haue the Wyble of his a some translatioun. The doctours, as Hierome, Ciprianus, Cecilian, &c. Iherome, &c. Augustyne, Hieronymus &c. Ambrosyde vpon dyuerse places of the scripture, reade nor þe texte all alphas.

Therefore oughte it not to be taken agene, yf such men as haue vnderstandyngs now in oure tyme, excepte thei selues in þe tongues, & geue their diligence to translate out of one language in to another: see we ought rather to geue god hys thanks therfoze, which thow his spete sterceth by mys myndes, so to exercise them selues therein. wolde god it had neuer bene left of after þe tyme of St. Augustyne, then shulde we neuer haue come in to soch blindness & ignoraunce, in to soch errorous delusions. For as soone as the Wyble was cast asyde, & no more put in exercise, they beganne euery one of his awne heade to wryte what so euery came in to his byayne and þe seemed to be good in his awne eyes: and so grewe þe darke of mys traditiouns. And this same vs cause yf we haue had so many wyrtes, which seldom made me open of þe scripture of the Wyble: a though they some tyme aleged it, yet was it done so faete out of reason a so wyde from þe purpose, that a man maye well perceaue, how that they neuer sawe the original.

Wherfoze then þe this diligent exercise of translatyng doth so moch good a edifyeth in other languages, wher shulde it do euell in oures? Doubtes lyke as all nacyns in þe byuersite of spraches maye knowe one God in the vnyte of faith, and be one in loue: euen so maye dyuerse translatiouns vnderstande one another, & that in the head articles & grounde of oure most blessed faith, though they be sondyge wyrtes. wherfoze me thynke we haue greute occasioun to geue thankes vnto God, that he hath opened vnto his church the gyfte of interpretacioun a of yf anyng, and that there are now at this tyme so many, which with soch diligence and faithfulness: a uer he maye excepye hymselfe the more therin.

For the which cause (as adyng as I was despyred) I toke the more wyon me to set forth this speciall translation, not as a checker, not as a reppouer, o; de spyter of other mens translations (so; amonge many as yet I haue founde none without out caucion of great thankesguyng vnto god) but to wyl a sayntfully haue I folowed myne interpreters, & that vnder correccion. And though I haue sayled eny tober (as there is noman but he nyesth in some thyng) loue shall condypte all to þ best without eny peruerse iudgment. There is noman spyrng þ can se all thynges, ne ther hath god geuen eny man to knowe euery thyng. Our seyth more clearty then another, one hath more vnderstonng then another, one can vter a thyng better then another, but noman ought to enuy, o; despyte another. He that can do better then another, shulde not let him ar naught þ vnderstondeh lesse: pee he that hath þ more vnderstonng, ought to remembre that the same gyfte is not his but Gods, and þ God hath geue it him to teach & enfourme the ignouant. If thou had knowlege therof to iudge where eny faute is made, I boue not but thou wilt helpe to amende it, if loue be toynded with thy knowlege. Whobert wher in so euer I can per-ceay þ by my selfe, o; by the informacon of ocher, that I haue sayled (as it is no wonder) I shall now by the helpe of God ouerlooke it better & amende it.

Now to I exhorte the (who so euer thou be þ readest scripture) if thou spnde oughte therin þ thou vnderstondest not, o; that apereh to be repugnant, geue no remercauous nee haytpe iudgment therof: but ascrybe it to thyne awne ignouant ce, not to the scripture, thyne þ thou vnderstondest it not, o; þ it hath some ocher meanng, o; þ it is happly ouerfene of þ interpreters, o; wyong ppyred. I gap-ne, it shall greatly helpe þ to vnderstonde scripture, if thou marke not onely what is (spoken o; wyrtzen, but of whom, & vnto whom, with what wordes, at what tyme wher, to what intent, with what circumstaunce, conspyrnyng what gooch before, and what foloweth after. For there be some thynges which are done & wyrtze, to the intente þ we shulde do lykewyse: as whan Abraham beleueh God, is obedient vnto his woide, & defendeth Lath his kynman from violent wyonger. There be some thynges also which are wyrtze, to the intente þ we shulde eschue soch lyke. As whan Dauid speth with Urias wyse, & causeth him to be slayne. Therfoye (I saye) whan thou readest scripture, be wyse & circumspect: & whan thou comest to such staunc ge maners of speakyng & darke sentences, to soch parabes & similitudes, to soch deames o; bylions as are hyd from thy vnderstonng, comette them vnto God o; to the gyfte of his holp spete in them þ are better lerned then thou.

As for the commendacon of Gods holy scripture, I wolde sayne magnifye it as it is worthy, but I am certe insufficent therto. & therfoye I thoughte it better for me to hgyde my tonge, then wish se to woibes to ppyse o; commede it: exhortyng þ (most deare reader) so to loue it, so to cleue vnto it, & so to folowe it in thy dayly conuersacon, þ ocher men seynge thy good woikes & the frutes of þ holp good in the, maye ppyse the father of heauen, & geue his woide a good repute: so; to lpeu after the labor of God, & to leade a virtuous conuertyacon, is the greatest ppyse þ thou canst geue vnto his doctryne.

But as touchyng the cuell repute and dyspysse that the good woide of God hath by the conypte and cuell conuertyacon of some, þ dayly heare it and ppyse it out wardly with theyr mouthes, I exhorte þ (most deare reader) let not þ offende thyn conscience with theyr wynde: for the loue of þ truty, neyther moue þ to be partaker in lyke

vnthankfulnes; but seynge þ̄ lighte is come in to the world, loue nonwor; the woices of darknes, receaue not the grace of god in barnes. Call to thy remembraunce how longynge a mercifull God is vnto the, how kydly and fatherly he helpeth the in al' trouble, teacheth thyne ignoiaunce, healeth the in all thy sicknesses, fogetueth the all thy synnes. fydeth þ̄, gureth the by nyght, helpeth þ̄ out of p̄sion, noppeth the in strange countrees, careth fo; the, a sepe; þ̄ thou wante nothyng. Call this to mynde; I sape; a that earnestly, and confyde; how thou hast receaued of god all the se benefices (see aut; many mo then thou canst beleue; how thou art bounde lpe; to se to thyselfe the selfe br to thy neyghbour as farre as thou canst, to teach him of the benefices; to helpe him in all his trouble, to heale his sicknesses, to forgue him his offences, and that hactely, to fede him, to chere; him, to care fo; him, and to se þ̄ he wante nothyng; And on this behalfe I defech the; (thou þ̄ hast þ̄ speches of this world be, and louest God with thy harte) to lyfte vp thyne eyes, and se how greete a multitude of poore people renne thow to euery towne; haue pitie on thyne alme flesh, helpe them with a good harte, and to woth thy counsell all that euer thou canst, that this vnthankfull begynne maye be put downe, that these poble folkes maye be set to labour, a that such as are not able to get they; lpaynge, maye be p̄ouided fo;. But the in remembraunce of those noble cities in other countrees, that by the auoytment of they; p̄inces haue so rychely ad well p̄ouided fo; they; poore; people, to the greete shame a dishonoure of vs, of we; lpe; in p̄ciple receauynge þ̄ woide of God, the we; not such lyke frutes therof. wolde God þ̄ those men (whose office is to maputene þ̄ common wel) were as diligent in this cause as they are in other. Let vs beware by synnes, fo; after vnthankfulnes there foloweth euer a plague; the mercifull hande of God be with vs, a defende vs that we be not partakers therof.

Go to now (most deare reader) a hit the downe at the X. i. o. s. fete and reade his woices, a (as Moses teacheth the Jewes) take them in to they; herte, a let thy tal henge a communication be of them when thou (strest in thyne house, o) goest by þ̄ waye, when thou lpe; downe, a when thou rpe;ch vp. And aboute all thynges fasten thy lyfe, a conuersacion accordynge to the doctrine of the holy goost therein, that thou mayest be partaker of þ̄ good p̄omyces of god in the Wyble, a be hepye of his blessing in Christ. In whom if thou put thy trust, a be an vnspayed reader; o; hearer of his woide with thy hert, thou shalt fynde (betwene the charyn, a lpe; woideous thynges, to thy vnderstandynge, to the auoydng of all sedycious sectes, to the ab hoyngne of thy olde synfull lyfe, a to the stablyshynge of thy godly conuersacion.

In the first boke of Moses (called Genesis) thou mayest lerne to knowe the almightye powert of god in creatynge all of naught, his infinite wysdome in ordynge the same, his ryghteousnes in punysshynge þ̄ vngodly, his loue a fatherly mercie in comfortynge the righteous with his p̄myces. ac.

In the seconde boke (called Exodus) we se the myghtye arme of god, in helpynge his people (from so greete bondage out of Egypte, and what p̄ouysion he maketh fo; them in the wildernes, how he teacheth them with his wysdomne woide and how the Tabernacle was made and set vp.

In the thyrde boke (called Leviticus) is declared what sacrifices the p̄yestes a Levites used, and what they; office a ministracion was.

In the fourth boke (called Numerus) is declared how the people are nombred and mustred, how the captaynes are chosen after þ̄ ryches a kynredes, how they; we; te forth to þ̄ battayll, how they; pitched they; tentes, a how they; make vp.

The fyfth boke (called Deuterocronium) sheweth how that Moses now beyn ge olde, reherceth the lawe of god vnto þ̄ people, putterh them in remembraunce agayne of all the wondrous a benefices that god had shewed fo; them, and ch. ho; receth them earnestly to loue þ̄ X. i. o. s. fete; god, to cleue vnto him, to put there; trust in him and to hearken vnto his voyce.

To the reader.

After the death of Moses doth Iosue bringe the people in to the lode of promes where God both wondrous thynge for his people by Iosue, which distributech þe lorde vnto them, vnto euery tpe theyr possession. But in theyr wealth they forgot the goodnes of God, so that oft tymes he gaue the ouer in to the hande of theyr enemies. Acuerthles when so euer they called faithfully vpon him, and conuerted, he deliuered them agayne, as the booke of Iudges declareth.

In the booke of the Iudges, is descreibed the regiment of good and euill kynnes, and how the decaye of all nacions cometh by euill kynnes. For in Jeroboam thou seest what impietie, what ydolatre a such like abhominacion foloweth, wha the kynge is a manermer of false doctrine, ad caueth the people to synne agaynst God, which fallinge awaye from Gods worde, increased so ioye amonge them, that it was the cause of all theyr sojowre and misery, a the very occasion why Istael first and then Iuda, were carryed awaye in to captiuite. Agayne, in Josaphat, in Ezechias and in Josias thou seest the nature of a vertuous kynge. He putteth downe the houses of ydolatre, seyth that his prestes teach nothyng but þe laue of God, he 2. Par; 17. b. naundeth his lordes to go with them, and to se that they teach the people. In these kynnes (I saie) thou seest the cōdicion of a true defender of þe sayth, for he spareth neither cost nor labour, to manteyne the lawes of God, to seke the welth a prosperite of his people, and to cōte out the wicked. And where such a kynge is, thou seest agayne, how God defendeth him and his people, though he haue neuer so many enemies. Thus wrote it with the in the olde tyme, and euen after þe same maner goeth it now with vs: God be prayed therfore, ad graunte vs of his fatherly mercie, that we be not vnthankfull: lest inhere he now geerth vs a Josaphat, an Ezechias, pee a very Josias, he sende vs a Dhaano, a Jeroboam, or an Achab.

In the two first booke of Eldras a in Hester thou seest the deliuerance of the people, which though they were but fewe, yet is it vnto vs all a speciall cōforte, for so much as God is not forgetfull of his promes, but bringeth them out of captiuite, a cōdempne as he had tolde them before.

In the booke of Job we lerne cōsolte and patience, in that God not onely punisheth the wicked, but pouerth a tryeth the iust and righteous (howbeit there is no man innocent in his sight) by dyuerse troubles in this lyfe, declaryng theyr, þe they are not his ballardes, but his deare sonnes, and that he loueth them.

In the Psalms we lerne how to resorte onely vnto God in all oure troubles, to seke helpe at him, to call onely vpon him, to sette oure myndes by pacēce, a how we ought in prosperite to be thankfull vnto him,

The Diuines and the preacher of Salomon teach vs wylidome, to knowe God, oure owne felices, and the world, and how bayne all thynge are, saue onely to serue vnto God.

As for the doctrine of the Prophetes, what is it els, but an earnest exhortacion to eschue synne, a to tume vnto God: a saythfull promes of the mercie ad pardon of God, vnto all them þe tume vnto him, and a threathenyng of his iustie to the yngodly: saunging that here and there they prophesye also manifestly of Christ, of þe expulsiō of the Jewes, and callenge of the hethen.

Thus much thought I to speake of þe olde Testament, wherein almyghtie God openly sheweth vs his myghtie powet, his wylidome, his souynge mercie a righteousnes: for the which cause it oughte of no man to be abhorred, despyed, or lightly regarded, as though it were an olde scripture þe nothyng belyged vnto vs, or þe now to be refused. For it is Gods true scripture a testimony, which the Lord Iesus commaundeth the Jewes to searce, who so euer belueueth not the scripture, belueueth not Christ, and who so refuseth it, refuseth God also. Jo. 5. b.

The New Testament or Gospell, is a manifest and cleare testimony of Christ how God performeth his oath and promes made in the olde Testament, how the New is declared and included in the Olde, and the Olde fulfilled and embraced in the New.

A prologe.

Now where as the most famous interpreters of all geue found; y^e iudgements of the text (so farre as it is done by p^rop^rtye of knowledge in the holy good) me th^rislike woman shulde be offended there at, for they refferre they^r doings in iⁿckenes to the sp^rite of truth in the congregacion of gods: a sure I am, that there cometh moze knowledge and vnderstandinge of the scripture by they^r found; y^e translations, then by all the glozes of oure sophisticall doctours. For that one interpreteth somthinge obscurely in one place, the same translateth another (o^r els by him selfe) moze manly by a moze plain & corable of the same meanyng in another place. Be not thou offended therfore (good reader) though one call a scribe, that another calleth a lawyer: o^r others, that another calleth father a mother: o^r repentance, that another calleth penance o^r amendment. For yf thou be not discaued by mens tradicions, thou shalt fynde no moze byuersite betwene these termes then betwene foure pens and a gote. And this maner haue I vsed in my translation, calling it in some place penance, that in another place I call repentance, and that not onely because the interpreters haue done so before me, but that the aduersaries of the truth may see, how that we abhorre not this woode y^enaunce (as they vntuly^r repoute of vs) no moze then the interpreters of layn abhorre penitence, when they reade resipience. Onely ouer hertes desyre vnto God, is, that his people be not bynded in they^r vnderstandinge, lest they beleue penance to be ought saue a very penance, amendment, o^r conuersion vnto God, and to be an vnsayd net to creature in Christ, and to lye a cōspiring to his laue. For it shall they fall in to the olde blasphemous of Christes bloude, and beleue, that they the selues are able to make satisfaction vnto God by they^r alone synnes, from the which errorre god of his mercy and pléteous goodnes p^rectue all his.

Now to conclude: so moche as all the scripture is wyrtten fo; thy doctrine & examp^le, it shall be necessary fo; the, to take holde vpon it, whyle it is offered the, pee and w^ort^hen handes thankfully to receaue it. And though it be not wo^rthy ministered vnto the in this translation (by reason of my rudnes) yet yf thou be fruct in thy prayer, God shall not onely sende it the in a better wyape, by the mynistracion of other that beganne it afoze, but shall also moue the hertes of them, which as yet could not w^ort^hall, to take it in hande, and to bestowe the gifte of they^r vnderstandinge thereon, as well in oure language as other famous interpreters do in other languages. And I praye God, that thou to my poore ministracion here in, I maye geue them that can do better, some occasion so to do: exhortyng the (most deare reader) in the meane whyle on Gods behalfe, yf thou be a heade, a Judge, o^r ruler of p^r people, that thou let not the boke of this laue departe out of thy mouth, but execute thyselfe therein both daye and nyght, and be euer readyng in it as long as thou lyest: that thou mayest lerne to feare the Loze thy God, & not to turne asyde from the commandment, neither to the right hande nor to the left: lest thou be a howler of perfonnes in iudg^mnt, and w^ort^h the righte of the steangier, of the fatherles o^r of the w^ordle, and so yf euele to come vpon the. But what office so euer thou hast w^ort^he vpon it, and execute it, to the maintenuance of peace, to the weylth of the people, defendyng the lawes of God, and the lawes thereof, and to the destruction of the wicked.

yf thou be a preacher, and hast the oversighte of the flocke of Christ, awake and fede Chyldes shepe with a good herte, & spare no laboure to do them good, s^heke not thy selfe, & bewaite of felchly lucre; but be vnto p^r flocke an examp^le, in p^r wo^rde, in cōuersacion, in loue, in feruencines of p^r sp^rite, and be euer readyng, exhortyng, & teachyng in Gods wo^rde, that the people of God renne not vnto other doctrynes and lest thou thy selfe (whan thou shuldest teach other) be founde igno; aunt thyrtin. And rather then thou shouldst teach the people any other thyng then Gods wo^rde take the boke in thyne hande, & reade the wo^rde eue as they s^houde thet in (so; it is no hyme so to do, it is moze shame to make a hyme) C^his I sape fo; fo; . as are not yet experte in the scripture, fo; I repoune no preachyng w^ort^hout the boke as long as they sape the truth.

5.c.

If thou be a man that hast wyse and chyldre, first loue thy wyse, & cooptynge to the ensample of the lone, wherwith Christ loued the cōgregation, and remembre that to doynge, thou louest euen thyselfe: if thou hate her, thou hatest thine owne fleshy: if thou cherishe her and make moche of her, thou cherishest & makest moche of thyselfe for she is bone of thy bones, & fleshy of thy fleshy. And who so euer thou be that hast chyldren, byng them by in the nurture and informacion of the Lord. And if thou be ignorant, or act other wyse occupied lawfully that thou canst not teach them thy selfe, then be euen as diligent to seke a good mastre for thy chyldre, as thou wast to seke a mother to beare them: for there lieth as great waight in the one as in þ other, yett better it were for the to be vnbayne, then not to feare God, or to be euel brought vp, which thynges I meane byngynge by well of chyldren if it be diligently looked to, it is the vpholdinge of all comon welthes: and the negligens of the same, the very decaie of all realmes.

Ephe.

Finally, who so euer thou be, take these wordes of scripture in to thy heart, and be not onely an outwarde hearer, but a doer thereafter, and practyse thyselfe therein: that thou mayest seie in thine heart, the swete promyses thereof for thy consolacion in all trouble, & for the sure stablyshinge of thy hope in Christ, and haue euer an eye to þ wordes of scripture, that if thou be a teacher, or

And God sayde: let there be light, & there was light. And God sawe the light that it was good. Then God benyde th' light from the darcknes, and call'd the light, Daye, and the darcknes, the darcknes. The light then of the eveninge and the morninge was made the first daye.

And God sayde: let there be a firmament betweene the waters, and let it benyde th' waters a funder. Then God made th' firmament, and parted the waters under the firmament, from the waters above the firmament: And so it came to passe. And God called th' firmament, Heavens. Then of the eveninge & morninge was made the second daye.

And God sayde: let the waters under heu- Job 41. b dive into the maye appere. And so it came to passe. And God called th' dya, loode, Earth: and the gatheringe together of waters called he, of Sea. And God sawe th' it was good.

And God sayde: let th' earth bringe forth grene grasse and herbe, that beareth fruite: & frute full trees, that maye beare frute, every one a kinne by thynde, & bringe their fruite to be in their frutes upon the earth. And so it came to passe. And the earth broughte forth grene grasse and herbe, & beareth fruite every one after his kinde, & trees bearinge fruite, & havinge their owne seede in them selves, one ry one a fter his kynde. And God sawe that it was good. Then of the eveninge & mornynge was made the thirde daye.

Psal. 104 And God sayde: let there be lightes in y firmament of heauen, to be daye & the night, to separate the daye from the night, let them be light in y firmament of heauen, to shine upon the earth: And so it came to passe. And God made two greater lightes: one greater light to rule the daye, and a lesse light to rule the night, and he made starres also. And God set them in the firmament of heauen, & they might shine vpon earth, and to rule the daye and the night, and to be for the lighte firm ament. And God sawe that it was good.
Then of the eveninge and mornynge was made the fourth daye.

C And God sayde: let the waters bringe forth creatures that moue and haue life, & fowles also to flye aboue the earth: and let the firmament of heauen, and all manner of creatures that haue and moue, which the waters bringe forth every one a fter his kynde: and all maner of fowled fowles, every one a fter his kynde: And God sawe that it was good, and blessed them, sayinge: Growe, and multiplye, and fill the waters of the sea, and let the fowles multiplye vpon the earth. Then of the eveninge and mornynge was made the fifth daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bringe forth livinge soules, every one a fter his kynde: as the catt, & the beest, & the beast of the earth, every one a fter his kynde. And so it came to passe. And God made of the earth every one a fter his kynde, and cattell a fter their kynde, and all manner of beastes of the earth a fter their kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

D And God sayde: let vs make man in o ur image, after our likenesse, that he maye ha ue rule ouer the fish of the see, and ouer the fowles vnder y heauen, and ouer cattell, and ouer all the earth, and ouer all the wormes that creepe vpon y earth. And God created man af ter his likenesse: after the likenesse of God crea ted he him, male & female created he them.

And God blessed them, and sayde vnto them: Growe, and multiplye, and fill the earth, and subdue it, & haue dominion ouer the fish of the see, and ouer the fowles of the ayre, and ouer all the beastes that creepe vpon the earth.

Gen. 1. 26 And God sayde: lo, I haue giuen you all maner herbes that beare seede vpon the mo le earth, and all maner fructifull trees that beare fruite, to be meate for you. And to all beastes of the earth, and to all fowles vnder the heauen, and to euery worme that hath li fe vpon earth, all manner grasse herbes to ser ue. And so it came to passe. And God bles sed all y he be made, and he they were crea tinge gods. Then of the eveninge and mor nyng was made the sixte daye.

The seconde Chapter.
Thus was heauen and earth finished with all their heuill, and thus in the sixt daye God ended his worke, which he had made, & rested in the sixth daye from all his workes which he had ma de: And he blessed the sixth daye, & said: thus it is, because y an he rested from all his wo rkes, which God created and made.

These are the generations of heauen and earth: when they were created, in the begin ninge when the LORD God made heauen and earth: before there was any ground vpon earth, and as yet there was not any greene herbe vpon the earth. For the LORD God had yet made no vpon y earth, neither was there any man to till the earth. And there was a mist from the earth, & water was out of the founteyne of the earth, & he filled the face of y earth with water. And so man made a livinge soule.

The LORD God also planted a garden of pleasure in Eden, towards the east, and he made therein whom he had made. And the LORD God caused to sprynge out of the earth all manner of trees, pleasant to the eye, and good to eate: and the tree of life in the myddell of the garden, and the tree of know lege of good and euill.

And out of Eden there wente a ryuer, to water the garden, and there beynge in fyve it doth fynde his waye out. The first is called Phison, which runneth aboute all the lande of Chanaan. And there is fouthe godes, & the gode of that comere is precious stones, & Opie. The fyfth water is called Gihon, which runneth aboute the whole lande of y Mesopotamia. The thirde water is called Euphrate, which runneth towards the east vnto the sea of y Persia. The fourth water is Euphrate.

And the LORD God set man in y pleasure garden of Eden, to till it & to kepe it. And the LORD God comman ded man, sayinge: Thou shalt eate of all ma ner trees in y garden: but of y tree of know lege of good and euill, shalt thou not eate. For loke in what daye so euer thou eatest therof, thou shalt dye the death.

And the LORDE God sayde: It is not good for ma shalbe alone. I wil make him an helpe, to beare him company. And when God the LORDE had made of the earth all maner bestes of the felde, & all maner foules vnder the heauē, he broughte them vnto man, to se what he wolde call the. For as ma called all maner of liuinge soules, so are their names. And man gaue names vnto all maner cattell, & vnto the foules vnder the heauē, and vnto all maner bestes of the felde. But vnto man there was founde no helpe, to beare him company.

Then the LORDE God caused an herbe sleete to fall vpon man, and he sleete. And he toke out one of his rybbes, and (in steade thereof) he filled up the place with flesh. And the LORDE God made a woman, of the ribbe that he toke out of man, and broughte her vnto him. Then sayde man: This is once done of my bones, and flesh of my flesh. She shalbe called woman, because she was take of man. For this cause shal a man leaue father and mocher, and cleue vnto his wife, & they two shalbe one flesh. And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

The iiij. Chapter.

¶ De the serpent was dyuylar then a lll the bestes of the felde, which of LOR

DE God had made) and sayde vnto the woman: Yee, hath God sayde in dede: Ye shall not eate of all maner trees in the garden? Then sayde the woman vnto the serpent: We eate of the frute of the trees in the garden: But as for the frute of the tree that is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: Eate not ye of it, and touch it not, lest ye dye.

Then saide the serpent vnto the woman: Cusch, ye shall not dye the death. For God doth knowe, that in what daye so euer ye eate of it, youre eyes shalbe opened, and ye shalbe as God, and knowe both good and euill. And the woman sawe that the tree was good to eate of, and lustye vnto the eyes, and a pleasant tree to make wyse, and toke of the frute of it, and ate, and gaue vnto her husbande also thereof, and he ate. Then were the eyes of them both opened, and they perceaued that they were naked, and so wove figge leaues together, and made them apurtes.

And they herbe the voyce of the LORDE God, which walketh in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam hyd him self with his wyfe, from the presence of the LORDE God amonge the trees of the garden. And the LORDE God called Adam, and sayde vnto him: Where art thou? And he sayde: I herbe thy voyce in the garden, and was a frayed, because I am naked, and herseke I hyd myself. And he sayde: who tolde the, that thou art naked? Hast thou not eaten of the tree, wherof I commaunded the, that thou shouldest not eate?

Then sayde Adam: The woman which thou gauest me to beare me company gaue me of the tree, and I ate. And the LORDE God sayde vnto the woman: wherfore hast thou done this? The woman sayde: the serpent deceaued me so, that I ate. Then sayde the LORDE God vnto the serpent: Because thou hast done this, cursed be thou aboue all cattell and aboue all bestes of the felde. Vpon thy belly shalt thou go, & cressh shalt thou eate all the dayes of thy lyfe. And I will put enemye betwene the and the woman, and betwene the syde and her syde. The same shal treade downe thy heade, and thou shalt treade him on the hylde.

And vnto the woman he sayde: I will increase thy rowe, whereas thou art with child: with payne shalt thou beare thy child, and thy lust shal serue vnto thy husband, and he shal rule the.

And vnto Adam he sayde: For so much as thou hast hearkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, and hast eaten of the tre, wherof I commaunded the, sayinge: thou shalt not eate of it. Cursed be y^e earth for thy sake. With sorowe shalt thou eate thereof, all the dayes of thy life. Thowmes and thistles shalt it beare vnto the, and thou shalt eate the herbes of the wilde. In the sweate of thy face shalt thou eate thy bread, vntill thou be turned agayne vnto earth, wherof thou art: talke for earth thou art, and vnto earth shalt thou be turned agayne.

And Adam called his wyfe Hena, because she is the mother of all lyvinge. And the LORDE God made Adam 7 his wyfe garments of slymes, 7 thet he put on them. And the LORDE God sayde to Adam: thou shalt become as it were one of vs, 7 knowest good 7 euill. But now lest he stretch his hande, and take also of the tre of life, and eate, and lyue for euer. Then the LORDE God put him out of the garden of Eden, to eate of the tree, wherof he was talke. And he cast Adam out. And before the garden of Eden he set Cherubes, and a naked sward, to kepe y^e waye vnto the tre of life.

The iiiij. Chapter.

When Adam laye with Hena his wyfe, which ceased 7 bare Cain, and sayde, I haue preymed y^e man of the LORDE. And she proceeded forth, 7 bare his brother Abell. And Abell became a shepherde, but Cain became an husbande man.

And it fortuned a fter certayne daies, that Cain brought of the frute of the earth, an offeringe vnto y^e LORDE. And Abell broughte also of the firstlinges of his shepe, and of y^e fat of them. And the LORDE had respecte vnto Abell, and to his offeringe: but vnto Cain and his offeringe he looked not. Then was Cain cyradinge wroth, and his countenance changed. And the LORDE sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou angrye? and why doeth thy countenance change? Is it not so: that if thou do well, thou shalt receaue it: but and if thou do euill, thy synne lyeth open in the doore. Shal he then be subdued vnto the: and wilt thou rule him? And Cain talked with Abell his brother.

And it happened, that when they were in the felde, Cain arose agaynst Abell his brother, and slew him. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Cain: Where is Abell thy brother? He sayde: I can not tell. Am I my brothers keeper? And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brother: bloude cryeth vnto me out of the earth. And now shalt thou be cursed vpon the earth, which hath opened hir mouth, and receaued thy brothers bloude of thine hande. When thou tylest y^e grounde, she shall beynferty nor geue hir power vnto the. A vagabunde and a renegate shalt thou be vpon y^e earth. And Cain sayde vnto y^e LORDE: My synne is greater, then that it maye be forgiven me. Beholde, thou castest me out this daye from out of y^e lande, and from y^e sighte must I byde myself, and must be a vagabunde and a renegate vpon y^e earth. And thus shal it go with me: that who so fyndeth me, shal slaye me.

But the LORDE sayde thus vnto him: Who so euer slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged sevenfold. And the LORDE put a marke vpon Cain, that no man which founde him, shalde kyll him. So Cain reuene out from y^e face of the LORDE, and dwelle in the lande Edo, vpon the east side of Eden.

And Cain laye with his wyfe, which ceased and bare Henech. And he buyded a cite, and called it after the name of his sone Henech. And Henech begat Irad, Irad begat Mahuid, Mahuid begat Methusael, Methusael begat Lamech.

And Lamech toke him two wyues: y^e one was called Ada, 7 the other Zilla. And Ada bare Iabel, of whom came they that dwelle in tents and had cattell. And his brothers name was Jubal: Of him came they that occupied harpes 7 pipes. And Zilla she also bare Tubalcaim, a worker in all connyng poyntes of metall 7 yron. And Tubalcaims syster was called Naama.

And Lamech sayde vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: I eate my voyce: ye wyues of Lamech, and hearken vnto my wordes: for I haue slayne a man, and wounded myself: and (hane kyled) a yongeman, and gotte myself stryppen. Cain shalbe auiged sine tyme to tyme: Lamech slayn and slayn tyme.

Adam laye yet with his wyfe agayne, 7 she bare a sone, and called him Set. For God (sayde she) hath apoynted me another side, for Abell, whom Cain slew. And Seth began a some also, and called him Enoe. At the sometye begame men to call upon the name of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

This is the booke of the generacion of man, in the tyme when God created man, and made him a fere the similitude of God. Male and female made he them, and blessed the, & called their names Man, in the tyme when they were created. And Adams was an hundred and thirtie years olde, and begat a sonne, which was like hiu omne ymage, and called his name Seth: & luyed thereafter eight hundred years, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and thirtie years, and so he dyed.

Seth was an hundred and fyve years olde, and begat Enoe: & luyed thereafter eight hundred and seven years, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and twolve years, and so he dyed.

Enoe was nyntyne years olde, and begat Lamech: and luyed thereafter eight hundred & sixtyn years, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and fyve years, and so he dyed.

Lamech was scuttye years olde, and begat Mahalael: and luyed thereafter eight hundred and fourty years, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and ten years, and so he dyed.

Mahalael was thre score years olde & fyve, and begat Jared: and luyed thereafter eight hundred and thirtie years, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was eight hundred, nyntyne and fyve years, and so he dyed.

Jared was an hundred and thre & sixtyn years olde, and begat Enoch: & luyed thereafter eight hundred years, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and two and sixtyn years, and so he dyed.

Enoch was fyve and thre score years olde, and begat Methusalah: and led a godly conuersacion the hundred years thereafter, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was the hundred and fyve and thre score years. And for so much as he luyed a godly life, God toke him away, & he was nomore sene.

Methusalah was an hundred & seue and foure score years olde, & begat Lamech: and luyed thereafter seuen hundred and two and foure score years, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and nyne and thre score years, and so he dyed.

Lamech was an hundred and two and foure score years olde, and begat a sonne, & called him Noe, and sayde: This same shall cōfōrt vs in our woakes, and in the sōrtme of our bondes vpon the earth, which the LORDE hath curst. After this he luyed fyue hundred and fyve & nyntyne years, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was seuen hundred seuen and scuttye years, and so he dyed.

Noe was fyve hundred years olde, and begat Sem, Ham and Japhet.

The Vi. Chapter.

So when man beganne to multiple vpon the earth, and had begot them daughters, the children of God sawe the daughters of men, that they were fayre, and toke vnto the wyues such as they liked. Then sayde ¶ LORDE: My spere shal not allowe ye styue with man, for he is but flesch also. I will yet geue him respere an hundred and twety years. There were giante also in the worlde at that tyme. For when the children of God had luyed with the daughters of men, and begotten them children, of same (children) became mightie in the worlde, and men of renoume.

But when the LORDE sawe ¶ the wickednes of man was increased vpon ¶ the earth, and that all ¶ thought and imagination of their hert was but onely enill continually, it repened him, that he had made man vpon the earth, and he sōuened in his hert, and sayde: I will destroye man kynde which I haue made, from the earth: both man, best, worme, and soule vnder the heauen: for it repeneth me, that I haue made them. Neuer theles Noe founde grace in the sighte of the LORDE.

This is ¶ generacion of Noe. Noe was a righteous and perfect mā, and led a godly life in his tyme, and begat the sonnes Sem, Ham and Japhet. For with standinge ¶ earth was corrupt in ¶ sighte of God, and full of myschese. Then God luyed vpon ¶ earth: and lo, it was corrupt, for all flesch had corrupted his waye vpon the earth.

Then sayde God vnto Noe: Then ende of all flesch is come before me, for the earth is full of myschese before them. And lo, I will destroye them with the earth. Make the an Ark of pynete, and make chambers in it, and pitch it within and without with pitch and make it a fixer this fashion: The length shal be three hundred cubites, the breadth five hundred cubites, and the height thre hundred cubites. A wyndow shalt thou make aboute of a cubite greater: but the doore shalt thou set in the myddest in the syde of it: And the Arke shalt thou make with the losse one aboute another. For loe, I will bringe a floude of water upon the earth, to destroye all fleshy wherein the breath of life is: vnder the heave: All that is upon earth, shal perishe.

D But with the wyll I make a covenant, and thou shalt go into the Arke with thy sonnes, with thy wyfe, and with thy sonnes wyves. And of all creatures what so ever fleshy be, they shal bringe into the Arke, even a payre: the male and the female, that they maye lyue wth the. Of foules after their kynde, of bestes after their kynde, and of all maner wormes of the earth after their kynde. Of every one of these shal there a payre go in unto thee, that they maye lyue. And thou shalt take vnto thee all maner of meate that maye be eaten, and shalt laye it up in store by thee, that it maye be meate for thee and them. And Noe byd a cordinge to all that God commaunded him.

The VII. Chapter.

N And I LORDEsayde vnto Noe: Go in to the Arke thou & thy whole house: for the haue I sene righteous before me at this tyme. Of all cleane bestes take vnto the seven and seven, the male and his female. And of unclean bestes a payre, the male and his female. Like wyfe of the foules vnder the heauen, seven and seven, the male and his female, that there maye be seld left a lyne upon the whole earth.

For yett after seven dayes, I will sende raine vpon the earth fourtie dayes and fourtie nightes, and will destroye all maner of thinges that I haue made, from of the face of the earth.

And Noe byd all that the LORDE commaunded him. Sure hū dredth yere olde was he, when the water floude came vpon earth. And he wente in to the Arke, with his sonnes, his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues, for the waters of the floude. Of cleane bestes and of unclean, of all fethered foules, & of all that crepeth vpon earth, wente in vnto him to the Arke by paires, a male and a female, as I LORDE commaunded him. And when the seven dayes were pass, the water floude came vpon the earth.

In the six hundredth yere of Noes age, vpon the sixtenth daye of the seconde moneth, that same daye were all I foumynes of the greates depe broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened, and there came rayne vpon I earth fourtie dayes and fourtie nightes.

Vpon the selfe same daye wente Noe into the Arke, with Sem, Ham and Japhet his sonnes, and with his wyfe, and the wyues of his sonnes, and all maner of bestes after their kynde, all maner of cattell after their kynde, all maner of crawinge thinges (that crepe v^{er} the earth) after their kynde, and all maner of foules (what so ever coude flye & what so ever had fethers) after their kynde: These wente all vnto Noe in to the Arke by coopes, of all flesh in whom was the breath of life. And these were the male & the female of all maner of flesh, and wente in, a cordinge as God commaunded him. And the LORDE shut the doore vpon him.

Then came the water floude fourtie dayes vpon the earth, and the water increased, and bare up the Arke, and lift it vp ouer I earth. Thus the water preyayled, and increased fore vpon the earth, so that the Arke wente vpon the waters. See the waters preyayled and increased so foue vpon earth, that all the hie mountaynes vnder the whole heauen were covered. I fyfene cubytes hie preyayled I waters ouer the mountaynes, which were covered.

Then all flesh that crepeth vpon earth, perished, both foules, cattell, bestes, and all I moued vpon earth, and all men. What so ever had the breath of life vpon the drye land, dyed.

Thus was destroyed all that was vpon the earth, both man and beast, both women and foules vnder I heave: all these were destroyed from the earth. Sauer Noe onely remained, and they that were with him in the Arke. And the waters preyayled vpon the earth, an hundredth and fyfene dayes.

The VIII. Chapter.

When God remembered Noe and all the bestes, and all the cattell that were with him in the Arke, and caused a wynde to come upon the earth: and 3 moneths ceased, and the fourtaynes of the wynde and the wyndowes of heauen were stoppe, and the raine of heauē was forbydden, and the waters ranne styll awaye from 3 earth, and decreasid afeer an hundred and sixtye dayes.

Upon the threthente daye of the seventh month rested the Arke vpon the mountaynes of Ararat. And the waters were awaye and decreasid vntyll the tenth month: for the first daye of the tenth month, the topes of the mountaynes appeared.

Afeer foueretic dayes Noe opened 3 doore of the Arke which he had made, 2 sent forth a rauen, which flew ouer, and came agayne, vntyll the waters were dryed vp vpon the earth.

Then sent he forth a doue from him, to see, whether the waters were fallē vpon the earth. But when 3 doue coude fynde no restinge place for hir feet, she came agayne vnto him in to the Arke, for the waters were yet vpon the face of all the earth. And he put ouer his hande, and toke her to him in to the Arke.

Then he abode yet seuen dayes mo, 2 sent out the doue agayne out of the Arke: 2 she returned vnto him aboure the euen tyme: and beholde, she had broken of a leaf of an olyue tree, 2 bare it in hir nebb. Then Noe perceaued, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. Thereafter he caried yet seuen other dayes, and sent forth the doue, which came nomore to him agayne.

In the sixte hundred and one yeare of Noes age, vpon the first daye of 3 first month, the waters were dryed vp vpon the earth. Then Noe toke of the hardes of the Arke, and sawe 3 the face of the earth was drye. So vpon the iijm and twentieth daye of the seconde month the whole earth was drye.

Then spake God vnto Noe, and sayde: Go out of the Arke, thou and thy wyfe, and thy sonnes, and thy sonnes wyues with the. As for all the bestes that are with the, what so euer flesch is be: both soule 2 cattell and all maner of wyrmes that creepe vpon the earth: let them go out with the, and be ye occupied vpon the earth, growe and mul-lice i. d tiplye vpon the earth.

So Noe wente out, with his sonnes, and with his wyfe, and with his sonnes wyues, All the bestes also and all the wyrmes, and all the foules, and all that creepe vpon the earth, wente out of the Arke, euery one vnto his life.

And Noe brydged an altare vnto 3 LORD
Leui. iij DE, and toke of all maner of cleane bestes 2 of all maner of cleane foules, and offered best sacrifices vpon 3 altare. And 3 LORDE smelchē the sweete saue, 2 sayde in his hert: I wyll hence forth curse the earth nomore for mans sake, for the ymaginacion of mans hert is euill, euen from the very youth of him. Therfore from hence forth I will nomore smyte all that lyueth, as I haue done. Therby shall sowynge tyme and harvest, colde and heate Sommer and wynter, daye and nyght cease: so longe as the earth endureth.

The IX. Chapter.

When God blessed Noe and his sonnes, and sayde vnto them: increase 2 multiplie, and fill the earth. The feare also and drede of you be vpon all bestes of the earth, vpon all foules vnder the heauen, and vpon all that creepe on the earth, and all wythes of the see be genen in to your handes. All that moueth and hath life, be youre meate. Euen as the grene herbe, so haue I geaue you all. Onely eate not the flesch with the bloude, wherū the soule is: for the bloude of the hande of all bestes: and the soule of mannyll I requyre of mans hande, yet every mans soule of anothers hande.

Ye that sheddeth mān bloude, his bloude shall be shed by man agayne, for God ma be man afeer his owne liknesse. As for you, be ye fructifull, and increasē, and be occupied vpon the earth, that ye maye multiplye therein.

Thereafter, God sayde vnto Noe and to his sonnes to him: Beholde, I make my cōuenaunt with you, and with your seede.

after you, and with every luyng creature that is with you, both foule, cartell, and all beastes upon the earth with you, of all that is gone out of the Arke, what so euer beaft of the earth it be: And thus I made my couenaunt with you, that hence forth all flesh shall not be destroyed with the waters of eny floude, and from hence forth there shall come no floude to destroye the earth.

And God sayde: This is the token of my couenaunt which I haue made betwene me and you, and all luyng creatures amonge you for euermore: My bowe will I see in the cloudes, and it shall be the token of my couenaunt betwene me and y^e earth: so that when I bringe cloudes upon the earth, the bowe shall appeare in the cloudes. And then will I shynke vpon my couenaunt: betwene me and you and all luyng creatures in all maner of flesh: so that from hence forth there shall no more come eny floude of water to destroye all flesh. Therfore shall my bowe be in the cloudes, that I maye loke vpon it, and remember the euerlastyng couenaunt, betwene God and all luyng creatures in all flesh that is vpon earth. God sayde also vnto Noe: This is the token of the couenaunt, which I haue made betwene me and all flesh vpon earth.

The sonnes of Noe which wente out of the Arke, are these: Sem, Ham and Japhet. No for Ham he is the father of Canaan. The se are Noes thre sonnes, of whom all landes were ouersped.

Noe beganne to take hede vnto y^e synninge of the grounde, & planted a vyuard: And dranke of the wyne, and was drunken, and laye vncouered in his tene. Now when ha^e the father of Canaan sawe his fathers nakednes, he tolde his two brethren without. The toke Sem and Japhet a manuell and put it vpo both their shuldere, and wente backward, and couered their fathers secretes: & their faces were turned asyde, y^e they shulde not see their fathers nakednes.

So when Noe awaked from his wyne, and perceaued what his yonger sonne had done vnto him, he sayde: Cursed be Canaan, and a seruaunt of seruaunts be vnto his brethren. He sayde moreover: Praised be the LORDE God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt. God increase Japhet, and let him dwell in the tentes of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt.

And Noe luyd after the floude the hundreth & fiftye yere, so y^e his wholeage was 12 hundred and fiftye yere, and so he dyed.

The X. Chapter.

This is the generation of the childre of Noe, Sem, Ham, and Japhet, & they began children after the floude. The children of Japhet are these: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Iauan, Tubal, Mesek and Thyus. The childre of Gomer are these: Akenas, Riphat and Togaima. The children of Iauan are these: Elia, Tharsis, Cithim and Debanim: Of these are descended the Iles of y^e Northen in their countrees, eue ry one after his speech, kyned and people.

The childre of Ham are these: Chus, Misraim, Phat and Canaan. The children of Chus are these: Seba, & tula Sabcha, Beyma and Sabchecha.

The children of Keyna are these: Sheba and Dedā. Chus also began Nimrod, which beganne to be mighty in the earth, and was a mighty hunter in the sight of the LORDE. Therof cometh the piewerde: This is a mighty hunter before the LORDE like a Nimrod. And the ougeinall of his kyngdome was Babel, Erch, Acad & Chaine in y^e londe of Syuar. Out of that londe came Assur, and baylde Ninne, and y^e stretes of y^e cite, and Calah, and Resen betwene Tynne & Calah: This is a treate cite. Mizraim began Ludim, Enamim, Echim, Naphtchim, Pathusim & Casubim, from whiche came the Philistynes and Caphtorims. Canaan also began Zidon his eldest soun, & Heth, Jebusi, Emou, Gergosi, Gini, Arzi, Simi, Ararabi, Semati & Hamati: fro whence y^e kyned of y^e Cananites are dispersed abroad. And y^e Coastes of y^e Cananites were fro Sidde forth thowow Gerar vnto Gasa, & yll thow come fro vnto Sodom, Gemotia, Adama, Zebdim, & vnto Lasa. These are the children of Ham in their kyneds, tanges, londe & people. And Sem which is y^e father of all the children of Eber, & the elder brother of Japhet, began childre also. And these are his children: Elia, Assur, Arphachod, Lud & Aram. The childre of Aram are these: Os, Hul, Gether & Mas.

D And Arphaxad begat Sala, and Sala begat Eber. Eber begat two sonnes: the name of the one was Peleg, because that in his tyme the worlde was decayed, and his brothers name was Jafetan. And Jafetan begat Almodad, Saleph, Hazarmaphet, Jarah, Hatotham, Usal, Ditelo, Obal, Abemael, Saba, Ophir, Henia, z Jobab: All the se are y childre of Jafetan. And their dwellinge was from Mesia, vylle thou come vnto Sepharaim mountayne of y east. These are y childre of Sem in their generacions, thus geoslonde and people.

This is now y generacion of y children of Noe in their tyme and people. Of these were y people upon earth spred a brode after y floode.

The XI. Chapter.

After all the worlde had one tonge z language. Now as they wente toward the East, they founde a plaine in y londre of Synear, z there they dwellt, z saide one to another: Come on, let vs make brick z burne it. And they toke bricke for stone, z tyme for moxer, and saide: Come, let vs buyde a cite z a towre, whose topp may reach vnto heauen, z we maye make vs a name, afore we be feared abrode in all londre. Then came y LORDE downe, to se y cite z towre, z y chylde of me had bylde. And y LORDE saide: Beholde, the people is one, z have one maner of language amonge thē all, z this haue they begonnto to do, z wil not leaue of from all y they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs go downe, z confunde their tonge eue there, y one vnderstande not what another saith. Thus y LORDE scattered the se childe in all lodes, so y they left of to buyde the cite. Therefore is it called Babel, because the LORDE confounded there the language of all the worlde, and from thence scattered them abrode in to all londre.

B These are y generacions of Sem. Sem was an hundredt yere olde, and begat Arphaxad two yere after the floode, and lyued thersafter fye hūdrith yere, and begat sonnes and daughtera.

Arphaxad was fye z thirtie yere olde, and begat Eber, z lyued thersafter foure hūdrith z thye yere, z begat Saloh, and lyued thersafter foure hundredt and thye yere, and begat sonnes z daughtera.

C Saloh was thirtie yere olde, and begat Eber, z lyued thersafter foure hūdrith z thye yere, z begat sonnes and daughtera.

Eber was foure and thirtie yere olde, z begat Peleg, and lyued thersafter foure hundredt and thirtie yere, and begat sonnes z daughtera.

Peleg was thirtie yere olde, and begat Eber, and lyued thersafter two hūdrith and nyne yere, and begat sonnes z daughtera.

Regu was two and thirtie yere olde, and begat Serug, and lyued thersafter two hundredt and seven yere, and begat sonnes and daughtera.

Serug was thirtie yere olde, and begat Tabor, and lyued thersafter two hundredt yere, and begat sonnes z daughtera.

Tabor was nyne and twenty yere olde, and begat Terah, and lyued thersafter an hundredt and nyntene yere, and begat sonnes and daughtera.

Terah was seventy yere olde, and begat Abram, Tabor, and Haran.

These are the generacions of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Tabor, and Haran. And Haran begat Lot, but Haran dyed before Terah his father in y londre where he was borne, in Chaldea.

Then Abram and Tabor toke them wyues. Abrams wyfe was called Sarai, z Tahors wyfe Milca the daughter of Haran, which was father of Milca and Ysa. But Sarai was barren, and had no chyld.

Then toke Terah Abrahams sonne, z Lot his sonne Harans sonne, z Sarai his daughter in lawe, his sone Abrahams wyfe, z caried them w him from Ur in Chaldea, to go in to the lande of Canaan. And they came to Haran, z dwelt there. And Terah was two hundredt z fye yere olde, and dyed in Haran.

The XII. Chapter.

After y LORDE sayde vnto Abram: Get thee out of thy countre, and from thy kynred, and out of thy fathers house, in to a londre which I wil shew the. And I wil make of the a mightie people, and will blesse the, and make the a greate name, yet thou shalt be a very blessing. I wil blesse them that blesse the, and curse them that curse the: and in the shal all the generacions of the earth be blesst.

Then wente Abram out, as the LORDE commaunded him, and Lot wente with him. Fye z seuentie yere olde was Abrahams age when he wente out of Haran. So Abram toke Sarai his wyfe, and Lot his brothers sone, w all their goodes which they had gotten, and soles which they began in Haran, and departed to go in to y londre of Canaan. And whil they were come in to the same londre, he wente thither, vylle he come vnto the place of Sichem, and vnto the Offspringe of Moose: for y Canaanites dwelt in y lodes at y same tyme. Then the LORDE appeared vnto Abram,

 But y LORDE plagued Pharaos 7 his hou wife. Then Pharaos called Abra unto him, and sayde: Why hast thou dealt thus w me?

 Wherfore toldest thou mee at the first, y she was thy wyfe: Why saydest thou then, that she was y syster: Wherfore I toke her to my wyfe. And now lo, there is y wyfe, take her, and go thy waye. He geue his officers herdmen of Abiam cattell, and the herdmen of Locs cattell. The Canaanites also and the Pherezites durst at that tyme in the lonbe.

Then sayde Abiam unto Loc: D see there he sawe that it was a plentious countre of water.

 For before the LORDE destroyed Sodoms and Gomora, it was rounde aboute Jor dan, as the pleasurte garden of the LORDE, and as the lonbe of Egipte.

Then Loc chose all the coastes of Jorda and toke his journeye towarde y East. And so the one brother departed from the other.
 Abiam dwelt in the lande of Canaan, and Loc in the cities of the same coastes, and pi ched his tent towarde Sodome. But y men of Sodome were wicked, and synned ex ceadingly agaynst the LORDE.

Now when Loc was departed frim A up thine eyes, and loke from the place whe eastwarde, and westwarde: for all the lonbe that thou seest, wyl I geue unto the, and to

So Abiam removed his tent, and wente and dwelt in y Obergroue of Mamre, which is in Hebron, and buyded there an altare un to the LORDE.

The XIII. Chapter.

 And it shewed in the tyme of Abra ham the kynge of Synear, Arioch the kynge of Ellasar, Reboilaomer the kynge of Elam, & Thydeall the kynge of Sycheon, that they made warre wth Dara & kynge of Sodome, and wth Balsa the kynge of Gomora, & wth Sineab the kynge of Adama, & wth Semeeber the kynge of Zebom, and wth the kynge of Bela, which is called Zoar. These came all together in to the broode valley, where now the salt sea is: so wth wth years were they subiectes vnto kynge Reboilaomer, & in the thirtieth year they fell from him. Ther sigⁿ in the fourteenth year came Reboilaomer, and the kynge of Zebom, and the kynge of Gomora, & wth Sineab the Ganaanes in Assaroth Barnaim, & Sufim at Ham, & Lemim in the felde of Kiriahsalm, and & houises in their owne mount Seir vnto the playne of Pharan, which bordereth vpo the wilderness. And then they turned, & came to the well of iudgment which is Cadea: & smote all the countree of the Amalechites, and also the Amorettes, that dwelt in Hazason Thamar.

B Then wente out the kynge of Sodome, & the kynge of Gomora, & the kynge of Adama, and the kynge of Zebom, and the kynge of Bela, called Zoar: prepared themselves to fight in the broode valley wth Reboilaomer the kynge of Elam, & wth Thydeall & kynge of the heethen, & wth Amraphel & kynge of Synear, & wth Arioch the kynge of Ellasar: foure kyngees wth hye. And & broode valley had many synne pyttes. But the kynge of Sodoma and Gomora were put to flight, & fell there, & there stoue fled vnto & mountaynes. Then toke they all the goodes at Sodoma and Gomera, & all their vttyle, & wth wente their waye. The yrote Lee also Abiams brothers sonne, & his goodes for he dwelt at Sodome: and departed.

C Then came one that had escaped, and tolde be Abiam the Abeam, which dwelt in the Obegron of Elam: the Amoyte, which was the brother of Escal & Aner: for these were confederate with Abiam.

110. b Now when Abiam heere & his brother
110. b were taken, he harnessid his bonde seruantes 111 c boine in his owne hoost, the hundredth & eighten, & folowd a fter them vntill Dan, & deuyd the: & fell vpo them by night wth his seruantes, and smote the, and chauid them awaye vnto Soba, which lieth on & left hande of the cice of Damascoo, and broughte a xaine all the goodes, and also his brother Lee, and his goodes, & wemen also and the people. And as he came agayne from the slaughter of Reboilaomer & of the kyngees that were with him, the kynge of Sodome wente to meete him in to the playne felde, which is called Kynges dale.

But Melchisedech the kynge of Salem broughte forth bred and wyne. And he beyng the prest of the most hye God, blessed him and sayde: Blessed be thou Abiam vnto the most hye God possessor of heauen and earth. And prayd be God the kyng, which hath beleyard thine enemies in to thy handes. And Abiam gaue him tythes of ail.

Then sayde the kynge of Sodome vnto Abiam: Geue me the soules, and take & goodes vnto thy self. But Abiam sayde vnto the kynge of Sodome: Lift vp my honde vnto the LORDE the most hye God, possessor of heauen and earth, that I wyl not take of all that is thine, so much as a thabe or a shoc lace, lest thou shaltest saye: I haue made Abiam ryche: Spent only that which the yonge men haue spent, and the men Zier Escal and Mame, that wente with me, let them take their parte.

The XV. Chapter.

S T happened a fter these actes, & the kynge of & LORDE came vnto Abiam in a vision, and sayde: Geare net Abiam, I am thy shyde and thy ceadinge greater reward. But Abiam sayde: LORDE LORDE, what wilt thou geue me: I go childles, and the seruante of my house this Eleasar of Damascoo hath a sonne. And Abiam sayde moouer: Beholde, vnto me hast thou geuen no fide: and lo, the forme of my house shal be myne heyre. And beholde, the wyde of the LORDE spake vnto him, and said: He shal not be thine heyre, but one that shal come out of thine owne body, he shal be thine heyre. And he bad him go forth, and sayde: Loke vp vnto heauen, and tell & starres: Canst thou nomb: them: And he sayde vnto him: Euen so shal thy fide be.

Abiam belued the LORDE, and & read & counted vnto him for righteousnes. And he sayde vnto him: I am & LORDE, & bying the the from Di out of Chaldea, to geue & this londe to possesse it. But Abiam sayde: LORDE LORDE, wherby shall I knowe, that I shall possesse it: And he layde vnto him: Take a cow of thre yearre olde, and a she goate of thre yearre olde, and a ramme of thre yearre olde, and a tureyil doue, and a yonge piggew. And he toke all these, and dreyed them in the myddes, and layde the one parte ouer agaynst the oether, but the scales dreyed be net. And the soules fell vpo the flesch, but Abiam diuice them a waye.

downe, there fell an hevy slepe vnto Abram. And lo, feare and greate darfenes fell vpon him. And he sayde vnto Abram: knowe this of a surer, that thy febe shalbe a straiger, in a londe that is not thine. And they shall make bondes men of them, and increase them euill foure hundred yeares. But the people wher they shal serue, wyl I iudge. Afterwarde shall they go forth with greate sustenance: and thou shalt depart vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalt be buried in a good age. And after the fourth generation they shall come hither agayne, for the wickednes of þe Amorites is not yet full.

So when the Sonne was downe, and it was waxed darfe: Beholde, there smaled a sonne, and a fyre brante wente betwene þe partes. The same daye made the LORDE a couenaent with Abram, and sayde: Vnto thy side wil I give this lode, from the water of Egypce, vnto the greates water Euphrates: the Kenytes, the Kenizites, the Jymonites, the Hetytes, the Pherezites, the Gyanites, the Amozites, the Cananites, the Gerge sites, and the Iehusites.

The XVI. Chapter.

Sarai Abrahams wife bare him no child: but she had an handmaide an Egypcian, whose name was Agar, and sayde vnto Abram: Beholde, the LORDE hath closed me, that I can not beare. So in (I praye the) vnto my mayde: peradventure I shalbe multiplied by her, more then by myself. And Abram hearkened vnto the voyce of Sarai. Then Sarai Abrahams wife toke Agar hir mayde þe Egypcian after they had dwelt ten yeare in the londe of Canaan: and gaue her vnto hir husbende Abrah, to be his wife. And he wente in vnto Agar, and she conceived. Now when she sawe þe she had conceived, she despyed hir maistrisse.

2 Then sayde Sarai vnto Abram: I must suffer wronge for thy sake. I sayde my mayde by the: but now because she seeth, that she hath conceived, I must be despyed in hir sight: the LORDE be iudge betwene me and the. And Abram sayde vnto Sarai: He holde, thy mayde is vnder thine auowite, do with her, as it pleaseth the.

Now when Sarai dealt hardly w her, she fled from her. But the angell of the LORDE founde her besyde a well of water in the wilderness (even by the well in the waye to Sur) and sayde vnto her: Agar Sarais maide, whene commest thou? z why thy wife thou go? She sayde: I fle from my maistrisse Sarai. And the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto her: Returne to thy maistrisse agayne, and submitte thyself vnder hir hande.

And the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto her: Beholde, I wil so increase þe febe, that it shall not be nombred for any londe. And the angell of the LORDE sayde further vnto her: Beholde, thou art with child, z shalt bringe forth a sonne, and shalt call his name Jsmael, because the LORDEE hath herde þe trouble. He shal be a wyde man. His hande agaynst every man, and every mans hande agaynst him: and he shal dwell ouer agaynst all his brethren.

And she called the name of the LORDE þe spake vnto her: Thou art the God that keepe me. For she sayde: Of a suerete I haue sene the backe partes of him that saue me. Therefore called she the well: The well of the livinge that saue me. Which well is betwene Cadan and Bared.

And Agar bare Abram a sonne, and Abram called his sonnes name which Agar bare him, Jsmael. And Abram was foure score yeare olde and fixe, when Agar bare him Jsmael.

The XVII. Chapter.

Now when Abram was nyente yeare olde and nyne, the LORDEE appeared vnto him, z sayde vnto him: I am the almighty God, walde before me. Be vncowpente. And I wil make thy countenance betwene me z the, and wil multiplye the exceedingly. Then fell Abram vpon his face.

And God talked further with him, and sayde: Beholde, Icio I, and haue my countenance with the, and then shalt be a father of many people. Therefore shalt thou nomore be called Abram, but thy name shal be Abraham: for I haue made the a father of many nations, z I wil multiplye the exceedingly, and wil make people of þe, yee and thynges also shal come out of the. Moreover I wil make thy countenance betwene me and the,

and chy side after the thow out their possessions, that it maye be an everlastinge covenant, for that I will be the God of nye, and of chy side after the. And unto the and to chy side after the, will I geve the lande, wherin thou art a stranger: even all the lande of Canaan for an everlastinge possession, and will be thy God.

B And God sayde moreover unto Abraham: 12. a Repe my covenant then, thou and they se after the. This is my covenant which ye shal kepe betwene me and you, and they se be after y^e thow out their posterites. Every manchilde that is amonge you, shalbe circumcybed: and ye shall circumcybe the foreskynne of ye^r flesh. This same shalbe a token of the covenant betwene me and you. 12. c Every manchilde whan it is eight dayes olde, shalbe circlycybed thow out youre posterites: In like maner all householde folkes borne at home, or bought, or any other also that is a stranger and not of chy side. I wil blesse her, and people shall come of her, yee and kynnes of many people. Then fell Abrahā upō his face, and laugheth, and sayde in his herte: Shall a chylde be borne unto me that am an hundred year olde? And shall Sara y^e is nyentie year olde, beare? And Abrahā sayde unto God: O that I might lye in thy sight. Then sayde God: Yee even Sara thy wyfe shall beare the a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Isaac: for with him wil I make my everlastinge covenant, and with his seed after him. And as concerninge Isaac, I have herde thy request: Beholde, I have blesed him, and wil increase him, and multiplye him exceedingly. Twelve yeres shal he beget, and I will make a greates nacion of him. 12. e

D But my covenant will I make wth Isaac, whom Sara shal beare unto the, and this tyme twelue moneth. And be left of callinge with him, and God wents up from Abraham. Then toke Abraham his sonne Isaac, and all the seruantes borne in his house, and all that were bought, (as many as were men chyldren in his house,) and circumcybed the foreskynne of their flesh, even the same daye, as God had sayde unto him. And Abraham was nyentie year olde and nye, whan he was of the foreskynne of his flesh. As for Isaac, he was thirtene year olde, whan the foreskynne of his flesh was circumcybed. Even upon one daye were they all circumcybed: Abraham, and Isaac his sonne, and all the men: in his house, wherether they were borne at home, or bought, or any other (stranger): they were all circumcybed with him.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE appeared unto him 1 in the Obegropse of Marze, as he sat in his tent dore in the heate of y^e daye. 1. c. 1. a And as he lift up his eyes, and looked, beholde, there stode thre men ouer agaynst him. And whan he sawe them, he rane to meeze them from his tent dore, and bowed him self downe upon the grounde, and sayde: LORDE, yf I haue founde sin ouer in thy sight, goe not by y^e seruaunt. There shalbe broughte you a litle water, & ye shall washy^e face, & rest youre selues vnder the tre. Abraham wente a pace in to the tent to Sara, and sayde: Make haist, & mingle the peces of sime meale, kneade it, and bake cakes. And he toke butter and mylke and of the calf that he had prepared, and set it before the, stode him self by them vnder the tre, & they ate. Then saide they unto him: where is Sara thy wyfe? he answered: within in y^e tent. 1. Cor. 13. 2

Sara herbe that out of the same bore, which was by hyme his bac. And Abrahams and Sara were both olde, & well stryken in age: so that it woude nomore with Sara after y manner of women: therfor she laughed she with in hir self, and sayde: How that I am olde & my loude olde also, shal I yet geue my self to lust?

Then sayde þe LORDE vnto Abrahams: Wherefore doest Sara laugh, and saye: Is this now in bede, that I shal beare, and yet am olde? Shulde my selfe thinge be so harde for the LORDE? Aboute this tyme (yf I hve) I wil come to the agayne, & Sara shal haue a sone. Then Sara denyed it, and sayde: I laughed noe, for she was afrayed. But he sayde: It is now so, thou dydest laugh. Then she men shode vp from thence, and wrotethem towards Sodome: and Abrahams wrotethem with them, to bringe them on their waye.

Then sayde the LORDE: How can I byde f. om Abrahams, þe thinge that I wil do: synghe he shal be a greace and mighte people, and all þe people vps earth shalbe blessed in him? For I knewe him that he wil com maunde his children and his houshelde after him, to kepe the waye of y LORDE, and to do a fter righte and conscience, that the LORDE maye bringe vps Abrahams what he hath promysed him. And the LORDE sayde: There is a cite at Sodome and Gemoirah, which is greace, & their synnes are exceedinge greuous: thet for wil I go downe to se, whether they haue done all together, or cominge to that cite, which is come before me, or noe, that I maye knowe. And the men cur ned their face, and wete towards Sodome. But Abrahams stode still before þe LORDE, and strepe vnto him, and sayde:

1. Cor. 13. 2

Wilt thou then destroye the righteous with the vngodly? Peradventure there maye be siffie righteous within þe cite: wilt thou destroye these, and noe spare the place, for siffie righteous sake that are therein? That be sarrs for the, þe thou shuldest do this, and to slaye the righteous with the vngodly, and that the righteous shoulde be as the vngodly. That be sarrs from the. Shulde noe the iudge of all the world do a cordinge to righte? And the LORDE sayde: If I fynde siffie righteous at Sodome in the cite, I wil spare all the place for their sakes.

Abrahams answered, and sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the LORDE, howbeit I am but dust and ashes. Peradventure there maye be siffie iustice siffie righteous therein: Wilt thou then destroye the whole cite because of those foure? He sayde: yf I fynde fyue or sarris therein, I wil not destroye them?

And he proceede further to speake vnto him, and sayde: Peradventure there mighte be sarris founde therein. And he sayde: I wil do nochtynge vnto them for those fourtye sake. Abrahams sayde: O se! let noe my LORDE be angry, that I speake yet more. Peradventure there mighte be thirtie founde therein. And he sayde: If I fynde thirtie therein, I wil do nochtynge vnto them. And he sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto my LORDE.

Peradventure there mighte be ten: this founde therein. He answered: I wil not destroye them for those twenetye sake. And he sayde: O let noe my LORDE be angry, that I speake yet once more. Peradventure there mighte be ten founde therein. He sayde: I wil not destroye them for those ten sake.

And the LORDE wente his waye, whan he had leste callynge with Abrahams. And Abrahams returned vnto his place.

The XIX. Chapter.

1. Cor. 13. 2

At the euenynge came the two angels vnto Sodome. And loe! soe vnto the gate of the cite. And whan he sawe them, he rose vp for to meete them, and bowed him selfe downe to the grounde vpon his face. He sayde: Se lordes, came in I praye you in to youre sennowes house, and tarrye all night: let youre sete be readye, so maye ye ryse comen ouer by euenynge, and go youre waye. Therwith he they sayde: Nay, but we will byde in the streets all night. Then com pilled he them soe: and they turned in vnto him, and came in to his house. And he made them a feast, and baketh swete cakes, and they ate.

But before they wente to rest, the men of the cite of Sodome came and compassed the house rounde aboute, yonge and olde, all the people from all quarters, and called the, and sayde vnto him: Where are the men that came vnto vs to night? Bringe them out here vnto vs, that we maye knowe them.

1. Cor. 13. 2

And loe! soe wente out at the dore vnto the, and shut the dore after him, and sayde: O brethren, do not so wickedly. Beholde, I haue two daughters, which yet haue knowe no man: them wil I bringe out vnto you, do with them as it liketh you. Only do nochtynge vnto these men of God, forther soe are they come vnder the shadowe of my rofe. But they sayde: Come thou higher. Then sayde they: Camest not thou onely herin as a stranger, and wilt thou now be a iudge?

 We, we will deale wisely with the che with them.

C And they passed foze vpon 3 man Loc.
 And when they came to, and wolde haue broken vp the doze, the men put out their handes, and pulled Loc into them in to the house, and shut to the doze. And the man at 3 doze of the house were smyt with blind nesse both small and greater, so that they cou de not fynde the doze.

And if men sayde vnto Loc: Hast thou yet here any forme in lawe, or sonnes or daugh ters? Who so euer belougeth vnto the in the cite, buyge him out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is greate before the L O R D E, which hath sent vs to destroye them. Then wente Loc forth, and spake to his wyfe in lawe, whi h shalbe haue married his daughters, and sayde: O ssonde vp, and get you out of this place, for the L O R D E will destroye this cite. Therwithes they toke it but for a sporte.

Now when the mounyng arose, the an gels caused Loc to speke him, and sayde: Stande vp, take thy wyfe & thy two daugh ters which are at hande, that thou also pe r the one in the spyne of this cite. But whyle he prolonged the tyme, the men caught him and his wyfe, and his two daughters by the hande, because the L O R D E was mer ciful vnto him, and brought him forth, & set him without the cite.

And whi they had brought him out, they sayde: Save thy soule, and let e not behynde the, necher stonde thou in all this countre: Save thy self vpon the mounayne, that thou perish not. Then sayde Loc vnto the:
 Oh no my L O R D E, beholde, in as much as thy seruante hath founde grace in thy sighte, now make v mercy greare, which thou hast shewed vnto me, in that thou hast my soule alyue. I can not save my self vpon the mounayne. There might some mysfortune fall vpon me, that I shalbe dye. Beholde, he re is a cite by that I maye flye vnto, and it is a litle one: let me save myself there in. It is not a litle one, that my soule maye lyue.

E Then sayde he vnto him: Beholde, I ha ve looked vpon the in this poynte also, that I will not overthrowe the cite, wherof thou hast spoken. Gost the, and save thy self the re: for I can do nothinge vnto the, but he come thither. Therfore is the cite called Zoar.
 And the Sonnes was vp vpon the earth, whom Loc came in to Zoar.

Then the L O R D E caused bruyfstone and fyre to raine downe from the L O R D E out of heauen vpon Sodoma and Gomo ra, and overthrowe those cities, the whole region, and all that dwelt in the cities, and that that grew vpon the earth. And his wy fe looked behynde her, and was turned in to a pillar of salt.

Abraham rose up early in the mounyng, and gat him vnto the place, where he had stonde before the L O R D E, and turned his face toward Sodoma and Gomorra, and all 3 londe of that countre, and looked. And beholde, there rose vp a smoke from 3 coun tre, as it had bene 3 smoke of a furnace. For whan God destroyed v cities of the region, he thought vpon Abraham, and conuey Loc out of the cities which he overthrowe, wherin Loc dwelt.

And Loc departed out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mounaynes with both his daughters (for he was afrayed to tary at Zoar) and so remayned he in a case w both his daughters.

Then sayde 3 eldes vnto the yonger: Wy re father is che, and there is not a man mo re vpon earth, that can come in vnto vs af ter the maner of all the world. Come then foze, let vs geue oure father wyne to dryn ke, and lye with him, that we maye save se de of oure father. So they gaue their fa ther wyne to drynke that same nyght. And the elder daughter wente in, and laye with hir father: and he perceaued it not, necher when she laye downe, ner when she rose vp.

On the morow the elder sayde vnto the yonger: Beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father: let vs geue him wyne to drynke this nyght also: that thou mayest go in and lye with him, that we maye save seede of ou re father. So they gaue their father wyne as bynde that might also: And the younger arose like wyfe, and laye with him: & he perceaued it not, neyther when she laye downe, nor when she rose vp.

Thus were both the daughters of Lot with childe by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called him Moab, of whom come y^e Moabites vnto this daye. And y^e younger bare a sonne also, and called him the sonne Ammon, of whom come the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

The XX. Chapter.

2 AS for Abrahams, he departed thence, in to the south countre, and dwelt betwixt Cadec and Sur, and was a stranger at Beerar, and sayde of Sara his wife: She is my sister. Then Abimelech the Kinge of Beerar sawe her, and caught her by force awaye.

But God came to Abimelech by night in a dreame, & sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou art hie a dead man, for the womans sake which thou hast taken, for she is a mans wife. Therefore Abimelech had not yet receiued her, and sayde: LORDE, wilt thou sleie a righteous people? Sayde not he vnto me: she is my sister? Yee and sayde not she her self also: he is my brother? With a pure heart & with innocēt handes haue I done this.

3 And God sayde vnto him in a dreame: I knowe that thou dydest it wth a pure heart, and therfore I kepe the, that thou shouldest not synne agaynst me, neyther haue I suffered the to touch her. Nowe therfore deliuer the man his wife agayne, for he is a prophet: and let him paye for y^e, and thou shalt liue. But and yf thou deliuer her not agayne, be sure, that thou shalt dye the death, and all that is thine.

Then Abimelech rose vp by tymes in the mourninge, and called all his seruantes, and tolde all these thinges in their eares, and the men were fowle ashyed, and Abimelech called Abrahams, and sayde vnto him: Wherefore hast thou done this vnto vs? And what haue I offended y^e, that thou shouldest bringe on me and on my Kingdome so greate a synne? Thou hast not dealt with vs, as a man shoulde deale. And Abimelech saide mooued vnto Abrahams: What sawest thou, y^e thou hast done this thinge?

C Abrahams sayde: I thoughte: Peraduenture there is no feare of God in this place, & they shall sleie me for my wifes sake, And of a truth: she is my sister, for she is my fathers daughter, but not my mothers daughter, and is become my wife. So when God charged me to make out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her: Shew this thyndnes vpon me, that, where so euer we come, thou maye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then rose Abimelech shepe and open for nunties and maydens, and gaue them vnto Abrahams, and deliuered him Sara his wife agayne, and sayde: Beholde, my londes stondaye open be foue the, dwell where it liketh the. And vnto Sara he sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen thy brother a thousande silver penes: so he shall be vnto the a counterpoynt of the eyes, for all that are with the, and euer where, and a sure excuse.

As for Abrahams, he payed vnto Gods. Then God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maydens, so that they bare childe. For afore the LORDE had closed all the matrices of Abimelechs house, because of Sara Abrahams wife.

The XXI. Chapter.

The LORDE also visited Sara, accodinge as he had promysed: & dealt with her, euen as he had sayde. And Sara was with childe, and bare Abrahams a sonne in his olde age, euen in the tyme appointed, like as God had spoken vnto him afore. And Abrahams called his sonne which was borne vnto him (whos Sara bare him) Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth daye, like as God commaunded him. An hyndredth yere olde was Abrahams, when his sonne Isaac was borne vnto him.

And Sara sayde: God hath preparad a ioye for me, for who so euer heareth of it, will reioyse with me. She sayde moouers Who wolde haue saide vnto Abrahams, that Sara shoulde geue children such, and bear him a sonne in his olde age? And the childe grew, and was weened. And Abrahams made a greate feast, in y^e daye when Isaac was weened.

And Sara sawe the serue of Agar the Egyptian (whom she had borne vnto Abrahams) that he was a mocker, and sayde vnto Abrahams: Cast out this bond mayden and hir sonne, for this bond mayden sonne shall not be heire wth my sonne Isaac. This worde displeasid Abrahams sore, because of his sonne.

Nevertheless God sayde vnto him: Let it not displeas the because of the childe and the hand mayde: What so euer Sara hath sayde vnto the, followe it, for in Isaac shall the side be called into the. As for the bonde mayens some, I wyl make a people of him also, because he is of thy side.

Then Abraham rose up early in the morning, and toke hys and a botell with water, and put it upon Agars shoulders, and gaue her the childe, and sent her away. Then departed she, and wandred out of the waye in y wilderness beside Berscha. Now when the water in the botell was out, she layd the childe vnder a bush, and went, and sat hir downe ouer on y other syde, a bowe shotte of. For she sayde: I can not se the childe dye. And she sat hir downe ouer on y other syde, and lifte vp hir voyce, and wepte.

Then God herde the voyce of the childe, and the anngell of God called vnto Agar out of heauen, and sayde vnto her: What ayleth thee, Agar? feare not, for God hath heare y voyce of the childe, where he lyeth. Arise and take the childe, and holde him by the hande, for I wyl make a greates people of him. And God opened hir eyes, that she sawe a well of water.

Then wente she and fylled y botell with water, and gaue y childe to drinke. And God was with the childe, which grew up, and dwelt in y wilderness, and became a comynge archer, and dwelt in y wilderness of Pharan, and his mother toke him a wyfe out of the londe of Egypce.

At the same tyme talked Abimelech and Phicol his chefe carpayne with Abraham, and sayde: God is with the in all that thou doest. Therefore sweare thou vnto me by God, that thou wilt not hurt me, ney my childe, ney my chylders chyldren: but that thou shalt shewe vnto me (and to the londe wher in thou art a stranger) the same byndynesse that I haue done vnto the.

Then sayde Abraham: I wyl sweare. And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for the well of water, which Abimelechs seruantes had eaten awaye by violence. Then answered Abimelech: I knewe not who dyd it, neyher dydest thou tell me, and I haue not herde of it but this daye.

Then toke Abraham shepe and oxen, and gaue them vnto Abimelech, and they bothe made a bonde together. And Abraham set seven lambes by them silues. Then sayde Abimelech vnto Abraham: What meane these seven lambes, which thou hast set by them silues? He answered: For lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they maye be wyered vnto me, that I haue dyged this well. This is the place called Berscha, because they sware there bothe together. And so they made the bonde at Berscha.

Then rose Abimelech and Phicol his chefe carpayne, and departed agayne in to the londe of y Phyllystynes. And Abraham plantred trees at Berscha, and called vpon the name of the LORDE y curtynging God, and was a stranger in y londe of the Phyllystynes a longe season.

The XXX. Chapeer.

See thes a crea God temped Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Abraham, And he answered: I am here. And he sayde: Take y sonne, this onely sonne of thine, and Isaac whom thou lovest, and go thy waye in to the londe of Motta, y offer him there for a burnt offeringe, vpon, whowntayne that I shal shewe the. Then Abraham stode up by tymes in the morninge, and tyled his Asse, and toke with him two yonge men, and his sonne Isaac, and cleue wood for the burnt offeringe, gaue him vp, and wente on vnto the place, wher of the LORDE had sayde vnto him.

Vpon the thirde daye Abraham lift vp his eyes, and sawe the place a farr off, and sayde vnto his yonge me: Lary ye here with the Asse: for me and the childe, we wyl go yonder: and when we haue worshipped, we wyl come to you agayne. And Abraham toke the wood to the burnt offeringe, and layd it vpon Isaac his sonne. As for him self, he toke the fyre and a knyfe in his hande, and wente on both together.

Then sayde Isaac vnto his father Abraham: My father, Abraham answered: here I am, my sonne. And he sayde: here is fyre and wood, but where is the shepe for the burnt offeringe? Abraham answered: My sonne, God shall provide him a shepe for the burnt offeringe. And they wente both together.

And when they came to the place wher

God shewed him, Abraham bayled there an altare, and layed the woodd vpon it, and bande his sonne Isaac, layed him on the altare, about vpo the wood, and stretched out his hande, and toke the knyfe, to haue slayne his sonne.

C Then the angell of the LORDE called from heauen vnto him, and sayde: Abraham Abraham. He answered: here am I. He sayde: Laye not thy handes vpon the child, & do nothinge vnto him: for now I knowe that thou fearest God, and hast not spared thine only sonne for my sake. Then Abraham lift vp his eye, and saue behynde him a ramme, holde fast by the homes in the beere, and wente, and toke the ramme, and offered him for a burnt sacrifice, in steade of his sonne. And Abraham called the place. The LORDE shall prouide. Therefore it is a common sayenge yet this daye: Vpon the mountayne shal the LORDE prouide.

And the angell of the LORDE cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme, and sayde: I haue sworn by myne owne self sayeth the LORDE that for so moch as thou hast done this, and hast not spared thine only sonne. I will preserue and multiplye thy seede as the starrs of heauen, and as the sonde vpon the see shore. And thy seede shall possesse the gates of his enemies: and in thy seede shal all the nacions of the earth be blessed, because thou hast hearkened vnto my voyce.

D So Abraham turned a geine to the yonge men, and they gat vp, and wente together vnto Berseba, and dwelt there.

After these a cee it occurred, that it was tolde Abraham: Beholde, Milca hath borne children also vnto thy brother Nabor: namely, Hus his eldest, and Hus his brother, and Ammel, of whom came the Syrians: and Utsa, and Hafa, and Pilbas, and Ioblah, and Bethuel. And Bethuel begat Rebecca. These eight dyd Milca beare vnto Nabor Abrahams brother. And his concubynes called Kethams, bare also namely, Thebi, Sahan, Thahas, and Maacha.

The XXXI. Chapter.

S Ara was an hundred and senf and twenty yere olde: so longe lyued she, and dyed in the head cite which is called Hebron, in the lande of Canaan. Then wente Abraham, to mourne and wepe for her. Afterwarde he stode vp from his course, and called with the Gethites, I sayde: I am a stranger and an indweller amonge you, geue me a possession to bury in with you, that I maye bury my corse by me.

Then the Gethites answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: O heare loude, thou art a pynce of God amonge vs: bury thy dead in the best of oure sepulchre, there shall none of vs forbyd thee, that thou shouldest bury thy dead in his sepulchre. Then Abraham stode vp, and thanked the people of the lande: namely the Gethites.

And he called with them, and sayde: If it be youre will that I bury my corse by me, heare me thet, speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar, that he maye geue me the dubble cane, which he hath in the ende of his felde. For a reasonable money let him geue it me, for a possession to burye in amonge you. So Ephron dwelt amonge the Gethites.

Then answered Ephron the Gethite vnto Abraham, that the Gethites might beare, before all that wente out and in at the gates of his cite, and sayde: Vnto my loude, but heare me thet for the felde, and the cause also that is therein, I geue it thee: and in the sighte of my people I geue it thee, to burye thy dead.

Then Abraham thanked the people of the lande, and called with Ephron, that the people of the lande might beare, and sayde: heare me thet. Because of me the money that I geue thee for the felde, and so will I burye my dead there.

Ephron answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: heare me my loude: The felde is worth foure hundred cycles of silver: but what is that betwixte me and thet? Burye thy dead. Abraham hearkened vnto Ephron, and woyed him the money which he had sayde, that the Gethites might beare: namely foure hundred cycles of currant money amonge marchauntres.

Thus Ephrons felde (where in the dubble cane is) which lynch ouer before Mamre, euen the felde and the cee, was made sure for Abrahams owne good, with all the trees of the felde also rounde aboute, in the sighte of the Gethites, and of all that goe out and in at the gates of his cite. Then Abraham buried Sara his wife in the dubble cane of the felde, that lynch ouer before Mamre (that is, Hebron) in the lande of Canaan. So the felde and the cause therein was made sure of the Gethites vnto Abraham, for a possession to bury in.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Abraham was olde and well stricken in age, and the LORDE had blessed him in all things. And he sayde vnto his elderly seruaunt of his house, which had the re-172 le of all his goodes: Laye thow haire vnder my eye, that I maye make the sweare by y.

 LORD the God of heauen and earth, that 174 thou take no wife vnto my sonne amongst y daughters of y Canaanites, (amonge whom I dwell) but that thou go in to my countrey 176 and to myne owne kyndred, and buyng my sonne Isaac a wife.

The seruaunt sayde: What and the woman wil not folow me in to this countrey? shal I then carry thysonne agayne in to yonder londe, where thou camest out of? Abiham sayde vnto him: Beware of that, that thou buyng noc my sonne thither agayne.
 The LORD E, the God of heauen, which to-ke me fro my fathers house and from the londe of my kynred, and that called with me, 184 and smare also vnto me, and sayde: Vnto y icke well I geue this londe: Curin he shall sende his angell before the, that thou maist bringe my sonne a wife from thence. But yf the woman wil not folow the, thou art discharged of this ooth: onely buyng noc my sonne thither agayne. Then y seruaunt layd his haire vnder his master Abrahams thye, and sweare the same vnto him.

20 So the seruaunt toke ten Camels of the Camels of his master and departed, and had w him of all manner of goodes of his master, and gat him vp, and departed vnto Mesopotamia, to the cite of Laboz. Then let he the Camels lye downe without before the cite beyde a well of water in the euenyng, aboute the tyme that the women yste to go forth, and to drawe water. And he sayde

O LORD, thou God of my master Abiham, mete me to daye, and shew mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo, I stonde here beyde the well of water, ⁊ the mens daughters of this cite will come foith to drawe water: Wilt yf there come a damsell, to whom I saye: come downe thy pycher, ⁊ let me drynke, and yf she saye: drynke, and I will geue y Camels drynke also: That yf same be she, whiche thou hast provided for thy seruaunt Isaac: that I maye knowe by yf same that thou hast shewed mercy vpon my master.

And as he had lest of speakyng, be-helde, Rebecca the daughter of Bethuel (which was the sonne of Milca, that was the wyfe of Laboz Abrahams brother) came foith, and bare a pycher vpon hir shul-der, and she was a very fayre damsell of face, and yet a virgin, and vnbowne of any man: She wente downe to the well, and fylled hir pycher, and came vp agayne. Then came the seruaunt to mete hir, and sayde:

 Let me drynke a litle water out of y pycher.
 And she sayde: drynke.

And hastily let she downe the pycher in hir hande, and gaue him drynke. And when she had geuen him drynke, she sayde: I will drawe for thy Camels also, yll they haue dronke yough. And she made haste, and poured out hir pycher in to the trough, and raine agayne to the well to drawe, and drew for all his Camels. The ma-marie yled at her, and helde his tonge, yll he knewe whether the LORDE had prospered his iourney or noe.

186 Then when the Camels had all dronken, he toke a golde earrynge of half a Sy-cle weyght, and two bracelets for hir han-des, weyng ten Sycles of golde, and sayde: Doughter, whose art thou? tell me. Is there roome for vs in thy fathers house to lodge in? She sayde vnto him: I am the daughter of Bethuel, the sonne of Milca, whom she bare vnto Laboz. And sayde
 Gen. 22 d
 morouer vnto him: We haue plentye of lictur and prouender, and roome yough to lodge in.

Then the man bowed himself, and thanked the LORDE, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE the God of my master Abraham, which hath not withdrawen his mercy, and his truth fro my master, for the LORDE hath broughte me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell raine and tolde all this in hir mothers house. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban raine to the man without by the well syde: and that came by the reason that he sawe the earrynges, and the bracelets vpon his sisters handes, and helde the wordes of Rebecca his syster, that she sayde: thus spake the man vnto me.

And when he came to the man, beholde, he stode by the Camels at the well syde. And he sayde: Come in. thou blessed of the LOR-DE, wherfore stonest thou without? I haue paunt, and the LORDE hath prospered my master richly, so þ he is become greate: and he hath geuen him shepe and oxen, siluer and golde, seruantes and maidens, Camels and Asses: yea and Sarra my masters wife hath borne my master a sonne in his olde age: vnto him hath he geuen all that he hath.

And my master hath taken an oath of me and saide: Thou shalt not take a wife for my sonne amonge the daughters of the Cananites, in whose lande I dwell, but go þ waye to my fathers house and to myne owne kynred, and there take a wyfe for my sonne. But I sayde vnto my master: What and the woman wyl not folowe me: Then sayde he vnto me: The LORDE (before whom I walke) shall sende his angell with the, and prospere thy iourney, that thou mayest take a wife for my sonne of myne owne kynred, and of my fathers house. And so when thou commest to my kynred, yf they geue her not vnto þ, thou shalt be discharged of myne ooebe.

So I came this daye vnto the well of water, and sayde: O LORDE thou God of my master Abraham, If thou hast prospered my iourney that I go: Beholde, I stande here by the well of water: Now yf there come forth a virgin to drawe water, and I saye vnto her: as me a litle water to drinke out of thy picher, and she saye vnto me: Drynke thou, and I wyl drawe water for thy Camels also: that the same be the womā, which the LORDE hath promysed for my masters sonne. Now or euer I had spoken out these wordes in my heere, beholde, Rebecca commeth forth with a picher vpon her shulder, and goeth downe to the well, and draweth.

Then sayde I: geue me a drynke. And immediatly she toke downe the picher fro her shulder, and sayde: drynke, and I wyl geue thy Camels drynke also. So I dranke, and she gaue the Camels also to drynke.
And I ased her, and sayde: Doughter, who se art thou? She answered: I am þ doughter of Bethuel the sonne of Laban, whom Milca bare vnto him. Then sayed I the cariage vpon her face, and the bracelets vpon her handes, and bowed myself, and thanked the LORDE, and prayed the God of my master Abraham, which had brought me þ right waye, to take my masters daughters doughters vnto his sonne.

If ye be they then that shew mercy and faithfulness vnto my master, tell me: If not, yet tell me, that I maye turne me to þ right

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, and sayde: This is come of the LORDE, therfore can we saye nothyng agaynst the, ne ther euill ner good. There is Rebecca before the, take her, and go thy waye, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wife, as the LORDE hath sayde. When Abrahams seruaunt heere these wordes, he bowed him self vnto the LORDE fler vpon the earth, and toke forth Jewels of siluer and golde, and rayment, and gaue them vnto Rebecca. But vnto his daughters and the mother, he gaue spyce. Then he ate and dronke, and the men also that were with him, and caried there all nyght.

But in the morninge he arose, and sayde: Let me departe vnto my master. Let-terlesse his brother and his mother sayde: Let the damsell tary with vs at the least ten dayes, and then shall she go. Then sayde he vnto them: holde me not, for the LORDE hath prospered my iourney: let me go, that I maye departe vnto my master. Then sayde they: let vs call the dam-sell, and aske her, what she sayeth thereto. And they called Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Wilt thou go with this man?

And she answered: Yea I wyl go with him. So they let Rebecca their sister go with her nose and Abrahams seruants, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art oure systre, growe in to many thousande tymes thou art dear, and thy side possesse the gates of his emerales.

So Rebecca gat hir vp to her damselfe, and satte them vpon the Camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruants toke Rebecca, and departed.

As for Isaac, he was commynge from the well of þ livinges springe, for he dwelt in the south countre, and was gone downe to his meditations in the silde aboute the euentyde. And he lift up his eyes, and sawe, that there were Camels commynge. And Rebecca lift vp hir eyes, and sawe Isaac. Then lighted she of the Camell, and sayde vnto þ seruaunt: What man is this, that commeth agaynst vs in the silde? The seruant sayde:
The same is my master.

Then toke she hir cloke, and purte abou-er her. And the seruant tolde Isaac all the earande that he had done. Then Isaac broughte her in to his mother Sarra tent, and toke Rebecca, and she became his wife, and he loued her. So Isaac was comforted ouer his moether.

The xxxv. Chapter.

Abraham took another wife called Asura, which bare him Simram & Jafsan, Medan & Midian, Jisbak and Suah. Jafsan begat Seba and Medan. The children of Medan were Assurim, Latafim, and Lemnim. The children of Midian were Ephraim, Ephraim, Hanoch, Abida and Eldad. All these are the children of Asura. And Abraham gave all his goodes unto Isaac: As for the children that he had of the concubines, he gave them gifts, and (whyle he yet liued) he sent the awaye from his sonne Isaac, eastwarde in to the east countre.

This is the age of Abraham which he liued: euen an hundred and fyue and threescore yearre, and fell sicke and dyed in a good age, whan he was olde, & had liued ynough and was gathered vnto his people. And his sonnes Isaac and Jsmael buried him in the dubble case in the fildes of Ephron the sonne of Zuar the hebreu, which lieth ouer before Mamre. In the fildes that Abraham boughte of the churites. There was Abraham buried with Sara his wife. And after the death of Abraham God blessed his sonne Isaac. And he dwelt by the well of the livinge and syngre.

This is the generacion of Jsmael: Abraham had some sonnes, whom Agar Sara's mayde the Egypcian bare vnto him. And these are the names of Jsmael's children, of whom their fyndres are named. The eldest sonne of Jsmael, Nebatoch, Cedar, Abuel, Midian, Misma, Dama, Misra, Hagar, Thema, Jechur, Naphtali and Bedma. These are the childre of Jsmael with their names in their countre and cities. twelue hundred yeres. And this is the age of Jsmael, euen an hundred and seuen and thirtie yearre, and he fell sicke and dyed, and was gathered vnto his people. He dwelt in heula vnto Sur countre of Egippe, as men go to the Assirians. And he dyed in the presence of all his brethren.

This is the generacion of Isaac: the sonne of Abraham. Abraham begat Isaac. Isaac was thirtie yeare olde, whan he toke to wyfe Rebecca the daughter of Bethuel & Syllan of Mesopotamia, & Sister of Laban the Syrian.

Isaac besought the LORDE for his wyfe: (because she was barren) and the LORDE was increased, and Rebecca his wyfe conceiued. And the children stroue together in her wombe. Then sayde she: If it shalde go so with me, why am I then with childe? And she wente for to see the LORDE. And the LORDE sayde vnto her: Two manner of folke are in thy wombe, and two manner of people shall be deuided out of thy body, and the one nation shall overcome the other, and the greater shall firste the list.

Now whan the tyme came that she shalde be deliuered, beholde, there were twen twyne in hir wombe. The first that came forth, was red, all rough as an hyde, and they called him Esau. Anone thereafter came his brother forth, which hadde the heile of Esau with his haire, and they called him Jacob. This score yeare olde was Isaac, whan they were borne. And whan the boyes were growne vp, Esau became an hunter, & an husbanded man. As for Jacob, he was a simple man, and dwelt in the tentes. And Isaac loued Esau, because he ate of his venison. But Rebecca loued Jacob.

And Jacob boughte a meace of meate. The came Esau from the fildes, and was weary, and sayde vnto Jacob: Let me please of thy meace of meate, for I am fainte (because he is called Edom.) But Jacob sayde: Sell me this daye thy byrthright. Esau answered: Lo, I must dye: what helpe, what good then shall my byrthright do me? Jacob sayde: Then sweare vnto me euen this same daye. And he swore vnto him, and so he solde his byrthright vnto Jacob. Then Jacob gave him bread and that meace of ryse. And he ate and dronke, and stode vp, and wente his waye. And so Esau regarded not his byrthright.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

Here came a deth in the londe, passinge the other that was in Abrahams tyme. And Isaac wente to Gerar, vnto Abimelech the Kinge of Philistynes. Then the LORDE appeared vnto him, and sayde: Go not downe in to Egippe, but tary in the lande that I shall saye vnto the. Be thou a stranger in this lande, and I will be with the and blesse the. For vnto the and thy seide wyll I geue all this londe, and wyll geue soume myne oath that I swear to thy father Abraham. And I wyll multiplye thy seide as the starres of heauen, and vnto thy seide wyll I geue all this londe, and thorum thy seide shall all nations be blessed, because Abraham was obedient vnto my voyce, and kepte myne ordinaunces, my commandmentes, my statutes, and my lawes.

So Isaac dwelt at Gerar. And when the men of the same place aske him of his wife, he sayde: she is my sister. For he was afraid to saye: she is my wyfe, (thinkinge thus;) they might slaye me for Rebekkas sake, for she was beautifull to lōke vnto. Now when he had bene there a longe season, Abimelech the kynge of the Philistynes looke out at a window, and sawe Isaac sportinge with Rebekka his wyfe.

B Then Abimelech called Isaac, and sayde: Beholde, she is thy wyfe, why saydest thou est: she is my sister? Isaac answered him: I thought, I might peradventure have dyed because of her. Abimelech sayde: Why hast thou then done this vnto vs? It coude lightly haue come to passe, that some of the people might haue sene with thy wyfe, and so haddest thou brought synne vpo vs. The Abimelech commaunded all the people, and sayde: Who so toucheth this man or his wyfe, shal dye the deeth.

And Isaac sowed in that lonbe, and foude the same yere an hundred bushels, for the LORDE blessed him. And he became a grante man, wente forth, and grew, vntill he was exceedinge greace, so that he had much good in shepe and greate cattell, and a greate housholde. Therefore had the Philistynes enuy at him, and stopped all the wellles, that his fathers seruauntes had dygged in the tyme of Abrahams his father, and fylled them with earth. In so much that Abimelech also himself sayde vnto him: Departe from vs, for thou art fatte mightier then we.

C Then departed Isaac from thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And when he was saled, he caused to dygge up the wellles agayne, that they had dygged vp in his father Abrahams tyme, which the Philistynes had stoppe after the deathe of Abraham, and he called the after 3 same names that his father had named them withall.

Isaacs seruauntes also dygged in the valley, and there they founde a well of liuing water. But the hyrdmen of Gerar strou with Isaacs hyrdmen, and said: The water is oures. Then called he the well Esau, because they had bene him wronge.

Gen. 26

Then dygged they another well, and stro for that also: therfore called he it Syrena. So he gat him from thence, and dygged another well, for the which they stroue: therfore he called it Rehoboth, and sayde: Now hath the LORDE made vs roomme, and letten vs growe in the lonbe. Afterwarde he departed thence vnto Bersaba.

And the LORDE appeared vnto him the same night, and sayde: I am the God of thy father Abraham, feare thou not, for I am with the, and will bless the, and multiply thy seed for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. Then layd he an altare there, and called vpon the name of the LORDE, and pitched his tent there, and there his seruauntes dygged a well.

And Abimelech wente vnto him from Gerar, and Ahuzoth his frende, and Phicol his chefe captaine. But Isaac sayde vnto them: Wherefore come ye to me? synge ye hate me, and haue put me awaye from you? They sayde: We sith open eyes, that the LORDE is with the, therfore we dreynd that there shulde be an oath betwixt vs and the, and that we wolde make a bonde with the, that thou do vs no harme, like as we haue not hurt the, and as we haue done nothinge vnto the, but all good, and let the departe in peace.

As for the, thou art 3 blessed of the LORDE. Then Isaac made them a feast, and they ate and dronke. And on the morow they arose, and swore one to the other. And Isaac let them go, and they departed from him in peace.

The same daye came Isaacs seruauntes, and tolde him of the well that they had digged, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde water. And he called it Saba. Therfore is 3 a well called Bersaba vnto this daye.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

When Esau was fortye yere olde, he toke wyues: Judith the daughter of Beri the Hetithe, and Basemath the daughter of Elon the Hetithe: both these were dishonorable vnto the spirit of Isaac and Rebekka.

And it came to passe when Isaac was olde, his eyes waxed dymme of sight, and he called Esau his greater sonne, and sayde vnto him: My sonne, he answered him: Here am I. And he sayde: Beholde, I am olde, and knowe not when I shal dye. Nowe therfore take thy gear, thy quyre and thy bore, and get the forth to the silde, and take me some venyson, and make me meate (such as I lene) and buyng me herin, that I maye eate, 3 my soule maye bleesse the, before I dye.

But Rebecca herbe these wordes, that Isaac sayde vnto his sonne. And Esau wente his waye in to the silde, to hunt venyson, and to bringe it home. Then sayde Rebecca vnto Jacob his sonne: beholde, I haue herde thy father callinge with Esau thy brother, and saynge: Bring me venyson, and make me meate, that I maye eate, and bleesse the before I LORD E, yer I dye. Now therefore my sonne, heare my voyce, what I commaunde the: So thy waye to the silde, and fetch me two good byddes, that I maye make meate of them for thy father, such as he loneth: this shalt thou bringe in vnto thy father, that he maye eate, that he maye bleesse the before his deathe.

Then rebolde Jacob sayde vnto Rebecca his mother: Beholde, my brother Esau is rough, and I am feroch: then mighte my father peradventure sle me, and I shoulde seme vnto him as though I begyed him, and so bringe a curse vpon me, and recea a blessinge. Then sayde his mother vnto him: That curse be vpon me my sonne, folowechou my voyce: go thy waye and fetch it me. So he wente his waye, and fetcht it, and broughte it vnto his meether.

Then his mother made meate, a cordinge as his father loned, and toke Esau his elder sonnes costly rayment (which she had wryth her in 3 houses) and put them vpon Jacob his younger sonne. But the byddes she wroote put she aboure his handes, and where he was smooth aboue the neck, and so she put the meate wryth bled, as she had made it in his sonne Jacobs hande.

And he broughte it in vnto his father, and sayde: My father, he answered: here am I, who art thou my sonne? Jacob sayde: I am Esau thy firstborne sonne, I haue done as thou saydest vnto me: aryse, sit vp, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye bleesse me. But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: My sonne, how hast thou founde it so soone? he answered: The LORD E 3 God broughte it to my hande.

Then sayde Isaac vnto Jacob: Come neare my sonne, that I maye fele the, whether thou be my sonne Esau or noe. So Jacob wente vnto Isaac his father. And when he had fele him, he sayde: The voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knew him not, for his handes were rough like as of handes of his brother Esau. And he blessed him.

And he sayde vnto him: art thou my son-some Esau: he answered: Yee I am. Then sayde he: Bring me here then to eate of thy venyson my sonne, that my soule maye bleesse the. Then he broughte it him, and he ate: and he broughte him wyne also, and he drank. And Isaac his father sayde vnto him: Come nye, and kysse me my sonne. So he came nye, and he kysse him.

Then smelled he the sauour of his clothes, and blessed him, and sayde: Beholde, the smell of my sonne is as 3 smell of the silde. whiche 3 LORD E hath blessed. God graue the of the dew of heauen, and of the fainnesse of the earth, and plentifulles of corne and wyne. Actions be thy firmnesse, and people fall downe at 3 feet. Be thou lorde euer thy brethren, and thy mothero children fall downe at thy feet. Cursed be he, that curseth the: and blessed be he, that blesteth the.

Now when Isaac had made an ende of blessinge, and Jacob was faine gone out from his father Isaac, his brother Esau came from his huntinge, and made meate also, and broughte it vnto his father, and sayde vnto him: Aryse my father, and eate of 3 sonnes venyson, that thy soule maye bleesse me. Then answered him Isaac his father: Who art thou? he sayde: I am Esau thy firstborne sonne. Then was Isaac exceedingly amazed aboue measure, and saide: Who? Where is then the hunter that broughte me, and I haue eaten of all a fore thou camest, and haue blessed him? And he shall be blessed still.

When Esau herbe these wordes of his father, he cried loude, and was exceedingly sore, and sayde vnto his father: O bleesse me also my father. But he sayde: Thy brother came wryth sorow, and hath taken thy blessinge awaye. Then sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermined me now two tymes. My byrth righte hath he awaye, and beholde, now takeh he awaye my blessinge also.

And he sayde: Hast thou not sepe one blessinge for me? Isaac answered, and sayde vnto him: I haue made him loude ouer 3, and all his brethren haue I made his firmnesse. With corne 2 wine haue I pouybed him. What shal I do vnto the now my sonne? Esau sayde vnto his father: Hast thou noe one blessinge more my father? O bleesse me also my father.

And he lift up his voyce, 2 wepte. Then Isaac his father answered and sayde wryth him: Beholde, thou shalt haue a fat dwellinge vpon earth, 2 of 3 dewe of heauen from

14. Re. a. c. C And Esau hate euill wyl into Jacob, because of the blessinge that his father had blessed him withall, and sayde in his heart: The tyme will come shortly, that my father shal mourne, for I will slaye my brother Jacob. This was it tolde Rebecca of these wordes of the elder sonne, and she sint, and had call for Jacob his younger sonne, and saide vnto him: Beholde, thy brother Esau hate- neth thee, that he will slaye thee. And now my sonne heare my voyce: Get thee vp, and fflye vnto my brother Laban in Haran, and tary there with him a while, . . . till the furiousnes of thy brother be fraged, and till his wrath agaynst thee be turned from thee, and he perceiue that thou hast done vnto him. So wyl I thin sente for thee, and cause thee to be fetched from thence. Why shaldest thou be robbed of you both in one daye?

16. Gen. a. c. And Rebecca sayde vnto Isaac: I am weary of my life, because of the daughters of Heth: If Jacob take a wife of the daughters of this lande, what shall this life then profit me?

The xxviii. Chapter.

1. When called Isaac his sonne Jacob and blessed him, and charged him, and sayde vnto him: Take not a wife of the daughters of Canaan, but get thee vp, and go into Mesopotamia vnto the house of Bethuel thy mothers father, and take thee a wife of the daughters of Laban thy brothers brother. And the Almighty God blesse thee, and make thee fructifull, and multiply thee, that thou mayest be a multitude of people, and geue thee the blessinge of Abraham vnto thee: thy seed with thee, that thou mayest possess the lande, wherein thou art a stranger, . . . which God gaue vnto Abraham. So Isaac let Jacob departe, that he might go into Mesopotamia vnto Laban the sonne of Bethuel of Siria, brother of Rebecca, his and Esaus mother.

2. Now when Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and let him departe in to Mesopotamia, that he might take a wife there: and he, as he blessed him, he charged him, and sayde: Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan, and that Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, and was gone vnto Mesopotamia: syng also that Isaac his father loved not gladly vpon the daughters of Canaan, he wente his way vnto Isaac, and besyde the wyche that he had a syle, he toke Mahaloch the daughter of Isaac (Abrahams sonne): the sister of Labors, his wyfe.

3. As for Jacob, he departed from Bersaba, and wente vnto Haran and came to a place, where he taried all night: for the Sonne was borne. And he toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder his heade, and layed him downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed, and beholde, there stode vpon each side, a ladder, whose toppes reached vnto the heauen. And beholde, the angels of God wente vp and downe vpon it, and the LORD stode vpon it, and sayde:

I am the LORD God of thy father Abraham, and the God of Isaac: The lande that thou lyst vpon, wyl I geue vnto thee, and to thy seed: and thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth. And thou shalt speche south toward the west, east, north, and south: and thou shalt be blessed. And beholde, I am with thee, and wyl kepe thee where so euer thou goest, wyl bringe thee thither agayne in to this lande: for I wil not leaue thee, till I haue made good, all that I haue promysed thee.

4. Now when Jacob awoke from his slepe, he saide: Surely the LORD is in this place, and I knewe not. And he was afraid, and sayde: How fearful is this place: here is no thinge els but an house of God, and a gate vnto heauen. And Jacob arose early in the morninge, and toke the stone that he had layed vnder his heade, and set it vp, and poured oyle vpon it. And he called the place Bethel, but afore the tyme was called Luz. And Jacob made a voue, and sayde: If God wyl be with me, and kepe me in this Iourney, and I goe, and geue me bread to eat, and clothinge to put on, and bringe me peaceably home agayne vnto my father: The shall the LORD be my God, and this stone that I haue set vp shall be an house of God: and all that thou shalt saye, I wyl geue thee the tenth thereof.

The xxx. Chapter.

1. When Jacob gat him vp vpon his feet, and wente in to the east countrey, and looked aboute him, and beholde, there was a well in the selfe, and y flockes of the shepherds, for the flockes drinke of the well. And there laye a greates stone at the welles mouth, and thither they used to bringe the flockes, and to roule the stone from the mouth of the well, and to geue the shepe drinke, and fo they put the stone agayne upon the welles mouth in to his place.

And Jacob sayde vnto them: Brethren, wher be ye: They answered: we are of Chanan. He sayde vnto them: Know ye Laban the soune of Laban: They answered: We know him well. he sayde: Is he in good health: They answered: he is in good health. And so, there cometh his daughter Rachel with the shepe. He sayde: Is it ye: he sayde: It is not ye tyme to dyue in the cattell: geue the shepe to drynke. & go your waye, & feede them. They answered: We can not, tyll all the flockes be brought together, and tyll we make the stone from the welles mouth, & so geue the shepe drynke.

¶ Wha Laban herbe of Jacob his sisters sonne, he ranne to mete him, and embraced him, and kysed him, and brought him in to his house. And so he tolde him all this matter. The sayde Laban vnto him: Wel, thou art my bone and my flesch. Abide with me a moneth longe. But a feer that saide he vnto Jacob: Because thou art my brother, shalt thou therfore serue me for naught: Tell me, what shall thy wages be. Laban had two daughters, the eldest was called Lea, & the youngest Rachel. And Lea was tender eyed, but Rachel was beautifull & well fauoured of face, and Jacob loued her well, and sayde: I will serue the seven yeare, for Rachel thy youngest daughter. Laban answered: It is better that I geue her the, then vnto another: yea then with me.

¶ So Jacob serued seven yeare for Rachel, and they semed vnto him but few dayes, he loued her so well. And Jacob saide vnto Laban: Geue me my wyfe, for the tyme is come that I shalde lye with her. The Laban had all the people of that place, and made a maner. But at cof he toke his daughter Lea, and brought her in vnto him, and he laye with her. And Laban gaue Bilba his mayde vnto his daughter Lea to be his mayde.

But on the morow, beholde, it was Lea. And he sayde vnto Laban: Why hast thou done this vnto me: haue not I straid y for Rachel: Why hast thou then begyred me: Laban answered: It is not the maner in our countre, to mary the youngest before the eldest. holde our this week. & I will geue the this also, for the sake of y thou shalt do me yee seven yeares more. Jacob dyd so, & helde our y week. Then gaue he him Rachel his daughter to wyfe. And Laban gaue Bilba his mayden vnto Rachel his daughter to be his mayden. So he laye with Rachel also, & loued Rachel more the Lea, and serued him yet seven yeares more.

¶ But when the L O R D E sawe, that Lea was a stobbing regarded, he made her fructifull, and Rachel barren. And Lea conceaued, and bare a sonne, whom she called Ruben, and sayde: The L O R D E hath loosed upon my abstinence. Now will my husband loue me. And she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: The L O R D E hath helpe that I am despyred, and haue gert me this also, and she called him Symeon. She conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now will my husband kepe me company agayne, for I haue borne him three sonnes, therefore called she his name Leui. She conceaued of fourth tyme, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now will I geue thanks vnto the L O R D E, therefore called she him Iuda, and left bearinge.

The XXX. Chapter.

¶ When Rachel sawe that she bare no children vnto Jacob, she had enuye at hir sister, & saide vnto Jacob: Be thou as the child also, or els I am but dead. But Jacob was very wroth at Rachel, & sayde: Am I then in Gods steade, which kepeth y fructif of y wombe from y: Therefore is she sayde: Beholde, there is Bilba my mayden, lye with her, & she maye beare upon my lappe, & that I maye be increased by her. And so she gaue him Bilba his mayden to wyfe.

And Jacob laye with her. So Bilba conceaued, and bare Jacob a sonne. Then saye de Rachel: God hath geuen sentence on my syde, and herde my voyce, and geaue me a sonne, wherfore called she him Dan. Dilba Rachels mayde conceaued a gayne, and bare anothe sonne vnto Jacob. Then sayde Rachel: God hath turned it wch me, and my sister, and I haue gored the upperhande. And she called him Leuephai.

Now when Lea sawe that she had left bearynge, she toke Silpa hir mayde, and gaue her vnto Jacob to wyfe. So Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Then saide Lea: This is good lucke, for she called him Gad. After this Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob anothe sonne. Then sayde Lea: Well is me, for the doughter shall call me blessed, and she called him Aser.

Ruben went out in the tyme of y whena teharrest, and founde Mandiagoras in the silde, and brought her home vnto his mothe Lea. Then sayde Rachel vnto Lea: Geue me some of y sonnes Mandiagoras. She answered: Hast thou not yough that thou hast taken awaye my husbande, but wilt take awaye my sonnes Mandiagoras also? Rachel saide: Well, let him lye with the this night for thy sonnes Mandiagoras. Now when Jacob came home at euen from the silde, Lea wente forth to meete him, and sayde: Thou shalt lye wch me, for I haue boughte the for my sonnes Mandiagoras.

And he slept with her that night. And God herde Lea, and she conceaued, and bare Jacob the fifth sonne, for sayde: God hath rewarded me, because I gaue my mayde vnto my husbande, and she called him Jschachar. Lea conceaued yett agayne, and bare Jacob the sixte sonne, and sayde: God hath endewed me with a good boyne. Now wyl my husbande dwell with me agayne, for I haue borne him sixe sonnes, for she called him Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, whom she called Dina.

¶ Neertheles God thoughte vps Rachel, and herde her, and made her fruitefull. Then she conceaued, and bare a sonne, and sayde: God hath taken awaye my rebuke, and she called him Joseph, and sayde: God geue me yett anothe sonne.

¶ Now when Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde vnto Laban: Let me go, for I departe to my place and vnto myne owne lande: geue me my wyues and my children, for the which I haue serued the. For I maye go: for thou knowest, what seruyce I haue done the. Laban sayde vnto him: Can I not fynde fauoure in thy sighte? perceauce that God hath blessed me for thy sake. Appoynte thou the reward, for I shall geue the. But he saide vnto him: Thou knowest how I haue serued the, and what name of cattell thou hast vnto me. Thou haddest but litle a fore I came hither, but now is it growne into a multitude, and the LORD hath blessed y for my sake. And now when shall I loke to myne owne householde? he saide: What shall I then geue the?

Jacob sayde: Thou shalt geue me nothinge at all, but yf thou wilt do this for me. For I saye, then wyl I siede and kepe chy shepe agayne. I wyl go thorow all chy flocke to daye, and separate thou from amonge them all the shepe that be spotted and partye coloured, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambe. Now loke what shall be partie coloured and spotted amonge the byddes, the same shall be my reward: so shall my righte conscience testifye wch me to daye or to morowe, when it cometh vnto my reward before the, so that, what so ever is not spotted and partye coloured amonge the byddes, and blacke amonge the lambe, let that be theft wch me.

Then sayde Laban: Beholde, let it be so as thou hast sayde. And that same daye he sundered out the spotted and partye coloured goates, and all the spotted and partye coloured byddes (wher there was no white vpon them) and all that was blacke amonge the lambe, and put them vnder the hande of his chyldren, and made to goe of thys daye journeye betwixte him and Jacob. So Jacob kepe the residue of Labans flocke.

¶ But Jacob toke staves of grene willowe, basell and of chynorrrens, and pylled whyte streakes in them, and layde the staves that he had pylled, in the drynkinge troughes before the flocke, which came therto to drynke, that they shoulde conceaue, when they came to drynke. So the flockes conceaued ouer y staves, and broughte forth speckelde, spotted and partye coloured.

¶ Then Jacob parted y lambe, and put them to the flocke vnto the spotted: and all that was blacke in Labans flocke, that he put vnto the spotted. And he made him a flocke of his owne, which he put not vnto Labans flocke. Neertheles in the first buydunge tyme of the flockes, he layde the staves in the drynkinge troughes before the eyes of the flockes, that they shoulde conceaue ouer the staves. But in the latter buydunge tyme he layde them not in. So the later were Labans, but the firstlinge were Jacobs.

Thus the man became exceedinge riche, so that he had many sheepe, maydens 7 seruauntes, Camels and Asses.

The XXXI. Chapter.

BEHELD also of 7 woodes of Labano children, that they sayde: Jacob hath broughte all of fathers good vnto him self, 7 of oure fathers godd hath he gotten these riches. And Jacob behelde Labans countenance, 7 beholde, it was not toward him as yester daye and yeresyter daye.

1. a. b And the LORDE sayde vnto him: Departe agayne to thy fatherlande, and to thy kynred, I will be with thee. Then sent Jacob and had call Rachel and Lea in to the felde to his flocke, and sayde vnto them: I se youre fathers countenance, that it is not toward me like as yester daye and yeresyter daye: but the God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe, that I haue serued youre father with all my power.

B And he hath blessed me, and changed my wages now ten tymes. But God hath not suffred him, to do me harme. If he sayde: The parrys coloured shalbe thy reward, then the whole flocke bare parrye coloured. If he sayde: The speckelde shalbe thy reward, the whole flocke bare speckelde. Thus hath God with drawen youre fathers goodes from him, and gotten them vnto me. For when the buckynge tyme came, I lift vp myne eyes, and sawe in a dreame, and beholde, the ramme leape vpon the flocke that was speckelde, spotted, 7 parrye coloured.

And the angel of God sayde vnto me in a dreame: Jacob. And I answered: here am I. He sayde: lift vp thine eyes, and beholde, the ramme leape vpon the speckelde, spotted, and parrye coloured flocke: for I haue set at all 7 Laban both vnto the. I am 7 God 1. a. d at Bethel, where thou dydeste and vnto the stone, 7 maydeste a vowe there vnto me. Get thee vp now, 7 departe out of this lande, 7 go agayne in to the lande of thy kynred.

C Then answered Rachel and Lea, and sayde vnto him: As for vs, we haue no portion nor inheritaunce more in oure fathers house. 7 he hath colde vs as straungers, for he hath solde vs, 7 spent vp oure wages. Therfore hath God with drawen of fathers riches from him vnto vs 7 oure children. What shal we now do? Jacob gat vp, and set his children and wyues vpon Camels, and caried awaye all his cattell and all his substance, that he had gotten at Mesopotamia, 7 he went vnto Isaac his father in the lande of Canaan. Laba was gone to dylppe his flocke, and Rachel stalle hir fathers ymages. Thus dyd Jacob steale awaye a herd of Laban 7 Syrian, in the colde hime not that he fled. So he fled, 7 all that was his, gat vp, and passed ouer the waeter, 7 wente straighte toward the mount Gilead.

Upon the thirde daye it was colde Laban, that Jacob fled. And he colde his beehi vnto him, and folowed a fier him seuen dayes iourney, and overtoke him vpon the mount Gilead. But God came vnto Laban the Syrian in a dreame by nyght, 7 sayde vnto him: Be warre, that thou speake no thinge to Jacob but good. And Laba drew nye vnto Jacob. As for Jacob, he had preached his tent vpon the mount. And Laban with his beehi pyched his tent also vpon the same mount Gilead.

Then sayde Laban vnto Jacob: What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen awaye my herd, and caried awaye my daughter, as though they had bene taken captiue of 7 swerde. Wherefore speest thou such sturte, that thou woldest flye, and hast stolen awaye from me, and coldest me not, that I mighte haue broughte the on the waye with myht, with syngeing, with tabrettes and harpes: and hast not suffred me to see my children and daughter? Then hast done foolishly, and so much mighte I haue made, that I coude haue done you cattell: but youre fathers God saide yester daye vnto me: Demurre, that thou speake no thinge vnto Jacob but good. And soe so much then as thou woldest neede departe, and longeest sore a fier 7 fathers house, why hast thou stolen awaye my goodes?

Jacob answered and sayde vnto Laban: I was a frayed, that thou shouldest haue taken awaye thy daughter from me: but loke by whom thou syndest thy goodes, let the same tye here beow oure beethen. Seeke that thine is by me, and take it awaye. (But he knewe not, that Rachel had stolen them.) Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tent and in to Leas tent, and in to both the maydens eltes, and founde no thinge: and out of Leas tent he wente in to Rachels tent. Then colde Rachel the ymages, and layed them vnder the Camels strawe, and sat downe vpon them. But Laban searched the whole tent, and founde no thinge. Then sayde she vnto hir father: Be not angry with me, for I can not ryse vp vnto thee for it neede is, as a fier the maner of women. So he soughe,

And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban, answered z sayde vnto him: What haue I trespassed or offended, y thou art so wrothe vpon me: Thou hast searched all my household stuff, z what hast thou founde of thy household stuff: z aye it here before my brethren z thyne, y they maye iudge betwene vs both. Twentye yere haue I bene w thyre byshepe z goates haue not bene vnfructfull, the rammes of thy flocke haue I not

12. 22. 23. taken: z the oth what was toime of bestes, I brought: it not vnto y, I was fayme to paie it my self: thou requyrest it of my hande, whether it were stolen fro me by daye or by night. On the daye tyme the heart obscured me, and the frost on the nyght, and my slepe departed fro myne eyes.

¶ Thus haue I serued twentye yere in thy house, fourteen yeres for thy daughter, z sixe for thy flocke, and ten tymes hast thou chaunged thy mynde: z yf the God of my father the God of Abraham, and the steere of Isaac had not bene on my syde, thou haddest larene me go awaye employe. But God hath loled vpon myne aduersitee and labour, and rebuted the yfster daye.

Laban answered and sayde: The daughters are my daughters, z the children are my children, and the flockes are my flockes, z all that thou hast is myne. What can I do this daye vnto these my daughters, or to their children whom they haue boime: Now therfore come on, let vs make a couenaunt: (z the one) which maye be a wyrtesse betwene me and the. Then toke Jacob a stone, z set it vp (for a pile) or mark stone) and sayde vnto his brethren: Gather stones. And they toke the stones, and made an heape, z aze vpon the same heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sabadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead: (either of them after the properties of his language.)

¶ Then sayde Laban: This heape be wyrtesse betwene me and the this daye (therefore is it called Gilead) and a testimony, for he sayde: The LORDE loke betwene me and y, whan we are departed y one from y other: yf thou wert my daughters, or take ocher wyntes vnto them. There is no ma with vs, but lo, God is the wyrtesse betwene me and the. And Laban sayde moreover vnto Jacob: Beholde, this is the heape, and this is the marckstone that I haue set vp betwene me and the: the same heape be wyrtesse, and the same marckstone also be wyrtesse, yf I passe ouer vnto the, or yf thou passe ouer this heape z marckstone vnto me, so do any har-

me. The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of their fathers, be wd ge betwene vs.

And Jacob swate vnto him by the steere of his father Isaac. And Jacob offered an offering vpon the mount, and called his brethren to cate bread. And whan they had eaten, they taried vpon the mount all nyght. But vpon the morow Laban rose vp early, kysed his childre z daughter, z blessed the, z departed, and came agayne vnto his place. As for Jacob, he went on his journey, z the angelo of God met him. And whan he sawe them, he sayde: This Gods doofter called the same place Mahanaim.

The XXXII. Chapter.

¶ Jacob sent messengers before him to his brocher Esau: in to the lande of Scir, of the side of Sebon, z com mandeth the, z sayde: Saye thus vnto my lorde Esau: Thy seruante Jacob standeth y this worde: I haue bene out of Laban, z haue bene hither to amonge straungers, z haue orde z Asses, shepe, seruantes z maydes, z haue sent forth to the me it the my lorde, y I might fynde fauoure in thy sight.

The messengers came agayne vnto Jacob, and sayde: We came vnto thy brocher Esau, z he cometh forth also agaynst the with foure hundred men. Then was Jacob sore a frayed, and wylt not what waye to turne him self, z deuoyd the people that was with him, and the shepe, and the oxen, z the Camels in to two diuises, z sayde: If Esau come vpon the one diuise, and smyte it, the other shal scape.

Jacob sayde moreover: O God of my father Abiā, God of my father Isaac, LORDE thou that saydest vnto me: Departe agayne to thine owne londe and to thy kynred, and I wyl do the good: I am to lide for all the mercies and all the trouth that thou hast shewed vnto thy seruante (for I had no more but this staff whan I wente ouer this Jordan, and now am I become two diuises) deliuer me from y hande of my brocher, for the hande of Esau, for I am a frayd of him, lest he come and smyte me the mother with the children. Then sayd yf: I wyl do the good, and wyl make thy selfe as the sonde of y fiz, which can not be nombred for multitude.

And there he taried that nyght, and toke of such as came to hande, z a present vnto his brocher Esau, two hundred shepe goates, twentye he goates, two hundred shepe, twentye rammes and thirtie myle camels w their foales, fortye kyne, ten bullockes, twentye shee Asses with ten foales, and put them in the handes of his seruantes, every flock by them selues, & sayde vnto them: So ye forth before me, & put a space betwixt one flocke after the other, and commaunded the first and sayde:

When my brother Esau meeteth the, and aske thee: Whose art thou? & whyer goest thou? and whose are these that thou brynest before thee? Thou shalt saye: They be thy seruants Jacobs, which sendeth a present vnto his lordes Esau, and commeth behynde vs him self.

- D Thus commaunded he the seconde also, and the thirde, and all them that folowed the flockes, and sayde: Let as I haue tolde you, shewe ye vnto Esau, when ye meet him, and saye vnto him also: Beholde, & seruaunt Jacob is behynde vs. For he thought: I will reconcile him with the present that I shall bring me, after warde will I see him my self: peradventure he shall receaue me to grace.

So the present wente before him, but he tarried in the cete the same night, and rose up in the nyght and tolde his two wyues and the two maydens and his eleven sonnes, and wente vnto the foorde of Jacob, toke them and caried them ouer the water, so that all that he had came ouer, and tarried him self alone on this syde.

- 14 Then mistaked there a man with him vntill the break of the daye. And when he sawe that he myghte not ouercome him, he couched the fenowe of his thyre, and the fenowe of his thyre stonde in wastlinge with him. And he sayde: Let me go, for the daye breaketh on. But he answered: I will not let the go, except thou blesse me. He sayde: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. He sayde: Thou shalt no more be called Jacob, but Israel, for thou hast stryuen with God and with men, and hast puailed. And Jacob aghed him, & sayde: Tell me, what is thy name? But he sayde: Why askest thou what my name is? And he blessed him there. And Jacob called the place Deniel, for I haue sene God face to face, & my soule is recovered. And as he came ouer the ryver, & some rose vpo him, he halted vpon his thyre. Therefor eate the children of Israel no vaine vpon the fenow of the thyre vnto this daye, because of vaine vpon the fenow of Jacobs thyre was couched.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

- 15 Jacob lift up his eyes, & sawe his brother Esau comyng with foure hundred men and he beynded his children vnto Esau vnto Rachel, and to both the maydens, and set the maydens with their children before, and Esau with his childre a fter, and Rachel with Joseph hynder most. And he wente before them, and bowed him self so the grounde seven tymes, till he came to his brother. But Esau ranne so meet him, and embraced him, and fell aboute his necke, & kyssed him, and wept, and lift up his eyes, and saue the wyues with the children, and sayde: What are these with thee? he answered: They are the children, which God hath geuen vnto thy seruant. And the maydens came forth with their children, and byd their obeyssaunce vnto him.

Esau came forth also with his childre, and kneled vnto him. Afterwarde came Joseph and Rachel forth, and kneled vnto him like wyfe. And he sayde: What meanest thou of all the vnaue that I meet? he answered: that I mighte fynde grace in the sighte of my lordes, Esau sayde: I haue yongth my brother, kepe that thou hast. Jacob answered: O my nay, but if I haue founde grace in thy sighte, receaue my present of my hande (for I sawe thy face, as though I had sene the face of God, and be at one with me. Take thy present in good worth, that I haue broughte the, for God hath geuen it me, & I haue yongth of all thinges. So he compelled him to take it.

And he sayde: Let vs go on and take our iourney, I will go in thy company. But he sayde vnto him: My lordes, thou knowest that I haue tender children by me, and small and greute cattall also, which are yet but yongge: if they shulde be denyd ouer in one daye, the whole flocke wolde dye. Let my lordes go on before his seruante, I will dryue a fter sayre and shifly, (there a fter as the cattell & the children can go,) till I come to my lordes in Seir. Esau sayde: Let wil I leave some of my people with thee. He answered: What neede is it? Let me but onely fynde grace in the sighte of my lordes.

So Esau departed againe the same daye towarde Seir, and Jacob toke his iourney towarde Succoth, and bynded him an house, and made stee for his cattell. There is the place called Succoth.

Afterwarde came Jacob peaceably vnto the cite of Sichem, which lyeth in the lande of Canaan, after that he was come a wayne out of Mesopotamia, and pitched before the cite, and boughte a peece of londe of the children of Hamor the father of Sichem for

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Dina the daughter of Lea, which she bare unto Jacob, wente out to beholde the daughters of the londe. When Sichein the sonne of Hemo the heuene (which was loue of the lorde) sawe her, he toke her, and laye with her, and forced her, and his here hanged upon her, and he loved her damsell, and talked longly with her, and spake to his father Hemo: Get me this mayden to wife.

And Jacob understood, that Dina his daughter was defiled, and his finnes were with the carnall in the selde, and Jacob helde his tongue till they came. Then Hemo the father of Sichein wente south unto Jacob to comen with him. In the meane season came Jacobs sonnes from the selde. And when they herde it, it grieved the men, and they were very wroth, that he had wroughte folly in Israel, and then wishe Jacobs daughter: for so was not the use to do.

When comened Hemo with the, and sayde: My sonne Sichein here longeth for you to be his wife, O geue him to wife: make friendship with vs, geue vs youre daughters, and take ye oure daughters, and dwell with vs, the londe shall be open vnto you, dwell and occupie, and haue youre possessions therein. And Sichein sayde vnto his father and brethren: Let me finde grace with you: let what ye appoynte me, I will geue it: requyre the dowrye and gift of me hardy. I will geue it accordinge as ye will aye, onely geue me the damsell to wife.

Then Jacobs sonnes answered Sichein and Hemo his father (and spake bitterfully, because their sister Dina was defiled): sayde vnto them: That can we not do, to geue oure sister to an vncircumcised man: for that were a shame vnto vs.

C Herewithes we will consente vnto you, yf ye wyllt like vnto vs, and be circumcised as many as are males amonge you: then will we geue you oure daughters, and take youre daughters vnto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people. But yf ye will not herken vnto vs, to be circumcised, then wyll we take oure daughter, and go oure waye.

These wordes pleased Hemo and his brethren, and the yonge man beside neede to do the same, for he had lust to Jacobs daughter: and he was holten in honoure above all in his fathers house. Then came Hemo and Sichein his sonne vnder the gaze of eies, and comened with the citizens of the cite, and sayde: These men are peaceable with vs, and will dwell in the lande and occupye: now is the londe hode of both the sydes, we wyll take their daughters vnto vs, and geue them oure daughters.

But then wyll they consente vnto vs, to dwell with vs, and to be one people with vs, yf we circumcise all the men children amonge vs, like as they are circumcised: their cattle and goodes, and all that they haue, shall be oure, yf we consente vnto them, that they maye dwell with vs.

And they herkened vnto Hemo and Sichein his sonne, as many as were one and in at the gaze of his eies, and circumcised all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. And vpon the thirde daye (when it was panned full to them) the two sonnes of Jacob Simeon and Levi Dina's brethren, toke euery man his sword, and wente boldly in to the cite, and slew all the males, and slew Hemo also and Sichein his sonne with the edge of the sword, and toke their sister Dina out of Sichein's house, and wente their waye.

Then came Jacobs sonnes euer the sayne, and spoyled the cite (because they had defiled their sister) and toke their shepe, oxen, asses, and what so euer was in the cite and in the londe, and all manner of goodes. All their children and wyues toke they captiue, and spoyled all that was in the house.

And Jacob sayde vnto Symeon and Levi: We haue broughte it so to passe, that I shal ke before the inhabitants of this lande, that can name and pherisees, that I am but a small nombre: If they gather them selfe now together against me, they shall slay me, so shall I be destroyed with my house. But they answered: Shalbe they the deale with our sister as with an whoore?

The XXXI. Chapter.

When God sayde vnto Jacob: Get thee vp, and go vnto Bethel, and dwell there, and make there an altare vnto the God, that appeared vnto thee, when thou fleddest from thy brother Esau. Then sayde Jacob vnto his household and to all that were with him: Put awaye from you all strange gods, that are amonge you, and cleanse youre selues, and change youre clothes, and let vs get vp, and go vnto Bethel, that I maye there make an altare vnto the God, 14.1 which herbe me in the tyme of my trouble, and hath bene with me in the waye that I haue gone.

B Then gauē they him all the strange gods that were vnder their handes, and their earrynges, and he burnt them vnder an Oke that stode besyde Sichem, & departed. And there came a feare of God vpon the citie that laye roude aboute, so that they followed not after y^e sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob vnto Lea in y^e lande of Canaan (which is called Bethel) and all the people that were with him, and there he buylded an altare, and called y^e place Bethel, because the L. O. R. D. appeared vnto him there, when he fled from his brother. Then dyed Deborah Rebeccas noose, and was buried beneath Bethel vnder the Oke, and it was called the Oke of lamentacion.

14.2 And God appeared agayne vnto Jacob, after that he was come out of Mesopotamia, and blessed him, & saide vnto him: Thou 14.3 art called Jacob, neuertheless thou shalt no more be called Jacob, but Israel shall be y^e name. And so he was called Israel.

C And God saide vnto him: I am the All mighty God, be frute full and multiplye: people and a multitude of people shall come of the, and y^e kynges shall come out of thy loynes: and the lande that I gaue vnto Abraham and Isaac, will I geue vnto the, & will geue it vnto thy sode after the. So God departed from him, from y^e place where he talked wth him. And Jacob set vp a pillar of ston, in the place where he talked with him, & poured drynt offerynges thereon, and poured oyle vpon it. And Jacob called y^e place where God talked with him, Bethel.

D And he departed from Bethel, and when he was yet a ielde biode from Ephraim, Rachel came, & she byrd came hardy vpon hir. And when she had soch payne in traue-

14.4 linge, y^e myd wile laide vnto her: feare not, for thou shalt haue thes some also. But as hir soale was departyng, y^e she must dye, he called him Ben Oni: neuertheless his sode

14.5 here called hi De Jamin. So Rachel dyed, & was buried in the waye toward Ephraim, which now is called Bethlehi. And Jacob set vp a pillar vpon hir graue, there is Rachels graue vnto this daye. And Israel departed, and pitched his tent beyonde the towne of Beer.

E And it chaunced, that when Israel dwelt in that lande, Ruben wente, and laye with Bilha his fathers concubyne, and that came to Israels caroe,

And Jacob had twolue sonnes. The sonnes of Lea were these: Ruben, Jacob was first borne (sonne, Simeon, Leui, Juda, Issachar, & Zabuli. The sonnes of Rachel, were Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rachel may be: Dan, and Ezekehi. The sonnes of Silpa Lea was may be: Gad and Aser. These are y^e sonnes of Jacob, which were borne vnto him in Mesopotamia. And he came to his father Isaac to Mamre in to the heade cite which is called Hebron, where in Abrahams y^e Isaac were strallgere. And Isaac was an hundredth & foure score years olde, & fell sick, and dyed, & was gathered vnto his people, when he was olde, & had luyed enough, and his sonnes Esau & Jacob buried him.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

This is the generacion of Esau, which is called Edom. Esau toke wyues of the daughters of Canaan. Ada the daughter of Elis the heathen: & Abalibama the daughter of Ana, the chyldes chyde of Bebeon the heuye: And Basmath y^e Jimaids daughter, the sister of Tebeath. And Ada bare Eliphaz vnto Esau. Basmath bare Reguel, Abalibama bare Japh, Jaclan, & Zorah. These are the chyld of Esau, y^e were borne vnto him in the lande of Canaan.

And Esau toke his wyues sonnes & daughters, and all the soules of his house, his substance, and all the cattell with all the goodes that he had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and wente in to a countre a waye fro his brother Jacob: for his substance was so greates, that they coude not dwell together: and the lande wherin they were strangers, myghte not holde them because of their goodes. So Esau dwelt vpon mount Seir. And Esau is Edom.

This is y^e generacion of Esau, of whos are come y^e Edomites vpon y^e mount Seir. And these are y^e names of the chyld of Esau: Eliphaz y^e sonne of Ada Esaus wyfe: Reguel y^e sonne of Basmath Esaus wyfe: The sonnes of Eliphaz were these: Teman, Omar, Zepho, Gaethan & Arenas. And Thima was a concubyne of Eliphaz y^e sonne of Esau, and bare him Amaleck. These are y^e chyldren of Ada Esaus wyfe.

The chyldren of Reguel are these: Thahy Serah, Samma, Misra. These are the chyldren of Basmath Esaus wyfe.

The chyldren of Abalibama Esaus wyfe, the daughter of Ana, that was the chyldes chyde of Bebeon (which she bare vnto Esau) are these: Jenu, Jaclan and Zorah.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Dina y daughter of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob, wente out to beholde the daughters of the lande. When Sichein the some of Hemor the Genuz (which was lord of the lode) sawe her, he coke her, and laye with her, and forced her, and his hert hanged vpon her, and he loued y damsell, and talked longyngly with her, and spake to his father Hemor: Ge me this mayden to wife.

And they herkened vnto Hemor and Sichein his sonne, as many as were out and in at y gate of his cite, and circumed all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. And vpon the thirde daye (whan it was past full to them) the two somes of Jacob Symeon and Levi Dinas brethren, coke euery man his swerde, and wente boldly in to the cite, and slew all the males, and slew Hemor also and Sichein his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and coke their sister Dina out of Sicheins house, and wente their waye.

B Then comeneth Hemor with the, and sayde: My sonne Sicheins hert longeth for yere daughter, O geue hir him to wife: make frendshipp with vs, geue vs yore daughters, and dwel with vs, the lande shall be open vnto you, and dwell and occupie, and haue yore possessions therein. And Sichein sayde vnto his father and brethren: Let me fynde grace with you: lode what ye appoynt me, I will geue it: requoye the dowrye and gift of me: hardely, I will geue it a cotinge as ye will are, onely geue me the damsell to wife.

Then Jacobs sonnes answered Sichein and Hemor his father (and spake displeasurly, because their sister Dina was defyled) sayde vnto them: That can we noe do, to geue yore sister to an vncircumcised man: for that were as shame vnto vs.

C These wordes he will consente vnto you, yf ye wyll like vnto vs, and be circumed as many as are males amonge you: then will we geue you yore daughters, and take yore daughters vnto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people. But yf ye will noe herken vnto vs, to be circumed, then wyll we take yore daughter, and go oure waye.

These wordes pleased Hemor and his sonne wel, and the vonge man beside her to do the same, for he had lust to Jacobs daughter:

and he was holden in honoure aboue all in his fathers house. Then came Hemor and Sichein his sonne vnto y gate of cite, and comened with the citizens of the cite, and said: These men are peaceable with vs, and will dwell in the lande and occupy: now is the lande biode of both the sydes, we wyll take their daughters vnto vs, and geue them oure daughters.

But then wyll they consente vnto vs, to dwell by vs, and to be one people with vs, yf we circumcise all the men thylowm amonge vs, like as they are circumcised: their counsel and gooddes, and all that they haue, shall be oure, yf we consente vnto them, that they maye dwell with vs.

And they herkened vnto Hemor and Sichein his sonne, as many as were out and in at y gate of his cite, and circumed all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. And vpon the thirde daye (whan it was past full to them) the two somes of Jacob Symeon and Levi Dinas brethren, coke euery man his swerde, and wente boldly in to the cite, and slew all the males, and slew Hemor also and Sichein his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and coke their sister Dina out of Sicheins house, and wente their waye.

Then came Jacobs sonne out the slayne, and spoyled the cite (because they had defyled their sister) and roke their sheepe, oxen, Asses, and what so euer was in the cite and in the lande, and all maner of gooddes: All their children and wyues coke they capture, and spoyled all y was in the house.

And Jacob sayde vnto Symeon and Levi: Ye haue brought it so to passe, y Symeon before the inhabitors of this lande, y Cananites and Pherezites, y I am but a small nombre: If they gather them selues now to gather agaynst me, they shall slaye me, so shall I be destroyed with my house. But they answered: Shalthe they the deale with oure sister as with an whoore?

The XXXV. Chapter.

D The God sayde vnto Jacob: Ge the way, and go vnto Bethel, y dwell there, and make there an altare vnto the God, that appeared vnto the, whan thou fleddest from thy brether Esau. Then sayde Jacob vnto his household: and to all y were with him: Put awaye from you y stranges gods, that are amonge you, and cleanse yore selues, and change yore clothes, and let vs get up, and go vnto Bethel, that I maye there make an altare vnto the God,

S Jacob dwelt in the lande, wherein his father was a stranger, namely in the lande of Canaan. And these are the generations of Jacob. Joseph was thirtene years olde, whā he became a keeper of the cattell of his brethren, and the lad was the childre of Bilha and Sūpa his father's wyves, and tolde their father of the excellencye of his wife. Israel loved Joseph more than all his childre because he had begot him in his olde age, and he made him a coate of many coloures.

17 Now whā his brethren sawe, that his father loved him more than all his brethren, they had cattell will at him, and coude not speake a freeworde unto him. Joseph also had once a dreame, and tolde his brethren thereof. They hated they him more, for he sayde: Heare I praye you what I dreamed. We thought we were byndinge sheeces vnto y^e felde, and y^e sheefe arose, and stode vp, and y^e sheeces rounde aboute made obeysaunce unto my sheefe.

B Then sayde his brethren unto him: Shalt thou be a Kinge, and haue dominion ouer vs? And they hated him yet more, because of his dreame, and his wordes. And he had yet another dreame, which he tolde his brethren, and sayde: Beholde, I had yet another dreame: We thought y^e some y^e Moone y^e clouen starres made obeysaunce to me. And whā this was tolde his father and his brethren, his father reposed him, and sayde unto him: Whether manner of dreame is this, the thou hast dreamed: Shall I thy mother, thy brethren come to fall before y^e upon the ground? And his brethren had envie at him. But his father marked this sayenge.

C Now whā his brethren were gone forth to kepe their fathers cattell in Sichem, Israel sayde unto Joseph: Do not thy brethren kepe the cattell in Sichem? Come, I will sende thee unto the. He answered: Here am I. And he sayde: Go thy waye, and let it whether it be well wth thy brethren and wth y^e cattell, and byng me woode agayne how it is. And he sent him out of the valley of Sebon, to go unto Sichan.

Then a certayne man founde him, wandring out of his waye in the selde, which was him, and sayde: Whom sekest thou: he answered: Like my brethren tell me I praye the where they kepe. The man sayde: They are gone from hence, for I herde them say: let us go unto Dochan. Then folowed Joseph a fere his brethren, and founde them at Dochan.

D Now when they sawe him a saie of, a fere he came at the, they deuysed to sleie him, and sayde one to another: Lo, there cometh the dreamer, come on, and let us sleie him, cast him in a pyre, and saye: a wicked beast hath deuoured him: the shal it be seene, what his dreames are.

When Ruben herde that, he wolde haue deuoured him out of their handes, and sayde: O let vs not sleie a soule. Ruben sayde mouerunt unto him: Shed no bloude, but cast him into this pyre: for he is in the wyldernes, and laye no hades upon him. He wolde haue deluyered him one of their hades, for he might haue broughte him agayne unto his father.

E When Joseph now came to his brethren, they styed him out of his coe, that partie coloured coe which he had upon him, and toke him and cast him in to a pyre. But the same pyre was empye, and no water in it, and they sat them downe to eate. In the meane season they lyste vpon their eyes, and sawe a company of Imaelites comynge: from Gilead, with their camels, which bare spycer, balme, and myre, and were goinge downe in to Egipte.

Then saide Juda vnto his brethren: what helpe it vs, that we sleie our brother, and hyde his bloude: Come, let vs sell him vnto the Imaelites, that our handes be not defiled vpon him, for he is our brother, our flesh and bloude. And they hearkened vnto him.

And as the Imaelitanes marchand men wente by, they drew Joseph out of the pyre, and sold him vnto the Imaelites (for they were synare pen) which broughte him in to Egipte.

S Now when Ruben came agayne vnto the pyre, and founde not Joseph therein, he rent his clothes, and came agayne to his brethren and sayde: The lad is not yonder, whyether shal I go: Then toke they Joseph coe and stee a goate, and bypped the coe in a blon de, and sent a waye that partie coloured coe, and caused it be broughte vnto their father and sayde: This haue we founde, loke, whether it be thy sonnes coe, or no.

But he knewe it, and sayde: Is it my sonnes coe, a wicked beast hath deuoured him, a rauynge beast hath rauyned Joseph. And Jacob rent his clothes, and put a sack cloth aboute his loynes, and mourned for his sonne a longe season. And all his sonnes and daughters came vnto him to comforte him. But he wolde not be comforted, and saide: With sorrowe wil I go downe in to the graue vnto my sonne. And his father wepte for him. But the Imaelitanes sold him in Egipte vnto Potiphar Pharaos chiefe Marshall.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

Fortuned at the same time, for Juda wente downe fro his brethren, and gaue him to a man called Iyza at Odolaim. And there Juda saue a ma of Canaan boughte called Sus, and toke her. And when he had lye with her, she conceiued and bare a sonne, whom she called Er.

And she conceiued agayne, and bare a sonne which she called Ona. She proceeded yet fere ther, and bare a sonne, which she called Sela. And when she had borne him, she left of bearinge.

And Juda gaue his first sonne Er a wife, whose name was Tamar. But he was wicked before the LORD. Either for the LORD slew him. Then sayde Juda vnto his sonne Ona: So lie with thy brothers wife, and nurye thyself with her, that thou mayest rayse vp sids vnto thy brother. But when Ona knewe that the sids shulde not be his owne, when he laye with his brothers wife, he let it fall vpon the earth and destroyed it, for he shulde not geue sids vnto his brother. This thinge that he dyd displeasid the LORD, and he slew him also.

Then sayde Judas vnto Tamar his sonnes wyfe. Remayne a widow in thy fathers house, tyll my sonne Sela be growne in: for he shal be thy husband: peradventure he maye be thy also like as his brethren. So Tamar wente his waye, and remained in his fathers house. Now whā many dayes were past, y^e daughter of Susa Judas wife dyed. And whā Judas had left mourning, he wente up vnto Thymnath + to clippe his shepe with his shepherde hyza of Odollam.

C Then was it tolde Thamar: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth up vnto Thymnath, to clippe his shepe. Then put she of y^e wyddowes garments that she had vpon her, couered and dysguysed hir self, & sat hir downe without the porte by the waye syde comarde Thymnath. For she sawe that Sela was growne, and she was not greden vnto him to wife.

Now whā Judas sawe her, he thoughte it had bene an whoore, for she had couered hir face: and he gat her to her in the waye, and saide: I praye the leaue me with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. She answered: What wilt thou geue me, that thou mayest lie with me? he saide: I will sende the a kydd from the flocke. She answered: Geue me a pledge then, tyll thou sende it me. he saide: What pledge wilt thou haue? I geue the.

D She answered: Thy signet, and thy bracele, and thy staffe that thou hast in thy hande. Then he gaue it her, and laye with her, and she was with childe of him. And she gat hir vp, and wente hir waye, and laye of hir cloke, and put on hir wyddowes garmentes agayne.

Judas sent the kydd by his shepherde of Odolla, so sende the pledge agayne from the woman, and he soude her not. Then ared he the men of the same place, & saide: Where is the whoore y^e sat without in the waye? They answered: There hath no whoore bene here. And he came agayne vnto Judas, and saide: I haue not founde her, meour y^e men of the same place saide: that there hath no whoore bene there. Judas saide: Let her take it vnto her, lest we happily be shamed, for I haue sene the kydd, and thou hast not founde her.

E After thre monethes it was tolde Judas: Thamar thy daughter in lawe hath plaid the whoore: and beholde, by whoideme is she gotten with childe. Judas saide: vnyng her forth, that she maye be vuent. And whā she was broughte forth, she sent vnto hir father in lawe, and saide: Wher he man y^e ourteth these am I wth childe. And she saide: Knowest thou wher is this signet, this bracele & this staffe? Judas knewe the, & saide: She is moste righteous the, for I gaue hir not my some Sela: But he laye nomore with her. Whā the tyme came that she shoulde be deliuered, there were two twynes founde in hir wombe. And as she was now in traauynge, the one put out hir hande. Then the midwife toke and boude a reed thereto aboute it, and saide: This shal come ourt first. But whā he placde in hir hande agayne, his brother came forth. And she saide: Wherefore is there a reed mayde for thy sake? And he was called + Phares. Afterwarde came his brother forth, which had y^e reed thereto aboute his hande, and he was called Serah.

The xxxij. Chapter.

G Joseph was broughte home in to Egypte, & Poyphar an Egyptia Pharaos chefe marshall boughte him of y^e Jmailetes, y^e broughte him downe. And y^e LORDE was wth Joseph, in so much y^e he became a lutchymā, & was in his masters y^e Egyptians house. And his master sawe y^e the LORDE was wth him: for what so ever he dyd, the LORDE made it to prosper in his hande: so y^e he founde sand in his masters sight, & was his seruante. he made him ruler of his house, and put all that he had, vnder his hande. And from the tyme forth that he had made him ruler of his house and all his goodes, y^e LORDE blessed the Egyptians house for Josephs sake: and there was nothyng but the very blessinge of the LORDE in all y^e he had in y^e house & in the feld, therfore left be all y^e he had, in Josephs hande. And medled with nothyng himself, sawe onely the bred that he ate. And Joseph was saye of betweye, and well fauoured of face.

And it fouuned a feer these actes, that his masters wife cast hir eyes vpon Joseph, and saide: Slepe with me. But he denyed, and saide vnto her: Beholde, my master knoweth not what is in y^e house, and all that he hath, that hath he put vnder my hande. And there is no man so greata in the house as I, and he hath receyued nothyng fro me, excepte therfor thou art his wife. How shalde I then do so greata euill, and synne agaynst God? But she spak such wordes vnto Joseph daie. Therfor he hearkenned not vnto her, to slepe by her, or to be in her company.

It fouuned vpon a tyme, that Joseph wente in to the house to do his busynesse, and there was none of y^e felles of the house the rebv. And she caughte him by his garment, & saide: Slepe with me. But he left the garment in hir hande, and fled, and gat him out of the house.

How whā she sawe that he had left his garmēt in his bande, and fled out, she called the folkes in the house, and sayde vnto the: Lo, he hath brought vs in the chaine, to do vs shame. he came in here vnto me, to slepe by me: but I cried with loude voyce. And whā he herde that I made a noyse I cried, he left his garmēt here by me, and fled, and came out.

D And she layd vp his garmēt by her, till his master came home, and tolde him euē the same wordes, and sayde: The hebreu seruaunt whom thou bron ghest here vnto vs, came in here to me, for to do me shame. But whā I made a noyse and cried, he left his garmēt here by me, and fled out. Whā his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde him, and sayde: Thus hath the hebreu seruaunt done vnto me, he was very wroth.

E Then his master tolde him, and put him in the prison, wherin the Enges prisoners laie. And there he laye in prison. But the LORDE was with him, and had mercy vpon him, & caused him to fynde fauor in the sight of the officer of the prison, so that he committed all the prisoners of the prison vnto his handes: that whā so euer were done, might be done by him. For the officer of the prison sawe, that the LORDE was with him in all that he was vnder his handes, and that what so euer he dyd, the LORDE made it to come prosperously to passe.

The XL. Chapter.

AND it fortuned after this, that the butler of Egyp̄tes chiefe butler and the chiefe baker offended their lord the kynge of Egyp̄tes. And pharao was angry w̄ them, & caused them to be put in prison in the se marshale house, where Ioseph laye prisoner. And the chiefe marshall put Ioseph vnto them, that he might serue them. And so they were in prison for a season.

And they dreamed, both the butler & the baker in one nyght, euery mā his owne dreame, and euery dreame had his interpretation. Now in the morning when Ioseph came in vnto them, and sawe that they loked sadly, he ased them and sayde: Why loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered: We haue dreamed, and haue no man to declare it vnto vs. Ioseph sayde: Interpretinge belongeth vnto God, but tell it me yet.

B Then the chiefe butler tolde Ioseph his dreame, and saide vnto him: I dreamed that there was a vyne before me, which had thre binches, and it laded, grewe and bare blossoms, and the grapes thereof were ripe. And I had pharaos cuppe in my hande, & rakē (the grapes) and wroge the in to a cuppe, and gaue pharao the cuppe in his hande.

Ioseph sayde: This is the interpretation: The thre binches are the thre dayes, and ouer the thre dayes shall pharao eate the, and putte the in thine office agayne, that thou mayest geue him the cuppe in his hande after the olde maner, whā thou wast his butler. But whā thou art in thy prosperite, thinke vpon me, and shewe me thyndresse, that thou mayest certifie pharao of me, that he maye bring me out of this house: for I was purely carried out of the lande of the hebreus, and here also haue I done nothinge, but that they shal be haue put me in this dongeon.

Whā the chiefe baker sawe, that the interpretation was good, he sayde vnto Ioseph: I dreamed, that I bare thre wythe baskets vpon my heade, and in the vppermost basket was maner of bakē meates vnto pharao, and the fowles are out of the basket: vpon my heade.

Ioseph answered, and sayde: This is the interpretation: The thre baskets are the thre dayes, and after thre dayes shall pharao eate the, and hange the vpon the galowe, and the fowles shal eate thy flesh from of the.

And vpon the thirde daye it came to passe, that pharao helde his bysch daye, and made a feast vnto all his seruantes, and to the chiefe butler and the chiefe baker before all his seruantes, and reboted the chiefe butler to his butlershippe agayne, so that he reached the cuppe in to pharaos hande. As for the chiefe baker, he caused him to be hanged like as Ioseph had interpreted vnto him. Neuerthelesse the chiefe butler thoughte not on Ioseph, but forgat him.

The XLII. Chapter.

AND after two yeres pharao had a dreame, how that he sode by a water syde: and beholde, out of the water there came seuen goodly fyne, and seuen leane fleshed, and went by the fyne vpon the water syde: and the euell favoured leane fyne ate vpon the seuen goodly and fat fyne. Then pharao awaked.

And he slepte agayne, and dreamed the seconde tyme. And he sawe that seuen eares of come grewe vpon one stalk, full and good. Afterwarde he sawe seuen thynne and blasted eares come up, and the seven thymme eares denoued the seven grate and full eares. Then Pharao awaked, and sawe that it was a dreame. And when it was daye, his spirit was troubled, and he sente out, & caused to call all the seerthysayers in Egipte, & all the wyse men, and tolde them his dreame. But there was none, that coude tell Pharao the interpretation of it.

- B Then saide the cheif butler vnto Pharao, and saide: This daye do I remember my same. When Pharao was angrie with his seruantes, and put me in prison with the cheif butler in the seerthysayers house, we dreamed both in one night eury mā his dreame, hauing his owne interpretation. Then was there with vs a yong man an Hebre, the cheif mashtals seruante, vnto whom we tolde it, and he declared oure dreames vnto vs, vnto eury mā accordinge to his dreame. And as he declared it vnto vs, so came it to passe. For I was restord vnto myne office, and he was hangd.

Then Pharao sent and called for Joseph and they let him out of the dongeon. And he let himself be shauen, and chaunged his clothes, and came in vnto Pharao. Then saide Pharao vnto him: I haue dreamed a dreame, and there is no man that can interpret it: but I haue herde tell of the, that wyl thou bestrest a dreame, thou declarest it. Joseph answered Pharao, and saide: God shall geue Pharao a prosperous answer, yet well without me.

- C Pharao saide vnto Joseph: I dreamed that I stode by a water syde, and beholde, out of the water there came seven thymme, faste shed and goodly, and wente sydinge in the meadowe. And after them I sawe ocher seue thymme come out, thymme, euill fauoured, and leasly shed. So euill fauoured were I neuer in all the lande of Egipte. And the seven leeme and euill fauoured thymme, ate vp the seven first seue thymme. And when they had eaten them vp, a man coude not perceiue that they had eaten them: were as euill fauoured as they were afore. Then I awaked.
- And I sawe agayne in my dreame seven eares of corne, growinge vpo one stalk, full and good. A fewerwarde there spronge vp seven withered eares, thymme and blasted, and the seven thymme eares deuoured the seven good eares. And I haue shewed it vnto my seerthysayers, but they can tell me nothinge thereof.
- D Joseph answered Pharao: With Pharaos dreames are one. God sheweth Pharao what he wil do. The seven good thymme are seven yeares, and the seven good eares are seven yeares also. It is one dreame. The seven leeme and euill fauoured thymme, that came vp after them, are seven yeares. And the seven thymme and blasted eares, shall be seven yeares of deryth. This is now the thinge which I tolde Pharao, that God sheweth Pharao, what he will do.

Beholde, there shall come seven yeares of grate plentyousnes in the whole lande of Egipte, and after the same there shall come seven yeares of deryth, so that all this plentyousnes shall be forgotten in the lande of Egipte: and the deryth shall consume the lande, so that the plentyousnes shall not be perceaued in the lande, because of the deryth that cometh after it, for it shall be very greake. Where as Pharao dreamed the seconder thymme, it signifieth that this thinge is surely prepared of God, and that God wil shortly bringe the same to passe.

Let Pharao now choyse for a man of vnderstandinge & wysdome, a bon behaue, set ouer the lande of Egipte, and let there be othere officers in the lande, and take the fifth parte of the lande of Egipte in the seven plentyous yeares, and gather all the foode that shall come of the plentyous yeares, that they maye laye vp come vnder Pharaos power for sustenance in the cities, and keper it. There maye be foode sounde prepared for the lande in the seven deare yeares, which shall come vnto the lande of Egipte, that the lande be not destroyed of hongre. The sayenge pleased Pharao well and all his seruantes. And Pharao saide vnto his seruantes: How mighte we fynde such a man, in whom is the sperte of God? And saide vnto Joseph: For so much as God hath shewed the all this, there is none of such vnderstandinge & wysdome as thou.

Then shall be ouer my house, and accordinge vnto thy worde shall all my people obey: onely in the tymes thate wyl I be more then thou. And he saide: Beholde, I haue set the ouer the whole lande of Egipte. And he toke of his ringe from his hande, and gaue it Joseph in his hande, and clothed him with whyte sylke, and honged a chayne of golde aboute his neck, and made him ryde vpo the seconde chaire: and caused it be proclaimed before him, that men shoulde bowe their knees vnto him, as do him to vs Pharao had set ouer the whole lande of Egipte.

And Pharao saide vnto Joseph: I am Pharao: without thy wyl shall no man mo as his hande to his feete in all the lade Egip to. And he called him Joseph Pharaon, & gave him a wife, euen Asnath the daughter of Potiphar the prest of On. So Joseph wente out, for to visyte the lande of Egipce.

 (And he was thirtie yeare olde, when he stode before Pharaon.) And he departed from Pharaon, and wente thowto all the lande of Egipce.

And the lande byd so thost seven plenteous yeares, and they gathered all the foodes of the seven yeares that were in the lande of Egipce, & layde it in the cities. & orde what foodes grewe in the selbe rounde aboute eue-ry cite, they put it therein. So Joseph layed up the come in stowes, and that moche aboute measure, as the fowde of the sea in so much þ he left of nornbyngs of it. for it coulde not be nombred.

¶ And vnto Joseph there were borne two sonnes (before þ berch came) whom Asnath the daughter of Potiphar prest of On bare vnto him. And the first called he Manassa: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to forget all my laboure, and all my fathers hous.
 The seconde called he Ephraim: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in þ lan-de of my trouble.

¶ Now when y seven plenteous yeares were ended in Egipce, then begarne the seven deare yeares to come, wherof Joseph had sayde. And there was berth in all landes, but in all the lade of Egipce there was foode.
 ¶ Now when the lande of Egipce began-ne to suffre hunger alid, the people cryed vnto Pharaon for bread. But Pharaon sayde vnto all þ Egipcians: Wo vnto Joseph, what he saith vnto you, þ doo. So when there was berth in all y lade, Joseph opened all þ was by him, & stode vnto the Egipcians. Thus y berth p. mayled in the lande, & all comitees came to Egipce to bye at Joseph: for the berth was myghte in all landes.

The XLII. Chapter.

¶ When Jacob sawe that there was moche come in Egipce, he sayde vnto to his sonnes: Why gaue ye: Behold, I heare that there is moche come in Egipce: go downe to bye vs come, þ we maie lyue, & not dye. So Joseph ren budeth men to downe to bye come in Egipce. So for Ben Jamin Josephs brother, Jacob wolde not let him go w his brother, for he sayde: Some misfortune may be ppen vnto him. So þ dreid of Israel came to bye come, amonge other þ came w them: for there was berth also in y lande of Canaan. But Joseph was gouernour in the lande, and stode come vnto to all the people in the lande.

¶ Now when his brothe come to him, they fell downe to the grounde before him vpon their faces. And he saie e them, I haue thet, and helde himself straunge comare vnto them, and talked roughly with them, and saide vnto them: Whence come ye: They sayde: Out of the lande of Canaan to bye wryale. ¶ He saide: helde though he knewe them, yet knewe they not him. And Joseph thoughte vpon y dreames that he had dreamed of them, and sayde vnto them: Ye are spen, and are come to se where the lande is open.

¶ They answered him: To my lord, thy fir-mance are come to bye wryale: we are all one mans sonnes, we are vnspen, and thy seruances wees men spen. he sayde vnto the: ¶ To, but ye are come to se where the lan-de is open. They answered him: We thy ser-uances are woule budeth, the sonnes of one man in the lade of Canaan, and the you-gest is with oure father: as for one, he is awaie.

¶ Joseph sayde vnto them: This is ite that I sayde vnto you: spen are ye. Here by will I proue you: By the life of Pharaon ye shall not fe: hence, excopte youre yongest biche, her come: hither. Sende awaie one of you to fetch youre brother, but yeshalbe in pson.
 ¶ Thus will I crye out yo wordes, whether ye go aboure w trach on nor: for els, by the life of Pharaon ye are spen. And he put the together in ward: the dayes longe.

¶ Vpon the thirde daye he sayde vnto the:
 ¶ If ye wil lyue, the do thus, for I feare God:
 ¶ If ye be vnspen, let one of youre budeth ly bounde in you: e pson: but go ye youre waye, and carry home the necessary foodes, & bynge me youre yongest brother, so will I beleue youre wordes, that ye shall not dye.
 And so they byd.

¶ And they sayde onco to another: This haue we defured againt oure brother, in that we sawe the angush of his soule, when he besoughte vs, and we wolde not heare him therfore cometh now this trouble vpon vs.
 ¶ Then answered them, and saide: Telle noe J you þ same, when J sayde: O sinner noe agaynst y lab, but ye wolde noe heare. ¶ Now is his bloude requyred. But they knewe noe that Joseph vnderstode it, for he carned him from them, and wepte. ¶ Now when he had turned him to them agayne, and talked w them, & toke þ sym on frim amonge them, y bound: þan before their eyes, and commandeb to fill their sackes wth come, and to put every mans money in his sack, and to geue eury one his byperles by the waye. And so was it done vnto them.

D And they laden their come vpon their Asses, and departed thence. But when one opened his sackes, he found his Asses p^{ro}uenter in the same, and he spred his money in his sack without, and sayde vnto his brethren My money is r^{es}t for sometime agayne: so, it is in my sack. Then their brether sayled them, and they were afrayed amonge them selfes, and sayde: Wherefore hath God done this vnto vs?

Then when they came home to Jacob their father in the lade of Canaan, they tolde him all that had happened vnto them, and sayde: The man that is lord of the lande, spake roughly vnto vs, and toke vs for spyes of the countrie. And when we answered: we are vsfaynes, and were neuer spyes, but are twelue brethren the sonnes of oure father: one is awaye, and the youngest is yet this daye wth oure father in the lande of Canaan, he sayde: Herby wyl I marke, that ye are vsfaynes: Leane one of youre brether in with me, and take soode necessary for youre houses, and your wyue, and bringe youre youngest brether vnto me: so shal I knowe that ye are no spyes, but vsfaynes: the shal I deliuer you youre brother also, and ye maye occupie in the lande.

R And when they opened their sackes, eury man founde his boundell of money in his sacke. And when they and their father sawe, that it was the boundell of their money, they were afrayed.

Then sayde Jacob their father: We haue robbed me of my children, Joseph is awaye, Simcon is awaye, and ye will take Ben Jamin awaye: Ye goeth all ouer me. Ruben answered his father and sayde: If I bringe him not to the agayne, then laye my two sonnes: deliuer him but in to my hands, I wyl bringe him agayne vnto the. He sayde: my sonne shal not goe downe with you: for his brother is deade, and he is left alone. If eny my sonnes shoulde happen vnto him by the waye, ye go, ye shoulde bringe my graye hoys with you: w^{ch} shoulde come vnto the grave.

The XLiii. Chapter.

But the deth oppressed of lande. And when all the wytales that they had broughte out of Egipte were spent, Jacob their father sayde vnto them: Go agayne, and bye vs a litle soode.

The Iuda answered him, and sayde: The man swaue vnto vs, and sayde: ye shal not se my face, excepte youre brother be with you. If so be no more that thou wilt sende oure brother with vs, we wil goe downe, and bye the soode. But if thou wilt not sende him, we wyl not goe downe. For the man sayde vnto vs: Ye shal not se my face, excepte youre brother be with you.

Israel sayde: Wherefore haue ye done this euill vnto me, to coll^l y^e man, that ye had yet a brother? They answered: The man enquired so strictly of vs, and of oure byurbe, and sayde: Is youre father yet a lyue? haue ye yet a brother? Then tolde we him, as he asked vs. How coulde we knowe, that he wold saye: bringe youre brother downe wth you! Then sayde Iuda vnto Israel his father: Let the lad goe with me, that we maye geue vs up, and take oure iourney, and lyue, and not dye, both we and thou, and oure childer. I wyl be suretye for him, of my handes: shalte thou requyre him. If I bringe him not vnto the agayne, I set him before thine eyes, I wyl beare y^e blame my life longe. For if we had not made this carryinge, we had now bene come agayne euerye.

Then sayde Israel their father vnto thes: If I must neede kee so, then doch y^e: take of the best frutes of the lande in youre sackes, and bringe the man a present: a caretye balsme, and hony, and spycce, and myrr, and dates, and almondes. Take other moncy with you also, and the money that was broughte agayne in youre sackes meates, carrye it agayne with you: peraduenture it was an ouersight. And take youre brother, getten up, and go agayne vnto the man. The Almightye God geue you mercy in the sight of y^e man, that he maye let you haue youre other brother, and Ben Jamin. So for me, I must be as one, that is robbed of his children.

Then they toke the p^{ro}uisur, and other money with them, and Ben Jamin, gat the up, and wente in to Egipte, and stode before Joseph. Then Joseph behelde them with Ben Jamin, and sayde vnto the ruler of his house: Whinge these men in, and sleye, and make ready, for they shal byne with me at noon. And the man dyd as Joseph had him, and broughte the men in to Josephs house.

When they were broughte in to Josephs house: they were afrayed, and sayde: We are broughte hither because of the money, that came agayne in oure sackes: at the first, to paye a quarrell with vs, and to laye some charge to oure charge, and to take vs for bondes seruantes with oure Asses.

Therefore came they to y^e man, that was ruler of Ioseph house, and talked wth him 44 at the doore, and saide: Syr, we came dome at the first to bye foode, and whan we came in the Iune, and opened oure sackes, be-holde, every mans money was in his sack moorth moeth full weight: ther fore haue we broughte it with vs agayne, & haue broughte other money with vs also, to bye foode: but we can not tell, who put oure money in oure sackes.

He saide: Be content, feare you not, your God euen I God of youre fathers hath geuen y^e treasure in youre sackes, I had your money, and he broughte forth Simeon wth to them, and led them in to Iosephs house, and gaue them water to wash their feet, & gaue ther Aisse to remember.

¶ And they made readye y^e present, agaynst Ioseph came at noone: for they herde, y^e they shalde dye there. Then whan Ioseph men-te in to the house, they broughte him home y^e present that they had, and fell downe to the grounde before him. But he welcomed them carnosly, and sayde: Is youre father, (that olde man which ye tolde me of) in good health? Is he yet alue? They answered: Thy seruante oure father is in good health, and is yet alue. And they bowed them sel-ues, and fell downe before him.

¶ And he lift up his eyes, and sawe his brother Ben Jamin his mochers sonne, and sai-45 de: Is this youre youngest brother, that ye tolde me of? And he saide moore: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Ioseph made haile for the grounde of his feet was kyndled to warde his brother) and soughe how he might wepe, & wente in to his chamber, and wepte there.

¶ And whan he had washed his face, he wente out, and refrayned him self, and saide beset bed (on the table.) And they broughte wth him by him self, and wth to them by the silues, and to the Egipcians also that are wth them, by them silues. (For the Egipcians barre not eate bread wth the Ebrues, that is an abominacion vnto them.) And they were set out agaynst him, the first borne ac-cordinge to his first byrth, and the youngest after his youth. They maraile at it amonge them silues, and there were broughte them sundrye meates from his table. But Ben Jamins parte was frue tymes more then the other. And they dyonke, and were merry wth him.

¶ The XLIII. Chapter.
 ¶ And Ioseph commaunded the ruler of his house, and saide: I will charge sackes wth foode, as much as they maye carye, and put every mans money in his sacke moeth, & put my siluer cuppe in the sack moeth of the youngest wth the money for y^e weyless. He dyd as Ioseph had saide. And on the morow whan it was daye, they let y^e men go wth their Aisse.

¶ But whan they were out of the cite, and not come farre, Ioseph saide to the ruler of his house: Up, and followe after the me, and whan thou overtakest them, say vnto them:
 Wherfore haue ye rewarded euill for good?
 Is not that it, that my lorde dyonke out of: and that he prophecith wth ball? It is euill done of you, that ye haue done.

¶ And whan he had overtake them, he saide the same wordes vnto them. They answered him: Wherfore sayest my lorde (sch me best: God forbid, that thy seruantes shalde do any such thinge: Beholde, the money that we soude in oure sackes moorth, that broughte us vnto the agayne, out of the lan-de of Canaan: how shulde we then haue stollen ether siluer or golde out of thy lorde house? A lorde by whom it shall be founde amonge thy seruantes, let him dye: yet and we also will be my lordes bondmen. He sayde: let it so be, as ye haue spoken. A lorde by whom it shall be founde, let him be my seruant, but ye shalde harmlesse.

¶ And they made haile, and fell downe eue-ry man his sack to the grounde, and every man opened his sack: And he searched y^e bagme at the greatest vnto the youngest, and the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then rente they their clothes, and every man laide the burthen upon his Aisse, & were agayne vnto the cite. And Iuda wente wth his brethren vnto Iosephs house (for he was there yet) and they fell before him on the groude. Ioseph saide vnto them: What maner of dede is this, that ye haue done?
 But me ye not, (that such a man as I am, can prophesy?)

¶ Iuda saide: What shall we saye vnto my lorde: or how shal we speake: and whate excuse shal we make? God hath founde oue y^e wickednesse of thy seruantes. Beholde, we are and he, by whom the cuppe is founde, are my lordes seruantes. But he saide: God forbid that I shulde do so. The man by whom the cuppe is founde, shall by my seruant, but ye ye up in peace vnto youre father.

¶ He kepte Iuda vnto him, and sayde:
 My lorde, let thy seruante speake one wo-de in thine eares my lorde, be not displeasid at b ij

¶ seruaunt also, for thou art cald as pharao. My lord asked his seruauntes, and sayde: How ys yet a father or brother? Then answered me: We haue a father, which is olde, and a yonge lad begotten in his age, and his brother is dead, & he is left alone of his mother, and his father loueth him.

D Then saydest thou: Dyringe him downe unto me, & I will se him. But we answered my lord: The lad can not come from his father, if he shoulde come from him, he were but a deeb man. Then saydest thou vnto thy seruauntes: If youre yongest brother come not hither with you, ye shall se my face nomore. Then wente we vp vnto thy seruaunt my father, and tolde him my lordes wordes. Then sayde our father: Go youre wayes agayne, and bye vs a litle soode. But we sayde: We can not go thome, excepte on re yongest brother be with vs, then will we go thome: for we darre not lode the man in the face, if our yongest brother be not with vs. Then sayde thy seruaunt my father vnto vs: Ye knowe that my wife bare me two sonnes, one wente out fro me, and I sayde: he is come in peeces. If ye take this fro me al so, and any mysfortune happi him, then shal ye bringe my gray heer with soome downe vnto the graue.

E If I now come home vnto my father, & the lad be not with me (seyng his soule hangeth by the soule of this) then shall it come to passe, that if he se not the lad there, he shal dye. So shal we thy seruauntes bringe the gray heer of thy seruaunt our father with soome downe to the graue. For I thy seruaunt became suretye for the lad vnto my father, and sayde: if I bringe him not agayne, I will beare the blame all my lyfe longe. Then sore les thy seruaunt byde here in steade of I lad, to be my lordes bondeman, and let the lad go vp with his brethren. For how can I go vp vnto my father, if the lad be not with me? Then shoulde I se the mysery that shoulde happen vnto my father.

The XLV. Chapeer.

F Then coude not Joseph refrayne him self before all them that stode aboute him: and he cumaunderd cury man to go out from him, and there stode no man by him, when Joseph weerd him self vnto his brethren. And he wepde longe, so that I Egipcians and pharaoes householdes herde it. And he sayde vnto his brethren: I am Joseph, is my father yet alyue? And his brethren coude not answer him, they were so awlded before his face. But he sayde: Come nye vnto me. And they came nye. And he sayde: I am Joseph youre brother: whom ye solde in to Egypce. And now wyte not youre felous, & thinke not I there is any wrath, because ye solde me hither: for God sent me hither before you, for y^e tymes sake. For these are now two yeres, that I bredd hath bene in the lande, and there are yet fyve yeres behynde, wherein there shalbe no plowing ne haruest.

But God sent me hither before you, I he might let you remayne upon earth, and to save youre lyues by a greete dyscreacion. And now, it was not ye then that sent me hither, but God which hath made me a father vnto pharao, & lode ouer all his house, and a prync in the whole lande of Egypce. Hast you therfore, and go vp vnto my father, and saye vnto him: Thy sonne Joseph sendeth the this word: God hath made me lord in all Egypce, come downe vnto me, as ye not, thou shalt dwell in the lande of Gosen, and be with me: thou and thy children, and thy childrens children, thy small and greete catell, and all that thou hast. There is yet I make prouision for thee: for there are yet fyve yeres of berch: that thou perishe not wth thine house, and all that is thine. Beholde, youre eyes and the eyes of my brother Ben Jamin se, that I myne owne self speake vnto you by mouth. The we my father all my manshipe in Egypce, and all that ye haue se: hast you, and come thome hither with my father.

And he fell aboute his brother Ben Jamins neck, and wepde, and Ben Jamin wepte vpon his neck also. And he kysed all his brethren, and wepde vpon them. And afterwards talked his brethren wth him. And this sydynge came in to pharaoes house: Iosephs brethren are come, which pleased pharao well, and all his seruauntes.

And pharao spake vnto Joseph: Saye vnto thy brethren: Do thus, lode youre best beets, go youre waye, and when ye come in to the lande of Canaan, take youre father and youre householdes, and come vnto me. I will geue you of the goodes in the lande of Egypce, so that ye shall eate the fatte in the lande. And he commaunded them, Do thus. Take you charrettes out of I lande of Egypce for youre children and wyues, and bringe youre father, and come, and regard not youre householdes stuff: for the goodes of all the lande of Egypce shalbe yours.

The children of Iisrad byd so, and Joseph gaue the charrettes accouryng to pharraue commanndement, and expensie by the waye, and gaue them all, vnto every one a chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Iamin he gaue the hundred silver pens, and fync chaunge of rayment. As for his father, he sent him ten Asses laden with goodes out of Egipt, and ten Asses with come and beere, and vntayles for his father by 3 wayes. So he fere awaye his brethren, and sayde vnto them: Serue not by the waye.

¶ Thus they departed out of Egipt, and came to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde him, and sayde: Thy soune Joseph is yet alyue, and is a lord in all the lande of Egipt. But his hert moued, for he beloued them not. The tolde they him all the wordes of Joseph, which he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe y charactres that Joseph had sent to sech him, his spere was such, & he sayde: I haue yough, and my soune Joseph is yet a liue I wil go, and se him, before I dye.

The XLvi. Chapter.

¶ Stral cote his iourney with all that he had. And when he came to Desfiba, he offered offeringes vnto y God of his father Isaac. And God spake vnto him in a vision by night: Jacob Jacob, he sayde where am I, and he saide, I am y mightie God of thy father, he not a frayd to go in to Egipt, for there wil I make a greates people of the, I will go downe with the, & wil bringe the vp also. And Joseph shal laye his hande vpon thine eyes.

¶ Then Jacob gaue him vp from Desfiba, and y children of Israel caried Jacob their father with their children and wyues vpon the charactres that Pharao had sent to cary him. And they toke their cattell & substance which they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and so came in to Egipt: Jacob & all his seide with him, his children & his childrens children with him, his daughters, and the daughters of his children, & all his seide.

¶ These are y names of the children of Israel, which came into Egipt, Jacob & his sonnes. The first borne sonne of Jacob: Ruben, the children of Ruben: Sionoth, Palsu, Hezon and Charim. The children of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jathim, Zohar and Saul the sennie of the Cananith woman. The child of Levi: Gerson, Cabath & Merari. The child of Iuda: Er, Onan, Sela, Phares & Sera h. But Er and Onan dyed in the lande of Canaan. The child of Phares: Hesson and Hamul. The children of Jisachar: Thola, Phua, Job & Semron. The children of Zabulon: Sered, Elon and Jabel. These are the children of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia with his daughter Dinah. These all together with sonnes & daughters make the x thine soules.

¶ The child of Rachel Jacobs wife: Joseph and Ben Jamin. And vnto Joseph in 3 lande of Egipt were borne Manasse and Ephraim, whom Asinath the daughter of Potaphar first of On bare vnto him. The children of Ben Jamin: Bela, Deber, Asber, Sera, Naama, Eli, Ros, Mupim, Gupim and Ard. These are the children of Rachel, which were borne vnto Jacob, fourtente soules altogether.

¶ And he sent Iuda before him vnto Joseph to shew him the waye to Gosen. Then Joseph bended his charactres, and wente vp to meete Israel his father vnto Gosen. And when he sawe him, he fell aboute his neck, & wept sore vpon his neck. Then sayde Israel vnto Joseph: How am I content to dye, for so much as I haue sene thy face, that thou art yet alyue.

¶ Joseph sayde vnto his brethren, & to his fathers house: I will go vp, & tell Pharao, & saye vnto him: My brethren and my fathers house are come vnto me out of the lande of Canaan, and are keepers of cattell (for they are men that deale with cattell): their small & greates cattell, and all that they haue, haue they brought with them. Now y Pharao call you, and saye: what is your occupation? then y shal saye: Thy seruantes are men 3 haue dealt w cattell from oure youth vp vnto this daye, & oure fathers, that y maye dwell in the lande of Gosen: for the Egipcians abhorre all Beeres of cattell.

The XLVII. Chapter.

When came Joseph, and tolde Pharao: My father and my brethren, their small & greates cattell, & all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan: & beholde, they are in the lande of Gosen. And he toke fyve of his brethren, & presented them vnto Pharao. Then sayde Pharao vnto his brethren: What is youre occupation? They answered: Thy seruantes are Beeres of cattell, we and our fathers also. And they sayde mouer vnto Pharao: We are come to dwell with you in the lande, for we haue no pasture for their cattell, so fore both the dertch oppresse the lande of Canaan. Now then let vs & seruantes dwell in the lande of Gosen.

When Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: Thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the lande of Egypt: is open before the, let them dwell in the best place of the lande, & let them dwell euen in the lande of Gosen. And if thou knowest that there be men of activity amonge the, make the rulers of my cattell.

Joseph boughte in Jacob his father also, & set him before Pharao. And Jacob thanked Pharao. And Pharao aske Jacob how olds art thou: Jacob sayde: The tyme of my pilgrimage is an hundred and thirtie yeres: like and cattell is the tyme of my pilgrimage, and atzaymeth not vnto the tyme of my fathers in their pilgrimage. And Jacob thanked Pharao, and wrote one from him.

C So Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, & gaue them a possession in the lande of Egypt, euen in the best place of the lande, namely, in the lande of Ramses, as Pharao commaunded. And he made provision for his father and his brethren, and all his fathers house with beere, euen as yonge children.

There was no beere in all the lande, for the dertch was very sore: so the lande of Egypt & the lande of Canaan were famished by reason of the dertch. And Joseph boughte together all the money that was founde in Egypt and Canaan, for y came that they boughte. And he layed up all the money in Pharaos house.

Now when money fayled in the lande of Egypt and Canaan, all the Egipcians came vnto Joseph, & sayde: We are dead, why suffrest thou vs to dye be fore? because we are without money. Joseph sayde: Bringe hithe your cattell, so will I geue you for your cattell, for ye are without money. Then broughte they their cattell vnto Joseph. And he gaue them beere for their horses, for oxen, and asses. So he fed them with beere the yere, for all their cattell.

When the yere was ended, they came vnto him the next yere, & sayde vnto him: We wil not hyde it frome the, for not onely the money, but all the cattell also is spent vnto of the: & there is no thinge left more for to leade, but onely of body & our lande. Wherefore suffrest thou both vs to dye, and our lande? Take vs and our lande for beere, that we and our lande maye be longe vnto Pharao: geue vs seld, that we maye lyue and not dye, & the lande becomee not a wilderness.

So Joseph toke all the lande of Egypt in for Pharao: for the Egipcians sold euery man his lande, because y dertch was so mightie vpon them: and so the lorde became Pharao, with the people that went out and in at his cities, from one syde of Egypt vnto the other, excepte the priestes lorde, that dyd he not in: for it was the ordent of Pharao for the priestes, that they shoulde eate that which was appoynted them, which he gaue them, therefore they neede not to sell their landes.

Then sayde Joseph vnto the people: Beholde, I haue taken possession of you and your lande this daye for Pharao. And ye, there haue ye seld, some the lande, and of the come ye shall geue the fifth parte vnto Pharao: foure partes shalbe yours, so some the lande for youre sustentance, and for youre houses and children.

They sayde: Let vs not lyue, & fynde grace before the our lorde, we wil gladly be Pharaos seruantes: So Joseph made the a lawe vnto this daye, euen the Egipcians lorde, to geue Pharao the fifth parte, excepte the priestes lorde, which was not longe vnto Pharao.

110114. c

So Israel dwelt in Egypt in the lande of Gosen, and had it in possession, and grew and multiplied exceedingly. And Jacob lived fourscore years in the lande of Egypt, so that his whole age was an hundred and seuen and forty years.

Now when the tyme came that Israel shoulde dye, he called Joseph his sonne, and sayde unto him: If I haue founde grace in thy sight, when laye thine honde vnder my eyes, & thou shalt shewe mercy and faithfulness vpon me, and not burye me in Egypt, but I will lye by my fathers, and thou shalt carrye me out of Egypt, & burye me in their buriall. He sayde: I will do as thou hast sayde. But he sayde: Then sweare vnto me. And he sweare vnto him. The Israel becometh himselfe to remember he be heade.

The XLVIII. Chapter.

After this it was tolde Joseph: Behold thy father is sicke. And he take with him his two sonnes Manasse and Ephraim. Then was it tolde Jacob: Behold, & sonne Joseph cometh vnto me. And Israel toke a courage vnto him, & sat vp vpon his bed, & sayde vnto Joseph: The Almightye God appeared vnto me at Luz in the lande of Canaan, & blessed me, & saide vnto me: Behold, I will cause thee to growe & increase, & will make a multitude of people of thee, & wilt gene this lande vnto thee after I for an everlasting possession. Therefore shalt thou burye thy two sonnes Manasse & Ephraim (which were borne vnto thee in Egypt, before I came hither vnto thee) by myne, like as Ruben & Simeon. As for those that thou begettst after thee, they shall be thine own. But these shall be named with the names of their brethren in their inheritance.

And when I came out of Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed by me in the lande of Canaan, by the waye, when there was yet but a seldome hilde vnto me: and I buried her in the waye to come to Ephraim, which now is called Bethlem.

And Israel looked vpon Josephs sonnes, & sayde: What are these? Joseph answered: They are my sonnes, which God hath giuen me here. He sayde: Whynge thou hither to me, & I maye bless thee. (For Israels eyes were heavy for age, & he coude not well see.) And he brought them vnto him. So he kissed them, & embraced them: & liued vnto Joseph: Behold, I haue seene my face, which I thoughte not: & lo, God hath caused me to see thy face also. And Joseph toke them vnto his lappe, and they fell downe to the grounde vpon their face.

And Israel saide vnto Joseph: Behold, I dye, & God shall be with you, & bringe you againe vnto the lande of your fathers. I haue giuen thee a peece of lande, without thee & thyne, which I gat with my sworde, and my bowe out of the hande of the Amorites.

The XLIX. Chapter.

And Jacob called his sonnes, & sayde: Gather you, & I will tell you, what shall happen vnto you in your last tyme: Come together, and heare ye childre of Jacob: then vnto Israel youre father.

And his first sonne, thou art my power, and the beginninge of my strength, thou shalt be in government, & thou shalt be in anecke. Thou shalt passe forth safelye as a water. Thou shalt not be the chiefe. For thou hast dynned vpon thy fathers bed, & thou shalt be the best thou my couch with goinge vp.

Symeon and Levi brethren, their deadlye weapons are perous instruments. In to their secretes come not my soule, and my worshippe be not ioynd with their canger: man, for in their wrath they slew a gation, & in their fury they brought an opt. Consider their wrath, because to is so feare, and their indignacion, because it is so rigorous. I will deuide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Iſrael.

mouryngs shall he deuoure the praye, but in the ennyngs he shall carye the spoyle.

All these are the euoiles crybes of Iſrael, and this is it that their father spake vnto them, when he blessed them, eery one with a sundrye blessinge.

And he commanded them, and sayde vnto them: I shall be gathered vnto my people, & burye me with my fathers in y cane, which is in the felde of Ephon the heretice, in the bubble care that lych ouer against Mamre in y lande of Canaa, which Abrah boughte with the felde, of Ephon the heretice for a possession to burye in. There buryed they Iacob & Sara his wife, there buryed they Isaac also & Rebecca his wife: their buries I Lea, in the good of the felde & of the cane cherin, which was boughte of the heretices.

And when Iacob had ended this commandement vnto his children, he plucke his feet together vpon the bed, and bed, and was gathered vnto his people. The full Joseph vpon his fathers face, and weeped, and kysed him.

AND Ioseph cōmāth w his seruantes y y phisicians, to embawme his father. And the phisicians embawmed Iſrael, vntill fouretye dayes were ended (for so long ge endured the dayes of embawminge: & the Iſtigiames bewayled him fouentye dayes.

Now when the mouryngs dayes were ended, Joseph spake vnto Pharaos houthebe, & sayde: If I haue founde faub in your sight, theſe speake vnto Pharaos and saie: My father hath taken an ooch of me, & sayde: He holde, I dye, burye me in myne owne graue, which I bygged for myself in the lade of Canaan. Therfore wil I now go vp, and burye my father, and come agayne. Pharaos saide: So chy waye vp, and burye thy father, acco dinge as thou hast swome vnto him.

B So Joseph wte vp, to burye his father. And there wte w him all Pharaos seruantes y were the elders of his courte, and all y elders of the lande of Egypte, & all Josephs housholde, and his brethren, and his fathers housholde. Ondy their children, theye & oren leſt they in y lade of Eosten, & toke their iourney vp with him, vps charrettes and bestes, and the company was exceedinge greate.

Now when these came to the playne of Atrad y lych beynde Jordan, theye made there a very greate and byter lamentacion, & he mourned for his father soue dayes. And wth the people in the lande (the Canaanites) same the mouryngs in the playne of Atrad.

they sayde: The Egipcians make there great lamentacion. Therfore is the place called: The lamentacion of the Egipcians, which heere be yonde Jordan.

¹⁵ But Josephs brether were astraied, whā their father was dead, and sayde: Joseph might happily haue indignacion at vs, and recompense vs all the euill that we dyd unto him, therfore let they saye vnto him: Thy father commaunded before his death, and sayde: Thus shal ye saye vnto Joseph: O thou gent thy brethren the offence and their synne, that they dyd so euill vnto the. O forgiue now this trespass of vs the seruantes of thy fathers God. But Joseph wepte, whan they spake so vnto him.

And his brethren wene, and fell downe before him, and sayde: Beholde, here are we thy seruantes. Joseph sayde vnto thei: Fear ye not, for I am vnder God. Ye thought euill ouer me, but God hath turned it vnto good, to do as it is come to passe this daye, for the sauyng of much people. Therfore be not ye now astraied, I wyl care for you and youre children. And he comforted them, and spake sayngly vnto them.

Thus dwelt Joseph in Egipce with his fathers house, and luyed an hundred and ten yere, and saue Egypcians children, vnto 3 thirde generacion: In like maner the dutie of Machir the sonne of Manasse, begat children also vpon Josephs lappe.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: I dye, and God wyl vsee you, and bringe you out of this lande, to the lande that he swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Therfore take he an ooth of the childre of Israel, and sayde: Whan God shal

The first Chapter.

These are the names of the children of Israel, that came with Jacob into Egypt: every one came in at his house, Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Issachar, Zabulon, Benjamin, Dan, Ephraim, Gad and Aser. And of all the souls that came out of the loynes of Jacob, there were seuen tie.

As for Joseph, he was in Egypt all ready. Now when Joseph was dead, and all his brethren, and all they that lyued at that tyme, the children of Israel grew, and increased, and multiplied, and became exceeding mightie, so that the land was full of them.

The cause where a new kynge ouer Egypt, which knewe nothinge of Joseph, and sayde vnto his people: Scholde, the people of the children of Israel are many, & mightier then we: Vp, let vs deale wylly with them, & there be not so many of them. For if there shalde rise vp any warre agaynst vs, they mighte ioyne them selues also vnto our enemies, and ouercome vs, so get them out of the lande.

And he set workes masters ouer them, to keep them vnder with burthens. (For they kept the cities Pithon and Raamses, for mansions vnto Pharaos.) But the more they were, the more they multiplied and grew.

Therefore had they indignacion at the children of Israel, and the Egyptians compelled the children of Israel without mercy to do seruaice, and made their ioyes bytter vnto them with greuous labours in claye and layst, and with all manner of bondage in the fildes, and with all manner of laboure, which they layed vpon them without mercy.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Hebrew women. (Of the which one was called Siphis, and the other Pua:) When ye helpe the women of the Hebrews, and se vpon the stole, that it is a sonne, then slay him: but if it be a daughter, let her lyue. Wherefore the mydwyues feared God, & dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them, but let the children lyue.

Then the kynge of Egypte called the mydwyues, and sayde vnto them: What ye do herin, that ye let the children lyue? The mydwyues answered Pharaos: The women of the Hebrews are not as the women of Egypte, for they are sturdy women: as can the mydwyues come at them, they are belyuered.

Therefore God dealt well with the mydwyues. And the people multiplied, and became exceeding mightie. And so for much as the mydwyues feared God, he made them houses. Then Pharaos commaunded all his people and sayde: All the sonnes that are borne, cast in to the water, but let all the daughters lyue.

The ii. Chapter.

And there went forth a man of the house of Levi, and toke a daughter of Levi. And the wife conceived and bare a sonne. And when she sawe that it was a proper child, she hid him thre monethes. And when she coude hyde him no longer, she toke an Arke of reedes, and daubed it ouer with slime and pitch, and layed the child therein, and set it amonge the reedes by the waters brynke. But his sister stode a fars off, to seee what woulde come of him.

And Pharaos daughter came downe, to wish herself in the water: and hir mayden walked by the water syde: and when she sawe the Arke amonge the reedes, she sent one of hir maydens, and caused it to be fet. And when she opened it, she sawe that it was a boye: and beholde the babe wepte. Then had she pitye vpon it, and sayde: This one of the Hebrews children.

Then sayde his sister vnto Pharaos daughter: Shall I go, and call the nurse of the Hebrew women, to nurse the child? Pharaos daughter sayde vnto her: So thy maye. The mayde wente, and called the childes mother. Then sayde Pharaos daughter vnto her: Take this child, and nurse it for me, I will geue thee thy reward. The woman toke the child, and nursed it.

And when the child was growne, she broughte it vnto Pharaos daughter, and it became his sonne, and she called him Mosco. So she sayde: I toke him out of the water.

Vpon a tyme when Mosco was greare, he wente forth vnto his brethren, and looked vpon their burthens, and sawe, that an Egyptian smote one of his brethren, a Hebrew. And he looked rounde aboute him: and when he sawe that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and buried him in the fildes.

The next daye he wente forth also, and sawe two men of the Hebrews stry-

Moſes ſeepe the ſhepe of Jerhis his father in lane part of Madian, and drew the ſhepe on the backe ſyde of the wyldernes, and came to the mountayns of God, Horb. And the angell of the LORD appeared vnto him in a flame of fyre out of the buſh. And he ſaw that the buſh burne w fyre, and yet was not conſumed, and ſaide: I will go hence, and ſe this great ſight, why the buſh is not burne.

100. 1. 1

When the LORD ſawe, that he wente his waye to ſe, God called vnto him out of the buſh, and ſayde: Moſes, Moſes. He anſwered: Here am I. He ſayde: Come not hither, put thy ſhoes of chy feet, for the place thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moſes covered his face, for he was afrayed to ſee vpon God.

And the LORD ſayde: I haue ſene the trouble of my people in Egypce: and haue heard their crye ouer thoſe that oppreſſe them.
I knowe their ſorrowe, and am come downe to deliuer them from the power of the Egipcians, and to carrye them out of the lande in to a good and wyde lande, euen in to a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, namely vnto the place of the Canaanites, the Chitizes, Amouites, Pherezites, Heuites, the Iebuzites, for ſo much now as the complaine of the children of Iſrael is come before me, I haue ſene their oppreſſion wherewith the Egipcians oppreſſe them: So now I wote therefore, I will ſende the vnto Pharaos, that thou mayeſt bringe my people the childre of Iſrael out of Egypce. Moſes ſayde vnto God: Who am I, that I ſhoulde go vnto Pharaos, and bringe the children of Iſrael out of Egypce:

He ſayde: I will be with thee: this ſhall be the token, that I haue ſent thee. When thou haſt brought my people out of Egypce, thou ſhalt ſee God vpon the mountayne. Moſes ſayde vnto God: Beholde, when I come to the childre of Iſrael, and ſaye vnto them:
The God of your fathers hath ſent me vnto you, and they ſaye vnto me: What is his name: what ſhal I ſaye vnto them: God ſaide vnto Moſes: I will ſhew what I will be. And he ſayde: Thus ſhalt thou ſaye vnto the children of Iſrael: I will be hath ſent me vnto you. And God ſayde moouer vnto Moſes: Thus ſhalt thou ſaye vnto the children of Iſrael: The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, the God of Jacob hath ſent me vnto you. this is my name for euer, and my memoriall from childe to childre childe. So thy waye therfore, and gather the elders of Iſrael to-ther, and ſaye vnto them: The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto me, and ſayde: I haue viſited you, and ſene what is done vnto you in Egypce, and haue ſayde: I will bringe you out of the trouble of Egypce, in to a lande of Canaanites, Heuites, Amouites, Pherezites, Heuites: Iebuzites: in to a lande that floweth with mylke and hony. And if they heare the voyce, then ſhalt thou and the elders of Iſ-rael go in to the kynge of Egypce, and ſaye unto him: The LORD God of the Hebrews hath called us: And we go now therefore thy way journey in the wilderness, & we maye sacrifice vnto the LORD our God.

But I knowe, that the King of Egypte wil not let us go, but thou art a mighty hēd. For I will stretch out myne hande, & smyte the Egypte wth all manner of wonders which I will do them: after that thou shalt see me. And I will geue this people fauoure in the sight of the Egyptians: so that when ye go forth, ye shall not go forth empty: but euery wōf shall borrowe of hir neighbour: & of hir char. so that they shall not haue any thinge of silver and of golde, and of rayment: those shall ye put vpon your sonnes and daughters, and vpon the Egyptians.

The .iii. Chapter.

Moses answered, & sayde: Beholde, they shall not beleue me, nor heare my voyce, but shall saye: The LORD hath not appeared vnto the. The LORD sayde vnto him: What is that thou hast in thine hande? He said a staffe. He sayde: Cast it from the vpon the grounde. And he cast it from him: then was it turned to a serpent. And Moses fled from it. But the LORD saide vnto him: Stretch forth thine hande, & take it by the tayle. Then stretched he forth his hande, and took it, and it became a staffe agayne in his hande. Therefore shall they beleue that the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, & the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the LORD sayde furthermore vnto him: Thust thine hande in to thy bosome. And he thrust it in to his bosome, & toke it out: beholde, the was it leper like snowe. And he put it agayne in to his bosome, & toke it out: beholde, the was it turned againe as his flesh. If they wil not beleue thee, nor heare thy voyce of the first token, yet shall they beleue the voyce of the seconde token. But if they wil not beleue these two tokens, nor heare thy voyce, then take of the water of the ryuer, and poure it vpon the drye londe: so shall the same auer & thou hast take out of thy ryuer, he turned vnto bloude vps to drye londe.

And Moses sayde vnto the LORD: Oh my LORD, I am a man of no eloquence, from yester daye to yesterdaye, & since the tyme that thou hast spokē vnto thy seruants: for I haue a slowe speach, & a slowe tongue. The LORD sayde vnto him: Who hath made the mouth of man? Or who hath made the deeme, or the beaſt, or the serpynt, or the blinde? haue not I the LORD done it: So now thy waye therefore, I will be wth thy mouth, & teach the what thou shalt saye.

But Moses sayde: My LORD, sende whom thou wilt sende. Then was the LORD very angrye wth Moses, and saide: Doe not I knowe thee, & thy brother Aaron the Leuite is well spoken. And beholde, he shall go forth to mee: & when he seeth the, he shall reioyce from his heart. Thou shalt speake m to him, & put the wordes in his mouth: & I will be wth thy mouth & his, and teach you what ye shall doo: he shall speake vnto the people for the: & he shall be thy mouth, & thou shalt be his God. And take in thine hande this staffe, wherewith thou shalt dookene.

Moses went, and came agayne vnto Iehouah his father in lawe, and sayde vnto him: See me go (I praye the) that I maye turne agayne vnto my brether, which are in Egypte, and se whether they be yet alive. Iehouah sayde vnto him: So thy waye in peace. The LORD sayde also vnto him in Midian: Whi waye, turne agayne in to Egypte, for I am dead, that I soughte a sterther life. So Moses toke his wife, and his sonnes, and caried them vpon an Asse, & wente agayne in to the lande of Egypte, & toke the staffe of God in his hande. And the LORD esauē vnto Moses: When thou comest agayne in to Egypte, teſtify thou do all the wonders (before Pharaon) which I haue put in thy hande. But I will harden his heart, & he shall not see the people go. And thou shalt saie vnto Pharaon: Thus sayeth the LORD: Israel is my firstborne sonne, & I saye vnto the: Let my sonne go, & he maye serue me: If thou wilt not let him go, then will I slay thy firstborne sonne.

And as he was by the waye in the Ime, the LORD met him, and wolde haue slayne him. Then toke Moses a stone, and circumcised the foreskynne of his sonne, and touched his fixe, and sayde: A bloody byrgrome art thou vnto me. The let be him go. But she sayde: A bloody byrgrome, because of the circumcision.

And the LORD sayde vnto Aaron: Go meet Moses in the wilderness. And he went, & met him on the mount of God, and kyssed him. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the LORD, which had bene hūnt: all the tokens & he had charged him withall. And they went, & gathered all the elders of the chylde of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes, & the LORD had spokē vnto Moses: & by the tokens before the people, & the people beleued. And when they herde & the LORDE visited the children of Israel, and loke upon their cruell, they bowed them selves, and worshipped.

The V. Chapter.

Afterward wrote Moses & Aaron, & spake unto Pharao: Thus saith the LORD the God of Israel: let my people go, & they may kepe holy daye unto me in the wilderness. Pharao answered: What sileme is the LORD, that I must heare his voyce, and let Israel go? I knowe not the LORD, neither wil I let Israel go.

They saye: The God of the Hebrews hath called vs. Let vs go now therefore thus daye to morrowe in the wilderness, & do sacrifice unto the LORD God, & there happen not unto vs pestilence or sword. The saye: y Kinge of Egypce unto the: Why make ye y people (that Moses & Aaron) to leaue their worke? For you be ce to y labour. Pharao saide mooung: Beholde, y people are to many in y lande, and yet wil ye bde them cease from their labour.

B The same daye therof byd Pharao commaunde the workmasters of the people, and their officers, and saye: Ye shall not gather and geue the people any more strawe, to ture the byde, as yesterdaye and yesterdaye. Let them go, and gather them strawe the m silnes. And the nombre of the byde which they make yesterdaye & yesterdaye, shall ye laye upon them neuertheles, and mynish nothinge therof: for they are ydle. Therfore crye they and saye: We wil go, and do sacrifice unto our God. Let the men be keppe doune w labour, & they maye haue to do, & not to turne them silnes to false wrodes.

Then wrote the workmasters of the people & their officers one, & spake unto the people: Thus saith Pharao: There shall no strawe be geuen you, go your waye your silnes, and geue you strawe, where ye can fynde it. Woe of youre labo: there shall nothinge be mynished. Then were the people scattered in all y lande of Egypce, to gather stubble, that the ymge haue strawe.

C And the workmasters chastised them forward, & saye: Fullill yd daye worke, like as when ye had strawe. And the officers of y children of Israel, whom Pharaos workmasters had set ouer them, were beaten, & it was saide unto them: Wherefore haue ye not fulfilled yd appointed daye worke to daye and yesterdaye, like as in tymes past?

Then were the officers of the children of Israel, & displayed unto Pharao: Wherefore wil thou deale thus w thy seruantes?

Thy seruantes haue no strawe geuen the, & yett must we make the byde: that are appointed vs. And beholde, thy seruantes are beaten, & thy people are euill increased. Pharao saye: Ye are ydle, ydle are ye, therefore saye ye: we wil go, and do sacrifice unto the LORD. So now ye wse therfore, & woude there shall no strawe be geuen you, but the nombre of byde shall ye deliuer.

Then saue the officers of the children of Israel, & it was not amended, for it was saide byde shall mynish nothinge of the daye worke of the byde. And when Moses & Aaron wente from Pharao, they came forth to meete them, & saue unto them: The LORD I telle upon you, & iudge it, for ye haue made the sinoure of vs to synke before Pharao and his seruantes, and haue geuen them a swerte in their hande, to slay vs.

But Moses came agayne unto the LORD, and sayde: LORD, wherefore dealest thou so euill w this people? Wherefore hast thou sent me: for since the tyme that I wente in unto Pharao, to speake unto him in thy name, he hath dealt euill with this people, and thou hast not deliuered y people. The LORD saye unto Moses: I woude shalke thee, wher I will do unto Pharao, for thou art a mighty hande must belet them go, thou art a mighty hande must be dreye them from him out of his lande.

The VI. Chapter.

And God spake unto Moses, & saye: I wnto him: I am y LORD, & I appeared unto Abraham, Isaac & Jacob, an Almighty God: but my name, LORD, haue I not shewed unto them: My couenaunt also haue I made with them, that I wld geue them the lande of Canaan, the lande of their pilgrimage, wherein they haue bene strangers. Moreover I haue herbe the couenaunt of the children of Israel, whom y Egypciens oppresse with labour, and haue remembered my couenaunt.

Therefore saue unto the child of Israel: I am the LORD, & wil bringe you out from yd burthen in Egypce, & wil ryd you from your labour, and wil deliuer you thowom a stretcht out arme & greute indignite, and wil reaceue you for my people, & wil be yd God: so that ye shall haue, that I the LORD am yd God, which bringe you out from the burthen of Egypce, and wil bringe you in to the lande, over the which I haue lift up my hande, to geue it unto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, & same wil I geue unto you for a possession. I the LORD.

B Moyses tolde this vnto the childre of Israel. But they perteked not vnto him, for ve ry angry wth spere, & for sore labour. The spak: the LORDE vnto Moyses, & sayde: Go thy way, & speake vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egipte, & let the childre of Israel go out of his lande. But Moyses spak: before y LORDE, & saide: Beholde, y childre of Israel heare not vnto me, how shaloe Pharaos the heare me: And J am also of vnto camatid lippen.

So the LORDE spak vnto Moyses & Aaron, & gaue the a commaundemet vnto the childre of Israel, & vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egipte, & they shaloe bringe the childre of Israel out of Egipte.

b These are y heades of the house of their fathers. The children of Ruben the first sonne of Israel, are these: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, Charmi: These are the generacions of Ruben.

The children of Simeon are these: Jemuel, Jamin, Obad, Jachin, Zophar, and Santie some of the Canaanish woman: These are the generacions of Symeon.

c These are the names of the childre of Leui in their generacion: Gerson, Zabach and Metari: Leui was an hundred and seven & thirtie yeare olde. The children of Gerson are these: Libni and Semet in their generacions. The childre of Zabach are these: Amram, Jezear, Hebron, Usid. Zabach was an hundred & thre & thirtie yeare olde. The children of Metari are these: Mabeli and Misai. These are y generacions of Leui in their fynde.

l And Amram toke his wacles daughter Jochedel to wife, which bare him Aaron & Moyses. Amram was an C. & viij. & thirtie yeare olde. The childre of Jezear are these: Korah, Tephog, Sichri. The children of Usid are these: Misael, Elhaphan, Sithu.

Aaron toke Elisaba y daughter of Amiadab the Assonsa sisters to wife, which bare him Tabab, Abihu, Eleasar, Jehamar.

d The childre of Boiah are these: Assir, Elkana, & Abiasaph. These are y generacions of y Boiabites. Eleasar Barons some toke one of the daughters of Puriel to wife, which bare him Phineas. These are the heades amonge the fathers of the generacions of the Levites.

This is y Aaron & Moyses, vnto whom y LORDE sayde: bringe y childre of Israel out of the lande of Egipte & their amice. This is they, namely Moyses & Aaron y spake vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egipte, & they might bringe the children of Israel out of Egipte. The same base spake y LORDE vnto Moyses in y lande of Egipte: & sayde: Jam y LORDE, speake thou vnto Pharaos y kynge of Egipte, all y I saye vnto y. And he answered before y LORDE: Beholde, J am of vnto camatid lippen, how shall Pharaos the heare me: The VII. Chapter.

J The LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Beholde, J haue made the a God ouer Pharaos, & Aris y brother shal be y prophete. Thou shalt speake all y J comaunde y: but Aaron y brother shal speake vnto Pharaos, & he maye let the childre of Israel go out of his lande. Tenetheles J wil harden Pharaos heere, & J maye multiplye my toleues & worders in the sonde of Egipte. And Pharaos shal not heare you, & J maye shewe my hande in Egipte, & bringe my armys, euen my people the childre of Israel out of y lande of Egipte, by greate indignities. And y Egiptians shal knowe, & J am the LORDE, when J shal stretch out my hande vpon Egipte, and byunge the childre of of Israel out from amonge them.

Moyses and Aaron byd as the LORDE commaunded them. And Moyses was foure score yeate olde, & Aaron the thre score yeate olde, when they spake vnto Pharaos. And y LORDE sayde vnto Moyses & Aaron: When Pharaos stretch vnto you: Shew youre wordes, then shall thou saye vnto Aaron: Take thy staff, and cast it before Pharaos, & it shal turne to a serpen.

Then wate Moyses & Aaron in vnto Pharaos, & byd as the LORDE commaunded them. And Aaron cast his staff before Pharaos & befor his seruantes, & it turned to a serper. Then Pharaos called for y wyse men & Soocerers. And the Soocerers of Egipte also byd like wyse with their Soocerers, and euery one cast his staff before him, & they turned vnto serpentes. But Aarons staff denoared their flames. So Pharaos heere was hardenod, and he perteked not vnto them, euen as the LORDE had sayde.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: The heere of Pharaos is hardenod, here suffich to let y people go. Get y vnto Pharaos in the morninge, beholde, he shal come vnto y: & thou, meete thou him vnto the waters bynne, & take y staff which turned to a serper, in thine hande, & saye vnto him: The LORDE God of the hebreus hath sent me vnto the, & sende y wordes: Let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wyldernes: but he hath sayde to thee thou woldest not heare.

Therefore thou ſayest the LORDES hereby shall thou knowe, I am I LORDE. Behold he. wh the staff I haue in my hande, and I turne the water which is in y ryuer, it shall be turned in to bloude: so that the fishes in the ryuer shall dye, & the ryuer shall dryne: & it shall greeue the Egipcians to drynte of y water of the ryuer.

D And I LORDE spake vnto Moſes: Saye vnto Aaron: Take y staff, & stretch out thine hande ouer y waters of Egypce, ouer their ryuers, & brookes, & ponde, & ouer all water pokes, & they maye be turned to bloude, & that there maye be bloude in all y lande of Egypce, both in vessels of wydd and stone.

Psal. 77. 2 Moſes & Aaron byd as y LORDE commaunded them, & lift vp the staff, & smote the water y was in the ryuer, before Pharaos his seruantes, & all the water in the ryuer was turned in to bloude, & the fishes in the ryuer dyed, & the ryuer stank, so y the Egipcians coulde not drynte of the water of y ryuer, & there was bloude in all the lande of Egypce. And the Soeciers also of Egypce, byd likewise with their Soeciers. But Pharaos hert was hardened, & he hardened not mysrthe: like as the LORDE had sayde. And Pharaos turned him self, & wente home, & set not his hert there on. All the Egipcians bygged routes abouze y ryuer, for water to drynte: for they coulde not drynte of y water out of the ryuer. And this endured seven dayes longe, thas the LORDE smote the ryuer.

The VIII. Chapter.

D The LORDE sayde vnto Moſes: Go y waye to Pharaos, & speake vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE: Let my people go, & they maye serue me: If thou wilt not let the go, beholde, I will smyte all y borders of y lde w frogges, so y the ryuer shall scumle w frogges: thei shall scymme vp, & come in to thine house, in to y chamber, where thou slepest, vpon thy bed, and in to the bouise of thy seruantes, amonge thy people, in to thine oens, and vpon thy dowre: and the frogges shall come vp vpon the, and vpon thy people, and vpon all thy seruantes.

Psal. 77. 2 and 104. 4 And the LORDE spake vnto Moſes: Saye vnto Aaron: Stretch forth thine hande w thy staffe ouer the streames, & ryuers, & ponde, and let frogges come vpon the londe of Egypce. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the waters in Egypce, & there came vp frogges, so y the londe of Egypce was couered.

The Soeciers also byd likewise, w their Soeciers, & caused frogges to come vpo y lde of Egypce. The called Pharaos for Mo ses & Aaron, & sayde: Pooe the LORDE ste me, & he maye take awaye the frogges fro me, & fro my people, & I will let y people go, & they maye do sacrificies vnto the LORDE.

Moſes sayde: Hane thou the bowe before me, & appoynt me, whs I shall poye the y, for y seruantes and for thy people: y the frogges maye be bysun awaye fro the, & fro thy house, & remayne only in the ryuer. He sayde: Como to me. He sayde: Let us as thou hast sayde, & thou mayest knowe, & there is none like vnto the LORDE of God: And the frogges shall be take from the, & from y house, from thy seruantes, & from thy people, & remayne onely in the ryuer.

So Moſes & Aaron wente from Pharaos, & Moſes cried vnto the LORDE for the appoyntment ouer the frogges, which he had promysed vnto Pharaos. And y LORDE byd as Moſes sayde. And the frogges byd in y houses, in y courtes, & vpon y felow: & they gathered the to gether, here an heape, & there an heape, & the lande stank of them. But when Pharaos sawe y he had gotten lenth, his hert was hardened, and he hardened not vnto the, euen as the LORDE had sayde.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moſes: Saye vnto Aaron: Stretch out thy staff, & smyte the dust vpon the earth, & there maye be luse in the whole lde of Egypce. They byd so. And Aaron stretched out his hande w his staff, & smote the dust vpon the earth, & there were luse vpon men and vpon cattell: All the dust of the lande was turned vnto luse in all the lande of Egypce.

The Soeciers also assayed likewise w their Soeciers, & they mighte be yuge souly luse, but they coulde not. And y luse were vpon men & cattell. Then sayde y Soeciers vnto Pharaos: It is the synger of God. But Pharaos hert was hardened, & he hardened not vnto the, euen as the LORDE had sayde.

And y LORDE saide vnto Moſes: Get y vp como to me by ryuo, & stonde before Pharaos beholde, he wil go vnto the water, & speake thou vnto him: Thus saith y LORDE: Let my people go, & they maye serue me: yf not, beholde, I will cause cruell women (or sytes) to come vpon the, thy seruantes, & people, & thy house, so y all the Egipcians hence, & the sile, and w hat thereon shall be full of cruell women: & the same daye wil I separate the londe of Gosen, wherin my people are, so y no cruell woman shalbe there, & that thou mayest knowe, that I am y LORDE in the myddest of the earth. And I will se a be syte: yntance betwene my people and thyne.

Comerow shal this token come to passe.
And the LORDE byd so. And there came perilous cruell toornes in to Pharaos house, in to his seruantes houses, & upon all the londe of Egipt: and the londe was marred with nyseme wounes.

S The called Pharaos for Moses & Aaron, & sayde: So yd maye, & do sacrifice unto yd God in yd londe. Moses sayde: It is not mee, y shulde so do, so shulde we offer y ab hominacion of y Egiptians unto the LOR DE of God. Beholde, yf we shulde offer the abominacion of y Egiptians before their eyes, shulde they not stone vs: This dayes toornes y will we go in the wyldernes, and do sacrifice unto the LORDE our God: like as he hath sayde unto vs.

Pharaos sayde: I will let you go, yf ye wille do sacrifice unto the LORDE yd God in the wyldernes: onely y ye go no farther: y paye y some. Moses sayde: Beholde, when I am come forth from y, I will paye unto y LOR DE, y the cruell wounes maye be taken from Pharaos, & from his seruantes, & fro his peo ple, euen comow: onely because me non o r, that thou wouldest not let the people go to do sacrifice unto the LORDE.

And Moses wote our from Pharaos, and payed unto the LORDE. And the LORDE byd as Moses sayde, & toke awaye the cruell wounes from Pharaos, from his seruantes, and from his people, so y there remained not one. But Pharaos hardened his hert: eue then also, and let not y people go.

The IX. Chapter.

The LORDE sayde unto Moses: Go in to Pharaos, and speake unto him Thus sayeth the LORDE God of y Ishuaes: let my people go, y they maye ser uise me. If thou wille noe, but holde them lon ger, beholde, the hande of the LORDE shal be vpon thy cattell in the felde, vpon horses, vpon asses, vpon Camels, vpon oxen, vpon sheep: with a very grete pestilence. And y LOR DE shall make a diuision betwene the cattell of the Ishuaes & the Egiptians, so y there shal nothinge dye of all that the children of Israel haue. And y LORDE appoynted a tyme, and sayde: Comerow shal the LOR DE do this vpon earth.

2 And the LORDE byd the same on the mo re. And there dyed of all manner of cattell of the Egiptians: but of y cattell of y chil dre of Israel there dyed noe one. And pha raos smt there y, beholde, there was noe one of the cattell of Israel dead. But Pharaos hert was hardened, so y he let not y people go. Then sayde y LORDE vnto Moses & Aa ron: Take youre handes full of ashes out of the furnace, & let Moses sprenke it toward the heauen before Pharaos, that it maye be dust in all the lande of Egipte, & that there maye be sores: & blaynes vpon men & vpon cattell in all the lande of Egipte.

And they toke ashes out of y furnace, & stode before Pharaos, & Moses sprenked it toward the heauē. Then were there sores and blaynes vpon men & vpon cattell, so that the Soiccers might not stode before Moses by reason of the sores. For there were sores vpo the Soiccers as well as vpon all the Egipt ians. But the LORDE hardened Pharaos hert, so that he hardened not vnto them, eue as the LORDE had sayde vnto Moses.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: Set the vp comerow by tyme, & stonde before Pharaos, & speake vnto him: Thus sayeth y LORDE God of the Ishuaes: let my people go, y they maye seruis me, els will I: at this tyme sende all my plagis in to thine hert, & vpon thy seruantes & vpon thy people: that thou mayest knowe, y there is none like me in all londe. For I will now stretch out my hande, & smyte the thy people w pestilence, so y thou shalt be reued out from the earth.
Yet haue I stered y vp for this cause, euen to shew my power vpon y, and that my na me might be declared in all londe.

Thou holdest my people yet, & wille noe let them go, beholde, comerow aboute this ty me will I cause a mightie greate hayle to rayme, such as hath not bene in the londe of Egipte, since the tyme that it was groundeb, hitherto. And now sende thou, & take thy ca tell, & all y thou hast in the felde: for all men & cattell that shal be founde in the felde, & noe broughte in to the houses, yf the hayle fall vpon them, they shall dye. Tlow wbo so fra red the worde of the LORDE amonge pha raos seruantes, causid his seruantes & ca tell to stye in to the houses: but lose wbo hertes regarded not the worde of y LORDE, left their seruantes and cattell in the felde.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: Stretch out thy hande toward the heauē, that it maye hayle vpon all the lande of Egipte, vpon men, vpon cattell, & vpon all herbes of the felde in the lande of Egipte. So Moses stretched out his staff toward the heauen, and the LORDE causid it to thonder & hayle, so y the fyre rann: alonge vpon the earth. Thus the LORDE hayled & rayned vpon the londe of Egipte, so that the hayle & fyre wente so heauily together, as neuer was in all the lū be of Egipt, sine the tyme that there were people therein. And the hayle smote the whole lande of Egipt, all that was upon y^e felde, both man z cattell, z smote all the herbes upon the felde, z brake all the trees upon y^e felde, sine onely in the lande of Gosen, where the childre of Israell were, there it hayled not. Then sate Pharaon z called for Moses z Aaron, z sayde vnto them: Trow haue I synned, y^e LORDE is righteous, but I z my people are vngodly. Yet praye vnto the LORDE, that the thonder z hayle of God may cease, then wyl I let you go, that ye shal cease here no longer. Moses sayde vnto him: When I am come out of the cite, I wyl stretch out myne handes vnto the LORDE, so shal the thonder cease, z there shal be nomore hayle: that thou mayest knowe, that the earth is the LORDES. But I knowe, y^e both thou z thy seruantes feare not ye LORDE God. Thus the slay and the barlye were synned: for the barlye was shod up, z y^e slay was donned: but the wheate and y^e rye were not synned, for they were late sowne.

So Moses wente from Pharaon out of y^e cite, z stretched out his handes vnto y^e LORDE. And y^e thonder z the hayle ceased, z the raine drowped not vpon the earth. But whan Pharaon sawe y^e the raine z thonder z hayle ceased, he synned agayne, and hardened his hart, he z his seruantes. So Pharaon hart was hardened, y^e he let not the childre of Israell go, eue as the LORDE had sayde by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

WHEN the LORDE saide vnto Moses: Go in vnto Pharaon, for I haue hardened his hart z the hartes of his seruantes, y^e I might do these my tokens amonge the, z that thou mightest shewe it in the eares of the childre of Egipt, and how I haue hardened my tokens amonge the, that ye maye knowe, how that I am the LORDE.

So Moses z Aaron wente in vnto Pharaon, z spake vnto him: Thus saith y^e LORDE God of the Egiptians: How longe refusest thou to submit thy self vnto me, so let my people go, y^e they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let my people go, beholde, cometo me wyl I caufe greschoppers to come vpon all places, y^e they maye cover the lande, so y^e the lande can not be seen, z they shal eate up y^e residue of y^e residue of the hayle: z shal eate up all y^e grene vices vpon the felde, z shal fill thy house, all y^e seruantes house, z all the Egiptians houses: such as y^e fathers z y^e fathers fathers haue not seen, sine the tyme y^e they were vpon earth vnto this daye. And he turned him, z wente out from Pharaon. Then saide Pharaon seruantes vnto him: How longe shall we be feared a fere this manner? Let the men go, that they maye serue y^e LORDE their God. Knowest thou not yet, y^e Egipt is destroyed: Moses z Aaron were brought agayne to Pharaon, which saide vnto them: So ye wyl saye, z serue y^e LORDE y^e God. But who are they y^e shal go: Moses sayde: We wil go whither ye olde, whither ye shal, with shepe and oxen for we haue a feast of the LORDE. He sayde vnto the: Let it be so, the LORDE be with you: Shalbe I let you go z ye shal be allowed that ye haue not some myschaunce in hande, for I see, but go ye that are men, and serue the LORDE, for that was youre desire. And they thrust them out from Pharaon.

The saide y^e LORDE vnto Moses: Stretch out thine hande ouer y^e londe of Egipt, for the greschoppers, y^e they maye come vpon y^e londe of Egipt, z eate up all the herbes in the londe, whil y^e escaped the hayle. Moses stretched out his staff ouer y^e londe of Egipt, z the LORDE brought an east wynde in to the londe all y^e daye z all y^e nyght, z in the morninge, the east wynde brought the greschoppers. And they came ouer the whole lande of Egipt, and lighed in all places of Egipt, so exceeding many, that he feete were neuer soch, neither shalbe here a fere: for they covered the londe, and made it darke. And they ate vpon all the herbes in y^e londe, z all the stures vpon the trees which remayned from y^e hayle, z left no grene thing behinde in the trees z herbes vpon the felde in all the lande of Egipt.

Then Pharaon called for Moses z Aaron in all y^e haile, z saide: I haue synned against the LORDE y^e God, z agaynst you: forget me my synne this once also, z paye the LORDE y^e God, y^e he maye take awaye fro me this death onely. And he wente out from Pharaon, z prayed vnto the LORDE. The LORDE turned a marvelous stroke west wynde, and toke up the greschoppers, z caue them in to the reed see, so that there was not one left in all the quarters of Egipt. But the LORDE hardened Pharaon hart, that he let not the childre of Israell go. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Stretch out thine hande ouer the beaumen, that it be so darke in the londe of Egipt, y^e it maye be seie. And Moses stretched out his hande toward beaumen, the was there a thicke darcknesse in all the londe of Egipt three dayes, so y^e in the dayes no man

LORD. And the bloude ſhal be youre token, vpon the houſes wherin ye are: ſ when I ſ the bloude, I maye paſſe ouer, and that the plage happen not vnto you, to deſtroye you, when I ſmyte the lande of Egipt.

C And this daye shall ye haue for a remembrance, and ye shall kepe it holy for a feast unto the LORDE, ye 7 all youre posterities, for a perpetuall custome. Seven dayes shall ye eate unleuened bread: namely, upon the first daie shall ye leaue of wiche leuened bread in youre houses. Who so euer eatech leuened bread from the first daye unto 7th seventh that soule shall be roted out from Israel. The first daye shall be called holy amonge you, and the seventh also. No manner of wiche shall ye do therein, save what belongeth to the meate for all manner of soules, that onely maye ye do for you. And kepe you to leuened bread.

Lev. 11. 2
No. 11. c
For euen upon that same daye will I bringe your armies out of the lande of Egypte, therefore shall ye and all youre posterities kepe this daye for a perpetuall custome. Upon the fourteenth daye of the first month, at euen, shall ye eate unleuened bread, unto the one and twentieth daye of the month, at euen: so that there be no leuened bread founde in youre houses seven dayes. For who so euer eatech leuened bread, that soule shall be roted out from the congregation of Israel, whether it be a stranger or borne of the lande. Therefore eate no leuened bread, but onely unleuened bread in all youre dwellings.

D And Moses called all the Elders of Israel, and sayde unto them: Chose out, and take to euery householde a shepe, and kyll Pasfeur unto the LORDE: and take a bunch of yfipe, and bypse it in the bloude in the basin, and stryke it upon the upperposte and upon the two syde postes, and none of you go out at the doore of his house until 7th morninge, for the LORDE will go aboute and plage the Egyptians. And when he seyth the bloude vpon the upperposte, and upon the two syde postes, he will passe ouer by the doore, and not suffice the destroyer to come in to youre houses to plage. Therefore kepe this custome for the and thy children for euer.

1. of. 4. d
And when ye be come in to 7th lande that the LORDE shall geue you, (as he hath sayde) then kepe this seruyce. And when youre children saye vnto you: What seruyce is this, that ye haue? ye shall saye: It is the sacrifice of the LORDES Pasfeour, which passed ouer by the children of Israel in Egypte, when he plagued the Egyptians, and saved oure houses. Then the people bowed thym selues, and worshipped. And the children of Israel went and dyd, as the LORDE had commanded Moses and Aaron.

And at myghte the LORDE smote all the firstborne in the lande of Egypte: from Pharaos first borne which sat vpon his syde: until the first borne of the pefsoner that was in the pusion, and all the firstborne of the cattell. Then Pharaos arose 7th same myghte, and all his seruantes, and all the Egyptians, 7 there was a greates crye in Egypte for there was no house wherein it was not one dead.

And he called for Moses and Aaron 7th myghte, and sayde: Rise you vp, and departe out fro my people, ye and the children of Israel: go youre waye, and serue the LORDE, as ye haue sayde: and take youre shepe and youre oxen with you, as ye haue sayde, and departe, and blesse me also. And the Egyptians were fayne vpon the people, to dryue them hastily out of the lande, for they said: We are all barbed.

And the people took the same doore, before it was leuened (for their soules) bounde in their clothes vpon their shoulders. And the children of Israel had done: as Moses sayde, and honored Jewels of silver and golde, and clothes of the Egyptians: the LORDE also had geuen the people fauour in the sighte of the Egyptians, that they lent them, and so they spoyled the Egyptians.

Thus 7th children of Israel took their lowney siem Ramses to Sutheth, sixe hundred thousande men of fore, by the childen. There wente with them also muche cattell, and shepe, and oxen, and exceedinge many cattell.

And of the raine doore that they broughte out of Egypte, they baked unleuened cakes: for it was not leuened, in so muche as they were thurst out of Egypte, and coude not carrye: neither had they prepared thym any other meate.

The tyme 7th the children of Israel dwelt in Egypte, is seuen hundredth and thirtie yeares. When the same were ended, the whole host of the LORDE wente out of the lande of Egypte in one daye. Therefore shall this myghte be kepte vnto the LORDE, because he broughte thym out of the lande of Egypte: And the children of Israel shall kepe it vnto the LORDE, they and their posterities.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: This is the manner of the keepinge of Pasfeour: There shall no stranger eate of it. But who so is a boughten seruante: let him be circumcysed, then eate therof. A stranger and an hynd swalle shall not eate of it. In one house shall it be eate. Ye shall carry no me of his flesh out of the house, and ye shall not breake a bone of him. The whole congregation of Israel shall do it.

But if there beuel a stranger with the, & wold be passenger into the LORDE, let him circumcise every one that is male, and then let him first come, and do it, and be as one that is borne in the londe: for there shall no man circumcise eate thereof. One maner of linc be unto him his borne in the londe, & into the stranger he wellect amige you. And all the childer of Israel byd as the LORDE commanded Moses & Aaron. So wps one daye the LORDE brought the childer of Israel out of the lode of Egipce with theire armye.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ To the LORDE spake unto Moses, & saide: Sanctifie unto me every firstborne, he breatech all maner of Miceles amonge the childer of Israel, both of men & carell: for they are myne. Then saide Moses unto ye people: Thinke vps this daye, in the which ye are gone out of Egipce from the house of bondage, how ye LORDE broughte you out frō thence w a mighty hāde. Therefore shall ye eate no fowre dome. This daye are ye gone out, out in 3 moneth of Abib.

¶ Tom xhā ye LORDE hath broughte ye in to ye lande of Canaan, & there, & inee t, Genes & Jebosices, which he sware unto ye fathers to geue ye (euen a londe that flourish w mylke & hony: when shall thou kepe this stryce in this month. Send dayes shall thou eate unleueded bred, & upon the fourth daye is the LORDES feast: therefore shall thou eate unleueded bred seue dayes, that there be no fowre dome, nor fowre bred sene in all thy quarters.

¶ And thou shalt tell thy some at the same tyme, & saie: Because of that, which ye LORDE byd for me, when I departed out of Egipce. Therefore shall it be a signe vnto ye in thine hande, and a token of remembrance ca be fore thine eyes, that the lawe of ye LORDE maye be in thymouth, how that ye LORDE broughte the out of Egipce with a mighty hande: Therefore kepe this maner yearly in his tyme.

¶ When the LORDE now hath broughte ye into ye lande of the Cananites (as he hath sowne vnto the and thy fathers) and hath given it the, then shall thou sander out vnto the LORDE all that breatech the Miceles, and firstborns amonge thy cattell, sch as is male. The firstborns of the Asses shall thou byd with a shepe: but if thou redeme is not, then breatech the me. All the firstborns of men amonge thy childern shall thou redeme.

¶ And when thy childer asch the to daie of tomorow: What is this? Thou shalt saie vnto him: The LORDE broughte us out of Egipce from the house of bondage: & a mighty hande: for when Pharaos was loch to let us go, the LORDE slew all the firstborns in the lande of Egipce, from the firstborns of men vnto ye firstborns of the cattell: therefore offer I vnto the LORDE all that breatech Miceles, beynge a male, and ye firstborns of my childern I redeme. And this shall be a signe vnto the in thine hande, and a token to thine epen before thine eyes, how that the LORDE broughte us out of Egipce with a mighty hande.

¶ Tom when Pharaos had let ye people go, God led thyn nos the waye thowm the lode of the philistynes, which was ye nece: for he thonghe: The people mighte repte, whā they warre, and so tarme in agayne into Egipce. Therefore led he the people aboute, euen the waye thowm the wilderness by ye red sea. And the childer of Israel wente hardnes out of the londe of Egipce. And Moses toke Josephs bones with him, for he toke an oath of the childer of Israel, and saide: God w yll surely wysse you, therefore carry awaye my bones with you from hence.

¶ So they toke their journey frō Suchoth, & pitched their eies in the in ye edge of the wilderness. And ye LORDE wente before the by daye in a pillar of a cloude, toled the ye night waye: and by night in a pillar of fyre, that he mighte shew the light to walde both by daie and night. The pillar of the cloude departed never from the people by daye, and the pillar of fyre departed not from the by night.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ To the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and saide: Speake vnto the childer of Israel, and byd them that they come aboute, & pitch their tentes before the walley of Synoth, betwixt Migdol & the sea towards Baal Zephos, and there pitch ye tent right over by the sea. For Pharaos shall saie of the childer of Israel: They can not tell how to get out of the londe, the wilderness hath shue them in. And I will harden his heart, he shall folowe a after them, & I will geue me honoure vpon Pharaos, and vpon all his power. And ye Egypciens shall knowe, ye I can the LORDE. And they dyd so.

B And when it was come to the kinge of Egypte, that he sawe his people was turned agaynst him, he said: Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go, that they shalde not serue vs. And he downe by his charrettes fast, and toke his people with him, and toke six hundred chosen charrettes, and the other charrettes besyde that were in Egypte, and the captaines ouer all his: for the LORDE hardened the heart of Pharaon kynge of Egypte, that he followed after the children of Israel. And the children of Israel wente one waye an hye hande.

C And the Egyptians followed after the, and overtoke them where they had pitched by the sea with their charrettes, and horsemen, and with his power, in the valley of Syngar toward Baal Zephon. And when Pharaon came nye them, the children of Israel lift up their eyes, and beholde, the Egyptians wente behynde the, and they were foue a fra yed, and cried vnto the LORDE.

And sayde vnto Moses: Woe there no grace in Egypte, for thou hast broughte vs awaye to dye in the wyldernes: Wherefore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast carried vs out of Egypte? Is not this it, that we sayde vnto the in Egypte: Leave of, let vs serue the Egyptians: for it were better for vs to serue the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernes: Moses sayde vnto the people: Feare you not, stande still, and beholde, what a saluacion the LORDE shall shewe vpon you this daye: for these Egyptians whom ye se this daye, shall yete serue me more for euill: the LORDE shal fighte for you, onely quyre youre selues.

D The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Wherefore criest thou vnto me: Speake vnto the children of Israel, that they go forwarde. But lift thou up thy staffe, and stretch out thine hande ouer the sea, and parte it asunder, that the children of Israel maye go in throught the myddell of it vpon the drye grounde. Beholde, I will harden the heart of the Egyptians, that they shall followe after you. And thus sayd the LORDE vnto Moses vpon Pharaon, and vpon all his power, vpon his charrettes and horsemen: and the Egyptians shal knowe, that I am the LORDE, when I haue gotten me hande vpon Pharaon, vpon his charrettes, and vpon his horsemen.

Then the angell of God wente before the armie of Israel, removed, and gat him behynde them: and the cloudy pillar removed also from before them, and stode behynde the, and came betwixte the armie of the Egyptians and the armie of Israel. It was a harde cloude, and gaue lighte that night, so that all the night longe these and they coude not come together.

When Moses now stretched forth his hande ouer the sea, the LORDE caused it to passe as water throught a mighty east wynde all that night, and made the sea drye, and it was as drye as a sinde. And the children of Israel wente in throught the myddell of the sea vpon the drye grounde: and the water was on to them as a wall, vpon their right hande, and vpon their left. And the Egyptians followed, and wente in after the, all Pharaon horsemen, and charrettes, and horsemen, and so into the myddell of the sea.

When the morninge was come, the LORDE looked vpon the armie of the Egyptians out the pillar of fire and of cloude, and troubled their armie, and smote the wheles from their charrettes, and ouerthrew them with a floure. Then sayde the Egyptians, Let vs flye from Israel, the LORDE fighteth for the agaynst the Egyptians.

But the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: stretch out thine hande ouer the sea, that the water maye come agayne vpon the Egyptians, vpon their charrettes, and horsemen. Then Moses stretched out his hande ouer the sea, and the sea came agayne before daye in his course and strength, and the Egyptians fled agaynst it. Thus the LORDE ouerthrew them in the myddell of the sea, so that the water came agayne, and couered the charrettes and horsemen, and all Pharaon power which followed after them in to the sea, so that there remayned not one of them. But the children of Israel wente drye throught the myddell of the sea, and the water was as a wall vpon their right hande and vpon their left.

Thus the LORDE deliuered Israel in that daye from the hande of the Egyptians. And the same daye the Egyptians ded vpon the sea, and the greates hande of the LORDE shewed vpon the Egyptians. And the people full, laudable, and doinge wonders?

When thou stretchest out y^e righte han-de, the earth ishalowed them vp.

Thou of y^e very mercy hast led this people, whom thou hast deliuered, and with y^e strenght thou hast broughte them into the wellmyng of thy Sanctuary.

When y^e nacions herbe this, they rage, & they to Mara, but they coude not drinke y^e water for bytternes, for it was very bytter.

Then mo was called Mara, (y^e is byttere & sayde: What shal we drinke? And Moses cried vnto y^e LORDE, which shewed him a trethle he put in y^e water, the was it swete.

Then he made the a floure, and a lawe, and tempered them, and sayde: As thou wote harken vnto the voyce of y^e LORDE y^e God, & do that which is righte in his sighte, and ge-

Joynt rayne you bred from heauen, and let the people go out, and gather daylie, what they meede, that I maye proue whether they reuolte in my name or not. But upon the sixte daye they shal prepare the floure, that they maye bringe in twyffe as much as they gather daylie.

B Moses and Aaron saide vnto all the children of Israel: At euen ye shall knowe, that the LORD E hath broughte you out of the lode of Egiptee, and in the morninge shall ye see the glory of the LORD: for he hath hadde youre grudgings agaynst the LORD. For what are we, that ye grudge agaynst vs?

R. m. n. d. Moses sayde moreover: At euen shall the LORD E graue you fleshy to eat, and in the morninge bred ynough: because y LORD E hath hadde youre grudgings, that ye haue grudged agaynst him. For what are we? Your murmuringe is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the LORD E. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Speake vnto the whole multitude of y children of Israel: Come forth before the LORD E, for he hath hadde youre murmurings.

C And whye Aaron spake thus vnto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, they turned them toward the wyldernes: and beholde, the glory of the LORD E appeared in a cloude, and the LORD E sayde vnto Moses: I haue hadde the murmuringe of y children of Israel. Tell them: At euen shall ye haue fleshy to eat, and in the morninge shal ye be fylled with bred, z ye shall knowe, that I am the LORD E youre God.

And as euen the quailles came vp, and covered the tentes: and in the morninge the dew laye rounde aboute the tentes. And when the dew was fallid, beholde, there laye a change in the wilderness, thynne and small, as the hoist of vpon the grounde.

D And when the children of Israel sawe it, they saide one to another: This is M^os. For they wylt not what it was. But Moses sayde vnto them: This is the bred that y LORD E hath geue you to eat. This is it that y LOR

DE hath commaunded: Every one gather for himselfe as much as he can geth, and take a Worme for every heade, accordinge to the number of the soules in his tent.

And the children of Israel dyd thus, and gathered some more, some lesse. But when it was measured one with y Worme, he that gathered little, wanted nothinge, but every one gathered for himselfe, as much as he can. And Moses sayde vnto them: Let no man leaue onght thereof vntill the morninge. But they hardned not vnto Moses. And some lefte of it vntill the morninge. Then wasch it full of wormes and stincke. And Moses was angry at them.

And eury morninge they gathered for them fleshe, as much as eury one could: as soone as it was whore of the Sonne, it melted awaye. And upon the sixte daye they gathered twyffe as much of bred, two Wormes for one. And all the rulers of the congregation came in, and tolde Moses. And he sayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORD E hath sayde: Tomorrow is the Sabbath of the holy rest of the LORD E: loke what ye will do, that baketh and what ye will feest, that feest, and that remaineth ouer, let it remaine, z it maye be kepte vntill the morninge. And they let it remaine vntill the morninge, as Moses commaunded. Then stincke it, noe man was there any woman therein. The LORD E sayde: Lete that to daye, for to daye is y Sabbath of the LORD E: to daye shal ye fynde no me in the feild. Sixe dayes shall ye gather it, but the seventh daye is the Sabbath, wher in there shal be none.

But upon the seventh daye there came out some of the people to gather, and founde nothinge. Then sayde y LORD E vnto Moses: How longe refuse ye to kepe my commaundements and lawes? Beholde, y LORD E hath geuen you the Sabbath, therefore upon the sixte daye he geueth you bred sixe dayes: therefore let every man now byde at home, and noman go forth of his place vpon the seventh daye.

So the people rested vpon y seventh daye. And the house of Israel called it Man, and it was like Cinnamon seede, and whyte, z had a taile like hyndels with honny.

And Moses sayde: This is it that y LORD E hath commaunded: Kill a Worme thereof to be kepte for youre possession, z the maye see the bred, wherewith y fedd you, when y broughte you out of y lande of Egiptee. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take a cruise, and

A pas a Gomon full of Man therein, and laye it up before the LORDE, to be kepte for your posterities, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. So Aaron layed it up there for a testimony to be kepte.

14 And the children of Israel are man four-15 eye yeales, till they came vnto a land, to be-re people dwelt: even vntill they came to y^e borders of the lande of Canaan: at they Man. A Gomon: is the tenth parte of an Ephah.

The XVII. Chapter.

1 And the whole multitude of the children of Israel were on their iourneys out of the wyldernes of Sin (as the LORDE commaunded the) pitched in Raphidim. Then had the people no water to drinke.
And they chode wth Moses, & sayde: Where is water, y^e we maye drinke. Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: Wherfore hast thou caused us to come out of Egipte: to let vs, ouer children, and ouer cattell by of hongry?

2 Moses cried vnto the LORDE, and sayde: What shal I do wth this people: They are all most ready to stone me. The LORDE saide vnto him: Go before the people, & take some of the elders of Israel with y^e, and take in thine hande thy staffe, wherewith thou smocest the water, and go thy waye: Beholde, I will stande there before the upon a rocke in Sober: there shall come out of the rocke, so shall there water runne out, that the people maye drinke. Moses byd so before the elders of Israel. Then was that place called Massa Metha, because of the charynge of the children of Israel, and because they tempted y^e LORDE, and sayde: Is the LORDE amonge vs, or not?

C Then came Amalec, & fought agaynst Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayde vnto Josua: Choose vs out men, go out, & fight agaynst Amalec, tomorrow will I stande vpon the toppe of the hill, & haue y^e staffe of God in my hande. And Josua byd as Moses hade him, & fought agaynst Amalec. Moses & Aaron z their wenche vnto y^e toppe of the hill. And whil Moses held vpon his hande, Israel had the victory: but when he let downe his hande, Amalec had the victory. Iuda. 4. 2

But Moses hades were troy, therefore to ke they a stone, & layed it vnder him, that he might sye vpon it. And Aaron z his wyf vnto his hande, the one vpon the one syde, and the other vpon y^e other syde. So his hande were stedfast vnto y^e Sonne went downe.
And Josua discomfited Amalec, & his people throughe the edge of the swerde.

And y^e LORDE saide vnto Moses: Write this for a remembrance in a booke, & comyte it vnto y^e eares of Josua: for I will rote out Amalec from vnder heauen, so that he shall nourme be remembred. And Moses called in an alcare vnto the LORDE, and blyded in y^e. The LORDE sayde, for he sayde: The battyle of the LORDE shal be agaynst Amalec throughe an hande vnder the defence of God from Chalbe to Chalbe childe.

The XVIII. Chapter.

1 And when Jerpho y^e prest in Midian Moses father in lawe herde of all y^e God had done wth Moses & his people of Israel, how y^e LORDE had broughte Israel out of Egipte, he toke Zippora Moses wyfe, whom he had sent backe, with her two sonnes. The one was called Gersom, for he saide: I am become a stranger in a strange londre. And the other was called Elislar, for he sayde: The God of my fathers hath bene my helpe, and hath deliuered me from pharaons hande.

Now whil Jerpho Moses father in lawe, and his sonnes and his wyfe came vnto him in the wyldernes by the moune of God, wher he had pitched his tent, he sent wordes vnto Moses: I Jerpho thy father in lawe am come vnto the, and y^e wyfe and boch hit children with her. Then wente Moses forth to meete him, and byd abryd till euen vnto him, and kysed him. And when they had saluted ech other, they wente in to the tente.

Then Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the LORDE had done vnto Pharaon and the Egiptians for Israel, and all the traungre that had happened them by y^e waye, and how the LORDE had deliuered them. Jerpho reioysed ouer all y^e good that the LORDE had done for Israel, y^e he had deliuered them from the hande of the Egiptians.
And Jerpho sayde: I passed by the LORDE, which hath deliuered you from the hands of the Egyptians and of Pharaos, (and) that knoweth how to deliuer his people from the Egyptians hands. Now I knowe, that the LORDE is greater the all goddes, because they treat proudly wth them. And Iehou code b^uen^offeraynges, and offered into God. Then came Aaron and all y^e elders of Israel to eate bread with Mosse father in lawe before God.

C On the next morow sa^u Mosse to iudge the people, and the people stode round aboute Mosse from the morninge vntill y^e euen. And when his father in lawe sawe all that he byd with the people, he sayde: What is this, that thou doest with the people? W^herfore stasht thou alone, and all y^e people stonde round aboute from the morninge vntill the euen? Mosse answered him: The people come to me, & aye counsell at God: for when they haue any thinge to do, they come vnto me, that I maye iudge betwixte euer y^e one & his neyghbour, and shewe them the statutes of God, and his lawes.

His father in lawe sayde vnto him: It is not well that thou doest. Thou w^ou^oldest thy self, and the people that is with the. This busynesse is to sore for the, thou canst not performe it alone. But hearken vnto my voyce, I will geue the counsell, and God shall be wit^{ne}sse the. Be thou vnto the people as God ward, and bringe the causes before God, and decide them with statutes and lawes, that thou mayest shewe the the waye wher in they shalde walke, and the works that they shalde do.

And loke out amonge all the people, for honest men, that feare God, such as are true, & hate covetisnes: make these rulers over them, some ouer thousandes, our hundredes, our fiftie, and our ten, that they maye allwaye iudge the people. But where there is any greates matter, that they bringe the same vnto the, and iudge the small causes them selues: so shall it be lighter for the, yf they beare the burthen with the. If thou shalt do this, then mayest thou vnderstande the thinge that God chargeth the withall, and all this people maye go peaceably vnto their place.

Num. xi. d Mosse hearkened vnto the voyce of his father in lawe, and byd all that he sayde. And he chose honest men out of all Israel, and made them heaues over the people, some ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and our ten, that they might allwaye iudge the people. As for such causes as were herbe, they broughte them vnto Mosse, and w^oldge the small matters them selues. So Mosse let his father in lawe departe in to his owne londe.

The XIII. Chapter.

In the thirde moneth after that the children of Israel were gone out of Egipte, the sonde of Egipte, they came the same daye in to the wilderness of Sinaï (for they were departed from Raphidim, and wolde in to the wilderness of Sinaï) and there they pitched in the wilderness ouer against the mount. And Mosse wente up vnto God.

And the LORDE called vnto him out of the mount, and sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel: Ye haue seue what I haue done vnto the Egyptians, and how I haue bene you upon Eagles wynges, & broughte you vnto my self. If ye will hearken now vnto my voyce, and keepe my couenant, ye shal be myne owne before all people: for the whole earth is myne: and ye shall be vnto me a priestly Kingdome, and a holy people. Thefe are the wordes that thou shalt saye vnto the children of Israel.

Mosse came and called for the elders of the people, and layde before them all these wordes, that the LORDE had commaunded. And all the people answered together, and sayde: All that the LORDE hath sayde, will we do.

And Mosse tolde the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE sayde vnto Mosse: Beholde, I will come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people maye heare my wordes, which I speake vnto the, and beare the for euer. And Mosse shewed the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE.

The LORDE sayde vnto Mosse: Go vnto the people, and sanctifie the to daye and to morow, & they maye wash their clothes, and be ready agaynst the thirde daye: for upon the thirde daye shall the LORDE come downe upon mount Sinaï before all the people. And sixe martes rounde aboute the people, and saye vnto them: Be ready, that ye goe up in to y^e mount, for ten dayes of booke of it: for who so euer conuerseth y^e mount, shal dye y^e death. There shal no hittecowe it, but he shall eith^er be stoned, or hitte with the row: whether it be best to man, it shal not be. When the home bicmeth, then shal they come up vnto the mount.

C Moses wente downe from the mount vnto the people, and sanctified them. And they washed their clothes. And he sayde vnto them. Be ready for a gaynise the thirde daye, and no man come at his wife.

C Now when the thirde daye came, and it was early, it beganne to thonder, and lighten, and there was a thicke cloude vpon the mount, and a noyse of a trompett excedinge mightie. And the people that were in the tentes, were afrayde. And Moses broughte the people out of the tentes to meete wth God, and they stode vnder the mount.

C And all mount Sinai smoked, because γ LORDE came downe vpon it with fyre. And the smoke thereof wente vp as the smoke of a furnace, so that the whole mount was excedinge terrible. And the noyse of the trompett wente out, and was mightie. Moses spake, and God answered him lowde. Now when the LORDE was come downe vpon mount Sinai, euen vpon the toppe of it, he called Moses vp vnto γ toppe of the mount. And Moses wente vp.

D Then sayde the LORDE vnto him: Go downe, and charge the people, γ they pacifise not vnto the LORDE, to see him, and so many of them perishe. The rulers also that come nye vnto γ LORDE, shal sanctifie them selues, lest the LORDE smyte the. But Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: The people can not come vp vpon mount Sinai, for thou hast charged vs, to sayde: See markes aboute the mount, and sanctifie it.

The LORDE sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, get γ downe. Thou and Aaron with the shal come vp: but the rulers and γ people shal not pacifise to come vp vnto γ LORDE, lest he smyte the. And Moses wente downe to the people, and tolde them.

The .XX. Chapter.

AND the LORDE spake all these wordes, and sayde: I am the LORDE thy God, which γ hane broughte the out of the londe of Egipte: from γ house of bondage.

Thou shalt haue none other Goddes in my sight. Thou shalt make: the no graven ymage, ner any similitude, neither of it that is aboue in heauen, ner of it that is beneth vpon earth, ner of it that is in the water vnder the earth. Thou shalt not worshippinge the. Thou shalt not worshippinge γ synne of the fathers vpon the children, vnto γ thirde and fourth generation, of them that hate me: And thou shalt loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not take the name of γ LORDE thy God in vayne. For the LORDE shal not holde him vnguilte, that taketh his name in vayne.

Remember the Sabbath daie, that thou sanctifise it. Sixe dayes shalt thou labour, and do all thy worke: But vpon the seventh daye is the Sabbath of the LORDE thy God: thou shalt do no maner worke in it, ne thou, ne thy sonne, ne thy daughter, ne thy seruante, ne thy mayde, ne thy catell, ne thy steiniger that is within thy gates. For in sixe dayes the LORDE made heauen and earth, and the see, and all that ther in is, and rested vpon the seventh daye: therefore the LORDE blessed the seventh daye, and hallowed it.

Honoure thy father and thy mother, that thou mayest linge longe in the londe, which the LORDE thy God shal geue the.

Thou shalt not kylle.
Thou shalt not beate wedlocke.
Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt beare no false wytnesse agaynst thy neighbour.

Thou shalt not, last after γ neighbours house.

Thou shalt not last after thy neighbours wife, ne his seruant, ne his mayde, ne his oxe, ne his Ass, ne all that γ neighbour hath.

And all the people sawe the thonder, and the lightninge, and the noyse of the trompett, and were afrayde, and stood, and stode afarre off, and sayde vnto Moses: Take thou with vs, we wil heare: and let not God talke with vs, we might die bye. And Moses sayde vnto the people: Be not afrayde, for God is come to proue you, and that his voice maye be heere your eyes, γ ye synne not. And the people stode afarre off. But Moses gat him in to the hard cloude, where in

Thou shalt thou saye vnto the children of Israel: Ye haue sene, that I haue talked w you from heauen: therfore shalt ye make no-thinge with me: goddes of siluer and golde shal ye not make you.

Make me an altare of earth, wher upon thou mayest offer y burntofferinges, & pea-ceofferings, thy sheeps and chone ozen. For both in what place so ever I make y remembrance of my name, there wil I come vnto the, and blesse the.

And yf thou wilt make me an altare of stone, thou shalt not make it of beuen stone: For yf thou lift vp thy cole upon it, thou shalt vnhallowe it. Moreover thou shalt not go vp upon stepes vnto myne altare, that thy shame be not discovered before it.

The XXI. Chapter.

These are the lawes, that thou shalt laye before them. If thou bye a seruant that is an Hebrue, he shal ser-ue the sixe yeares, in the seventh yeare shall he go our fre and loose. If he came alone, then shal he go our alone also: but yf he came maried, then shall his wife go our with him. If his master haue geue him a wife, he shall haue boine him sonnes or daughters, the shal the wife and y children be the masters, but he shall go our alone. If he be a Hebrue, yf he saye: I loue my master, and my wife and children, I wil not go our fre: then let his master brynge him before the Goddes, and holde him to the bore or post, and beat him thowen the eare with a bockin, and let him be his seruant for euer.

If a man sell his daughter to be an hand maide, then shal she not go our as the men seruantes. But yf she please not hir master, and he haue not maried her, then shal he let her go fre: but he shall fill her vnto a straunge people he hath no auouchour, for so much as he hath bepayed her. If he payme her vnto his sonne, they shal he do vnto her after the lawe of daughters. But yf he geue him and other wife, then shal he mayntie no thinge of hir foode, tyment, and demer of marriage.
If he do not these thinges, then shal she go our fre, and paye no thinge.

If a man smyeth a man that he bye, shall he bye the deatch. If he haue not layed wayte for him, but God let him fall in his hande murthered, then wil I appoynte the a place, where he shal lye vnto. But yf a man pie-sume upon his neighbour, and slaye him with discreete, then shalt thou take the sume from his altare, that he maye be slayn.

Who so smyeth his father or mother, shall bye the deatch.

If a man stealeth a man, and selleth him, so that he be founde by him, the same shall bye the deatch.

If a man curse his father and mother, shall he bye the deatch. If men stryue together and one smyte another with a stone, or with his fist, so that he bye not, but lye in bedd: If he rise, and go forth upon his staff, the shall be that smote him, he wngiltie: sane that he shal paye the losse of his tyme, and geue y money for healyng him.

If a man smyeth his seruant or mayde with a staff, that he bye vnder his hande, the same shall suffre vengeance therfore.
But yf he endure a daye or two, then shall he suffre no vengeance therfore, for it is his money.

If men stryue, and byte a woman with childe, so that y frute departe from her, and no harme happen vnto her, then shall he be punished for money, as much as the womans husbande layeth to his charge, and he shall geue it, accordinge to the appoyntement of the daye men. But yf there come harme vnto her ther thowen, then shal he paye tuncle for soule, eye for eye, eare for eare, hande for hande, foot for foot, burnyngs for burnyngs, wounde for wounde, strype for strype.

If a man smyte his seruant or his may-de in the eye, and destroye it, he shall let thom go fre and loose for the eye sake. In like maner yf he smyte one a tothe of his seruant or mayde, he shall let thom go fre and loose for the tothes sake.

If an oxe gorre a man or a woman, that he bye, then shall that oxe be stoned, and his flesh not eaten: so is the master of the oxe ungiltie. But yf the oxe haue bene used to pass in tymes past, & it hath bene colde his master, and he hath not kepte him, and beyde that slayeth a man or a woman, then shal y oxe be stoned, and his master shal bye. But yf there be money set upon him, then, lete what is put upon him, that shall be geue, to be tyer his soule. Likewise shall he be deat-ed with thall, yf he gorre a sonne or a daughter. But yf he gorre a seruant or a mayde, then shall he geue their master thirtie slyles slyles: and the oxe shall be stoned.

If a man open a well, or bygge a pyll, and couer it not, and there fall an oxe or ass there, then shall the owner of the pyll make it good with money, and restore it vnto his master: but the deeb carcase shall be his owne.

If one mans oxe goree another, that he dye, then shall they sell the lyvinge oxe, and vande the money, and the deeb carcase shall they deuybe also. But yf it be knowne, that the oxe haue bene vsed to goree afose, then shall he paye his oxe for the other, & the deeb carcase shall be his owne.

The XXX. Chapter.

Yf a man steale an oxe, or shepe, and laye it, or sell it, he shall restore fyve oren for an oxe, and foure shepe for a shepe.

If a thefe be taken breakinge in, & vpon that he fynden that he dye, then shall not be that since him, but he givie of his blood. But yf the some be gone vp vpon him, then hath he committed manslaughter, and he shall dye.

A thefe shall make restitution. If he haue nothyng, thef let him be solde for his theft. But yf thefe be founde by him anywey from the oxe unto the Ass, or shepe, then shall he restore double.

If a man hurte a silde or vnyarde, so he let his casell do harme in another mans silde, the same shall make restitution euen of the best of his owne silde and vnyarde.

If a fyre come out, and take holde of thornes, so that the sheeces be consumed, or the coure that stondeth yet vpon the silde, be that it vntyled the fyre shall make restitution.

If a man deluyne his neighbours money or velsels to kepe, and it be stolen from him out of his house: yf the thefe be founde, he shall restore double. But yf the thefe be not founde, then shall the good man of the house be brought before the Goddes (and shall swiure) that he hath not put his hande vnto his neighbours good.

If one accuse another in any maner of trespass, or hester it be for oxe, or Ass, or shepe, or rayment, when so euer it be that is lost: then shall both their causes come before the Goddes: & ake whom the Goddes condemne, the same shall restore double vnto the othe neighbour.

If a man deluyne vnto his neighbours an Ass, or oxe, or shepe, or any maner of casell to kepe, and it dye, or be hurte, or vnyen anywey that no man se it, then shall there an oath of the LORD be betwene them, that he hath not put his hande vnto his neighbours good: and the owner of the good shall accept it, so that the other shall not make it good. If a thefe steale it from him, then shall he make restitution vnto the owner thereof. But yf it be raynsyde (of beastes) then shall he bringe recorde thereof, and not make it good.

If a man buye anye of his neighbours, and it be hurte, or dye, so that the owner thereof be not by, then shall he make it good. But yf the owner thereof be by, then shall he not make it good, yf he bynde it for his money.

If a man begie a mayde, that is not yett spoused, and lye with her, the same shall gene her hir dowry, and take her to his wife. But yf his father refuse to gene her vnto him, she shall be weywhere the money, accordinge to the dowry of virgins.

Thou shalt not iustifie a witch to fyne. Who so lyncheth a beest, shall worthe deathe. Who so offereth to any goddes, same vnto the LORD euely, let him dye without redemption.

Thou shalt not wepe nor oppresse a stranger, for ye yowes selms were strangers also in the londe of Egypte.

Ye shall craue no wyddowe nor fatherlesse childe. If thou shalt trouble them, they shall crye vnto me, and I shall heare their crye: then shall my wrath waxe agaynst you, so I shall sey you with the sterde, and youre wyues shall be wedowes, and youre children fatherlesse.

If thou lende money vnto my people that is poore by the, thou shalt not charge thyself as an vsurer vnto him, neither shalt thou oppresse him with vsury.

If thou take a garment of thy neighbour to pledga, thou shalt geue it him agayne before the Sonne go downe: for his rayment is his onely conerunge of his synne: wher in he slepeth. But yf he shall crye vnto me, I will heare him: for I am mercifull.

Thou shalt not speake euill of the Goddes, and the ruler of thy people shall then not blasphem.

Thy drie and moult frenez shall thou not kepe backe. Thy first borne shall thou geue vnto me. So shalt thou do also with thine open and shepe. Seuen dayes let it be with the dame: vpon the eighte daye shall thou geue it vnto me. Ye shall be holy people before me. Therefore shall ye eate no fleshye, that is come of beestis in the feld, but cast it vnto the dogges.

The XXXIij. Chapter.

Deu. 34.1 The fe sayde vnto Moses: Come up vnto the LORD Ethen z Aaron, Laban and Abihy, and the iustice elders of y^e Israel, z worshippe a force of. But let the see onely come nye vnto the LORD E and let not them come nye, and let not the people all to come up with him.

Moses came and tolde the people all the wordes of the LORD E, z all the lawes. Then answered all the people with one voyce, and sayde: All that the LORD hath sayde, we will do.

B Then more Moses alle the wordes of the LORD. And gat him up by rymes in the mount synging, and buried an altare vnder the mount with twelue pilers, according to the twelue cryes of Israel: and sent twelue yongemen of the children of Israel, to offer burne offeringes, and peace offeringes thereon of bullockes vnto the LORD.

C And this he toke the half parte of the bloude, and put it in a basen, the other half sprinkled he vpon the altare: and toke the boke of the couenante, and cried in the eares of the people. And when they had sayde: All that the LORD hath sayde, we will do, & hearken vnto him: Moses toke the bloude, and sprinkled it vpon the people, and sayde: Beholde, this is the bloude of the couenante that the LORD hath made betwixt you vpon all these wordes.

C Then wente Moses & Aaron, & Abihur & Ahihu, & the seuentye elders of Israel vnto the LORD. And when they had sayde: Beholde, this is the bloude of the couenante that the LORD hath made betwixt you vpon all these wordes.

C Then wente Moses & Aaron, & Abihur & Ahihu, & the seuentye elders of Israel vnto the LORD. And when they had sayde: Beholde, this is the bloude of the couenante that the LORD hath made betwixt you vpon all these wordes.

C Then wente Moses & Aaron, & Abihur & Ahihu, & the seuentye elders of Israel vnto the LORD. And when they had sayde: Beholde, this is the bloude of the couenante that the LORD hath made betwixt you vpon all these wordes.

The xxv. Chapter.

AND the LORD called vnto Moses & sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & they shall make me an offeringe, and shall offer to me of every man, that hath a fre will offeringe here thereto. And this is the offeringe:

offeringe that ye shall take of them: Golde, silver, brasse, yallowe sylke, scarlet, purple, wyche wynded sylke, goate haire, reed flaymes of sammes, doo flaymes, fyre re, oyle of olives, & fyres for the anoyntinge of oyle, and for suters incense. Ony stones and set stones for the outeboddy coore and for the best-lappe.

And they shall make me a Sanctuary, that I maie dwell amonge them. Like as I shall shew thee a pattern of the Tabernacle, and of all the appermentes thereof, so shall ye make it.

Make an Arke of fyre re two cubytes & a half longe, a cubyte & a half broude, and a cubyte & a half hie: whiche shall thou cover with pure golde within and without, & make an hye vpon it a crowne of golde round aboute, and cast foure rynge of golde, & put them in the foure corners of it, so that two rynge be vpon the one syde, and two vpon the other syde. And make flames of fyre re, and ouer laye them with golde, and put them in the rynge alonge by the sides of the Arke, to beare it withall: and they shall abyde still in the rynge, & shall not be takyn out. And in the Arke thou shalt laye the wyrenesse that I wyl geue thee. Thou shalt make a Mercyseate also of pure golde, two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubyte & a half broude.

And thou shalt make two Cherubyns of beateyn golde vpon both ends of the Mercyseate, & the one Cherub maye be vpon the one ende, & the other vpon the other ende, so that they be two Cherubyns vpon the ends of the Mercyseate. And the Cherubyns shall spredde out their wynges ouer an hye, & they maye couer the Mercyseate with their wynges: & they either of their faces maye be righte ouer one agaynst another, and their faces shall loken vnto the Mercyseate.

And thou shalt set the Mercyseate aboue vpon the Arke. And in the Arke thou shalt laye the wyrenesse, & I shall geue thee. From the place wher I wyl geue thee, & shall call it by the name wher I wyl geue thee. And thou shalt make two Cherubyns which is vpon the Arke of wyrenesse, of all that I wyl commaunde thee vnto the children of Israel.

Thou shalt make a table also of fyre re, two cubytes longe, and one cubyte broude, and a cubyte and a half hie, and ouer laye it with pure golde, and make a crowne of golde round aboute it, and an wynde of an hye be broude hye, and a crowne of golde vnto it, wher he rounde aboute.

And vnto it thou shalt make foure rynges of golde, on the foure corners in the foure fettes of it: whiche vnto the whorpe shall þe rynges be, so put in staves and so beare the table wth all: and thou shalt make the staves of fyre tre, & ouerlaye them with golde, & the table maye be borne therewith.

Thou shalt make also hie dysches, spoones, pottes, and flat peces of pure golde, to poure oute: and in. And vpon the table thou shalt all waye sit shewred before me.

Moreover thou shalt make a candlestick of fyne beaten golde, where vpon shall be the shaft with braunches, cuppes, knoppes, and floures. Sixe braunches shall procede out of the fyres of the candlestick, one of euery syde this braunches. Every braunch shall haue the cuppes, like almondes whiche knoppes, and the floures. These shall be the sixe braunches of the candlestick. But the shaft of the candlestick is self shall haue foure cuppes, knoppes and floures, and allmaine a knoppe vnder two braunches, of the sixe that procede out of the candlestick. For both the knoppes and braunches shall procede out of the shaft, all one pece of fyne beaten golde.

And thou shalt make seven Lumps abotethere on, that they maye geue lighte one out agaynst another, and snoffers and one quenchers of pure golde. Out of an hundred pounde weighte of pure golde shalt thou make it, with all this apparell. And it shall be thou make it after the patternes that thou hast sene in the mount.

The XXVI. Chapter.

The habitation shalt thou make of ten curtynes, of whyte twyned syl-ke, of yalouze sylke, of scarlet and purple. Cherubims shalt thou make thereon of boderd worke. The lengthe of one curtayne shall be eighte and twenty cubytes of byrd some cubytes: and all the ten shall be like, and shall be coupled fyne and fyne together, one vnto the other. And thou shalt make lon-ges of yalouze sylke by the edge of euery curtayne, where they shall be coupled together, that there maye be euer two and two fastened together vpon their edges: sifre loupes vpon euery curtayne, that one maye fasten the other together. And thou shalt make sifre buzons of gelbe, wherewith the curtay-nes maye be coupled together, one to the other, that it maye be one couerynge.

180. 38. c

Thou shalt make a couerynge also of goat tes heyer for a tenture ouer the habitation, of eleuen curtynes. The lengthe of one curtayne shall be thirtie cubytes, the bredth foure cubytes. And all the eleuen shall be alike grade: fyne shalt thou couple together by the sel-ues, & fyne also by them selues, & thou mayest bubble like the sifre curtayne in the fore front of the Tabernacle. And vpon euery curtayne thou shalt make sifre loupes vpo the edges of them, that they maye be coupled together by the edges. And sifre buzons of byss shalt thou make, and put the buzons in to the loupes, that the tent maye be coupled together, and be one couerynge.

As for the remnaunce of the curtynes of the tent, thou shalt let the halfe parte hange ouer behynde of it, vpon both the sydes a cubyte longe, & the residue maye be vpon the syde of the Tabernacle, & cooer it vpon both the sydes.

Wherof this couerynge thou shalt make a couerynge of reed slymme of namme.
And aboue this a couerynge of doo slymme.

Thou shalt make boordes also for the habi-tacion, of fyre tre, which shall stonde: one boorde shall be ten cubytes longe, & a cubyte & a half brode. Two fettes shall one boorde haue, that one maye be fet by the other.

Thou shalt thou make all the boordes for the Tabernacle: Twente of them shall stonde towards the south, which shall haue fourety fettes of syluer vnder euen, two fettes vnder euery boorde for his two fettes.

Like wyse vpon the other syde towards the north there shall stonde twente boordes also, and fourety fettes of syluer, two fettes vnder euery boorde.

But behynde the habitation towards the west thou shalt make sixe boordes, and two boordes mo for the two corners of the habi-tacion, that euery one of them both maye be coupled from vnder vp with his corner boorde, and aboue vpon the heade to come ea-sen together with a clippe: so that there be eighe boordes with their syluer fettes, wher of there shall be sixene, two vnder euery boorde.

And thou shalt make barres of fyre tre, fyne for the boordes vpon the one syde of the Tabernacle, and fyne for the boordes vpon the other syde of the Tabernacle, and fyne for the boordes behynde of the Tabernacle towards the west. And the barres shalt thou make thou & myddes of the boordes, and fasten all together from the one corner to the other.
And thou shalt ouerlaye the boorde wth golde, and make their rynges of golde, that the barres maye be put thern. And the barres shalt thou ouerlaye with golde, and so | thou set vpon the Tabernacle, a coveringe to þe fishion as thou hast done vpon þe mount.

- 3 And thou shalt make a vayne of yelow silk, scarlet, purple, & whyte wynded silk.
And Cherubyns shalt thou make thereon of wooden worke, and shalt hange it vpon foure pillers of fyre tre which are overlaid with golde, hauynge knoppes of golde, and four sockets of syluer. And the vayne shalt thou fasten with buttoms, and set the Arke of wyrtiss within the vayne, that it maye be vnto you a differensce betwixte the holy and the most holy.

- 6 And thou shalt set the Mercy seate vpon the Arke of wyrtiss in the most holy. And set the table without the vayne, and the can dillers ouer agaynst þe table vpon fyne silde of the Tabernacle, that the table maie stande on the north syde.

And in the doore of the Tabernacle thou shalt make an hanginge, of yelow silk, pur ple, scarlet and whyte wynded silk. And for the same hanginge thou shalt make fyve pi lers of fyre tre, overlaid with golde, with knoppes of golde. And shalt cast fyve sockets of brasse for them.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

- 1 And thou shalt make an altare of fir tre, fyve cubytes longe & brede, þe maie be foure square, & the cubytes þer: thou shalt make hoines vpon the foure corners of it, & shalt ouer laye it with brasse.
Malt, ashpines, shouels, basens, stelboles, calepines, All þe apparell therof shalt thou make of brasse. Thou shalt make a grebyron also like a nete, of brasse, & foure basens ryn ges vpon the foure corners of it: from vnder vp aboute the altare shalt thou make it, so that the grebyron reache vnto þe myddell of the altare. Thou shalt make stanes also for the altare, of fyre tre, overlaid with golde, and shalt put the stanes in the rynges, that the stanes maye be on both the sydes.
of þe altare, so beare it withall. And holotwe with borders shalt thou make it, like as it is shewed the in the mount.

- 2 And to þe habitacion thou shalt make a couer, an hanginge of whyte wynded sylk: vps of one syde an C. cubytes longe comar de the fourth, & xx. pillers vpon xx. basens so cketes, & their knoppes & their whopes of syl uer. & therwyt vpon þe north syde there shall be an hanginge of an C. cubytes longe, twen ty pillers vpon twenty basens sockets, and their knoppes & their whopes of syluer.

But vpon the west syde the bredd of þe couer shall haue an hanginge of fyve cubi tes longe, & ten pillers vpon ten sockets. Vps the east syde also shall the bredd of the couer haue fyve cubytes, so that the hanginges haue vpon one syde fyve cubytes, and the pillers vps the sockets: And vpon þe other syde fyve cubytes also, and the pillers vps the sockets.

And in the couer gate there shall be an hanginge twynny cubytes brede, of yelow silk, scarlet, purple, and whyte wynded sylk, wrought with noble worke, and foure pi llers vpon the same sockets. All the pillers rounde aboute the couer shall haue fyue whopes, & syluer knoppes, & sockets of bras se. And the length of þe couer shall be an h undred cubytes, the bredd fyve cubytes, the height fyve cubytes, of whyte wynded silk and þe sockets therof shall be of brasse. All þe vestels also of the habitacion to all maner seruise, and all the nales of it, and all the na les of the couer shall be of brasse.

Commaunde þe chyldeyn of Israel, þe they brynge vnto þe most clere & pure oyle oli ue beaten, to geue lighte, þe it maye all waye be put in the lampes in the Tabernacle of wy rtiss without the vayne, that hangeth before the wyrtiss. And Aar & his sonnes shall dresse it from the euenynge vntill þe mornyn ge before the LORDE. This shall be vnto you a perpetual custome for youre posterities a monge the chyldeyn of Israel.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

1 And thou shalt take vnto the Aaron thy broder and his sonnes six amonge the chyldeyn of Israel, that he maye be my priest: namely Aaron & his sonnes El iab, Abihu, Eleazar and Jehamar: thou shalt make holy clothes for Aar & his broder, honorable and glorious, & shalt speake vnto all chem that are rest of here, whom I haue filled with the spere of wysdome, that they make garmentes to Aaron for his consecra cion, that he maye be my priest.

These are þe garmentes which they shal make: a bishoppes, an ouerbody cote, a cary cle, an albe, a mytre and a gyrdell. Thus shal they make holy garmentes for þe broder Aar and his sonnes, that he maye be my priest.
They shal take thereto golde, yelow silk, scar let, purple, and whyte silk.

The ouerbody cote that they make of gol de, yelow silk, scarlet, purple, & whyte wynd ed silk: of lioberd worke, that it maye be fastned together vpon both the sydes by þe edges therof. And his gyrdell vps it shall be of þe same woollshyppe & stuff, men of golde yelow silk, scarlet, purple, & whyte wynd syke. And thou shalt take two Onix stones, and graue in them the names of the children of Israel. Sett names upon the one stone, and the first other names upon the other stone according to the order of their age. This shalt thou do by the stone grauer that graue signetes, so that 3 stones with the names of the children of Israel to be set rounde aboute with golde; and thou shalt put them upon the two shuldres of the ouerbody coze, that that they maye be stones of remembrance for the children of Israel, that Aaron maye beate their names upon both his shuldres before the LORDE for a remembrance.

C Thou shalt make bores of golde also, and two wiche cheynes of pure golde, and shalt fasten them vnto the bores.

The bresslape of iudgment shalt thou make of biddes woote, euen after the woote of the ouerbody coze; of golde, yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte ruynd sylke. Foure square shall it be and babbie, an hande bieth longe, and an handebieeth biode. And thou shalt fill it with foure rowes full of stones. Let the first rowe be a Sardis, a Topas, and a Smaragde. The seconde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, and a Dymonde. The thirde: a Liguriou, an Achaz, and an Amethyst. The fourth: a Turcas, an Onix, and a Jaspis. In golde shall they be set in all the rowes, and shalt stonde according to 3 twolue names of the children of Israel, grauen of the stonegrauer, euery one with his name according to the wolvertybe.

D And vpon the bresslape thou shalt make wiche cheynes by 3 corners of pure golde, and two golde rynges, so that then faste the same two rynges vnto two edges of the bresslape, and put the two wiche cheynes of golde in the same two rynges, that are in two edges of the bresslape. But the two endes of 3 two wiche cheynes shalt thou fasten in the two bores vpon the ouerbody coze one ouer agaynst another.

And thou shalt make two other rynges of golde, and fasten them vnto 3 other two edges of 3 bresslape, namely to 3 borders thereof, wherewith it maye hang on the ynsyde vpon the ouerbody coze. And yet shalt thou make two rynges of golde, and fasten them vpon the two edges beneath to the ouerbody coze, vpon the outsyde one ouer agaynst another, where the ouerbody coze ioynech together.

E And the bresslape shall be fastened by his rynges vnto the rynges of the ouerbody coze with a yalow lace, that it maye lye close vpon the ouerbody coze, and that the bresslape be not loosid, from the ouerbody coze.

Thou shalt Aaron beate the names of the children of Israel in 3 bresslape of iudgment vpon his berr, when he goeth in to the Sanctuary, for a remembrance before the LORDE allwaye. And in the bresslape of iudgment thou shalt put 3 light and per ficencesse, that they be vpon Aarons berr, when he goeth in before the LORDE, and that he maye beate the iudgment of the children of Israel vpon his berr before the LORDE allwaye.

Thou shalt make the tuncycle also to the ouerbody coze all of yalow sylke, and aboute in the myddest thereof shall be an hole, and a bonde solden together rounde aboute the hole, that it remeue not. And brenth vpon the hemme thou shalt make pomgranates of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple rounde aboute, and balles of golde betwixte the same rounde aboute: that there be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute the hemme of the same tuncycle. And Aaron shall haue it vpon him wha he ministrerth, that the soude thereof maye be herde, when he goeth out and in at the Sanctuary before the LORDE, that he dyenoe.

Thou shalt make a foreheade plate also of pure golde, and graue therein (after the workmanshipe of the stone grauer) the belynes of the LORDE, with a yalow lace shalt thou fasten it vnto the fore fronte of the tuncycle vpon Aarons fore heade, 3 Aaron maye beate 3 synne of the holy thinges, which the childre of Israel haue in all their giftes and Sanctuary. And it shall be allwaye vpon his fore heade, that he maye reconcyte them before the LORDE.

Thou shalt make an aube also of whyte sylke, and a myter of whyte sylke, and a gybele of ble woote.

And for Aarons formes thou shalt make cozes, gybles and bonetes, ydoneable and glorious, and shalt put them vpon thy brother Aaron and his sonnes, and shalt anoynte them, and fill their handes, and consecrate them, that they maye be my prestes. And thou shalt make them ymen biches, to couer the flesh of their penities, from the loynes vnto the thyrs. And Aaron and his sonnes shall haue them on, when they go in to the Tabernacle of witness, or go vnto the altare to ministrer in the holy, that they beare not their synne, and dye. This shalbe a perpetuall custome for him, and his side after him.

The XXX. Chapter.

And this is also, that thou shalt do vnto them, that they may be consecrated purties vnto me. Take a yonge bullocke, and two rammes without blemish, unincubed bred, & unincubed calves myrre w^o oyle, and waxes of smere bred tempered w^o oyle: Of wheate flour shalt thou make them all, and put them in a maunde, & bringe them in the maunde, with the bullocke & two rammes.

And thou shalt bringe Aaron & his sonnes vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, & wash them w^o water, & take the garments, and put upon Aaron the albe and the tunicke, & the ouer body coce, & the beslappede of ouer body coce, & shalt gyde him on the oute syde vpon the ouer body coce, and set the myrre vpon his heade, and the holy crowne vpon the myrre: and shalt take the anoyntinge oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, and anoynt him.

Thou shalt bringe forth his sonnes also, & put the albes vpon them, and gyde both Aaron & them with gyddes, & set the benettes vpon their heades, that they may haue the priesthood for a perpetuall custome.

And thou shalt fille the handes of Aaron and his sonnes, and bringe forth the bullocke before the Tabernacle of witness. And Aaron and his sonnes shall lay their handes vpon the heade of the bullocke, and thou shalt sleie the bullocke before the LORDE, at the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and shalt take of his bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare with thy fynger, and poure all the other bloude vpon the botome of the altare.

And thou shalt take all the fat that coce with the bowels and the net vpon the leuer, and the two kyndes w^o the fat that is aboute them, and burne them vpon the altare. And the bullockes fleshy, sityne and donge, shalt thou burne with fyre without the doore: for it is a synneoffyringe.

The one ramme shalt thou take also, and Aaron with his sonnes shall lay their handes vpon his heade. Then shalt thou sleie him, and take of his bloude, and sprenckle it vpon the altare rounde aboute. And the ramme shalt thou dwayne in peeces, and washy his bowels and his legges, and laye them vpon the pece and the heade, and burne the whole ramme vpon the altare: for it is a burneoffyringe, and a sweete sauoure of the sacrifice vnto the LORDE.

As for the other ramme, thou shalt take him, and Aaron with his sonnes shall laye their handes vpon his heade, and thou shalt sleie him, and take of his bloude, and put it vpon the tycpe of the right eare of Aaron and his sonnes, and vpon 3 thombe of their right handes, and vpon the greace coo of their right side, and thou shalt sprenckle the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, and shalt take of the bloude vpon the altare and the anoyntinge oyle, and sprenckle it vpon Aaron and his wysymettes, vpon his sonnes and their vestymettes. So shall he and his clothes, his sonnes and their clothes be consecrated.

Then shalt thou take the fat of the ramme, the rumpe, and the fat that cometh 3 bowels, the net vpon the leuer, and the two kyndes w^o the fat that is aboute them, and the right shulder (for it is a ramme of consecration) and a synnell of bred, and an oyled cake, and a wafer out of the maunde of the unincubed bred: that thou shalt bringe before the LORDE, and put all in to the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waue it vnto the LORDE. The cake it out of their handes, and burne it vpon the altare for a burneoffyringe, to be a sweete sngoure vnto 3 LORDE. So it is the LORDES sacrifice.

And thou shalt take the best of the ramme of Aarons consecraciō, & shalt waue it before 3 LORDE, 3 shall be his parte. And thou shalt thou haloue 3 wauchest & 3 heueshulder 3 are waued & heaved of 3 rammes of the consecraciō of Aaron & his sonnes: And it shalbe a perpetuall custome for Aarō and his sonnes of 3 children of Israel: for it is an heueoffyringe, and the heueoffyringe shalbe the LORDES dewtye of the children of Israel, in their headeoffyringes and heueoffyringes which they do vnto the LORDE.

And the holy garments of Aaron shall his sonnes haue after him, that they may be anoynted therin, & 3 their handes may be fylled. Loke which of his sonnes shalbe purt in his steade, the same shal put them on froe daye, that he maye go in to the Tabernacle of witness, to wysmyt in the Sanctuary.

But the rymme of consecraciō shalt thou take, and scath his fleshy in an holy place. And Aaron with his sonnes shal eat the fleshy of the same ramme with the bred in the maunde, at the doore of the Tabernacle of witness: for there is an actonment made therewith, to fill their handes, that they maye be consecrated. 3 strange shal not eate therof, for it is holy.

But of any of the flesh of the consecration, and of the blood remaine vntill the morning, thou shalt burne it with fyre, and not let it be eaten, for it is holy. And thus shalt thou do with Aaron and his sonnes all that I haue commaunded y. Seven dayes shalt thou fill their handes, and offer a bullocke daylie for a synne offering, because of them y shalt be reconciled. And thou shalt halowe the altare, when thou reconcylest it: ⁊ shalt anoynte it, that it maye be consecrated. Seven dayes shalt thou reconcyle the altare, ⁊ consecrate it, that it maye be an altare of the Most holy. Who so wyl touch the altare, must be consecrated.

1. Par. 17.2

¶ And thus shalt thou do with the altare: Two lambes of one yeare olde shalt thou offer every daye vpon it: the one lambe in the morning, and the other at euen. And to one lambe a tenth deale of wheate flour, mingled with y fourth parte of an eyn of beaten oyle, and y fourth parte of an eyn of wine for a dryn offering. With the other lambe at euen shalt thou do like as with y meate offering, and drynt offeringe in the morninge, for a sweete sauour of sacrifice vnto y LORDE. This is the daylie burnt offeringe amonge youre posterities, at the doore of the Tabernacle of wyrtesse before the LORDE, where I will proteste vnto you, and talke with the. There wil I proteste vnto the children of y Israel, and be sanctified in my glory, and wyshalowe the Tabernacle of wyrtesse and the altare, and consecrate Aar and his sonnes, to be my priestes. And I wyl dwell amonge the children of y Israel, ⁊ wyl be their God: so y they shal knowe, how that I am the LORDE their God, which broughe them out of the lande of Egypce, that I might dwell amonge them, euen I the LORDE their God.

The XXX. Chapter.

¶ Thou shalt make also a incense altare to burne incense, of fyre tre, a cubyte longe ⁊ brode, euen foure square, and two cubytes hye with his boundes, ⁊ shalt overlaye it with pure golde, the roste ⁊ the walles of it rounde aboute, and the hornes therof, ⁊ a crowne of golde shalt thou make rounde aboute it, and two golde rynge on either syde vnder the crowne, that they maye be staues put therein, to beate it with all.

The staues shalt thou make of fyre tre also, and overlaye this with golde: and shalt set it before the waye, that hangeth before the arte of wyrtesse, and before the Mercy seate y is vpon the wyrtesse, from whence I wyl proteste vnto the. And Aaron shal burne sweete incense theron every morninge, whi he duesteth the lannes. In like maner whan he lighteth the lannes at euen, he shall burne such incense also. This shal be the daylie incense before the LORDE amonge youre posterities.

¶ Ye shall put no straunge incense therein, offer no burnt offeringe, nor meate offeringe, neither drynt offeringe theron. And vpon y hornes of it shall Aaron reconcyle once a yeare, with y blood of the synne offeringe, which they shall offer that are reconcyled. This shal be done amonge youre posterities for this is the most holy vnto the LORDE.

¶ And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and saye: When thou nombrest the heades of the children of y Israel, then shal every one geue vnto the LORDE the reconcyng of his soule, y there happed not a plage vnto them, whan they are nombred. Every one that is colde in the nombre, shall geue half a Sycke, after the Sycke of the Sanctuary: one Sycke is worth twentye Sheas. This half Sycke shal be y LORDES shee offeringe. Who so is in the nombre from twentye yeare and aboue, shal geue this shee offeringe vnto y LORDE. The rich shal noe geue more, and the poore shal noe geue lesse in the half Sycke, which is geuen vnto the LORDE to be an shee offeringe for the reconcyng of their soules.

¶ And this money of recouyng shal thou take of the children of y Israel, ⁊ put it to the Gods seruyce of the Tabernacle of wyrtesse, that it maye be a remembrance vnto the children of y Israel before the LORDE, that he maye let himself be reconcyled ouer their soules.

¶ And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and saye: Thou shalt make a basin lauer also with a fore of brass to wash, and shalt set it betwixt the Tabernacle of wyrtesse and y altare, and put water therein, that Aar and his sonnes maye wash their handes and feete theron, whan they go in to the Tabernacle of wyrtesse, or to the altare, to myntie vnto the LORDE with offeringe incense, y they dye noe. This shal be a perpetuall custome for him and his sibe amonge their posterities.

¶ And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, and saye: Take vnto the spyces of the best, fytty hundred Sycles of Myrr, and of Cynamome half so much, euen two hundred and fytty, and of Almus two hundred and fiftye, and of Cassia fyue hundred (after the Sy-de of the Sanctuary) 2 an ſhin of oyle oyle-ne, and make an holy anoyntinge oyle, after the craft of the Apoecary.

D And there wth shalt thou anoynte the Tab^{er}naacle of wyneſſe, the Arke of wyneſſe, the table with all his apparell, 3 candillſicke with his apparell, the altare of incenſe, the altare of burneofferynges with all his apparell, 2 the ſauer with his ſore: and thus ſhalt thou conſecrate them, that they maye be meſt holy: for who ſo muſt touch the, muſt be conſecrated. Thou ſhalt anoynte Aaron alſo, and his ſonnes, and conſecrate them to be my priſtes.

And thou ſhalt ſpeake vnto the childre of Iſrael, and ſay: This oyle ſhalbe an holy oyntment vnto me amonge yo^r poſterities: It ſhal not be poured vpon mans body, nether ſhalbe thou make any ſoch like it, for it is holy: the ſore ſhal it be holy vnto you. Who ſo maketh any ſoch like, or geueth a ſtrainger

And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: Take vnto the ſpyces: Balme, Staecce, Galban, and pure frankincenſe, of one as much as of another, and make incenſe therof (after the craft of the Apoecary) mygled together, that it maye be pure 2 holy. And thou ſhalt beate it to powder, and ſhalt put of the ſame before the wyneſſe in the Taberhaue given wyſdome in to the heartes of all that are wyſe, that they ſhall make all that

I haue commanded the: the Tabernacle of wyneſſe, the Arke of wyneſſe, the Mer-cyſeate theron, and all the ornamentes of 3 Tabernacle, the table and his apparell, the candillſicke and all his apparell, the altare of incenſe, the altare of burneofferynges wth all his apparell, the ſauer with his ſore, the myſteryng ſymmentes of Aaron 3 priſt, and the garmentes of his ſonnes to ſerue like priſtes, the anoyntinge oyle, and the ſicke of ſpyces for 3 Sanctuary. All that I haue commanded thee, ſhal they make.

And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, C and ſayde: Speake vnto the children of Iſ-rael, and ſay: Hepe my Sabbath, for it is a token betwene me and you, and youre poſtericies, that ye maye knowe, howe that I am the LORDE which haloweth you: that ſore kepe my Sabbath, for it ſhalbe holy vnto you. Who ſo vnhaloweth it, ſhall dye the death: for who ſo doth any worke therin, ſhalbe roced out from amonge his people.

Six dayes ſhall men worke, but vpon the ſeuenth daye is the Sabbath, the holy reſt of the LORDE. Who ſo doth any worke vpon the Sabbath daye, ſhall dye the death.

Therefore ſhal the childre of Iſrael kepe the Sabbath, that they maye kepe it alſo amonge their poſterities for an ewerlaſtyng covenant. An ewerlaſtyng token is it be-twene me and the childre of Iſrael. For in ſix dayes made the LORDE heauen 2 earth, but vpon 3 ſeuenth daye he reſted, and was reſiſhed.

And when the LORDE had made an ende of talkynge with Moſes vpon the mount Sinai, he gaue him two tables of wyneſſe, which were of ſtone, and wyrtzen with the ſpynger of God.

The XXXII. Chapter.

When the people ſaw that Moſes made lge carryinges to come downe meſt the moune, they gathered the together agaynſt Aaron, 2 ſayde vnto him:
Up, and make vs goddes, to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of thy man Moſes, that broughte vs out of Egi-pt. Aaron ſayde vnto them: Plucke of the golden carryinges from the eares of youre wynes, of y^e sonnes, & of y^e daughters, & bringe them into me. Then all the people place of their golden earrynges from their eares, & broughe them unto Aaron. And he toke them of their handes, & fashioned it to a grauer. And they made a molten calfe, and sayde: These are thy goddes (O Israel) that broughe thee out of the lande of Egypte.

14. 109. c

B When Aaron sawe that, he buyded an altare before him, and caused it to be proclaimed, and sayde: Tomorrow is the LORDES feast. And they arose up early in the mornynge, and offered burnt offeringes, and broughe deadbofferinges also: Then the people sat them downe to eate and drynke, & rose up to playe.

16. 109. c

But the LORD E sayde unto Moses: Get thee downe, for thy people whom thou broughest out of the lande of Egypte, have married all: they are some gone out of the waie, which I commaunded them. They haue made them a molten calfe, and haue worshipped it, & offered vnto it, & sayde: These are thy goddes (O Israel) that broughe thee out of the lande of Egypte.

When he came nye vnto the hooff, and sawe the calfe, and the daunssynge, he was moued with wrath, and cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them beneath the mount. And he toke the calfe that they had made, and bent it with fyre, and stamped it into powder, and strowed it in the water, & gaue it vnto the chyldren of Israel to drynke, & sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast broughe so greata synne vpon them?

Aaron sayde: Let not the wrath of my lorde waxe feare: thou knowest, that this is a wycked people. They saye vnto me: Make vs goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this man Moses, & broughe vs out of the lande of Egypte. I saye vnto them: Who so hath golde, let him place it of, and geue it me: I cast it in the fyre, therof came this calfe.

Now when Moses sawe, that the people were naked: for Aaron, when he set them up, made them naked to their shame: he toke in to the gate of the hooff, and sayde: Who so belongeth vnto the LORD E, let him come hither vnto me. Then all the chyldren of Levi gathered them selues vnto him, and he sayde vnto them: Thus saith the LORD E the God of Israel: Every man put his sword by his syde, and go thorow in and ouer from one gate to another in the hooff, and slaye every man his brother, frende, & neyghboure.

The chyldren of Levi dyd, as Moses sayde vnto them. And thers fell of the people the same daye the thousand men. The sayde Moses: Circumcise youre handes this daye vnto the LORD E, every man vpon his forme and brother, that the prayse maye be geuen ouer vpon this daye.

On the morow Moses sayde vnto the people: We haue done a greata synne. Now I wil go vnto the LORD E, yf peradventure I maye make an atonement for youre synnes.

Now when Moses came agayne vnto the LORD E, he sayde: Oh this people haue done a greata synne, & haue made them goddes of golde. Now for geue them their synne yf not, the wypp me out of the world, that thou hast myntem. The LORD E sayde vnto Moses: What syn that synneth agaynst me, wil I wypp out of my. bode. Go thou ple, be cause they made vj cause which Aaron made.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

2.1 The LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Go, departe hence, thou and the people, whom thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, vnto vj londe that I swa-1.2 re vnto Abiham, Isaac and Jacob, and 1.4 sayde: vnto þ sode wil I geue it, and I wil 1.4 send an angell before the, and cast out the 1.4 Canaanites, Amoitites, hehitites, pherisites, 1.4 heuites and Jebusites: in to the londe that floweth with mylke and hony, for I wil 1.2 not go vp with the: for thou art an hard-nedded people, I might consume the by the waye. When the people herde this euell sydynges, they feared, and no man put on his best rayment.

2.2 And þ LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Speake vnto the children of Israel: Ye are a styf-nedded people. I must once come sodenly vpon the, and make an ende of the. And now pur of thy goodly aray from the, þ I maie knowe what to do vnto the. So the children of Israel laied their goodly aray from the,
 iuen before the mount hoeb.

Moyses toke the Tabernacle, and pitched it withoute a fars of from þ hoost, and called it the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And who so euer wolde aske any question at the LORDE, wente out vnto the Tabernacle of wyntesse before the hoost. And whan Moyses wente out vnto the Tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode every one in his tent doie, and 1.2 loked after Moyses, tyll he was gone in to the Tabernacle. And whan Moyses entred in to the Tabernacle, the cloudy pyler came downe, and stode in the doie of the Tabernacle, and he talked with Moyses. And all the people sawe the cloudy piler stonde in the doie of the Tabernacle, and rose vp, and worshipped, every one in his tent doie.

1.4 And the LORDE spake vnto Moyses face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his friende.
 1.4 And whan he turned agayne to the hoost, þ 1.4.2 yonge mā Josua þ sonne of Nun his minister, departed not out of þ Tabernacle. And Moyses sayde vnto the LORDE: Beholde, thou saydest vnto me: Bringe þ people vp, and lettest me not knowe, whom thou wilt sende w me, yett hast thou sayde: I knowe the by name, and thou hast founde grace in my sighte. Let me knowe thy waye therfore, whereby I maye be certified, þ I fynde grace in thy sighte: And consyde yett, that this people is thy people.

He sayde: My presence shal go before the,
 there with wyll I lede the. But he sayde vnto him: If thy presence goe not, then cary vs not vp from hence: for wherby shal it be knowne, þ I and thy people haue founde fa-uoure in thy sighte, but in þ thou goest with vouchar: I t thy people maye haue some pite-raynence before all people that are vpon the face of the earth. The LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: I will do this also: that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my sighte, and I knowe the by name.

He sayde: Oh let me see thy glory. And he sayde: I wil cause all my good go ouer before thy face, and wyll let the name of þ LOR-DE be called vpon before the. And I shewe 2.0 mercy, to whom I shewe mercy: and haue compassion, on whom I haue compassion.
 And he sayde moreover: Thou mayest not se my face: for there shal no mā lye, þ sech me. And þ LORDE sayde farthermore: beholde, 2.0 there is a place by me, there shal thou stande vpon the rocke. Now whan my glory goeth forþ, I wil put þ in a clyffe of þ roc-ke, and my hande shal holde thyll vnto the, tyll I be passed by. And whan I teake awaye my hande from the, thou shalt see my backe par-tes, but my face shal not be seene.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

1.2 And the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: A I haue made two tables of stone, like as þ first were, that I maye write in them the wordes, þ were in the first tables, which thou hast: and be ready in the morninge, that thou mayest come vp early vnto mount Sinai, and stonde me vpon the toppe of the mount. And let no man come vp with the,
 that there be no man seue thou out all þ mount: and let neither shepe, nee oxen stode before the mount.

And Moyses hewed two tables of stone, like as the first were, and rose early in the mornyng, and wente vnto mount Sinai, as þ LORDE commaunded him, and toke þ two tables of stone in his hande. The came the LORDE downe in a cloude. And there he stode vnto him, and called vnto þ name of þ LORDE. And whan þ LORDE passed by before his face, he cryed: LORDE LORDE, God, mercifull and gracious, a longe sufferinge, and of greates mercy and tresh, thou that passest mercy in floore for thoufandes, and forgest not wickednes, trespace and synne (before whom there is no remission)

no man innocent: thou that viſiteſt the wickedneſſe of the fathers vpon ſ children and children children, vnto the thirde and fourth generation.

B And Moſes bowed him ſelf downe vnto the earth, and worſhipped him, and ſaide: LORDE, yf I haue founde grace in thy ſight, cheſe let the LORDE go with vs (for it is an hard needeſt people) that thou mayeſt haue mercy vpon our wickedneſſe, and ſynne, and let vs be thine inheritance.

And he ſaide: Beholde, I make a covenanant before all y people, & wil do wonders, ſuch as haue not bene done in all landes, and amonge all people. And all y people amonge whom thou art, ſhal ſe y worke of y LORDE, for a terrible thinge ſhal it be, y I wil do w the Hepe that I commaunde ſ this daye.

Beholde, I wil caſt out before the: y Amoritans, Cananites, Chitites, Pherezites, Henuites and Jebuſites. Bewarre, that thou make no covenanant with the inuellers of the lande y thou commeſt in to, leſt they be caſt of y ruine in the myddell of the: but their altars ſhal cheſe ouerthrowe, & breake downe their goddes, and rote out their grooues:

for thou ſhal worſhippe no ocher god, for y LORDE is called geſelus, becauſe he is a ge loue God: leſt (yf thou make any agreement with the inuellers of the lande, and when they go a whoringe after their goddes, and do ſacrifice vnto their goddes) they call y, and thou eate of their ſacrifice, and leſt thou take of their doughters vnto thy ſonnes to wyues, and the ſame go a whoringe after their goddes, & make thy ſonnes go a whoringe after their goddes alſo.

C Thou ſhalt make y no goddes of metall. The feaſt of ſweete bread ſhal thou kepe. Seuen daies ſhal thou eate vnleued bread, like as I commaunded the in the tyme of the maneh Abraſon in the moneth Abib thou wolt out of Egipte. All y firſt breakeſh the Marris is myne, ſuch as ſhalbe male amonge y carell, y breakeſh the Marris, whether it be oxe or ſhepe. But the firſt of thynne Aſſe ſhal thou bye out w a ſhepe: yf thou redeeme it not, then breake his necke. All the firſt borne of thy children ſhal thou redeeme.

And ſe that no man appeare before me emptye.

Six dayes ſhal thou laboꝝ vpon y ſeuen daye ſhal thou reſt both from plowinge and reapinge. The feaſt of weekes ſhal thou kepe with the firſtinges of the wheate harrow: and the feaſt of yngatheringe at y yeares ende. Thynne in a yeare ſhal all y men children appeare before the Gouernour, euen the LORDE and God of Iſrael.

When I ſhal caſt out the Heathen before the, & enlarge y borders, there ſhal no man deſire thy lode: for ſo much as thou goeſt vpon the tymes in the yeare, to appeare before y LORDE thy God. Thou ſhal not offer the bloude of my ſacrifice w leuened bread. And the offeringe of the Eaſter feaſt ſhal not remaine ouer nighte vntill the morninge. The firſtinges of y firſt frutes of thy lode ſhal thou bringe in to the houſe of the LORDE thy God. Thou ſhal not ſeich a Lydd, why it is yet in his mothers mylke.

And the LORDE ſaide vnto Moſes: my te theſe wordes, for becauſe of theſe wordes haue I made a covenanant with the w Iſrael. And he was there with the LORDE fortye dayes and fortye nightes, and ate no bread, and dranke no water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the covenanant, euen ten verſes.

Now whā Moſes came downe fro mount Sinai, he had the two tables of wyneſſe in his hande, & wylt not y the ſynne of his fa ce ſhyned, becauſe he had talked wch him. And whā Aaron & all the childre of Iſrael ſawe y the ſynne of his face ſhyned, they were aſtrayed to come nye him. The Moſes called them. And they returned vnto him, both Aaron & all the cheſt of the congregacion. And he talked w them. A ſterwarde came all the children of Iſrael vnto him. And he commaunded cheſe, all y the LORDE had ſay de vnto him vpon the mount Sinai. Now when he had made an ende of talkinge w theſe, he put a coveringe vps his face. And when he wete in beſide y LORDE to talke w him, he toke y coveringe of, till he wete out agayne. And when he came forth y ſpake w the childre of Iſrael what was commaunded him, cheſe the childre of Iſrael ſawe his face, how y the ſynne of his face ſhyned: ſo he put the coveringe vps his face agayne, till he wente in agayne to talke wch him.

The xxxv. Chapter.

And Moſes gathered all the congregacion of y childre of Iſrael together, and ſaide vnto them: This is it, y the LORDE hath commaunded you to do: Six dayes ſhall ye worke, but the ſeuen daye ſhall ye kepe holy: a Sabbath of the LORDES reſt. Who ſo euer doeth any worke therein, ſhall dye. Ye ſhal kymble no fyre vpon the Sabbath daye in all your dwellinges. And Moſes ſaide vnto y whole congregacion of the childre of Iſrael: This is it,

The ij. booke of Moyses. The xxxij. Chap. Fo. xxxij.

that the LORDE hath commaunded: Geue 12 from amonge you these offerynges unto LORDE, so that every one bringe the LOR-DES these offerynges with a fre hert: golde, syluer, brass, yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, and goates hayre, reed stymes of ramme, doo stymes, and Syrette, oyle for the lannes, and spycos for the anyntinge oyle and for swete incense. Omis stones, and stones to be set in þe overbody coate, and for the busflappe.

2 And who so is wysk of hert amonge you, let him come, & make what the LORDE hath commaunded: namely, the habitacion with the tent & conerynges therof, the rynges, bor-des, barres, pilers & solerces: The Arke wth the staues therof, the Mercyseate & the way scrite table with his staues & all his appar-rell: the shewbrd: The cassidre of lighte and his apparell, and his lannes, & the oyle for the lightes: The altare of incense with his staues: The anyntinge oyle and spycos for incense: The hangyng before þe Tabernaclike doore: The alter of burnt offerynges with his brasen greddyon, staues and all his apparell: The laver with his foote: The han-ginges of the court, with the pilers and so-leres therof, & the hangyng of the court doore: The nales of the habitacion and of þe court with their cordes: The mystryng garments for the seruyce in the hely, & holy vestimences of Aaron the prest & the vest-imences of his sonnes for þe prestes office.

C Then wente all the congregation of the chyldre of Israel out fro Moyses, & every one broughe the gift of his hert: & all that they wolde of fre will, the same broughe they for an here offeryng unto the LORDE: for þe woite of the Tabernacle of wienesse, & for all the seruyces therof, & for the holy vestim-ces. Both men & women that were of a wyskyng hert, broughe diademes, earynges, rynges & gyddels, and all maner Jewels of golde: Every man also broughe golde for Wane offerynges unto the LORDE.

And who so euer founde by him yallow syl-ke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, goates hayre, reed stymes of ramme, and doo stymes, broughe it. And who so euer hove up syluer & brass, broughe it for þe here offeryng unto the LORDE. And who so euer founde sy-rette by him, broughe it for all maner of wea-ke of the Godes seruyce. And soch women as were wysk herted, spanne with their handes, and broughe ther sponne woite of yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke. And soch women as had þe undirstondyng in wysdome, spanne goates hayre.

 As for þe prynces, they broughe Omis stones, and set stones, for þe overbody coate, and for the busflappe, and spycos, and oyle for þe lightes, and for the anyntinge oyle, and for swete incense. Thus the chyldren of Israel broughe fre wyllyng offerynges, both man and wemen, for all maner of woite, that the LORDE had commaunded by Moyses, to be made.

And Moyses saide unto the chyldre of Israd: Beholde, þe LORDE hath called by name Bezaleel þe some of Uri, þe sonne of Urie, Exo. 31. A of the trybe of Juda, & hath fylled him wth the spycos of God, that he maye have wysdome, undirstondyng, & knowlege for all maner of woite, to woite connyngly in golde, syluer & brass, to grave precious stones & to set them, to carve in wodd, to make all manner of connyng woites, and hath geue instrucion in his hert, both him and Ahaliab the some of Ahisamach of þe trybe of Dan.
 These hath he fylled wth wysdome of hert, to make all maner of woite, to carve, to bod-der, to woite with needle woite, with yallow sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte sylke, and with wecyng to make all maner of woite, and to deuyse connyng woites.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

Then wrought Bezaleel & Ahaliab A all the wysk herted men, unto whom the LORDE had geuen wysdome & undirstondyng to knowe, how they shoulde make all maner woite for the seruyce of the Sanctuary, acordyng unto all þe LORDE commaundes. And Moyses called for Beza-leel & Ahaliab, & all the wysk herted men, unto whom the LORDE had geuen wysdome in their hertes, namely, all such as wyllyngly offred them selues there, & came to labour in the woite. And they receaued of Moyses all the here offerynges, that the chyldren of Israel had brought for the woite of the ser-uyce of the Sanctuary, that it mighte be made: every morninge broughe they their wal-linge offerynges unto him.

Then came all the wysk men & wroughte
 B in the woite of the Sanctuary, every one fro his woite that he made, & saide unto Moses: The people bringeth to much, more the neede is for the woite of this service, which the LORDE hath commaunded to make. The commaunded Moyses, that it shoulde be proclaimed theow out the booke: To man bringe more to the here offerynges of the Sanctuary. Then were the people forbydden to bringe: for there was stuff enough for all manner of worke, that was to be made, and to moch.

So all þe wyse hearted men amonge the þe
Exo. 36. a wroughte in y^e worke of the habitation, made ten curtaynes of whyte twayned sylke, yelow sylke, scarlet, purple, with Cherubynes of broderd worke. The lenth of one curtayne was eighte and twenye cubites, and the bredth foure cubites, ⁊ were all of one measure: ⁊ he coupled the curtaynes fyue ⁊ fyue together one to the other.

C And made yelow loupes a longe by þe edge of every curtayne, where they shulde be coupled together: fyfte loupes vpo every curtayne, wherby one might be coupled to another. And made fyfte buttons of golde, and with the buttons he coupled the curtaynes together one to the other, that it might be one coveringe.

And he made xi. curtaynes of goates hayre (for the tent ouer the habitation) of thirte cubytes longe, ⁊ foure cubytes brode, all of one measure, ⁊ coupled fyue together by them selues, ⁊ fixe by them selues, ⁊ made fyfte loupes a longe by þe edge of every curtayne, wherby they might be coupled together: ⁊ made fyfte buttons of blasse, to couple y^e tent togather withall. And made ouer y^e tent a coveringe of reed stuynes of rammes, ⁊ ouer that a coveringe of Doe slaynes.

And made stonbinge bordes for the habitation, of fyre tre, every one ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and a half brode, ⁊ two sete vnto every one, wherby one might be ioyned to another: that on the south syde they stode twenye of the same bordes; and made foureye syluer sockets there vnder, vnder every boide two sockets for his two sete. In like maner for the other syde of the habitation towards the north, he made twenye bordes also with foureye syluer sockets, vnder every boide two sockets: But behynde the habitation vpon the west syde, he made sixe bordes, and two other for the corners of the habitation behynde, that either of them both might be ioyned with his corner boide from vnder up, and above vpon the heade to come together with a clampe: so that there were eighte bordes, and sixtene sockets of syluer, vnder every one two sockets.

And he made barres of fyre tre, fyue for the bordes vpon the one syde of the habitation, and fyue vpon the other syde, and fyue behynde towards the west; and made the barres to sture thow the bordes, from the one ende to the other, and enclayde the bordes with golde. But their rynges made he of golde for the barres, and ouerlaid þe barres with golde.

And made Cherubyna vpon the hangynge with broderd worke, of yelow sylke, scarlet, purple, ⁊ whyte twayned sylke. And made for the same, foure pilers of fyre tre, and ouerlaid them with golde, and their knoppes of golde, and cast foure sockets of syluer for them.

And made an hanginge in the Tabernacle doore, of yelow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twayned sylke, of needle worke, and fyue pilers therto with their knoppes ⁊ ouerlaid their knoppes and whopes with golde, and fyue sockets of blasse therco.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

Unto Bezalel made the Arke of fyre tre, two cubites and a half lōge, a cubyte and a half brode, and a cubyte ⁊ a half hie, and ouerlaid it with fyne golde within and without, and made a crowne of golde vnto it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde to the foure corners of it, vpon every syde two. And made stauces of fyre tre, and ouerlaid the with golde, and put them in the rynges a longe by þe fydes of the Arke, to beate it withall.

And he made þe Mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubyte and a half brode, ⁊ made two Cherubynes of fyne beaten golde vpon the two endes of the Mercyseate: One Cherub vpon the one ende, and the other Cherub vpon the other ende: and the Cherubynes spredde out their wynges aboute an hie, and covered þe Mercyseate therewith: and their faces stode one ouer agaynst the other, and looked vnto the Mercyseate.

And he made y^e table of fyre tre, two cubytes longe, a cubyte brode, and a cubyte ⁊ a half hie, and ouerlaid it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made vnto it an whoope of an hande bredth hie, and made a crowne of golde rounde aboute the whoope. And for it he cast foure golde rynges, ⁊ put them in the foure corners by the setchard by the whoope, that the stauces might be therein, to beate the table withall: ⁊ made the stauces of fyre tre, and ouerlaid the with golde, to beate the stauces withall. And the vessels vpon the table made he also of fyne golde: the dishes, spones, flat peeces and pottes, to pour in and out withall.

And he made the candlesticke of fyne bea

14. ten golde, where upon was the haſt in braſſe chea, cuppes, knoppes, ⁊ floures. Sixe bianche chea proceeded out of y ſyde cherof, upon either ſyde the braſſeche: vpon enery braſſeche were thre cuppes like allmōdes, w knoppes and floures. Upon the candillſicke ſilf were foure cuppes with knoppes and floures, vnder every two braſſeche a knoppe. The knoppes ⁊ biancheche therof proceeded out of it, and were all one pce of fyne bearen golde. And he made the ſeuen lampes with their ſnoffers ⁊ outquenchers of pure golde. Of an hundredth weight of golde made he it, and all the apparell therof.

D He made alſo the altare of incenſe, of ſyluer, a cubyte longe and brode, caven foure ſquared, and two cubytes hye with the hoines of it, and overlaid it with fyne golde, the toppes and the ſydes of it rounde aboute, and the hoines therof, and made a crowne moe it rounde aboute of pure golde, ⁊ two golde rynges vnder the crowne on boch the ſydes, to put the ſtaues therein, and to beare it withall: but the ſtaues made he of ſyluer, and overlaid them with golde.

And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, ⁊ the incenſe of pure ſyluer, after y craſe of the Apoſtary.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

14. 1. 2. AND the altare of burnt offeringes made he of ſyluer, fyve cubytes ſege ⁊ brode, caven foure ſquared, ⁊ the cubites hye. And made foure hoines, which proceeded out of the ſeure cornere therof, and overlaid it with braſſe. And he made all maner of veſſels for the altare, cauldrons, ſpewels, baſins, ſhepholes, and celapannes all of braſſe. And vnto the altare he made a beaſen gerdyon of net worke rounde aboute, from vnder vp vnto the myddelt of the altare, ⁊ caſt foure rynges in the ſeure cornere of the beaſen gerdyon, for the ſtaues: which he made of ſyluer, and overlaid them w braſſe, and put them in the rynges by the ſyde of the altare, to beare it withall, and made it helowe with beides.

And he made the Laner of braſſe, ⁊ his ſeet alſo of braſſe upon the place of y hoof, that laſt before the doore of the Tabernacle of wyneſſe.

2. And he made the courte on y ſouth ſyde, hanginges on hundredth cubytes longe, of whyte twyned ſylke, with the twenty pilers therof, and twenty ſolteses of braſſe: but the knoppes and whoopes of ſyluer. In like maner vpon the north ſyde on hundredth cubytes with twenty pilers, and twenty ſolteses of braſſe, but their knoppes ⁊ whoopes of ſyluer. Vpon the weſt ſyde the ſixte ſolteses with ten pilers and ſolteses, but their knoppes and whoopes of ſyluer. Vpon the Eaſt ſyde ſixte cubytes. Sixene cubytes vpon either ſyde of the courte doore, w the pilers and the ſolteses: So that all the hanginges of the courte were of whyte twyned ſylke, and the ſolteses of the pilers were of braſſe, ⁊ their knoppes and whoopes of ſyluer: their beates were overlaid w ſyluer, ⁊ all the pilers of the courte were whooped aboute with ſyluer.

And the hanginges in y ſouthe gate made he w noble worke, of yalowe ſylke, ſcarlet, purple, ⁊ whyte twyned ſylke, twenty cubytes longe, ⁊ fyve cubytes hye, after the meaſure of the hanginges of the courte: foure pilers alſo thereto, ⁊ foure ſolteses of braſſe, and their knoppes of ſyluer, and their beades overlaid, and their whoopes of ſyluer. And all the males of the habitation and of the courte rounde aboute, were of braſſe.

This is now the ſumme of the habitation of wyneſſe: (which was counted at the commaundment of Moſes to y Gods ſervice of the Leuites vnder the hōde of Jehanar ſonne of Aaron the prief) which Dezaled the ſonne of Uri, the ſonne of Sur of the trybe of Juda made, all as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And w him Abihail y ſonne of Abihamaach of the trybe of Dana conynge grauer, to worke nedie worke, w yalowe ſylke, ſcarlet, purple, ⁊ whyte ſylke.

All the golde y was wrought in all this worke of the Sanctuary (which was given to the Waue offeringe) is nyne ⁊ twenty hundredth weight, ſeven hundredth ⁊ thre ſylces, after y Cycle of y Sanctuary. The ſylner y came of the congregacion, was fyve ſcore hundredth weight, a thouſande ſeven hundredth, fyve and ſaentye ſylces, after y Cycle of the Sanctuary: y many beades ſo many half ſylces, after the Cycle of the Sanctuary, of all that were nombred from twentye yeare olde and aboute, even ſixe hundredth and fiftye.

Of the fyve ſcore hundredth weight of ſylner, were caſt the ſolteses of the Sanctuary, and the ſolteses of the vayne, an hundredth ſolteses of the fyve ſcore hundredth weight, an hundredth weight to every ſolte. Of the thouſande, ſeven hundredth and fyve and ſentye ſylces were made the knoppes of the pilers (and their beades overlaid) and their whoopes.

So for the Waue offeringe of brass, it was seuentye hundred weight, two thousande and foure hundred Sykes: Wherof were made the sockets in the base of the Tabernacle of wyttnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gridiron thereto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sockets of 3 court rounde aboute, and the sockets of 3 court gate, all y nales of the habitation, 2 all y nales of y court rounde aboute.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

If the yalowe sylke, scarlet, 2 purple, they made Aarons mynistringe vestimenes, so do seruyce in the Sanctuary, as 3 I. O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And he made the ouerbody coate, of gelbe, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke, and betw the golde in to thynne plates, and cut it in to wyres, that it might be wrought amonge the yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte sylke, 2 made it so, that 3 ouerbody coate came together by the edges on both the sydes. And his ghydel was a fere the same crafte 2 worke: enes of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte twyned sylke, as the L O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And they wrought two Onix stones, set rounde aboute with golde, grauen by the stone grauer with the names of the children of Israel: and fastened them vpon the shuldere of the ouerbody coate, that they might be stones of remembrance vnto the children of Israel: as the L O R D E commaunded Moyses.

B And they made the bestlappes a fere the crafte 2 worke of the ouerbody coate: of gelbe, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke, so that it was square 2 bubble, an hande bredth longe and biode, and fylled it with foure rowes of stones. The first rowe was: a Sardio, a Topas, and a Sma ragde. The seckenda Ruby, a Saphyre, a Dyamonde. The thirde: a Lyncurio, a Achat, and an Amant. The fourth: a Turcas, an Onix 2 a Jaspis: closed rounde aboute with golde in all the rowes. And the stones stode after the twolue names of the children of Israel, grauen by the stone grauer, euery one with his name, accordinge to the twolue trybes.

And vpon the bestlappes they made twythen chymes of pure golde, and two holes of golde, 2 two golde rynges, and fastened the two rynges vpon the two edges of the bestlappes: and 3 two wyrtten chymes put they in the two rynges vpon the corners of the bestlappes. But the .i. .oo. endes of y twythen chymes put they to the two holes, 2 fastened them vpon the corners of the ouerbody coate, one cutt agaynst another.

And they made two other rynges of golde, 2 fastened them to the other two corners of the bestlappes by the edge of it, that it mighte hang vpon the out syde of the ouerbody coate. And they made yet two other golde rynges, which they putt beneth vpon the two corners of the ouerbody coate, one cutt agaynst another, where the ouerbody coate ioyneth together, that the bestlappes mighte be fastened by thir rynges vnto 3 rynges of the ouerbody coate with a yalowe lace, that it mighte lye close vpon 3 ouerbody coate, and not be lousfed from 3 ouerbody coate, as the L O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And he made the tuncle vnto the ouerbody coate, wrought all of yalowe sylke, 2 the hole therof aboute in the myddest, 2 a bande faste together rounde aboute the hole, that it shoulde not reme. And beneth vpon 3 hemme of it, they made pomgranates of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke, 2 they made belles of pure golde, which they putt betwixte 3 pomgranates rounde aboute vpon the hemme of the tuncle, a bell 2 a pomgranate, a bell 2 a pomgranate rounde aboute, so do seruyce in, as the L O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And they made albes also wrought of whyte sylke for Aaron 2 his sones, 2 3 myster of whyte sylke, and the goodly bonettes of whyte sylke, and baches of twyned whyte linnen, and the girdle of noble worke: enes of whyte twyned sylke, yalowe sylke, scarlet, and purple, as the L O R D E commaunded Moyses.

They made the fore heade platt also to 3 holy crowne, of pure golde, and mozte therein with grauen worke: the holynes of the L O R

D, and fastened a yalowe lace theron, to tye it vnto the myser above, as the LORDE cōmānded Moyses.

Thus the whole worke of y Habitation of y Tabernacle of wyrenesse, was finished. And the childre of y Israel dyd all that the LORDE cōmānded Moyses: & brought the Habitation vnto Moyses: the Tabernacle & all the apparell therof, the buttons, boordes, barres, pilers, sockets, & conerynge of reed skynnes of rammeo, the conerynge of doo skynnes, & the wayle, y Arke of wyrenesse w the staues therof, the Mercyseate, the table & all his apparell, & the shewbrot, the candlestick, w the lampes prepared, and all his apparell, & oyle for the ligghees, the golden altare, the anoyntinge oyle & incense, the hangin ge in the Tabernacle doore, the busin altare, & his busin grebyon w his staues: & all his apparell, & lauer w his foote, the hangynge of y cōurte w the pilers & sockets therof, y hangynge in the cōurte gate w his pilers & nales, & all the ordynance for the seruyce of the Habitation of y Tabernacle of wyrenesse, y mystrynge vestmētes of Aarō y prest, co do seruyce in y Sanctuary: & the garnēttes of his sonnes, y they inight seruyce y prestes office. Acordinge corall that y LORDE cōmānded Moyses, and so dyd the childre of y Israel in all this seruyce. And Moyses sawe all y worke, & they dyd it as y LORDE had cōmānded, and he blessed them.

The XL. Chapter.

Moyses & Moyses
 The LORDE spake vnto Moyses, & sayde In the first daye of the first month shal thou set up y Habitation of y Tabernacle of wyrenesse, and shal put the Arke of wyrenesse therin, and hangge the wayle before y Arke. And thou shal bunge in the cable, and garnish it, and bunge in the candlestick, and put the lampes theron. And y golde altare of incense shal thou set before y Arke of wyrenesse, & hangge up the hanginge in the doore of the Habitation. And the altare of burntofferin

The ii. booke of Moses.

ges shalt thou set before the doore of the habitation of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: & the lauer betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water therein, & set the coore rounde aboute, and hange vp the hanginge in the coore gate.

23 And thou shalt take the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynte the habitation and all that is there in: and shalt consecrate it, and all of apparell therof, that it maye be holy. And thou shalt anoynte the altare of burntofferynge and all his vessels, and consecrate it, that it maye be most holy. The lauer also & his foote shall thou anoynte & consecrate.

24 And thou shalt bynge Aaron & his sonnes vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and wash them with water, & put the holy vestiments vpon Aaron, and anoynte him, and consecrate him, that he maye be my prest. And thou shalt bynge his sonnes also, and put the albes vpon them, and anoynte them, as thou hast anoynted their father, & they maye be my prestes. And this anoyntynge shall they haue for an euerlastynge priesthode amonge their posterities. And Moses vndred all as the LORDE commaunded him.

C Thus was the Tabernacle set vp in the seconde yeare vpon the first daye of the first month. And when Moses rated it vp, he fastened & setekes and the boordes, and barres, and set vp the pilers, and spred ouer the tent ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tent aboute anhye, as the LORDE commaunded him. And he tolde the wytnesse, and layed it in the Arke, and put & shewes in the Arke, and set the Mercyseate aboue vpon the Arke, and broughte the Arke into the habitation, and hanged the wayle before the Arke of wytnesse, as the LORDE commaunded him.

25 And he set the cable in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, in the corner of the habitation vpon the north syde without the wayle, and prepared bedd thereon before & LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him.

26 And he set in the candlesticke also, euen ouer agaynst the cable, in the corner of the habitation open the south syde, and put the lampes thereon before & LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him. And the golden alme set he in also before the wayle, and burntofferynge incense thereon, as the LORDE commaunded him. And hanged vp the hanginge in the Tabernacle doore. As for the altare of burntofferynge, he set it before the doore of the habitation of & Tabernacle of wytnesse, and offered burntofferynge and meate offerynge thereon, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And the lauer set he betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and & altare, and put water therein to wash withall. And Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their habes and sete therat: for they oughte to wash the, when they wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they wente vnto the altare, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he set vp the coore rounde aboute the habitation and the altare, and hanged vp & hanginge in & coore gate. Thus Moses finished the whole worke.

Then a cloude covered & Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glory of the LORDE fylled the habitation. And Moses coulde not go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, whyle the cloude abode thereon, and the glory of & LORDE fylled the habitation.

And when the cloude remoued from the habitation, then wente the children of Israel forth, as oft as they toke their iourney. But yf the cloude remoued not, then toke not they their iourney, yll the daie that it remoued: for in the daye tyme was the cloude of the LORDE vpon the habitation, & in the nyght season was fyre therein, in y sight of all y house of Israel, in all their iourneys.

The first Chapter.

TO the LORDE called Moyses, and spake vnto him out of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, and sayde: Spake vnto y dyllit of Israell, & saie vnto them: Who so er ther amonge you wyl bringe an offeryng vnto the LORDE, let him bringe it of y cattell, euen of the open, & of the shepe.

If he wyl bringe a burnt offeryng of y open, or greace cattell, he let him offre a male without blemysch, before y doore of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, to reconyle him sibe for the LORDE, let him laye his hande vpon the heade of the burnt offeryng, then shall he be reconyled, so y God shalbe mercifull vnto him.

And he shall kyl the yonge ore before y LORDE, and y prestes Aarons sonnes shal bringe the bloude, and spenkle it rounde aboute vpon the altare, that is before the doore of the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And the slyme shalbe slayne from of the burnt offeryng, and it shalbe hewen in peeces. And the sonnes of Aaron the prest shal make a fyre vpon the altare, and laye wood aboute ther on, and y peeces, the heade, and the fat, shal they laye vpon the wood that lyeth vpon y fyre on the altare. But y bowels & legges shal be washsen with water, and the prest shal burne alle together vpon the altare for a burnt sacrifice: this is an offeryng of a sibe sifaunte vnto the LORDE.

If he wyl offre a burnt sacrifice of the small cattell, that is, of the lambe or goat, then let him offre a male without a blemysch. And he shall kyl it before the LORDE, euen at the corner of the altare on the north syde before y LORDE. And the prestes Aarons sonnes shal spenkle his bloude rounde aboute vpon y altare, and it shal be hewen in peeces. And the prest shal laye them vnto the heade and the fat, vpon the wood that lyeth upon the fyre on the altare. But the bowels and yf legges shal be washen with water. And yf spise shal offre it altogether, and burne it vpon. yf altare for a burnesacrifice. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

D But yf he wil offre a burnesacrifice of yf soules vnto the LORDE, then let him offre it of the small bones of yf yonge pigeons. And the prest shal bringe it vnto the altare, and maynge the neck of it a sunder, that it maye be burnt vpon the altare, and let the bloude of it raine out vpon the sydes of the altare, and the croppe of it with the feathers shalbe cast vpon the heape of ashyes besyde the altare toward the east, and he shall dryde the wynges of it, but not beate the cleane of. And thus shall the prest burne it vpon the altare, euen vpon the wood that lyeth vps the fyre, for a burnesacrifice. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

The ii. Chapter.

Whan a soule wil offre a meato offeringe vnto the LORDE, then shal it be of fyne flour, and he shal poure oyle vpon it, and put frankencense theron, & so bringe it vnto Aarons sonnes the prestes. Then shal one of them take his handfull of the same flour, and oyle with all the frankencense, and burne it for a remembraunce vpon the altare. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. As for yf remnant of the meato offeringe, it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes. This shalbe yf meff holy of the offeringes of the LORDE.

Leui. 10. d

But yf he wil bringe a meato offeringe of that which is baken in the oven, then let him take swete cakes of wheate, mixte with oyle, and vntwented wafers anoynted with oyle. And therelies yf thy meato offeringe be any thinge of that which is fryed in the panne, then shal it be of fyne swete flour mixte with oyle: And thou shalt cut it in peeces, & poure oyle theron: so is it a meato offeringe. But yf thy meato offeringe be engh: bawles on the grebyon, then shalt thou make it of fyne flour with oyle. And the meato offeringe that thou wilt make of sodi thinges for the LORDE, shalt thou bringe vnto yf prest, which shal bringe it vnto the altare, & shal heue vp the same meato offeringe for a remembrance, and burne it vpon the altare. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. As for the remnant, it shal be Aarons and his sonnes. This shal be the meff holy of the offeringes of the LORDE.

All the meato offeringes that ye will offre vnto the LORDE, shal ye make without leaue. For there shal no leaue nor hony be burne for an offeringe vnto the LORDE. But for the offeringe of the firstlinges shal ye offer it vnto the LORDE. And certaynes they shal come vpon no altare for a swete sauoure.

All thy meato offeringes shal thou offer: shal. And thy meato offeringe shal neuer be with out yf sale of the couenaunt of thy God: for in all thy offeringes shal thou offer sale.

But yf thou wilt offre a meato offeringe of the first frutes vnto yf LORDE, then shalt thou drye that which is grene, by the fyre, & beate it small, and so offre the meato offeringe of thy first frutes. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and laye frankencense theron, so is it a meato offeringe. And then shall the prest beate it, and burne of the oyle with all the frankencense for a remembrance. This is an offeringe vnto the LORDE.

The iii. Chapter.

Whe yf his offeringe be a deadoffering of greate cattell, whether it be one or come: then shal he offre sodi as is without blemish before the LORDE, & shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and put it before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness. And the prestes Aarons sonnes, shal sprentle the bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and shal offre of yf deadoffering vnto the LORDE: namely, all the fat that is within, and the two bydneyes with the fat that is theron vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vps the bydneyes also. And Aarons sonnes shal burne it vpon the altare for a burnesacrifice, euen vpon the wood that lyeth on the fyre. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

If his deadoffering be of small cattell, whether it be male or female, it shal be without blemish: If it be a lambe, then shal he bringe it before the LORDE, & shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and seye it before the Tabernacle of witness. And Aarons sonnes shal sprentle his bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and so offre of the deadoffering vnto the LORDE: namely, the fat of it, all the rompe with the backe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, with all yf fat that is within, and the two bydneyes with the fat that is theron vpon the loynes, & the net on the leuer vpon the bydneyes also. And the prest shal burne it vpon the altare, for yf meate of the offeringe vnto yf LORDE.

But yf his offeringe be a goat, and but gath it before the LORDE, he shal laie yf hande vpon the heade of it, and tyll it before the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And Aaron somas shal spittle the bloude rounde aboute vps the altare, 7 shal offer therof a sacrifice vnto the LORDE. Namely, the fat þe consecrth the bowels, and all the fat þe is within, the two kyndes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, 7 the net on the leuer vpon the kyndes. And the prest shal burne it vps the altare, for the meate of the sacrifice to a sweete saoure.

11.9.2. All the fat is the LORDES. Let this be a perpetual lame amonge yo^r posterities in all youre dwellinges, that ye eate no fat, nea bloude.

11.9.2. 11.9.2. And þe prest his anointed, shal take of his bloude, 7 bringe it in to the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And he shall dyppe his synger in 11.9.2. 11.9.2. toche bloude, 7 spende therewith scine tymes before the LORDE, towarde the vyle of þe holy. And he shal put of the same bloude vpon the hoines of the altare of incense, þe stondech before þe LORDE in the Tabernacle of wyntesse: 7 all the bloude of the bullocke shall be poure vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferynges, þe stondech at the entriuge in of the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And all the fat of the synofferynge shal be heue up: namely, the fat þe consecrth the bowels, 7 all the fat þe is within, yf two kyndes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kyndes also (like as he were it fram the oxe in the headofferynge) and shall burne it vpon the altare of burntofferynges. But the styng of the bullocke, and all the fleshe, with the heade 7 leggen, 7 the bowels and the donge, shal he carrye alongerth out of the hoofe, in to a cleane place, where þe ofthes are poured out, 7 shal burne it vpon wood with fyre.

11.9.2. 11.9.2. When the whole cōgregation of Israel synneth throughe ignorance, 7 the bete be hyd from their eyes, so þe they do oughte a gainst ery of the commaundments of the LORDE, which they shulde not do, 7 com: a firmarme to the knowledge of the synne that they haue done, they shal bringe a younge bullocke for a synofferynge, and see him before þe doore of the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And the elders of the congregation shal laye their handes vpon his heade before the LORDE. And þe prest þe bullocke before the LORDE. And þe prest þe anointed shal bringe of y bullocke bloude in to the Tabernacle of wyntesse, 7 dyppe ther in with his synger, and spende therewith seven tymes before the LORDE, eue before the vyle of the holy. And shall put of the bloude vpon the hoines of the altare, þe stondech before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of wyntesse: all þe othe bloude shall be poure vps the botome of þe altare of burntofferynges, þe stondech before the doore of the Tabernacle of wyntesse. But all his fat shal be heue up, 7 burne it vps the altare: 7 shal do with this bullocke, as be wyth wich y bullocke of the synofferynge: Thus the prest shal make an atonement for them, 7 it shall be forgenen them. And the bullocke shall be bringe without the hoofe, and burne him, as be bicne þe first bullocke. This shal þe synofferynge of the congregation.

11.9.2. 11.9.2. When a pryncce synneth, 7 doeth agaynst the commaundment of the LORDE his God, þe he oughte not to do, 7 offendeth ignorantly, 7 cometh to the knowlege of his synne þe he hath done, he shal bringe for his offeringe an he goate without blemyshe, 7 laye his hande vps the goates heade, 7 slaye him in þe place where þe burntofferynges are slayne before þe LORDE. The prest shal þe prest take of þe bloude of þe synofferynges with his synger, and put it vpon the altare of burntofferynges, 7 poure the ether bloude vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferynges. But all the fat of it shal he burne vps the altare, like as the fat of the healthofferynge. And so the prest shal make an atonement for his synne, and it shal be forgenen him.

11.9.2. 11.9.2. When a soule of y comon people synneth ignorantly, doinge any thinge agaynst the commaundment of the LORDE, þe he oughte not to do, 7 so offendeth, 7 cometh to þe knowlege of the synne þe he hath done, he shal bringe for his offeringe a she goate without blemyshe, for the synne þe he hath done, and shal laye his hande vpon the heade of the synofferynges, 7 slaye it in the place of the burntofferynges. And the prest shal take of the bloude with his synger, 7 put it vpon the hoines of þe altare of burntofferynges, 7 poure all the bloude vpon the becom of the altare. But all the fat of it ſhal be take awaye, like as he takeſt awaye the fat of the dead-offerynge, and ſhal burne it vpon the altare for a ſweet ſauoure vnto the L O R D E. And ſo ſhal the prieſt make an accomēt for him, and it ſhal be forgiven him.

¶ But if he bringe a lambe for a ſynoffer-ynge, then let him bringe a female without blemiſh, and laye his hande vpon the head of the ſynoffer-ynge, & ſyll it for a ſynoffer-ynge, in the place where the burnt-offerynges are ſlayne. And the prieſt ſhal take of it bloude wth his finger, & put it vpon the becom of the altare of burnt-offerynges, & poure all the bloude vpon the becom of the altare. But all the fat thereof ſhall be take ſv̄t, like as he byd the fat of the lambe of the burnt-offerynge, & ſhal burne it vpon the altare for the L O R D E S ſacrifice. And ſo if prieſt ſhal make an accomēt for the ſynne that he hath done, and it ſhal be forgiven him.

The v. Chapter.

¶ Whan a ſoule ſynneth, & he heare a curſynge, and is wyneſſe thereof, or hath ſene it, or knowe it, & collect it not, he is guiltye of a treſpace. ¶ When a ſoule coucheth any vncleane thinge, whether it be of carion of an vncleane beaſt, or cattell, or womne, & was not aware of it, he is vncleane, and hath offended. ¶ When he toucheth an vncleane man, what an cleenneſſe ſo euer a man is deſyled withall, & was not aware of it, & afterward cometh to the knowlege thereof, if ſame hath offended. ¶ When a ſoule ſweareth, ſo if he pronounceth wth his mouth to do euill or good (what ſo euer it be) that a man pronounceth wth an oath, & was not aware of it, & afterward cometh to the knowlege thereof, he hath offended in one of theſe.

of the bloude blede out vpon the becom of the altare: This is the ſynoffer-ynge. So for the other, he ſhal make it a burnt-offerynge, after the maner thereof. And thus ſhall the prieſt make an accomēt for him concerninge the ſynne that he hath done, & it ſhal be forgiven him. But if he be not able to bringe two currell bones or two yonge pigeons, then let him bringe his offer-ynge for his ſynne, a tenth deale of an Ephah of fine flour for a ſynoffer-ynge. But he ſhall put no oyle thereon, nor laye frankincenſe vpon it, ſo it is a ſynoffer-ynge. And he ſhal bringe it vnto the prieſt, & if prieſt ſhal take his had full of it for a remembrance, and burne it vpon the altare for an offer-ynge vnto the L O R D E. This is a ſynoffer-ynge. And ſo ſhal the prieſt make an accomēt for him, concerninge his ſynne that he hath done, & it ſhal be forgiven him. And the remanens ſhal be the prieſtes, like a meate offer-ynge.

And the L O R D E ſpake vnto Moſes, & ſayde: If a ſoule treſpace, ſo if thou ſe ignoraunce be offenſed in any thinge, if it is halowed vnto the L O R D E, he ſhal bringe his treſpace offer-ynge vnto the L O R D E, enter a ramme from the ſtcke without blemiſh, worth three Syckles of ſyluer, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary, for a treſpace offer-ynge: and ſo let what he hath offended in the halowed thinge, he ſhall make reſtitucion, & geue the fiſth parte more thereto. And he ſhal beſweare it vnto the prieſt, which ſhal make an accomēt for him wth the name of the treſpace offer-ynge, & it ſhal be forgiven him.

When a ſoule ſynneth, and doeth ought agaynſt any commaundement of the L O R D E, if he ſhalde not do, & is in ſoured thereof, he hath treſpased, & is guiltye of the ſynne. And he ſhal bringe from the ſtcke a ramme without blemiſh (that is worth a treſpace offer-ynge) vnto the prieſt, which ſhal make an accomēt for him concerninge his ignoraunce which he doth, and was not aware, and it ſhal be forgiven him. This is the treſpace offer-ynge, becauſe he treſpased agaynſt the L O R D E.

And the L O R D E ſpake wth Moſes, and ſayde: When a ſoule ſynneth, & treſpased agaynſt the L O R D E, ſo that he denyeth wth his neighbour that which he gaue him to keepe, or that was put vnder his hande, or that he hath violently taken awaye, or gotten vnrightheouſly, or ſeunt that was loſt, and denyeth it with a falſe oath, what ſo and it be, when a man ſynneth agaynſt his neighbour. Now when it cometh ſe

140 to passe, that he synneth a fter this maner, z trespasseth, he shall restore a gayne that he co te violently awaye, or gat wrongeously, or that was geuen him to kepe, or that he hath founde, or whar so euer it be abouze y which he hath sworne falsely, he shall restore it agai n wher alle together, and geue the fift part re more thereto, euen to him that it belong ed vnto, the same daye that he geueth his trespass offeringe. But for his trespass he shall bringe for the LORDE (euen vnto the prest) a ramme from the flocke without blemish, that is worth a trespass offeringe.
 Then shall the prest make an atone ment for him before the LORDE, and all that he hath synned in, shall be forgiuen him.

The vi. Chapter.

240 UNTO the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the burntofferinge. The burntofferinge shall burne vpon the altare all night vntil vnto the morninge. But the fyre of the altare 242 shall burne thereon. And y prest shall put on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his fisch, and shall take vp the asshes, that the fyre of the burntofferinge vpon the altare hath made, and shall poure them besyde the altare. Then shall he put of his rayment, and put on other rayment, and car ry out the asshes with our ther hoofe, in to a cleane place.

The fyre vpon the altare shall burne, and neuer go out. The prest shall kyndle wood ther on euery morninge, and dress the burntoffe ringe vpon it, and burne the fat of the beed offeringes thereon. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the altare, and neuer go out.

243 AND this is the lawe of the meate offeryn ge, which Aarons sonnes shall offer before the LORDE vpon the altare. One of them shall haue his handfull of fyne flour of y meate offeringe, and of the oyle, and all the frankincense that theyeth vpon the meate offe ringe, and shall burne it vpon the altare for a sweete sauour a remembrance vnto the LORDE. As for the remnant, Aaron and his sonnes shall eat it, and vnleuened shall they eat it in the holy place, namely, in the court of the Tabernacle of witness. With leuē shall they not take their portion, which I haue geuen them of my offeringes. It shall be vnto them most holy, as the synoffe ringe and trespass offeringe. All the males amonge the children of Aaron shall eat of it. Let this be a perpetuall lawe for your posterities in the sacrificio of the LORDE.

No man shall touch it, excepte he be conse crated.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and C sayde: This shall be the offeringe of Aa ron and of his sonnes, which they shall offer vnto the LORDE in the date of their anyon tinge. The tenth parte of an Ephah of fyne flour for a meate offeringe daylie, the one half parte in the morninge, the other half parte at euen. In the panne with oyle shall thou make it, and bringe it frayd, and in pe ces shall thou offer it for the sweete sauou re of the LORDE. And the prest which a monge his sonnes shall be anyoned in his steade, shall do this. This is a perpetuall deuety vnto the LORDE. It shall be burne altogether: for all the meate offeringes of the prest shall be conijmed with the fyre, and not be eaten.

And y LORDE talked with Moses, and D sayde: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synoffe ringe: In the place where thou shalt y burnt offeringe, shall thou laye the synoffe ringe also before the LORDE. This is most holy.

The prest that offereth the synoffe ringe, shall eat it in the holy place, in the court of y Tabernacle of witness. No man shall touch y flesh thereof, excepte he be halowed.
 And yf my garment be sprenkled with the bloude of it, it shall be washed in the holy place. And the earthe pot that it is sodden in, shall be broken. But yf it be a brasen pot, it shall be scoured, and rised with water. All y maies amonge the prestes shall eat thereof, for it is most holy. Notwithstandinge all y synoffe ringe whose bloude is brought in to the Tabernacle of witness to make an at onement, shall not be eaten, but burne with fyre.

The vii. Chapter.

244 UNTO this is the lawe of the trespass offeringe, and it shall be most holy. In the place where the burntofferinge is slayne, shall the trespass offeringe be slayne also, z there shall of his bloude be sprenkled rounde aboute vpon the altare. And all his fat shall be offered: the rumpe and the fat y conereth the bowels, the two kydneyes with the fat y is thereon vpon the lynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes also. And the prest shall burne it vpon the altare for an offeringe vnto the LORDE. This is a tresp ace offeringe.

All the males amonge the prestes shall ea te it in the holy place, for it is most holy: euen as the synoffe ringe, so shall the trespass of ferrynge be also, they shall both haue one lawe: and it shal be the priestes, that reconey lech ther w^t. Loke which piest offereth any mans burneofferynge, the stymie of the same burneofferynge that he hath offered, shal be his. And euery meacofferynge that is taken in the oven, rosted upon the grebyron, or fryed in the panne, shal be the priestes yoffereth it. And euery meacofferynge y is myngled with oyle, shal belonge vnto all Aaron sonnes, vnto one as well as another.

Exil. 11. a

And this is y laws of the healthofferinge, that is offered vnto the L O R D E. And they wyl offre a sacrifice of thankesguynges, when shal they offre unleaued cakes mingled with oyle, and sweete wafers streaked ouer with oyle, and fryed cakes of fyne fleyre mingled with oyle. This offeringe also shal they bringe vpon a cake of leaued bread, to the thankesofferynge of his healthofferinge: and of them all he shall offre one for an heuencofferynge vnto the L O R D E. And it shalbe the priestes, that speakelech the bloude of the healthofferinge. And the flesch of the healthofferinge in his healthofferings, shalbe eaten the same daye that it is offered, and there shall nothinge be left ouer vntill the morninge.

Leui. 19. b

And whether it be a vome or a fre wyl-offerynge, it shalbe eaten the same daye that it is offered: yf oughte be left ouer vntill the morninge, yet maye it be eaten. But loke what remaineth vnto y thirde daye of the flesch that is offered, it shalbe burnt with the fyre. And yf any man vpon the thirde daie care of y offered flesch of his healthofferinge, he shall not be accepted that offered it. Neither shall it be returned vnto him, but it shalbe refused. And loke which soule eatech therof, the same is giltye of a mysdede.

C And the flesch that toucheth any vnclene thinge, shal not be eaten, but burnt with the fyre. But who so euer is cleane of body, shal care of the flesch: and the soule that eatech of y flesch of y healthofferinge which belongeth vnto the L O R D E, his vnclennes be vpon him, and he shalbe rosted out from amonge his people.

And when a soule toucheth any vnclene thinge, whether it be an vnclene man, catell, or any other abhominacion that is, and eatech of the flesch of the burneofferynge, that belongeth vnto the L O R D E, the same shalbe rosted out from amonge his people.

And the L O R D E talketh with Moses, and saye: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & saye: Ye shall care no fat of ewen, lambe, and goate: neuertheles the fat of e that dyeth alone, and of sods as is come of wyde bestes, that maye ye occupye to all maner of vnto, but ye shall not eate it.

For who so euer eatech the fat of y beest that is geuen vnto the L O R D E for an offeringe, the same soule shalbe rosted out from his people. Moreover, ye shall care no bloude, neither of catell, ner of foules, when so euer ye dwell. What soule eatech any bloude, the same shall be rosted out from his people.

And the L O R D E talketh with Moses, and saye: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Who so wyl offre his healthofferinge vnto the L O R D E, the same shall also bringe with all, that belongeth vnto y healthofferings for the L O R D E. And he shall bringe it with his hande for the offeringe of the L O R D E: namelye the fat vpon the beest shall he bringe, with the beest, to be a waufferinge before the L O R D E. And the piest shall burne the fat vpon the altare, and the beest shalbe Aarons and his sonnes.

And the righte shulder shal they geue vnto the piest for a gift of their healthofferings. And loke which of Aarons sonnes of fresh the bloude of the healthofferings, and the fat, the same shall haue the righte shulder for his parte. For the Wamebiel and the heueshulder haue I taken of the children of Israel, and of their healthofferings, and haue geuen them vnto Aaron the piest and vnto his sonnes for a perpetual dewtye.

This is the anoyntinge of Aaron and of his sonnes, of the offerings of the L O R D E, in the daye whā Moses presented them to be piests vnto the L O R D E, what tyme as the L O R D E commaunded (in the daye when he anoynted them) to be geuen them of the children of Israel for a perpetual dewtye, and vnto all their posterities. And this is the lawe of the burneofferynge, of the meacofferynge, of the smecofferynge, of the trespass offeringe, of the offeringe of consecracion, and of the healthofferings, which the L O R D E commaunded Moses vpon mount Sinai, in the daye when he gaue him in commaundment vnto the children of Israel, to offre their offerings vnto y L O R D E in the wyldernes of Sinai.

M The LORD spake unto Moſes, & ſayde: Take Aaron and his ſonnes wth him, & their veſtiments, & the anoyntinge oyle, & a bullocke for a ſynofferynge, two rammes, and a maunde with unleubed bread, and call the whole congregation together, be ſure the doore of the Tabernacle of wynterſe. Moſes dyd as the LORDE commaunded him, and gathered the congregation together vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of wynterſe, and ſayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded to do.

B And he toke Aaron and his ſonnes, and waſhed them with water, and put the albe vps vnto him, and girded him with the girdell, and put vpon him the yalowe tunicke, and putte onerbody coze vpon him, and girded him vpon the ouerbody coze, & put the breſt lappetheron, and in y^e beſt lappette light and perfeccion. And ſet them vpon his heade. And he toke the myrrour euen aboute his face heade, put be a plate of golde on the holy crowne: as y^e LORDE commaunded Moſes.

A And Moſes toke the anoyntinge oyle, & anoynted the Tabernacle, and all thate was therein, and conſecrated it, and ſpintled therewith ſweete ſmyces vpon the altare, and anoynted the altare with all his veſſels, the ſaner with his ſore, that it might be conſecrated: and poured the anoyntinge oyle vpon Aarons heade, and anoynted him, y^e he might be conſecrated.

C And he brought Aarons ſonnes, and put albe vpon them, and girded them with the girdell, and put bonettes vpon their heades, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he cauſed bringe a bullocke for a ſyn offerynge. And Aaron with his ſonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was he ſlayne. And Moſes toke of the bloude, & put it vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute with his finger, and purified the altare, and poured the bloude vpon the botome of the altare, and conſecrated it, that he might reconyle it. And toke all the fat vps the bowels, the net vpon the leuer, and the two kidneys with the fat thereon, and burned it vpon the altare. But the bullocke wth his ſlayne fleſh, & donge, burned he with fyre without the hoofe, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he brought a ramme for a burnt offeringe. And Aaron wth his ſonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, & then was he ſlayne. And Moſes ſpintled of y^e bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, hewed the ramme in peeces, and burnt the heade, the peeces, and the fat. And waſhed the bowels and the legges with water, and ſo burnt y^e whole ramme vps the altare. This was a burnt offeringe for a ſweete ſaoure, euen a ſacrifice vnto the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him.

He broughte alſo the oether ramme of the offeringe of the conſecration. And Aaron with his ſonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was it ſlayne. And Moſes toke of his bloude, and put it vpon the typpes of Aarons righte eare, and vpon the thumb of his righte hande, and vpon the greates toe of his righte ſete.

And he broughte Aarons ſonnes, and put of the bloude vpon the typpes of the righte eare of them, and vpon y^e thumbes of their righte handes, and vpon the greates toes of their righte ſete, and poured the reſidue of the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute. And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat vpon the bowels, and the net vpon the leuer, the two kidneys with the fat thereon, and the righte ſhulder. And out of the manne of unleubed bread beſide the LORDE, he toke an unleubed cake, and a cake of oyled bread, and a wafer, and layed them vps the fat, and vpon the righte ſhulder, and put altogether vpon the handes of Aaron and of his ſonnes, and waſhed it for a waucofferynge beſide the LORDE.

And afterwarde toke he all agayne from their handes, and burned them on the altare, euen vpon the burnt offeringe: for it is an offeringe of conſecration for a ſweete ſaoure, euen a ſacrifice vnto y^e LORDE. And Moſes toke the breſt, and waſhed it a waucofferynge beſide the LORDE, of the ramme of the offeringe of conſecration: the ſame was Moſes parte, as the LORDE commaunded

Moses. And Moses toke of 3 anoyntinge oyle, 7 of the bloude vpon the altare, 7 spen it vpon Aaron 7 his vestimentes, vpon his foune 7 vpon their vestimentes, and so cōsecrated Aaron 7 his vestimentes, his founes and their vestimentes with him.

- 6 And he sayde vnto Aaron 7 his sonnes: Steech 3 flesh before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, 7 there eate it, 7 the bled in 3 maunde of the cōsecracion offeringes, as it is cōmanded me, 7 sayde: Aaron 7 his sonnes shall eate it. As for 3 which remaineth of the flesh 7 bled, ye shal burne it with fyre. And in seue dayes shal ye not departe from y doore of the Tabernacle of witness, untill the daye, 3 the dayes of yō cōsecracion offeringes be at an ende: for seue dayes must yō handes be cōsecrated, as it is cōmanded yō passe this daye: The LORDE hath cōmanded to do it, that ye might be reconciled. And ye shal carry before the Tabernacle of witness six daye and nighte tenen dayes long, 7 shal' eate y march of y LORDE, that ye dye not, for thus am I cōmanded. And Aaron with his sonnes byd all, that 3 LORDE cōmanded by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

- 1 And vpon the eight daye Moses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the Elders in Israel, and sayde vnto Aaron: Take vnto the a yonge calfe for a synofferinge, and a ramme for a burntofferinge, both without blemish, and bringe them before the LORDE, and speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Take an he goate for a synofferinge: and a calf, and a shepe, both of a yeare olde, and without blemish for a burntofferinge: and an oxe and a ramme for an healeofferinge, that we maye offre before the LORDE: and a meastofferinge mingled with oyle. For so daye shal the LORDE appeare vnto you.

- 2 And they toke what Moses cōmanded before y doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and the whole cōgregacion came nye, and stode before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses: This is it, which the LORDE cōmanded that ye shulde do, and then shall the glory of 3 LORDE appeare vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Go vnto 3 altare, and offre thy synofferinge and thy burntofferinge, and make an attonement for the and for the people. Then offre the people offeringe, and reconcile them also, as the LORDE hath cōmanded.

Leu. 4. 8 And Aaron wente vnto the altare, and slewe 3 calfe for his synofferinge, 7 his son nes broughte the bloude vnto him. And he bytpe his fyrger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare, and poured y bloude vpon y doore of the altare. As for the fat and the kydneyes 7 the net vpon the leuer of the synofferinge, he burne the vpon the altare, as the LORDE cōmanded Moses. The flesh also and the byde burne he w fyre withoute the doore.

Afterwarde he slewe the burntofferinge: and Aaron somes broughte the bloude vnto him, 7 he sprentled it rounde aboute vpon the altare. And they broughte him the burntofferinge in peeces, 7 the heade: 7 he burne it vpon the altare. And he washed the bowels and the legges, and burne them aboute vpon the burntofferinge on the altare.

Then broughte he the offeringe of the people, and toke the goate, that synofferinge of the people, and slewe it, and made a synofferinge thereof, as of the first. And broughte the burntofferinge, and byd as the lawe is: and broughte the meastofferinge, and toke his hand full, and burne it vpon the altare, before the burntofferinge of the meastofferinge.

Afterwarde slewe he the oxe and the ramme for the healeofferinge of the people: And his sonnes broughte him the bloud; which he sprentled vpon the altare rounde aboute. But the fat of the oxe 7 of the ramme, the rompe, and the fat that cometh the bowels, 7 the kydneyes, 7 the net vpon the leuer, all soch fat laied they vpon the vest, and burne the fat vpon the altare. But the brest and the right shulder waned Aaron for a waueofferinge before the LORDE, as the LORDE cōmanded Moses.

And Aaron lift up his hāde over the people, and blessed them, and came downe from the mount of the synofferinge, burntofferinge, and healeofferinge. And Moses and Aaron wente in to the Tabernacle of witness. And when they came out agayne, they blessed the people. Then appeared the glory of the LORDE vnto all the people. For there came a fyre from the LORDE, and vpon the altare it consumed the burntofferinge and the fat. When all the people sawe that, they reioysed, and fell vpon their faces.

The X. Chapter.

1 And 3 sonnes of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, toke ether of the hye censure, 7 put fyre therein, 7 layed in censē vpon it, and broughte straunge fyre before the LORDE, which he cōmanded them not. Then wente there out a fyre from $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ LORDE, and consumed them, so that they dyed before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses vnto Aaron: This is it, that the LORDE sayde: I wil be sanctified vps them that come nye me, and before all the people and I be glorified. And Aaron hatre his peace.

B Moses called Misael and Elaphan the sonnes of Asif Aaron's uncle, and sayde vnto them: Go to, and carry youre brethren out of the Sanctuary, without the hooff. And they wente, and caried them forth in their sides without the hooff, as Moses sayde.

Then sayde Moses vnto Aaron: 2 to his sonnes Eleasar and Jehamar: Ye shall not vncouer youre heades, ner rente yo' clothes, that ye dye not, and the wach come vpon the whole congregation: Let youre burthe of the whole house of Israel bewepe this

C burnyng, which the LORDE hath done. As for you, ye shall not go out from the doore of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyntyng oyle of the LORDE is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses sayde.

The LORDE spake vnto Aaron, 2 sayde: Thou 2 thy sonnes wh the shall drynke no wyne ner stronge drynke, when ye go in to the Tabernacle of wyntesse: that ye dye not. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto all yo' posterities: $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ ye maye haue knowlege to discern, what is holy and vnholy, what is cleane 2 vncleane: 2 that ye maye teach the children of Israel all the lawes, which the LORDE hath spoken vnto you by Moses.

B And Moses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Eleasar and Jehamar his sonnes that were left: Take the remnaunt of the meate offeringe in the sacrifices of $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ LORDE, and eate it without leuen beyde the altare, for it is most holy, euen in the holy place shal ye eate it. For it is chy butyre and chy sonnes butyre in the sacrifices of the LORDE: for thus sai I commaunded. But the Wanchess and the Shenshilder shal thou eate, and chy sonnes and chy daughtera with the is a cleane place. For this butyre is geuen vnto the and chy children in the dead offeringes of the children of Israel. For the Shenshilder and the Wanchess to the offeringes of the fat, shalbe brought in, that they maye be reaued for a Wanchess offeringe before the LORDE. Therefore is it thine and chy childrens for a perpetuall butyre, as the LORDE commaunded.

And Moses sought for the goate of the synofferyng, and founde it burne. And he was angry at Eleasar and Jehamar $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ sonnes of Aaron, which were left alyue, and sayde: Wherefore haue ye not eaten the synofferyng in the holy place: for it is most holy, 2 he hath geuen it you, that ye might beare yf synne of the congregacion, to make a gremete for them before the LORDE. Beholde, the bloude of it came not in to the Sanctuary: Ye shalde haue eaten it in the Sanctuary, as I was commaunded.

Aaron sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, this daye haue they offered their synofferyng 2 their burnt offeringe before $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ LORDE. And it is chaunced me after this manner. And shalbe I eate of the synofferyng to daye, 2 be merry before the LORDE. When Moses herde that, he was content.

The XI. Chapter.

AND $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ LORDE called vnto Moses 2 Aaron 2 sayde: Speake vnto $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ childre of Israel, and saye: These are the bestes which ye shal eate amonge all $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ bestes vpon earth: What so euer hath hooffe, 2 bewydeh it in to two clawes, 2 cheweth cud amonge the bestes, that shal ye eate. But loke what cheweth cud 2 hath hooffe, 2 bewydeh it not, as the Camell, the same is vncleane vnto you, 2 ye shal not eate it. The Conyng chere cud, but they bewydeh not the hooffe in to two clawes, therefore are they vncleane vnto you. The hare chereh cud also, but bewydeh not $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ hooffe in to two clawes, therefore is he vncleane vnto you. And the Swyne bewydeh $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ hooffe in to two clawes, but chy weth not the cud, therefore is it vncleane vnto you. Of the flesh of these shall ye not eate, ner touch their carcases, for they are vncleane vnto you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: What so euer hath fymer and scales in the waters, sea 2 ryuer, that shal ye eate. But what so euer hath not fymer and scales in the sea and ryuer, amonge all $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ moue in the waters, 2 of all that lye in the waters, it shalbe an abomination vnto you, so that ye eate not of their flesh, and that ye abhorre their carcases. For all that haue noe fynee, & scales in the waters, shall ye abhorre.

Deu. 12-14

C And these shall ye abhorre amonge 3 foules, so that ye eate them not: The Eagle, the Osprey, the Cormorant, the Vulture, & the Raven, and all his kynde, and all Ravens wher kynde: the Osprey, & the Eagle, the Crow, the Sparrow hawk with his kynde, the little Owl, the Scawle, the great Owl, & the Duck, the Pellican, the Swaine, the Pye, the Heron, & Jaye with his kynde, the Lap wyng, and the Swallowe. And what so ever crepeth amonge the foules, and goeth upon foure feet, shalbe an abhominacion vnto you. And these shall ye eate of the foules that crepe and go upon foure feet: euen those that haue no eyes aboue upon 3 legges, to hope withall upon earth.

D Of these maye ye eate, as theris the Arbe with his kynde, and the Selaam with his kynde, & the Sargol with his kynde, & the Hagab & his kynde. But what so ever els hath foure feet amonge the foules, it shalbe an abhominacion vnto you, and ye shall take it for vncleane. Who so euer toucheth the carcase of such, shall be vncleane vntill 3 euen: and who so euer beareth the carcase of any of these, shall wash his clothes, and shalbe vncleane vntill the euen.

482 & b

That foue every best that hath hooffe, and beyereth it not in to two clawes, & chaweth not cud, shalbe vncleane vnto you. Who so euer toucheth such, shalbe vncleane. And what so ever goeth upon handes amonge 4 bestes that go upon foure feet, shalbe vncleane vnto you. Who so euer toucheth the carcases of thei, shalbe vncleane vntill euen. And he 3 beareth their carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the eue: For such are vncleane vnto you.

E These shalbe vncleane vnto you also, amonge the bestes that crepe upon earth: 3 Weasel, the Mouse, the Toad, every one with his kynde, the Hedgehogge, the Skalle, the Lacerre, the Snake, and the Mole, these are vncleane vnto you amonge all that crepe. Who so euer toucheth the deed carcase of thei, shalbe vncleane vntill the euen. And what so euer any such deed carcase falleth vpon, it shalbe vncleane, what so euer vessell of woodd it be, or rayment, or steyne, or bagge. And every vessell that any thinge is occupied withall, shalbe put in the water, and is vncleane vntill the euen, and then shal it be cleane. All manner of earthen vessell that any such carcase falleth in to, shal all be vncleane

483 a

ne that therein is, & ye shall breake it. All meate which is eate, that any such water cometh in to, is vncleane: & all manner of vnter that is dronke in all manner of such vessell is vncleane. And what so euer any such carcase falleth vpon, it shalbe vncleane, whether it be euen or kercell, so shal it be broght, for it is vncleane, and shalbe vncleane vnto you: & euer beles the foumynes, welles, & poundes of water are cleane. But who so euer toucheth their carcases, is vncleane.

And though the deed carcase of any such fell vpon the sode that is so vne, yet is it cleane. But whan there is water poured vpon these, and afterwards any such deed carcase falleth thereon, then shal it be vncleane vnto you.

Whan a best dyeth that ye maye eate, he that toucheth the deed carcase thereof, is vncleane vntill euen. Who so eate of any such carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen. & likewise he that beareth any such carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

What so ever crepeth vpon earth, shall be an abhominacion vnto you, and shall not be eate. And what so euer crepeth vpon 3 belly, or all that goeth upon foure or mo feet, amonge all that crepeth vpon earth, shal ye not eate, for it shalbe an abhominacion vnto you. Make not youre foules abhominable, and desyle you not in them, so stayne youre selues: for I am the LORDE youre God. Therefore shal ye sanctifie youre selues, that ye maye be holy, for I am holy. And ye shal not desyle youre selues on any manner of creeping best, that crepeth vpon earth: for I am the LORDE, which broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, that I mighte be youre God: therfore shal ye be holy, for I am holy.

This is the lawe ouer 3 bestes and foules, & all manner of foules of creeping bestes in the waters, and all manner of foules 3 crepe vpon earth: that ye maie knowe to discerne what is vncleane & cleane, and what manner of bestes are to be eate, and which are not to be eate.

The XII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked with Moyses, & sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Whan a woman hath conceaued, and beareth a manchild, she shalbe vncleane seuen dayes, so longe as she suffereth hir disease, and in 3 eighthe daye shal 3 flesh of his foules yme be eate awaye. And she shal byde at home thre and thirtie dayes in y bloude of hir purifyinge: she shal each no be y thinge, ner come in to y ſake many will the daies of hir purgynge be due.

 Dur yf ſhe is a mayde childe, the ſhal ſhe be unclene two weke, ſo longe as ſhe liſt ſerch hir diſeaſe, and ſire and the ſore daies ſhall ſhe be at home in the bloude of hir purgynge.

B And whan the dayes of hir purgynge are out, for the ſonne of ſon the daughter, ſhe ſhal bringe a lambe of one yeare olde for a burnt offerynge, and a yonge pigeon or a tur till doue for a ſynofferynge to the doze of y Tabernacle of wynterſynge to the doze of y ſhal offre it before the LORDE, and make an attonement for her, and ſo ſhal ſhe be clenſed from hir bloodyſſue. This is the lawe for her that beareth a manchild or mayde child.

1.1 Dur yf ſhe be not able to bringe a ſhepe, them let hir take two currill doues, or two yonge pigeons, the one for a burnt offerynge, the other for a ſynofferynge, than ſhall the preſt make an attonement for her, ſo that ſhe ſhal be cleane.

The XIII. Chapter.

3 YLD y LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes z Aarun, z ſayde: Whan there ryſeth vp any thinge in the ſkynne of a mans fleſh, whether it be a ſcabbe or a gliſtynge whyte (as though there wolde be a leproſy in y ſkynne of his fleſh) he ſhal be brought vnto Aarun the preſt, or to one of his ſonnes amonge y preſtes. And whan the preſt ſerch the plage upon the ſkynne of the fleſh, that the haire are turned to whyte, and it ſeme deper in that place then the other ſkynne of his fleſh, then is it ſurely a leproſy, therfore ſhal the preſt loke vpon him, and iudge him unclene.

But whan there is any whyte plecte in the ſkynne of his fleſh, and yet ſeme no deper then the other ſkynne of the fleſh, and the haire be not turned to whyte, the ſhal the preſt ſhut him vp ſeven dayes, and on y ſeuenth daye loke vpon him: yf the plage ſeme vnto him as afore, z hath freze no deper in the ſkynne, then ſhall the preſt ſhut him vp yet ſeven dayes mo. And whan he lokech on him agayne vpon the ſeuenth daye, and ſyndech, that the plage be darkiſh, and hath freze no deper in the ſkynne, the ſhal he iudge him cleane, for it is but a ſkynne, and he ſhal waſh his clothes, z them is he cleane.

B Dur whan the ſcabbe frezeth farther in the ſkynne (after that he is ſine of the preſt, and iudged cleane) and he be now ſine of the preſt agayne: whan the preſt ſerch the, y the ſcabbe hath freze farther in the ſkynne, he ſhal iudge him unclene, for it is ſurely a leproſy.

Whan a plage of leproſy is vpo a man, he ſhal be brought vnto the preſt. Whan he ſerch and ſyndech, that there is whyte ryſed up in the ſkynne, and the haire turned vnto whyte, and there be rawe fleſh in the ſore, the is it ſurely an olde leproſy in y ſkyn-ne of his fleſh, therfore ſhal the preſt iudge him unclene, and nat ſhut him vp, for he is unclene allready.

But whan the leproſy breatcheth out in the ſkynne, and couereth the whole ſkynne, from the heade vnto the foote, all that the preſt can ſe, So whan the preſt lokech vpon it, and ſyndech, that y leproſy hath covered all the fleſh, he ſhal iudge him cleane, for ſo much as it is earned all in to whyte vpon him, for he is cleane.

C For whatſo thinge yf there be rawe fleſh there, in the daye whan he is lokech vpon, the is he unclene. And whan the preſt ſerch y rawe fleſh, he ſhall iudge him unclene, for he is unclene, z it is ſurely a leproſy. Dur yf the rawe fleſh change agayne, and be turned in to whyte, then ſhall be come vnto the preſt. And whan the preſt lokech vpon him, and ſyndech, that the plage is turned to whyte, he ſhall iudge him cleane, for he is cleane.

Whan there is a byle in the ſkynne of any mans fleſh, and breatch agayne, and a ſter warde in the ſame place there aryſe vp any whyte thinge, or a gliſtynge whyte ſem-whar rediſh, he ſhal be ſine of the preſt. So whan the preſt ſerch, that it appeareth to be lower then the other ſkynne, and the hay-re turned to whyte, then ſhall he iudge him unclene, for it is ſurely a plage of leproſy broken out of the byle. Dur yf the preſt ſe and ſyndech, that the haire are not whyte, and it not lower then the other ſkynne, and is darkiſh, he ſhal ſhut him vp ſeven dayes.
 If it hath freze farther in the ſkynne, then ſhal he iudge him unclene, for it is ſurely a plage of leproſy. Dur yf the gliſtynge whyte abyde ſtill, and freze no farther, the is it but a pynt of the byle, and the preſt ſhal iudge him cleane.

Whan the ſkynne of any mans fleſh is hurt with ſyn, and the pynt of the burnynge be rediſh or whyte, and the preſt lokech vpon him, and ſyndech the haire turned to whyte vpon the mark of the burnynge, z it apere deper then the other ſkynne, the is there surely a leprosy brok out of þy prynt of þy burnyng: therfore shal þy prest iudge hi vncleane, for it is a plague of leprosy. But yf the prest se and synde, that þy haye upon the prynt of the burnyng is not turned wto whyte, 2 is no lower then the other slayne, and is darfish also, he shall shute him vp seven dayes.

And upon the seventh daye he shall loke upon him: yf it hath frete farther in þy slayne, then shall he iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosy. But yf it stode styll vpon the mark of the burnyng, and frete no farther in the slayne, and is darfish, then is it a sore in þy mark of the burnyng, 2 the prest shal iudge him cleane, for it is but the prynt of the burnyng.

¶ When a man or woman is slayne vpon the heade or beere, and the prest seyth the mark, and synde that it appeareth deeper then the other slayne, and the haye be the re golde or thynne, then shal he iudge him vncleane: for it is a slayse of leprosy of the heade or of the beere. But yf the prest se that þy slayse apere no deeper the the slayne, and that the haye is not of a pale colour, he shall shute him vp seven dayes. And vpon the seventh daye whan he lokech, and syndech, that the slayse hath frete no farther, and there be no golden haye there, and that the slayse appeare no deeper then the other slayne, then let him be shauen: but so that he shawe not of the scabbe, and the prest shall shute him vp yet seven dayes moe. And vpon the seuech daye whan he lokech, and syndech that the slayse hath frete no farther in the slayne, and that it aperech no deeper then the other slayne, then shall the prest iudge him cleane. And he shall wash his clothe, for he is cleane. But yf the scabbe freate farther in the slayne (after þy he is iudged cleane) and the prest lokech, and syndech, that þy scabbe hath frete farther in the slayne, then shal he se the nornie for golden hayes, for he is vncleane. ¶ Therfore if yf he se that the scabbe stondech styll, 2 that pale hayes are there ryen vp, then is þy scabbe hole, and he is cleane, therfore shall þy prest iudge him to be cleane.

¶ Whan there is any glisteringe whyte vpon þy slayne of the flesch of a man or woman, and the prest seyth there that the glisteringe whyte is any such: then is it but a whyte scabbe ryen vp in þy slayne, 2 he is cleane.

¶ Whan the hayes fall out of the heade of a man or a woman, so that he is halde, the same is cleane. If they fall out of his foie ha be, then is he fore heade halde 2 cleane. But yf there be a whyte redfish sore in the halde heade, or halde foie heade, then is there a leprosy ryen vp in the halde heade or halde foie heade: therfore shal þy prest loke vpon him. And whan he syndech the whyte redfish sore ryen vp in his halde heade or halde foie heade, then shal þy slayne of the flesch be as leporous, therfore is he a leporous man and vncleane. And the prest shall iudge him vncleane, because of þy same sore vpon his heade.

¶ Who so now is leporous, his clothes shal be rent, and the heade bare, 2 the lippes mofled, and shall in any wise be called vncleane. And as long as the sore is vpon him, he shal be vncleane, dwell alone, and haue his dwellinge wther the hoof.

¶ Whan the plague of leprosy is in a cloth, whether it be wollen or linnen, in the warpe or west, whether it be linnen or wollen, or in a slayne, or in any maner thyng that is made of slayne. And whan þy plague is pale or redfish in the cloth or slayne, either in the warpe or west, or in any maner thyng that is made of slayne, the same is surely the plague of leprosy, therfore shall the prest loke vpon it. And whan he sech the plague, he shall shute it vp seven dayes. And vpon the seventh daye whan he sech that þy plague hath frete farther in the cloth, in the warpe or west, in a slayne or in any maner thyng that is made of slayne, then is it a fretinge plague of leprosy, and is vncleane. And the cloth shal be burnt, either warpe or west, whether it be wollen or linnen, or any thyng made of slayne, therein is any such plague. For it is a plague of leprosy, and shal be burnt w fyre.

¶ But yf the prest se that the plague hath frete no farther in þy cloth, either in the warpe or west, or any thyng made of slayne, then shal he commaunde to wasch the thyng that the plague is in, and shall shute it vp other seven dayes. And whan the prest sech (a frete that the plague is washed) þy the plague is not changed before his eyes, and hath frete no farther also, yet is it vncleane, 2 shal be burnt w fyre: for it is deeper frete inward, and hath made slayse. ¶ Therfore whan the prest seyth that the prynt is washed after the washinge of it, then shall he reate it out of the clothe, and of the slayne, out of the warpe or west. But yf it appeare any more in the clothe (either in the warpe, or in the west) or any maner thyng made of slayne, then is it a warninge plague: and with fyre shal it be burnt that any such plague is in. As for the cloth, either warpe or west, or any out mer chynge made of slymme that is wasshe, and the plage be departed from it, it shalbe wasshen ouer agayne, & then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer the plage of leprosy in clothes, wher they be swollen or lyned: wher in the warpe or in the weft: and in any manner of thinge made of flanne, to indige them cleane or vncleane.

The XIII. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moyses, and sayde: This is the lawe ouer the leper, whan he shalbe censed. He shall come vnto the prest, and the prest shal go out of the hoost, and loke how the plage of leprosy is healed vpon the leper. And he shal commaunde him that is to be censed, to take two luyngge byrdes, which are cleane, and Cedar wode, and purple wolle, and ysopes and shall commaunde the one byrde to be kylled in an earthen vessell ouer springinge water. And he shal take the luyngge byrde with the Cedar wode, the purple wolle, and ysopes, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slaine byrde vpon the springinge water, and spynkle it: seven tymes vpon him that must be censed from the leprosy. And so cense him, and let the luyngge byrde flye at libertye in to the skye.

But he that is censed, shal wash his clothes, and shawe of all his haye, and bathe him self with water, so is he cleane. Afterwarde let him go in to the hoost, yet shall he tarye without his tent seven dayes. And vpon the seventh daye shal he shawe of all his haye vpon his heade, vpon his beard, vpon his browes, so that all the haye be shauen of, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe his fleshy in water, then is he cleane.

And vpon the eght daye shal he take two lambes without blemyshe, and a shepe of a yere olde without blemyshe, and thre tenth diales of fyne floure for a meate offeringe, myngled with oyle, & a Logg of oyle. The prest shal the puffed present him that is censed, and these thinges before the LORD, before the doore of the Tabernacle of witnessse, and shal take of one lambe, and offre it for trespass offeringe, with the Logg of oyle, & shall waue them, before the LORD, and afterwarde slaye the lambe, where the synofferinge and burnt offeringe are slayne, namely, in the holy place. For as the synofferinge, so is the trespass offeringe the prestes also, for it is most holy.

C And the prest shall take of the bloude of the trespass offeringe, and put it vpon the tpype of the righte eare of him that is censed, and vpon the thombe of his righte hande, and vpon the greate too of his righte fore. Afterwarde shall he take of the oyle out of the Logg, and poure it in to his awne left hande, and dyppe his righte synger in the oyle that is in his left hande, and spynkle the oyle with his synger seven tymes before the LORD. As for the remnant of the oyle in his hande, he shall put it vpon the tpype of the righte eare of him that is censed, and vpon the thombe of his righte hande, & vpon the greate too of his righte fore, euen aboue vpon the bloude of the trespass offeringe. But the remnant of the oyle in his hande, shall be poure vpon the heade of him that is censed, and make an anointment for him before the LORD. And he shall make the synofferinge, and reconyke him that is censed, because of his vndermesse. And afterwarde shall he sleie the burnt offeringe, and shal offre it vpon the altare with the meate offeringe, and make an anointment for him, & then is he cleane.

But yf he be poore, and getteth noe smoth wyth his hande, then let him take one lambe for a trespass offeringe to waue it, to make an anointment for him, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meate offeringe, and a Logg of oyle, & two turrell doves, or two yonge pigeons which he is able to gett with his hande, let the one be a synofferinge, the other a burnt offeringe: and let him bringe them vpon the eght daye of his censinge vnto the prest before the doore of the Tabernacle of witnessse before the LORD.

Then shall the prest take the lambe for the synofferinge, and the Logg of oyle, and shall waue them all before the LORD, and sleie the lambe of the trespass offeringe: and take of the bloude of the same trespass offeringe, and put it vpon the tpype of the righte eare of him that is censed, and vpon the thombe of his righte hande, and vpon the greate too of his righte fore, and poure of the oyle in to his awne left hande, and with his righte synger spynkle the oyle that is in his left hande, seven tymes before the LORD.

As for the remnant of the oyle in his hande, he shall put it vpon the tpype of the righte eare of him that is censed, and vpon the thombe of his righte hande, & vpon the greate too of his righte fore, euen aboue vpon the bloude of the trespass offeringe. The other oyle in his hande shal be poure vpon the heade of him that is censed, to make an anointment for him before the LORD. And afterwarde of the one of the curill boxes or yonge pignons (according as his handes are able to get) he shall make a synofferynge, of 3 ether a burzofferynge, with the meate offerynge: and so shall the prest make an attonemet for him that is cleinst before the LORD.

Lee this be the same for the leper, which is not able with his hande to get, that belongeth vnto his cleinstynge.

S And the LORD spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, and sayde: Whan ye are come in to the lande of Canaan, which I geue you to possesse: and yf there happen a plague of leprosy in any house of youre possession, then shall he that oweth the house, come and tell the prest, and saye: Me thynke there is as it were a plague of leprosy in my house. Then shall the prest commaunde to rydde all thyng out of the house, or euer the prest go in to se 3 plague, lest all that is in the house be made vnclene. Afterwarde shall 3 prest go in, to se the plague.

Now whan he loketh, and fyndeth, 3 the ye be holowe strakes yalowe or reddysh in the walles of the house, 2 they come to be lower then the wall be syde, then shall he go out at the dore of the house, and shut vp the house for seuen dayes. And vpon the seventh daye whan he commeth, and seyth that the plague hath fretten farther in the walles of the house, the 3 shall be commaunde to beate out the stones wherin the plague is, 2 to cast the in a foule place without the cite, 2 the house to be scraped with in rounde aboute, and the dust 3 scraped of, to be poured without 3 cite in an vnclene place, 2 to take ether stones, and put them in the place of the other, and to take ether playster, and playster the house.

C Whan the plague then commeth agayne, and beatech forth in the house, after 3 the stones are boild one, the playster scraped of, and the house playsterd of the new, the 3 shall the prest go in: and whan he seyth that the plague hath fretten farther in the house, then is there surely a fretting leprosy in the house, and it is vnclene: therfore shall the house be broken downe, both the stones, and 3 tymber and all the dust of the house, and shall be carryed out of the cite in to an vnclene place. And who so goeth into the house, while it is that vp, is vnclene: therfore shall the house be boild vntyll the euen. And he 3 heareth therein, or tastech therein, shall wash his clothes.

But yf the prest se (whan he goeth in) that this plague hath fretten farther in the house, after that the house is new playsterd, the 3 shall beynge it to be cleane, for the plague healed. And to a synofferings for the house, he shall take two byrdes, Cedar wood, 2 purple wolle, and ysope, and slaye the one byde in an earthen vessell vpon springynge water, and shall take the Cedar wood, the purple wolle, the ysope, and the lynynge byrde, 2 drype them in the bloude of the slayne byde vpon the springynge water, and sprenthe the house with all said rymes: and so shall he purifie the house with the bloude of the byrde, with the springynge water, with the lynynge byrde, with the Cedar wood, with the ysope, and with the purple wolle. And the lynynge byrde shall be let flye at libertye ouer of the towne in to the felde, 2 make an attonemet for the house, and then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer all maner plagess of leprosy, or of synnise, or of leprosy of clothes, and of houses, ouer sores, scabbies, and gylis rynge whye, that it maye be knowen, whan any thinge is vnclene or cleane. This is 3 lawe of leprosy.

The XV. Chapter.

Moyses the LORD called vnto Moyses and Aaron, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saie vnto him: Whan a man hath a runninge yllie from out of his flesh, 3 same is vnclene: but the is he vnclene by the reason of this yllie, whan his flesh is fretten of y yllie or wounde. Eueri led where on be lyeth, 2 what so euer he styeth vpon, shall be vnclene.

And he that toucheth his bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen.

And he 3 styeth where he sit, shall wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. Who so toucheth his flesh, shall wash his clothes, 2 bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. Whan he spytyeth vpon him that is cleane, yf same shall wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, 2 be vnclene vntyll the euen.

And the saddle and what so euer hearyeth vps, shall be vnclene. And who so euer toucheth any thinge that hath bene vnto him, shall be vnclene vntyll the euen. And who so beareth any soch, shall wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. And whom so euer he toucheth, and washeth noe his handes first, the same shall wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. Whan he toucheth an earthen vesseil, it shal be broken: but the green vesseil shal be rentid wth water. And whā he is cleane of his yssue, he shal nombe viij. dayes, after þe is made cleane, & wash his clothes, & bathe him self wth sprynge water, the is he cleane. And upon the eghte daye shal he take two currell bones: or two yonge pigeons, and bringe them before the LORDE before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and geue them vnto the prest. And the prest shall make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burnt offeringe, and make an atonement for him before the LORDE, as concerninge his yssue.

C When a mans sede departeth from him in slepe, the same shal bathe all his fleshy wth water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. And all clothes, and euery thyng that is stained with such sede, shall be wash with water, & be vnclene vntyll the euen. A woman, by whom such one lyeth, shall bathe hir self wth water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen.

When a woman hath the bloude yssue of hir fleshy, she shalbe put a parte vij. daies in to a sordie place. Who so euer toucheth her, shal be vnclene vntyll the eue. And all that she lyeth vpon (as long as she is put aparte) shalbe vnclene. And that she lyeth vpon, shalbe vnclene. And who so euer toucheth hir bed, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. And who so euer toucheth any maner thinge that she hath sytten vpon, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the eue.

D And yf a man lye with her (whyle she is put a parte) he shalbe vnclene seven dayes, and the bed that he laye vpon, shalbe vnclene.

When a woman hath hir bloude yssue a longe season, not onely at the tyme of hir naturall course, but also out of the tyme of hir naturall course, then shall she be vnclene so longe as she hath the yssue: eue as she is at the tyme when she is put aparte, so shall she be vnclene here also. What so euer she lyeth vpon all the tyme of hir yssue, shalbe as hir bed, when she is put aparte. And all that she sytten vpon, shalbe vnclene, as is hir vnclennesse, when she is put aparte. Who so euer toucheth any of these, shal be vnclene, and shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, & be vnclene vntyll the euen.

E But yf she be cleane of hir yssue, she shal nombe seven dayes, afterwarde shall she be cleane: and vpon the eghte daye shall she take two currell bones, or two yonge pigeons, and bringe them vnto the prest before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness. And the prest shall make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burnt offeringe, and make an atonement for her before the LORDE, as concerninge the yssue of hir vnclennesse.

Thus shal ye see that the chylde of Israel kepe them selfe from their vnclennesse, that they dye not in their vnclennesse, when they dwelle in my habitacion, which is amonge you.

This is the lawe ouer him that hath a runnyng sore, & him whose sede departeth from him in slepe, so that he is vnclene therof. And ouer hir that hath hir bloude yssue, and who so euer hath a runnyng sore, whether it be man or woman, and when a man lyeth with her that is vnclene.

The XLV. Chapter.

When the LORDE spake vnto Mosco (after that Aaron was deade) he sayde: Speake vnto Aaron thy brother, þe go not at all tymes in to þe synner Sanctuary, within the vail before the Mercyseate, which is vpon the Arke, þe be ye not: for I wyll appear in a cloude vnto the Mercyseate. But herewithall shal he go in, euen with a yonge bullocke for a synofferynge, and with a ramme for a burnt offeringe, and shal put on the holy linnen robe, and haue linnen breeches vpon his fleshy, and gyrdle him with a lynn gurte, and haue the linnen myter vpon his heade.

For these are yf holy garmentes: he shal bathe his fleshy with water, & put them on: & of the congregacion of the chylde of Israel he shal take two he goates for a synofferynge, and a ramme for a burnt offeringe.

And Aaron shal bringe the bullocke his owne synofferynge, and make an atonement for himselfe and his house: and a ferraue he shall be take the two goates, and presene them before the LORDE euen before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and shall cast lottes ouer the two goates: the lot of the one goate for the LORDE, and the other for the fire goate. And the goate that the LORDE losse vpon, shal be offre for a synofferynge. But the goate, that the fire goates losse vpon, shal he presene alyue before the LORDE, to make an atonement for him, and to let the fire goate go into þe wyldernes. And so shal he bringe the bullocke of his synofferynge, and make an atonement for him and his housholde, and shal kyl him.

The iij. boke of Moſes.

The xvij. Chap.

And he ſhall take a cenſer full of coales from the altare that ſtondeſh before the LORDE, and his handfull of beaten incenſe, and bringe them in within ʒ wayle, and putte the incenſe vpon the fyre before ʒ LORDE, that the cloude of the incenſe maye come the Mercyſeate, which is vpon the witneſſe, that he dye not. And he ſhall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and ſpente it with his ſynger towards the Mercyſeate on the ſoueryde. Steuen tymes ſhall he ſpente of the bloude thys with his ſynger before the Mercyſeate. The ſhal he kyl the goate which is the peoples ſynofferynge, ʒ bringe in of his bloude within the wayle, ʒ ſhall do with his bloude, as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, and ſpente therewith alſo on the ſoueryde towards the Mercyſeate, and ſo ſhal he reconyle the Sanctuary from the vncleaneſſe of the childre of Iſrael, and ſis their treſpaces in all their ſynnes. Thus ſhal he do vnto the Tabernacle of wyneſſe, which is the habitacion with them amonge their vncleaneſſe.

To man ſhalbe in the Tabernacle of wyneſſe, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the Sanctuary, vntyll he go ouer: and ſo ſhall he make an attonement for him ſelf and his houſe, and for the whole congregation of Iſrael. And whā he goeth forth vnto the altare that ſtondeſh before the LORDE, he ſhal reconyle it, and ſhal take of ʒ bullockes bloude, and of the goates bloude, ʒ put it vpon the homes of the altare rounde aboue. And with his ſynger ſhal he ſpente of the bloude thereon ſeuē tymes, and haſtens it, and conſecrate it from the vncleaneſſe of the children of Iſrael.

And when he hath made an ende of reconylyng the Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of wyneſſe, and the altare, he ſhal bringe the lyyng goate.

The ſhal Aaron laie both his hādes vps ʒ heade of him, ʒ confeſſe ouer him all the myſdoes of ʒ childre of Iſrael, ʒ all their treſpaces in their ſynnes, ʒ ſhal laie the vps ʒ heade of the goate, ʒ by ſome man ʒ is at hande, ſhal he let him ranne in to the wylderne: ʒ the goate maye ſo beate all their myſdoes vpon him in to ʒ wylderneſſe, and he ſhal leaue him in the wylderneſſe.

And Aaron ſhal go in to the Tabernacle of wyneſſe, and put of the linnen clothes, which he put on whā he werte in to ʒ Sanctuary, and ſhall leaue them there, and bathe his fleſh with water in the holy place, and put on his awne raiment.

And he ſhal go forth, and make his burne offeringe, and the burneofferynge of the people, and make an attonement both for him ſelf, and for the people, and burne the fat of the ſynofferynge vpon the altare. But he ʒ carried out the ſte goate, ſhal waſh his clothes, and bathe him ſelf with water, ʒ then come in to the hooff.

The bullocke of the ſynofferynge, and ʒ goate of the ſynofferynge (whole bloude was brought in to the Sanctuary to make an attonement) ſhal be carried out of ʒ hooff, ʒ bent with fyre, both their ſkynnes, fleſh, and donge. And he that burneth them ſhal waſh his clothes, and bathe him ſelf with water, and then come in to the hooff.

And this ſhal be a perpetuall lawe vnto you: Vpon the tenth daye of the ſeuenth moneth ſhal ye humble youre ſoules, and do no worke, whether it be one of youre ſilues, or a ſtraunger amonge you. For in this daye is youre attonement made, that ye maye be denſed from all youre ſynnes before the LORDE: therfore ſhall it be a fre Sabbath vnto you, and ye ſhal humble youre ſoules. Let this be a perpetuall lawe.

But the priefte that is annoynted, and whoſe hande was fylled to be priefte in his fathers ſteade, ſhal make this attonement, and ſhal put on the linnen clothes, namely the holy veſtiments, ſo ſhal he reconyle the holy Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of wyneſſe, and the altare, and ʒ prieftes, and all the people of the congregation. This ſhal be a perpetuall lawe vnto you, that ye reconyle ʒ children of Iſrael from all their ſynnes once a yere. And Moſes dyd, as the LORDE commaunded him.

The XVII. Chapter.

And ʒ LORDE ſpake with Moſes, ʒ ſayde: Speake vnto Aaron ʒ his ſonnes, ʒ to all ʒ childre of Iſrael, ʒ ſaye vnto them: This is it that ʒ LORDE hath commaunded: What ſo euer he be of ʒ houſe of Iſrael, ʒ kylleth an oxe, or laibe, or goate in the hooff, or one of the beoſt, and bringeth it not before the doore of the Tabernacle of wyneſſe, that it maye be brought vnto the LORDE for an offeringe before the habitacion of ʒ LORDE, the ſame ſhal be gnicie of bloude, as though he had ſhed bloude, and ſech a man ſhal be roced out from amonge his people.

Herfor ſhall the children of Iſrael bringe their offeringes (that they will offe vpon the wyde ſide) before the LORDE, euen before the doore of the Tabernacle.

of witness, unto the priest, & there offre their health offeringes unto the LORD. And the priest shall sprinkle the bloude upon the altare of the LORD before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and burne the fat for a sacrifice (saucure unto the LORD): and they shall offre their offeringes nomore unto devils, with whom they go a whooringe. This shall be a perpetuall lawe unto them amonge their posterities.

C Therefore shalt thou saie unto the: What man so ever be of the house of Israel, or a stranger also that is amonge you, which offereth a burnt offeringe or any other offeringe, and bringeth it not before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness to offre it unto the LORD, he shall be roted out from amonge his people.

L. c And what man so ever it be (either of the house of Israel, or a stranger amonge you) that eateth my manner of bloude, agaynst him will I set my face, and will rece him out from amonge his people: for the soule of y body is in the bloude, and I have given it you for the altare, that youre soules maye be reconcyled ther with: For the bloude that is in the soule maketh attonement. Therefore have I saye unto the children of Israel: To soule amonge you shall eat bloude, nor ner any stranger that dwelleth amonge you.

D And what man so ever it be amonge you (whether he be of the house of Israel, or a stranger amonge you) that at the huntinge eateth a beast or soule which maye be eaten, he shall pour out the bloude of the same, & cover it with earth: for all flesh lyveth in the bloude.

L. c. a And I have sayde unto the children of Israel: He shall eat the bloude of no body: for the life of all flesh is in his bloude. Who so ever eateth it, shall be roed out. And what so ever soule eateth that which dyed alone, or y was some of wyld beestes (whether he be one of youre sterva or a stranger) the same shall wash his clothe, and bathe himself with water, and be uncleane untill the even, and then is he cleane. But yf he wash not his clothe, nor bathe him self, then shall he deare his syne.

The XVIII. Chapter.

3 YET the LORD called by Moyses, & sai he: Speake unto the childre of Israel, & saye unto them: I am the LORD your God. Ye shall not do after y workes of the lande of Egypt, wherin ye dwelt: neyther after the bringes of the lande of Canaan, in to the which I will bringe you. Ye shall not walke after their customes, but after my lawes shall ye do, & my statutes shall ye kepe, that ye maye walke therein: for I am the LORD your God. Therefore shall ye kepe my statutes and my lawes. For the man that doth the same, shall live therein, for I am the LORD.

Unto mā shall come at his nerre kinship, to uncover his privy: for I am y LORD.

Thou shalt not uncover y privy of y father & of y mother. It is thy mother, therfore shalt thou not uncover his privy.

Thou shalt not uncover y privy of y fathers wife, for it is y fathers privy.

Thou shalt not uncover the privy of thy sister, which is the daughter of y father or of y mother, whether she be done at home or without.

Thou shalt not uncover the privy of thy sonnes daughter, or of thy daughters daughter, for it is thine owne privy.

Thou shalt not uncover y privy of y fathers wive, which is thine wive unto him, and is thy sister.

Thou shalt not uncover the privy of thy fathers sister, for it is thy fathers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not uncover the privy of thy mothers sister, for it is y mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not uncover the privy of thy fathers brother, to take his wive, for she is thine awnte.

Thou shalt not uncover y privy of y daughter in lawe, for she is y sonnes wive, therfore shalt thou not uncover his privy.

Thou shalt not uncover the privy of thy brothers wive, for it is thy brothers privy.

Thou shalt not uncover the privy of thy wive and of hir daughter also, neither shalt thou take hir sonnes daughter or hir daughters daughter, to uncover their privy, for they are hir nexte kynswomen. And it is wicheff.

Thou shalt not take a wive and hir sister also, to uncover his privy, whyle she is yet alive.

Thou shalt not go unto a woman to uncover his privy, so longe as she hath hir disface in his uncleanesse.

Thou shalt not lye with thy neighbours wive to medle with her, for to defile thy self withall.

Thou shalt not gaze of thy side also, to be burnt unto Moloch, lest thou unhalowe the

 Thou shalt not lye with mannes ynde as with womans ynde, for it is abhominacion.

Thou shalt lye with no maner of beest, so haue to do with a beest, for it is abhominacion.

D Thou shalt desire youre selues in none of the se thinges. For if heeuen whom I wil cast out before you haue slayned them selues in all these, and the lande is despised there thro-row. And their wickednesse wil I visite vpon them, so that the lande shall spue out the in-dwellers therof. Therfore kepe ye my statutes and lawes, and do not one of these abho-minacions, neither one of youre owne selues

The XX. Chapter.

Unto the LORDE talked with Moses, and he saide: Speake to the whole congregation of the children of Israel, and saye unto them: He shall be holy, for I am holy, euen the LORDE youre God. Eue-ry one feare his father and his mother. Ke-pe my holy dayes: for I am the LORDE your God. He shall not turne youre selues into Idols, & ye shall make you no goddes of me-tall: for I am the LORDE youre God.

B And whan ye will offre healtbofferynges vnto the LORDE, then shall ye offre the,
 that he maye be mercifull vnto you, & and ye shall eate them the same daye that ye offer them, and on the morow: what so euer is left on the thirde daye, shall be burne with fy-re. But if any man eate therof vpon the thirde daye, then is he vnholy, and shall not be accepted, and the same eater shall beate his synne, because he hath vnhallowed the Sanctuary of the LORDE. And such a feule shall be roced out from amonge his people.

C Whan thou respect thy londe, thou shalt not reape downe the veruost borders of it rounde aboute, ner gather it all cleane vp.
 Euen so likewise thou shalt not plucke thy vnyarde cleane also, ner gather up the grapes that are fallen downe, but shalt leaue them for y poore and stranger: for I am the LORDE youre God.

Ye shall not steale, neither lye, ner deale falsely one with another.

Ye shall not sweare falsly by my name, & so to vnhalowe the name of thy Gods: for I am the LORDE.

Thou shalt do y neighbour no wronge, ner robbe him. The workman labourer shall not byde with the vnyll the morninge.

Thou shalt not curse the deaf. Thou shalt not stombynge blocke before y blind be, but shalt feare thy God: for I am the LORDE.

Ye shall not deale wrongeously in iudgment, neither shall ye accepte the persones of the poore, ner honoure the persones of the grace, but thou shalt iudge thy neighbour righteously.

Thou shalt let no prey a causer go amonge y people. Neither shalt thou stonde agaynst y neighbour bloude: for I am y LORDE.

Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart, but shalt tell y neighbour his faute, that thou beate not synne for his sake.

Thou shalt not avenge thy self, ner beate euill will agaynst the child of thy people.

Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, as thy self: for I am the LORDE.

My statutes shall ye kepe, that thou let not y cancell gentile with bestes of another kynde: neither some thy selde with myngled

Whan a man lyeeth with a woman, and hath to do with her, which is a bond woman, and hath bene mielded withall of another man, but not losed out, ner hath creay-ned freedom, it shall be purgysed, but they shall not suffre deathe, because she was not fre.
 But he shall bringe for his trespass vnto y LORDE euen before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness: a ramme for a trespass of serynge: and the prest shall make an accou-ntment for him with the trespass offeringe before the LORDE, concerninge the synne that he hath done: so shall God be merci-full vnto him, as concerninge his synne which he hath done.

name. And though the people of the londe loke thowꝛe the fingers vpon that man, which hath geuen of his ſebe into Moloch, ſo that they put him not to death, yet wyl I ſee my face agaynſt the ſame man, ꝛ agaynſt his generation: And him, and all that go a cle: they shall beare their synne, without chyldren shal they dye.

¶ If any man take his brothers wyfe, & it is an vnclane thing: they shalbe without children, because he hath encountered his brother: so strerces.

D So kepe now all my statutes & my lawes, & do them, & the lorde whiche I bringe you to dwell therein, spere you not out. And wail be nor ye in y^e statutes of the heithen, whiche I shal cast out before you. For all sedy thin-ges haue they done, & I haue abhorred the.

But I saye vnto you: Ye shall possesse their londe. For I wyll gene you to inheritance a lode, that seruech with mylke and hony. I am the LORDE youre God, whiche haue separated you from the nacions, that ye also shoulde separate the cleane bestes fro the vnclane, and the vnclane soules from the cleane: & not to defyle youre soules vpon bestes, vpon soules & vpon all that crepeth on the ground: whiche I haue separated vnto to you, that they shulde be vnclane. Therfore shall ye be holy vnto me: for I the LOR-DE am holy, in whiche haue separated you fro the nacions, that ye shalde be myne.

¶ If a man or woman be a forchauer or an expounder of rebens, the same shall dye the death: they shalbe stoned, their bloude be vpon them.

The XXI. Chapter.

¶ Unto the LORDE I saye vnto Moyses Speake to y^e priesles of sonne of Aaron, & saye vnto the: A priesht shal defy-le him self vps no soule of his people, but vpon his nere kynne: & belongeth vnto him as vpon his mocher, vps his father, vps his sonne, vps his daughter, vpon his brother, & vpon his sister, which is yet a virgin, & hath kene no mans wyfe (whiche belongeth vnto him) vpon her maie be defyle himself. Morouer he shal not defyle him self & vps any ruler in his people, to vnhalowe him self.

¶ He shall make no crowne also vpon his heade, ner shawe of his beard, nerther shall they cut out any markes iⁿ their fleshe. They shalbe holy vnto their God, and not vn-halowe y^e name of their God: for they offre the sacrifice of the LORDE, the bled of their God, therfore shal they be holy.

¶ They shal take no whoore, ner one that is defyled, or y^e is put awaye from hir husband, for he is holy vnto his God: therfore shal he sanctifie him self, for he offereth the bled of thy God. He shal be holy vnto the, for I am holy, curth the LORDE that sanctifieth you.

¶ If a priesle daughter fall to whooringe, she shalbe burnt with fyre, for she hath shamed hir father. He that is hye past amonge his brethren, vps whose heade the anoynte oyle is pured, and his hande fylled: & he might be arayed with the vestimetes shal not vncover his heade, ner cut his clothes, & shal come as no deed, & I shal be fyre him self neither vpon father ner mocher. He shall not go out of the Sanctuary, that he vnhalowe not the Sanctuary of his God. For y^e crow-ne of the anoyntinge oyle of his God is vpon him, for I am the LORDE.

A virgin shal he take to wyfe, but no wo-dore, ner deuoid, ner defyled, ner whoore, but a virgin of his awne people shal he take to wyfe, y^e vnhalowe a not his side amonge his people. For I am y^e LORDE, whiche sanc-tifie him.

¶ And y^e LORDE talked wth Moyses, & saye: Speake vnto Aaron, & saye: If there be a ble-mysh vps eny of y^e side in yo^r generacions, the same shal not please to offre the bled of his God: For who so euer hath a blemish vpon him, shal not come nere, whether he be blynde, lame, with an euell favoured nose, or eny mysshappen membre, or y^e hath a broken fore or hande, or is croke backed, or hath eny blemish in the eye, or is gleyed, or is laye vye or scalde, or hath his stones broken.

¶ Who so euer now of the side of Aaron y^e priesht hath eny blemish vps him, shal not come nye to offre y^e sacrifice of the LORDE, for he hath a deformyte. Therfore shall he not please vnto the bled of his God, to offre it.
Notwithstandinge he shal eate of the bled of his God, both of the holy, & of y^e most holy: but he shal not go in to y^e waye, ner come nye the altare (for so much as he hath a ble-mysh vps him) y^e he vnhalowe not my Sactuary, for I am y^e LORDE that sanctifie the.
And Moyses spake this vnto Aaron & to his sonnes, and to all the children of y^e Israhel.

The XXII. Chapter.

¶ Unto the LORDE talked with Moyses, & saye: Speake vnto Aaron, & to his son-nes, & they absteyne from y^e halowe things of the childre of y^e Israhel, whiche they haue halowe vnto me, & y^e they vnhalowe not my holy name: for I am y^e LORDE. Saie now vnto them & their posterities: Who so euer he be of yo^r side, y^e cometh nye vnto the holy thinges, whiche the childre of y^e Israhel halowe vnto the LORDE, & so defyleth him self vpon the same, his soule shal pershe before my face: for I am the LORDE.

¶ Who so euer of the side of Aaron is a leper, or hath a runnyng yssue, shall not eate of the holy thinges, yll be cleane. Who toucheth any unclane thinge, or who se be departed from him by night, or who so toucheth any worme that is unclane unto him, or a ma^e is unclane unto him, & what so ever defyleth hi, loke what some toucheth any such, is unclane untyll the even. & shall not eate of the holy thinges, but shall first bath his flesh with waer. And wha^e if some is gone downe, and be cleane, then maye he eate thereof, for it is his food. Like what dyeth alone, or is rent of wyld beestes, shall be not eate, for he be not unclane thereon: for Jam^s & LORDE. Therefore shall they kepe my lawes, for they labe not synne upon them, & bye therein, whan they unhalowe them selues in it. For Jam^s & LORDE, shallowe them.

B A stranger shal not eate of the holy thin ges, nor an houslyde gest of the prestis, nor an hyred seruair. But yf^e prest bye a soule for his money, for same maye eate therof. And loke who is borne in his house, maye eate of his bred also. Tenachleas yf the prestes dongher be a strangers wife, she shal not eate of the heuerofferinges of holymen. But yf she be a weddoe, or deuorced, or haue no frend, & cometh agayne to hir fathers hous as afore: whan she was yet a mayden in hir fathers house: then shall she eate of hir fa thers bred. But no stranger shal eate therof.

Who so els eateth of the halowed thin ges, un wytingly, shal pur^e forfith parte the se unto, and geue it vnto the prest with the halowed thinge, that they unhalowe not for halowed thinges of the children of Israel, which they haue vpon vnto the LORDE, lest they labe them selues with mysdoinge and trepac, wha^e they eate their halowed thin ges, for Jam^s & LORDE which halowe the.

C And for LORDE talked wth Moyses, & saide: Speake vnto Aaron & his sonnes, & to all the childre of Israel: What so ever Israelite or stranger in Israel wyll do his offeringe, whether it be their owne, or of fre wyl, that they wyll offere a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE, to reconyle them selues, it shall be a male, and without blemys, of the oxen, or lammes, or goates. What so ever hath any blemys, shal they not offere, for they shal syn be no favour therewith.

And who so wyll offere an healt offeringe vnto the LORDE, Eo separate out a wowe, or of fre wyl, oxen or shepe, it shall be without blemys, for it maye be accepted. It shal haue no defoult. If it be blynde, or broke, or wounded, or haue a wen, or steryue, or scab beth, they shal offere none such vnto the LOR

D E, nor put an offeringe of any such vps the altare of the LORDE.

And one of shepe for blythe mysshappt mem bres, or no tempe, maye yett offer of a fre wyl: but to a wowe it maye not be accepted.
 Thou shalt offere also vnto the LORDE nothinge for is blynde, or bioten, or rent, or curd out, & ye shal do no such in youre londe. Nor ouer ye shall offere no bred vnto youre God of a strangers hande: for it is marred of him, and he hath a defoult, therfore shal it not be accepted for you.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moyses, & say de: Wha^e an oxe, or labe, or goate is brought forth, it shal be seuen dayes with the dame, and vpon the eight daye thereafter it maye be offered vnto the LORDE, the is it accep ted. Whether it be oxe or labe, it shall not be slayne with his yonge in one daye.

But wha^e ye will offere a that offeringe vnto the LORDE: for it maye be accepted, ye shal eate it the same daye, & kepe nothinge ouer untyll the morninge: for Jam^s the LORDE.
 Therefore kepe now my commandementes, and do them: for Jam^s the LORDE, for ye un halowe not my holy name, & that I maye be halowed amonge the children of Israel.
 For Jam^s herbar: halowe you, en^d LORDE, which broughte you out of forde of Egipt, for I might be your God: Lamen^e Jam^s & LORDE.

The XXXIIII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked with Moyses, & saide:
 Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto them:
 These are the feastes of the LORDE, which ye shal call by dayes. Sixe dayes shall they worke, but the seventh daie is the rest of the Sabbath, and shall be called holy, for shal do no worke therein, for it is the Sabbath of the LORDE, where so ever ye dwell.

These are the feastes of the LORDE, for called holy, which ye shal call your feastes.
 Upon for fourthe daye of for first moneth at even, is the LORDES Easter. And vpon for fift e daye of the same moneth is the feast of unleued bred of the LORDE. Then shall ye eate unleued bred seuen dayes.

The first daie shall be called holy amonge you, ye shal do no worke of bondage therein, for seue daies shal ye offere vnto for LORDE. The seventh daie shall be called holy likewise, wher in ye shal do no worke of bondage also.

And for LORDE talked wth Moyses, & sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, for saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the lande for I shall geue you, and reape downe youre har vest, ye shal buyge a sheff of the first frutes of youre harneſt vnto the pieſt, the ſhall the ſhepe be waied beſore the LORDE, that ye maye be accepted: but this ſhal the pieſt do the nexte daye after the Sabbath. And ſo ſame daie that ye ſhepe is waied, ſhal ye offre a burnt offering vnto the LORDE, of a lamb which is without blemiſh, and of one yeare olde, wth the meate offeringe, two tenth deales of fyne flour mingled with oyle, for an offeringe of a ſweete ſauoure vnto the LORDE: Et the drynt offeringe alſo, eaz the fourth parte of an ſhin of wyne.

C And ye ſhall eate neither bread, nor cakes, ner ſupper (of new corne) tyll the ſame daye that ye bringe an offeringe vnto youre God. This ſhal be a lame vnto youre poſterities, where ſo euer ye dwell.

11 Then ſhal ye nombr: from the nexte daye after the Sabbath, whan ye broughte y^e Waue ſhepe ſeven whole wekes, vntyll the nexte daie after y^e ſeuenth weke, namely, ſfirie daies, ſhal ye nombr, and offre new meate offeringes vnto the LORDE. And out of all youre dwellinges ſhal ye offre, namely, two Waue loaves of two tenth deales of fyne flour leued, and baken for the firſt frutes vnto y^e LORDE. And with youre bied ye ſhal bringe ſeven lambes of one yeare olde without blemiſh, and a yonge bullocke, and two rammes: this ſhal be the LORDES burnt offeringe, meate offeringe, and drynt offeringe. This is a ſacrifice of a ſweete ſauoure vnto the LORDE.

D Moreover ye ſhal offre an he goate for a ſynofferinge, and two lambes of a yeare olde for an health offeringe. And y^e pieſt ſhal waie it vpon the bied of the firſt frutes beſore the LORDE with the two lambes. And they ſhal be holy vnto the LORDE, and ſhal be the pieſtes. And this daye ſhal ye proclame, for it ſhal be called holy amonge you: no ſeruyle worke ſhal ye do therein. A perpetuall lawe ſhall it be amonge yo^r poſterities, wher ſo euer ye dwell.

E Whan ye reape downe y^e harneſt of youre londe, ye ſhal not cut it cleane downe vpon the ſide, ner gather vp all, but ſhal leave it for the poore and ſtraungers. Jam the LORDE youre God.

F And y^e LORDE ſpake with Moſes, and ſayde: Speake vnto the childern of Iſrael, ſayde: Upon the firſt daye of the ſeventh moneth ſhal ye haue the holy reſt of the reman- biance of blowinge, wherein ye ſhal do no ſeruyle worke, and ye ſhal offre ſacrifice vnto the LORDE.

G And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, and ſayde: Upon the tenth daye in this ſeventh moneth is the daye of reconcyling, which ſhal be an holy convocacion wth you. Ye ſhal humble youre ſoules therein, and offre vnto the LORDE, and ſhal do no ſeruyle worke in this daye: for it is the daye of attonement, that ye maye be reconcyled beſore the LORDE youre God. For what ſoule ſo euer humbled not him ſelf vpon this daye, the ſame ſhal be reed out from amonge his people. And what ſoule ſo euer doctheny worke this daye, the ſame wil y^e deſtroye from amonge his people: therfore ſhall ye do no worke. This ſhal be a perpetuall lawe vnto youre poſterities, where ſo euer ye dwell. In the reſt of youre Sabbath, that ye maye humble youre ſoules. Upon the nynteh daye of y^e month ſeven, ſhal ye kepe this holy daye from the euen ſourth vntyll the eue agayne.

And the LORDE talked with Moſes, ſayde: Upon the fiftene daye of the ſeventh moneth, is the feaſt of Tabernacles ſeven dayes vnto the LORDE. The firſt daye ſhal be an holy convocacion: no ſeruyle worke ſhal ye do therein. Seven dayes ſhal ye offre vnto the LORDE. The eighte daye ſhal be an holy convocacion vnto you alſo, and ye ſhal offre vnto the LORDE: for it is the daye of gatheringe together: No ſeruyle worke ſhall ye do therein.

These are the holy daies of the LORDE, which ye ſhall proclame and holde for holy convocacions, that ye maye offre vnto the LORDE burnt offeringes, meate offeringes, drynt offeringes and other offeringes, eury one accordinge to his daye, beſyre y^e Sabbathes of y^e LORDE, and youre giſtes, and vowes, and frewylofferinges, that ye offre vnto the LORDE.

So vpon the fiftene daye of the ſeventh moneth, whan ye haue brought in the increaſe of the londe, ye ſhall kepe the LORDES feaſt ſeven dayes longe. The firſt daye ſhal be kepe holy daye, and the eighte daye ſhal be kepe holy daye alſo. And vpon the firſt daye ye ſhal take of y^e goodly fruitfull trees, boughes of palme trees, z bowes of thicke trees, and Wyllies of the biſche, and ſuf dayes ſhal ye be merry beſore y^e LORDE youre God: and thus ſhal ye kepe the feaſt vnto the LORDE ſeven dayes in the yeare. This ſhal be a perpetuall lawe amonge youre poſterities, that they kepe holy daye thus in y^e ſeventh moneth. Seven dayes ſhal ye dwell in boches. Who ſo euer is an Iſraelite borne, ſhal dwell in boches, that they which come after you, maye knowe, howe that y^e made y^e children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your God. And Moses tolde the children of Israel these holy daies of the LORD.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Vnto the LORD spake vnto Moses, 1 & sayde: Commande the children of Israel, that they bringe pure oyle of beaten for lightes, that it maye be alwaye put in the lampes, without before the wayle of wyntesse in the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And Aaron shall dreffe it alwaye at euen 2 in 3 mourninge before the LORD. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto youre posterities. The lampes shall be dreffe upon the pure canillike before the LORD perpetuallly.

B And thou shalt take fyne flour, and beaten wolle cakes, the first of each beale shall every cake haue, & thou shalt laye them one on a rowe wpp the pure table before the LORD. And upon the same shalt thou laye pure frankensent, that it maye be had of remembrance for an offeringe vnto 3 LORD. Every Sabbath shall be prepare the before the LORD alwaye, and receave them of the children of Israel for an euerlastinge covenante. And they shall be Aarens & his sonnes, which shall care them in the holy place, for this is his most holy of the offerings of the LORD for a perpetuall daie.

C And there wente out an Israelitish woman sonne, which was the dyste of a man of Egypte (amonge the children of Israel) and strove in 4 boost with a man of Israel, & named the name of God blasphemously, & cursed. Then brought they him vnto Moses. His mothers name was Selomich, the daughter of Dibui, of the trybe of Dan.

D And they put him in prison, vntill they were 5 scourged by the mouth of the LORD.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: 6 Dyinge him that cursed, out of the boost, and let all the that heere it, laye their handes upon his heade, and let the whole congregacion ston him. And whoe vnto the dyste of Israel. Whoe so curse blasphemeth his God, shall beare his synne 1 and he that blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall dye the death. The whole congregacion shall ston him. As the stranger, so shall be of the household be also. 2 If he blasphemeth the name, he shall dye.

3 He that slayeth a man, shall dye 3 death, but he that slayeth a beest, shall paye for it. Soule for soule. And he that mayneth his neighboare, it shall be done vnto him, euen as he hath done: broke for broke, eye for eye, tuche for tuche: euen as he hath mayneth a man, so shall it be done vnto him agayne, so that, who so slayeth a beest, shall paye for it: But he that slayeth a man, shall dye. There shall be one maner of lawe amonge you, to 4 5 a stranger as to one of youre flate: for I am the LORD your God.

Moses tolde the children of Israel. And they brought him that had cursed, out of 6 boost, and stoned him. Thus dyd the child of Israel as the LORD commaunded Moses.

The XXV. Chapter.

Vnto the LORD talked with Moses 1 vpon mount Sinaï, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: 2 When ye come in to the lande, 3 I shall gene you, the lande shall rest vnto the LORD, so that thou some thy silde sixe yeares, and sixe yeares cut 4 wyne, and gather in the frutes. But in the seventh yeare the lde shall haue his Sabbath of rest for a Sabbath vnto the LORD, wherein thou shalt not some thy silde nee cut thy wyne.

5 Take what groweth of it self after thy harvest, thou shalt not reape it. And the grape that growe without thy laboure, shall thou not gather, for so much as it is the yeare of the lande rest: But the rest of the lande shall thou kepe for this intent, that thou mayest eate thereof thy seruantes, thy mayde, thy byslinge, thy guest, thy stranger with the thy cattell, and the beestes in thy lande, 6 All the increase shall be meate.

7 And thou shalt nombe steuen of these yeare Sabbathes, that seven yeares maye be tolde seven tymes, and so the tyme of the seven yeare Sabbathes make nyne and foure yeares. Then shalt thou let the blast of the borne go thowro all youre lande, upon the tenth daie of the seventh moneth, euen in 8 9 daie of attonement. And ye shall blowe the sixtieth yeare, and shall call it a fre yeare in 3.

sonde, for all them that dwell therein: for it is the year of Jubilye. Then shall euery one amonge you come agayne to his possession and to his kynne: for the fiftieth year is the year of Jubilye. Ye shall not sowe ner reape it that groweth of it self, ner gather the grapes, that growe without labour. For the year of Jubilye shall be holy amonge you.
 But loke what the felde beareth, that shall ye eat. This is the year of Jubilye, wherein ye shall come agayne euery man to his owne.

C Now when thou sellest oughte vnto thy neyghboure, or buyest any thinge of him, there shall none of you oppresse his brother: but ac-cordinge to the nombre of the year of Jubi-lye shall thou buye it of him: and accordinge to the nombre of the yeares of increase shall he sell it vnto the. Accordinge to the multitude of the yeares shall thou raise the pryce, & accordinge to the fewnesse of the yeares shalt thou mynish the pryce: for he shall sell it vnto the accordinge to the nombre of the increase. Therfore let no man be fraude his neyghboure, but feare ye God. For I am the LORD your God. What soeuer do as far my statutes, and keepe my lawes, so ye ye do them that ye maye dwell safe in the sonde. For the sonde shall geue you hir fruce, so that ye shall haue ynough to eat, and dwell safe therein.

And yf ye woulde saye: What shall we eate in the seuenth year, in as much as we shall not sowe, ner gather inoure increase: I will sende my blessinge vpon you in the sixte yeare, that it shall bringe forth fruce for thre yeare, so that ye shall sowe in the eighthe year, and eate of the olde fruce vntill the nyenthy yeare, that ye maye eate of the olde tyll new frutes come agayne. Therfore shall ye not sell the sonde for enur, for the sonde is myne. And ye are strangers and indwellers before me.
 And in all youre lande shall ye geue the sonde to lome.

M When thy brother wareth poore, and selleth his possession, and his nexte kynsmā cometh to him, if he maye redeeme it: then shall he redeeme that his brother solde. But when a man hath none to redeeme it, and came so moch with his hande as to redeeme ome parte, then shall it be redeemed how many yeares it hath bene solde, and the remnant shall be restored vnto him to whom he solde it, if he maye come agayne to his possession.
 But yf his hande can not geue so moch, as to haue one parte agayne, the shall it he solde be styll in the hande of the buyer vntill the year of Jubilye: In the same shall it go out, and returne to his owne agayne.

Ye that sellesh a dwellinge house within the walles of the cite, hath an whole year respire to lome it our agayne: that shall be the tyme, wherein he maye redeeme it. But yf he redeeme it not a fore the whole year be out, then shall he that boughte it, and his suc-cesseurs keepe it for euer, and it shall not go out lome in the year of Jubilye. Let verely yf it be an house in a village that hath no wall aboute it, it shall be counted like vnto the felde of the countre, and maye be redeemed and shal go out in the year of Jubilye.

The cities of the Levites, and the houses in the cities that their possession is in, maye all waye be redeemed. Who so purchaseth oughte of the Levites, shall leave it in the year of Jubilye, whether it be house or cite that he hath had in possession. For the houses in the cities of the Levites are their possession amonge the children of Israel. But the felde before their cities shall not be solde, for it is their owne for euer.

When thy brother wareth poore, and selleth in decaye besyde the, thou shalt receaue him as a stranger, or guest, that he maye ly-ue by the: and thou shalt take no usury of him, ner more then thou hast geue, but shall feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue besyde the. For thou shalt not lende him money vpon usury, ner dystur him thy mate vpon vantage. For I am the LORD your God, which haue broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, to geue you the lande of Canaan, and to be youre God.

When thy brother wareth poore besyde the, and sellesh himself vnto the, thou shalt not holde him as a bode mā: but as a hired seruante and as a sojourner shall he be w-the, and serue the vntill the year of Jubilye.
 Then shall he be departe lome from the, & his childer with him, & shall returne to his owne kyndred, and to his fathers possession: for they are my seruantes, whom I broughte out of the lande of Egypte. Therefore shall they not be solde like bondmen. And thou shalt not raigne ouer them with crudelty, but shalt feare thy God. But yf thou wylt haue bode ser-uantes, and maydens, thou shalt buye them of the heithen, that are rounde aboute you:
 of the children of the sojourners and strangers amonge you, and of their generacions with you, and that are borne in youre lande, the same shall ye haue for bonde seruantes, & shall possesse them, & youre childer after you for an everlastinge possession, the shall be ybbondmen. But ouer youre brethren the children of Israel, there shall none of you raigne ouer another rich cruelie.

1 When a stranger or sojourner waxeth rich by the, and thy brother waxeth poore before him, & selleth him self vnto thy stranger or sojourner by the, or to any of his kynne, then shall he haue righte (a sarr that he is sold) to be redeemed agayne. And any of his brethren maye loose him out: or his uncle or his uncles sone, or any other kynsmen of his kynne: Or yf his awne hande getteth so much, he shall loose him self out, and shall reden with him that bought him, from the yeare that he sold him self, vntill the yeare of Iubilee. And the money shall be counted a cooinge to the nombre of the yeares that he was sold, and his wages of the whole tyme shall be rekened withall.

If there be yet many yeares vnto the yeare of Iubilee, then shall he (accordinge to the same) geue the more for his dutyeraunce, thereafter as he is sold. If there remaine but few yeares vnto the yeare of Iubilee, then shall he geue agayne thereafter for his redemption. And his wages from yeare to yeare shall be reken withall, and thou shalt not let the other raigne cruelly ouer him in sight. But yf he dye not him self out after this manner, then shall he go out free in the yeare of Iubilee, and his childre with him: for the childre of Israel are my seruantes, which I haue brought out of the lande of Egypt. I am the LORDE your God.

4 Ye shall make you no Idols nor ymage, and ye shall reare you vp no piler, nor set vp any marystone in youre lande, to borne youre sinnes therto. For I am the LORDE your God. Ye keep my Sabbaths, and stonde in awe of my Sanctuary. I am the LORDE.
The XXVI. Chapter.

2 Yf ye will walke now in my statutes, and kepe my commandementes and do them, the wyl I geue you raine in due season, and the lande shall geue hir increase, and the trees of the felde shall bringe forth their fruce. And the theuellinginge tyme shall reache vnto the wyne harvest, and the wyne harvest shall reache vnto the sowinge tyme. And ye shall eate yf dyed in plenteousnes, and shall dwell safe in youre lande. I will geue peace in youre lande, so that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you a frayed. I wyl tryb enell beestes out of youre lande, and there shall no swerde go thowow youre lande.

11 Ye shall chase youre enemies, & they shall fall into the swerde before you. Yf one of you shall chase an hundred: and an hundred of you shall chase ten thousande. For youre enemies shall fall in to the swerde before you. And I wyl curne me vnto you, and wyl canse you to growe and increase, and wyl set vp my countenance with you. And ye shall ease of the olde sware, and shall let go the olde set of plenteousnesse of the new. I will haue my dwellinge amonge you, and my soule shall not refuse you. And I wyl walke amonge you, and wyl be youre God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the LORDE your God, which broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, that ye shoulde not be their bondmen. And I haue brookt the cepter of youre yocke, and causid you to go vp righte.

But yf ye wil not hearken vnto me, nor do all these commandementes, and wyl despise my statutes, and yf youre soules refuse my lawes, ye wyl not do all my commandementes, & shall let my countenance stonde, then wyl I do this agayne vnto you. I wyl visit you shortly with swellnges and fures, which shall destroye the eyes, & consume awaye yf here. Ye shall sowe your sowe in vayne, and youre enemies shall eate it vp.

And I wyl set my face agaynst you, and ye shall be slayne before youre enemies. And they that hate you shall haue dominion ouer you. And ye shall sive, wha no man shall seech you.

But yf ye wyl not hearken vnto me for all this, then wyl I make it yet ten tymes more, to punyssh you for youre synnes, that I maye buske the pryde of youre strength, and wyl make youre heauenlyte yion, and youre earch as bestiall: and youre trauaile and labb shall be due lost, so that youre lande shall not geue hir increase, and the trees in the lande shall not bringe forth their fruce.

If ye walke yet agaynst me, and wyl not hearken vnto me, then wyl I make it yet ten tymes more, to punyssh you because of youre synnes: wyl sende wyde beestes amonge you, which shall robbe you, and despoyle youre cattell, and inake you fewer, and youre waye shall become wast.

But yf ye wyl not yet be returned here withall, and wyl walke contrary vnto me, then wyl I walke contrary vnto you also, & wyl punyssh you yet ten tymes for youre synnes. And I wyl bringe vpon you a swerde of vengeance, which shall anenge my Testament. And though ye gather you together in to youre cities, yet wyl I sende the pestilence amonge you, and wyl beleeue you in to the handes of youre enemies. For I wyl destroye youre prouision of dyeb, so that your reman shall haue youre dyeb in one omen, and yours bad shal be deliuered out by weight. And whan ye eate, ye shall not haue yonghe.

E If ye wyl not yet for all this harden unto me, I wyl make contrary unto me, then wyl I also make contrary unto you in such full displeasure, and wyl punish you even so be because of youre synnes, so that ye shal eate the flesh of youre sonnes and doughters. And I wyl destroye youre hye altars, and rote out youre ymages, and wyl cast youre bodies upon the bodies of youre Idols, and my soule shall abhorre you. And youre cities wyl I make waiste, and bringe youre churches to naught, and wyl not smell youre sweete odoures.

Thus wyl I make the londe desolate, so that youre enemies shall dwell therein, and make it waiste: but you wyl I seuer amonge the heythen, and blame out the swerde after you, so that your londe shal be waiste, and your cities desolate.

S Then shall the londe reioyse in hir Sabbathes, so longe as it lyeth waiste, and ye be in the enemies londe. And then shall the londe kepe holy daies, and reioyse in hir rest, as long as it lyeth waiste, because it coude not rest in youre Sabbathes, whan ye dwelt therein.

And as for them that remaine of you, I wyl make them saynte hated in the londe of their enemies, so that a shall nye leaf shall chace them. And they shall flye from it, as though a swerde persecuted them, and shal fall noman followinge upon them. And they shall fall one upon another (as it were before the swerde) and noman yet charynge them. And ye shall not be so bolde, as to withstonde youre enemies, and shal perishe amonge the heythen, and the londe of youre enemies shal eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, shall perye awaye in their mysdede, euen in the enemies londe, and in the mysdedes of their fathers shall they consume awaye. Then shall they knowlege their mysdedes, and the mysdedes of their fathers in the trespase, wher with they haue trespassed agaynst me, and walked contrary unto me. Therfore wyl I also make contrary unto the, and wyl bringe them in to the enemies londe.

E Then shall their covenants be tamed. And then shall they ende their mysdedes. And I shal thinke vpon my covenant with Jacob, and vpon my covenant with Isaac, and vpon my covenant with Abraham, and wyl thynke vpon the lorde. As for the londe, whan it shal be left of them, it shal reioyse in hir Sabbathes, euen then, whan it lyeth waiste, and they eyle it not. And they shall make attonement for their mysdedes, because they despyed my lawes, and their fales refused my statutes. Moreover I haue not so refused them, that they shalde be in the enemies londe: neither haue I so vererly abhorred them, that I wolde bringe them to naught, and decaie my covenant unto them: for I am the LORDE their God. And for their sake I wyl remember my first covenant, wher I broughte them out of the londe of Egypte in the sight of the heythen, so that I might be their God. Amen I the LORDE.

These are the ordinances, statutes and lawes, which the LORDE made betwixte him and the children of Israel vpon mount Sinai, by the hande of Moyses.

The XXVII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked with Moyses, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saye unto them: If any man make a speciall vowe unto the LORDE, so that he paye a soule, then shal this be the valuation: A mans fowertye yearde olde vnto the thre score yearde, shall thou set as fiftie silver Syckles, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary: but a woman as thirtie Syckles. If he be fyve yearde olde vnto twentye yearde, then shall he set it at twentye Syckles, whan it is a man childe: but a woman at ten Syckles. If it be a moneth olde vnto fyve yearde, then shall he set it at fyve Syckles of silver, whan it is a maychilde: but a woman at thre Sycker Syckles. If he be thre score yearde olde and above, the shal thou set him at fiftene Syckles: whan it is a woman at ten Syckles. If he be so poore so he set, the leaue him passen himselfe so pursh, and the prest shal value him. If certcheles he shal value him, accordinge as he haue of him that woueth, is able to get. But if he be a beest, it maye be offered vnto the LORDE. All that is offered vnto the LORDE of such, is holy: it shal not be altered ner chaunged, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. If any man change it, or beest for another, then shal they both be holy vnto the LORDE. But if a beest be unclean whiche maye not be offered vnto the LORDE, the shal it be set, before the prest, and the prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad, and it shal stonde at the prestes valuinge. But if any man wil bye it out, he shal geue the fift part more, to that it was set at.

Whan any man sanctifyeth his beest vnto the LORDE for the Sanctuary, the prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the prest valuethe it, so shal it stonde. And if he þ sanctified it, wyl redeme it, he shal geue þ fifth parte of syluer therto, above that it was set at: So shal it be his.

C If any man halowe a pecc of lde of his heritage vnto the LORDE, it shalbe set accoordinge to þic beareth. If it beare an homer of barlye, it shalbe valued at fiftye Syckles of syluer. But yf he halowe his londe immediatly from the yeare of Jubilye forth, then shal it be set accordinge to þ value thereof. If he haue halowed it a fter the yeare of Jubilye, then shal the prest rek it, accordinge to y yeares þ remayne vnto þ yeare of Jubilye, & therafter shal he set it the lower.

But yf he þ sanctified the londe, wyl redeme it agayn, then shal he geue the fifth parte of syluer therto, above that it was set at: So shal it be his. If he wyl not louse it out, but sell it vnto another, then shal he redeme it nomore: but the same londe whan it goeth oute in þ yeare of Jubilye, shal be holy vnto the LORDE, as a dedicated felde, and shalbe the prestes inheritaunce.

D If any man halowe vnto the LORDE a side, whiche he hath bought, and is not his inheritaunce, then shal y prest rek it, what it is worth vnto the yeare of Jubilye, & the same daye shall he geue the pryce that it is set at, vnto the LORDE for the Sanctuary. But in y yeare of Jubilye it shal retorne vnto hym that bought it, þ it maye be his inheritaunce in the londe. All maner of pyssinge shalbe made accordinge to the Cycle of the Sanctuary. One Cycle maketh xx. Yeares.

^{n.c.} The first beue amonge y cattell (whiche belongeth vnto the LORDE) shall no man Sanctifie vnto the LORDE, whether it be oxe or shepe, for it is the LORDES all ready. But yf there be any vnclene thinge vpon the best, the shal it be lowd out therafter as it is worth, and the fifth parte shalbe geuen more therto. If he wyl not redeme it, the lea it be sold, as it is worth.

E There shall no dedicated thinge be solde nor boughte out: yf any man dedicated vnto þ LORDE, of all þ is his good, whether it be me, cattell or lde. For every dedicated thinge, is most holy vnto y LORDE. There shall no dedicated thinge of man be boughte out, but shal be the death. All the tytes in the londe, both of the feilds of the londe, & of þ frutes of the trees, are the LORDES, & shal be holy vnto the LORDE. But yf any man wyl redeme his tiche, he shall geue the fifth parte more therto. And all the tiches of open & shyete, & that goeth vnder the rod, the same is an holy tiche vnto the LORDE. It shall

The first Chapter.

As the LORD E spake vnto Moses in 3 wyl- berneffe of Sinai, in the Tabernacle of wit- nesse, the first daye of the secōde month in the secōde yeare, whā they were gone out of the lāde of Egypte, and sayde: Take 3 sum- me of the whole congregacion of the chil- dren of Israel, after their kynredes 2 their fatheres houses, with the nombre of the na- mes, all that are males, heade by heade, frō twentye yeare and above, as many as are able to go forth in to fy warre in Israel. And ye shal nombre them accordinge to their fa- myes thou and Aaron, and of every trybe ye shal take vnto you one captayne out his fatheres house.

These are the names of the captaynes that shal sonde with you. Of Ruben, Elisur the sonne of Seteur. Of Simcon, Solumiel the sonne of Suri Sabai. Of Iuda, Uthasson the sonne of Aminadab. Of Ia- char, Uthabaniel the sonne of Soar. Of Zabulon, Eliah the sonne of Iedon. Amonge the chylde of Joseph: Of Ephraim, Elisama 3 sonne of Amihud. Of Manasse, Gamaliel the sonne of Pedayar. Of Ben Ja- min, Abidam 3 sonne of Setooni. Of Dan, Ahicler the sonne of Ammi Sabai. Of As- ser, Pagiel the sonne of Ochiaim. Of Gad, Elialaph 3 sonne of Deguel. Of Lepphe- li, Ahira the sonne of Enan.

These are the ancient men of the con- gregation, the captaynes amonge the try- bes of their fatheres, which were heades and prynces in Israel.

And Moses 2 Aaron toke them (like as they are there named by name) and gathe- red the whole congregacion together also, 3 first daye of the secōde month, and reled the a ster their bych, accordinge to their ky- nredes and fatheres houses by their names, frō twentye yeare and above, heade by heade, as the LORD E commanded Moses, and nom- beth them in the wyrdemes of Sinai.

The chylde of Ruben Israels first son- ne, their kynredes 2 generacions after their fatheres houses, in 3 nombre of their names heade by heade, all 3 were males, frō twentye yeare 2 above, and were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Ruben, sixe and fourtye thousande, and fy- ue hundred.

The chylde of Simcon their kynredes 2 generacions after their fatheres houses in the nombre of the names heade by heade, all that were males frō twentye yeare and above, and were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Symcon, nym and sixtye thousande and the hun- dert.

The chylde of Gad their kynredes and generacions after their fatheres houses in 3 nombre of the names, frō twentye yeare and above, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Gad, five and forty thousande, sixe hundred and fiftie.

The children of Juda their kyndes and generations after their fathers houses in þe nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and above, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Juda, foure and twentie thousande, and sixe hundred.

D The children of Issachar their kyndes and generations, after their fathers houses in þe nombre of the names from twentye yeare and above, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Issachar, foure and fifty thousande and foure hundred.

The children of Zabulon their kyndes and generations after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names from twentye yeare and above, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Zabulon, seven and fifty thousande and seuen hundred.

Jeseph children of Ephraim, their kyndes and generations after their fathers houses in þe nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and above, all þe were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Ephraim, foure thousande and sixe hundred.

E The children of Manasse their kyndes and generations, after their fathers houses in þe nombre of the names from twentye yeare and above, all þe were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Manasse, two thousande and two hundred.

The children of Ben Jamin their kyndes and generations, after their fathers houses, in the nombre of the names from twentye yeare and above, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Ben Jamin, sixe and thirtie thousande and foure hundred.

The children of Dan their kyndes and generations after their fathers houses, in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and above, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Dan, sixe and thirtie thousande, and seuen hundred.

S The children of Asser their kyndes and generations, after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and above, all þe were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Asser, one thousande and sixe hundred.

The children of Leuei, their kyndes and generations after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and above, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Leuei, thre and fifty thousande and foure hundred.

These are they whom Moses and Aaron nombred with þe rodde of prayer of Israel, wherof euery one was euer of house of their fathers. And the summe of the children of Israel after their fathers houses, from twentye yeare and above (what so euer was able to go forth to the warre in Israel) was sixe thousande, thre thousande, sixe hundred and thre score. And the trybe of the trybe of Leuei, were not nombred amonge them.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, ¶ And the trybe of Leuei shalt thou not nombred, nor take the summe of them amonge þe children of Israel: but shalt appoyne them to the habitation of wynter, and to all þe apparell therof, and to all that belongeth thereto. And they shall beare the Tabernacle and all the ordinance therof, and shall wayte vpon it, and shall pitch their tentes rounde aboute it. And when men shall go out their journey, the Leueites shall take downe þe Tabernacle. And when the hoste pitch their tentes, they shall set vp the Tabernacle. And if a stranger peasse nye vnto it, he shall dye. The children of Israel shall pitch their tentes, euery one in his owne armye, and by the baner of his owne companye. But the Leueites shall pitch rounde aboute the Tabernacle of wynter, that there come no warch vpon þe congregation of the children of Israel: the foure shall the Leueites wayte vpon the habitation of wynter. And the children of Israel byd all, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The ii. Chapter.

¶ And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayde: The childre of Israel shall pitch rounde aboute þe Tabernacle of wynter, euery one vnder his baner and tentes, after their fathers houses.

On the East syde shall Juda pitch with his baner and hoste, their capteyne Nathanson the sonne of Aminadab. And his armye in the summe, foure thousande thousande and sixe hundred. Nexte vnto him shall the trybe of Issachar pitch, their capteyne Nethaneel the sonne of Nuar: and his armye in the summe, foure and fifty thousande and foure hundred. The trybe of Zabulon also, their capteyne Eliab the sonne of Helonihis armye in the summe, seuen and fifty thousande and foure hundred.

So þ all they which be charge to þ hoost of Iuda, be in the summe an C. sixe and foure score thousande, 7 foure hundredeth be longinge to their armye, 7 they shall go before.

B On the South side shall lye the pavilions 7 baner of Ruben w their hoost, their capitaine Eliazur þ some of Seduc: 7 his armie in the summe, sixe 7 foure hundredeth. 7 frue C. Terte vnto him shall the trybe of Simeon pitch, the capitaine Simeon þ some of Zuri Sada: 7 his armie in þ summe, nyne and fiftie thousande, and thre hundredeth. The trybe of Gad also, their capitaine Eliasaph þ some of Deguel: 7 his armie in the summe, frue 7 foure hundredeth, sixe hundredeth 7 fiftie. So that all they which belonge to the hoost of Ruben, be in the summe, an hundredeth, one 7 fiftie thousande, foure hundredeth and fiftie, belonginge to their armye. And they shall be the firste in the iourney.

C After that shall the Tabernacle of wynter go w the hoost of the Leuitee out in þ myddes amonge the hoostes: 7 as they lye in their tentes, so shall they go forth also, every one in his place vnder his baner.

On the West side shall lye þ pavilions 7 baner of Ephraim w their hoost: their cap-itane shall be Elisama some of Amihud, and his armie in the summe, foure hundredeth and frue hundredeth. Terte vnto him shall þ trybe of Manasse pitch, their capitaine Gismiel the some of Pedasur: his armie in the summe, two and thirtie thousande 7 two hundredeth. The trybe of Ben Jamin also, their capitaine Abidan the some of Gedoni: his armie in the summe, frue and thirtie thousande 7 foure hundredeth. So þ all they which belonge to the hoost of Ephraim, be in the summe, an hundredeth thousande, eight hundredeth, 7 an hundredeth belonginge to his armie. And they shall be the thirde in the iourney.

On the North side shall lye þ pavilions 7 baner of Dan w their hoost: their cap-toyne Abisier & some of Ammi Sabal, his armye in the summe, two and sixty thousande and six hundred. Nexte vnto him shal the trybe of Assir puche their captayne Pagid, & some of Chanan, his armye in the summe, one and foure thousande, and fyue hundred. The trybe of Tephthali also, their captayne Thira the sonne of Enan: his armye in the summe, thre & sixty thousande & foure hundred. So shall they which belonge to the hoost of Dan, be in the summe, an hūdrith thousande, seuen & sixty thousande, & six hundred. And they shalbe the last in the journey with their banera.

This is the summe of the children of Israel, a fter their fathers houses and armyes with their hoestes: euen six hundred thousande, & thre thousande, fyue hundred & sixty. But & Leuites were not nombred in & summe amonge the childre of Israel, as & LORDE commaunded Moses. And of childre of Israel dyd all as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And so they pitched vnder their banera, & toke their iourney, every one in his tynned, accordinge to the house of their fathers.

The iiii. Chapter.

These are the generacions of Aaron & Moses, when & LORDE spake vnto Moses at & same tyme upon mount Sinai. And these are & names of the sonnes of Aaron. The first borne, Eleazar: then Abihu, Eleasar & Jehomar. These are & names of the sonnes of Aaron, which were appointed to be prestes, & their handes fylled for & pisthode. But Eleazar & Abihu dyed before & LORDE, whā they offered strange fyre before & LORDE, in & wilderness of Sinai, & had no sonnes. But Eleasar and Jehomar receued & prestee office wth their father Aaron.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayd: Dunge hithe the trybe of Leui, and set them before Aaron the prest, & they maye serue wth him, & wayte vpon him & vps the whole congregation before & Tabernacle of witness, and execute the seruyce of the habitation, and kepe all the apparell of the Tabernacle of witness, and wayte vpon the children of Israel, so mynistr in the seruyce of the habitation.

And thou shalt reue & Leuites vnto Aaron and his sonnes for a gifte, vnto every one his owne, from amonge the children of Israel. As for Aaron & his sonnes, thou shalt appointe them to wayte on their prestee office. If another please therto, he shal dye.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Beholde, I haue take the Leuites fro amonge the childre of Israel, for all the first borne that open the Matrix amonge the children of Israel, so that the Leuites shalbe myne. For the first borne are myne, since & tyme that I smote all the first borne in & lande of Egypte, whā I sanctified vnto me all the first borne in Israel, from my vnto carell, that they shalbe he myne, & the LORDE.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses the wilderness of Sinai, and sayde: Tumble the children of Leui a fter their fathers houses and tynned, all that are males of a month olde and aboue.

So Moses nombred them accordinge to the word of the LORDE, as he had commaunded. And these were the children of Leui with their names: Gerson, Asher, Merari. The names of the children of Gerson in their tynned, were: Libni and Simel.

The childre of Asher in their tynned were: Amram, Jehabar, Ghebon and Ofiel. The children of Merari in their tynned, were: Ussiel and Mussi. These are the tynned of Leui a fter their fathers houses.

These are & tynned of Gerson: The Libnites and Semites, the summe was founde in nombre, seuen thousande and fyue hundred, of all that were males of a month olde and aboue. And the same tynned of the Gersonites shal picke behinde the habitation on the west syde: Let Eliasaph the sonne of Lael be their ruler. And they shal make vpon the Tabernacle of witness, of the habitation, and of the tent, and coverings thereof, and the hanginge in the bore of the Tabernacle of witness, the hanginge adome the court, & the hanginge in & court, which couereth adome the habitation and the altare, and the cortes of it, & all that belongeth to the seruyce therof.

These are the tynned of Asher: The Amramites, the Jehabarites, the Ghebonites, and Ofielites, all that were males of a month olde & aboue, in nombre eight thousande and six hundred, waytinge vpon the Tabernacle of the Sanctuary, & shal picke on the south syde of & habitation. Let Eliasaph the sonne of Ofiel be their ruler. And they shal kepe the Arke, the table, the cardis sicke, the altare and all the vessels of the Sanctuary, to do seruyce in, and the wayte, and all that belongeth to the seruyce therof. But the chiefe of all the rulers of the Leuites, shalbe Eleasar the sonne of Aaron the prest, ouer them that are appointed to kepe the watch of the Sanctuary.

These are & tynned of Merari: The Musi

The III. Chapter.

W To the LORDE spake vnto Mosés & Aaron, & saide: Take þe summe of the childre of Bathy from amonge the childre of Lem, after their Eynredes & fathers houses. From therte yeare and aboue vntill fiftye yeare, all that are men of the warre, that they maye do the worke in the Tabernacle of witness. This shal be the office of the children of Bathy in the Tabernacle of witness, which is most holy.

When the hooff breatheth vp, Aaron and his sonnes shal go in, and take downe the wayle, and couer the Arke of witness with wynter, and laye the couerynge of doo stynnes upon it, and spede a whole yallowe clothe aboue thereon, and put his stanes therein. And vpon the shewe table they shal spede a yallowe clothe also, and set ther on the dysches, spenes, starpes, and potes to poure out and in, and the dayle bread shal lye vpon it, and they shal spede a purple clothe ther ouer, and couer it with a couerynge of doo stynnes, and put the stanes of it therein.

And they shal take a yallowe clothe, and couer the candlesticke of light therewith, and his lampe, with his snuffers and outquenchers, and all the oyle vessels that belonge to the seruyce, and aboue all this shal they put a couerynge of doo stynnes, and put it vpon stanes.

So shal they spede a yallowe clothe ouer þe golden aicare also, and couer the same with a couerynge of doo stynnes, and put it vpon stanes. All the vessels that they occupye in the Sanctuary, shal theyeake, and put a yallowe clothe ther ouer, & couer them with a couerynge of doo stynnes, and put them vpon stanes. They shal sweep the shewen also from the aicare, and spede a clothe of scarlet ouer it, and set all his vessels ther on, that they occupye vpon it: colepates, flesholes, shewels, basins, with all the apparell of the aicare, and they shal spede a couerynge of doo stynnes theron, and put his stanes thereto.

Now when Aaron and his sonnes haue done this, and haue covered the Sanctuary & all the ornantes thereof, when the hooff breatheth vp, then shal the children of Bathy go in, that they maye beare it, and the Sanctuary shal they not reade. lest they dye. This is the charge of the childre of Bathy in the Tabernacle of witness.

C And likewise for the forme of Aaron y prest, shal haue the office, to prepare the oyle for the light, and the spices for the incense, and the basilemeac offeringe, and the anoyntinge oyle, to order the whole habitation, & all that therein is, in the Sanctuary and the ornamentes thereof.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, & sayde: It shal not be thyng of the tymed of the Sabathites amonge the Leuites, but this shal ye do with them, & they maye lye & nor dye, yf they touche the most holy. Aaron and his sonnes shal go in, and appoynte every one vnto his office & charge. But they shal not go in, presumptuouslye to see vps y Sanctuary, lest they die. And y LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron & sayde: Take the summe of the children of Gerson also, a fift that fathers house & tymed, from thirtie yeare & aboue, untyll fiftie yeare, & appoynte them all y are meete for the warre, to haue an office in the Tabernacle of wyrtesse.

D This shal be the office of the tymed of the Gersonites, as to see & to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the habitation and of the Tabernacle of wyrtesse, and his curtayne and the coveringe of doo skynnes, that is aboue the court, and the hanginge in the doore of the Tabernacle of wyrtesse, and the hanginge aboue the court, which goeth aboue the habitation and the altare, and their cordes, and all the instrumentes y stur for the, and all that belongeth to their occupieng. Accordinge vnto the worde of Aaron and of his sonnes, shal all the office of the children of Gerson be done, what so ever they shall beare and occupye. And ye shal see, that they maye vpon all their charge. This shal be y office of y tymed of y children of y Gersonites in y Tabernacle of wyrtesse. And their mayunge shal be vnder y habitation of Jethamar, the sone of Aarons prest.

E The children of Merari a fift their tymed and fathers house, shal thou appoynte also, from thirtie yeare and aboue, vnto fiftie yeare, all that are meete for the warre, & they maye haue an office in the Tabernacle of wyrtesse. But vpon this charge shall they maye accordinge to all their office in y Tabernacle of wyrtesse, that they beare the borders of the habitation, and the barres, and pillars, and setetes: the pillars of the court also rounde aboue, and the setetes and nails, and cordes, with all their apparell, accordinge to all their sutyng. And vnto every one shall ye appoynte his portcion of charge to make vpon the apparell. Let this be the office of the tymed of the children of Merari, all that they shall do in the Tabernacle of wyrtesse vnder the hande of Jethamar the sone of Aaron the prest.

And Moses and Aaron with the capteynes of the congregation, nombred the children of y Sabathites, accordinge to their tymes and houses of their fathers, from thirtie yeare and aboue, untyll fiftie, all that were meete for the warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of wyrtesse. And the summe was two thousande, seven hundred and fiftie. This is the summe of the tymed of the Sabathites (which all had sutyng in the Tabernacle of wyrtesse) whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The children of Gerson were nombred also in their tymes and fathers houses from thirtie yeare and aboue untyll fiftie, all that were meete for the warre, to haue office in y Tabernacle of wyrtesse, and the summe was two thousande, syx hundred and thirtie. This is y summe of the tymed of the children of Gerson, which all had to do in the Tabernacle of wyrtesse, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to y worde of y LORDE.

The children of Merari were nombred also accordinge to their tymes and fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and aboue untyll fiftie, all that were meete for the warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of wyrtesse, & the summe was thie thousande, and two hundred. This is the summe of the tymed of the children of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The summe of all the Leuites, whom Moses and Aaron with the capteynes of Israel tolde, after their tymes and fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and aboue untyll fiftie, all that were in to do every one his office, and to beare the burthen in y Tabernacle of wyrtesse, was eight thousande fyve hundred and foure score, which were nombred accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses, every one to his office & charge, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The V. Chapter.

Moses & LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde the children of Israel, & they put out of the booke all y lepers, and all that haue yfesse, and that are defyled vpon the deoth, both men and women shall they put out of the booke, that they besyde not their tentes, wherin I dwell amonge them. And ſ children of Iſrael do ſo, and put them out of the booke, as ſ LORD had ſayd vnto Moſes.

Leu. v. 8

And the LORD ſaid vnto Moſes, and ſayde: Speake vnto the children of Iſrael & ſay vnto them: When a man or woman doeth a ſynne to any body, and offendeth ether with agaynſt the LORD, then hath that ſoule a trefpace vpon it. And they ſhall knowe ge their ſynne, that they haue done, and ſhall make amendes for their trefpace, euen with the whole ſumme, and paye ſ fifth parte more thereto, and geaue it vnto him, agaynſt whom they haue trefpaced. But yf there be no man to make the amendes vnto for the offence ſ he hath trefpaced agaynſt him, then ſhal the prieſt conſylunge be made vnto the LORD for the prieſt, beſydes the ramme of the attoncmit, wherewith he ſhal be reconcyled.

B Likewiſe all the heuerofferinges of all that the children of Iſrael halowe vnto the LORD, and offre vnto the prieſt, ſhall be his. And who ſo haloweth any thing, it ſhal be his. And who ſo geaue the prieſt any thing, it ſhal be his alſo.

And the LORD ſaid vnto Moſes, and ſayde: Speake to the children of Iſrael, and ſay vnto them: When any mans wiſe goeth aſyde, and trefpaceth agaynſt him, & any mā lye with her fleſhye, and the thinge be yet hyd from his eyes, and is not come to lighte that ſhe is deſyled, and he can byrge no weneſſe agaynſt her: for ſhe was not take ther in, and the ſpree of gelouſye tynbleth him, ſo that he is gelous ouer his wiſe: whether ſhe be vncleane or not vncleane, then ſhal he byryng her vnto the prieſt, and byryng an offeringe for her, euen the tenth parte of an Ephah of barley meale, and ſhal poure no oyle theron, ner put frankenſence vpon it: for it is an offeringe of gelouſy, and an offeringe of remembrance, that remembreth ſynne.

C Then ſhall the prieſt beynge her, and ſet her before the LORD, and take of the holy water in an earthen veſſell, and put of ſ duſt that is on the floore of the habitacion, in to the water. And he ſhal ſee the wiſe before ſ LORD, and woucer hir heade, and the offeringe of remembrance which is an offeringe of gelouſy, ſhall he laye vpon hir handes. And the prieſt ſhal haue in his hande bytter curſing water, and ſhal coniure the wiſe, & ſay vnto her: If no man haue lye with the, and thou haſt not gone aſyde from thy huſſbande, to deſyle thy ſelf, then ſhall not theſe bytter curſing water hurte the. But yf then haſt gone aſyde from thy huſſbande, ſ that thou art deſyled, and ſome other maſ haſt lye with the beſyde thy huſſbande, then ſhall the prieſt coniure the wiſe with this curſe, and ſhal ſay vnto her: The LORD ſet the to a curſe and a conſtracon amonge thy people, ſo that the LORD make thy chyldre, and thy wombe to beſt. So go this curſed water in to thy body, that ſ wombe beſt, and thy chyldre. And the wiſe ſhal ſay: Amen Amen.

So the prieſt ſhall wyte this curſe in a byll, and waſh it out with the water, and ſhall geue the wiſe of the bytter curſing water to drynke. And whā the curſing water is gone in her, ſo ſ it is bytter vnto her then ſhal the prieſt take the gelouſy offeringe out of the wyues hande, and waue it for a meate offeringe before the LORD, and offre it vpon the altare: namely, he ſhall take an handfull of the meate offeringe for hir tribuſance, & burne it vps the altare, & then geue the wiſe the water to drynke. And whā ſhe hath deonten the water, yf ſhe be deſyled, and haue trefpaced agaynſt hir huſſbande, then ſhal the curſing water go in to her, and be ſo bytter, that hir wombe ſhal beſt, and hir chyldre ſhall rotte, and the wiſe ſhal be a curſe amonge hir people. But yf the ſame wiſe be not deſyled, but is cleane, then ſhal it do her no harme, ſo that ſhe maye be with chyldre.

This is the lame of gelouſy, whan a wiſe geeth aſyde from hir huſſbande, and is deſyled: Or whan ſ ſpree of gelouſy tynbleth a man, ſo that he is gelous ouer his wiſe, ſ he byryng her before the LORD, and that ſ prieſt do all w her accordinge vnto this lawe. And ſ man ſhal be guileſſe of the ſynne, but the wiſe ſhall beate hir myſtebe.

The VI. Chapter.

AND the LORD ſaid vnto Moſes, of Iſrael, and ſay vnto them: When a man or woman ſeparateth them ſelues, to wome a wome of abſtynence vnto the LORD, he ſhal abyſtyn from wyne and ſtrege drynke. Wynner of wyne & ſtrege drynke ſhal he not drynke, ner that is preſſed out of grapes: he ſhall ner beate freſh ner drye grapes, ſo longe as his abſtynence endureth. Moreover he ſhall eate nothinge that is made of the wyne tre, ſrem the wyne conels w to the hulke.

As longe as the wome of his abſtynence endureth, there ſhall no raiſonne come vpon his heade, tyll the tyme be out which he ab-strength vnto the LORD E, for he is holy.

And he shall see the beard of his beard greene, and frome bare openly. All the tyme ¶ he be abstynent vnto the LORD E, shall he goe no dead. If ather shall he besyle him self as ¶ death of his father, of his mother, of his brother, or of his sister. For the abstynence of his God is vpon his heade, and of whole tyme of his abstynence shall he be holy vnto the LORD E.

B And if it chauce any man to dye suddenly before him, then shall ¶ heade of his abstynence be desired. Therefore shall he shawe his heade in the daye of his denyng, that is vpon the seventh daye: and vpon ¶ eighth daye shall he bringe two curull boues, or two yonge pigeons, vnto the priest before ¶ bove of the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And the priest shall make the one a synnofferynge, and the other a burnnofferynge, and make an atonement for him, because he desired him self vpon ¶ deed, and so shall he halowe his heade the same daye, that he maye holde out the tyme of his abstynence vnto the LORD E, and he shall bringe a lambe of a yere olde for a trespassofferynge. But ¶ dawe a yore shall be bare losf, because his abstynence was desired.

C This is the lame of the abstynent. When the tyme of his abstynence is out, he shall be brought before the bove of the Tabernacle of wyntesse. And he shall bringe his offeringe vnto the LORD E, even as he lambe of a yere olde withoute blemyshe for a burnnofferynge, ¶ a she lambe of a yere olde withoute blemyshe for a synnofferynge, and a ramme withoute blemyshe for a healthofferynge. ¶ a maude withoute lemeded cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, and swete wasers anoynted with oyle, ¶ their meateofferings ¶ dymnofferynge.

And the priest shall bringe it before the LORD E, and shall make his synnofferynge and his burnnofferynge, and ¶ ramme shall he make an healthofferynge vnto the LORD E, with ¶ maunde of the unlemeded bled. his meateofferynge and dymnofferynge shall he make also. And he shall shawe the heade of the abstynent a abstynence before the bove of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, and shall take the heade beer of his abstynence, and cast it vpon the fyre that is vnder ¶ healthofferynge.

D And the sodden shulder of the ramme shall he take, and an unlemeded cake out of the manne, and a swete waser, and laye them vpon the handes of the abstynent

(after that he hath shawen of his abstynence.) And he shall shawe them before the LORD E. This is holy for the priest with the Wanebest, and ¶ emshulder. After that, maye the abstynent drinke wyne. This is the lame of the abstynent, which power his offeringe vnto the LORD E for his abstynence, besydes that, which his hande can get. As he hath vowed, so shall he do accordinge to the lame of his abstynence.

And the LORD E talked with Moyses, and saye: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: Thus shall ye saye vnto the chyld of Israel, when ye blesse the.

The LORD E blesse the, and kepe the.

The LORD E make his face to shyne vpon the, and be mercifull vnto the.

The LORD E lifte vp his countenance vpon the, and geue the peace.

For they shall put my name vpon the chyld of Israel, that I maye blesse them.

The vii. Chapter.

AND when Moyses had set up the Tabernacle and anoynted it, and sanctified it with all the apparel thereof: and had anoynted and halowed the altare also with all his vessels. Then offered the captaynes of Israel, which were the rulers in their fathers houses.

For they were the captaynes amonge ¶ synedo, and stode ouer the che were nombred. And they broughte their offerynge before the LORD E, six covered charrettes, and euolve open, for euery two captaynes a charret, and an ope for euery one, and broughte them before the halitacion.

And the LORD E sayde vnto Moyses: Take it of them, that it maye serue for the mynistracion of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, and geue it vnto the Lewites, vnto euery one accordinge to his office. Then toke Moyses the charrettes and open, and gaue them vnto the Lewites.

Two charrettes and some open gaue he vnto ¶ chyldren of Berson accordinge to their office: and foure charrettes and eight open gaue he vnto the chyldren of Merari accordinge to their office, vnto the hande of Jehamari the sonne of Aaron the priest.

But vnto the chyldren of Zabath he gaue nothyng, because they had an holy office vpon them, and must beare vpon their shuldere. And the captaynes offered to the bledicacion of the altare, in the daye when it was anoynted, and offered their giftes before the altare.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the Leuites six amonge the children of Israel, & cleanse them. But thou shalt thou do with them, that thou mayest cleanse them. Thou shalt spiculer purifyinge water upon them, and leet a rasure go ouer their whole body, and washe their clothes, and thus art they cleane. Then shall they take a yonge bullocke, and his meates offeringe of fyne flour myngled with oyle. And another yonge bullocke shalt thou take for a synofferinge.

B And thou shalt bringe the Leuites before the Tabernacle of witnessse, and gather together the whole congregation of $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ children of Israel, and bringe the Leuites before the LORDE. And the children of Israel shall laye their handes upon the Leuites. And Aaron shall waue $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Leuites before the LORDE for the children of Israel, that they maye mynistr in the seruyce of the LORDE.

And the Leuites shall laye their handes upon the heedes of the bullockes, and the one shall be made a synofferinge, the other a burnofferinge vnto the LORDE, to make an atonement for the Leuites. And thou shalt see the Leuites before Aaron and his sonnes, and waue them before the LORDE, and so shalt thou separate them from $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ children of Israel, that they maye be myne. This shall they go in, that they maye do seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnessse. Thus shalt thou cleanse the $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ name them: for they are my gifte of the children of Israel, and I have taken them vnto me for all that openeth the Matrie, namely for the first borne of all the children of Israel.

Num. 7. b

C For every first borne amonge the children of Israel is myne, both of men and of beastes, this is the rone that I smote all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, and sanctified them vnto myself, and take the Leuites for all the first borne amonge the children of Israel, and gaue them for a gifte vnto Aaron and his sonnes. And thou shalt waue the children of Israel, $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ they shalbe do the seruyce of the children of Israel in the Tabernacle of witnessse, to make atonement for the children of Israel, that there be not a plague amonge the children of Israel, yf they will come nye $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Sanctuary.

Luc. 2. d

And Moses with Aaron and the whole congregation of the children of Israel, byd w the Leuites all as the LORDE had commaunded Moses. And they purified the Leuites, and washed their clothes. And Aaron waue them before the LORDE, and made atonement for them, that they might be cleane.

After that wente they in, to do their office in the Tabernacle of witnessse before Aaron and his sonnes: as the LORDE commaunded Moses concernyng the Leuites, thus byd they with them.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses & sayde: This is it that belongeth vnto the Leuites: From fyue and twentye years and aboue, shal they go in to the office of the Tabernacle of witnessse. But six fyfthe yeare forth, they shal ceasse from the waitinge of the seruyce therof, and shal mynistr nomore, but shal appoynte their brethren to waite and asstire in the Tabernacle of witnessse: but the office shal not they execute. Thus shalt thou do with the Leuites in their seruyces, that every one maye in a yeare upon his owne charge.

The ix. Chapter.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ first moneth of the seconde yeare that they were departed out of the lande of Egypte: & sayde: Let the children of Israel kepe $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Easter in his season, euen upon the foureth daye of this moneth at euen, in his season shall they kepe it, acordyng to all the statutes & lawes therof. And Moses spake to $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ childre of Israel, yf they shulbe kepe $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Easter vnto the foureth daye of the first moneth at euen in the wilderness of Sinai. And binged to all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, euen so byd the children of Israel.

Then were there certayne men defiled of a deed man, so that they coude not kepe $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Easter vpon that daye: this came before Moses and Aaron the same daye, and sayde vnto him: We are defiled of a deed ma: what fore shalbe we be despysed, that we must not bringe our giftes in his season amonge the children of Israel: Moses sayde vnto them: Stande still, I will heare what the LORDE commaundeth you.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & sayde: Wha eny man is defiled of a deed course, or is gone farre from you ouer the selo, or is an onnge youre kynfolkes, yet shall he kepe $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Easter, but in the seconde moneth yf the foureth daye at euen, and they shal eate it with unleueded bred and some samet, and shall leaue none of it vntill the morninge, nor beate eny bone therof, and shal kepe it acordyng to all $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ manner of $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Easter.

But be that is cleane, and not gone in a iourney, and is negligent to kepe the $\text{\textcircled{J}}$ Easter, the same soule shal be roteed out from amonge his people: because he brought not his gift to the LORD: in his season, he shall beare his sinne. And when there dwelleth a stranger amonge you, he shall keepe Easter also vnto the LORD, & shall haue it according to the ordinance and lawe of Easter. This statute shall be vnto you alse, to the stranger as to him that is borne in the lande.

C And y^e same daye y^e the habitation was set vp, a cloude covered it vps the Tabernacle of witness, & as euen there was a similitude of fyre vpon the habitation vntill the morninge. So came it to passe allwaye, y^e the cloude covered it by daye, & the similitude of fyre by night. And when the cloude was take vp from the habitation, then the children of Israel wente on their iourney. And loke in what place the cloude abode, there the childre of Israel pitched their tentes. According to the worde of the LORD toke the children of Israel their iourney, and according to his word pitched they their tentes. So long as the cloude abode vpon the habitation, they laye still. And when the cloude caried many dayes vpon the habitation, the childre of Israel wayced vpon the LORD, & wente not on their iourney.

D And when it chaunced that the cloude abode vps y^e habitation any space of dayes, then pitched they according to the worde of the LORD, & after the moode of the LORD wente they on their iourney. When the cloude was there from the eveninge vntill the morninge, and so was taken vp, then went they on their iourney: and whether it was take vp by daye or by night, they iourneyed. But when it taried vpon the habitation two dayes, or a moneth, or a lenge season, then laye the children of Israel, and iourneyed not: and so when it was taken vp, they wente on their iourney. For according to the mouth of the LORD they laye, and after the mouth of the LORD they iourneyed, so y^e they keepe the LORDES word, according to the worde of the LORD E by Moise.

The X. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moise, and sayde: Make the two trumpettes of beaten silver, that thou mayest use them, to call the congregation together, and when the hoost shall breake vp. When they blowe with both, then shall the whole congregation gather them selues together vnto the before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness. When they blowe but with one, then the capytayne, the rulers ouer the tribes in Israel shall gather them selues together vnto the. When ye trompe, then shall the hoostes that lye on the East syde, breake vp. And when ye trompe the seconde tyme, the hoostes that lye on the South syde, shall breake vp. For ye shall trompe, when they shall take their iourneys. But when y^e congregation is to be gathered together, ye shall blowe, and not trompe. This blowinge in the trumpettes shall the sonnes of Aaron the priest do. And it shall be yo^r lawe for euer, amonge your posterities.

When ye go to a battayll in youre lande agaynst youre enemies y^e wece you, ye shall trompe with the trumpettes, that ye maye be remembered before the LORD E yo^r God, and deliuered from youre enemies.

Like wyse when ye are meny, and in your feast dayes, & in your new Monethes, ye shall blowe with the trumpettes ouer youre burnisacrifices & healthofferings, for maie be a remembrance vnto you before your God. I am the LORD E your God.

Vpon the twentye daye in the seconde moneth of the seconde yare, arose the cloude from the habitation of witness. And the childre of Israel wente on their iourney out of the wybernesse of Sinai, and the cloude abode in the wybernesse of Paran, first brake vp (according to the worde of the LORD E by Moise.) Namely, the baner of the hoost of Iuda wente forth first with their armie, and ouer their hoost was Ithamar the sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Issachar was Ithabael the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Zabulon was Eliab the sonne of Elion. And the habitation was taken downe, and the children of Gerson and Merari bare the habitation.

After that wente the baner of the hoost of Ruben with their armie, and ouer their hoost was Elisur the sonne of Sebeu. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Simeon was Selumiel the sonne of Zuri Sabai. And Elisaph the sonne of Degeuel ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Gad. Then wente the Tabernacles forward also, and bare the Sanctuary, and caused y^e habitation be set vp agaynst they came. After that wente the baner of the hoost of the children of Ephraim with their armie, and ouer their hoost was Elisama the sonne of Amihub. And Barniab the sonne of Prebazar ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Manasse. And Abidan the

some of Gedeoni ouer the hoost of the crybe of the children of Ben Jamin.

After that wente the banner of the hoost of the children of Dan with their Armies, (and so were all the hoostes vp,) and wher the sonne of Annu Gadai was ouer their hoost. And Pagid & some of Chyan, ouer the hoost of the crybe of the children of Asser. And Abira the sonne of Enan ouer the hoost of the crybe of the children of Nephthali. Thow the childre of Israel were forth with their armies.

B And Moses spake vnto his brother in lawe, Hobab the sonne of Reuel of Midian: We go vnto the place, of the which the LORDE sayde: I wil geue it you: Come now with vs therfore, and we wil be & best with the, for the LORDE hath promysed good vnto Israel. But he answered: I wil not go w you, but wil go in to myne owne londe vnto my kynred. He sayde: Chyan, leaue vs not: for thou knowest where is best for vs to pcede in the wyldernesse, and thou shalt be oure eye. And ys thou geest with vs, let what good the LORDE doth vnto vs, the same wil we do vnto the. So they departed from the mount of the LORDE the dayes iorney, & the Arke of the LORDES couenant wente before them thofe the dayes iorney, to the me the where they shulde rest. And the cloude of the LORDE was ouer them in the daye tyme, whan they wente out of the ceteo.

Plal. 79. a And whan the Arke wente forth, Moses sayde: Bless the LORDE, let thine enemies be scattered, and let them that hate the, fflye before the. And whan he rested, he sayde: Come agayne O LORDE vnto the multitude of the thousandes of Israel.

The XI. Chapter.

2 Exo 17. a
Deut. 9. d QUET whan y people waxed impacite, it displeasid foie the LORDE.

And whan the LORDE herde it, his wrath waxed whore, & the fyre of the LORDE burne amoge them, so hit consumed the vtremost of the hoost. The cryed the people vnto Moses, And Moses prayed vnto the LORDE. So y fyre quenched. And the place was called Tabera, because the fyre of the LORDE burne amonge them.

Then the comon sorte of people y was amoge them, fell a lusting, and sae & weped the children of Israel, and sayde: Who wil geue vs flesh to eate: We remembre the fish, the we ate in the gyper for nauight, & Cucumbers, Melons, letes, onyons, & garlick: But now is oure soule dried awaye, oure eyes se nothinge then the Manna.

The Manna was like Coniader sode, and to loke vpon, like Bedellion. And the people ranne here and there, & gathered it, & ground it in Malles, and beate it in morters, and baked it in paine, and made cakes of it, and it had a caull like an oyle cake. And whan y dew fell vpon the ceteo in the night, y Manna fell therewith.

Now whan Moses herde the people wepe amoge their tynnes, euery one in his owne doie, then the wrath of the LORDE waxed exceddinge whore. And it greued Moses al so. And Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: Why wepest thou thy seruante: And why finde I not y fauoure in y sighte, yehon layest y me them of all this people vpo me: Cause y the becaused all this people, as be gotten them, that thou shuldest saye vnto me: Carry thou in thine armes (as a nurse beareth a childe) vnto the londe, that thou hast sowne vnto their fathers: Where shal y get flesh, to geue all this people: They reepe before me, and saye: Geue vs flesh, that we maye eate. I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is to heuy for me. And ys thou wilt dole thus w me: O tell me then, ys I haue founde fauoure in thy sighte, that I se not my wechidnesse.

And the LORDE saide vnto Moses: Behold thou me: seventy men amonge the Elders of Israel, whom thou knowest y they are the Elders in y people and officers ouer them, and bringe them before the Tabernacle of witness, and set them there with thee: then wil I come downe, and talke with the: euen there, & take of thy spere that is vpon the, and putte it vpon them, that they may beare the lurdhen of the people with the, y thou beate not all alone.

And vnto y people thou shalt saye: Behold yf ye selues agaynst comore, y ye maye eate flesh: for youre wepyng is come in the eares of the LORDE, ye thac saye: Who shal geue vs flesh to eate: for we were wil at ease in the gyper. Therfore shal the LORDE geat you flesh to eat, nor one daye, nor two, nor fyve, nor ten, nor twentye dayes longe, but a moneth longe, tyll it go out at youre noses, and tyll ye lothe it when because ye haue refused the LORDE, which is amonge you, and haue wepte before him, & sayde: Wherefore wente we out of Egipt?

And Moyses sayde: Sixe hundred thousande foure men are there of the people among whom I am, and thou sayest: I will geat you flesh to eat a moneth longe. Shall he these and often be slayne to be ynough for them? Or shal all the fishes of the see be gathered together, to be sufficient for them?

The LORDE answered Moyses: In the LORDES hande shewened them: But now shal thou se, whether my wordes shall be fulfilled in thee, or no?

And Moyses wote out, and tolde the people the wordes of the LORDE, and gathered the seventy men amonge the Elders of the people, & set them rounde aboute the Tabernacle. Then came the LORDE downe in a cloude, & spake vnto him, & toke of the spere that was upon him, & put it vpon the seuentie Elders. And when the spere rested vpon them, they prophesied, and ceased not.

But in the hooff there remayned yet two men, of whom the one was called Eldad, & the other Medad, & the spere rested vpon them. For they were wyrtyn vpon also, & yet were they not gone out vnto the Tabernacle, and they prophesied in the hooff. Then ran there a lad, & tolde Moyses, & sayde: Eldad and Medad prophesie in the hooff. Then answered Josua the sonne of Nun Moyses seruante (in whom he had chosen) and sayde: My lorde Moyses, forbydde them. But Moyses sayde vnto him: Art thou galous for my sake? wolde God, for all the people of the LORDE coulde prophesie, and that the LORDE wolde geat them his spere. So Moyses and the Elders of Israell gat them to the hooff.

Then wente out the wynde from the LORDE, & caused quailles to come from the see, & scattered the ouer the hooff. Here a daye soure nye, there a daye iourney rounde aboute of hooff, two cubytes bye aboute yearly. Then the people stode vpon all that daye, and all the night, and all the nexte daye, and gathered quailles: and he that gathered the leest, gathered ten homers, & they fylled them rounde aboute the hooff.

But whyle of flesh was yet betwene their teethe, & it came it was vp, the wynde of the LORDE waied wher amonge the people, and strewed them with an exceeding greasse slaughter. Therefore to the same place called the graues of lusti, because the voluptuous people were buried there. From the iustitias uos toke the people their iourney vnto the roch, and abode at Chaseroth.

The XII. Chapter.

Unto Miriam & Aaron spake agaynst Moyses because of his wife the Ethiopian. which he had taken, because he had calld a Moabit to wife, and they sayde: Dorch the LORDE speaks only thowse Moyses? Speaketh he not also by vs? And the LORDE herde it. But Moyses was a very meke man, above all men vpon earth. And haistly spake the LORDE vnto Moyses, and so Aaron, and to Miriam: Go out ye thre vnto the Tabernacle of wyrtess. And they wente out all thre.

Then came the LORDE downe in the cloude by piler, & stode in the doore of the Tabernacle, & called Aaron & Miriam, & they both wente out. And he sayde: Heare my wordes: If any man be a prophet of the LORDE, vnto him wil I shewe my self in a vision, or wil I speake vnto him in a dreame. But not so by my seruante Moyses, which is faithfull in all my house. I wil touch to mouth speake I vnto him, & he seyth the LORDE in his faithson, nor thowse tattle wordes of his faithson: Wherfore were ye not a frayd then to speake agaynst my seruante Moyses?

And the wynde of the LORDE waied wher ouer them, & he turned him awaye, and the cloude also departed from the Tabernacle. And beholde, then was Miriam become leprous, as it were snowe. And Aaron turned him vnto Miriam, and saide that she was leprous, and sayde vnto Moyses: Wh my lorde, put not the synne vpon vs, which we haue foolishly committed and synned, because she be not as one that cometh deeth out of his mothers wombe: It hath eaten vp half his flesh already.

But Moyses cried vnto the LORDE, & sayde: O God, heale her. The LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: If hir father had spyte in his face, shalbe she not be ashamed seuen dayes? Let her be shute out of the hooff seuen dayes, after that her be receaued agayne. So Miriam was shute out of the hooff seuen dayes, & the people wente no farther, tyll Miriam was receaued agayne. Afterwarde departed the people from Chaseroth, and pitched in the wilderness of Paran.

lande of Canaan (which I will geue vnto y children of Israel) of euery tribe of their is there a man, and let them all be such as are capsaynes amonge them. Moses sent the out of the wilderness of Paran, according to the worde of the L O R D E, such as were all heaues amonge the children of Israel, and these are their names:

Samua the sonne of Zacur, of the tribe of Ruben. Saphat the sonne of Hori, of the tribe of Simeon. Caleb y sonne of Iephunne, of the tribe of Iuda. Igeal the sonne of Joseph, of the tribe of Issachar. Hesia the sonne of Man, of y tribe of Ephraim. Palti the sonne of Raphu, of the tribe of Ben Iamin. Gadiel the sonne of Sedi, of y tribe of Zabulon. Gaddi the sonne of Soss, of the tribe of Joseph of Manasse. Ammal the sonne of Gemalli, of the tribe of Dan. Sethur y sonne of Michael, of the tribe of Asser. Mabebi the sonne of Daphsi, of the tribe of Naphtali. Guel the sonne of Machi, of the tribe of Gad. These are the names of the men, whom Moses sent forth to spye out the lande. As for Hesia the sonne of Man, Moses called him Josua.

B Now when Moses sent the forth to spye out the lande of Canaan, he sayde vnto the: Go vp thowward, and get you vp to the mountaynes, and loke upon the lande how it is: and the people that dwell therein, whether they be stronge or weake, fewe or many: and what maner of lande it is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad: y what maner of cities they be that they dwell in, whether they be fenced with walles, or not: and what maner of lande it is, whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein, or not. We of a good courage, and bringe of the frutes of the lande. It was euen aboue the tyme, that grapes are first ripe.

They wente vp, y spyed the lande, from y wilderness of Sin, vntyll Achob, as me go vnto Hemath. They wente vp also toward the south, and came vnto Hebron, where Abimam was, and Sefai and Chalmai, the children of Enach. Hebron was buyded seven yeare before Soan in Egypce.)

C And they came to the ryuer of Escol, and there they cut downe a cluster of grapes, and caused two to beare it vpon a staffe, pomegranates also and figges. The place is called the ryuer of Escol, because of the cluster of grapes, which the children of Israel cut downe there.

And when they had spyed out the lande, they turned backe againe after fourey daies, and wente, and came to Moses and Aaron, y to the whole congregation of y children of Israel in the wilderness of Paran, and vnto Cades, and brought them worde agayne, and to the whole congregation, how it stood, and let them see the frute of the lande, and tolde them, and sayde: We came in to y lande, whither ye sent vs, where it floweth with mylke and hony, and this is the frute thereof: I sawnge that stronge people dwell therein, and the cities are exceedinge stronge and great. And we sawe the children of Enach there also. The Amalechites dwell in the south countre, the Hethites, and Jebusites, and Amouites dwell vpon the mountaynes, but the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and aboue Iordane.

Howbeit Caleb stylled y people that was agaynst Moses, and sayde vnto them: Let vs go vp, and conquire the lande, for we are able to ouercome it. But the men that wente vp with him, sayde: We are not able to go vp agaynst that people, for they are too stronge for vs. And of the lande that they had searched, they broughte up an euill report amonge the childre of Israel, and sayde: The lande that we haue gone thowtoe to spye out, eatech vp the inhabitants thereof: and all the people that we sawe therein, are men of great stature. We sawe giants there also, y gigantes as the children of Enach, and we seemed in oure sighte as y greshoppers, and so dyd we in their sighte.

The XIII. Chapter.

A Then the whole cōgregation tolde on, and cryed, and the people wepte y night. And all the childre of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, and the whole congregation sayde vnto them: Oh that we had dyed in the lande of Egypce, or that we mighte dye yet in this wilderness. What fore bringeth the L O R D E vs in to this lande, that ouer wyues shute we in thowtoe the sword, and ouer children be pryde: Is it not better, that we go agayn in to Egypce: And they sayde one to another: Let vs make a captayne, and go in to Egypce agayne.

But Moses & Aaron fill vps their faces before the whole congregation of the multitude of the children of Israel. And Joshua & some of Elan, & Caleb & some of Jephthah (which also had spyed out the land) rente their clothes, & spake to the whole congregation of the children of Israel: The lande wher we haue walched thowow to spye it out, is a very good lande. If the LORD haue lust vnto vs, he shal bringe vs into the same lande, & geue it vs, which is a lande that floweth with mylke & honey. But in anye wyse rebel not ye agaynst the LORD, & feare not ye people of this lande, for we wd eate the vp an hew. Their defence is departed fro them, but the LORD is wth vs, be not ye afraid of them.

And all the people, had stoned them wth stones. Then appeared the glory of the LORD in the Tabernacle of witness vnto all the children of Israel, & the LORD sayde vnto Moses: How longe shal this people blasphem me: And how longe wil it be, ou they beleue me, for all the robes that I haue shewed amonge them? I wil smyte them with pestilence & destroye the, & wd make of the a greater & mightier people then this is.

But Moses sayde vnto the LORD: Then shal ye Egyptians heare it, for w thy power hast thou broughte this people from amonge the, so shal it be colde the inhabitants of this lande also, which haue herbe, & thou LORD art amonge this people, & thou art sente from face to face, & that thy cloud standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them in the cloudy pillar on the daye tyme, and in the nyghte pillar on the nyghte season. If thou shaldest now slaye this people as one man, then the Egyptians that haue herbe so good report of the, shalbe saye: The LORD was not able to bringe the people in to the lande, that he swaie vnto them, that he shal bringe them in the wilderness.

So let the power of the LORD now be greace, accordinge as thou hast spoken and sayde: The LORD is of longe sufferaunce and of greace mercy, and forgetteth synne and trespass, and leaueh no man innocent, & visiteth the synne of the fathers vpon the children in to the thirde and fourth generation. O be gracious now vnto the synne of this people accordinge to thy greace mercy, like as thou hast sworn to this people also, that thou shal bringe them into this lande. And the LORD sayde: I haue forgouen it, as thou hast saide. But as truly as I lyue, all I wd be shal be full of my glory. For of all I men that haue sene in my glory & my tokens, which I vnto in Egypce: and in the wilderness, and tempted me now ten tymes, & haue not berkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one be the lande that I swaie vnto their fathers: neither shal any of them that haue blasphemed me, sit it. But my seruante Caleb, be cause there is another man spere with him, & because he hath folowed me, hys wil I bringe in to the lande, which he hath gone thorow: & his sibe shal conuere it, and I Amalechites also and the Canaanites, that dwell in the lowe countrees. Tomorrow turne you, and get you to the wilderness, in the waye towarde the red sea.

And the LORD sayde vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: How longe shal this euill multitude murmur agaynst me: for I haue herbe the murmuringe of the children of Israel, & they haue murmured agaynst me. Tell them the story: As truly as I lyue (sayeth the LORD) I wd do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares: Your carcasses shall lye in this wilderness. And all ye that were now bad from twentye yeare and aboue, which haue murmured agaynst me, shall not come in to the lande: concerninge the which I lift vp my hande, & I wolde let you dwell therein (saue Caleb & some of Jephthah, and Joshua the sonne of Navi).

Your children, of whom ye sayde: They shalbe a spoyle, them wyll I bringe in, so & they shal knowe the lande, which ye haue refused. But ye with youre carcasses shall lye in this wilderness, and your children shal wander in this wilderness foure yeares, & beare your whoredome, vntil your carcasses be waifed in the wilderness, accordinge to the number of your whoredome, wher in ye spyed out the lande. A daye for a yeare, so your foure yeares ye shall beare your whoredome, that ye maye knowe what it is, when I with diuine my hande: Euen I the LORD haue sayde it, & wd do it: in beede vnto all this euill congregation, that haue lift vp their selues agaynst me: in this wilderness shal they be consumed, and there shal they dye.

So there byed and were plagued before the LORD all the men, whom Moses swaie to spye out the lande, & came agayne, and made the whole congregation to murmur agaynst it, because they broughte vp a mysresponse of the lande, that it was euill. But Joshua the sonne of Navi, and Caleb & some of Jephthah we were left alive, of the men that went to spy out the lande. And Moyses spake these wordes unto all the children of Israel. The LORD take the people greatese foe. 10

S And they arose early in the morning, and wente up to the toppe of the mountaine, and sayde: Lo, here are we, and will go up to the place, wherof the LORD hath sayde: for we have sinned. But Moyses sayde: wherfore go ye on this manner beyonde the wordes of the LORD? Ye shall not prosper with you: go not up (for the LORD is not amonge you) for ye be not slayne before your enemies. For the Amalechites and Cananites are there before you. ye shall fall thowen by sword, because ye have turned your face from the LORD, and the LORD shall not be with you.

But they were bound to go up to the toppe of the mountaine: nevertheless the Arche of the LORDES covenant: and Moyses came not out of the hooft. Then came downe the Amalechites and Cananites which dwelt upon that mountaine, and smote them and heved them, even unto Heima.

The XV. Chapter.

AND the LORD called with Moyses, and sayde: speake to the children of Israel, I saye unto them: When ye come in to the lande of your dwelling, which I shall geve you, and wil do sacrifice unto the LORD, whether it be a burnt offering, or an offering for a speciall vowe, or a freewill offering, or your feast offerings, that ye maye make a sweet savoure unto the LORD, of oren or of shepe.

Se ye wil offer now his gifte unto the LORD, shall bringe for the meate offerings a ceth deale of fyne flour myngled with oyle of the fourth parte of an hin, and wyne for the burnt offeringe the fourth parte of an hin also: the burnt offeringe, or any other offeringe, when a lambe is offered. But when there is a ramme offered, then shall make the meate offeringe two ceth deales of fyne flour myngled with oyle, of the thirde parte of an hin, and the thirde parte of an hin of wyne also for a burnt offeringe: this shall be an offeringe for a freewill offeringe unto the LORD.

But if thou wilt offer an oxe for a burnt offeringe, or for a speciall vowe offeringe, or for an healt offeringe unto the LORD, thou shalt bringe to the oxe, the meate offeringe, even the tenth deale of fyne flour myngled with half an hin of oyle, and half an hin of wyne for a burnt offeringe. This is an offeringe of a sweet savoure unto the LORD. Thus shalt thou do with an oxe, with a ram me, with a lambe, and with a goate. According as the nombre of the offerings is, thereafter shall the nombre of the meate offerings and wyne offerings be also.

He that is one of your stiles, shall do this, that he maye offre a sacrifice of a sweet savoure unto the LORD. And if thou dwell a stranger with you, or in amonge your kynnsfolkes, and wil do an offeringe unto the LORD for a sweet savoure, the same shall do as ye do. Let there be one statute for the whole congregation, both when you are to the strangers. A perpetuall statute shall it be unto your posterities, that the stranger be not as ye be not: the LORD. One lawe, and one ordinance shall be unto you and to the stranger that dwelleth with you.

And the LORD called with Moyses, and sayde: speake to the children of Israel, and saye unto them: When ye come in to the lande, in to which I shall bringe you, so that ye eate the bred of the lande, ye shall bringe up an heave offeringe unto the LORD, namely, a cake of the firstlinges of your dove shall ye geve for an heave offeringe: as the heave offeringe of the barre, even so shall ye geve the firstlinges of your dove also unto the LORD, for an heave offeringe amonge your posterities.

And when ye knowe ignorance over se any of these commandementes, which the LORD hath spoken by Moyses, and all the LORD hath commanded you by Moyses (from the daye that the LORD began to commande for your posterities) and the congregation do ought ignorantly, they shall the whole congregation offre a yong bullocke from amonge the greates cattell of a burnt offeringe, for a sweet savoure unto the LORD, with his meate offeringe and wyne offeringe as the manner is, and an hegoare for a syn offeringe. And so shall the priest make an atonement for the whole congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is an ignorance. And they shall bringe these their giftes for an offeringe unto the LORD, and their syn offeringe before the LORD for their ignorance, and it shall be forgiven the whole congregation of the children of Israel, the stranger also shall dwell with amonge you, for so much as all the people is in such ignorance.

If one soule synne thowen ignorance, in the same shall bringe a she goate of a year olde for a syn offeringe. And the priest shall make an atonement for such an ignorant soule with the syn offeringe for the ignorant as before the LORDE, that he maye reconcile him, and it shal be forgiven him. And it shal be onelawme, that ye shal do for ignorance; both unto him that is borne amonge the children of Israell, and to the stranger that dwelleth amonge you.

14 And if a soule do ought presumptuously, whether he be one of youre selues or a stranger, he hath despised the LORDE: & same soule shal be rased out from amonge his people: because he hath despised the worde of the LORDE, and hath leste his commaundment: whome: that soule shall vcerly penise, his synne shal be upon him.

D Now whye the children of Israell were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man gatheringe stickes upon the Sabbath daye.
And they that founde him gatheringe stickes, brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and before the whole congregation. And they put him in prison, for it was not declared what shalbe done vnto him. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: The man shall dye the death, the whole congregation shal stone him without the hoost. Then the whole congregation brought him out of y^e hoost, and stoned him: that he dyed, as Y^e LORDE commaunded Moses.

15 And Y^e LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Speake to the childen of Israell, & saye vnto the, ye maye make them gardes vpon y^e quarters of their garmentes amonge all y^e posterities, and put yaloune rybantes vpon the gardes in y^e quarters. And y^e gardes shal serue you, y^e ye maye loke vpon the, and remember all the commaundementes of the LORDE, & do them: that ye otter not youre selues a fter y^e incomynge of youre awis hert, nor go a whorynge a fter youre a wile eye. & Curiose shal ye remember: and do all my commaundemen-tes, and be holy vnto youre God. I am the LORDE youre God, which brought you out of the lande of Egipte, to be y^e God. Euen I the LORDE youre God.

The xvi. Chapter.

16 Unto Corah the sonne of Jesbar the sonne of Ahath, the sonne of Leui, with Dathan and Abiram the sonne of Eliah, and On the sonne of Pelech, y^e sonne of Rube, stode up agaynst Moses, with certayne men amonge the childen of Israell, two hundred: & s^yric capaynes of the congregation, counsellors, & famous men. And they gathered them selues agaynst Moses & Aaron: & sayde vnto them: Ye make to moch a doe, for all the congregation is holy every one, and the LORDE is amonge them: Why lifer ye youre selues up then aboue the congregation of the LORDE?

When Moses herde y^e, he fell vpb his sace, & sayde vnto Corah, & to all his company: Tomorrow shal Y^e LORDE shewe who is his,
& who is holy to come vnto him, wh^os so euer he choseth, & same shal come vnto him. This doe: Take y^e censers, thou Corah & all y^e company, & do s^yric therein, & put incense thereon to morow before the LORDE: then whom so e-uer the LORDE choseth, the same shal be holy.
Ye make to moch a doe, ye childen of Leui.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Heare ye children of Leui, Is it not ynough vnto you, & Y^e God of Israell hath separated you fr^o y^e multitude of Israell, & ye shulde come nye him, to do the seruyce of the dwelling place of the LORDE, and stonde before the people to minister vnto them? Ye haue caused the and all y^e brethren the childen of Leui with che, to come nye vnto him: and now ye like the presthode also. Thou and all thy company conspyre agaynst the LORDE. What is Aaron, that ye shulde murmure against him?

And Moses sent to call Dathan & Abiram y^e sonnes of Eliah. But they sayde: We wil not come vp. Is it to litle y^e thou hast broughte vs out of y^e lande of Egipte? (y^e flowerch & mylke & honye) Eyll vs in y^e wyldernesse: but thou must raigne ouer vs also: how goodly well hast thou broughte vs in to a lande, that floweth w^{ith} mylke and hony, & geue vs felde and vnyardes in possession? Wilt thou put out these mens eyes? We will not come vp.

Then was Moses very wroth, & sayde vnto Y^e LORDE: Turn: y^e noc vnto thei meafferinges. I haue not rakk so moch as an Asse s^yck the, necher haue I horre eny of the. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Tomorrow be thou & all y^e company before Y^e LORDE, thou, and they, & Aaron. And take every one his censur, and put incense therein, & come and stonde LORDE, every one with his censur: that is two hundred and fifty censers: and both thou and Aaron take eicher his censur.

And every one took his censur, and put fyre therein, and layed incense therein, and came before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and Moses also. And Coah gathered up whole congregacion agaynst the doore of the Tabernacle of witness.

But the glory of the LORD appeared before the whole congregacion. And the LORD spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Separate youre selues frō this congregacion, for I may shortly consume them. And they fell upon their faces, & sayde: O God, thou God of the sprees of all flesh, if one man haue synned, wilt thou therfore be wroth ouer the whole congregacion? And the LORD spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Speake to the congregacion, and saye: Come up from the dwelling of Coah, and Dathan, and Abiram.

And Moses stood up, & went vnto Dathan & Abiram, & the elders of Israel folowed him, & he spake to the congregacion, & sayde: Departe frō the tentes of these vngodly men, & touche nothinge of it, for ye perishe not in any of their sines. And they gat them up from the dwelling of Coah, Dathan, & Abiram. But Dathan and Abiram came out, and stode in the doore of their tentes, with their wyues, and sonnes and chyldren.

And Moses sayde: Whereby shal ye knowe that the LORD hath sent me, to do all thisi wordes, and that I haue not done them of myne awnchert. If these men dye the comen death of all men, or be visited as all men are visited, then hath not the LORD sent me. But if the LORD make a new thinge, and the earth open hit mouth, and swallowe them with all that they haue, so that they go downe quyte in to hell, then shal ye knowe, that the senners haue blasphemed the LORD.

And whā he had spokē out all thesi wordes, the grounde cloued vnder the, & the earth opened hit mouth, & swallowed the, & their houses, & all the me that were w Coah, & all their substance, and they went downe quyte in to the hell, with all that they had.

And the earth closed vpon them, & they perished from amonge the congregacion. And all Israel that were aboute the, stood at the, for they sayde: That the earth swallowede not vs also. For ouer the fyre came out frō the LORD, and consumed the two hundred and fiftie men, that offered the incense.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the prest, that he take up the censers out of the burninge, & scatter the fyre here & there: For the censers of these synners are balowede theuere their soules, & they maye be beate in to thine places, & fastened vpon the altare. For they are offered before the LORD, & balowede: and they shalbe a token vnto the childe of Israel.

And Eleazar the prest take the brasse censers which they were burnt, had offered, & bethe the places, to fasten the vpon the altare, for a remembrance vnto the childe of Israel, that no stranger (and he that is not of the seed of Aaron) come nye to offer incense before the LORD, for it is happēd vnto him as vnto Coah and his companye, a contrarye as the LORD sayde vnto him by Moses.

On the nexte moone murmured the whole congregacion of the childe of Israel agaynst Moses & Aarō, & sayde: We haue slayne the people of the LORD. And whā the congregacion was gathered agaynst Moses & Aarō, they turned the towarde the Tabernacle of witness. And beholde, the grounde covered the Tabernacle, & the glory of the LORD appeared. And Moses & Aarō wote in before the Tabernacle of witness. And the LORD spake vnto Moses, & sayde: See thou out of this congregacion, I wil shortly consume the. And they fell upon their faces. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take the censer & put fyre therein frō the altare, & laye incense thereon, & go some to the congregacion, & make an atonement for the. For the wrath is gone out from the LORD, and the plague is begonne amonge the people.

And Aaron byd as Moses sayde, & came in the myddest amonge the congregacion. And beholde, the plague was begonne. And he burnt incense, & made an atonement for the people, & the plague ceased. But there were fourtyen thousande, and seue hundred dead in the plague, besides them that dyed aboute the dwelling of Coah. And Aaron came agayne vnto Moses before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness. And the plague ceased.

The XVII. Chapter.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Speake to the childe of Israel, & case of the twolue staves, of every capteyne of his fathers house one, and wyte every mans name upon his staffe. But Aarons name shall thou wyte upon the staffe of Leui. For every heade of their fathers house shall haue a staffe. And layt the in the Tabernacle of witness, before the witness where I testify vnto you. And loke whom I shall choise, his staffe shall flourish. ¶ I mayntake the grudginges of the children of Israel, which they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the childre of Israel, all their capteynes gaue him twolue staves, eury capteyne a staffe, after the house of their fathers. And Aarons staffe was amonge their staves also. And Moses layd the staves before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of witness.

On the morow whā Moses wote in to the Tabernacle of witness, he soude the rods of the bouis of Leui flourish, and brought forth blossoms, & bare allmondes. And Moses brought forth all the staves before the LORDE before all the childre of Israel, that they might see it. And they toke eury mā his

The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: (staffe.) Bring Aarons staffe againe before the witness, for it may be kepte for a toke to the children of rebellion, that their murmurings may cease from, lest they dye.

Moses byd as the LORDE commaunded him. And the childre of Israel sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, we obseme away, we are destroyed, & perishe. Who so cometh nye the dwelling place of the LORDE, he dyeth. Shall we tery obseme away? The XVIII. Chap.

¶ The LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: Thou & thy sonnes, & thy fathers house whē they shall beate the myschance of the Sacrament, thou & thy sonnes whē they shall beate the myschance of the priesthode. But thy children of the crybe of Leui & father, shall come nye the, & be ioyned vnto the, that they may minister vnto the. But thou & thy sonnes whē they shall minister before the Tabernacle of witness. And they shall wate vnto the seruyce & vpon the seruyce of the whole Tabernacle. But nye vnto the vessels of the Sanctuary & to the altare, shall they not come, for both they & ye dye not: howbeit they shall be ioyned vnto the, to wate vnto the ministracion in the Tabernacle of witness, in all the seruyce of the Tabernacle. And there shall no stranger come nye vnto you.

Therefor in now vpon the seruyce of the Sanctuary, and vpon the seruyce of the altare, that there come no more wate vpon the children of Israel. Forso, I haue take ye breche of the Leuities fro amonge the children of Israel, to be your gyfte, for a present vnto the LORDE, to do the seruyce in the Tabernacle of witness. As for the, and the sonnes with the, ye shall wate vpon your priestes office, that ye may minister in all maner busynes of the altare, and within the wayle: for ye priestes office graue I vnto you for a gyfte to do seruyce. If a stranger come nye, he shall dye.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: beholde, I haue given the my hemes offeringes. And all that the childre of Israel haue, haue I given vnto the, and to thy sonnes for a perpetuall dewe. This shall thou haue of the most holy thinges that they offer. All their gytes with all their meates offeringes, and with all their syn offeringes, and with all their trespass offeringes, that they geue me, the same shall be most holy vnto the, and the sonnes. In the most holy place shall thou eate it. All their gytes with all their meates offeringes, and with all their syn offeringes, and with all their trespass offeringes, that they geue me, the same shall be most holy vnto the, and the sonnes. In the most holy place shall thou eate it. All their gytes with all their meates offeringes, and with all their syn offeringes, and with all their trespass offeringes, that they geue me, the same shall be most holy vnto the.

The hene offeringes of their gytes in the Waves offeringes of the children of Israel, haue I given vnto the also, and to thy sonnes, and to thy daughters for a perpetuall dewe. Who so is cleane in thy house, shall eate thereof. All the fat of the oyle, and all the fat of the wyne, and come of their first thinges, that they geue vnto the LORDE, haue I given vnto the. The first frutes of all that is in their londe, which they bringe vnto the LORDE, shall be thine. Who so eate is cleane in thine house, shall eate thereof.

All dedicate thinges in Israel shall be thine. All that breaketh the Matris amonge all flesh, which they bringe vnto the LORDE, whether it be man or best, shall be thine. But so, that thou cause the firstborne of mā to be redeemed, and that thou cause the first borne of vne cleane bestes to be redeemed also. They shall redeeme it when it is a moneth olde, and shall geue it lowe for money, euen for fyve Syckles, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary, which Syckle is worth twentye Gerās.

But the first frutes of an ope, or lambe, or goate shall thou cause to be redeemed for they are holy. Their bloude shall thou sprengle vpon the altare, and their fat shall thou burne for an offeringe of a sweete savor vnto the LORDE. Their flesh shall be thine, like as the Wave offering and the right shulder is thine also. All the hemes offeringes that the childre of Israel bringe vnto the LORDE, haue I given vnto the, & to thy sonnes, & to thy daughters with the for a perpetuall dewe.

And 3^o LORDE talked wth Moſes, 2 ſaide:

the ſpenteinge water is not ſpente i^o vpon him: and he is vncleane, as longe as he lea-teeth not himſelf be poured therof.

This is the lawe. Whā a maⁿ dyeth in 3^o tente, who ſo ether goeth in to the tente, and all 3^o is in the tente, ſhal be vncleane ſiue dayes.
And every open veſſel that hath no lidd nor covarynge, is vncleane. And who ſo toucheth it, or any other dead, or a dead mans bone, or a grave, 3^o ſame is vncleane ſiue dayes.

So now for the vncleane perſonne, they ſhal take of 3^o ſhes of this burnt ſyncofferinge, 2 pur ſpenteinge water thereon in to a veſſel, and a cleane man ſhall take 3^o ſpoc dyppe it in the water, and ſpente it vpon the cote, and vpon all the veſſels, and all the ſoules that are therein. Likewise alſo vpon him, 3^o hath toucheth a dead mans bone, or a ſlayne perſonne, or a dead body, or a grave.

And he that is cleane, shall sprentle vpon the vncleane, 3 thirde daye, & the fourth daie, & purifie him on 3 seauth daye. And he shall wash his clothes, & bathe him self w water, and so at euen he shall e cleane.

¶ But he 3 is vncleane, and wil not purifie him self, 3 same soule shall be roted out of 3 cōgregation. For he hath despised the Sanctuary of the LORD. It is not sparkled w spriklinge water, therefore is he vncleane. And this shall be a perpetuall lawe vnto the. And he 3 sprentled w the spriklinge water, shall wash his clothes also. And who so euer cometh the spriklinge water, shall be vncleane. ¶ I shall smill the euen. And what so euer he toucheth, shall be vncleane vntill the euen.

The XX. Chapter.

¶ And the childre of Israel came w the whole cōgregation into the wilderness of Sin in the first moneth, & the people abode at Cadan. And there dyed Miriam, & was buried there. And the congregation had no water, & they gathered them self together agaynst Moses & Aaron, & the people chode with Moses, & sayde: Wolde God 3 not had persyded, & than oure brethren perished before the LORD. Wherefore haue ye brought the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, 3 we shal dye here with oure cattell. And wherefore haue ye brought vs out of Egypte into this place, where men can not sowe, where are neither figges, ner vynea, ner pomgranates, & where there is no water to drynke.

And Moses & Aaron were sit the congregation vnto 3 boze of 3 Tabernacle of witness, & fell vpon their faces. And the glory of the LORD appeared vnto them. And the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the staffe, & gather the cōgregation together, thou & thy brother Aaron, & speake vnto the rocke before their eyes, & it shall geue him water. And thus shalt thou piousyde the water out of the rocke, & geue the congregation drynke, and that cattell also.

¶ The rocke Moses the staffe before 3 LORD, as he commaunded him. & Moses & Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rocke, & sayde vnto the LORD: Heare ye rebellions: Shall we piousyde you water out of this rocke. And Moses lift vp his hande, & smote 3 rocke w the staffe two tymes. Then came 3 water out abundantly, so 3 the cōgregation drinke, and that cattell also.

¶ But the LORD sayde vnto Moses & Aaron: Because ye denyed me not, to sanctifye me before 3 childre of Israel, ye shal not bringe this congregation into the lande that I shal geue the. This is 3 water of strife, where the childre of Israel strome w the LORD, and he was sanctified vpon them.

¶ And Moses sent messengers sit Cadan vnto 3 kynge of 3 Edomites: This word sendeth the 3 brother Israel: Thou knowest all 3 traualle that happened vnto vs, how that oure fathers wente downe into Egypte, & how we haue dwelt in Egypte a longe tyme, & how the Egyptians dealde euill with vs & 3 fathers. And we cryed vnto 3 LORD, which herde oure voyce, and sent his anuell, & hath brought vs out of Egypte: And behold, we are at Cadan in 3 aite withoute the borders of 3 lande. ¶ Let vs go thowen thy lande, we wil noe go thowen 3 filthes ner vy nyardes, ner drynke the water one of the fons caynes. We wil go the by strete, and turne neither to 3 right hande ner to 3 left, tyll we be come pass 3 borders of thy countre.

¶ But the Edomites answered him: Thou shalt not go by me, & I wil come agaynst 3 with 3 sword. The childre of Israel aide vnto him: We wil go 3 coms by waye, & yf we oure cattell drynke of thy water, & yf we oure foie: we wil do nothinge, but passe thowen on foue onely. But he sayde: Thou shalt not go thowen. And the Edomites came out agaynst them with a myghtie people & a strong hande. Thus 3 Edomites denied to graunte Israel passage thowen the borders of the lande. And Israel turned awaye from them.

¶ And the childre of Israel made vp sit Cadan, and came with the whole congregation vnto mount Hor. And the LORD spake vnto Moses & Aaron at mount Hor: Herde vpon the coastes of 3 lande of 3 Edomites, & sayde: Let Aaron be gathered vnto his people: for he shal not come in to 3 lande. ¶ I haue geuen vnto 3 childre of Israel, because ye were desobedient vnto my mouth at the water of strife. Take Aaron and Eleasar and his sonne, and bringe them vp vnto mount Hor, and strype Aaron out of his vestimentes, and put the vpon Eleasar his sonne, and there shall Aaron be gathered vnto his people, and dye.

¶ Then dyd Moses as the LORD commaunded him, and they wente vp vnto mount Hor in 3 sight of the whole congregation. And Moses toke Aarons clothes, & put the vpon Eleasar his sonne. And Aaron dyed there, taken aboue vpon one he moune. And Eleasar & Eleasar came downe from the moune, and vpon the whole congregation sawe

Then departed they fro mount Horon ꝑ waye towards the red ſea, that they might go aboute the ſides of the Edomites. For here is neither bread ner water, and our ſoule lotheth this lighte meate.

Then ſent the LORD E ſerpenes amonge the people, which bite the peple, ſo that there dyed moche people in Iſrael. The came they unto Moſes, and ſayde: We haue ſynned, becauſt we haue ſpoken agaynſt the LORD E and agaynſt the. Num. 21. c

And the children of Iſrael departed, and pitched in Oboth. And from Oboth they wente on, and pitched in Jgim by Abanin in the wylderneſſe ener agaynſt Moab, in the Caſſiye. From thence departed they pitched by the ryuer of Sared. From thence departed they, and pitched on this ſide Arnon, which is in the wylderneſſe, and cometh out of the coaſtes of the Amorites, and Arnon is the border betwene Moab and ꝑ Amorites. Wherefore it is ſpoken in the booke of the warres of the LORD E: And go with violence boch on the ryuer of Arnon, on the ſoutherne of the river, which cometh downe wardes to dwell at Ar, z leaureth thacon, to be the border of Moab.

And from thence they came to the well. This is the well, where of the LORD E ſwore vnto Moſes: gather the people together, I wil geue them water. Then ſange Iſrael this ſonge, and they ſange one after another ouer the well: This is the well, that the pyman digged it throughe z reacher and their ſiua.

And from this wylderneſſe they wente vnto Marhana, z from Marhana vnto Tabahiel, and from Tabahiel to Bamoth, and ſo Bamoth vnto the valley that lieth in ꝑ ſide of Moab at the toppes of Piſga, and thence cometh the wylderneſſe.

And Iſrael ſent meſſengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, z cauſed to ſaye vnto him: Let me go throughe ꝑ lande, we wil not come in to ꝑ felde ner in to the wynter dea: neither will we drynke the water of the welles, ꝑ hye ſtrete wil we go, all we be paſſe the borders of thy countre.

Sihon beir Sihon wolde not geue the children of Iſrael licence to go throughe the coaſtes of his lande, but gathered all his people together, and wente out agaynſt Iſrael in the wylderneſſe. And whan he came to Jahesa, he foughte agaynſt Iſrael. Where the leſſe Iſrael ſmote him with the edge of the ſwerde, and conquered his lande from Arnon vnto Jaboc, and vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the children of Ammon were ſtrige. So Iſrael toke all theſe cities, and dwelle in all the cities of ꝑ Amorites, namely at Heſſon, and in the countre belonginge therto. For Heſſon the cite was Sihons the kynge of the Amorites, and he had foughten before with the kynge of the Moabites, and conquered all his lande from him vntyll Arnon.

Wherefore it is ſayde in the proverbe: Come vnto Heſſon, let vs buyle and prepare a cite of Sihon. For there is a ſyne gowne of Heſſon, and a flamme from the cite of Sihon, which hath consumed Ar of ꝑ Moſes hize, and the cistern of y coppe of Arnon. We into the Moabites, whose people of Camoe are at vndone. His sonnes are put to flight, & his daughters brought captiue into Sibon the hyng of the Amouites. Their glory is come to nought from Hesbon unto Dibon: I waisted are they vnto Toph, which reacheth vnto Mediba. Thus dwelt Israel in the lande of the Amouites.

And Moyses sent out spyes vnto Jabez, & they toke the conuoye belonging to the car, & esquered the Amouites & were therein. And they turned, & went vnto the waye toward Basan. Then Og the hyng of Basan wote out agaynst them w all his people, to fighte in Gaba. And & the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Feare him not, for I haue geuen him w his lande & people in to thy hande, & thou shalt do with him, as thou wydest with Sibon the hyng of the Amouites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote him, & his sonnes, & all his people: (so & there remayned none) & esquered the lande. Afterwarde wete y child of Israel, & pitched in y felde of Moab beyonde Jordan by Jericho.

The XXXI. Chapter.

AND when Balac & some of Ziphor sawe all that Israel had done vnto the Amouites, and that the Moabites were sore affrayed of the people (I was sigreat) and that the Moabites stode in feare of the children of Israel, he sayde vnto y Elders of the Madianites: Tom shall this heape lye vnto all that is aboute us, as if as an ore licherth vnto the grasse in the felde. (And Balac & some of Ziphor was hyng of the Moabites at that tyme.)

¹¹¹ And he sent out messengers vnto Balac the sonne of Zecoi, which was an interpieter. (The same dwelt by the water of the lande of y children of his people) that they shulde call him, and be caused to saye vnto him: Beholde, there is come out of Egypte, a people, which covereth y face of y earth, and lyeth ouer agaynst me. Come now therefore, and curse me this people, for they are so mightie for me, yf peradventure I might be able to smyte them, and to dryne them out of the lande. For I wote, that whom thou blest, he is blest: and whom thou cursest, he is cursed.

¹¹² And the Elders of the Moabites wente on with y Elders of the Madianites, and had the rewarde of y soyth sayenge in their hande, and they came vnto Balac, & tolde him the wordes of Balac. And he sette vnto the: Tary here all nyght, & I will bring ge you worde agayne, asen as the LORDE shall saye vnto me. So y prynces of y Moabites abode with Balac.

And God came vnto Balac, & sayde: What men are these, which are with y? Balac sayde vnto God: Balac y sonne of Ziphor the hyng of the Moabites hath sent vnto me: Beholde, there is a people come out of Egypte, and covereth the face of the earth, come now therefore, & curse me the, yf peradventure I maye be able to fighte with them, & to dryne the out. But God sayde vnto Balac: Go not with them, & curse not that people, for they are blest.

Then rose Balac up in the morninge, & he sayde vnto the prynces of Balac: Get you vnto youre londe, for the LORDE wyll not suffer me to go with you.

And the prynces of y Moabites gat the vnto Balac, & sayde: Balac refuseth to come w vs. Then sent Balac yet a greater copany of prynces, & more honorable the they. When they came to Balac, they tolde him: Balac y sonne of Ziphor sendeth y this worde: Oh re sitte not to come vnto me, for I wyll promote the vnto yre honoure, & I wil do what so ever thou sayest vnto me. Come I praye the, curse me this people.

Balac answered, & sayde vnto y seruantes of Balac: If Balac wolde geue me his house full of y slaer & golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde y worde of the LORDE my God, to do litle or greate. I therefore tarye here this nyght, & I maye wete, what the LORDE will saye moite vnto me. Then came God to Balac in nyght, & sayde vnto him: If the men are come to call the, get the vnto them, and go with the: but what I shall saye vnto the, that shalt thou do.

Then rose Balac up in the morninge, & he sated his Ass, & wente w the prynces of y Moabites. But the wotche of God was w those, because he wote. And the angell of y LORDE stode in the waye, to smyte him. But he rode vnto his Ass, & two seruantes is him. And β Aſſe ſaide β angell of β LORDE ſendinge in β waye, β his ſwerde was in his hande. And β Aſſe curued a ſide out of β waye, β wente in to the felde. But Balaam ſmoke her, β ſhe ſhoulde go in the waye.

Then ſtoode the angell of the LORDE in β pathe by the wywardes, where there were walles on both ſides the ſides. And when β Aſſe ſawe the angell of the LORDE, ſhe wrenſhed vnto the wall, β thruſt Balaams ſee vnto the wall. And he ſmoke her agayne. The wete the angell of the LORDE farther, β ſtoode in a narrow place, where there was no waye to turne, neither to the righte hande ner to β leſſe. And when the Aſſe ſawe the angell of the LORDE, ſhe fell downe vnder Balaam. Then was Balaams wrath furious, β ſmoote the Aſſe with a ſtaffe.

Then opened the LORDE the mouth of β Aſſe, and ſhe ſayde vnto Balaam: What haue I done vnto thee, that thou haſt ſmyten me now the tymes? Balaam ſayde vnto β Aſſe: Be cauſe thou haſt mocked me. Oh β I had a ſwerde now in my hande, I wolde kyll thee. The Aſſe ſayde vnto Balaam: Am not I thine Aſſe, which thou haſt rydden vpon in β tyme vnto this daye? Was I ener moued to do ſo vnto thee? ſhe ſayde: No.

Then opened the LORDE the eyes of Balaam, β he ſawe β angell of the LORDE ſtandinge in β waye, β a drawe ſwerde in his hande. And he enclined him ſelfe, β bowed downe to his face. And the angell of the LORDE ſayde vnto him: Wherefore haſt thou ſmyten thine Aſſe now the tymes? Beholde, I am come out to reſiſte β , for β waye is forward, β obediary vnto me. And β Aſſe ſawe me, β awayded from me the tymes: or els yf ſhe had not turned aſyde from me, I had ſlayne thee, β ſawed the Aſſe alyue.

Then ſayde Balaam vnto β angell of β LORDE: I haue ſinned, for I wyſt not, that thou ſtoodeſt in the waye agaynſt me. And now yf it diſpleaſe β , I wil turne agayne. The angell of β LORDE ſaide vnto him: Go with the me: but thou ſhalt ſpeake nothinge els, then β I ſhal ſaye vnto β . So Balaam wente forth to the pynces of Balac. When Balac herde β Balaam came, he wente out to meet him (in the cite of the Moabites) ſitich on the coaſte of Arnon, which is on β vtremoff bordr: β ſayde vnto him: Dyd not I ſende for β to call thee? Wherefore cameſt thou not to vnto me? Thinkeſt thou β I am not able to pynome β vnto home? Balaam answered him: Lo, I am come vnto β . But how can I ſaye any thinge els, the β God puttech in my mouth: β I muſt ſay. So Balaam wente with Balac, and (in they came vnto the cite on the vtremoff bordr of his lande. And Balac ſawe ſome on ſhepe, and ſent for Balaam, and ſo they pynce that were with him.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And in the morninge, Balac toke Balaam, and they wete vp to the hye place of Baal, that from thence he myghte ſe vnto the vtremoff parte of β people. And Balaam ſayde vnto Balac: Wayde me here ſeuen altares, and pynode me here ſeuen bullockes, and ſeuen rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam ſayde. And both Balac and Balaam offered on every altare a bullocke β a ramme. And Balaam ſayde vnto Balac: Stande thou by β burne offeringe, I wil go, yf haply the LORDE wil meet me, β call me, β I maye tell thee, what ſo ever he ſpenech me. And he wente his waye, as he ſayde.

And β LORDE meet Balaam. And Balaam ſaide vnto him: Seuen altares haue I prepared, and offered on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. The LORDE put β word in Balaams mouth, and ſayde: Go agayne vnto Balac, and ſaye on this wiſe. And when he came agayne vnto him, beholde, he ſtoode by his burne offeringe, with all β pynces of the Moabites.

Then toke he up his parable, β ſayde: Balac the kynge of the Moabites hath cauſed eo ſette me out of Syria from the moſtaynes towards the Weſt, β ſayde: Come, curſe me: Jacobi come, deſyre me: I ſhal. So w ſhall I curſe, whom God curſeth not: ſo w ſhall I deſyre, whom β LORDE deſyreth not: for ſit β coppe of β ſtony rockes: I ſe him, β ſit the hilles: I beholde him. Beholde, β people ſhal dwell by the ſelnes, β ſhal not be reſtred a wyſe the ſeith. Who can tell the wyſe of Jacob, β the nombre of the fourth parte of Iſrael? My ſoule die yf death of β righteous, and my ende be as the ende of theſe.

The ſaide Balac vnto Balaam: What doſt thou vnto me: I cauſed to ſe β ſeuen curſe myne enemies, β beholde, thou biſt theſe. He answered β ſaide: Muſt I not tpe β ſpeake β , which the LORDE puttech in to me mouth? Balac ſaide vnto him: Come to me yet vnto another place, ſit whence thou mayeſt ſe β vtremoff parte of the them, β not ſee them all, and curſe me them then.

And he toke him up to a place, and went to the toppe of Piſga, β buyded ſeuen altares, and offered on every altare a bullocke β a ramme. And he ſayde vnto Balac: Sit be so by thy burnt offeringe, whyle I go you der. And the LORDE merced Balaam, & put the worde in his mouth, & sayde: Go agayne unto Balac, & saye on this wyse. And whan he came to him agayne, beholde, he stode by his burnt offeringe with the princes of the Moabites. And Balac sayde unto him:

What hath the LORDE sayde?

And he toke up his parable, & sayde: A y-se up Balaam heare, make my testimonye in thine eares thou some of Siphon. * God is not a man he shalde lye, ner a mans childe shalde he saye and noc doe: Shalde he speake & not make it good: Beholde, I am broughte hither to blisse. I blisse, I can noc go backe there fre. There is no weerynesse sine in Jacob, ne in ether eny labour in Israel. The LORDE his God is wth him, & the tymes cometh is ains geth. God hath broughte the out of Egip-te, his strengt is as of an Unicorne. For the re is no Socterye in Jacob, & no Socty sayer in Israel. Whan the tyme cometh, it shal be saide unto Jacob, & to Israel, what God doeth. Beholde, the people shall ryse up as a Lyoness, & beare up him self as a Lyon. he shal not lye downe, tyll he eate of the pray, and burne the bloude of the slayne.

Then sayde Balac unto Balaam: Thou shalt necher curse him ner blisse him. Balaam answered, & sayde unto Balac: Hane I not tolde the: All he the LORDE speaketh, I must I do: Balac saide unto him: Oh come, I will bynyge he to another place, yf it maye happly please God, he thou mayest curse the there. And he brought him up to the toppe of mount Peon, he boweth towards the wy-bernesse. And Balaam sayde unto Balac: Bylyde me here seven alcares, and prouyde me seven bullockes and seven rammes. Ba-lac dyo as Balaam sayde, and offered on euery alcare a bullocke and a ramme.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

2 When whan Balaam sawe he it pleased the LORDE, that he shulde blisse Israel, he wene not, as he dyd be sore, to see wretches, but set his face straight towards the wybernesse, lifte up his eyes, and sawe Israel, how they laye accordinge to their tribes, and the spere of God came upon him, and he roke up his parable, and sayde: Thus sayeth Balaam the sonne of Beor: Thus sayeth the man whose eyes are opench: Thus sayeth he which heareth the wordes of God, which sawe the vision of he Almightie: which fell downe, and his eyes were opench.

How goodly are thy trees O Jacob, and thy habitacions O Israel: Euen as the hye de valleye, as the gardens by the waters sy-de, as he tentes which the LORDE hath piced, & as the Cedar trees upon he water. The water shal flowe out of his boke, and his side shal be a greate water. His tynge shal be hys then Agag, & his tynge bowe shal be exalted. God hath broughte he out of Egip-te, his strengt is as of an unicorne. he shal eate up the sycthon his enemies, and gryn-de their bones to powder, and streue thowm them with his arrowes. he hath layed him downe as a Lyon and as a Lyoness. Who will raise him up: Blessed be he, he blisseth the: and curse, that curse he the.

The was Balac furious & smath agaynst Balaam, & sinde his habes together, & sayde unto him: I hane called the, he thou shal-dest curse myne enemies, and beholde, thou hast blessed the now the tyme: & now get the hie to he place. I thoughte he I wolde promote the unto honoure, but the LORDE hath kepte the backe from that worshippe.

Balaam answered him: Tolde not I chy messengers (whom thou sendest unto me) & sayde: As Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer and golde, yet coude I not go beyonde the wordes of the LORDE, so do eicher small or good after myne aume here but what he LORDE speaketh, that must I speake also. And now beholde, for so much as I go to my people, come therfore. I will shewe the what this people shal do unto he people after this tyme.

And he toke up his parable, and sayde
Thus sayeth Balaam the sonne of Beor:
Thus sayeth he man, whose eyes are opench:
Thus sayeth he which heareth the wordes of God, & he hath the knowledge of he byest, eate he he sawe he visio of he Almightye, & fell downe, & his eyes were opench: I shal se him, but not now: I shal beholde him, but not nie ne habde. There shal a starre come out of Jacob, & a scepter shall come up out of Israel, & shal smyte he rulers of the Moabites, and overcome alle the children of Seth.

Edom shal be his possession, and Seir shal be his enemies possessio, but Israel shal be man fully. Out of Jacob shal come he hath dominion, and shal destroye the remnant of the cirias.

And whi he sawe he Amalechites, he to-ke up his parable, & sayde: Amalec the first amonge the heitbe, but ac he last thou shal perse he vntuly. And whan he sawe the Bemites, he toke up his parable, & sayde: Seir-ge is y dwellinge, and on a rocke hast thou put thy nest, nevertheless thou shalt be a burthen vnto Aegypt, vntill I shall take y prisoner.

And he roke vp his parable agayne, & sayde: Alas, whow shall I see, why God doth this? And I shippes out of Circim shall subdue Aegypt, and I shall be. He him self also shall perishe wrecly. And Balsam gat him up, and departed, and came agayne vnto his place, and Balac wente his waye also.

The xxv. Chapter.

¶ And Israel dwells in Sycim, and the people beganne to commyete whordome with the daughters of the Moabitesses, which called the people vnto the sacrifice of their goddesses. And the people are and worshipped their gods: and Israel submyred him self vnto Baal peor. Then the wrath of the LORDE wased whore vpon Israel, and he sayde vnto Moses: Take all the rulers of the people, and hanger them vp vnto the LORDE agaynst y Sonne, that the terrible wrath of the LORDE maye be turned awaye from Israel. And Moses sayde vnto the iudges of Israel: Laery man haue his capayne, that haue submyred them selues vnto Baal peor.

¶ And beholde, one of the childer of Israel wrote in agaynst his brether, & toyndd him self to a Moabitish woman, in y sighte of Moses of the whole cōgregation of y childer of Israel, which kepte before the dore of y Tabernacle of witness. When Phinias y sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron y prest saue y, he rose vp out of the congregation, & toke a sword in his hande, & wente after the man of Israel into the whore house, & thrust the pointe, both the man of Israel and the woman, and he bore the bely of her. Then ceased the plague from the childer of Israel, and there were slayne in the plague foure and twentie thousande.

¶ And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Phinias the sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron y prest, hath turned my wrath awaie from the childer of Israel, because he was zelous for my sake amonge them, & I shuld not consume the childer of Israel in my zelousy. Wherefore saye beholde, I geue him my cōuenant of peace, and he shall haue it, & his seed: after him, euen the cōuenant of an euerlasting presthode, because he was zelous for his Gods sake, and made an attonement for the childer of Israel.

The man of Israel that was slayne with the Moabitish woman, was called Simri the sonne of Salu, a capayne of the house of the father of the Simeonites. The Moabitish woman also that was slayne, was called Cozbi, y daughter of Zur, which was a ruler of the people of a tyred amonge the Moabitesses.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Dece the Moabitesses, & inyece them, for they haue vexed you with their wyces, whereby they haue biggled you to Baal peor, and choiue their sister Cozbi the daughter of a capayne of y Moabitesses, which was slayne in the daye of the plague, for Baal peor sake, and the plague came after.

The xxvi. Chapter.

¶ And when the gylty blood was shed, the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: I will cleasur y sonne of Aaron y prest. Take the summe of the whole cōgregation of the childer of Israel from threetye years & aboue, after their fathers houses, all y able to go forth to the warre in Israel. And Moses & Eleasar the prest spake vnto them (in the feild of the Moabitess before Iordane) ouer agaynst Jericho namely vnto all the that were threetye years olde & aboue, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And 3 LORD spake unto Moyses, & say de: Unto these shalt thou charge the isbera enheritaunce, accordinge to the nombre of þ names. To many shalt thou geue the more enheritaunce, and to fewe the lesse, vnto euery one shall be geue accordinge to their nombre; yett shall the lande be deuyled by lotte. Accordinge to þ names of the trybes of their fathers shal they enherite it: for a fater the lesse shalt thou deuyle their enheritaunce, both betwixte many and fewe.

And this is the summe of the Leuites in their trybes, Gerson: of whom cometh the trybe of the Gersonites. Rhabath: of whos cometh the trybe of the Rhabathites. Merari: of whom cometh the trybe of the Merarites. These are the trybes of Leui, the trybe of the Libuites, the trybe of the Hebronites, the trybe of the Mahalites, the trybe of the Misraites, the trybe of the Cozabites.

¶ Rhabath begat Amram. And Amrams wife was called Jochebed a daughter of Leui, which was borne him in Egypte: And vnto Amram she bare Aaron & Moses, & Miriam their sister. And vnto Aaron were borne Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar & Jehamar. As for Nadab & Abihu, they dyed, whan they offered straunge fyre before the LORD. And the summe of the was thre & twenety thousande, all males fro fyve monethes & aboue.

For they were not numbered amonge the children of Israel, for there was no enheritaunce geuen the amonge the children of Israel.

This is the summe of the children of Israel, whos Moses & Eleasar the prest numbered in the silde of the Moabites besyde Jordan ouer agaynst Jericho: Amonge whom there was not one of the summe of those children of Israel, whom Moses & Aaron the prest numbered in the wilderness of Sinaï, for the LORD sayde vnto the, y they shulde dye in the wilderness. And there was not one of them left, save Caleb the sonne of Jephune and Josua the sonne of Nun.

The xxxvii. Chapter.

¶ And the daughters of Zelaphead the sonne of Gopher the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, amonge the trybes of Manasse the sonne Joseph (whos names were, Mahla, Noa, Hogla, Milca, & Thirsa) came & stode before Moses & Eleasar the prest, & before the rulers of the whole congregation, euen before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, & sayde: Our fater is ded in the wilderness, & was not in the company of them that rose up agaynst the LORD in the congregation of Cozabite dyed in his aronne synne, and had no sonne. Wherefore shalde our fathers name be risethen amonge his trybe, though he be no sonne? Geue vs a possession also amonge our fathers brethren.

Moses broughte their cause before the LORD. And the LORD sayde vnto him: The daughters of Zelaphead haue spokt right. Thou shalt geue the a possession on in her fathers enheritaunce vnto them. As I saye vnto the child of Israel: When a man dyeth & hath no sonne, yett shall come his inheritance vnto his daughter. If he haue no daughter, yett shall geue it vnto his brether. If he haue no brether, yett shall geue it vnto his fathers brethren. If he haue no fathers brether, yett shall geue it vnto his next kynfolke which belonge vnto him in his trybe, & they maye possesse it. This shal be an ordinance and a perpetuall lawe vnto the children of Israel, as the LORD commaunded Moses.

And the LORD sayde vnto Moses: See the vp in to this mount Abarim, & beholde the lode, which I shal geue vnto the children of Israel. And when thou hast sene it, thou shalt be gathered vnto þ people, as Aaron thy brether was gathered: for ye were disobedient vnto my worde in the wilderness of Sin, in the strife of the congregation, whan ye shulde haue sanctified me, whoso the water be for them. This is the water of stryfe at Cades in the wilderness of Sin.

And Moses spake vnto the LORD & sayde: O let the LORD God of the spere of all flesh set a man ouer the congregation, which maye go in & out before them, & to stode the out & in, the congregation of the LORD be not as the shepe without a shepheard.

And the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Take vnto the Josua the sonne of Nun, which is a man in whom is the spere, and put thine handes vpon him, & set him before Eleasar the prest, and before the whole congregation, and geue him a charge in their sighte, & beutyfy him with thy beauty, that the whole congregation of the children of Israel maye be obedient vnto him. And he shall stode before Eleasar the prest, which shall art counsell for him a fater the manner of the lighte, before the LORD. At the mouth of him shall dorh he and all the children of Israel with him, and the whole congregation in and out.

Moses byd as the LORD commaunded him, & toke Josua, and set him before Eleasar the prest, and before all the congregation, and layed his handes vpon him, and gave him a charge, as the LORD Esayde vnto Moyses.

The XXVII. Chapter.

Vnto the LORD spake vnto Moyses, & sayde: Cōmūde þy chylde of Israel, & saye vnto the: The offeringe of my bled which is my offeringe of the swete sauoure, shal ye kepe in his due season, that ye maie offre vnto me. And saye vnto the: The se are the offeringes that ye shal offre vnto the LORD E. Lambe of a yere olde which are without blemysch, euery daye two for a daylie burnt offeringe: the one lambe in the morninge, the other at euen. And thereto a tenth deale of an Ephā of fyne flour for a meate offeringe, myngled with beate oyle of the fourth parte of an ĥin, this is a daylie burnt offeringe, which ye offered vpon molle Sinar, for a swete sauoure of a sacrifice vnto the LORD E. And the daynt offeringe of the same, þe fourth parte of an ĥin to a lambe, and this halthe poured in the Sanctuary for a gifte vnto the LORD E. The other lambe shalbe thou piere at enē like as the meate offeringe in the morninge; & the daynt offeringe therof, for a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the LORD E.

B On the Sabbath daye, two lambe of a yere olde without blemysch, & two tenth deales of fyne flour myngled with oyle, & the daynt offeringe therof. This is the burnt offeringe of euery Sabbath, besyde the daylie burnt offeringe, wchis daynt offeringe.

And on the first daye of youre monethes ye shal offre a burnt offeringe vnto þe LORD E: two yonge bullockes, a ramme, seven lambe of a yere olde without blemysch, and allwaye thre tenth deales of fyne flour for a meate offeringe myngled with oyle vnto euery bullocke: two tenth deales of fyne flour for a meate offeringe myngled with oyle vnto the ramme: and a tenth deale of fyne flour for a meate offeringe myngled with oyle vnto euery lambe. This is the burnt offeringe of a swete sauoure, a sacrifice vnto þe LORD E.

C And their daynt offeringes shalbe, half an ĥin of wyne vnto euery bullocke, the thirde parte of an ĥin to the ramme, & fourth parte of an ĥin to euery lambe. This is the burnt offeringe of euery moneth in the yere. There shalbe offered an he goate also for a syn offeringe vnto the LORD E, to the daylie burnt offeringe with his daynt offeringe.

And on the fourteenth daye of the first moneth is the Passer vnto the LORD E, and qñ the systeme daye of the same moneth is the Passer. Seven dayes shal vnterment be eaten. The first daye shalbe an holy conuocation: To ierale worke shal ye do therein, and ye shal offre a burnt offeringe vnto the LORD E: two yonge bullockes, one ramme, seven lambe of a yere: olde without blemysch, with their meate offeringe: thre tenth deales of fyne flour myngled with oyle to euery bullocke, & two tenth deales to the ramme, and one tenth deale to euery lambe amonge the seven lambe. And an he goate for a syn offeringe, to make an attonement for you. And the se shal ye offre in the morninge, besyde the burnt offeringe, which is a daylie burnt offeringe. After this maner shal ye offre þe bled euery daye seven dayes longe for an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORD E, to the daylie burnt offeringe, and daynt offeringe also. And the sixteenth daye shal be called an holy conuocation with you: no seruyll worke shal ye do therein.

And the daye of the fyfth sence (whā ye offre the meate offeringe of the moneth vnto þe LORD E in youre weekes) shal be an holy conuocation also: To worke of bondage shal ye do therein. And ye shal offre a burnt offeringe for a swete sauoure vnto the LORD E: two yonge bullockes, a ramme, seven lambe of a yere olde, with their meate offeringes: thre tenth deales of fyne flour myngled with oyle to euery bullocke, two tenth deales to the ramme, and one tenth deale to euery lambe of the seven lambe. And an he goate to make an attonement for you. This shal ye do, besyde þe daylie burnt offeringe with his meate offeringe and his daynt offeringe. Without blemysch shal they be all.

The XXX. Chapter.

Vnto the fyfth daye of the fourth moneth shal be with you an holy conuocation. To seruyll worke shal ye do therein, for it is the daye of youre trompet blowinge. And ye shal offre a burnt offeringe for a swete sauoure vnto the LORD E: a yonge bullocke, a ramme, seven lambe of a yere olde without blemysch. And their meate offeringes: thre tenth deales of fyne flour myngled with oyle to the bullocke, two tenth deales to þe ramme, and one tenth deale vnto euery lambe of þe seven lambe. An he goate also for a syn offeringe, to make an attonement for you, besyde þe burnt offeringe of þe moneth & his meate offeringe, & besyde þe daylie burnt offeringe wchis meate offeringe & with the daynt offeringe, accordinge to the maner of the for a hō Theſe thinges ſhal ye do vnto ʒ LORDE in youre feaſtes, beſyde that ye wote and geue of a freewill for burnt offerings, meate offerings, drynt offerings and healt offerings. And Moſes tolde the childen of Iſrael all that the LORDE commanded him.

The XXX. Chapter.

S Vnto Moſes ſpake vnto the rulers of the trybes of che childen of Iſrael, and ſaide: This is it that the LORDE hath commanded: If any man make a uowe vnto the LORDE, or ſwear an oath, ſo that he binde his ſoule, he ſhal not breake his uowe, but do all that is proceeded out of his mouth.

If a damſell make a uowe vnto ʒ LORDE, and binde hirſelf, whyle ſhe is in hir fathers houſe, and unmarried, and hir uowe or bonde that ſhe maketh ouer hir ſoule, cometh to hir fathers eares, ʒ he holde hir peace therco, the all hir womes & bondes þe hath boude hir self withall ouer hir soule, shal stonde in effecte. But yf hir father forby her þe same daye that he heareth it, the shal no wome nor bonde that she hath boude hir self withall ouer hir soule, be of waye. And the LORDE shal be mercifull vnto her, for so much as hir father forbad her.

If she haue an husbunde, & hath a wome upon her, or yf she haue litten go out of hir lippes a sode ouer hir soule, & hir husbunde heare it, & holdeth his peace therat, the same daye that he heareth it, then hir wome & bonde wherewith she hath boude hir self ouer hir soule, shal stonde in effecte. But yf hir husbunde forby her the same daye that he heareth it, the is the wome losse þe she hath vps þe, & she bende also that she hath litten go out of hir lippes ouer hir soule, and the LORDE shal be gracious vnto her.

The wome of a wyddowe, & of her þe is deuoced, all þe she byndeth hir self withall ouer hir soule, shal stonde in effecte vps þe.

C If she wome in hir husbundes house, or binde hir self w an oath ouer hir soule, & hir husbunde heare it, & holde his peace therat, and forbyndeth it not, the shal all þe same wome, & all þe she hath boude hir self w all ouer hir soule, stonde in effecte. But yf hir husbunde disanalle it, þe same daye þe he heareth it, the is it of no valye þe is proceaded out of hir lippes, which she hath wored or boude ouer hir soule: for hir husbunde hath made it losse, & the LORDE shal be gracious vnto her. And all womes & cochetes þe bynde to humble þe soule maie hir husbunde stablys or breake, thus. If he holde his peace therat for some daie to another, then stablys he all hir womes & bondes, þe she hath vpon her, because he helde his peace. the same daye þe he herde the. But yf he disanalle the after þe she hath her beche, then shal he take a wite hir misdeede.

These are the statutes of the LORDE commaunded Moyses betwene a man & his wife, & betwene the father & his daughter, whyle she is yet a damsell in hir fathers house.

The XXXI. Chapter.

D Vnto the LORDE spake vnto Moyses, & sayde: Whence the childre of Israell of the Madianites, þe thou mayest afterwarde be gathered vnto þe people. The spake Moyses vnto the people, & sayde: Garnesse some men amonge you to the warre agaynst the Madianites: þe they maye auenge of LORDE vpon the Madianites) out of every tribe a thousande, þe out of every tribe of Israell ye maye sende some to the battayll. And from amonge the thousandes of Israell they toke one thousande out of every tribe, euen twolue thousande prepared vnto the battayll. And Moyses sent them with Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the piest in to the battayll, and the holy vessels and þe trompettes to blowe in his hande.

And they foughte agaynst þe Madianites as þe LORDE commaunded Moyses, & slew all þe males, & the yunge of Israell toke the women they also amonge: the other that were slaine namely, Eliu, Belem, Zur, Hur and Reba, the fyve yunges of the Madianites. And they slew Balaam the sonne of Beori w the swerde. And þe children of Israell toke the women of the Madianites prisoners, & their childre: all their cattell, all their substance, and all their goodes spoiled they, and all their cities of their dwellynge & castles burnt they w fyre. And they toke all þe spoyle, & all þe they coude catche man & cattell, and brought the vnto Moyses & to Eleazar the piest, and to þe congregation of the children of Israell (namely þe prisoners, and the cattell þe were take, and the good that was spoyled) in to the hoost in the fildes of the Madianites, which lyeth besyde Iordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

And Moyses and Eleazar the piest and all the captaynes of þe congregation, wete out of the hoost to mete the. And Moyses was angry at the officers of the hoost, which were captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes, þe came from the battayll, and sayde vnto the:

C haue ye slaine all þe women alyue: Beholde, we haue not they: for now Balaams buynges turned awaye þe childre of Israell to fynde agaynst the LORDE vps þe, & their came a plague ouer the whole congregation of Israell: Now therfor slaine all the males amonge þe childre, & kyll all þe women þe haue knowen men & lyen w them. But all the women children þe haue knowen no me nor lien w them, kepe those alyue for your selues. And lodge ye without the hoost, all þe haue slayne any man, or touched the slayne, that on the thirde and stentch daie ye maie purifie yselues and those whom ye haue taken prisoners.

And all the clothes, and all stuffe that is made of skynnes, and all maner furre, and all vesselle of wood shal ye purifie.

And Eleazar the piest sayde vnto þe captaynes of the hoost, þe wente out to the battayll: This is the statute of the lawe, which the LORDE commaunded Moyses: Wolde, siluer, brasse, yon, cymme and lead, and all that is of the fyre, shal ye cause to go thowoe the fyre, and cleuse it, that it maye be

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the summe of the spoyles of thos that are taken, both of women and of cattell, thou and Eleasar the priest, and the chiefe fathers of the congregation, and geue 3 halfe vnto those that toke the warre vpon them, and went out to the battayll, and 3 other halfe to the congregation. And of the men of warre that wente out to 3 battayll, thou shalt bene vnto the LORDE one soule of fyue hundred, both of the women, oxen, Asses, and shepe: Of seuer halfe parte shalt thou take it, and geue it vnto Eleasar the priest for an heuerofferynge vnto the LORDE. But of the children of Israels halfe parte, thou shalt take one heade of offysie, both of the women, oxen, Asses and shepe, and of all the cattell, and shalt geue them vnto the Leuites, that warre vpon the habitacion of the LORDE.

And Moses and Eleasar the priest byd as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And the spoyles and praye which 3 men of warre had spoyled, was six hundred thousande and fyue and seuen ty thousande shepe, two and iwen ty thousande oxen, one 3 thre score thousande Asses: and the women 3 had knowe no men nor yew: and them, were two and thirtie thousande soules.

And the halfe parte which belonged vnto them that wente to the warre, was in nombre thre hundred thousande, and seuen and thirtie thousande, and fyue hundred shepe: of the which the LORDE had six hundred, 3 fyue and seuen ty shepe. Item six and thirtie thousande oxen: whereof the LORDE had two 3 seuen ty. Item thirtie thousande 3 fyue hundred Asses: whereof the LORDE had one 3 thre score. Item sixtye thousande soules of women: whereof the LORDE had two 3 thirtie. And Moses gaue this heuerofferynge of the LORDE vnto Eleasar the priest, as the LORDE commaunded him.

As for the other halfe which Moses deuyded vnto the children of Israel six 3 men of warre, namely 3 halfe that fell to the congregation: it was also thre hundred thousande, and seuen and thirtie thousande, 3 fyue hundred shepe, six and thirtie thousande oxen, thirtie thousande 3 fyue hundred Asses, and sixtye thousande women soules.

And of this halfe of the children of Israel in the Moses one of every fyfte, both of the cattell 3 of the women, and gaue them vnto 3 Leuites, that waited vpon the habitacion of the LORDE, as 3 LORDE commaunded Moses.

And the captaynes ouer 3 thousande of the hoost, namely they that were ouer thousande and ouer hundred, came forth vnto Moses, and sayde vnto him: Thy seruantes haue taken 3 summe of 3 men of warre, that were vnder our hande, and there lacked us one: therefore bringe vs a present vnto the LORDE, what enery one hath soude of, Jewels of golde, chrymes, bracelets, rynces, ringes, and eades, that our soules maye be reconcyled before the LORDE.

And Moses and Eleasar 3 priest toke of them 3 golde of all maner ornaments. And all the golde of the heuerofferynge that they shewed vnto the LORDE, was sixty thousande and seuen hundred and fifty Syckles, of the captaynes ouer thousande and hundred. For loke what enery one had spoyled, that was his awne. And Moses 3 Eleasar the priest toke the golde of the captaynes ouer thousande and hundred, and broughte it in to the Tabernacle of witness for a remembrance of the children of Israel before the LORDE.

The XXXII. Chapter.

The children of Ruben and the children of Gad had an exceeding multitude of cattell, and sawe the sonde of Jaeser and Gilead: 3 it was a good place for cattell, and came 3 spake vnto the sonde and to Eleasar the priest, and to the captaynes of the congregation: The sonde of Aroeth, Dibon, Jaeser, Tumea, is effe, Eliele, Seban, Uebo, 3 Beon, which the LORDE smote before 3 congregation of Israel, is mete sonde for cattell, and thy seruantes haue many cattell. And they sayde moore: If we haue founde fauoure before the, thy 3 thy seruantes this sonde in possession, and we will not go ouer Jordan.

Moses sayde vnto them: Your brethren shall go to the warre, and will ye carrye it? Wherfore turne ye 3 herces of the children of Israel, that they shoulde not go ouer the sonde: chae the LORDE shall geue them. Thus byd your fathers also, when 3 sent them out from Cabes Bernea, to fyue out 3 sonde. And when they were come up to 3 uer of Escol, and sawe 3 sonde, they sawe the herces of the children of Israel, so 3 they wolde not in to the sonde which 3 LORDE wolde haue geuent them.

And the LORD was wroth at the same tyme, & swore, & sayde: These men y are come out of Egipt, from twetye yere olde & aboue, shall not se the lande which I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not wholly followed me: saue Caleb y sonne of Iephune & Keniseth, & Josua y sonne of Naui: for they haue wholly followed y LORD. So the LORD was wroth w Israel, & let the wander in the wilderness four tye yeres, tyll all y generation y had done cauld before the LORD, was consumed.

And beholde, ye are ryfen vp in youre shepards streete, to increase the nombre of synfull men, & to augmente yet the wrath & indignacion of the LORD E agaynst Israel. For yf ye turne you backe from followinge him, he shal yet leaue them more in the wilderness, & so shal ye destroye all this people.

Then spake they to him, & sayde: we will burd the shepfoldes here for our shepe & cattell, & ciers for y children: As for ourefildes, we will go ready armed before the children of Israel, tyll we haue broughte them vnto their place: Our children shal remayne in the fenced cities, because of y indwellers of the lande. We will not turne home agayne, tyll the children of Israel haue taken euery one his inheritance in possession: for we will not inheret with them beyond Jordan: for y inheritance shal fall vnto vs upon this syde Jordan Eastwarde.

Moses sayde vnto them: If ye wil do this, that ye wil harness your selues to the warre before the LORD, then go ouer Jordan before the LORD, who so cuer is harnessd amonge you, tyll he haue dyuen out his enemies before his face, and vntyll the lande be subdued before the LORD, then shal ye turne, & he engle ye before the LORD, and before Israel, so shal ye haue this lande in possession before the LORD. But yf ye will not do so, beholde, ye shal offende agaynst the LORD, and be sure, that youre synes shal fynde you out. Whyde cities now therefore for youre children, and shepfoldes and stables for youre shepe and cattell, and do as ye haue spoken.

The children of Gad, & the children of Ruben sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruantes shal do as my loide hath commaunded. Our children, wyues, substaunce, & all of cattell, shal be in y cities of Gilead. But we y seruantes will go all harnessd for the warre vnto battell before y LORD, as my loide hath saide.

The Moses commaunded Eleazar y prest & Josua the sonne of Naui, & the chiefe sa-thers of the tribes of the children of Israel, and saide vnto them: If the children of Gad & the children of Ruben go ouer Jordan w you, all prepared to fight before the LORD, & when the lande is subdued vnto y, shal ye geue them the lande of Gilead in possession. But yf they go not ouer with y, y harness, then shal they inheret: w y in y lode of Canaan.

The children of Gad and the children of Ruben answered, & sayde: As y LORD hath spoken vnto y seruantes, so will we do: we wil go harnessd before the LORD in to y lode of Canaan, and possesse oure inheritance vnto this syde Jordan.

So Moses gaue vnto y children of Gad and to the children of Ruben, and to the halfe tye of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, y kyngdome of Sibon kyng of the Amozites and the kyngdome of Og the kyng of Basan, the lande with the cities therof in all y coastes of y countre rounde aboute. The y children of Gad buylded Dibon, Aroer, Atroch, Sophan, Jaier, & Tegabeba, Bethnimra, & Betharan, strong fenced cities, & shepe foldes. The children of Ruben buylded Hesbbon, Eleale, Ariathaim, Nabo, Baal Meon, & armed y names, & Sibmas & gane names vnto y cities which they buylded. And y children of Manasse the sonne of Manasse wente in to Gilead, & conquered it, and diuie out the Amozites y were therein. Then Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir y sonne of Manasse, & he dwelth therein. Jaer y sonne of Manasse wente and conquered the villages therof, and called them Gazoeth Jaer. Tobah wente, and conquered Kanath, with the townes belonginge therto, and called it Tobah, a ster his awne name.

The XXXIIII. Chapere.

These are y iourneys of the childen of Israel, which were out of y lande of Egipte accordinge to ther armies, & Moses & Aar. unto the ryar of E gipee, and that the eu de thers be as the greatese.

But the West quarter shal be this: name lye the greatese se, let y be youre border toward be the West.

B The North quarter shalbe this: Ye shall compass from the greatese se unto mount hoi. And fro mount ho: ye shall compass tyll a man come unto Semath, that the oue goyng therof be the coast of Sedaba, and that the border of the same go out unto Si nerech East ward, and come downe by Jor dane, so y the goyng out of it be the Salte see. Let this be youre londe with the borders ther of rounde aboute.

C And Moyses commaunded the children of Israel, and sayde: This is youre londe that ye shall deuide out amonge you by lotte, whiche the LORDE hath commaunded to geue unto the nyne trybes, and to the halfe trybe. For the trybe of the children of Ru ben after their fathers house, and the trybe of the children of Gad accordinge to their fa thers house, and the half trybe of Manasse haue receaved their porcion. Thuo the two trybes and the halfe trybe haue their inheri tance already, on this syde Jordane, ouer agaynst Jericho, Eastward.

A And the LORDE spake unto Moyses, and sayde: These are y names of the men, whiche shal deuide the londe amonge y: u. Eleazar the puse, and Jesua the sonne of Tiui. And the capteyne of euery trybe shal ye take, to deuide the londe.

D And these are the names of the men: Ca led the sonne of Iephume of the trybe of Ju da. Semuel the sonne of Ammiud of the trybe of Simeon. Elidab y sonne of Ciston of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Baki the sonne of Jaghi of the trybe of the children of Dan.
Samuel the sonne of Ephod, of the trybe of the children of Manasse amonge the chil dren of Joseph. Amuel the sonne of Siph than, of the trybe of the children of Ephra im. Elisaphan the sonne of Parnach, of the trybe of the children of Zabulon. Palschiel the sonne of Ziam, of the trybe of the children of Issachar. Abihud the sonne of Selom, of y trybe of the children of Aser. Pedahel the sonne of Ammiud, of the trybe of the chil dren of Leuey. These are they whom y LORDE commaunded, that they shoulde de uide the inheritaunce unto the children of Israel in the londe of Canaan.

The xxxv. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake unto Moyses in the felde of the Moabites by Jorda ne ouer agaynst Jericho, & sayde: Com maunde the children of Israel, that they gene unto y Leuities of the inheritaunce of their possession, cities to dwell in. The suburbs al so about the cities shal ye geue unto the Le uities, that they may dwell in the cities, and in the suburbs to haue their cattell, and sub stance, and all their bestes.

The suburbs which ye geue unto y Le uities, shal reache fro the wall of y cite oue ward, a M. cubites rounde aboute. Thus ye shal measure without the cite on y East syde, two thousande cubites: & on y South syde, two thousande cubites: & on y West sy de, two thousande cubites: & on y North sy de, two thousande cubites, so y the cite be in the myddes. This shal be their suburbs.

And amonge the cities which ye shal ge ue unto the Leuities, ye shall geue the sixe cities, that be which comiteth a slaughter man, sixe chisher. Of sydes the same ye shal geue the yet two & foure cities: so yall y ci ties which ye geue unto y Leuities, be eight & foureye w their suburbs. And of y same ye shal geue the more, from the y haue moche in possession amonge the children of Israel & the lesse from them, that haue litle in pos session. Every one (accordinge to his inheri tance) that is deuied unto him shal geue of his cities unto the Leuities.

And the LORDE called w Moyses & sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, & saye unto the: Whan ye come ouer Jordane in to y lon de of Canaan, ye shall chose out cities to be sixe cities, y whio so comiteth slaughter un awarrea, maye sixe chisher. And sixe cit ies shalbe amonge you because of the auen ger of bloude, that he which hath commy ted slaughter, bye noe, tyll he stonde in iudg ment before the congregation. And of these cities which ye shall geue, there shalbe sixe citees. This shal ye geue on this syde Jor dane, and this in the londe of Canaan.

These are the sixe sixe cities, both for y chil dren of Israel: for the straungers, & for such as dwell amonge you, & who so ever hath slayd any soule vna warres, maye styre thither.

an. 21. b

For if any man slay any man with an yron weap, & he dye, the same is a murderer, & shal dye the death. If he cast at him with a stone, (wher with any man maye be slayne) & he dye ther of, then is he a murderer, and shal dye the death. If he smyte him with an hand weapon of wood, (wherwith any man maye be slayne) that he dye, then is he a murderer, and shal dye the death. The auenger of bloude shal bringe & murderer to death. When he syn dyeth him, he shal slay him. If he thurst at him of water, or cast ought at him with layenge of waite, or smyte him of enuye with his hande, that he dye, then shal he that hath slayne him, dye the death: for he is a murderer. The auenger of bloude shal bringe him to death, as soone as he fyndeth him.

Deu 19. a

But if he thurst him by chance, & not of enuye, or hurle ought at him without any layenge of waite, or cast at him with a stone, (wher of a man maye dye, & same it not so) & he dye, it is not his enemy, neither thought he any euill, the shal the cōgregation iudge betwene him & hath cōmytted & slaughter, and the auenger of bloude, in such cases. And the cōgregation shal help the deed slayer from the hande of y auenger of bloude, & shal let him come agayne to the fire cite, whither he was fled: there shall he abyde vnto & death of the hye prief, which was appointed with & hely oyle. But if the deed slayer go out of the borders of his fire cite, that he was fled vnto, and the auenger of bloude fynde him with out & borders of his fire cite, and kyll him, he shal not be gyltye of bloude. For he shalde haue tydden in his fire cite vnto & death of the hye prief, & after & hye priefs death to come agayne vnto the loude of his inheritance. This shalbe a statute of the lawe vnto you amonge youre posterities in all youre dwellinges.

and 19. c

The deed slayer shal be slayne at y mouth of witnesses. One witness shal not answere ouer a soule to death. And ye shal receaue none attonement ouer the soule of the deed slayer (for he is gyltye of death) but he shal dye the death. And ye shal receaue none attonement of him, which is fled to the fire cite, & he shalde come agayne to dwell in the loude, & sell the hye prief dye. And defyence ye of loude wherin ye dwell. For who so is gyltye of bloude, by sleeth the loude: and the loude can not be reconcyled from the bloude that is shed therein, but onely thow the bloude of him that shed it. Despye not ye the loude that ye dwell in, wherin I dwell also, for I am the LORDE, which dwell amonge & dwelun of Israel.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

And & these fathers of the byrdes of the childre of Bilead & sonne of Manasse which was the sonne of Manasse of the byrdes of the children of Joseph, came forth, and spake before Moses, and besought the captaynes amonge the chyfe fathers of the children of Israel, and saide: Syn the LORDE hath commaunded, that ye shalde geue the loude by lot vnto the childre of Israel to inheret. And thou my loude hast commaunded thow to the LORDE, that the inheritaunce of & brother Zelaphead shalde be geue vnto his daughters. How if any men out of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shal oure fathers inheritaunce be lesse: and as much as they haue, shal come to & inheritaunce of the trybe that they come vnto. Thoo shal the lott of oure inheritaunce be mysynsed. So whan the yares of Iudith cometh vnto the childre of Israel, then shal their inheritaunce come to & inheritaunce of the trybe, wher they are. Thoo shal oure fathers inheritaunce be mysynsed, as much as they haue.

Moses charged the childre of Israel, (as he charge to the commaundment of the LORDE) and sayde: The trybe of the childre of Joseph hath sayde ryghte. This is it that I LORDE commaundeth the daughters of Zelaphead, and sayeth: Let them mary as they like best, onely that they mary in the trybe of the trybe of their father, that the inheritaunce of the children of Israel fall not into one trybe to another. For every one amonge the children of Israel shall cleue to the inheritaunce of the trybe of his father: & every daughter that possesseth any inheritaunce amonge the trybes of the children of Israel, shal be maryed vnto one of the byrdes of the trybe of his father: & every one amonge the children of Israel maye enioye his fathers inheritaunce, and that the inheritaunce fall not from one trybe to another: but that every one maye cleue to his aunces inheritaunce amonge the trybes of the childre of Israel.

As the LORDE commaunded Moses, enioyng & daughters of Zelaphead, Manasse, Thira, & ayla, Mica & Loua & Loua were maryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of y byrdes of the children of Manasse the sonne of Joseph. So their inheritaunce remaineth in the trybe of the byrdes of their father.

These are the commandments & lawes, which the LORDE commaunded by Moſes vnto the childre of Iſrael, in the ſide of the Moabites by Iordane ouer againſt Jericho.

The ende of the fourth booke of Moſes, called Numerus.

The fyfth booke of Moſes, called Deuteronomion.

What this booke concerneth.

- Chap. I. Moſes purſeth the childre of Iſrael in remembrance of the greates benefites that they haue receaued of God, and rebuſeth them for their vnbelief and murmuring.
- Chap. II. They are commaunded not to fighte againſt Gibe, the Moabites and Ammonites. Be: When the Fryge of the Ammonites is deliuered vnto them.
- Chap. III. Of the Fryge of Baſan is ſayde the ſeate of Raſen, and the halfe ryge of Manaſſe haue their inheriſſance on this ſyde Iordane. Joſua is ordeined in Moſes ſteate.
- Chap. IIII. Where he hath rebuſed vnto them the benefites of God, he exhorteth them to kepe his commaundements, that they forget them not, freedom for ſuch as committe ſlaughter vnto them.
- Chap. V. He rebuſeth the commaundements of God vnto them againe, & exhorteth them earnestly to kepe them.
- Chap. VI. He telleth them of the ſtatutes & ordinance of God, & exhorteth them to kepe them, and to teach their children the ſame.
- Chap. VII. They are commaunded when they come in the lode of Canaan to make no frendſhippe nor to kepe company with the people ther of, but utterly to rote them out, and not to be aſſayed of them.

The first Chapter.

1700. d

These are the wordes that Moses spake vnto all Israel on the other syde Iordane in the wilderness, in the plaine side, toward the reed sea, betwene Paran, Thophel, Liban, Hazeroth, and Diabab, eleven daies journey from Horeb, by the waye of mount Seir vnto Cades Bernea. And it fortuned the first yare, that Moses spake vnto the children of Israel according vnto all as the LORDE commaunded him, after he had saynten Siphon the kynge of the Amozites which dwelt at Heshbon, and Og the kynge of Basan, that dwelt at Ashtaroth, and at Ediel.

On the other syde Iordane in the lande of the Moabites, begarne Moses to declare this same, and sayde: The LORDE of God spake vnto vs vpon mount Horeb, and sayde: Ye haue bene longe yough vpon this mountayne, turne you, and departed hence, that ye maye come to the mountaynes of the Amozites, and to all their neighbours in the felde, vpon mountaynes, and in the valleyes toward the South, and toward the sea syde, of the lande of Canaan: and to mount Libanus, and vnto the greates water Euphrates.

Beholde, I haue deliuered you the lande, go in, and take it in possession, which the LORDE swore vnto yo fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, that he wolde geue it vnto the, and their seed after them.

1702. d. c

Then saide I vnto you at the same tyme: I am not able to beare you myselfe alone, for the LORDE youre God hath increased you, so that this daye ye are as a flocke of heauen in multitude. The LORDE of God of yo fathers make you yet many thousande tymes mo, and blesse you, as he hath promysed you. Where can I alone beare so chee chard ce, charge, and styffe amonge you: pteoyde he men of wysdomme and vnderstonde, such as are knowen amonge youre trybes, the which I see to be heade vnto you.

Then answered ye me, and sayde: It is a good charge, that thou sayest thou wilt do. Therfore I y heade of youre trybes, my se and famous me, and set them ouer you to be heade, ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftye and ouer ten: and ouer all amonge youre trybes.

And I charged youre iudges at the same tyme, and sayde: Heare youre diuice, and iudge righteously betwene euery man and his brother, and the stranger. Ye shall knowe no persone in iudgment, but shall beare the small as well as the greates, and be a frayd of no man: for the Judgment is Gods. But if any cause be to harde for you, let it be brought vnto me, and I maye beare it. Thus commaunded I you: at the same tyme, all ye shulde doo.

Then departed we from Horeb, and wente thow the whole wilderness (which is greates and terrible as ye haue seen) by the waye to the mountaynes of the Amozites, as the LORDE oure God commaunded vs, and came vnto Cades Bernea. Then sayde I vnto you: Ye are come to the mountaynes of the Amozites, which the LORDE of God shal geue vs. Beholde, there the lande befoe the, which the LORDE chy God hath geue vnto the: Go vp, and conquire it, as the LORDE of God of chy fathers hath sayde vnto the: feare not, and be not discouraged.

Then came ye all vnto me, and sayde: As thou sende men befoe vs, to spye vs out the lande, and to bringe vs wordes agayne, by what waye we shal go vp, and to what ciuities we shal come. That pleased me well, and I tole euolue men from amonge you, of euery trybe one. Which when they were departed, and wente vp to the countrey, and came to the ryuer Escol, they spyed it out, and toke of the frute of the lande with the, and broughte it downe vnto us, and broughte vs wordes agayne, and sayde: It is a good lande, that the LORDE oure God hath geue vs.

But ye wolde not go vp, and were disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE youre God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: Because the LORDE hateth vs, therefore hath he broughte vs out of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs into the handes of the Amozites, to destroye vs. Whither shal we go vp: Our brethren haue discouraged agere heres, & saide: The people is greater & of her stature the we, & cities are greater, & would come up to heauen. Moreover we haue sene there the children of Enatim.

¶ But I sayde vnto you: Feare not, and be not afrayed of them: for the LORDE youre God goeth before you, and shall fighte for you, like as he dealeth with you in Egypce before youre eyes, and in the wyldernesse: where he chon sarnest, that the LORDE thy God bareche (euen as a man beareth his sonne) thow out all the waye that ye haue walked, tyll ye came to this place. And yet for all this ye haue not belened one the LORDE youre God, which wenes before you, to searche you out a place, where ye shulde pitch youre tentes: by nyght in the fyre (to shewe you the waye, wherein ye shulde go) & on the daye tyme in the cloude.

¶ Whan the LORDE y herde & voyce of yb wodre, he was wroth, and saide: There shall none of this euell generatione that good londe, & hich I swaue to geue vnto youre fathers, receyue. I called the same of Iephus, he shall se it. And vnto him wys I geue the londe that he hath trodded vpon, & to his children, because he hath perfectly folowed the LORDE.

¶ The LORDE was angrie w me also for youre sakes, and sayde: Thou also shalt not go in thither. But Iofua & some of Hun, which stonde by before the, he shall go in thither: Coorage him, for he shall deuyde the inheritance out vnto Jisraell. And youre childre, of whiche ye sayde they shulde be a praye, and youre sottes which this daie vnderstonde nether good ner bad, they shall go in thither, vnto them wil I geue it, and they shall enioy it. But as for you, turne you, and take youre iourney to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the reed see.

¶ Then answered ye, & sayde vnto me: We haue sinned agaynst the LORDE, we wil go vp, and fighte, & codyngere to all that the LORDE hath commaunded vs. Now whan ye had prepared yf selues, euery one in his harness, & were at the poynte to go vp to the mountaynes, the LORDE sayde vnto me: Speake vnto them, yf they go not vp, & that they fighte not for I am not amonge you that ye be not smytten before youre enemies. Whan I tolde you this, ye wolde not heare, & were disobedient vnto the worde of the LORDE, and were presumptuous, and wente up to the mountaynes. Then the Amozites that dwelt vpon the mountaynes, came out agaynst you, and chased you, as Beas do, and smote you at Seir, euen vnto Homs. Now whan ye came againe, and wepte before the LORDE, he wolde not heare youre voyce, and enclaynd not his eares vnto you. So ye abode in Cabes a longe season.

The ii. Chapter.

¶ Then turned we vs, and toke our iourney to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the reed see (as the LORDE I sayde vnto me) and compassed mount Seir alongs season. And the LORDE saide vnto me: Ye haue compassed this mounte ye now lge trowth, turne you Northward, and commaunde the people, and saye: Ye shall go thow & castles of youre brethren the children of Esau, which dwell at Seir: they shall be a staye of you. But take diligence heere to youre selues, that ye prouoke them not: for I wyl not geue you one foot breche of their londe. For mount Seir haue I geuen to the children of Esau to possesse. Ye shall by meate of them for meate, that ye maye eate. And water shall ye bye of them for money, that ye maye drynke. For the LORDE thy God hath blessed the in all the workes of thy handes. He hath considered thy iourneys, he knoweth this greue wyldernesse: and this foure yeares hath the LORDE thy God bene with the, so that thou hast roamed nothinge.

¶ Now whan we were departed from our brethren the children of Esau, that dwelt vpon mount Seir, by the waye of the feide from Elath & Azeon gaber, we turned vs, & wente by the waye of the wyldernesse of the Moabites. Then sayde the LORDE vnto me: Thou shalt not vexe the Moabites, ner prouokest vnto batayll, for I wil not geue the of their londe to possesse. For I haue I geuen vnto the children of Lot in possession. The Emims dwelt there before tyme, which were a greute stronge people, & hie of stature, as the Enatims: and were taken for giants, like as the Enatims. And the Moabites called them Emims. The Horites also dwelt in Seir afore tyme, & the children of Esau dr oue them out, and destroyed them before them, & dwelt in their stead: like as Jisraell dyt in the lode of his possession, that the LORDE gaue them.

¶ Get you vp now, & go ouer the ryuer Sared. And we wente ouer. The tyme that we were goinge frō Cabes Darna, tyll we came ouer the ryuer Sared, was eight & thretye yeares: tyll all the men of warre were wasted out of the hooffe, as the LORDE swaue vnto them. The hande of the LORDE also was agaynst them, to destroye the out of the hoost, yll they were consumed.

And when all the men of warre were consumed, so þ they were dead amonge the people, the LORDE spake vnto me, and sayde: This daie shalt thou go to the coast of þ Moabites by Ar, & spake comy vnto þ children of Ammon, whom thou shalt not weare nor provoke. For I wyll not geue the of the lode of the childre of Ammon to possesse, for I haue geue it vnto the childre of Leui in possession. It was take for a lode of giuanes also, & giuanes dwelt therein a fore tyme. And þ Ammonites calleth Samsumims, which was a people that was greate, many, and of hye stature, as the Enakims.

D And thes þ LORDE destroyed before the, and let them possesse the same, so that they dwelt in their strede. * Like as he byd with the childre of Israhel which dwell vpo mount Seir, whan he destroyed the houses before them: and let them possesse the same, so that they haue dwelt in their strede vnto this daie. And the Caphtorims came out of Caphtor, and destroyed þ Amims (þ dwelt at Esaraim euen vnto Gaza) & there dwelt they in their strede.

Get you vp now, and departe, and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, I haue geueð Sion þ kynge of the Amouites at Hesbon in to thy hande: go to and conquere, and p'ouoke him vnto battayll. This daie wyll I begynne, so that all nacions vnder all the heaues, shal feare & d'ade þ: In so much þ whā they heare of the, they shal tremble and quake for thy commynge.

E Then sine I messengers from þ wylder nest of the East vnto Sion the kynge at Hesbon - wh peacable wordes, and caused to saye vnto him: I wil go but thotow þ lode, I wil go a longe by the hye waye, I wil neither turne to the righte haue ner to þ left. Thon shalt sell me meate for money, that I maye eate: & water shalt thou sell me for money, that I maye drinke. Onely let me go the row by sear, as the childre of Israhel (which dwell at Seir) byd vnto me: and the Moabites that dwell at Ar: vntyl I be come ouer Iordane, in to the londe which the LORDE oure God shal geue vnto vs.

But Sion the kynge at Hesbon wolde not let vs go by him: for the LORDE þ God hardened his mynde, & made his heert tough that he myghte deliuer him in to thy hande, as it is come to pass this daie.

And þ LORDE sayde vnto me: Beholde, I haue begonne to deliuer Sion with his londe before the: go to and esquire, and posseß his lode. And Sion came out w all his people to fight agaynst vs at Jahaz. But the LORDE oure God deliuered him in to oure hande, so that we smote him with his children and all his people.

Then toke we all his cities at the samy tyme, and destroyed vterly all the cities, men, women, and children, and let none remayne save the cattell, which we caught to oure sitenes, & the spoyle of the cities that we wanne from Arzer, which lyeth vpon the ryuer syde of Arnon, and from the cite on the ryuer vnto Gilead. There was no cite that coulde defende it selfe from vs: the LORDE oure God deliuered vs all before vs. * But vnto the londe of the childre of Ammon thou camst not, ner to all that was on the ryuer Jabel, ner to þ cities vpo þ mountanes, ner vnto whar so euer the LORDE oure God forbad vs.

The iii. Chapter.

A Lto we turned vs, & wente vp þ moor vnto Basan. And Og þ kynge of Basan, came out w all his people to fight agaynst vs at Edrai. But the LORDE sayde vnto me: Be not afrayed of him, for I haue deliuered him & all his people w his londe in to thy hande: & thou shalt do w him, as thou wydest w Sion kynge of þ Amouites, which dwelt at Hesbon. Thus þ LORDE oure God deliuered Og þ kynge of Basan in to oure hande also with all his people: so that we smote him, yll there was nothinge left ouer vnto him.

Then toame we at the same tyme all his cities, & there was not one cite that we cotte ner from him, euen this score cities, the whole region of Argob in the kyngdome of Og at Basan. All these cities were stronge, w hye walles, gaces, and barres, before many other unwalled townes.

And we vterly destroyed them, as we byd with Sion the kynge at Hesbon. * All the cities destroyed we vterly, and the men, women, and children. But all the cattell and spoyle of the cities caughte we for oure sitenes.

Thus toke we at the same tyme the londe out of the hande of the two kynges of the Amouites beyonde Iordane, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which the Sidons call Sirion, but the Amouites call it Semir: all the cities vpon the playne, and all Gilead, and all Basan vnto Salcha and Edrei, the cities of the kyngdome of Og at Basan. For onely Og the kynge of Basan remayned ouer of the giuanes. * Beholde be, his non bed is here at Rabath amonge the children of Ammon, nyne cubites longe, and four cubites brode, afeer the cubite of a man.

This londe conquered we at the same tyme, from Aroer that lyeth on the ryuer of Ar non. And vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites I gave halfe mount Gilead with the cities therof: but the remnant of Gilead, & all Basan at the myddes of the ryuer is the border of the children of Ammon: the silde also, and Iordane, which is the coaste) from Cisareth vnto the see in the silde, namely, the Galt se vnder mount Pisga, & eastward.

Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coastes of Gessuri and Maachazi, and Basan called he Hanoth Jair after his awne name, vnto this day: But vnto Machir I gave Gilead, and vnto the Rubenites and Gadites I gave one parte of Gilead vnto the ryuer of Ammon at the myddes of the ryuer is the border of the children of Ammon: the silde
also, and Iordane, which is the coaste) from Cisareth vnto the see in the silde, namely, the Galt se vnder mount Pisga, & eastward.

And I commaunded you as the same tyme, and I sayde: The LORDE youre God hath given you this londe to take possession of it, So youre waye forth therfore harnessed be five yere burthen the children of Israel, all ye that be mete for the warre. As for youre wyes, and children and cattell (for I knowe that ye haue much cattell) let them remayne in youre cities, which I haue given you, vnto the LORDE youre God haue broughte ye burthen to rest also as well as you, that they also maye take possession of the londe, which the LORDE youre God shal geue the beyonde Iordane: and then shal ye come a-gayne to youre awne possession, which I haue geuen you.

And I named Iosua at the same tyme, and I sayde: Thine eyes haue seene all that the LORDE youre God hath done vnto these two kynges: canst thou speake? The LORDE do also vnto all the kyngdomes whither thou goest, feare them not, for the LORDE youre God shal fighte for you.

And I broughte the LORDE at the same tyme, & I sayde: O LORDE LORDE, thou hast become to shame vs: I seruante thy greatnesse and thy mightie hande. For where is there a God in heauen & earth, that can do after thy wordes and after thy power: O let me go & let the good londe beyonde Iordane, & goodly byc countre, and Libanus,

But the LORDE was angry with me for yours sake, and wolde not heare me, but I be vnto me: Be content, speake nomore of this matter. Get the vp to the toppe of mount Pisga, and lifte vp thine eyes comarde the west, and comarde the north, and comarde the south, and comarde the east: and beholde it with thine eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Iordane. And geue Iosua his charge, and courage him, and bolde him, for he shal go ouer Iordane before the people, and shal drayne vnto them the londe, that thou shalt see. And so we abode in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Peor.

The iii. Chapter.

And now hearken Iosua vnto the ordinances and lawes, which I teach you that ye do them, & ye maye lyue, and come in, & take possession of the londe, which the LORDE God of ys fathers geueth vnto you. Ye shal put nothinge vnto the worde which I commaunde you, neither do oughte there from, that ye maye kepe the commaunde mentes of the LORDE yours God, which I commaunde you. Your eyes haue seene what the LORDE hath done vnto Basan: all them that walked after Basan Peor, hath the LORDE thy God destroyed from amonge you. But yet that cleue vnto the LORDE ys God, are all alike vnto this day. Beholde I haue taughte you ordinaunces and lawes, for as the LORDE my God commaunded me, that ye shalde do eue so in the londe, vnto the which ye shal come,
to possesse it.

Kepe them now therfore and do them:
for that is youre wysdome and vnderstonde in the sighte of all nacions, which when they haue herde all these ordinaunces, shall saye: What a wise and vnderstonde folke is this: and how excellent a people: for where is there so excellent a nacion, that hath goddes to nye him, as the LORDE our God is nye vnto vs, as oft as we call vpon him: And where is there so excellent a nacion, that hath so righteous ordinaunces and lawes, as all this lawe which I saye be fore you this daye.

Take heede to thy selfe now, and kepe well thy soule, that thou forgett not the thinges which thine eyes haue seene, and that they be parte not out of thy heart
all the dayes of thy life.
And thou shalt teach them thy children
and thy childrens children, the daye whiche thou shaldest before the LORDE thy God by mount Sion, when the LORDE saye vnto me: Gather me the people together,

that I maye make them heare my wordes, which they shal heare, that they maye frame that they also maye teach their children.

And ye came nye, ⁊ stode vnder ⁊ mount.
But the mount burne euen vnto the myddes of heauen, and there was darke nesse, cloudes, and myst. And ⁊ LORDE spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre. The voyce of his wordes ys herbe, neuertheless ye saue no ymage, but hearde the voyce onely. ⁊ And he be clared vnto you his couenaunt, which he comaunded you to do, namely, the ten verses, and wrote them vpon two tables of stone.
And the LORDE commaunded me at the same tyme, to teach you ordinances ⁊ lawes that ye mighte do ther a fter in the londe, in to the which ye go to possesse it.

C Take well youre soules therfore, for ye saue no maner of ymage, in the daye whā the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon mount syon, ⁊ that ye destroye not youre sel-ues, and make you any ymage, that is like a man, or woman, or best vpon earth, or fether-red soule vnder the heauen, or woime vpon the grounde, or fysh in the water vnder ⁊ earth: ⁊ thou liest not vpon thine eyes towarde heauen, and se the Some and the Moone, ⁊ the starres, and the whole host of heaue, and be wiscaued, and woishippe, and serue them: which the LORDE ⁊ God hath made to serue all nacions vnder ⁊ whole heaue.

But you hath the LORDE taken, and broughte you out of the yon foynace, namely, out of Egipte, that ye shulde be the people of his enheritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. And the LORDE was angrie with me for youre sakes, so that he sware, ⁊ I shulde not go ouer Iordane, ner come in to that good londe, which the LORDE thy God shall geue the to enheritaunce. As for me, I must dye in this londe, and shal not go ouer Iordane: But ye shal go ouer, and shall haue that good lōde in possession.

D Take hede therfore vnto youre selues, that ye forget not the couenaunt of the LORDE youre God, and that ye make no ymages of any maner of fashion, as the LORDE thy God hath commaunded, for the LORDE thy God is a consuming fyre and a gelous God.

If whā ye haue begotten children, and children children, and haue dwelt in the lōde, ye marrie youre selues, ⁊ make you ymages of any maner of fashion, and do euill in the sighte of ⁊ LORDE youre God, to prouoke him: I call heauen and earth to recorde be ouer you this daie, that ye shall shortly rise fro the londe, in to ⁊ which ye go ouer Iordane to possesse it. Ye shal not dwell longe therein, but shall verryly be destroyed. And ⁊ LORDE shal scatter you amonge ⁊ nacions, ⁊ ye shall be left a small people amonge ⁊ theyen, wherher the LORDE shall bringe you. There shal ye serue goddes, which are ⁊ workes of mans handes, euen wood ⁊ stone, which neither se ner heare, ner care ner smell.

But yf thou seke the LORDE ⁊ God then thou shalt finde him, yee yf thou seke him ⁊ thy whole hert and with all ⁊ soule. Whā thou shalt be strally troubled, ⁊ whā all the se thynges shal come vps the in ⁊ latter daye e, then shalt thou turne agayne to ⁊ LORD E thy God, and be obediēt vnto his voyce, for ⁊ LORDE ⁊ God is a mercifull God, he shal not forsake the, ner bestowe the: ner shal he forget the couenaunt which thy fathers, which he sware vnto them.

For a fter the tymes past, which haue bene before the, sūe the daie ⁊ God created man vpon earth, fram one ende of the heauē vnto the other, wherher there was euer any soch greates thinge done, or eny foche like be, that a people hath herde ⁊ voyce of God speake out of the fyre (as thou hast herde) ⁊ ye liued. Wherher God assaid to go to me vnto him a people out of ⁊ myddes of a nacion, theow rations, theow edmū, thow wonders, thow warre, ⁊ thow mightie hande, ⁊ thow a stretcht out arme, and thow greates wises, acoringness to all as the LORDE youre God hath done with you in Egipte be fore thine eyes.

Thou hast sene it, ⁊ thou mightest sene that the LORDE is God, and that there is no ne other but he onely. Out of heauen make he the to heare his voyce, that he mighte be toure the: and vpon earth he sheweth the his greates feare, ⁊ out of ⁊ fyre thou herdest his wordes: because he leued ⁊ fathers, ⁊ doth their sibe a fter the. And he brought ⁊ out of his presence thow his mightie power out of Egipte, to dryue out (before the) nacions greater and mightier then thou, and to bryn-ge ⁊ in, ⁊ he mighte geue the their lōde to en-heritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye.

Therfore shal thou sūe this daye, ⁊ turne it into thine herte, ⁊ that the LORDE is God above in heauen, and bench vpon earth, and that there is no mo. As the his nauence therfore and commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daie, the shal it go well w the and thy children a fter the,
so that thy life shal longe endure in ⁊ lōde.

 the) that the wraich of the LORDE thy God wate not wher he cometh, and destroye the
 from the earth.

¶ Ye shal not tempte ¶ LORDE youre God, as ye tempted him at Massa: but kepe the witnesses, ordinaūces and lawes, that the LORDE oure God hath cōmānded you?

 Then shalt thou saye vnto thy some: We were pharaos bondmen in Egypce, and the LORDE brought vs out of Egypce with a mightie hande, and the LORDE did greates 2 euill tokens 2 wonders in Egypce vnto pharao and all his house before oure eyes, and brought vs from thence, to bringe vs in and to geue vs y^e lōde, that he swate vnto our fathers. And therfore hath the LORDE cō-mānded vs to do a comynge vnto all thesē ordinaūces, that we might feare the LORDE oure God, that we might prospere all the dayes of oure life, as it is cometo passe this daie. And it shall be righteouines vnto vs before the LORDE oure God, yf we kepe and do all these cōmāndementes, as he hath cōmānded vs.

The Vi. Chapter.

¶ Now ¶ LORDE y^e God bringeth the in to y^e lōde wher in to thou shalt come to possessē it, 2 reueth our nations before the: the Hethites, Gergonites, Amorites, Cananites, pherisites, Hittites, and Jebusites, seue nations which are greand mightier then thou: and what the LORD E thy God deliuereth the before 3 thou mayest smite them, thou shalt vt-rily deſtroye them, for that thou make no conuaunt with them, nor ſhewe them fauour, and ſhalt make no maria ges with them:

 ye ſhall not geue your daughters vnto their ſonnes, ne take their daughters vnto your ſonnes. For they will make your ſon-nes departe frome, to ſerue ſtraunge god-des: then ſhall the wrath of the LORD E waite vpon you, and deſtroye you ſhortly.

2 But thus ſhal ye do with them: Ye ſhal overthrowe their altars, brake downe their pillars, cut downe their groves, 2 burne their images with fyre. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORD E thy God. The heath the LORD E thy God choiſe, that thou ſhal-deſt be his awne peculiar people, from among all nations that are vpon the earth.

3 It was not becauſe of the multitude of you about all nations, that 3 LORD E had laſt vnto you and choſe you. For ye were the leſt amonge all nations: but becauſe he loued you, and that he mighte kepe the oath, which he ſware vnto your fathers, he broughte you out with a mighty haue, and deliuered you fro the houſe of bondage, out of the bande of Pharao kynge of Egypte.

Thou ſhalt vnderſtode now therefore, that the LORD E thy God is a mighty and true God, which kepeth couenaunt and mercy vnto them that loue him, and kepe his co-mmaundementes, euen thoro' our a thouſande generacions: And remembreth them that hate him, beſore his face, that he maye deſtroye them: and wyl not be longe in carie-ge to remembre them beſore his face: that he be him. As ye now therefore the commaunde-mentes, and ordinances and lawes, which 3 commaunde the this daye, that thou do thereafter.

4 And yf ye ſhall heare theſe lawes and ke-pe them, and do thereafter, then ſhal the LORD E thy God alſo kepe the couenaunt and mercy with the, which he ſware vnto thy fathers: and ſhal loue the, bleſſe the, and multiplie the: he ſhal bleſſe the fruite of 3 wombe, and the fruite of thy londe, thy come, wy-ne and oyle, the fruite of thy fyne, and the fruite of thy ſtepe, in the londe that he ſwa-re vnto 3 fathers to geue the. Blessed ſhalt thou be aboue all nations, there ſhal no vnſtrafull perſonne vnto the, ner amonge thy cattell. The LORD E ſhall put from the all manner of vyſeite, and ſhal bringe vpon the none of 3 euill ſictneſſes of Egypte, which thou haſt ſene, but ſhall put them vpon all thoſe that hate the.

Thou ſhalt bringe to noughte all the nations, which the LORD E thy God ſhal deli-uer the. Thine eye ſhall not ſpare them, and their goodes ſhalt thou not ſerue, for thou ſhalt be thy decaye. If thou ſhalt ſaye in thy heart: Theſe nations are mo then 3, how can I bringe them out: feare them not. Remember what the LORD E thy God did vnto Pharao and to all the Egyptians, thoro' greate remeacons (whiche thou haſt ſene with thine eye) thoro' colde and woder, thoro' a myghe bande and a ſtreched out arme, wherewith the LORD E thy God broughte the out. Euen ſo ſhall the LORD E thy God do vnto all 3 nations of whiche thou art aſtrayd.

The LORD E thy God alſo ſhal ſente hermes amonge them, vntill they that remayne and hyde them ſelues from the, be deſtroyed.
 Be not thou aſtrayd of them: for the LORD E thy God is in the myddes of the, ven the myghtie and fearfull God. He (euen the LORD E thy God) ſhall rote out the names before the by lide and liſte. Thou canſt not conſu-me them at one tyme, 3 the beſtes of the increaſt not vpon the. The LORD E thy God ſhall deliuer them beſore the, and ſhall ſmite them with a greace ſlaughter, till they be deſtroyed. And he ſhal deliuer their kynges in to thine haue, and thou ſhalt deſtroye their names from vnder heauen. There ſhal no man make the reſiſtance beſore the, vntyll thou haue deſtroyed them.

The images of their goddes ſhalt thou burne with fyre, 2 ſhalt not deſire the ſyluer or golde that is on them: or to take it vnto the, that thou ſnare not thy ſilſcherin: it is abhominacion vnto the LORD E thy God.
 Therefore ſhalt thou not bringe the abhominacion in to thine houſe, 3 thou be not dan-ned as it is, but ſhalt vextly deſte it, and abhorre it, for it is banned.

The VIII. Chapter.
1 All the commaundementes which 3 commaunde 3 this daye, ſhal ye kepe, ſo 3 ye do thereafter, that ye maye incre and multiplye, and come in, and take poſſeſſion of the land, which 3 LORD E ſware vs to your fathers: and thynke vpon all 3 manner that the which the LORD E thy God hath led the this ſorty yeares in the wylderneſſe, that he mighte chaſtne the, and ponne the,
 to wete what waye were in thine heart, whether thou woldſt kepe his commaundemes

D My power and the mighte of myne arme have done all this good: But that thou thinke upon the LORDE thy God, for it is he, which giveth the power to create strength, that he maye performe the covenant, which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is come to passe this daye.

Deut. 4.1
But yf thou shalt forget the LORDE thy God, and felowe other goddes, and serue them, and worship the, I testifye over you this daye, that ye shall utterly perish. Then as the heychen whom y LORDE destroyed before youre face, so shall ye perish also, because ye are not obedient unto the wordes of the LORDE your God.

The X. Chapter.
Gare W Israel, This date shall thou go over Jordan, that thou mayest me in to conquer the nations, which are greater and mightier then thou, grim cities, walled up unto heauen, a greete people and of an hye stature, namely the childe of Enakim, whom thou hast knowen, and of whom thou hast herde saye: Who is able to stande agaynst the chyliden of Enakim: Therefore shall thou knowe this daye, that the LORDE y God goeth before the, and shall smyte fyre. He shall destroy the, and shall subdue them before the, and shall drive them out, & thou shalt bringe the to manasse, as the LORDE hath promysed the.

Now when the LORDE thy God hath expelled them out before the, saye now thou in thine heart: The LORDE hath brought me in to take possession of this londe for myne awne righteousnes sake, where as y LORDE yett ysareth out the heychen before the, in cause of thyr ungodlynes.

For thou comest not in to take the in possession, for thine awne righteousnes sake, and because of thy righte here: but the LORDE dryveth out the heychen, for thyr awne ungodlynes sake, and that he maye performe the wordes, which the LORDE hath sworne unto y fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Understonde now therefore, that the LORDE y God greeteth not the in londe to possess the, for thine awne righteousnes sake. For thou art a stiffnecked people.

Remember and forgett not how thou displeasest the LORDE thy God in the wilderness: Since y daye that thou departedst out of the londe of Egypte, till ye came into this place, have ye bene disobedient unto the LORDE.

For in Horeb ye angered the LORDE, & that of which he wolde have destroyed you, when y was gone up to y mount, to receive the tables of stons, namely the tables of the covenant: which the LORDE made w you, and y abode fortye dayes & fortye nightes upon the mount, and ate no bread, & dranke no water: and the LORDE gaue me y two tables of stone, wyrtten with the finger of God, and in them was according to all the wordes, which the LORDE sayde unto you upon the mount out of the fyre, in the daye of the gathering together.

C And after the forty dayes and fortye nighes, ¶ LORDE gave me ¶ two tables of stene, namely ¶ tables of the covenant, and sayde unto me: up, & get ¶ downe quyet ly from hence, for thy people whom thou broughtest out of Egiptee, have marred the statutes, they are soone gone out of the waye, which I commaunded them, and have made them a molten ymage.

And the LORDE saide vnto me: ¶ I se this people, that it is a stiffnecked people: let me alone, that I maye destroye them, and put out their name from vnder heauen. ¶ I wyl make of the people a people mightier and greater thā this is.

And as I turned me, & wente downe frō the mount which biare thē fyre, & had ¶ two tables of the covenant in both my handes, ¶ I leied, & beholde, ye had synned agaynst ¶ LORDE yo^r God, whē ¶ ye had made you a molten calfe, & were soone turned out of ¶ waie which the LORDE had commaunded you.
Then toke I the two tables, & cast them one of both my handes, & brake thē before you-re eyes, & I fell before the LORDE (even as at the first tyme) fortye dayes & fortye nigh-tes, & neither ate I bread, ner drinke water, because of all youre synnes which ye had synned, whan ye dyd such euill in the sightes of the LORDE, to proude him vnto wrath. For I was afrayed of the wrath and indignation, wherewith the LORDE was angry wth you, cuntyd haue destroyed you. And the LORDE herde me at that tyme also.

Moreover the LORDE was very angry wth Aaron, so that he wolde haue destroyed him, but I made intercession for Aaron also at same tyme. As for youre synne (namely, the calfe that ye had made) I roke it, and burnt it with the fyre, and smote it in a sundry, & re-yned it in peeces, rosen vnto dust, and cast the dust in to the brote that descended from the mount.

Re displeasid the LORDE also, at Tabe-ra, & at Massa, & at the lustgrace, & whā he sent you from Cabes Barnea, and sayde: Go up, and conquire the londe which I haue geden you. And ye were dyd betwix vnto the mouth of the LORDE you re God, and belreud noe on him, and herdened noe vnto his voyce: for ye haue bene disobedient vnto the LORDE, as long as I haue knowen you.

The first I before of LORDE fortye dayes and fortye nighes, which I lay there. For ¶ LORDE sayde, he wolde destroye you. But

I made intercession: vnto the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE LORDE, destroye not ¶ people and thine inheritance, which thou cho-sest from thy greates power haue deliuered, and broughte out of Egiptee with a mighty hande. Remember thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. LORDE was not upon the stub-bornesse, and vngodlynesse and synne of this people (that the lende wherof thou haue broughte vs, saye noe: The LORDE was not able to bringe them in so the lende, that he promysed them, and because he hated them, therfore had he broughte them out, to destroie the in the wilderness: for they are thy people & thine inheritance, which thou haue broughte out wth thy greates power, and with thy stretched out arme.

The X. Chapter.

At the same tyme sayde the LORDE vnto me: ¶ How ¶ two tables of stene like vnto the first, and come up vnto me in to the mount, and make ¶ an Arke of wood, and in the tables I wyl wyte the wordes, that were in the first, which thou biarest, and thou shalt laye them in the Arke. So I made an Arke of fyre tre, and bowed two tables of stene like as the first were: & wente up into the mount, and ¶ two tables were in my hande.

Then wrote he in ¶ tables (accordinge as the first wytyng was) thēen wordes, which the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon the mountayne, at the tyme of the ga-theringe together. And the LORDE gaue thē vnto me. And I turned me, & wente downe from the mount, and layed the tables in the Arke which I had made, that they mighte rated out the trybe of Leuico to beare the Arke of the LORDES covenant, and to stonde before the LORDE, as mynister vnto him, and to praye his name vnto this daye. Therfore shal the Leuices haue no portion nor inheritance with their brethren: for the LOR-DE is their inheritance, as the LORDE thy God hath promysed them.

But I carried vnto the mount (like as aforetyen) fortye dayes and fortye nighes, and the LORDE herde me at that tyme also, and wolde not destroye the. But he sayde vnto me: Up, & get thee forth, & thou mayest go before the people, & they may come in, and conquer the land, which I swear unto their fathers to give them.

C Now Israel, what requyrest thou of the LORD thy God of thee, but & thou feare the LORD thy God, and shalt thou walke in all his wayes, & loue him, & serue the LORD thy God with all thy heart, & with all thy soule: and & thou kepe the commandmentes of the LORD, & his ordinances, which I commaunde thee this daye, & thou mayest prosper: Beholde, the heauen & the heauen of all heaues and the earth, and all & is therein, is the LORD thy God. Next hath he had a pleasure unto & fathers, to loue thee: and hath chosen their side after thee, namely you, above all nations, as it is come to passe this daye.

D Circumcise therfore & foregynne of yb here, & be named stiffnecked. For the LORD thy God is God of all goddes, & the LORD over all lordes, a greates God, mightie & terrible, which regardeth no personne, & taketh no giftes, and doeth righte unto the fatherlesse and widowes, and loueth the stranger, to geue him sode & rayme. Therfore shalt thou a stranger, for ye youre selues also were strangers in the londe of Egypte.

E Now shalt thou serue the LORD thy God, him onely shalt thou serue, unto him shalt thou cleave, & sweare by his name. He is thy praye & & God, which hath done for & the greates & terrible thinges, & thine eyes haue sene. Thy fathers were downe into Egypte & they serued soules, but now hath the LORD thy God made thee as & starres of heauen in multitude.

The XI. Chapter.

F Therfore shalt thou loue the LORD thy God, & kepe his commandmentes, his ordinances, his lawes, & his preceptes all & life lōge. And vnderstande this daye, that which youre childen shal knowe: which haue not sene the norcours of the LORD thy God, & his greatnesse, & his mightie hande, & his stretched out arme, & his tokens and a cros which he dyd amonge the Egyptians, vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & to all his londe, & what he dyd to the power of the Egyptians, & vnto their houses & charettes, when he broughte the waters of the reed see vnto them, as they folowed after you, & how the LORD hath broughte them to naughte vnto this daye: & what he dyd vnto you in the wilderness, vntill ye came vnto this place: what he dyd vnto Dathan and Abiram the children of Eliab the sonne of Ruben, how the earth opened hir mouth and swallowed them with their householdes: & what all their good that they had in the myddes amonge all Israel.

G For youre eyes haue sene the greates workes of the LORD, which he hath done. Therfore shalt ye kepe all the commandmentes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye maye be stronge to come in, and to conquer the londe, whiche ye go to possesse it, & that ye maye lye longe in the londe, which the LORD I swear vnto youre fathers, to geue vnto them and to their side, and a londe that floweth with mylke and hony: For the londe whiche I commaunde you to possesse it, is not as the londe of Egypte, whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy side, and waterdest it as thou soe as a garden of herben but it hath hilles and valleyes, which dryeth out in the rayne of heauen, a londe that the LORD thy God careth for. And the eyes of the LORD thy God are alwaye therein from the begynnyng of the years vnto the ende.

H If ye shal heren therfore vnto my commaundementes, which I commaunde you this daye, & ye loue the LORD your God, and serue him, with all youre heart and with all youre soule: when vnto I geue rayne vnto your lōde in due season, early and late, that thou mayest gather in thy come, thy wyne and thine oyle: and I will geue grasse vnto thy feilde for thy cattell, that ye maye eat & be filled.

I But beware, & youre heart be not deceived, that ye go asyde, & serue other goddes, & worshippe them, and then the wrath of the LORD waxe wrothe vnto you, and he shal vnto the heauē, that there come no rayne, and the earth geue not hir increase, & ye perish shortly from the good lōde, which the LORD hath geuen you.

K Put vp therfore these my wordes in youre hartes and in youre soules, and bynde the for a token vpon youre handes, & they maye be a cōfyn of remembrance before your eyes and teach them youre childen, so that they call the heart of, when thou starest in thine house, or walkest by the waye: when thou lyest downe, and when thou risest up: and write them vpon the pestle of thine house, and open thy gates, that thou and thy childen maye lye longe in the londe, which the LORD I swear vnto thy fathers to geue them, as longe as the dayes of heauen endure vpon earth.

Soe ye shal kepe all these commandmentes.

mentes which I commaunde you, so that ye do them first, that ye loue the LORDE youre God, and make in all his wayes, and cleue vnto him, then shall the LORDE diue out all these nacions before you, so that ye shall equare greater and mightier nacions then ye youre selues are.

D All the places that the filles of youre feete treade vpon, shall be yours, from the wyldernes, and from mount Libanus, and from the water Euphrates vnto the uttermost sea shall your coastes be. Woman shall be able to withstand you. The LORDE youre God shall see the feare and drede of you come vpon all the landes wher in ye go, like as he hath promysed you.

B Beholde, I laye before you this daye the blessinge and the curse. The blessinge, if ye be obedient vnto the commaundementes of the LORDE youre God, which I commaunde you this daye. The curse, if ye wyl not be obedient to the commaundementes of the LORDE youre God, but turne out of the waye, which I commaunde you this daye, so that ye walke a foor ocher goddes, whom ye knowe not.

When the LORDE the God hath broughte in to the londe, whiche thou commest in to possess it, then shalt thou gene the blessinge vpon mount Gisin, and the curse vpon mount Libal, which are beyonde Jordan the waye towards the goinge downe of the Sonne, in the lode of the Canaanites, which dwell in the playne silde ouer agaynst Gilgal, beynde the Grete ouer of Stone. For ye shall go ouer Jordan, that ye maye come in to take possession of the londe, which the LORDE youre God hath geuen you, to conquire it, and to dwell therein. Take heede now therefore, that ye do accordinge vnto all the ordinances and lawes, which I laye before you this daye.

The XII. Chapter.

These are the ordinances and lawes which ye shall keepe, that ye do them first in the londe, which the LORDE God of thy fathers hath geuen thee to possess, as longe as ye lye vpon earth. Destroye all the places, wher in they whicher wher ye shall conquire, haue serued their goddes, whether it be vpo the mountaynes, vpo hilles, or amonge grene trees. And ouerthrowe their altares, and breake downe their pilers, and burne their grones with fyre, and hewe downe the ymagines of their goddes, & burne the names of them to naughte out of the same place. Ye shall not do so vnto the LOR-

DE youre God: but the place, which the LORDE youre God shall chosse out of all your trybes (that he maye let his name dwell there) shall ye see, and come thither, and thither shall ye bringe your burnt offrises, & your ocher offeringes, and your tithes and the heere offeringes of your handes, and your vices, and your fre will offeringes, and the first borne of your oxen and shepe, and there shall ye eate before the LORDE youre God, and reioyse ouer all that ye and your houses haue great with your handes, because the LORDE thy God hath blessed thee. Ye shall do none of the thinges, which ye do hete this daye, every man what sumeth him good in his owne eyes. For ye are not yett come to rest, nor so if enheritance which the LORDE thy God shall geue thee.

But ye shall go ouer Jordan, and dwell in the londe the LORDE youre God shall deuise out vnto you, & he shall gene you rest from all youre enemies rounde aboute, and ye shall dwell safe. Now when the LORDE thy God hath chossen a place, to make his name dwell there, ye shall bringe thither all the I haue commaunded you, namely, your burnt offrises, your ocher offeringes, your tithes, the heere offeringes of your handes, & all youre fre vices, which ye shall come vnto the LORDE, and there shall ye eate, and reioyse before the LORDE youre God, ye and your sonnes, and your daughters, and your seruauntes, and your maytes, and the Leuites that are within your gates, for they haue no portion nor inheritaunce with you.

Take heede vnto thy selfe, that thou offer not thy burnt offringes in what so ever place thou seyst, but in the place which the LORDE shall haue choise in one of thy trybes, there shalt thou offer thy burnt offringes, and do all that I commaunde thee. For withstandinge thou mayest lye and eate flesch within all thy gates, after all the desire of thy soule, accordinge to the blessinge of the LORDE thy God, which he hath geue thee: both the cleane and uncleane maye eate it, as of the Koe and hewe, onely the bloude shalt thou not eate, but poure it out as water vpon the earth.

But within thy gates mayest thou not eate of the eyebe of thy come, of thy wyne, of thy oyle, nor of the first borne of thine oxen and of thy shepe, or of any of thy woxes which thou hast vowed, or of thy frewill offeringes, or heere offeringes of thy handes: but before the LORDE thy God shalt thou ants them, in the place which the LORDE thy God choseth, thou z thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy seruants, thy mayde, and the floure that is within y gaine, z thou shalt deie off before y LORDE thy God, ouer all y thou puttest thine hande vnto. And beware, that thou forsake not the LORDE, as long as thou iust upon the earth.

But when the LORDE thy God shal enlarge thy border of thy londe (as he hath promysed thee) and thou saye: I wil eate flesh (for so manys as thy soule longeth to eate flesh) then eate flesh according to all the desire of thy soule. But yf the place that the LORDE thy God hath chosen (to let his name be there) be farre from thee, then kill of y oxen and of thy sheepe, which the LORDE hath geuen thee, so he hath commaunded thee, and eate it within thy gates according to all y desire of thy soule. When as a Roode there is eaten, misse it thou eate in both the cleane and uncleane eate it indifferent ly. Onely beware, that thou eate not the bloude: for the bloude is the life. Therefore shalt thou not eate the life w the flesh, but shalt poure it out like water upon the earth, y thou mayest prosper, and y children after thee, when thou hast done that which is right in the sighte of the LORDE.

But when thou haldest oughte that is thine, or makest a vowe, thou shalt rate it, and bringe it vnto the place, that the LORDE hath chosen, and do thy burthenes ynynges with the flesh and bloude upon the altare of the LORDE thy God. The bloude of thine offering shalt thou poure upon the altare of the LORDE thy God, and eate the flesh. Take heed, and heare all these wordes, which I commaunde thee, yf it maye go well with thee, and thy children after y for euer, when thou hast done y which is right and acceptable in the sighte of the LORDE thy God.

When the LORDE y God hath roced out the y children before thee, whether thou comest in to conquire them, z when thou hast conquered them, z dwelt in their londe, beware thee, y thou fall not in the snare after thee, when they are destroyed before thee: z that thou art not after their goddes, z saye: Thus as these nations have serued their goddes, so wil I do also. Thou shalt not do so vnto the LORDE thy God. For all that is abhominacion vnto the LORDE, z that he hateth, y same haue they done vnto their goddes. For they haue burnt euery their sonnes and their daughters with fyre vnto their goddes.

All that I commaunde you, shal ye kepe, that ye do hereafter. Ye shal put nothing there, ne take oughte there from.

The xliij. Chapter.

Yf there rise vp a prophet or dreamer amonge you, and geue thee a token or a wonder, and that token or wonder which he spake of, come to passe, and thou saye: Let vs go after other gooddes (whom thou knowest not) and let vs serue the: Thou shalt not hearken vnto the wordes of such a prophet or dreamer.

For y LORDE youre God proweyth you, to wete whether ye leue him with all your heart, z with all your soule. For yf shall walke after the LORDE youre God, and serue him, and kepe his commaundementes, z heken vnto his voyce, and serue him, and draw vnto him. As for that prophet or dreamer, he shall dye: because he hath spoken to turne you awaye from the LORDE youre God (which broughte you out of the londe of Egypte, and deliuered you from the house of bondage) to trust the one of the wayes, which the LORDE thy God commaunded thee to walke in, and so shalt thou put awaye the euill from thee.

If thy brother, the some of thy mother, or thine auncle some, or thy daughter, or thy wyfe in thy bosome, or thy frende which is vnto thee as thine owne soule, enuie thee secretly, and saye: Let vs go and serue other goddes (whom thou knowest not, ne yet thy father) which are amonge the nations round aboute you, whether they be nye vnto thee or farre from thee, from the one ende of the earth vnto the other: consente not vnto him, and herke not vnto him. Thine eye also shal not pryke him, and thou shalt haue no compassion vpon him, ne kepe him secrete, but shalt cause him to be slaine: thine hande shal be first vpon him, to cause him to be slaine, and then the handes of all the people. He shalbe stoned to death, because he went aboute to trust the awaye from the LORDE thy God, which broughte thee out of the londe of Egypte from the house of bondage: y all y Israel maye heare, and feare him, and be no moree loth euill amonge you.

If thou hearest in any cite which y LORDE thy God hath geue thee to dwell in, that it is sayde: There are certayne men, the children of Belial, gone out from amonge you, and haue disceined the inhabitants of that cite, and sayde: let vs go, and serue other goddes, whom ye knowe not. Then shalt thou sitte, make search, and enquire diligently.

And if it be founde of a troeth, that it is so in dede, I such abhominacion is wrought amonge you, then shalt thou stryke the inhabitants of the same cite and their cattell, with the edge of the sword, and damne the cite with all that is therein: and all the spoyle thereof shalt thou gather together in the myddes of the streetes of it, and burne with fyre, both the cite and all the spoyle thereof together vnto the LORDE I God, that it maye lye vpon a heape for ever, and neuer be buyded eny moie. And let nothin ge of the damned thinge cleue vnto thy han-de, that the LORDE maye be turned from the indignacion of his wrath, and graunte the mercy, and haue compassion on the, and multiplye the (as he hath swome vnto thy fathers) because thou hast hurtened vnto I wyer of the LORDE thy God, so kepe all his commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daye, so that thou dost the thinge which is righte in the sighte of the LOR-DE thy God.

The XIII. Chapter.

THESE are the children of the LORDE you re God, Let not your eyes cherefore, I make you no baldnesse betwene you eyes ouer eny deed. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORDE thy God. And the LORDE hath chosen the to be his awne peculiar people, from amonge all the nacions that are vpon the earth.

Thou shalt eate no abhominacion, These are the bestes which ye shall eate: Oxen, Sheepe, Goatses, here, Koo, Bugle, wyloe goatse, Unicorne, Oryen, and Camelson. And eue-ry best that decayeth his clawe, and chemech cudd, shall ye eate. Yet eartheles this shall ye not eate of them that cheme cudd, and deuybe nor the hoffs in co two clawes: The Camell, the hayre, the conye, for though they cheme cudd, yet deuyde they nor the hoffs, therefore shall they be vncleane vnto you. The swyne, though he be vnde the hoffs, yet cheme ch he not cudd, he shall be vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesch of the,
 and their deed carcases shall ye not touche.

This is that ye shall eate of all that is in the waters: All that hath fyimes and scales, shall ye eate. But what so ever hath no fyimes nor scales, that shall ye not eate, for it is vncleane vnto you.

Eate of all cleane foules. But these are they wherof ye shall not eate: The Eagle, I Goshawe, the Commaunce, the Trion, the Valur, the A yetz with his fynde, and all Rauens in their fynde, the Elstriche, the Tlighte crowe, the Cocome, the Sparow hauke with his fynde, the helle Oule, the Grante Oule, Ducke, the Byrute, the Swaine, the Pellicane, the Pye, the Stouer, the heron, the Jaye with his fynde, the Lapwing, I Swalewe: And all foules I crepe, shall be vncleane vnto you, and ye shall not eate them.

Ye shall eate of nothings I vnto alomes thou mayest geue it vnto I strangerer with in I gate, that he eate it, or sell it to a stranger, for thou art an holy people vnto I LOR-DE thy God. Thou shalt not seech a fydd, whyle it yet sacrefy his mother.

Thou shalt separe out the cythe all the increase of thy seve, I cometh out of I silde enery year: I shalt eate it before I LORDE I God: in I place which he doth sech, I his name may, dwell there, namely of I cythes of chy come, of thy wyne, of thy oyle, and the first borne of thine oxen, and of thy shepe, I thou mayest lerne to feare the LORDE thy God, all thy life longe.

But yet the maye be to moch for I, and the place, which I LORDE thy God hath chosen to set his name there, be to farr from the: and thou canst not carry it thar I LORDE thy God hath blessed the withall. Then ge-ue it for money, and take I money in thine han-de, and go vnto the place which the LORDE thy God hath chosen, and geue the money for all that thy soule desireth, whether it be oxen, shepe, wyne, stronge drynke, or for what so ever thy soule desireth, and eate there before the LORDE thy God, and be merry, thou and thine household, and I Lenite that is within thy gates. Thou shalt not forsake him, for he hath no porcion nor inheritaunce with the.

In the thirde year shall thou buyng forth all the riches of thine increase of the same year, and shalt laye it within thy gates. The shall the Lenite (which hath no portion nor inheritaunce with the) and I stranger, and the fatherles, and the widowe, which are within thy gates, come and eate, and fill them selues, that the LORDE thy God maye bless the in all the workes of I handes which thou doest.

The XV. Chapter.

In the sixth year shall thou make a Ire year. This is I manner of the Ire year. Who so ever I birth ought to with his hande vnto his neighbour, shall not requyre it of his neighbour, or his brother: for it is called the Ire year vnto the LORDE. Of a stranger mayest thou requyre it: but vnto him that is thy brother, shall

There shall be no begger amonge you for the LORDE shall blesse y in the lode which the LORDE y God shall geue y to wher soeuer thou shalt take it in possession, one y y thou herlt vnto the voyce of the LORDE y God, & kepe all these commaundementes which I commaunde the this daye, that thou mayest do therafter. For the LORDE y God shall blesse thee, as he hath promysed thee. The LORDE shall sende vnto many nations, & shall become of woman. Thou shalt raigne ouer many nations, & newman shall reigne ouer y.

146. 1. b When one of thy brethren is wored poore in any cite within thy londe, which y LORDE y God shall geue y, thou shalt not harden thine heere, nor withdraue thine hande from thy poore brother: but shalt open thine hande vnto him, and lende him, accordinge as he hath neede.

B Beware, that there be not a poynte of beliall in thine herte, that thou woldst saye: The sixenith yeare, the yeare of freddome is at hande. For if thou lokest not freely vpon thy poore brother, and geuest him nothinge when shall he crye ouer the vnto the LORDE, and it shall be spurne vnto thee. But thou shalt kepe him, and let it not greue thine herte that thou geuest him. For because of it, shall the LORDE thy God blesse thee in all thy workes, and in all that thou puttest thine hande vnto. The londe shall neuer be with out peope, therfore commaunde I the and saye, that thou open thine hande vnto thy brother, which is needy and poore in thy londe.

148. 11. 2 If thy brother an Hebrue or Hebrueisse be sold vnto thee, he shall serue the sixe yeare, in the sixenith yeare shalt thou let him go free. And wha thou deliuerest him free, thou shalt not let him go from the empye, but shalt geue him of thy shepe, of thy corne, and of y wyne, so that thou geue him of that, which the LORDE thy God hath blessed thee with all. And remember that thou shalt waite a seruante in the lode of Egypte, and how that the LORDE thy God deliuered thee, therfore commaunde I the this thinge to daye.

149. 1. a But if he saye vnto thee: I will not go out awaye from thee, for I lone y and thine house: (in so much as he is well at ease with thee) then take a boetye, and bove him thowm his eare to the doore, and let him be thy seruant for ever. And with thy mayde shalt thou do likewise. And let it not seme greuous vnto thee, so let him go free from thee: for he hath serued the sixe yeares as a vubble byed seruant: then shall the LORDE thy God blesse thee in all that thou doest.

All the first boone that come of thine ome and shepe, y are males, shalt thou halowe vnto the LORDE thy God. Thou shalt not plowe with the first boone of thine ope, and shalt not clyppe the first boone of thy shepe: Before the LORDE thy God shalt thou cutt the eery yeare, in the place that the LORDE thy God shall chuse, and thine heere shall be.

But if it have a deformyte, so that it is lame or bynde, or hath any other small blemish, thou shalt not offere it vnto y LORDE thy God, but shalt eate it within thine owne gates: whether thou be an Israelite or else maynten as the Jew and heere. Onlyste that thou eate not of the bloude thereof, but poure it out as water vpon the grounde.

The xvi. Chapter.

Ystrue the monthe Ahib, y thou offere the Easter vnto the LORDE y God: for in the monthe Ahib the LORDE thy God broughte y out of Egypte by night. And for the Easter vnto y LORDE thy God, thou shalt offere an z shepe, in y place which y LORDE thy God shall chuse, y his name maye dwell there. Thou shalt eate no leuened bud in y feast. Seven dayes shalt thou eate the vntuened bred of thy tribulacion. For with sevenfull haile camest thou out of the londe of Egypte, that thou mayest remembre the daye of thy departinge out of y lode of Egypte, all y life longe. In seven dayes shalt there no leuened bud be fowne within all thy coastes: & of the flesch that is offred y first daye or euen, there shall nothinge be lefte ouer night: weyll the morninge.

Thou mayest not offere the Easter z in any of thy gates, which the LORDE thy God hath chosen thee: but in the place which the LORDE thy God hath chosen, that his name maye dwell there, there shalt thou offere the Easter, at euen when the Sonne is gone downe, euen in the same season of the year: camest thou out of Egypte, and thou shalt blythe it, and eate it in the place that the LORDE thy God hath chosen, and then came the on the morrowe, & go home in thy herne. Sixe dayes shalt thou eate vntuened bud, and on the sixenith daye is the gatheringe together of the LORDE thy God. Thou shalt do no worke therein.

Seven weekes shalt thou number vnto y, and begynn to number when the syde begynneth in the corne, and thou shalt eate the feast of weekes vnto the LORDE thy God, that thou geue a freewill offeringe of thine hande, accordinge as the LORDE thy the helme, and byteth his neighbour, that he byeth) the same shal fyre in to one of these cities, that he maye yllow, lest the number of bloude folowe after the deathlyer, why he hit hit is whose, and ouertake him, why he hit was is so farre, and slaye him, where as yet no cause of death is in hi, for so much as he haue hit not in tyme passed. Therefore commaunde I the, that thou appoyntest the cities.

And when the LORDE ¶ God enlargeth thy borders, as he hath swome vnto thy fathers, & greeeth the alle the lde which he promysed thy fathers togeue (so that thou be as alle these cōmādomētes, and do ¶ I commaunde the this daye, ¶ thou lone the LORDE thy God, and walke in his wayes all ¶ his longe dayes) shal thou a dore vnto these cities vnto these cōtes, that innocēt bloude be not shed in thy londe, (which the LORDE ¶ God greeeth the to obseruaunce) and so bloude come vpon the.

¶ But yf any man haue hate agaynst his neighbour, and layeth waite for him, and rysh agaynst him, and smyteth him that he dye, and fyeth in to one of these cities, then shall the Elders of the same cite sende thither, and cause him to be fetcht from thence, and deliuer him in to the handes of the auenger of bloude, that he maye byteth him: he shal not picke him, and the gyley bloude shal: thou put a waye fro Iſrael, that thou mayest possesse.

¶ Thou shalt not remove thy neighboures mark, which they of olde tyme haue set in thine inheritance, that thou inheritest in the londe, which the LORDE thy God hath giuen the to possesse it.

¶ One witness shal not stonde vp alone agaynst a man, or any trespass or synne, what manner of synne so euer it be, ¶ a man can do, but in the mouth of two or thre witnesses shal euery man be established.

¶ Doe yf an unrighteous wytnesse stonde vp agaynst any man, to cōfesse any trespass upon him, then shall both the men that stonde together, stonde before the LORDE, before the iudges and Iudges, which shall be at the same tyme. ¶ And the iudges shall make diligent inquisition: ¶ yf the witness be founde false, and hath giuen false witness agaynst his brother, then shall ye do vnto him, man as he chough hee to do vnto his brother: that thou mayest put a waye the euill from the: that othe maye beare and feare, and take remore upon them to do such wickednes amonge you. ¶ Thine eye shall not picke him. ¶ Seale for seale, eye for eye, to the for to the, hande for hande, foot for foot.

The XX. Chapter.

¶ When thou goest out to battayll agaynst thine enemies, and fyrt thou shalt and chaunces of the people more then thou, be not a frayde of them: for the LORDE thy God which broughte ¶ out of the londe of Egipt, is with the. ¶ Now whā ye are come nye vnto the battayll, the priest shal steppe forth, ¶ speak to the people, and saye vnto the: heare Iſrael: ¶ he go this daye in to the battayll agaynst your enemies, let not yo^r heart faynt. ¶ feare not, be not a frayde, ner a darde of them. ¶ for the LORDE your God goeth with you, to fyghte for you agaynst your enemies. ¶ he maye saue you.

¶ And the captaynes shal speake to ¶ people, and saye: ¶ Who so hath buyed a new house, and hath not dedicate it, let him go, and byde in his house, that he dye not in ¶ battayll, and another dedicate it. ¶ Who so hath plantē a wyngarde, and hath not yet made it comen, let him go, and byde at home, that he dye not in the battayll, and another make it comen. ¶ Who so hath spousē a wyfe, and hath not yet broughte her home, let him go, and byde at home, ¶ he die not in the battayll, ¶ another bringe her home.

¶ And the captaynes shal speake further vnto the people, and saye: he that feareth and hath a saynt here, let him go, and byde at home, that he make: not his brethren here faime also, like as he is here in. ¶ And when the captaynes haue made an ende of speakinge vnto the people, they shall set the rulers of the host before the people in the four fronte.

¶ When thou comest nye vnto a cite to fyghte against it, thou shalt offre them peace: ¶ if they are wnto the peaceably, and open vnto the, then shal all ¶ people ¶ is founde there in, be tributaries vnto the, and serue ¶. ¶ Doe yf they wil not deale peaceably wth the, and will warre with the, then besette it: and when the LORDE thy God deliuereth it in to thy hande, thou shalt smyte alle the males that are therein, with the edge of the sword: save the women and the children. ¶ As for the cattle, and all that is in the cite, and all the spoyle, thou shalt take them vnto thy selfe, and eate the spoyle of thine enemies, which the LORDE thy God hath giuen the. ¶ Thus shalt thou do vnto alle the cities, that are very farre from the, and are not of the cities of these nations.

The XXI. Chapter.

¶ When there is one slayne founde in þ londe whiche þ LORDE þ God shall geue þ to possesse it, z lye in þ felde, z it is not knowne who hath slaine him, then shal thy Elders z iudges go forth, and meeke from the slayne vnto the cite that lye rounde aboute. Of the which cite is the nyere, þ Elders of the same shal take a yode come, which hath not bene laboured, ner hath diuided in the yode, z they shal brynge her in to a valley, where as is necher earing nor sowing, and strike of hir heade there in the valley.

Then shal the prestes þ children of Leui come forth. ¶ For the LORDE thy God hath chosen them, to serue him, and to praye his name, and at their mouth shal all ples and strykes be tryed. ¶ And all the Elders of the same cite shal come forth vnto the slayne, z washy their handes ouer þ yonge come, in þ heade is stricken of in the valley, and shal answer and saie: Our handes haue not shed this bloude, necher haue cure eyes sene it. Be mercifull (O LORDE) vnto thy people of Israel, whos thou hast deliuered. ¶ laye no innocent bloude vnto thy people of Israels charge: then shal all they be reconcyled from the bloude. Thus shalt thou put awaye the innocent bloude from the, in that thou doest the thinge whiche is righte in the sighte of þ LORDE.

¶ When thou goest forth to warre agaynst thine enemies, z the LORDE thy God deliue-reth them in to thine handes, so that thou eariest amaye their prisoners, and staffe makge the captiues a beueryfull woman, z haue a desyre vnto her to take her to thy mystryngge her home to thine house, and let her shawe hir heade, and pare hir nayles, and put of hir clothes that she was taken prisoner in, and let her sit in thine house, and moue her for hir father and mother a moneth longe after that lye with her, and mary her, and let her be thy wife. But if thou haue no fa-uoure vnto her, then shalt thou let her go whither she wyll, and not to sell her, ner make cheneuaunce of her, because thou hast dishonoured her.

¶ If a man haue two wyues, one that he loveth, and one that he hateth, and they be-re him children, both the beloved and the hated, so that the firstborne be his: that is be-ted, and the tyme cometh that he dealeth out the inheritaunce vnto his children, then can he not make the sonne of þ beloved first-borne before the firstborne sonne of the be-ted, but he shall knowe the sonne of the be-ted for þ first sonne, so that he geue him double of all that is at hande: for the same is þ begynnyng of his strength, z the first-borne is his.

¶ If any man haue a stubborne and disobedient sonne, which heretofore he not vnto the voyce of his father, and mother, and whom they teach him nurture, wyll not followe them, then shall his father and mother seke him, and brynge him to þ Elders of that cite, and to the gate of the same place, and saie vnto the Elders of the cite: This our sonne is stubborne and disobedient, and hertenech not vnto oure voyce, and is a ryer and a violent arde. Then shal all the men of þ same cite stone him to deathe: and thus shal thou put awaye the euell fruite, that all Israel maye heare and feare.

¶ If a man haue commytted a synne þ is worthy of deathe, and is put to deathe, so that he is hanged on tre, then shal not his bodye maime all nyght on tre, but thou shalt burye him the same daye. ¶ For curst is he of God that is hanged: that thou desyre not thy lon-de, whiche the LORDE thy God geueth the inheritaunce.

The XXII. Chapter.

¶ If thou se thy brothers ore or shepe go astray, thou shalt not withdrawe thy selfe from them, but shalt bryng the agayne vnto þ brother. But if þ brother be not nye vnto the, z thou knowest him not, then shalt thou take the in to thine house,

The v. boke of Adosa. The xxiiij. Chap. Ho. lxxxiiij.

they maye be of the, tyll þæt boether axe after them: & then deluynt him the agayne. In like maner shalt thou do with his Ass, & his raiment, & with every lost thinge of þæt brother, in which he hath lost. & thou hast founde it, thou mayest nor with drawe thy selfe.

If thou se thy brothers axe or Ass fallen downe by the waye, thou shalt not wdrawe thy selfe from him, but shalt helpe him up.

A woman shall not receiue þæt which perteyneth to a man, neither shall a man put on womans raiment. For who so euer doeth such, is abhominacion vnto þæt LORDE & God.

If thou chance vpon a byrdes nest by þæt waye in a tree, or on the grounde, with yonge or with egges, and the dame syunge vpon the yonge or vpon the egges, thou shalt not take the dame with the yonge, but shalt let the dame flye, and take the yonge, that thou mayest prosper and lyue longe.

Whan thou buydest a new house, make a bachelment aboue thy rofe, that thou ledest not blood vpon thine house, yf any man fall there of.

Thou shalt not sowe thy vnyarde with diuerser seedes, that thou halowe not to the full offerynges: the seede which thou hast sowne, with the increase of the vnyarde.

Thou shalt not plowe with an ox and an Ass to gether at one tyme.

Thou shalt not weare a garment, þis mixt with wollen and linnen to gether.

Thou shalt make gardenes vpon the foure quarters of thy garment, wherewith thou couerest thy selfe.

If a man take a wife, and bare her whan he hath liven with her, and layeth any shameful thinge vnto hir charge, and bringeth vp an euill name vpon her, and sa yeth: I receiue this wife, & whan I cameo her. I founde her not a mayde. Then shall the father and moether of the damsell take her, and bringe forth the tokens of the damells virginite before the Elders of the cite, enen vnto the gaue. And þæt damells father shall saie vnto the Elders: I gaue this man my daughter to wyfe. How bareth he her, and la yeth a shameful thinge to hir charge, and sa yeth: I founde not thy daughter a mayde. And so, these are the tokens of my daughters virginite. And they shall spiede out the clothe before the Elders of the cite. So shall the Elders of the cite take that man, and chastice him, and put a permanence vpon him of an hundredth Sycles of silver, and geue the same vnto the father of the damsell, because he hath broughte vp an euill name of a may-de in Jisrael, and he shall haue her to wyfe, so þæt he maye not forsake her all his life longe. But yf it be of a truch, that the damsell is not founde a virgin, that shall she be broughte forth vnto the doore of hir fathers house, and the meid of the cite shall stonke her to deathe, because she hath wronge þæt sely in Jisrael, and played the whore in hir fathers house. And so shalt thou put awaye the euill from the cite.

If a man be founde lienge with a woman that hath a married husband, they shall dye boeth the man, & the woman that he hath lien withall. And so shalt thou put awaye euill from Jisrael.

If a mayde be handfasted to any man, & another man getteth her in the cite, & lynch with her, ye shall bringe them boeth out vnto the gate of the cite, and stonke them boeth, yf they dye. The damsell because she cryed not, bringe in the cite. The man, because he hath broughte his neighbours wyfe to shame. And thou shalt put awaye the euill from the cite.

But yf a man getteth handfasted damsell vpon the felde, and take her, and lye with her, then the man that laye with her, shall dye also, and vnto the damsell thou shalt do no thinge: for she hath done no fyne worthy of deathe. It is like an yf a man rofe agaynst his neighbour, and slawe him, enen so is this also. So he founde her in the felde, and the handfasted damsell cryed, and there was no man to helpe her.

If a man fynde a mayde that is not handfasted, and take her, and lye with her, and be founde, then shall he that laye with her, geue hir father fyftie Sycles of silver, and shall haue her to wyfe, because he hath shamed her: he maye not forsake her all his life longe.

Tomás shall take his fathers wyfe, nor couer his fathers couerynge.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Here shall nowe that hath his stones broken or þæt is getled, come in to the congregacion of the LORDE. There shall no whores chyldre also come vnto the congregacion of þæt LORDE, nor after þæt tenth generacion, but shall neuer come in to þæt congregacion of þæt LORDE. The Ammonites & Moabites shall not come in to þæt congregacion of þæt LORDE, nor after þæt tenth generacion, but shall neuer come in, because they met you not with bread & water in þæt way, whan ye came out of Egipt. And besides þæt, they bided aghaynst you Balak þæt some of Deos, & interpreter out of Mesopotamia, to curse þæt. But þæt LORDE & God wolde not heare Balak, shall deliuer him his pledge agayne, when the Sonne goeth downe, that he maye sleepe in his owne rayment, and best the, so shall the same be returned vnto the for righteousnes before the LORD thy God.

Thou shalt not withdraue the hye of y meyne and poore amonge thy brethren, as stranger that is in thy londe, as with thyn gages, but shalt geue him his hye the same daye, that the Sonne goe not downe thereon, for so much as he is wedye, and his life susteyned therewith: that he call not vpon the LORD agaynst the, and it be synne vnto the.

The fathers shall not dye for the children, nor the children for the fathers, but euery one shall dye for his owne synne.

Thou shalt not reuise the righte of the straunger and of the fatherlesse. And yf redome rayment shalt thou not take to pledge: for thou shalt remember, that thou wast a straunger in Egipte, and how that y LORD thy God deliuered the from thence, therfore commaunde y the to do this.

When thou hast scraped downe thine harrowe in the felde, and hast forgotton a sheefe in the felde, thou shalt not turne agayne to fetch it, but it shall be for the straunger, y fatherlesse and the widowe, that the LORD thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thy handes.

When thou hast plucked thine Olyuete tree, thou shalt not plucke them vp cleane afterwarde: it shall be for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the widowe. When thou hast gathered thy vnyarde, thou shalt not gather it vp cleane afterwarde: it shall be for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the widowe. And thou shalt remember, that thou wast a seruant in the londe of Egipte: therfore commaunde y the to do this.

The XXX. Chapter.

When there is a stryfe betwene men, they shall be brought before y lawe and iudges: and the iudges shall iustifie the righteous, and condemne the wngodly. And yf the wngodly haue destroyed strypes, the iudge shall commaunde to take him downe, and they shall beate him before him, accordyng to the measure and nombre of his trespasses. When they haue geue him forty strypes, they shall beate him nomore, lest yf there be mo strypes gyven him) he be beaten comode, and thy brother be horrible before thine eyes.

Thou shalt not mofill the mouth of the poore, that reacheth out the come.

When brethren dwell together, and one of them dye without children, then shall not y wife of the dead take a straunge man with her, but his kynsman shall go in vnto her, and take her to wyfe: and the first sonne that she beareth, shall be set vp after the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of y Israel.

But yf the man wyl not take his kynswoman, then shall his kynswoman go vnto the gate to the Elders, and saye: My kynsman refuseth to stire vp a name vnto his brother in y Israel, and wyl not marie me. Then shall the Elders of the cite call him, and commaunde with him. If he stande then and saye: y wyl not take her, then shall his kynswoman steppe forth vnto him before the Elders, and louse a shewe of his foote, and spye in his face, and shall answer, and saye: Thus shall it be done vnto eury man, that wyl not build his brothers house. And his name shall be called in y Israel, the vnschudd name.

If two men stryfe together, and the wyfe of one renne to, to deliuer his husbande from the hande of him that smyth him, & put forth his hande, and take him by the secrete, then shall thou cut off his hande, and thine eye shall not pitee her.

Thou shalt not haue in y bagge two manner of weightes, a greate and a small. Neither shalt thou haue in thine home vnyerse measures, a greate and a small. Thou shalt haue a perfecte and iust weighte, and a perfecte and iust measure, that thy lyfe maye be longe in the londe, which the LORD y God shall geue the. For who so ever doth soch) ye all they that do euill) are abheminacion vnto the LORD thy God. Remember what the Amalechites did vnto the by the waye, whay ye were departed out of Egipte, how they buyled with the by the waye, and smote thy hymnost, euen all that were sible, which came a fere the when thou wast weery and faine, and they feared not God. Nowe hath the LORD thy God bynged the, to rest fro all thine enemies rounde aboute in the londe which the LORD thy God geueth the for inheritance to possesse, then shall thou put out the remembrance of the Amalechites from vnder heauen. Forger not this.

The XXXI. Chapter.

When thou comest into the londe that the LORD thy God shall geue thee to inheritance, and enioyest it, and dwellest therein, thou shalt take of all manner, first frutes of the londe, that come out of thy grounde, which the LORDE thy God geueh the, & thou shalt put them in a maunde, and go vnto the place which the LORDE thy God shal chese (if his name maye dwell there) and thou shalt come vnto the priest which shalbe at that tyme, and saye vnto him: I knowlege this daye vnto the LORDE thy God, that I am come in to the londe, which the LORDE swaue vnto our fathers to geue vs. And the priest shal take the maunde out of thine hande, and set it downe before the altare of the LORDE thy God.

B Then shalt thou answer and saye before the LORDE thy God: The Egyptians wolde haue destroyed my father, which were downe in to Egypte, and was a stranger there with a small folke, and became there a nation great, mightie & full of people. But the Egyptians increased vs euill, and troubled vs, and layed an harde bondage vpon vs. Then cried we vnto the LORDE, the God of our fathers. And the LORDE hearde our cryenge, and ledt on our aduersitee, labour, and oppression, & brought vs out of Egypte with a mighty hande, and a stretched out arme, and with great terriblenesse: thou art tokens and wonders, and haest broughte vs vnto this place, and hast geuen vs this londe, that floweth with mylke and hony. Therefore bringe I now the first frutes of the londe, which the LORDE hath geuen vs. And thou shalt leaue them before the LORDE thy God, and geue thanks before the LORDE thy God, and reioyce ouer all the good, that the LORDE thy God hath geuen the, and thynne house: thou and the Leuite, and the stranger that is with the.

C When thou hast broughte together all thy cythes of thine increase in the thirde yeare, which is a yeare of tythes, thou shalt geue it vnto the Leuite, to the stranger, to the fatherlesse, and to the wedowe, that they maie eate which thy graces, and be filled. And thou shalt saye before the LORDE thy God: I haue broughte that halowed is, out of my house, and haue geuen it vnto the Leuite, the stranger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, accordinge to al thy commandement which thou hast commaunded me. I haue not transgressed thy commandementes, ner forgotten them. I haue not eaten thereof in my house, ner taken awaye thereof in vndernesse. I haue not geue thereof vnto the dead. I haue bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORDE my God, and haue done all as he hath commaunded me. Lete downe from us, thy holy habitacion, from heauen, and blesse thy people of Israel, and this londe that thou hast geuen vs, as thou swarest vnto our fathers, a londe that floweth with mylke and hony.

In the daye when the LORDE thy God commaunded the, to do acordinge vnto all these ordinaunces and lawes, that thou shalt kepe: them and do: therefore with all thy heart and with all thy soule. The same daye maydest thou a promysse vnto the LORDE, that he shalbe thy God, and thou shalt not doest walke in all his wayes, and kepe his ordinaunces, his commandementes, and his lawes, and toarken vnto his voyce. And the LORDE promysed the vpon the same daye, that thou shalt be his a true peculiar people, like as he hath sayde vnto the: thou shalt kepe all his commandementes, and that he wolde make the bye in praise name and honoure aboute all nations which he hath made: thou mayest be an holy people vnto the LORDE thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the.

The XXXvij. Chapter.

And Moses with the Elders of Israel, commaunded the people, & sayde: Take all the commandementes which I commaunded you this daye. And when me as ye go ouer Iordane, in to the londe which the LORDE thy God shal geue the, thou shalt set vp greace stones, and playster them with playster, and wyte vpon them all the wordes of this lawe: (when thou art come ouer) thou mayest come in to the londe, which the LORDE thy God shall geue the, a londe which floweth with mylke and hony, as the LORDE God of thy fathers hath promysed the. Nowe when ye go ouer Iordane, ye shall set vp these stones (whereof I comaunde you this daye) vpon moue of Baal, and playster them with playster: and there shalt thou builde vnto the LORDE thy God an altare of stone, whereupon thou shalt lifte no ynt. Of y whole stones shalt thou builde this altare vnto the LORDE thy God, and offer burnt offerings thereon vnto the LORDE thy God: and thou shalt offer healt offerings, and eate there, and reioyce before the LORDE thy God: and vpon the stones thou shalt wyte all the wordes of this lawe manfully and well.

And Moses with the priestes and Leuite, spake vnto all Israel, and sayde: Take heed and heare O Israel: This daye are thou become the people of the LORDE thy God.

that thou mayest be obedient vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God, and do according vnto all his commandementes and ordinances, which I commaunde the this daye.

14 And Mofes charged the people the same daye, and sayde: These shall stande vpon mount Sinai to blisse the people, when ye are gone ouer Jordane: Simoen, Leui, Juda, Jaschar, Joseph, and Ben Jamin. And these shall stande vpon mount Ebal to curse: Ruben, Gad, Assir, Zabulon, Dan & Ephraim. And the Leuites shall begynne, and saye vnto euery man of Israel, wth a loude voyce:

15 Cursed be he, that maketh any carved Idoll or molten image (an abomination of the LORDE) a worke of the handes of a craftsman, and putteth it in a secreete place. And all the people shall answere and saye, Amen.

16 Cursed be he, that curseth his father and mother. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

17 Cursed be he, that remoueth his neighbour's mark. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

18 Cursed be he, that maketh a blynde man go out of his waye. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

19 Cursed be he, that mustech his righte of his stranger, of the fatherlesse, & widowe. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

20 Cursed be he, that lyeth with his fathers wife, to encounter his fathers counryng. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

21 Cursed be he, that lyeth wth any maner best. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

22 Cursed be he, that lyeth wth his sister, which is the daughter of his father or of his mother. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

23 Cursed be he, that lyeth wth his mother in lawe. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

24 Cursed be he that slayeth his neighbour secretly. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

25 Cursed be he, that receaueth giftes to slaye the soule of innocent bloude. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

26 Cursed be he, that conyngeth not in all the wordes of this lawe, to do them. And all the people shall saye, Amen.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

1 And if thou shalt hearken vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God, to obserue and do all his commandementes which I commaunde the this daye, then shall the LORDE thy God see the iniquities of all nations vpon earth, and all these blessinges shall come vpon the, and certayne the, becau se thou hast bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God. Blessed shall thou be in the countie, and blessed in the field. Blessed shall be the fruite of thy body, the fruite of thy ground, and the fruite of thy cattell, and the fruite of thine oven, and the fruite of thy sheepe. Blessed shall be thy basket, & thy store. Blessed shall thou be when thou goest in, and blessed when thou goest out. And thou enenies that rise vp against the, shall the LORDE cause to be smytten before thy face. They shall come out against the one waye, & flye before the face the other waye.

The LORDE shall commaunde the blessinge to be wth the in thy cellars, and in all that thou takest in hande, and shall blisse the in the lande that the LORDE thy God hath geue the. The LORDE shall see the up to be an holy people vnto himselfe (as he hath sworne vnto the) if thou kepe the commandementes of the LORDE thy God: so that all nations vpon earth shall see, that thou art called after the name of the LORDE: & they shall be a praye of you. And the LORDE shall make the plentiful in goodes, in the fruite of thy wombe, in the fruite of thy cattell, & in the fruite of thy ground, in the lande that the LORDE swaue vnto thy fathers, to geue the.

And the LORDE shall open vnto the his good treasure, euen the heauen, to giue raine vnto thy lande in due season, and to prosper all the worke of thine handes. And thou shalt lide vnto many nations, but thou shalt be loue of no man. And the LORDE shall see the before, and not be weary: & thou shalt be about onely, and not be weary, if thou be obedient vnto the commandementes of the LORDE thy God, which I commaunde the this daye to kepe and to do them: & if thou be not asyde from any of these wordes, which I commaunde the this daye, either to the righte hande or to the left, yet thou wilt walke after other goddes to serue them.

But if thou wilt not hearken vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God, to kepe and to do all his commandementes and ordinances, which I commaunde the this daye, then shall all these curses come vpon the, and overtake the. Cursed shall thou be in the towne, and cursed in the field: cursed shall thy basket be, and thy store. Cursed shall be the fruite of thy body, the fruite of thine oven, and the fruite of thy sheepe. Cursed shall thou be when thou goest in, and cursed when thou goest out. The LORDE shall sende in to the, consuming, and complaininge, and cursinge, in all that thou talkest in hande to do, tyll he haue destroyed the: so shortly broughte to the nauyghte, because of thy wicked intencions, in that thou hast forsaken me.

C The LORDE shall make the pestilence to byde longe with the, tyll he haue consumed the out of the londe, in to the which thou comest to possesse it. The LORDE shall smyte the with swellynge, feuers, heate, burnynge, venome, drought, and palenesse, & shall persecute the, tyll he haue destroyed the.

100.10.2 Thy heauen, that is ouer thy heade, shalbe of busse, and the earth vnder the, of yron. The LORDE shall geue thy londe busse for raine, and aspires from heauen vpon the, vntill thou be broughte to nauyght. The LORDE shall cause the be synneren before thine enemyes. Thou shalt come out one waye agaynst them, and seuen wayes shalt thou flye before them, and shalt be scattered amonge all the kyngdomes vpon earth. Thy carcasse shalbe meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and to all the bestes vpon earth, and there shalbe no man to fraye them awaye.

101.10.2 The LORDE shall smyte the with 3 botches of the grippe, with the Emolobes, with scalle, and mangynesse, that thou shalt not be healed therof. The LORDE shall smyte the with madnesse, blyndnesse and dafynge of here. And thou shalt grope at the noone daye, as 3 blynde gropeth in darknesse, and shalt not prospere in thy waye. And thou shalt suffre violence and wronge all thy life longe, & no man shal helpe 3.

102.10.2 Thou shalt spoone a wise, but another shal lye with her.

103.10.2 Thou shalt buyde an house, but another shall dwell therein. Thou shalt plant a vynyarde, but shalt not make it comen.

D Thine eye shalbe slayne before thine eyes, but thou shalt not care therof. Thine asse shalbe violently taken awaye (euen before 3 face) and shal not be refused 3 againe. Thy shepe shalbe geuen vnto thine enemyes, and no man shal helpe the. Thy honnes and thy doughbeers shalbe geuen vnto another nation, and thine eyes shal feite, and dase vpon them all the daye longe, and thy hande shal not be able to deliuer them. The frute of 3 londe and all 3 laboure, shal a nacion care, which thou knowest not: and thou shalt but onely be that shalbe oppressed and suffre wronge, all the dayes of thy life. And thou shalt be cleame beside thy selfe for the sighte, which thine eyes shal fe.

The LORDE shall smyte the with a myghtuous botch in 3 necke & legges, so that thou canst not be healed, euen from the blis of thy face vnto the crowne of thy heade.

The LORDE shall bynne the and thy bynne (which thou hast set ouer the) vnto a nation, whom thou knowest not, neither thy fathers: and there shalbe thou serue other gydes, euen rodd and stone: and thou shalt geue maist, and become a bynnde, & a langga ge stocke amonge all nacions, whiche 3 LORDE hath caryed the.

Thou shalt cary out much sode into 3 siddes, and shalt gather but little in for the grethoppers shal destroye it. Thou shalt plant vynyardes and busse the, but thou shalt neither drynke of the wyne, nor gather of 3 grapes: for 3 wormes shal catte summe. Thou shalt haue Olive trees in all 3 coastes, but shalt not be annoynd with the oyle: for thyne Olive trees shalbe roted out. Thou shalt gett sonnes and doughbeers, and yet not haue them: for they shal be caried awaye capseine. All thy trees and frutes of thy londe shal be marred with blastynge.

The stranger that is with 3, shal come vpon the, and be allwaye aboue the: but thou shalt come downe alone, and shal crie beneath, he shal lende vnto the, but thou shalt not lende him. He shalbe before, but thou shalt be behynde.

And all these causes shal come vpon the, and slowe the, and encrease 3, tyll thou be destroyed, because thou hast dynt not vnto 3 voyce of the LORDE 3 God, to kepe his commaundmentes and ordinaunces, which he hath commaunded the. Therfore shalt thou be taken and wonderd vpon the, & vpon thy sode for euer, because thou hast not serued 3 LORDE thy God with a ioyfull and good here, when thou haddest abundance of all thynges. And therfore shalt thou serue thine enemye, which the LORDE shal sette vpon the, in hunger and thyrst, in nakednesse, and neede of all thynges: he shal put a yocke of yron vpon thy necke, vntill he haue broughte the to nauyghte.

The LORDE shall bynne a nacion vnto the from sarr, euen from the ende of 3 world, as a slyngge Egypcia people, whiche spowche thou canst not vnderstande, an hardserued people, which regarde not the personne of the olde, nor haue compassion on the yonge. And they shal eate vnto 3 frute of thy caxell, & the frute of thy londe, tyll they haue destroyed the, and shall leaue the.

thinge in corne, wyne, oyle, in the frute of γ open and shewe, wherby they haue broughe the co naughe: and shal laye siege vnto the γ in all thy gates, tyll they cast downe thy wyne and stronge walles, wherin thou trustest: thou shalt see all thy londe. And thou shalt be besieged within all thy portes, thou shalt see all thy londe which the LORDE thy God hath giuen thee.

¹²¹ ¹²² ¹²³ Thou shalt eate the frute of thine awne body, the fleshy of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, which the LORDE γ God hath giuen thee, in that strayntesse and sege, wherwith thine enemye shall besiege thee: so that it shall greue the man γ a foue hath lyncd tenderly and in volupuousnesse amonge you, to lye vpon his brother and vpon his wyfe γ lyncd in his bosome, and on the sonne that is left ouer of his sonnes, lest he shalde geue any of them of the fleshy of his children that beatech, in as much as there is nothyng left him in that strayntesse and sege, wherwith thine enemye shall besiege γ within all thy gates. And the woman that a foue hath lyncd so tenderly and volupuously amonge you, that she truste not for the sole of hir foete vpon the grounde for tymbres and volupuousnesse, shal be greued to lye vpon hir besyde that lynch in hir bosome, and on hir sonne, and on hir daughter: euen because of hir daughters which she hath nourished downe hir legges in hir lappe, and because of hir sonnes that she hath borne: for she shall eate them secretly for very scarcenesse of all thinges, in the strayntesse and sege, wherwith thine enemye shall besiege γ within thy gates.

If thou wilt not be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe which are wyrtzen in this booke, that thou mayest feare this glorious and fearfull name, the LORDE thy God, then shal the LORDE entreate γ wonderously, with plagis vpon γ and thy sibe, yee with greate and continuall plagis, with well and conynuall sicknesse, and shal bringe vps γ all γ sicknesse of Egypte, wherof thou wast a frayd: and they shal cleaue vnto thee. Thereto all manner sicknesse and all manner plagis, which are not wyrtzen in the booke of this lawe, shal the LORDE thy God cause to come vpon thee, wherby he hath destroyed thee. And there shal be left but a fewe people of you, which a foue weare as the starris of heauen in multitude: because thou hast not hearken vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God.

And as γ LORDE reioysed ouer you afore, so do you good, and to multiplye you, and so shall he reioyse ouer you, and bestrewe you, and to bringe you to naughe, and ye shal be wayted from of the londe, whiche thou goest now to possesse it, for the LORDE shal scatter the amonge all nacions, from the one ende of the worldes vnto another, and there shalt thou serue other goddes, whom thou knowest not, nec yet thy fathers, euen woodd and stone.

And amonge these same nacions shal thou haue no quyetnesse, neither shal the sole of γ foete haue eny rest: for the LORDE shal geue thee there a fearfull here, and daryng of eyes, and a troubled soule, so that by life shal haue before thee: Light and daye shalt thou feare, and shalt haue no trust in thy life. In the mourninge thou shalt saye: Who shall geue me the morninge? And at euen shalt thou saye: Who shall geue me the morninge? for the very greate feare of thine here, which shal make thee a frayd: and for the sighte of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

And the LORDE shal bringe thee the agayne in to Egypte by shippes fulles, euen vpon the waye wherof γ sayde vnto thee. Thou shalt see it no more: and there shal ye be solde vnto youre enemies for bondes seruantes and bondmaidens, and there shal be no man to bye you.

The xxxij. Chapter.

These are γ wordes of the couenaunt, which the LORDE commaunded Moyses to make vnto the children of Israel in the londe of the Meabites, before γ couenaunt which he made with them in Horeb. And Moses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the LORDE dyd before youre eyes in the londe of Egypte, vnto Pharao with all his seruantes, and all his londe, the greate tentacions which thine eyes haue sene, that they were greate toles and wonderis. And yet vnto this daye hath not the LORDE geuen you an here that vnderstandeth, eyes that see, eares that heare.

Ye hath caused you to walke fortye yeres in the wilderness. Your clothes are not waxed olde vpon you, neither is thy shoe waxed olde on thy foete. Ye haue eaten no bred, and drunken no wyne, nor stronge drynke, that ye mighte knowe, that he is γ LORDE youre God.

And when ye came vnto this place, Egipton the kynge of Hethon, and Heth γ kynge of Bosan, came out agaynst vs vnto battayll, and me smote them, and toke their londe, and gaue it to inheritaunce vnto þe Rubenites and Gadites, and to the halfe tribbe of the Manassites. Kepe now therfore the wordes of this couenaunt, and do thereafter, that ye maye haue vnderstandinge in all that ye do.

Reþonde this daye all before the LORDE youre God, the cheefe rulers of youre trybes, youre Elders, youre officers, euery man in Israell, youre children, youre wyues, þe straungers that are in thine hooff, from the heuwer of þe wydd vnto þe diuwer of þe water: that thou shouldest enter in to the couenaunt of the LORDE thy God, and in to the ooth which the LORDE thy God maketh with the this daye, that he mighte set the vp this daye to be a people vnto himself, and that he mighte be thy God, as he hath sayde vnto thee, and as he swaie vnto þe fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

So I make not this couenaunt and this ooth with you onely, but both with you þe here this daye, and stonde with vs before the LORDE our God, and also with them that are not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe how we came dwel in the londe of Egipte, and how we came thither in the myddes of the Syrcethen, whom ye passed by, and sawe their abhominacions and their Idols, woodd and stone, syluer and golde, which were with them: Lest there be amonge you man or woman, as an housholde, or a trybe, which turneth awaye his here this daye from the LORDE our God, to go and to serue þe goddes of thise nacions: and lest there be amonge you some rote, that beareth gall & worme wydd: so that though he heare the wordes of this curse, he blesse him selfe yet in his heart, and saye: Twissh, it shal not be so well. I wil walke a ster the meanyngs of myne aone here, that the dwonken maye purifie with the chrystie.

Then shall not the LORDE be mercifull vnto him, but his wrath and gelousy shall smite ouer sych a man, and all the curses that are wyrtren in this boke, shall lighte vpon him: and the LORDE shal put out his name from vnder heauen, and shall separate him vnto euell out of all the trybes of Israell, acordyng vnto all the curses of the couenaunt, that is wyrtren in the boke of this lawe.

So the pesterities of youre childre which shal rise vp after you, and the straungers that come out of farr countrees, shall saye (whan they se the plagos of this londe, and the distastes wherewith the LORDE hath smytten it) that he hath brent vp all this londe with brymstone and salt, so þe it can not be sowne, ner is fructifull, neither groweth there any grasse therein. Like as Sodome, Gomer, Adams and Zebolim are oute thronne, which the LORDE overthrew in his wrath and anger.

Then shall all nacions saye: Wherfore hath the LORDE done thus vnto this londe: What greates woethfull displeasur is this: Then shal it be sayde: Euen because they haue forsaken the couenaunt of þe LORDE God of their fathers (which he made with them whan he broughte them out of the londe of Egipte) and they were, and sawe oether goddes, and worshipped the, and sych goddes as they knewe not, and whom he had not decayed vnto them. Therfore the wrath of the LORDE waxed whore ouer this londe, & bryngte vpon it all the curses that are wyrtren in this boke. And the LORDE chistt them out of their londe with greuous wrath, indignacion & displeasur of þe cast them into another londe, as it is come to passe this daye.

These are the secretes of the LORDE our God, which are opened vnto vs and our children for euer, þe we shal do all the myddes of this lawe.

The XXX. Chapter.

Now whan all this cometh vpon the, whether it be the blessing or the curse which I haue layde before the, and thou goest in to thine hert, beynge amonge the Gathen, whether the LORDE thy God hath chistt the, and thou turnest vnto the LORDE thy God, so that thou hastenest vnto his voyce, thou and thy childre with all þe hert and with all thy soule, in all that I commaunde the this daye, then shal the LORDE thy God turne thy captiuitie, and haue compassion vpon the, and shal gather thy congregacion agayne from amonge all the nacions, whither the LORDE thy God hath scattered the.

And though thou werest chistt out vnto the vtermost partes of the heauen, yet shall the LORDE thy God gather the from thence, and from thence shal he fetch the, and shal bryngte the in to the londe, which thy fathers haue possessed, and thou shalt enioye it, and he shal do the good, and multiplye the abbes thy fathers.

 sea, that thou needest to saye: Why wil go over the see for vs, and fetch it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it? For the worde is very nyc unto thee, eue in thy mouth and in thi ne heart, that thou do it.

244 Beholde, I haue layed before you this 245 1 daye, life and good, death and euill. For I esmaunde the this daye, to loue the LORD E thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commandementes, ordinaunces, and lawes, that thou mayest live and mul-tiplye, and that the LORD E thy God maye blesse thee in the londe, whither thou goest to possesse it.

D But yf thou turnest awaye thine heart, so that thou wilt not heare, but fall a waye, to worshippe other goddes and to serue them, I 246 1 reuise yf thou this daye, that ye shall perishe, and not live longe in the londe, whither thou goest ouer Iordane to possesse it.

247 Take heed and earth this daye to recorde ouer you: I haue layed before you life and death, blessinge and cursinge, that thou mayest chuse life, and that thou and thy sed maye live, yf ye maye loue the LORD E your God, and hearken vnto his voyce, and cleue vnto him: For he is thy life and thy loge

age) that thou mayest dwell in the londe, which the LORD E swaie vnto thy fathers Abrahams, Isaac and Iacob, to geue them.

The XXXI. Chapter.

D ITD Moses came, & saide these wo-248 1 rds to all Israel, and saide vnto them:
 I am this daye an hundredth and twel-the yeare olde, I can no more go out and in the LORD E also hath sayde vnto me: Thou shalt not go ouer this Iordane. The LORD 249 1 E thy God himselfe shall go before the ouer Iordane: and hys himselfe shall destroye these nations before thee, that thou mayest conquere them: and Iesus he shall go ouer before thee. As the LORD E hath sayde, And the LORD E shall do vnto them, as he dyd vnto Sihon and Og the Kinges of the Amoi-tes and vnto their loes, which he destroyed.

250 Now when the LORD E shall deliuer thee before you, ye shall do vnto them a cōtryng vnto all the commandementes which I haue commaunded you. Be manly and feare not, and be not a frayd of them. For the LORD E thy God himselfe shall go with thee, and shall not fayle thee, nor forsake thee.

And Moses called Joshua, and sayde vnto him before all Israel: Be stronge and bolde, for thou shalt bringe this people in to the londe, which the LORD E hath sworne vnto their fathers to geue them, and thou shalt parte it amonge them by lot. But the LORD E himselfe that goeth before you, euen hys selfe he wil be with thee, and shall not fayle thee, nor forsake thee: feare not, and be not a frayd.

And Moses wrote this lawe, and deli-uered it vnto the prestes the children of Le-ui (which bare the Arke of the cōuenants of the LORD E) and vnto all the Elders of Israel.

And he commaunded them, and sayde: At the ende of seven yeares, in the tyme of the 7th yeare, in the feast of Tabernacles when all Israel come to appeare before the LORD E thy God, in the place that he shall chuse, thou shalt cause this lawe to be read vnto all Israel in their eares, namely, before the congregacion of the people, both of men, women, children, and thy straungers which are within thy gates: that they maye heare and learne to feare the LORD E their God, and be diligens to do all the wordes of this lawe: and that their children also which knowe nothings, maye heare and leme to feare the LORDE yo^r God, all youre lyue dayes wher ye lyue in the londe, whiche ye go ouer Iordane to poffesse it.

D And the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Beholde, thy tyme is come that thou must die, call Josua, and stande in the Tabernacle of witness, that I maye gene him a charge. Moyses wenth with Josua, and stode in the Tabernacle of witness. And the LORDE appeared in the Tabernacle in a cloudy pyler and the same cloudy pyler stode in the doore of the Tabernacle.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Beholde, thou shalt sleepe with y^r fathers, and this people will ryste vp, and go a whoung after strange goddes of the londe in to the which they come, - and will forsake me, and breake the couenante which I haue made wth them. And then shall my reache wth whome agaynst them, at the same tyme, & I shall forsake the, and hyde my face fro them, that they maye be consumed. And so when moche aduersitee & trouble cometh vps the, they shall saye: Is not all this euell come vps me, because God is not with me: But I shall hyde my face at the same tyme because of all the euell that they haue done, in that they haue turned vnto other goddes.

Wryte now therfore this songe, & teach it the children of Israel, and put it in their mouth, that this songe maye be a witness vnto me amonge the children of Israel. For I wil bringe them in to the londe which I swaie vnto their fathers, that flourisheth with myrtle and hony. And when they eate, and are full and sat, they shall come vnto other goddes, and serue them, and blasphememe, and breake my couenante.

And so when moche myschefe and tribulation is come vpon them, this songe shall answer before them for a witness. It shall not be forgotten out of the mouth of their side: for I knowe their ymagination, that they go abonde euen now, before I bringe them in to the londe, which I swaie vnto them.

J So Moyses wrote this songe at the same tyme, and taughte it the children of Israel. And the LORDE gaue Josua the some of this charge, and sayde: Be stronge and holde, for thou shalt bringe the children of Israel in to the londe, which I swaie vnto them, and I wil be with the.

Now when Moyses had wrytten out all the wordes of this laue in a booke, he commaunded the Leuites (which bare the Ark of the LORDES commaunde) and sayde: Let the booke of this laue, and laye it by the side of the Arke of the couenante of the LORDE your God, that it maye be there a witness agaynst the: for I knowe thy sinfulness and thy harde ned. Beholde, it byt I maye alyue wth you this daye, ye haue bene disobedient vnto the LORDE: I hope moche more after my death.

Gather now vnto me all the Elders of youre tribes, and youre officers, & I maye speake these wordes in their eares, and take heauen and earth to recorde agaynst them, for I am sure that after my death ye shall make youre selues, and turne asyde out of the waye, which I haue commaunded you: and so shall myschaunce happen vnto you after, because ye haue done euill in the sight of the LORDE, in prouoking hym thow the wordes of youre handes.

So Moyses spake out the wordes of this songe euen to the ende, in the eares of all the congregation of Israel.

The XXXII. Chapter.

G Ethen (D ye heauen) I will speake, and let the earth heare the wordes of my mouth.

My doctryne droppe as doth the raine, and my speech floure as doth the dew. Euen as the raine vpon the grasse, and as the droppe vpon the herbe.

For I will call vpon the name of the LORDE, gene ye the glory vnto oure God.

Perfect are the wordes of the Strom, for all his wayes are righteous.

God is true, and no wickednes is therein him, righteous and iust is he.

The frowarde and cowerdouse generation hath marred them selues to him worthe and are not his children, because of their folye.

Thankest thou the LORDE & God so, thou foolish and vnwysse people?

Is not he thy father and thy LORDE? hath he not made the, and prepared the?

Remember the dayes that are past, counte the yeres of the generacions afourty me.

Are thy father, he shall shewe the thy children, they shall telle the.

When the most wythest dearyed & nations and feared the children of men.

Then see he the borders of the nations accordinge to the nombre of the children of Israel.

For the LORDES parte is his folk.

Jacob is the merceryme of his enheritaunce.
He founde him in the wyldernes, even in the drye deserte where he rooketh.

He led him abour, and gaue him understandinge: He kepte him as the apple of his eye.

As an Eagle stretcht up his nest, and flo-tereth ouer his yonge: Even so stretcheth he ouer his fathers, and rooketh him: and bare him on his wynges.

The LORDE enclaym his gyfte, & there was no strange God with him.

He caried him ouer y heighe of the earth, and set him with the increase of the felde.

He caried him such honoy out of the rocke, and oyle out of the harde stone.

Burrer of the fyne, and mylke of the she-pe, with the fat of the lambes, and rammes of the sonnes of Zabian, and he gootes with the fat of the kydneyes, and wheate: And gaue him drynke of the very bloude of grapes.

And when he was fat and had yough, he was fed wanton.

He is fat, and chide, and smothe, & hath letten God go, that made him, and despyed the rocke of his saluacion.

He hath prouoked him to indignacion, that is strange goddes, and that is abhominacion hath he angered him.

They offred vnto felde deuels, & not vnto their God.

Vnto goddes whom they knewe not, and vnto new goddes, & came newly up, whom their fathers honoured not.

The rocke that begat y, hast thou despysed, and hast forgotten God that made the.

And when the LORDE sawe it, he was moued into wrath ouer his sonnes, and his daughters.

And he sayde: I will hyde my face from them, I will se what their ende shall be: for it is a forwarde generacion, they are chyldre in whom is no fayth.

They haue prouoked me in it that is not God: & their vanities haue they angered me.

And I aga yne wil prouoke them, by those that are no people: by a foolish nacion wil I anger them.

For the fyre is kyndled in my wrath, and shal burne vnto y ner her most hell, and shal consume the londe with the increase ther of,
and for the foundations of y mountaynes shal fyre.

I wil beape myschaunce vpo them, I wil spende all myne arrowes at them.

They shal fyre awaye thow hunger, & be consumed of the seuer, and of bytter sick-nesse.

I wil fynde amonge them y teche of beas-tes, and furious serpentes.

Withouth shall the iwarde robbe them, & fiare in the chambers, both the yonge man and yonge woman, the slyd ynge chylde in the gray headed man.

I may saye: Where are they: I shall make their remembraunce to cease from amonge men.

If the wrath of the enemies were not gathered, lest their enemies shoulde be proude, & might saie: Oure hande is hye, and: The LOR-DE hath not done all this.

For it is a people, wher in is no counicell, and there is no vnderstandinge in them.

O that they were wyse: I vnderstode this,
that they wolde cōside what shoulde happē vnto them her after.

How cometh it, & one shall chace a thou-saude of them, and y two shal putten thou-saude to flyghte?

Is it not so, euen because their rocke hath solde them, and because the LORDE hath geuen them ouer?

For oure rocke is not as their rocke, & of this are oure enemies iudge them selues.

Their wyne is of the wyne of God, and of the felde of Gomorra: their grapes are the grapes of gall, they haue bytter clusters.

Their wyne is the poison of Diagono, & the furious gall of Addors.

Is not this hid with me, and scaled up in my treasures?

Vengeance is myne, and I will reuonde in due season. Their feet shall slide, for the tyme of their distruccō is at hande, and the thinge that is to come vpon them, wyl teche haile.

For the LORDE shall iudge his people, & and shal haue compassion on his seruauntes. For he shal confide that their power is a moue, and that it is gone with them, whiche were shaz up and remainyd ouer.

And he shal saye: Where are their god-des, their rocke wher in they trusted?

O whose sacrifices they are y fact, and dianke the wyne of their deynofferinges: Let them ryse up and helpe you, and be your proteccion.

Se now that I Iam, and that there is none other God but I.

I can fyll and make al yure: what I haue

For I will liſte vp my hande to heauen, & my ſoul ſaye: I lyue euer.

And when I ſee the edge of my ſwerde, and my hande take holde of iudgment, then will I avenge me on myn enemies, and rewarde them that hate me.

And Moſes came and ſpake all the wordes of this ſong in the eares of the people, he and Joſua the ſonne of Nun. Now when Moſes had made an ende of ſpeakinge all theſe wordes vnto all Iſrael, he ſayde vnto the:

Deut. 6. 8 And I teſtiſye vnto you this daye, that ye commaunde youre children, to obſerue and do all the wordes of this laue. For it is no vaine worde vnto you, bute is yoſ life: & this worde ſhal prou longe your life in the londe, whether ye go euer Iordane to conquire it.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes the ſame daie, & ſayde: Set the vp to this mount Abarim, vpon mount Mebo, which lyeth in the ierde of the Moabites euer agaynſt Jericho, & beholde the londe of Canaan, which I ſhall geue vnto the children of Iſrael in poſſeſſion.

And ſaye thou vpon the mount, when thou art come vp, and be gathered vnto thy people, like as Aaron thy brother dyed vpon mount Hor, and was gathered vnto his people. Because thou ſpaciſted agaynſt me amonge the children of Iſrael by the water of ſtrye at Cadis in the wildeſſe of Sin, and ſanctiſieſt me noe amonge the children of Iſrael. For then ſhalt ſe the londe ouer agaynſt the, which I geue vnto the children of Iſrael but thou ſhalt noe come into it.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

21 This is the bleſſyng, wherewith Moſes ſaw the man of God bleſſed the childre of Iſrael before his death, and ſaide: The LORD came from Sinai, and roſe vp vnto the from Seir. He appeared from mount Paran, and came to many thouſande ſaynes. In his righte hande is there a lawe of ſyre for them: O how loude he the people: All his ſaynes are in his hande: they ſhall eate them ſelue downe at thy feet, and receiue of thy wordes. Moſes commaunded men late, which is the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob. And he was with the hande of the kynge, & helde the rulers of the people together, with the cryes of Iſrael.

Exod. 15. 2

Let Ruben lyue, and noe by, and his people be ſene in nombre.

This is the bleſſyng of Iuda. And he ſayde: I. ORDE heare the voyce of Iuda, and bringe him vnto his people: Let his hande mainteyne him, and let him be helpe to his enemies.

And vnto Levi he ſayde: Thy perſonage and thy lighte be according vnto the man of thy mercy, who thou haſt tempered as Meſa, when ye ſtrove by the water of ſtrye. He that ſayeth vnto his father and to his mother: I ſe him noe: and to his brother, I knowe him noe: and to his ſonne, I knowe noe of him, thoſe haue eſtablished thy wordes, and kepte the commaundmentes: they ſhall teach Iacob thy iudgements, and Iſrael thy laue: they ſhall laue incenſe before thy noſe, & burne offeringes vpon thine altare. I. ORDE, bleſſe thou his power: & accepte the wordes of his hande: in yet the loynes of them thy ſerue agaynſt him, & of them that hate him, that they liſte not vpon them ſelues.

And to Ben Iamin he ſayde: The beloued of the LORD ſhal dwell in hope on him: All the daye long: ſhal he waite vpon him, and ſhal dwell betwene his ſhoulders.

And to Joſeph he ſayde: His lordeliſh in the bleſſyng of the LORD, that an noble frutes of beanes, of the dem, and of the depe that lyeth beneath: There are noble frutes of the increaſe of the Sonne, and noble type frutes of the monethes: And of the toppes of the mountaynes of olde, and of the hilles all waye, and of the noble frutes of the earth, and of the fulneſſe thereof. The good will of him: that dwelleth in the buſhe, and me vpon the heade of Joſeph, and vpon the toppe of his heade that was ſeparated from amonge his brethren.

His bewyge is as a fullborne eye, and his homes are as the homes of an Unicorn: with the ſame ſhal he purſue the nationes together, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. Theſe are the thouſandes of Ephraim, and the thouſandes of Maſſe.

And vnto Zabulon he ſayde: Reioyce thou Iſachar of thy centres. They ſhall call the people vnto þe hyl, and there shal they offre þe offeringes of righteounes. For they shal see the abundance of the see, and the creatures byd in the fonde.

And to Gad he sayde: Blessynge haue Gad, which maketh rowme. He vrelleth no alyon, and spyleth the arme and the coppe of the heade. And he saue his begynnynge, that þe heape of the readders laye bydd the re, and came with the rulers of the people, and created the righteounesse of the LOR-DE, and his iudgment on Israel.

And to Dan he sayde: Dan a yonge lyon, he shal store from Dasan.

And to Tephrali he saide: Tephrali shal haue abundance of pleasure, & shalbe full of the blessinges of the LORDE: his possession shalbe toward the west and south. And to Asser he sayde: Asser be blessed wth sonnes, accepted be he with his brethren, and byppe his fore in oyle. Iron and brass be on thy shoes. Thyne age be as thy youth.

There is no God as the God of the east.
He that syneth upon heauen, be thy helpe.
And his glory is in the cloudes, that is the dwellinges of God from the beginnyng, and under the armes of the moule. And he shal drye out thine enemye before the, and saye: Be destroyed. And Israel shall dwell safe alone. The eye of Jacob shalbe upon þe fonde where come and wine is, heauen also shal droppe with dewe. Happye art thou Israel, who is lye vnto the: Whon people þe are saue by the LORDE, which is thy helpe. Shyl be, and the swerde of thy glorye. Thyne enemies shal pyne awaye, and thou shalt treade vpon the height of them.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

¶ Unto Moses wente from the selde of þe Moabites vp vnto mount Abarim, vpo þe coppe of mouit Pisga ouer agaynst Jericho. And the LORDE shewed him alle the lande of Gilead vnto Dan, and all Tephrali, and the londe of Ephraim and Manasse, and alle the londe of Iuda, vnto þe wremost see, and toward the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the cite of the palme trees euen vnto Zoar. And the LORDE sayde vnto him: This is the londe that I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and saydes I wyll geue it vnto thy sibe. Thou hast sane it with thine eyes, but thou shalt noe go ouer thither.

So Moses þe seruaunt of the LORDE bid there in the londe of the Moabites, a cobdin ge vnto the moude of þe LORDE. And he tarried him in a valley, in the londe of the Moabites ouer agaynst the bonse of Deos. And noman enemye of his graue vnto this daye.
And Moses was an hundred and twentye years olde when he dyed: his eyes were not dymme, and his cheeke were not fallen. And the children of Israel weped for Moses in þe feldes of the Moabites thirte daies, and the daye of the wepyng and mourninge for Moses were fulfilled.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was filled with þe spere of wysdome, (for Moses had layed his hande vpon him) and the children of Israel hertened vnto him, and byd as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And there are se no prophet more in Israel, like vnto Moses, whom the LORDE enemye face to face in alle tokens and wordes (which the LORDE sent him to do in þe londe of Egypte, vnto Pharao, and to alle his seruants, and his londe) and in alle this mighte he be and greates visions which Moses
byd in the sightes of alle Israel.

The first Chapter.

2

Fear the death of Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE, spake the LORDE vnto Iosua & somme of Efraim Moses mynster: My ser-uaunt Moses is dead,
vpon now, and go ouer

this Iordane, thou and all this people in to the londe that I haue geuen the children of Israel. All the places that the soles of your feet shal treade vpon, haue I geuen vnto you, as I sayde vnto Moses: from the wyld-ernes and this Iordan vnto the greene water of Euphrates: all the londe of the He-breues vnto the greene see towardes the west, shal be youre border. There shall no man be able to withstonde & all thy life longe. And like as I was with Moses, so wil I be with the also. I wil not sayle the nether southe the. Be stronge and bolde: for vnto this people shalt thou be a father, to geue it them.

Be stronge therfore and very bolde, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thyng accordinge to the lawe, that Moses my seruaunt commaunded the. Turne not asyde from it, neither to the righte hande nor to the lefte, & thou mayest deale wysly whiche so ever thou geest. And let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exerce-felyt vs therein daie and nyght, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thyng a cordinge to it that is wyrted therein: Then shalt thou prosper in thy maies, and deale wysly. So, I haue commaunded the to be stronge and bolde. Feare not, and be not afrayed: for the LORDE thy God is with &, whiche so ever thou goest.

Then commaunded Iosua the officers of the people, and sayde: Go thowen the hooffe, and therge & people, and saye: Prepare you vnto this daie, for ouer this daie shal ye go ouer this Iordane, that ye maye come in and the possession of the londe, which the LORDE your God shal geue you.

And to the Rubenites, Gaddites, and to the halfe tribe of Manasse, sayde Iosua: Thynke vpon the woide, that Moses the seruaunt of & LORDE spake vnto you, and sayde: The LORDE your God hath daunged you to rest, and geuen you this londe. Let your wyues and children and cattell remaine in y londe, that Moses gaue you on this syde Iordane: But ye youre selues (as many as be fightinge men) shal go forth before your brethren in harness, and helpe them, till the LORDE haue broughte your brethren to rest also, as well as you: that they al so maye take possession of the londe, which the LORDE your God shal geue them: Then shal ye turne agayne in to the londe of your possession, that ye maye enioye it, which Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE hath geuen you on this syde Iordane comorte & comfort. And they answered Iosua and sayde:
All that thou hast commaunded vs, wil we do: and whiche so ever thou sendest vs, we wil go thither. Like as we haue obeyed Moses, so wil we be obedient also vnto the:
Only that the LORDE thy God be with &, like as he was with Moses. Who so erer disobeyeth thy mouth, and herkeneth not vnto thy wordes in all that thou hast commaunded vs, shal tye: Only be thou stronge and bolde.

The II. Chapter.

Ossa the sonne of Tim sent out two spyes secretly from Gezim, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, loke vpon the londe and Jericho. They werne forth, and came in to & house of an harlot, called Rahab, and laye there. Then was it eolde the kynge of Jericho: So, there are men come in this nyghte from the chylde of Israel, to spye the londe. Then sent the kynge of Jericho vnto Rahab, sayng: Deluyne the men forth that are come vnto in to thy house, for they are come to spye out the whole londe. It is so for the two men, the woman had hyd them, and sayde: There came men in vnto me in dede, but I knewe not whence they were. And at the shewinge in of the name when it was darck, they wene out, so & I can not tell whither they be gone: for some soone a ster them, for ye shal ouer-take them. But she had caught them to clym-me up vnto the house toppe, and hyd them vnder the stales of flaxe, that she had prepared her vps the toppe of the house. How beit the men folowed after them in & waye

Heb. 11.

towarde Iordane, when vnto the ferye: and whan they that folowed vpon them were gone south, the gate was shut.

B And after the men layed them downe to slepe, she wente vp to them vnto the house to worpe, and sayde vnto the: I knowe that the LORDE shall deliuer you the londe. for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and all the inhabitants of the londe are discouraged at youre commynge. For we haue herde, how the LORDE dryed vp the water in the reed sea be fore you, whā ye departed our of Egipt: and what ye byd vnto the two kynge of the Americes, Sihon and Og beyonde Iordane, how ye roted them out, and destroyed them. And since we herde thereof, our here hath failed vs, neither is there a good stomache more in any man, by the reason of youre commynge. For the LORDE y^e God is both the God aboue in heauē and beneath vpon earth.

C Swearē now vnto me. euen by the LORDE (for so much as I haue dealt mercifully with you) that ye wyl also shewe mercy vpon my fathers house: and geue me a ruse token, that ye wyl let my father lyue, and my moether, my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they haue, and deliuer oure soules from death. The men sayde vnto her: If we shew not mercy and faithfulness vpon the, whan the LORDE getteth vs the londe, then let oure soules bye for you, so farr as thou betrayest not oure dewyce. Then let she them downe thowre the wyndowe by a coarce: for his house was in the wall of the cite, and in the wall was his dwellinge. And she sayde vnto them: Wo youre waye vp to the mountaynes, lest they mete you that folowe vpon you: and hyde youre silues there thre dayes, tyll they be come againe: so folowe after you and then get you youre waye.

D But the men sayde vnto her: As for this oath that thou hast taken of vs, we wyl be witharged of it whan we come in to y^e londe, excepte thou thyself in the wyndowe y^e lync of this rosecoloured rope (y^e thou hast lett vs downe with all y^e gatherest vnto y^e in to the house, chy father, chy moether, y^e brethren, and all chy fathers house. And loke who so cometh out at the dore of chy house, his bloude be vpon his owne heade, and we guileless. But of all those y^e are in y^e house, yf a hande be layed vpon the, their bloude shall be vpon y^e heade. And yf thou betrayest any of this dewyce of ours, the wil we be discharged of the oath y^e then hast take of vs. She sayde: As it be so as ye say, and she let the go. And they wente their waye. And she drye the rose coloured lync in the wyndowe.

They wente on their waye, and came to the mountaynes, and remayned there thre dayes, tyll they that folowed vpon them were come agayne: for they song how them the rosecoloured rope, and yet they founde them not. So the two men turned agayne, and departed from the mountaynes, and passed ouer Iordane, and came to Iesus the fathers of Luz, and tolde him euery thinge, as they had founde it, and they sayde vnto Iosua: The LORDE hath geat vs all the londe in thre handes, and all they that dwell in the londe, are for a frayed of vs.

The III. Chapter.

D Iosua rose vp early, and they departed from Seam, and came vnto Iordane, he and all the children of Israel, and remayned there all night, as for they mette ouer. But after thre dayes wente the officers thowre y^e house, and commaunded the people, and sayde: Whan ye shal the Ark of y^e conuenant of the LORDE youre God, and the prestes from amonge the Leuites bearinge it, departe ye then out of youre place, and twene you and it by two thousande cubites, and that ye come not nye it: y^e ye maye knowe what waye ye shalde go: for ye neuer wente that waye afore.

And Iosua sayde vnto the people: y^e do me youre silues, for to morow shal y^e LORDE bringe wonderous thinges to passe and geue you. And vnto the prestes he sayde: Burye the Ark of y^e conuenant, and go before the people. Then bare they the Ark, and wente before the people. And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: This daye wyl I begynne to make the greates in the sighte of all Israel, that they maie knowe, howe that I am I was with Moses, so am I with the people. And commaunde thou the prestes that beare the Ark, and saye: Whan ye come before in the water of Iordane, stande still.

C And Iosua sayde vnto the children of Israel: Come hither, & heare the worde of the LORDE your God. He sayde moreover: By this shal ye perceiue, that the synnyng God is amonge you, and that he shall drye out before you β Cananites, Hethites, Heuites, Pherezites, Girgizites, Amorites and Iebusites. Behold, the ARKE of the conuenant of him β hath dominion ouer all lonbes, shall go before you in Iordane. Take now therefore twolue men out of β crybes of Israel, out of euery trybe one. And when the soles of the feet of the prestes that beare β ARKE of the LORDE the governours of all lonbes, are set in the water of Iordane, then shal β water of Iordane withdraue it selfe from the water that floweth from above, that it maye stonde on a heape.

D Now when the people departed out of their tents, to go ouer Iordane, & the prestes bare the ARKE of the conuenant before the people, and came in to Iordane, & dypte their feet before in the water (as for Iordane on all his bankes it was full of all manner waters \ast of the lonbe) then the water that came downe fro above, stode straight vp upon one heape, very fawre from the cite of Abdon, that lyeth on the syde of Zorchan: But the water that ranne downe to the sea (cuen to the salt sea) fill a waye, and be craft.

E So β people wente thowou ouer agaynst Jericho. And the prestes that bare the ARKE of the LORDE S conuenant, stode drye in β myddes of Iordane, readye prepared: & all Israel wete thowou drye stode, vntyll β whole people were all come ouer Iordane.

The iiii. Chapter.

F And β LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Take you twolue men, out of euery trybe one, & commaunde them, β saye: Take vp twolue stones out of Iordane, from the place where the feet of the prestes stode in this aray: carry them with you, β ye maie leaue them in β lodgyng, where ye shal lodge this night. The Iosua called twolue men which were prepared of the children of Israel, out of euery trybe one, & sayde vnto thes: So youe maye ouer before the ARKE of the LORDE your God in the myddes of Iordane, take euery man a stone vpon his shulder, after the nombre of the trybes of β children of Israel, β they maye be a token amonge you. And when youe children aspeether farther here after, and saye: What do these stones there? Then ye maye then saye vnto them, how that the water of Iordane clame in sunder before the ARKE of the LORDE conuenant, when it wente thowou Iordane, & that these stones are set for a perpetuall remembrance vnto the children of Israel.

Then dyd the children of Israel as Iosua commaunded them, and bare twolue stones out of the myddes of Iordane (as the LORDE had sayde vnto Iosua) according to the nombre of the trybes of the children of Israel, and broughte the same with them in to the lodgyng, and leaue them there. And Iosua set vp twolue stones in β myddes of Iordane, where β feet of the prestes stode, that bare β ARKE of the conuenant: and there they be yet vnto this daye. As for β prestes that bare β ARKE, they stode in the myddes of Iordane, vntyll all was performyd that the LORDE charged Iosua to saye vnto β people: & accordinge as Moses gaue Iosua in commaundment. The people also were halfe, and wente ouer. Now when all the people was gone ouer, the ARKE of the LORDE wente ouer also, and the prestes wente before the people.

And the Amozites, & Gaddites, and β halfe trybe of Manasse wente harnessyd before the childre of Israel, like as Moses had sayde vnto the: Aboute a fowte thousande men readye harnessyd to the warre, wente before the LORDE to the battayll, vpon β side of Jericho. In that daye the LORDE made Iosua greates in the sighte of all Israel: and like as the feare of Moses, so stode they in awe of him, all his life longe.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Commaunde the prestes which beare the ARKE of witness, that they come vp out of Iordane, So Iosua commaunded the prestes, & sayde: Come vp out of Iordane. And when the prestes β bare the ARKE of the conuenant of β LORDE were come out of Iordane, and crode with the soles of their feet vpon the drye lonbe, β water of Iordane came agayne in to his place, and stoned (like as afore tyme) vpon all his bankes.

It was γ tenth daye of the first moneth, when the people came vp out of Iordan: & they pitched their tentes in Edgall vpon β East syde of γ cite of Jericho. And β twolue stones which the γ had taken out of Iordane, dyd Iosua set vp at Gilgal, β side vnto the children of Israel: When youe children are their farther here after, & saye: What do these stones? Then ye shall tell thes, β saye: Israel wete drye thowou Iordane, what tyme as β LORDE your God dryed β water of Iordane before you, vntyll ye were ouer.

like as the LORDE ys God dyd in the reade 104. r. re, which he dyed up before vs, y we might be thorough: but all the people upon earth mighte knowe the hãde of the LORDE, how mightie it is, to the intent that ye shalbe all wãre feare the LORDE your God.

The V. Chapter.

2. Now when all the kynge of y Amo ritas that dwelle beyonde Iordane westward, and all the kynge of y Cananites by the sea syde herbe, how y LOR DE had dyed up the water of Iordane be fore the chyliden of y Israel, eyll they wene co me ouer: their hart sayled them, neither was there any more courage in them at the presen ce of the chyliden of y Israel.

104. b. At the same tyme sayde y LORDE vnto
 104. c. Iosua: Make the knyues of stone, & circum cise the chyliden of y Israel agayne the secon de tyme. Then Iosua made him knyues of stone, and circumcysed the chylid of y Israel upon the toppes of the forestynnes. And the cause why Iosua circumcysed all the males of the people y were come out of y Egypce, is this: for all the men of warre dyed in y wil dernesse by the waye, after they were depa rted out of y Egypce: for all the people that ca me forth, were circumcysed.

3. But all the people that were borne in y wyldernesse by the waye (after they depa rted out of y Egypce) were not circumcysed: for the chyliden of y Israel walked forty yea res in the wyldernesse, vntyll all the people of the men of warre that came out of y Egyp ce, were consumed, because they hardened not vnto the voyce of the LORDE, like as 104. d. the LORDE swaure vnto them, that they shalbe not the sonde, which the LORDE swaure vnto their fathers to gene vnto vs, euen a sonde that floweth with mylke & ho nye: their chyliden which were come up in their stead, dyd Iosua circumcise: for they had the foresayd tyme, and were not circumcys ed by the waye.

4. And when all the people were circumcys ed, they abode in their place, eut in y tites, eyll they were whole. And y LORDE saide vnto Iosua: Lo daie haue y turned y shame of y Egypce awaye from you, & the same pla ce was called Gulgall vnto this daye. And 104. e. while the chyliden of y Israel laye thus at Gulgall, they receyved Easter: the fourteenth daye of the moneth at eut in the silde of y richo. And they are of the come of the lãde the seconde daye of the Easter: namely, wile 104. f. sended dard, & ymentye of y year, eut the same daye. And upon the thirde, the Mian na sayled, when they are of the come of y londe, so that the chyliden of y Israel had ne more Manna, but ate of the come of the lan de of Canaan the same year.

And he forsaue the: why? Iosua went Jericho, he lixte up his eyes, & was aware that there stode a mã agaynst him, and had a naked sworde in his hande. And Iosua saide to him, & sayde vnto him: Art thou one of our enemies? he sayde: No, I am: the prynce of the LORDES booke, and now am I come. Then fell Iosua downe the earth upon his face, & worshipped him, and sayde vnto him: What saith my LOR DE vnto his seruant? And the prynce of the LORDES booke sayde vnto him: For y stanes of y set, for the place wher y set stonde, is holy. And Iosua dyd so.

The Vi. Chapter.

1. At for Jericho, it was that y tēpē cause of the chylid of y Israel, so that no man mighte go out nor in. But LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Desolbe, I ha ue given Jericho vnto y kynge and man of warre therof, in to y hande. Let all the of warre go once rounde aboute y cite, and do it sixe dayes. But upon the seventh daye let the prestes take the seven trompettes of the year of y Jubilye before the cite, and the same seventh daye seven tymes about the cite, and let the prestes blowe the trom pettes. And when the hoorn of the year of Jubilye bloweth and maketh a sounde, so that ye heare the trompettes, all the people shal make a grate hoare, then shal the wal les of the cite fall downe, and y people shal fall in, every one straight before him.

Then Iosua the sonne of Man called y prestes, and sayde vnto them: Heare ye the Arte of the covenant, and let seven prestes take the seven trompettes of the year of Jubilye before the Arte of the LORDE.
 But vnto the people he sayde: Get you up, and go rounde aboute the cite: and let that be harnesse, go before the Arte of the LORDE. When Iosua had spoken this vnto the people, the seven prestes bare the seven trompettes of the year of Jubilye before the Arte of the LORDE, and wente the trompettes, and the Arte of the LOR DES covenant folowed after them: and so was harnesse, wente before the prestes that blew the trompettes, and the man was folowed the Arte. And all man full of y noise of the trompettes. And Iosua commanded the people, and sayde: Ye shall be no shent, nor let your voyce be heard the shall ye giue one shoute out of youre mouth, vncyll the daye & I saye vnto your Make a shoute, then make a shoute.

C So the Arke of the LORDE wente once rounde aboute the cite, and came agayne in to & hooste, & remayned therein: for Iosua vsed to ryse vp early in the mornynge. And the prestes bare the Arke of the LORDE: so byd the seuen prestes beare the seuen trompettes of the yere of Iudalye before & Arke of the LORDE, and wente and blew the trompettes: and whoso was harnesssed, went in before the, but & mainteined folowed & Arke of the LORDE. And all was full of the noyse of the trompettes.

The seconde daye wente they once aboute the cite also, and came agayne in to the hoole. Thus byd the y firste daye. But vpon the seath daye when the mornynge spyngere aroft, they gat them vp early, and wente after the same maner seuen tymes aboute & cite, so that vpon the same one seuenh daye they wente seuen tymes aboute the cite.

D And as the seath tyme when the prestes blew the trompettes, Iosua sayde vnto the people Make a shoute, for & LORDE hath deliuered you the cite: & onbeir this cite, & all that is therein, shalbe damned vnto the LORDE: only the harlot Rahab shal lyue, & all that are with her in & house, for she hid the messengers, whom we sent forth.

122 • Only beware of it that is damned, lest ye damage youre selues (yf ye take ought of it which is damned, and make the hooff of Iudal to be damned, and bringe it in to mysfortune. But all the silyn and golde, with the ornamente of brass & yron, shalbe sanctified vnto the LORDE, that it maye come to the LORDES treasure.

Then made the people a greate shoute, and the prestes blew the trompettes (for when the people herde the noyse of the trompettes, they made a greate shoute)

124 • and the walles fell, and the people clym-

bed up in to the cite, every one straight before them. Thus they wanne & cite, and destroyed all that was in the cite with the exce of the sword, both man and woman, yonge and olde, of r, thepe, and & sic.

But Iosua sayde vnto & two men which had spyed out the londe: Go in to the house of the harlot, and bringe out the woman first thence with all that she hath, accordinge as ye haue sworn vnto her. Then & yonge men (the spyes) wente in, and broughte forth Ra hab with his father and mother, & brethren, and all that she had, and all his kynred, and caused her to dwell in the house of Iosua. As for the cite, they bent it with fyre, & all that was therein, only the silyn and golde, and the ornamente of brass and yron put they into the treasure in the house of & LORDE: but Iosua let: the harlot Rahab lyue, with his fathers house, and all that she had: & she dwelt in Iudal vnto this daye, because she had byd the messengers whos Iosua sent vnto Jericho to spye.

At the same tyme swaue Iosua, and sayde: Cursed be that man before the LORDE, which seeth vp this cite of Jericho & buildeth it: When he laeth & foundaith thereof, let it cost him his first borne: And wha he seeth vp the gates of it, let it cost him his yongest borne. Thus the LORDE was rich Iosua, so that he was spoken of in all londes.

The VI. Chapter.

B Ut the children of Iudal had comen & cut a sinne in the thinge & was damned: for Achai the sonne of Chari, the sonne of Gaddi the sonne of Setab, of & tribe of Iuda, rode some of it & was damned. Then was the wrath of the LORDE feared ouer the children of Iudal.

Now when Iosua sent out men from Jericho vnto Hai, which lyeth beynde Bethan on & east syde of Bethel, he sayde vnto them Go vp, and spye the londe. And when they had gone vp, and spyed out Hai, they came agayne to Iosua, and sayde vnto him: Let not all the people go vp, but vpon a two or three thousande, that they maye go vp and silyn Hai, lest all the people were yett with us there, for they are but fewe.

So there wente vp, of the people vpon a three thousande men, and they sled before the men of Hai, and they of Hai smote vpon a fyre and thyrte men of them: and chased them from the point vnto Bethan, and smote them downe the waye. Then was the heart of the people discomfited: and

16. 21. b became like water. As for Iosua he rente his clothes, and fell upon his face vnto the earth before the Ark of the LORD E, vntill the euening, with the Elders of Israel, and cast dust vpon their heades.

B And Iosua sayde: Oh LORD E LORD E, wherefore hast thou broughte this people out of Iordane, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites to destroye vs? What we had caried beonde Iordane, as we beganne. Oh my LORD E, what shal I saye, whyle Israel turneth his backe vpon his enemies? Whā the Cananites heare of this, they shal compass vs round aboute, yee and roce out our names from of the earth. What wylt thou do then vnto thy greace name?

Then sayde the LORD E vnto Iosua: Stee de vp, why lyest thou vpon thy face? Israel hath offended, and craigresed ouer my covenante, which I commaunded thei. They haue taken all of the thinge that was dammed, and haue stolen, and dysssembled, and layed it amonge their ornaments. The children of Israel are not able to stande before their abominacion, but must turne their backs vpon their enemies: for they are cursed. I wyl no more be with you from hence forth yf ye put not out the damned from amonge you.

C Steonde vp, and sanctifie the people, and saye: Sanctifie yo' selues agaynst memoire for thus sayeth the LORD E God of Israel: There is a damned thinge in the O Israel, therfore canst thou not stande before thine enemies, yll ye put awaye the damned from amonge you. And ye shall rise vp early, one tribe after another: and loke which tribes euer the LORD E taketh, the same shall come forth, one bynted after another: and loke which bynted the LORD E taketh, the same shall come forth, one house after another. And loke what house the LORD E taketh, the same shal come forth, one household after another. And who so euer is founde in y castles, the same shal be burne in the fire with all that he hath: because he hath gone beyond the covenante of the LORD E, and committed folye in Israel.

Then Iosua gat him vp by tymes in the morninge, and broughte forth Israel, one trib after another, and y trib of Iuda was taken. And when he had broughte forth the byntes in Iuda, y bynted of the Gerahites was taken. And when he had broughte forth the bynted of the Gerahites, one household after another, Sabei was taken. And when he had broughte forth his house, one house holder after another, Achan the sone of Charai y sone of Sabis the sone of Serah of the tribes of Iuda, was taken.

And Iosua sayde vnto Achan: My sone, geue the glory vnto the LORD E the God of Israel, and geue him the prayse, and let me, what thou hast done, and hide nothinge from me.

Then answered Achan vnto Iosua, and sayde: Verely I haue sinned agaynst y LORD E God of Israel, thus t thus haue I done. I saue amonge y spoiles a costly Babilonish garment, and two habdierh Syacles of siluer and a tange of golde, worth fiftye Syclas in weight, vnto the which I had a lust, and take it: and beholde, it is hy in the greente in my tente, and the siluer vnder it.

Then Iosua sent messengers thith, which came to the tente, and beholde, it was hyd in his tente, and the siluer vnder it. And they toke it out of the tente, and broughte vnto Iosua, and to all the children of Israel and poured it before the LORD E. Then Iosua and all Israel with him, toke Achan the sone of Serah with the filser, the garment and gold tange, his sones and daughter, his oren and asses, and shepe, and all that he had broughte they in to y valley of Achor.

And Iosua sayde: For so much as thou hast troubled vs, the LORD E trouble the thy daye. And all Israel stoned him, and burne him with fire with all that he had. And when they had stoned him, they made oren him a greate heape of stones, which remaineth vnto this daye. (So the LORD E turned from the rigourousnes of his wrath.) They ret to the same place called y valley of Achor vnto this daye.

The VIII. Chapter.

D Ith y LORD E saide vnto Iosua: Forth out, and be not afraid. Take all the men of warre with the, and rise, and geue the vp vnto Hai. Beholde, I haue geaue

In to thy hande, the kynge of Hai with his people in his cite z countre. And thou shalt do with Hai and the kynge of it, as thou dydest with Jericho and the kynge thereof. I say unto thee ye Hai deale amonge you their spoyle z cattell: but first thou a ptey watch behynde the cite.

Then Iosua arose, and all 3 men of warre, so go vp vnto Hai: and Iosua chose thirtie thousande fighting men, and sent them out by night, and commaunded them, and sayde: Take heede, ye shall be 3 ptey watch behynde the cite, but go not so farre from the cite, and se that ye be redye altogether. As for me and all the people that is with me, we will make vs to the cite. And when they come forth agaynst vs (* as afore) we will flye before them, that they maye folowe out as farre as they will: and when they shall thinke that we flye before them, like as at first. And whyle we flye before them, ye shall get you vp out of the ptey watch, and wynde the cite. For 3 LORDE your God shall deliuer it in to your handes. But when ye have wonne the cite, set fire vpon it, doings a cordinge vnto the worde of the LORD DE Beholde, I haue commaunded you.

So Iosua sent them awaye, z they wente vnto the place of the ptey watch, and laye betwixt Bebel and Hai, on the west syde of Hai. But Iosua abode that night amonge the people. And in the mornynge he arose early, and set the people in order, and wente up with the Elders of Israel before the people towards Hai: and all the men of warre that were with him, wente up, z gat them forth, and came ouer agaynst the cite, and pitched their tentes on the north syde of Hai, so 3 there was but a valley betwene him and Hai.

He had taken aboute a fyue thousande men, and set them in the hynder watch betwene Bebel and Hai, on the west syde of the cite, and they aduised the people of the whole host that was on the north syde of the cite, so that the veruost of the people reached vnto the west ende of the cite. So Iosua wente the same night in to the myddes of the valley.

But when the kynge of Hai sawe that, he made haist, and gat him vp early, and the men out of the cite, to mete Iosua to 3 battayll, with all his people, even righte before the silde: for he wist not that there was a ptey watch behynde him on the backe syde of the cite. But Iosua and all Israel went forth before them, and fled by the waye to 3 wilderness. Then cried alle the people in the cite, that they shoulde folowe vpon them, wher they folowed after Iosua and rushed out of the cite, so that there remayned not one man in Hai and Bebel, which wente not out to folowe vpon Israel, and they left the cite standinge open, that they mighte persecute Israel.

Then sayde 3 LORDE vnto Iosua: Reach out the speare that thou hast in thine hande, towards Hai: for I will deliuer it in to thy hande. And when Iosua reached out the speare that was in his hande, towards the cite, y hinder watch brake vp out of their place, and ranne: when he had streched out his hande, and came in to the cite, and wanne it, and made haist, z set fire vpon it. And the men of Hai turned them, and looked behynde them, and the smote of the cite wente up towarde heauen, and they had no place to flee vnto, neither higher nor thither: and the people that fled towards the wilderness turned aboute, to folowe vpon them.

And when Iosua and all Israel sawe, 3 the hynder watch had wonne the cite: for 3 smote of the cite ascended they turned agayne, and smote the men of Hai. And when the cite came forth also agaynst them, so 3 they came in the myddes amonge Israel on both the sydes, and they slawe them, so that there was not one man of them left: ouer of escaped: and they tode the kynge of Hai alive, and broughte him vnto Iosua. And when Israel had slayne all the inhabitants of Hai, which had solowed vpon them in the silde and in the wilderness: and when they were all fallen thowowthe edge of the sword, vnto Hai, and smote it with the edge of 3 sword. And of all them which fell that daye from man vnto woma, there were twolue thousande, all men of Hai.

But Iosua withtyme not his hande: wher with he reached out the speare vnto alle the inhabitants of Hai were utterly destroyed, sayinge the cattell and the spoyle of 3 cite, byd Israel parte amonge them selves, accordinge vnto the worde of the LORD, which he commaunded Iosua. And Iosua burned vp Hai and made an heape thereof for ever, which is there yet vnto this daye. And the kynge of Hai caused he to be hanged on a tree vntill the enen.

But when the Sonne was gone downe, he commaunded to take his body from the tree, and to cast it vnder the gates of the cite, and made vpon him a greates heape of stones, which is there yet vnto this day.

¶ Then bayded Iosua an alcare vnto the LORDE God of Israell vpon mount Elbal a cordinge as Moses the seruante of THE LORDE commaunded the children of Israell, as it is wytten in the booke of the lame of Moses euen an alcare of wholo stone, wherupon the re was no yron lifrad: and he offred burnt-offeringes and bealch offeringes, and there vpon the stones he wrote the secande lame of Moses, which he wrote before the childen of Israell.

¶ And all Israell with their Elders and oficers and iudges, stode on both the sydes of the Arde, righte over agaynst the prestes ¶ bare the Arde of the coneuant of the LORDE, the straunger as well as one of them selues, the one halfe besyde mount Gysim, and the other halfe besyde mount Elbal, as Moses the seruante of the LORDE commaunded afore, to blesse the people of Israell. Afterwarde caused he to proclame all the wordes of the lame of the blessinge and cursyng, as it is wytten in the booke of the lawe. There was not one worde that Moses commaunded, but Iosua caused it to be proclamed before all the congregacion of Israell, and before the womē, and childen, and straungers which walked amonge them.

The IX. Chapter.

¶ Now when all the kynges that were beyonde Jordane vpon the mountaynes, and in the lowe countrees, & in all the hauen of the greates see, and besyde mount Libanus, herde this (namely, ¶ Hechites, Amorites, Canaanites, Pherecites, Hevites, and Iebusites) they gathered the felous together with one accord, to fighte agaynst Iosua, and agaynst Israell.

But when the inhabitants of Gibeon herde, what Iosua had done with Jericho and Hay, they deale craftely, went on their waie, and made a messige, and toke olde sacces vpon their asses, and eldrentee wyne botles, and olde mended shues vpon their fete, and put on olde and peced garmentes, and all ¶ the bich of their veytales was harde and moulde, and they wente vnto Iosua in to ¶ hoofe at Gilgall, and sayde vnto him, and to every man in Israell: We are come out of a farre countree, therfore make now a couenante with vs. Then sayde every man in Israell vnto ¶ Hevites: Peradventure thei dwelless amonge vs, how can ¶ then make a couenante with thei:

They sayde vnto Iosua: We are ¶ strangers, Iosua sayde vnto them: What are ye, & whence come ye: They sayde: Thy seruantes are come out of a very farre countree, because of the name of the LORDE thy God: for we haue herde the reuice of him, and all that he byd in Egipte, and all that he byd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites besyde Jordane, vpon the kyng of Hay, and ¶ Og the kyng of Dasari, which dwelt at Astaroth. Therfore sayde oure Elders and all the inhabitants of oure countree: Take ye with you for youre iourney, and go mee them, and saye vnto them: We are your seruantes, therfore make now a bond with vs: This cure theyd that we toke out of our houses for oure foode, was now when we were ¶ iourney towards you: but now lo, it is harde & moulded. And these botles shall mewe, and lo, they are ete. And these are our shes and shues are waxed olde, by ¶ reason of the sore longe iourney.

Then the capteynes toke their veytales, and axed not the mouth of the LORDE. And Iosua made peace with them, and made vpon a couenante with them, that they should be saved alwey, and the rulers of the congregacion swore vnto them. But the wyne after that they had made a couenante with them, they herde, that they were their neighbours, and badde amonge them: For as the children of Israell wente forth on their iourney, they came on the thirde daye vnto the cities, which are called Gibeon, Captha, Beeroth, and Cirath Jerarim, and smote thei not, because that the rulers of the congregacion had swome vnto them by the name of the LORDE the God of Israell.

But when all the congregacion murmured agaynst the rulers, all the rulers sayde vnto the whole congregacion: We haue swome vnto them by the LORDE the God of Israell, therfore maye we not touch them. But this wil we do vnto them: Let them be, we, that there come no weath vpon vs, because of the oath that we haue made vnto them.

And the rulers sayde vnto them: Let them lye, that they maye be ¶ brekers of word and bearers of water for the whole congregacion, as the rulers haue sayde vnto them. Then Iosua called them, and commaunded with them, and sayde: Wherfore are ye diseaued vs, and sayde, that ye were farre from vs, where as ye dwell amonge vs: Therfore shall ye be cursid, so that of you there shall not cease seruante ¶ hem wold and to beare water for the hoofe of my God.

They answered Iosua, & sayde: It was wold by seruantes, that the LORDE thy God commaunded vs to his seruantes, that he shold geue you the whole lode, and that he wold destroye all the inhabitants of the lode before you: therefore were we fone a strayde of our lynes before you, and thus haue we done. But now lo, we are in thy handes: loke what thou thinkest good and righte to do vnto vs, that do.

And he byd euery so vnto them, and deliuered them from the children of Israels hie beche, that they shulde not slaie them. So vps the same daye Iosua made them beuers of wodd and water beaters for the congregation, and for the alectre of the LORDE vnto this daye, in the place that he shall choise.

The X. Chapter.

When Adonisedech the kynge of Ierusalem herde, that Iosua had wonne Hebron, and burned it, and bore vnto Hebron & kynge of it, like as he byd vnto Jericho and to the kynge thereof, and that they of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were come vnder them, they were sore afrayed. For Gibeon was a greate cite, like vnto one of the kynges cities, and greater then Hebron, and all the citifens thereof were men of armes. Therfore sent he vnto Hoham the kynge of Hebron, and to Piria the kynge of Jarmuth, and to Iaphia the kynge of Lachis, and to Debir the kynge of Eglon, and caused to saie vnto them: Come vnto me, and helpe me, that we maie fyny vnto Gibeon, for they haue made peace with Iosua and the children of Israel. Then came the fyve kynge of the Amoriters together, and wente vp, the kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon, with all their armies, & layed siege vnto Gibeon, and foughte agaynst it.

Howbeit they of Gibeon saie vnto Iosua to Gilgall, and caused to saie vnto him: Withdawe not thine hande from thy seruantes, come vp soone vnto vs: deliuerer and helpe vs, for all the kynge of the Amoriters that dwell vpon the mountaynes, are gathered together agaynst vs. Iosua wente vp from Gilgall, and all the warryers and all the men armes with him. And the LORDE saie vnto Iosua: Feare them not, for I haue geue them in to thy hande. There shall not one of them be able to stande before the,

So Iosua came suddenly vpon them, for all that nighte wente he vp from Gilgall. And the LORDE discomfyred the before Israel, and smote them with a greate slaughter at Gibeon: & they chauced them the waye downe to Beth Hoan, and smote them vnto Hebron and Maabeda.

And when they fled before Israel, the waye downe to Bethoron, the LORDE caused a greate hayle from heauen to fall vpon them, vnto Hebron, so that they dyed many mo of them dyed of the hayle, then the children of Israel slewe with the swerde.

Then spake Iosua vnto the LORDE the same daye that the LORDE gaue ouer the Amoriters before the children of Israel, and saide in the piasance of Israel: Some, he shalde stayll at Gibeon, and then Moone in the valley of Aialon.

Then the Sonne heide stayll, and the Moone stode, vntill the people had auenged the selues on their enemies. Is not this wrytten in the booke of the righteous: Thus the Sonne stode stayll in the myddes of heauen, and dyffered to go downe for the space of a whole daye after. And there was no daye like vnto this (neither before ner after man) the LORDE hardened vnto the voyce of one man: for the LORDE foughte for Israel. And Iosua wente agaynto Gilgall in to the rase, and all Israel with him. So for the fyve kynge, they were fled, and had byd the selues in the caue at Maabeda.

Then was it tolde Iosua: We haue forsaken the fyve kynge of the caue at Maabeda. Iosua saie: Rolle greate stones then before the hole of the caue, and sit men there to kepe them.

As for you, stande not ye stayll, but folowe after youre enemies, and smyte them behynde, and let them not come in their cities, for the LORDE your God hath deliuered the in to youre hande. And when Israel and the children of Israel had ended the sore greate slaughter vps them, so they were broughte to naughte, the remanens of them came in to the stronge cities.

So all the people came agaynto the hoofe vnto Iosua to Maabeda in prace, and no man durst moue his tynge agaynst the children of Israel. Iosua saie: Open the mouth of the caue, and bynne the fyve kynge forth vnto me. They byd so, and broughte the kynge vnto him out of the caue: the kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon.

When these fyve pynges were broughte forth vnto him, Iosua called every man of Israel, and sayde vnto the rulers of the men of warre that were with him: Come forth and create vpon the neckes of these pynges with youre seer. And they came forth, and trode vpon their neckes with their seer. And 12 Iosua saide vnto them: Be not afraid, and feare not: be stronge and bolde, for thus shal the LORDE do vnto all yo^r enemies, agaynst whom ye fighte.

Deut. 11. d And Iosua smote them afterwarde, and put them to deathe, and hanged them vpon fyve trees. And they hanged stylly vpon the trees vntill the euenyng. But when the

Some was gone downe, he commaunded to take them off from the trees: and they cast them in the caue, wherem they had hyd them selues, to be foire the hole of the caue they layed greete stones, in which are there yet vnto this daye. The same daye warne Iosua

Deut. 11. c Makeda also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the pynges therof, and dammed it, and all the soules that were therein, and let none remayne escaped: and byd vnto the pynges of Makeda, as he byd vnto the pynges of Jericho.

13 Then Iosua and all Israel with him departed fro Makeda vnto Eynon, and foughte agaynst it. And the LORDE gaue it with the pynges therof inco the hande of Israel, and smote it and all the soules that were therein, with the edge of the swerde, and let none remayne in it: and byd vnto the kinge therof as he had done vnto the pynges of Jericho.

14 Afterwarde wente Iosua and all Israel with him from Eynon vnto Lachis, and layed sege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it. And the LORDE deliuered Lachis also inco the hande of Israel, so that they warne it vpon the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, accordinge to all as he had done vnto Eynon. At the same tyme Iosua the pynges of Gazer wente vnto helpe Lachis. But Iosua smote him with all his people, tyll there remayne nor one.

And Iosua wente with all Israel from Lachis, vnto Elgon, and layed sege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it, and warne it the same daye. At the same tyme he smote it with the edge of the swerde, and dammed all the soules that were therein the same daye, accordinge vnto all as he had done vnto Lachis.

After that wente Iosua with all Israel from Elgon vnto Gebion, and foughte agaynst it, and warne it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the pynges of it, vnto all the cities therof, and all the soules that were therein, and let none remayne, and byd vnto all as he had done vnto Elgon, and dammed it, and all the soules that were therein.

Then turned Iosua agayne with all Israel towarde Debir, and foughte agaynst it, and warne it, with the pynges of it, and all the cities therof, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and dammed all the soules that were therein, and let none remayne. Then as he had done vnto Hebron and Lyona with their pynges, so byd he also vnto Debir, and the pynges therof.

Thus Iosua smote all the londe vpon the mountaynes, and towarde the south, and the londe countrees, and by the ryuers, vnto all their pynges, and let none remayne, and dammed all that had been, as the LORDE God of Israel had commaunded. He Iosua smote them from Canaan Berma in to Gaza, and all the londe of Gosen vnto Beon, and rote all these pynges with the swerde at one tyme: for the LORDE God of Israel foughte for Israel. And Iosua was agayne with all Israel to the tentes in Gilgal.

The XI. Chapter.

1 When Iosua the pynges of Iosua be this, he sent vnto Jabob the pynges of Mazon and co the pynges Samron, and to the pynges of Achaph, as to the pynges that dwelt towarde the mountaynes, and in the playn the southside of Euerob, and in the countrees, and in the lordshippes of Iosua the see syde: and to the Cananites towarde east and west, to the Amorites, Gethites, Hivites, and Jebusites, vpon the mountaynes, and to the Hivites, vnto mount Gabaon the londe of Mispa. These were one with their armie, a greete people, as many as the soules of the six, and exchaunge many selues, and charrettes. All these pynges gathered selues, and came, and pitched together by the water of Merom, to fighte with Israel.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: feare them not, for comen to be vnto this tyme I deliuer them all slayne, be fore the chace of Israel: thou shalt lame their horses, and burne their charrettes with fire. And Iosua came sodenly vpon them, and all the men of warre with him by the water of Merom, fell vpon them. And the LORDE deliuered them inco the handes of Israel, and they smote them, and chaaced them vnto greete and to the warme water, and to the playne of Milpa towards y^e eastward smote them, wchall there remayned not one.

Then healte Iosua with them as y^e LORD had saide vnto him, & lamed theiſe hoises, & burnt theiſe chariotes. And he returned backe at the same tyme, & warme Hasor, & smote y^e kynge of it wch the swerde, for Hasor was a foſt tyme y^e head cite of all theſe kyngdomes) and smote all the ſonles that were therein wch the edge of the ſwerde, and damned it, & let nothing remayne thac had beech, & damned Hasor with fyre. All the cities of theſe kyngdomes wane Iosua also, and smote theſe with the edge of the ſwerde, and damned them, accordinge as Moſes the ſeruaunt of the LORDE commaunded.

Howbeit the cities that ſtoode vpon the hills, dyd not the children of Iſrael burne with fyre: but Hasor onely dyd Iosua burne. And all the ſpoiles of theſe cities and the cattell, dyd the children of Iſrael deale amonge them, but smote all the men with the edge of the ſwerde, yll they had deſtroyed them, and let nothing remayne that had beech. As the LORDE commaunded his ſeruaunt Moſes, and as Moſes commaunded Iosua, even so dyd Iosua, ſo that there was nothinge vnto of all that the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

So Iosua rote all this lode vpon y^e mountayne, & all y^e lreth towards the ſouth, & all the londe of Goſen, and the lowe countre, & the playne felde, and the mountayne of Iſrael with the valley therof, from the mountayne that parteth the londe vpon towards Seir, vnto Baalgad, in the playne of moſt Libanus beneath mount Hermon. All theſe kynges rote he, and smote them, and put theſe to death. Howbeit he warred a longe ſeaſon with theſe kynges.

Yet now there not one cite, that yeldd it ſelfe peaceably vnto the children of Iſrael (excepte the Heuites, which dwelt at Gibeon) but they warne them all with battayll. And this was done ſo of the LORDE that their hart was ſo hardened, to come againſt the children of Iſrael with battayll, y^e they might be dined, & no ſauoure to be ſhewed vnto them, but to be deſtroyed, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

At the ſame tyme came Iosua, and rothe out the Kenakims from y^e mountayne, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, from every mountayne of Iuda, and from every mountayne of Iſrael, and damned theſe with their cities, and let none of theſe Canakims remame in the londe of the children of Iſrael, ſauce at Gaſa, at Gath, at Aſdod, there remayned of them.

Thus Iosua conquered all the londe and bringe vnto all as the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes, & gaue it vnto Iſrael to inheritance, vnto euer y^e lye his poſſion, and y^e lode be reſted from warre.

The XII. Chapter.

These are y^e kynges of the londe, wch the children of Iſrael smote, & conquered their lode, beyonde Iordane, eastward, fro the water of Arnon, vnto mount Hermon, and vnto all y^e playne felde towards the east: Sibon the kyng of the Amoritres, which dwelt at Heſbon, and had dominion from Aroer that lieth by the water ſyde of Arnon, and vnto the myddes of y^e marauder ouer halfe Silead, vnto the water of Iabok, which is the border of the children of Ammon: and ouer the playne felde, vnto the ſe of Cymmeroth eastward, and vnto the ſe of the playne felde, namely the Salt ſe towards the east, the waye vnto Bech Jeſimoth: and from the ſouth beneath by the ryuers of mount Pilga.

And the border of Og the kyng of Baſan, which remayned yet of Kaphaim, and dwelt at Aſtaroth and Edrei, and had the dominion ouer moſt Hermon, ouer Balcham, and ouer all Baſan vnto the border of Geſſuri & Maachati, & of halfe Silead, which was the border of Sibon the kyng at Heſbon. Moſes the ſeruaunt of the LORDE and the children of Iſrael smote them. And Moſes the ſeruaunt of y^e LORDE gaue it vnto the Rubenites, Gadmites and to the halfe trybe of Manasſe in poſſiſſion.

These are the kynges of the lode, whom Iosua & the children of Iſrael smote on this ſyde Iordane westward, fro Baalgad vnto the playne of ſmoone Libanus, vnto y^e moſt that parteth the londe vpon towards Seir, & that Iosua gaue vnto the trybes of Iſrael in poſſiſſion, vnto euerie one his parte, what so met was in 3 moztaynes, valleyes, playne felde, by the ryuers, in 3 wyldernesces & towards the south, the Geshizites, Amoitites, Cananites, Pherezites, Ghanites, and Iebusites.

C The kynge of Jericho, the kynge of Hai, which lieth beyde Bethel, the kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Iarmoth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon, the kynge of Geser, the kynge of Debir, the kynge of Geber, the kynge of Heoma, the kynge of Arab, 3 kynge of Libna, the kynge of Abdulla, the kynge of Madaba, the kynge of Bethel, the kynge of Tapnah, the kynge of Sepher, the kynge of Apher, the kynge of Lasaron, the kynge of Madan, the kynge of Hazer, the kynge of Simon Meron, the kynge of Achaph, the kynge of Tabenah, the kynge of Megido, the kynge of Cades, the kynge of Jakneam by Carmel, the kynge in the lordshippes of Doi, the kynge of the Heitken at Gilgall, the kynge of Thirsa. These are one and thirtie kynges.

The XIII. Chapter.

When Iosua was olde and red stricken in age, the LORD sayde vnto him: Thou art olde & well aged, and there remaineth yet much of the londe to conquer, namely all Galile of the Philistynes, and all Gessuri, from Sibon which floweth before Egypte, vnto the border of Ebron, northward, which is reftend vnto the Cananites: fyve lordes of the Philistynes, namely, the Gassites, the Asidobites, the Ascalonites, the Geshizites, the Ebronites & the Ghanites. But from the north it is all 3 londe of the Cananites, and Maara of the Sidonians vnto Apher, euen vnto the border of the Amoitites. Moreover the londe of the Gilybes eastward, from Daalgab vnder mount Hermon, vnto a ma come vnto Hamath. All they that dwell vpon the mount, from Libanus vnto the warme waters, and all the Sidonians. I wil dayue them out before the children of Israel: Oncly let them be deale out amonge Israel, as I haue commaunded the.

Beynde thou this londe now to inheritaunce amonge the nyne tribes and 3 halfe trybe of Manasse. For the Rubenites & Gad vices with 3 halfe trybe of Manasse, haue receaued their inheritaunce, which Moses gaue the beyonde Iordane eastward, according as Moses the seruaunt of the LORD gaue them the same, from Aroer which lieth vpon the water syde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the water, & all the countie of Moaba vnto Dibon, and all the countie of Sibon the kynge of the Amoitites, which dwelt at Hebron, vnto the border of the children of Ammonian Gilead and 3 berder of Gessuri and Maadani, and all mount Hermon, and all Dasan vnto Salcha: all 3 kynghomes of Og at Dasan, which dwelt at Astaroth and Edrei, that remained yet out of Raphaim. But Moses smote them and dayue them out.

The children of Israel diene not on the Gessurites & Maadachites, but both Gessur and Maadach dwelt amonge the children of Israel vnto this daye. But vnto 3 trybe of the Leuites he gaue an inheritaunce for the offeringe of the LORD: Gosh of Israel to their inheritaunce, according as he hath promysed them.

So Moses gaue vnto the trybe of 3 children of Ruben after their kynreds, from their border was Aroer, which lieth vpon the water syde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the same water, with all the playne felde vnto Hebron: Hebron, and all the countie thereof which lye in the playne felde Dibon, Bamoth Baal, 2 Beth Baal Meon, Jabba, Achemoth, Meppaath, Ainarithaim, Sibama, Zereth Sabar, vpon mount Lemel, Beth Peor: the ryuers by Pilsa, and Beth Jeshimech, and all the countie vpon the playne, and all the countie of Sibon kynge of the Amoitites, which dwelt at Hebron, whom Moses smote with the prynces of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur, 2 Rebo, the mightie men of kynge Sibon, which were inhabitants of the londe. And Balaam the sonne of Beor the prophecier, vnto the children of Israel kill with the sworde amonge the other that were slayne: and the border of 3 childre of Ruben was Iordane. This is the inheritaunce of the children of Ruben amonge their kynreds, countie and citylages.

Vnto the trybe of the children of Gad amonge their kynreds gaue Moses, so that their border was, Jabesar and all the countie in Gilead, and the halfe londe of the children of Ammon, vnto Aroer, which lieth before Rebbach: 2 Bacomin: and from Mamman vnto the border of Debir. And in the valley, Beth Haram, Beth Timra, Bethoth and Zaphon, which remaind yet of the countie of Sibon kynge of Hebron, and was by Iordane, vnto the edge of the cite of Cymeroth, on this syde Iordane eastward.

This is the inheritance of the children of Gad in their kynreds, cities & wyllages.

^a And the halfe trybe of the children of Manasse after their kynreds, gave Mosse, for that their border was fro Mahanaim, all Basan, alle the kyngdome of Og kynge of Basan, and alle the townes of Jair which he in Basan, namely the scoie cities. And halfe Gilead, Ashtarath, & Beer, the cities of the kyngdome of Og at Basan, vnto the dyuyn of Machir the sonne of Manasse. This is the halfe portion of the children of Machir after their kynreds.

This is it that Mosse deales out vpon the side of Moab beyonde Jordans ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde. • But vnto the trybe of Leui gave Mosse no inheritance: for the LORDE God of Israel is their inheritance, as he hath promysed them.

The XIII. Chapter.

^a This is it that the children of Israel haue inhereted in the londe of Canaan, which Eleazar the pish. and Iosua the sonne of Nūn, and the cheif of the fathers amonge the trybes of the children of Israel parted out amonge them. • But by lot they deuayde it out amonge them, accordinge as the LORDE commaunded Mosse to geue vnto the nyne trybes and the halfe byd Mosse geue inheritance beyonde Jordane. • But vnto the Leuites he gaue no inheritance amonge them. • For of the childre of Joseph there were two trybes, Manasse and Ephraim. Therfore gaue they the Leuites no portion in the londe, but cities, to dwell therein, and suburbs for their cattell and goodes. • Euen as the LORDE commaunded Mosse, so dyd the childre of Israel, and deuayded the londe.

^b Then came forth the children of Iuda to Iosua at Gilgall: and Caleb the sonne of Iephonne the Amisitayde vnto him: Thou knowest what the LORDE sayde vnto Mosse the man of God, concerninge me and the land of Canaan. • I was fortye year olde, when Mosse the seruante of the LORDE sawe me out from Canaan Bernea, to spye out the londe, and I broughte him wordes agayne, euen as I had it in my hert. • Howbeit my brethren that wente vp with me, discordede the hert of the people: but I followed the LORDE my God vnto the vtmost.

^c Then I bare Mosse vnto me the same daye, and sayde: The londe wher upon thou hast troden with thy fote, shalbe thine inheritance and thy childrens for ever, becaus se thou hast followed the LORDE my God vnto the vtmost. • And now hath the LORDE letten me lyue, • accordinge as he sayde. • It is now fyue and foure year since the LORDE spake this vnto Mosse, when Israel dwelled in the wilderness. • And now so, this daie am I fyue and foure score year olde. • and am yet as stronge to daye, as I was in that daye when Mosse sent me out: euen as my strength was then, so is it now also to fight, and to go out and in.

• Woe me now therfore this meanes, wherof the LORDE spake in that daye, and thou herdest it the same daye: for now the Canaites dwell therein, and it hath greates and stronge cities: yf haply the LORDE wyl be with me, that I maye deuyde the one, as he hath sayde. • Then Iosua blessed him, and so gaue Hebron vnto Caleb the sonne of Iephonne. • Therfore was Hebron the inheritance of Caleb the sonne of Iephonne the Kenite, vnto this daye, because he followed the LORDE God of Israel vnto the vtmost. • But a fute tyme was Hebron called Aitriathara, & greates people were there amonge the Canaites. • And the lorde ceased from warre.

The XV. Chapter.

The lode of the trybe of the children of Iuda amonge their kynreds, was the coaste of Edom by the wilderness of Sin, which bordereth southwarde on the edge of the seyd coostes. • Ther south borders were from the vtmost syde of the salte see, that is, from the coast that goeth southwarde, and cometh out from thence toward the cast byde of Arabidim, and goeth forth thowen Zinna, and yet goeth vp from the south toward Canaan Bernea, and goeth thowen Hebron, and goeth vnto Beers, & fetcheth a compass aboute Carca, & goeth thowen Asmona, and cometh forth to the ryuer of Egipze, so that the see is the ende of the border. • Let this be youre border southwarde.

• But the east border is from the sale seede the vtmost parte of Jordane.

The border northwarde, is from the se coast which is on the edge of Jordane, and goeth vp vnto Beth Hagla, and stretcheth out from the north vnto Betharabs, and cometh vp vnto the stone of Bohan the sonne of Aben, and goeth vp vnto Bethie from the valley of Achor, and fall from the north coast that is toward Gilgall, which lieth ouer agaynst Abonim upwarde, which is on the north syde of the water. • Then goeth it vnto 3 water of Ensema, and commeth out vnto the well of Rogid. Then goeth it vnto the valley of the soune of Ginnam, a longe beynde the Jebusite that dwellecth from 3 southward, that is Jerusalem: and commeth vp vnto the toppes of the mount which lyeth before the valley of Ginnam from the westwarde, that bordereth on the edge of the valley of Raphaim towards the north.

C Then commeth it from the toppes of the same mount vnto the water well of Nephcoah, and commeth out vnto the cities of mount Ephraim, and boweth towarde Baala, that is Ariath Jarim, and stretcheth a course aboute from Baala westwarde vnto mount Seir, and goeth by the north syde of the mount Jarim, that is Chesalon: and cometh downe to Berthesme, and goeth thowrre Chimna, and breaketh out on the north syde of Aeron, and stretcheth south towards Sicron, and goeth ouer mount Baala, and commeth out vnto Jabuel: so that their westmost border is the see.

The weste border is the greates see. This is the border of the children of Iuda rounde aboute in their Pynteds. Caleb the sonne of Iephune had his poision geue him among the children of Iuda (as the LORD ECG maunded Iosua) namely, Kiriatparba of the father of Enak, that is Hebron.

D And Caleb drewe from thence the three somes of Enak, Sefai, Ahiman, and Thalmas begeten of Enak. And from thence he wrote vnto the inhabiteres of Debir. (As for Debir, it was called Kiriat Sepher afore tyme.) And Caleb sayde: Who so smyteth Kiriat Sepher and wynteth it, I will geue him my daughter Achsa to wyfe. Then Achiel the sonne of Aenas the brother of Caleb wanne it: and he gaue him his daughter Achsa to wyfe.

And it fortuneth vpon them when they were in, that she was conueled of hir housbande, to a pece of lonbe of hir father. And she fell downe from the asse. Then sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: Geue me a blessing, for thou hast geue me a south (and drye) lonbe: geue me welles of water also. Then gaue he her welles aboute and beneth.

E This is the inheritance of the trybe of Iuda amonge their Pynteds. And the cities of the trybe of the children of Iuda, from one to another by the coastes of the Libornites towarde the south, were these: Cabzeel, Eder, Jagur, Sima, Dumona, Adath, Aedes, Hazor, Iachnam, Giph, Telem, Bulec, Hazor Gadatha, Kiriet Beyron, that is Hazor: Ama, Etma, Molada, Hazor Gadaba, Hesmon, Beth palet, Hazor Sual, Dur Seba, Bistrotin, Baala, Jim, Azan, Epha Lab, Chesil, Harma, Ziklag, Matnanna, San Sana, Lebaoth, Silhim, Ain, Kink. These are nyne and twenty cities & their villages.

But in the lome countrees was Ephraim: Zeren, Asna, Saroa, Engannim, Chapuz, Enam, Jarmoth, Abulam, Socho, Aize, Saaraim, Abithaim, Gedera, Giderotim. These are fouretee cities & their villages.

Bené Habasa, Migdal Gad, Dolea, Mipa, Jachiel, Lachis, Becherath, Eglis, Chidon, Lachma, Chirphis, Gideroth, Bethdagon, Naama, Makeda. These are sixtee cities and their villages.

Libna, Ezer, Asin, Jephthah, Aza, Teyth, Aza, Achib, Maraja. These are nyne cities and their villages. Othron wyth his daughters and villages. From Othron vnto the see, all that reacheth vnto Ashod and the villages thereof. Ashod wyth his daughters and villages thereof. Gasa wyth his daughters and villages vnto the water of Egipce. And the greates see is his border.

But vpon the mount was Samir, Jertir, Socho, Danua, Ariath Sama, that is Debir: Anab, Esphemo, Amim, Gofin, Hebron, Gilo. These are cleuen cities and their villages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, Jura, Jafael, Jafdeu, Sanoah, A ain, Giba, Thoma. These are ten cities and their villages. Halhal, Bethsur, Gedoa, Moarath, Beth Anoth, Elkhekon. These are six cities and their villages. Kiriat Baal (that is Ariath Jarim) Harabba, two cities & their villages. And in the wilderness was Berthara, Midbin, Gachaba, Tibsan, and the Sale cite, and Engabbi. These are six cities and their villages. But the Iudites were at Jerusalem, and the children of Iuda coude not dryue them awaye. So the Jebusites remaine wyth the children of Iuda at Jerusalem vnto this daye.

The XVI. Chapter.

D And the see fell vnto the children of Ephraim froe Iordane out agaynst Jericho, vnto the water on the east syde of Jericho, and the wilderness. I goeth vp from Jericho thowrre the mountaynes of Bethel, and commeth out from Bethel vnto Lusa, and goeth thowrre the coast of Aciaroth, and stretcheth downe westward.

be unto β coaste of Iaphleto β border of the lower Bethoron, and unto Gaser: and the end thereof is by the greatest. This the children of Joseph (Manasse & Ephraim) received to inheritance.

The border of the children of Ephraim amonge their kynreds of their inheritance from the east, was Aaroth Abar unto the upper Bethoron, & goeth out westwarde by the Ilichmethath that lyeth toward the north, there reacheth it a compass toward β the east syde of the cite Chanath Silo, and goeth there thowen from the east unto Janoha, and cometh downe from Janoha unto Aaroth and Naaratha, and boundeth on Jericho, and goeth out at Jordane. From Thepuah goeth it westwarde unto Halkama, and the out goinge of it is at the sea.

This is the inheritance of the trybe of the children of Ephraim amonge their kynreds. And all the borders, cities with their villages of the childre of Ephraim laye scattered amonge the inheritance of the children of Manasse. And they done not out β Cananites, which dwelt at Gaser. So β Cananites remayned amonge Ephraim unto this daye, and became tributaries.

The XVII. Chapter.

X And the lot fell vpo the trybe of Manasse: for he is Josephs first sonne) and it fell vpon Nachir the first sonne of Manasse β father of Gilead: for he was a mi of armes, therefore had he Gilead and Basan. It fell also vnto the other children of Manasse, namely vnto β childre of Abieser, the children of Helek, the children of Afriel, the children of Sechem, the children of Jether, and the children of Semida: These are the childre of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, males, amonge their kynreds.

But Zelapheab the sonne of Jether the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, had no sonnes, but daughteres, and their names are these: Mahala, Noa, Hogia, Milca, Tirza, and they came before Eleazar the prest, and before Iosua the sonne of Nun, and before the rulers, and sayde: The LORDE commaunded Moses, to geue vs inheritance amonge oure brethren. And so they had inheritance gotten them amonge their fathers brethren, according to the commaundement of the LORDE.

β There fell vpon Manasse ten meynes without the londe of Gilead and Basan, which lyeth beynde Jordane. For β daughteres of Manasse receaved inheritance amonge his sonnes: but the other children of Manasse had the londe of Gilead. And the border of Manasse was first Asser south vnto Mid, methath, that lyeth before Sichem, and reacheth vnto the righte syde of them of En Tapuah: for the londe of Tapuah fell vnto Manasse, and the border of Manasse is vnto the childre of Ephraim. Then cometh it downe to Habelana toward the south syde of the ryuer cities, which are Ephraims amonge the cities of Manasse. But from the north is the border of Manasse by the ryuer, and goeth south by the sea syde, south ward vnto Ephraim, and to Manasse northwarde, and the sea is his coaste. And it shal border on Asser from the north, and on Isachar from the east.

So (amonge Nachar and Asser) Manasse had Beth Swan and the towne thereof, and Jehlaam and the towne thereof, and them of Doi and their towne, and them of En Doi and their towne, & them of Eanach and their towne, and them of Magdebo and their towne, and the thirde parte of (the cite) Tophet. And the children of Manasse coude not dryue awaye the inhabitants of these cities, but the Cananites beganne to dwell in the same londe. So betwixt when the children of Israel were able, they made the Cananites tributaries, and diuise them not out.

Then spake the children of Joseph vnto Iosua, and sayde: Wherefore hast thou gaue me but one portion and one meyne of inheritance, and I am yet a greete people, as the LORDE hath blessed me so largely? Then sayde Iosua vnto them: For so much as thou art a greete people, go vp therefore vnto β wod, and make thy selfe sonne the re in the londe of the Pheristees and Raphaim, for yenge nioit Ephraim is so narrowe for the.

Then sayde the children of Joseph: We shal not be able to attayne vnto the mountaynes, for there are yon charitees amonge all the Cananites, that dwell in the londe of Emek, by whom lyeth Beth Swan and the villages thereof, and Israhel in Emek. Iosua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, enen to Ephraim and Manasse: Thou art a greete people, & for so much as thou art so greete, thou must not haue one lot, but the meyn sayne where β wod is, shal be thine: & for out for β , so shall it be the out goinge of thy porcion, when thou diuident out the Canaanites, which haue yet charozes, & are mighty.

The XVIII. Chapter.

AND all the multitude of the children of Israel gathered them selues together vnto Silo, and they set vp γ Tabernacle of witness, and the londe was diuided vnto them. But there were yet seven tribes of the children of Israel, vnto whom they had not deuised their inheritance. And Iosua sayde vnto the children of Israel: How longe are ye so slowe, to go and conquer the londe, which the LORD God of your fathers hath geuen you: Chose you the men out of euery tribe, γ I maye sende them, and that they maye get them vp and go thorow the londe, and describe it accordinge to the inheritance thereof, and come vnto me.

Deuide the londe in seven partes, Iudas shal remayne vpon his borders of the south syde, and the house of Ioseph shal remayne vpon his borders of the north parte: but describe ye the londe in seven partes, and byn get them vnto me, then shal I cast γ lot for you before the LORD our God. For the Lewites haue no porcion amonge you, but the pasture of the LORD is their inheritance. As for Gad & Ruben and γ halfe tribe of Manasse, they haue receaued their inheritance beyonde Iordane eastwarde, which Moses the seruante of the LORD gaue them.

When the men gat vp, to go their waye. And when they were aboute to go so to describe the londe, Iosua commanded them, and sayde: Go your waye, and make shew of the londe, and describe it, and come agayne vnto me, that I maye cast γ lot for you before the LORD at Silo. So the men departed, and wente thorow the londe, and described it in seven partes vpon a letter accordinge to the cities, and came to Iosua in the hoost at Silo. Then Iosua cast the lot ouer them at Silo before the LORD, and there distributed the londe amonge the children of Israel, vnto euery one his parte.

And the lot of the tribe of the children of Ben Iamin fell accordinge to their kynreds, and the border of their lot wente out betwene the children of Iuda & the children of Ioseph. And their border was on the north quarter of Iordane, and goeth vp from the north syde of Jericho, and commeth vp to the mountaine westwarde, and goeth out by the wyldernes of Bethanien, and goeth from thence towarde Lns, then by the south syde of Lns (that is Bethel) and commeth downe vnto Beeroth Bar by the mountaine which lyeth on γ south syde of the londe, Bethouen. Then betwixt it downe, and so theye a compass vnto the fourth west quarter from the mounte that lyeth ouer agayn, Bethouen towarde the south, and goeth vnto Atriath Baal, γ is Atriath Jearim, a cite of the children of Iuda. This is the west border.

But the south border is from Atriath Jearim south, and goeth out towarde the west, and commeth south vnto γ water well of Nepehoah: and goeth downe by the edge of the mounte, that lyeth before the valley of the sonne of Ginnam: and goeth downe thorow the valley of Ginnam on γ south syde of the Jebusites, and commeth downe to the well of Rogell, and stretcheth from the northwarde, and commeth out vnto the Simeon, and commeth south to the bespae that lyeth vnto the Beeroth, and cometh downe vnto γ playne felde, and commeth beynde Beth Hagla that lyeth towarde the north, and his ende is at the north border of the Salt sea, vnto γ edge of Iordane south ward. This is the south border.

But Iordane shal be the ende of the east quarter. This is the inheritance of γ children of Ben Iamin in their borders round aboute, amonge their kynreds.

The cities of the tribe of the children of Ben Iamin amonge their kynreds are these: Jericho, Beth Hagla, Enet Reys, Baal raba, Zemaraim, Bethel, Anun, Happer, Ephra, Capbar Amona, Ephra, Gab: these are twoules cities and their villages.

Gibeon, Rama, Beeroth, Mispa, Capbara, Mose, Kefem, Jerpaal, Thareala, Sela, Eleph, and the Jebusites, that is Iussaleim, Beeroth, Atriath: these are souerain cities and their villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Ben Iamin in their kynreds.

The XIX. Chapter.

When fell the seconde lot of the tribe of the children of Simeon accordinge to their kynreds, and their inheritance was amonge the inheritances of γ children of Iuda. And to their inheritance they had Beer Geba, Molaba, Gasa, Sual, Basa, Azem, Eli Tholad, Bethel.

The booke of Iosua.

hama, Bleg, Betha Martaboeh, hazar Bassa, Beth Ebooth, and Sarabenthes are chinim cities ⁊ their villages. Ain, Ri mon, Kether, Mantheseth are foure cities and their villages. And all þ villages that lye aboue the cities vnto Balath Beer Ramoth towards the south. This is the inheri tance of the tribe of the children of Si meon in their kynde: for the inheritance of the children of Simeon is vnder the por cion of the children of Iuda. for so much as the inheritance of the children of Iuda was to greate for them, they fore inhereted the children of Simeon amonge their inheri tance.

The thirde lot fell vpon the childre of Ba balon after their kyndes. And the border of their inheritance was vnto Sarid, ⁊ goeth vp westwarde to Marcala, ⁊ bordereth vpon Dabosech, and reacheth vnto the ryue that floweth out agaynst Iakneam: ⁊ turneth from Sarid eastwarde vnto the border of Asioch Thabor, and cometh out vnto Da bath, and reacheth vnto Japia, and from thence goeth westwarde thowm Githa Ge pher, and Itha Kozim, and commeth out towards Rimon, Samethor Ganea, ⁊ fir deth a compass abeate from the north vnto Lathon, ⁊ the goinge out of it is vnto valley Jephtha el, Azarah, Mahalal, Sam on, Jodala, ⁊ Bethlehem: these are twel ue cities and their villages. This is the in heritance of the childre of Zabulon in their kynde: these are their cities and villa ges.

The fourth lot fell vpon the childre of Ia sach after their kyndes, ⁊ their border was Jisraels, Chesiluloth, Sunem, Gapharaim, Sion, Anaharath, Raabeh, Kision, Abes, Amezah, En Garam, Enhadah, Beth Pazez, ⁊ bordereth vpon Thabor, Sabayima, Beth Somes, and þ outgoinge of it was at Jor dane. These are chynim cities and their villa ges. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Jisachar in their kyndes, cities and villages.

The fifth lot fell vpon the tribe of the children of Assir, after their kyndes. And their border was Gellath, Gali, Baren, Ach saph, Alamelech, Amead, Misfal, and bor dereth on Carmel vnto the sea, and on Ethos, and Libnach, and turneth towards the east vnto Beth Dagon, and bordereth on Zaba lon, and on the valley of Jephthah, and towards the north wyde of Beth Elmel and Tegul: ⁊ commeth out vnto Cabul on the west wyde of Ebron, Kethob, Samon and Cana, vnto greate Ebron. And turneth to warde Rama, vnto the stronge cite of Ben, and turneth towards the sea, and goeth out vnto the sea, after y. c. xij. towards Ach sib, Dma, Xphet, Kethob.

These are two and twenty cities and their villages. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Assir in their in heritance cities and villages.

The syxe lot fell vpon the children of Iephthah in their kyndes. And their bor der was fro Gileph, Elon thowm Zaanaum, Abai Tereb, Jabneel vnto Akum, and goeth out vnto Jordane, and turneth west warde to Asioch Thabor, and cometh out from thence vnto Gubet, and bordereth on Zabulon towards the south, and on Assir towards the west, and on Iuda by Jordane towards the east: and hath stronge cities, Bimzer, Samath Katsch, Chimmar, Adama, Kama, hazor, Beza, Beza, En hazor, Jereon, Migdal Elhar, Beth Anath, Beth Somes. These are nyntene cities and their villages. This is the inheritance of y tribe of the children of Iephthah in their ky ndes, cities and villages.

The seventh lot fell vpon the tribe of the children of Dan after their kyndes. And the border of their inheritance was Garza, El baol, Jerusalem, Gaalabin, Aialon, Jerba, Elon, Chimnata, Elron, Elchebe, Otheph Baalach, Jehud, Duerbarat, Gat Rimon, Me Jarton, Raion with the border by Ja pho, and on the same goeth the border of the children of Dan out. And the children of Da went up, and foughte agaynst Efeim, and wonne it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and rode it in possession, ⁊ built ther in, and called it Dan, after y name of their father. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan in their kyndes, cities and villages.

And wha þ lode was all parted out with the border there of, the children of Israel ga ue Iosua the some of Eran, an inheritance amonge them, and (as he sayng) to the com mendment of the LORDE: they gaue him y cite that he requyrd, namely, Thimnath Serah, vpon mount Ephraim: here dwel eth he the cite, and dwelt therein.

These are the inheritances which allea far the people and Iosua y some of Eran, and the due just of the fact are amonge y tribes, demed out by lot vnto the children of Israel at Silo before the LORDE, when he sawe the vo re of the Tabernacle of witness, and so they ended the bestyngs: one of the lorde.

The XX. Chapter.

2 UND the LORDE spake vnto Iosua, and sayde: Spake to the children of Israel: Gene amonge you sixe cities, wherof I spake vnto you by Moyses, that a deeflayer which sleyth a soule vnawarres and vnwittingly, maye flye thither, & they maye be fre amonge you from the auenger of bloude. And he that flyeth to one of these cities, shall stande with our before the porte of the cite, and shewe his cause before the Elders of the cite, then shall they take him to them in to the cite, and geue him place to dwell with them.

3 And if the auenger of bloude folowe vpon him, they shall not deliuer the deeflayer in to his handes, for so much as he hath slayne his neighbour vnawarres. and was noe his enemye a foere: but he shall dwell in y^e cite, tyll he stande before the congregation in iudgment, wherell the hys past by, which shall be at that tyme. Then shall the deeflayer returne, and go vnto his owne cite, and vnto his house to the cite, from whence he was fled.

4 Then appointed they Abez in Galile vpon mount Terephali, and Sechem vpon mount Ephraim, and Aziatharba, that is Hebron vpon moue Iuda. And beyde Iordane on the east syde of Jericho, they gaue Bezir in the wilderness vpon the playne out of the trybe of Ruben, and Ramoth in Gilead out of the trybe of Gad, and Golan in Basan out of the trybe of Manasse.

These were the cities appoynted for all y^e children of Israel, and for the straungers which dwelle amonge them, that whosoener had slayne a soule vnawarres, with the flye thither, that he shalde not be put to death by the auenger of bloude, tyll he had stande before the congregation.

And the loc fell vpon the trybe of the Zabathites, and the children of Aaron the prest amonge the Levites, had by the loc threene cities of the trybe of Iuda, of the trybe of Simon, and of the trybe of Ben Jamin. The other child of Zabath of the same trybe, had by the loc ten cities of the trybe of Ephraim, of the trybe of Dan, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse.

But the children of Gerson of the same trybe had by the loc threene cities, of the trybe of Isachar, of the trybe of Assir, of y^e trybe of Terephali, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse at Basan.

The children of Merari of their trybe had twelue cities, of the trybe of Ruben, of the trybe of Gad, and of the trybe of Soudon. So the children of Israel gaue these cities and their suburbs vnto the Levites by loc, as the LORDE commaunded by Moyses.

Of the trybe of the children of Iuda, and of the trybe of the children of Simon, they gaue these cities (which they name by name) vnto the children of Aaron of the trybe of the Zabathites amonge the children of Levi: for the first loc was thesya.

So they gaue them Aziatharba, which was the fathers of Enai, that is Schem upon the mount Iuda, and the suburbs thereof rounde aboute. But the siter of the cite and the vyllages therof, gaue they vnto Caleb the sonne of Iephani: for his possession.

Thys gaue they vnto the children of Aaron the prest, the sixe cite of the deed slyers, Schem and the suburbs thereof, Libna and the suburbs thereof, Iathir and the suburbs thereof, Eschuma and the suburbs thereof, Holon and the suburbs thereof, Debai and the suburbs thereof, Ain and the suburbs thereof, Iuda and the suburbs thereof, Beth Senna and the suburbs thereof, and threene cities of thesya trybe.

But of the trybe of Ben Jamin they gaue foure cities, Gibeon and y^e suburbs thereof, Gaba, and the suburbs thereof, Anathoth and the suburbs thereof, Almon and the suburbs thereof: so that all the cities of the children of Aaron the prest were thirent amonge their suburbs.

The trybes of the other children of Zabath the Levites, had by their loc foure cities, of the trybe of Ephraim, and they gaue the sixe cite of the deefslayers, Schem and the suburbs thereof vpon mount Ephraim, Gazer and the suburbs thereof, Ashdod in the suburbs thereof, Bethron and the suburbs thereof.

Of the trybe of Dan foure cities, Elsheke and 3 suburbs thereof, Gibben and the suburbs thereof, Aialon and the suburbs thereof, Gash Rimon and the suburbs thereof. Of the halfe trybe of Manasse two cities, Thaanach and the suburbs thereof, Gash Rimon and the suburbs thereof: so that all the cities of the other children of 3 trybes of Ruben, were ten with their suburbs.

But vnto the children of Gerson amonge the trybes of the Leuites were geuen, Of the halfe trybe of Manasse two cities, the fre cite for the deedslayer, r. Gola in Basan and the suburbs thereof, Beashtia, and the suburbs thereof. Of the trybe of Issachar foure cities, Basien and the suburbs thereof, Dabiah and the suburbs thereof, Jarmuch and the suburbs thereof, Engannim and the suburbs thereof. Of the trybe of Aser foure cities, Mistal, Abdon, Helkath and Rehob with the suburbs thereof. Of the trybe of Saphraim the cities, the fre cite Kedes (for the deedslayer) in Galde, Hamoth, Dor, and Archan with the suburbs thereof: so that all the cities of the trybe of the Gersonites were thirtene with their suburbs.

Vnto the trybes of Merari the other Leuites were geuen, Of the trybe of Zabulon foure cities, Jaftreah, Kartha, Dimna and Uthalal with suburbs thereof. Of the trybe of Ruben foure cities, Bezer, Jab ja, Kedemeth and Mepphaat with their suburbs. Of the trybe of Gad foure cities, the fre cite for the deedslayer, Ramoth in Gilead, Mahanaim, Geshen and Jaeker with their suburbs: so that all the cities of the children of Merari amonge their trybes of y order Leuites, were twolue. Thus all the cities of the Leuites amonge 3 possession of the children of 3 Israel, were eighte and forty with their suburbs. And these cities were so deale out, that euery one had their suburbs rounde aboute, the one as the other.

Thus the LORDE gaue the children of 3 Israel all the londe, which he had sworne vnto their fathers to geue: they toke possession of it, and dwelt therein. And the LORDE gaue the rest before all these 3 were aboute them: so as he swore vnto their fathers, & none of their enemies stode agaynst the, but all their enemies deliuered he in to their hande. And their mysted noching of all the good that the LORDE had promised vnto, the house of 3 Israel, it came euery waye.

The xxxij. Chapter.

Then Iosua called 3 Rubenites, & 3 Gaddites, and 3 halfe trybe of Manasse, and saye vnto them: Ye haue kepte all, that Moyses the seruant of the LORDE commaunded you, and haue kepte vnto my voyce in all 3 I haue commaunded you. Ye haue not forsaken your hartes, a longe season, vnto this daye, and haue wrought vpon the commaundement of the LORDE your God. For so much now as the LORDE your God hath broughte you hertofore to rest, as he promised them, came you now, and go your waye to your countie in to the londe of youre possession, which Moyses the seruant of the LORDE gaue you beynde Jordane.

But take diligent hede now, that ye do accordinge to the commaundement and lawe which Moyses the seruant of the LORDE hath commaunded: That ye love the LORDE your God, and keepe in all his wayes, and keepe his commaundementes, and cleue vnto him, and serue him with all youre heart, and with all youre soule. So Iosua blessed them, and let them go. And they wente in to their tenne.

Vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse had Moyses geuen possession at Basan: vnto the other halfe gaue Iosua amonge their brethren on this syde Jordane westwards. And when he let them go to their tenne and blessed them, he saye vnto them: Ye come home agayne with greates good vnto your cleeke, with exceedynge much cattell, siluer, golde, dyasse, yron and rayme, distribute thespore the spoyle of youre enemies amonge your brethren.

So the Rubenites, Gaddites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse returned, and wente from the children of 3 Israel out of Gilead (which lyeth in the londe of Canaan) to go in to the countie of Gilead to the londe of their possession, that they mighte possess it, accordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE by Moyses.

And when they came vnto the heapes by Jordane, which lye in the londe of Canaan, the same Rubenites, Gaddites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse builded there beynde Jordane, a fayre greene altare. But when the children of 3 Israel herde saye, Beholde, the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse haue builded an altare: our agaynst the londe, de of Canaan upon the heapes by Iordane on this syde the children of Israel, they gathered them selfes together with the whole congregation at Silo, to go up agaynst the with an army. And (in the meane season) they sent to them in to the londe of Gilad, Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the prest, and with him ten cheefe pynces amonge the houses of their fathers, out of every tribe in Israel this daye. And they came to the children of Ruben, to the children of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse in the londe of Gilead, and sayde:

D Thus sayeth the whole congregation of the LORDE vnto you: What trespasce is this, tudi. 10. b ye haue trespassed agaynst the God of Israel, that ye shalde come backe from γ LORDE this daye, to bulde you an altare, for to fall awaye from the LORDE:

Num. 33. a I haue we not enough of the widenesse of Peor: from the which we are not yet clesed this daye, and there came a plague amonge the congregation of the LORDE: and ye turne you backe this daye from the LORDE, and this daye are ye fallen awaye from the LORDE, that he maye be wroth to daye or tomorrow at the whole congregation of the LORDE.

If the londe of youre possession be vncleane, then come ouer in to the londe that the LORDE possideth, wherethe dwellynge of the LORDE is, and take possession amonge vs, and fall not awaye from the LORDE and from vs, to bulde you an altare with out the altare of the LORDE our God. Ios. 17. a Did not Achan the sonne of Serah trespasce in the thinge that was banned, and the wrath came ouer γ whole congregation of Israel and he wrecne not downe alone for his mysdede:

E Then answered the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse, and sayde vnto the heades and pynces of Israel. The mightie God γ LORDE, the mightie God the LORDE knoweth, and Israel knoweth also, yf this be a transgression or trespacyng agaynst the LORDE, then let it not helpe vs this daye: If we haue builded the altare, because we wolde turne awaye backe from the LORDE, so of fre burntofferings or meat offeringes there on, or to make any dede offeringes upon it, then let the LORDE requyre it: And yf we haue not done it rather for very feare of this thinge, and sayde: To daye or tomorrow mighte youre children saye vnto oure children:

What haue ye to do with the LORDE the God of Israel: The LORDE hath forborne vs a border betwene vs and you ye children of Ruben and Gad, ye haue not ynnocencie in the LORDE: By this shalde youre children make oure children to turne awaye from the feare of the LORDE.

Therefore sayde we: Let vs make oure children an altare, not for sacrifice, nor for burnt offeringe, but that it maye be a signe betwene vs and you, and oure posteritie, that we maye serue the LORDE in his sight with oure burnt offeringes, deed offeringes, and other offeringes: and γ your children to daye or tomorrow neede not to saye vnto oure children: Ye haue no parte with the LORDE.

And we sayde: But yf they shalde speake so vnto vs, or to oure posterities to daye or tomorrow, then maye we saye: Behold the similitude of γ altare of the LORDE, which oure fathers made, not for sacrifice, ne for burnt offeringe, but for a witness betwene vs and you.

God forbydde, that we shalde fall awaye from the LORDE, or turne backe from him this daye, and to buyle an altare his sacrifice, for burnt offeringe and for any purpose, without γ altare of the LORDE our God, that stondest before his habitation.

But when phineas the prest, and the cheefe of the congregation, the pynces of Israel which were with him, herde the wordes, that the children of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse had spoken, they pleased them well. And phineas the sonne of Eleazar the prest sayde vnto the children of Ruben, Gad and Manasse: This daye we knowe, that γ LORDE is amonge vs, in that ye haue not trespassed agaynst the LORDE in this daye. Now haue ye deliuered the children of Israel out of the hande of the LORDE.

Then phineas the sonne of Eleazar the prest, and the rulers returned out of the londe of Gilad, from the children of Ruben and Gad, vnto γ londe of Canaan to the children of Israel, and brought them wordes of the matter.

Then were the children of Israel well content with the thinge. And they praised the God of Israel, and sayde no more that they wolde go up agaynst them with an army, to destroye the londe that the children of Ruben and Gad dwel in. And γ child of Ruben and Gad called the name of the altare: This altare be witness betwene vs, that γ LORDE is God.

The XXXI. Chapter.

After a longe season, when the LORD Ehad broughte Israel to rest from all their enemies rounde aboute: and Iosua was now olde and well stricken in age, he called all Israel and their Elders, heades, iudges, and officiers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and well aged, and ye haue sene all that the LORD E your God hath done vnto all these nacions in youre sightes. For the LORD E your God himself hath fought for you. Beholde, I haue parted amonge you y remanent of the nacions by lot, vnto euery crybe his enberitance from Iordane forth, and all the nacions whom I haue rooted out vnto the greatesse westward.

And the LORD E your God shal chynst from out before you, and dryue them awaye from you, that ye maye haue their londe in possession, as the LORD E your God hath promysed you. And stryde nowtherfore, that ye maye obserue and do all that is wyrtten in the boke of the lawe of Moyses: so that ye come not asyde from it, neither to the righte hande nor to the left: that ye come not amonge y remanent of these nacions, which are with you: And yet that ye make no mention ner iureate by the names of their gods, neither sene them, ner borne youre silues vnto them: But cleue vnto the LORD E your God, as ye haue done vnto this daye: the shal the LORD E dryue awaye greatesse and myghtie nacions before you, like as thre hath no man bene able to stonde before you (vnto this daye. * One of you shall chace a thousande: for the LORD E your God fighteth for you, a certynge as he promysed you. Take diligent garde therfore vnto youre scules, that ye loue the LORD E your God.

But if ye turne backe, and sene vnto the feether nacions, and make mariagea with them, so that ye come amonge thm, and they amonge you, ye ye sure then, that the LORD E your God shall no more dryue out all these nacions before you, but they shall be vnto you a snare and net, and prickes in youre sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntill he haue destroyed you from the good lode, which the LORD E your God hath given you.

Beholde, this daye do I ge the waye of all the realme, and ye shal knowe enen from all youre her, and from all youre soules, that there hath not sayed ou word of all the good that the LORD E your God promysed you. Nowe late as all the good is come forth the LORD E your God promysed you:

The xxxiii. Chap. Ho. xii.

enen so shal the LORD E cause all euill to come vpon you, vntill ye haue destroyed you from this good londe, which the LORD E your God hath given you: yf ye transgress y commandment of the LORD E your God, which he hath commaunded you. And yf ye go yd waye, and serue oether goddes, and worshippe the, then shall the wrath of the LORD E more wheroe ouer you, y shall shortly destroye you out of the good londe, y he hath given you.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Osua gathered all the crybes of Israel together vnto Sidym, and called the Elders of Israel, the heades, iudges, and officiers. And whā they were come before God, he sayde vnto all the people: Thus sayeth the LORD E the God of Israel: * Iob fathers dwelt afore tyme beyde y water, Abiāh y Mahos y Sarah their father y serued oether goddes. * Then toke I yb father Abraham beyonde the water, y caught him to walke in the londe of Canaan, y multiplied his sibe, and gaue him Isaac, and vnto Isaac I gaue Jacob and Esau, and gaue Esau moule Seir to possess. And for Jacob, y his childen, they wente downe in to Egipte.

Then Ient I Moyses and Aaron, and plagued Egipte as I haue done amonge the. After y broughte I you and youre fathers out of Egipte, and whan ye came to y see, and the Egiptians solomned vpon youre fathers with charrettes and hoise men vnto the red see, then cryed they vnto the LORD E, which put a darcknesse betwene you and the Egiptians, and broughte the see vpon them, and ouerwhelmed them. And youre eyes haue sene whā I dyd to y Egiptians, y ye dwelt in y wilderness a linge season. And I broughte you in to y londe of the Amorites, which dwelt beynde Iordane: whā they fought agaynst you, I delynered them in to you, because that ye mighte haue their countre in possession, and I destroyed them before you. * Then Balac the sonne of Biphor the kynge of the Moabites gat him vp, and foughte agaynst Israel: and he sente and bad call Balaam the sonne of Beor, to curse ye, nevertheless I wolde not heare him, but I blessed you, and delynered you out of his hande.

And whan ye came ouer Iordane, and came vnto Jericho, the cietyes of Jericho foughte agaynst you, the Amorites, Pherezites, Canaanites, Hethites, Gergisites, Henites, y Jebusites: wherof I delynered the in to youre hande. * And I sent hornettes before you, which drewe them out before you, and

1. Reg. 7. 2
Tud. 11. c the LORDE now therfore, and serue him perfectly and in the treuth, and let go the god-des, whom youre fathers serued beyonde the water and in Egipte, and serue ye 3 LORDE.

But yf ye like not to serue the LORDE, the D chose you this daye whom ye wyll serue: the God whom youre fathers serued besonde 3 water, or 3 goddes of the Amorites, in whose lode ye dwell. As for me and my house, we wyll serue the LORDE. Then answered the people, and saide: God forbidde, that we shal-be forsake the LORDE, & serue other goddes.
For the LORDE oure God brought vs and oure fathers out of the londe of Egipte fro the house of bondage, and did sych greates to us before oure eyes, and perswaded vs all 3 ways that we wente, and amonge all the na-cions, whom we entruayled by. And the LOR-DE thrust out before vs all the people of the Amorites that dwelt in the londe. Therfore wyll we also serue the LORDE, for he is oure God.

E Iosua sayde vnto the people: Ye can not serue the LORDE: for he is an holy God, mightie, and gelous, which spareth not youre transgressions and synnes. But yf ye forsake the LORDE, and serue a strange god, Iosua. 2. d then shall the LORDE euer him, and do you small, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. The people sayde vnto Iosua: Not so, but we will serue the LORDE.
Then sayde Iosua vnto the people: Ye are witnesses ouer youre selues, that ye haue done for you the LORDE, to serue him. And they sayde: Yee. Then put awaye from you, sayde he: the strange goddes 3 are amonge you, and encline youre hart vnto the LORDE the God of Israel. And the people saye vnto Iosua: We wyll serue the LORDE oure God, 4. Re. 11. c and be obedient vnto his voyce. So Iosua made a conuauent with the people 3 same daye, and laide statutes & lawes before them at Sichem.

I And Iosua wrote this acte in the booke of 1. Reg. 7. c the name of God, and sette a greate stone, & set it up there vnder an oke, which was in 3 Sanctuary of 3 LORDE, and sayde vnto all the people: Beholde, this stone shall be wit-nesse ouer you: for it hath herbe all the wodes of the LORDE, which he hath spoken vnto vs, and shall be a witness ouer that ye denye not youre God. So Iosua the people go eurye one to his heritage.

And it fortuned after these actes, 3
Iosua the sonne of Nuan 3 seruaunt of the LOR-DE dyed, when he was an hundred and year old, and was buried in the towne of his heritage at Timnath Serah, with lyce on the mount Ephraim, on the moun-te of mount Gaas. And the children of Israel serued the LORDE as long as Iosua lyued, and the Elders (that lyued long after Iosua) which knewe all the wordes of the LORDE, that he had done vnto Israel. The home of Ioseph, which the children of Israel had brought out of Egipte, was they at Sichem, in the pece of the lande: but Jacob boughte of the children of Hamor father of Sichem for an hundred penes was the heritage of the children of Ioseph. Eleazar the sonne of Aarn died also, and they buried him at Gibeath, which was Phineas his sonnes, that was geuen him upon mount Ephraim.

The first Chapter.

After the death of Joshua the children of Israel axed the LORD, and sayde: Who shall goe up to be a captayne of warre against the Canaanites? The LORD sayde: Iuda shall goe vp. Bebelde, I haue deliuered the sonne in to his hande. Then sayde Iuda vnto his brother Simcon: Goe vp w me in to my lorde, and let vs fighte against the Canaanites, then wyl I goe agayne with the in to y lorde. So Simcon wente with him.

Now when Iuda wente up the LORD deliuered the Canaanites and pherisitias in to their habes, & they slewe of thousande me at Bethel: they soude Abdon Besek at Bethel, a foughe agaynst him, and slewe the Canaanites and pherisitias. But Abdon Besek fled, and they folowed a fter him: and when they had surrailed him, they cut of the thobes of his handes and feete.

Then sayde Abdon Besek: There score and un thynges w the members of their habes z free cut of, gathered vp the meate y was left in vnder my sable. How as I haue done, so hath God rewarded me agayne. And he was broughte vnto Ierusalem, where he dyed.

But y childie of Iuda foughe agayne Ierusalem, and dwane it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and set fyre vpon the cite. Then wente the children of Israel downe, to fighte agayne y Canaanites, y dwelt vpon the mount, and towards the south, and in the valley. And Iuda wente agayne the Canaanites, which dwelt at Hebron. As for Hebron, it was called Amatharba a fore tymes, and they smote Sejai, z Achiman, and Thalmi.

And from thence he wente agayne y inhabiteres of Debir (but Debir was called Amath Sether a fore tymes. And Caleb sayde: He y smyeth Amath Sether, z wyrmeth it, I wyl geue him my daughter Achis to wife. Then Achis the sonne of Aenao, Calebs yongest brother receiued it. And he gaue him his daughter Achis to wife. And it fortuned y when they were in, he was conuiled of hir husbande, to aye a peeces londe of his father. And she fell from the asse. The sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth y? She sayde: Geue me a blessing, for thou hast geuen me a duth z drye londe, whereas also a watery londe. Then gaue he her a londe that was watery z boue and teneth.

And the childie of y Kenite Moyses brother in lawe, wente up out of the palm cite, with the children of Iuda in to the wilderness of Iuda, thes lynch on y south syde of the cite Arad: and wente their waye, z dwelt amonge the people. And Iuda wente with his brother Simcon, z they smote the Canaanites at Sephath, z damned them, z called the name of the cite Goma. Iuda also manne Gasa with the borders therof, z Asealon with hir borders, z Asealon with the coastes therof. And the LORD was w Iuda, so that he conquered the meentaynes: but them that dwelt in the valley coude he not conquer, because they had yon dyarettes. And accordinge as Moyses had sayde, they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, which diuene out the thie somes of Aenaf. Gombert y children of Ben Jamin diuene out one y Iebusites which dwelt at Ierusalem, but y Iebusites dwelt amonge the children of Ben Jamin at Ierusalem vnto this daye.

As for the children of Joseph they wente also vnto Bethel z the LORD was w the. And the house of Joseph spoyed one Bethel (which a fore tymes was called Luz) and the

 Then were the same man vp into γ coun-tre of the Geshures, & buylded a cite, and called it Loo, & so is the name of it yet vnto this daye. And Manasse dwelt out Beth of Doi: w the villages therof: ner the inhabitants of Iethleam w the villages therof, ner the inhabitants of Mageddo w the villages therof, and γ Cananites begonne to dwell in the same londe. But when Israel was mightie, he made the Cananites tributaries, and droue them not out.

In like maner Ephraim droue not out γ Cananites that dwelt at Gazer, but the Can-anites dwelt amonge them at Gazer.

Zabulon also droue not out the inhabitants of Aicher and Tacholol, but γ Cananites dwelt amonge them, & were tributaries.

107
 Affer droue not out γ inhabitants of Aco, & γ inhabitants of Sidon, of Abelah, of Ach-sib, of Helba, of Aphit & of Rehob, but γ Affrites dwelt amonge the Cananites that dwelt in the lode, for they droue the not out.

108 Ephraim droue not out γ inhabitants of Beth Semes, ner of Beth Anach, but dwelt amonge the Cananites which dwelt in the londe: howbeit they of Beth Semes and of Beth Anach were tributaries.

109
 And the Amorites subdued the childre of Dan vpon the mountaine, and suffred them not to come downe in to the valley. And the Amorites begonne to dwell vpon mount Heres at Bholom and at Saalim. Howbeit γ hande of γ house of Joseph was to fight for them, and they became tributaries. And the border of the Amorites was, as a man goeth vponward to Arabiam, and from the rocke, & from the coper.

done this: Then said γ mouer: I will

 And when γ messauger of the LORD had spoken these wordes vnto all the childre of Israel, the people lefte vpon their voyce, & re-te, and called γ name of the place Bethel, and offered there vnto the LORD E.

For when Josua had sene a moate γ peple, and the childre of Israel were gone ny one to his heritage, for to take possession of the londe, the people serued the DE as longe as Josua liued and γ Elon, which liued longe after Josua, and sim all the greates workes of the LORD, which he dyd for Israel.

Now when Josua the sonne of Nun seruant of the LORD, was dead, whiche was an hū birth and ten year e lde, they ric him in γ border of his inheritance at Timnach heroe vpon mount Ephraim the north syde of mount Gaas. And when all the same gentes ciens was gathered their fathers, there came vp after them their generacion, which knew not the LOR-DE, ner the workes that he had done for Irael.

Then wroughte the childre of Iud well before the LORD, and serued Baalim and forsoke γ LORD the God of their fathers, which broughte them out of the lde of Egypte) and folowed other goddes the goddes of the nations that dwelt aboute them, & worshipped them, & re-pleased the LORD E: for they forsoke γ LOR-DE euer more and more, and serued Baalim & Astaroth.

Then γ reuach of the LORD was reb ce vpon Israel, & he deliuered the in to γ han-des of those γ spoiled the, that they might spoyle them, & solde the in to the handes of their enemies aboute, & they were not able to withstande their enemies any more, but whate waye so euer they wolde out, γ h ve of the LORD E was agaynst the to the hurte (euen as the LORD E saide) and sent vnto them) and they were sore oppresse.

Now when the LORD E rayed them viudges, which helpe them out of the hand of such as spoiled the, they followed not indres necher, but re erue a whouinge afte other goddes, & worshipped them, and were soone gone out of γ waye γ their fathers walkd in, to heare the commaundementes of the LORD E: & dyd not as they dyd.

But when γ LORD E rayed vp indigna-vnto them, the LORD E was reb γ iudges and helped them out of the hande of their 1.1 enemies, as longe as the iudges byed. For the LORD had pitie of their complaints, which they made ouer these 3 subbaed the and oppressed them.

D Therefores when the iudge byed, they turned backe, and marred all moire thei fishers, so that they followed ocher goddes, so that they solumed ocher to save them and to downe them selues into chere: they woulde not fall from their purpose, nor from their obdinate waye.

Therefore wayed the wrath of the LORD allwaie so whore ouer Israel, that he sa yde: For so much as the people have transgressed my commandment, which I commaunded their fathers, so folow noemy waye, I wil from hence forth dyne out none of the heathen, wh^o Josua lefte behynde him, wh^o he byed, 4.4 that by them I maye proue Israel, whether they will kepe the waye of the LORD, to walke therein, as their fathers byd, or noe. Thus the LORD suffred all these nacions, so that in a spoure cyme he downe them not out, whom he had noe geuen ouer in to Josua his hande. The iii. Chapter.

These are the nacions, whom the LORD suffred to remayne, 3 by them he might proue Israel, which had no iudgement: onely because 3 the trybes of the childre of Israel might knowe 7 lerne to warre, which a fou had no knowlege therof, namely: The five tribes of 3 Philistynes, 7 all the Canaanites, 7 Sidonians, 7 the Gethites 3 dwelt upon mount Libanus, from mount Baal Hermon, until a man come unto Hamath.
 The same remayne, that Israel might be proued by them, that it might be knowen whether they woulde hearken to the commandmentes of the LORD, which he commaunded their fathers by Moses.

Now when the childre of Israel dwelt thus amonge the Canaanites, Gethites, Amonites, Perizzites, Gethites 7 Jebusites, they toke their 1.1.1 daughters to wyues, 7 gaue their daughters vnto their sonnes, 7 serued their godden, and wrought wick ednes before the LORD, 7 forgot the LORD their God, 7 serued Baalam 7 Astaroth. Then 3 wayed whore ouer Israel, 7 he sold thei wibes into the hande of Cusan Rishathaim kynge of Mesopotamia: 7 so 3 childre of Israel serued Cusan Rishathaim six. yea.

B He cried the childre of Israel vnto 1.1.2 the LORD, 7 the LORD rayfed the vp a sarme which deliuered the, namely Achiel of the forme of Amas, Calebs yongest brother.

And the spere of the LORD came vpon him, 7 he was iudge in Israel, 7 wente out a warre fare. And 3 LORD deliuered Cusan Rishathaim the kynge of Syria in to his hande, so 3 his hande was to struge for him. Then was the londe in rest foure yeares. And Achiel the forme of Amas byed.

But the childre of Israel byd yet more euill before the LORD. Then the LORD strenghted Eglon the kynge of Moabites agaynst 3 childre of Israel, because they wrought wick ednes before 3 LORD. And he gathered vnto him 3 childre of Ammon, 7 the Amalechites, 7 wete and smote Israel, and conquered the cite of the palme tree. And the childre of Israel serued Eglon the kynge of Moabites eighteene yeares. He cried they vnto the LORD. And the LORD rayfed the vp a sarme, namely Ehdub the sonne of Gera 3 forme of Temni, which was a man that mighte do noching with his righe hande.

And wh^o the childre of Israel sent a present by him vnto Eglon the kynge of Moabites, Ehdub made him a two edged dagger of a spanne longe, 7 gyrded it vnder his garment vnder his righe chyke, 7 brought the present vnto Eglon the kynge of Moabites.
 As for Eglon, he was a very fat man.

And when he had deliuered the present, he let the people go that had caried the present, and he himselfe turned backe from the Iudols at Bilgall, 7 caused to saye thus (vnto the kynge): I haue a secreete thinge to tell the kynge. And he commaunded to kepe silyence, 7 all they that stode aboute him, wente out from him.

And Ehdub came in vnto him, he sat in a sylde Sommer perle, which was for him selfe alone. And Ehdub saide: I haue somethinge to saye vnto the of God. The rof he vp fro his face. But Ehdub put forth his left hande, 7 toke the dagger from his righe chyke, 7 thrust it in to his belly, so 3 the beste wente in also after the blade, 7 the fatter closed the beste: so he dyed not 3 dagger out of his belly, 7 3 fylthines departed fro him. But Ehdub gat him out at the backe doore, 7 do re after him, and locted it.

Now when he was gone, his seruantes came in, and sawe that the doore of the Sommer perle was locted, and they soughed: perauenture he is gone to the pryue in the sylde Sommer perle.

Then when they had wayed so lge tyme, they were ashamed: for no man opened the perle doore: they toke the keye, and opened it.

Dehelbe, then laye their sorbe deed vpo the earth. As for Elhad, he was gotten awaye, whyche they made so longe carriage, & he wente ouer by Idoia, and ranne his waye vnto Sirath.

And when he came in - he blewe β trompet vpo mount Ephraim, and the children of Iſrael wente with him from the mount, and he before them, and he saide vnto them: Follow me, for the LORDE hath deliuered the Moabites youre enemies in to yo^r hands. And they followed him, & manne of ferce of Iordane, β goeth towarde Moab, & suffred no man to go ouer, and at β same tyme they smote of the Moabites vpo a tenthousand men, all nobles and men of armes, so that there escaped not one. Thus were the Moabites broughte vnder the hande of the children of Iſrael at that tyme, and the londe was in rest foure scoie yeares.

Afterwarde was Samgar β sonne of Anath, which slewe fixe hundred Philiſtynes with an oxe gadd, and deliuered Iſrael also.

The III. Chapter.

B Vnto the children of Iſrael byd yet more enill becom of LORDE, when Elhad was dead. And the LORDE soldeth in to the hande of Jabin the kynge of the Canaanites, which dwelt at Hazor, & the cheefe captayne of his hooste was Siffera, and he dwelt at Harosheth of the Syechen. And the childre of Iſrael cried vnto the LORDE: for he had nunc hildeth yon charrettes, and subdued the children of Iſrael by violence twentye yeare.

At β same tyme was Iudgesse in Iſrael the prophetesse Debbeia, the wyfe of Lapidoch, and she dwelt vnder β palme of Debbeia betwene Rama & Bethel, vpon mount Ephraim, and the children of Iſrael came vp vnto her to the lawe. She sent forth, & called for Barak the sonne of Abi Naam of Kedes Neftethai, and sayde vnto him: Heare mee β LORDE the God of Iſrael is maunded the: So thy waye, and get the vp vnto mount Thabor, & take wch e hundred and thowſande men of the children of Neftethai & Zabulon: for I will make Siffera the cheefe captayne of Jabinis hoost to come to the vnto β water of Cyſon, with his charrettes and with his molaude, and I will deliuer him in to thy hande. Barak sayde vnto her: If thou wilt come w me, I will go: but if thou wilt not come w me, I will not go.

B She sayde: I will go with thee: neuertheless the prayſe ſhal not be thine in this iour ney that thou goest, but β LORDE ſhal be thyer Siſſera in to a womans hande. So Debbeia gat hir vp, and wente with Barak vnto Kedes. Then Barak called Zabulon and Neftethai vnto Kedes, and weter on foot thence thowſande men. And Debbeia wente w him also. As for Heber the Benyte he was departed from the Benytes from the children of β Hobab Moſes brother in lawe, and had pitched his tent by β Oke of Zaanan, beyde Kedes.

Then was it tolde Siffera, β Barak the sonne of Abi Naam, was gone vp vnto mount Thabor: & he gathered all his charrettes together, nunc C. yon charrettes, & all the people β was with him from Harosheth of the Syechen, vnto the water Cyſon. Debbeia ſayde vnto Barak: Vp, this is the daie when the LORDE hath deliuered Siffera in to β hande: for β LORDE ſhal go forth before β . So Barak wente fro mount Thabor, and β tenthousand men after him.

But the LORDE diſcomfited Siffera & C all his charrettes & hoost, & made the frayde of the edge of the ſwerde before Barak, so β Siffera leaped of his charre, & fled onpece. Neuertheless Barak followed vpon the charrettes & the hoost vnto Harosheth of the Syechen, & all Sifferas hoost fell thowt β edge of the ſwerde, so β not one escaped. As for Siffera, he fled on foot vnto the tent of Jacl, β wyfe of Heber β Benite. For there was peace betwene kynge Jabin at Hazor & the house of Heber the Benite.

Jacl wote ſouth to mee Siffera, & sayde vnto him: Turne in my lorde, turne in to me, & be not a frayde. And he turned in vnto her in to the tente, & she covered him with a garment. She sayde vnto her: I praye β geueme a litle water to drynke, for I am a chyſt. She opened she a myle pot, & gaue him to drynke, and couered him. And he ſayde vnto her: Sitde in the tente done, & if one come & ask, is there any man here: saye I am man.

Then Jacl the wyfe of Heber cote a nail of the tente, and an hammer in hir hande, & wente in pcurly vnto him, & smote the nail in thowt the temples of his heade, so β he ſande to β earth. As for him, he was fallen on a ſlomber, and wery, and so he dyed.

But when Barak followed a ſer Siffera, Jacl wente for to mee him, and sayde vnto him: Come hithe, I will ſheue thee the man, whom thou ſeest. And when he came in to her, he ſawe Siffera dead, & the nails ſtonge in his temples. Thus God broughte downe Jabin the kynge of the Canaanites hefor the children of Israel at that tyme, & the bande of the children of Israel wence & subdued Jabin & Eryng of the Cananites, till they had rooted him out. Then Debboia and Barac the sonne of Abi Toam, fange at the same tyme, and sayde:

The V. Chapter.

Wow that ye are come to rest, ye crye crimer in Israel, playe β LORDE, Amonge such of the people as be fre willinge.

heare ye Erynges, & hearken to ye princes: I wyl, I wyl syng to the LORDE, euen vnto the LORDE β God of Israel wyl I playe.

LORDE, when thou wencest out from Seir, & camest in from the selde of Edem, & earth quaked, the heauen biopped, and the cloudes biopped with water.

The hills melted before the LORDE, Sinai before the LORDE the God of Israel.

In the tyme of Sanger the sonne of Anan: In the tyme of Jael the wayes fayled: and they that shulde haue gone in pathes, walked thowm crooked wayes.

There was scarcenesse, there was scarcenesse of husbande men in Israel, vntill J Debboia came vp, vntill I came up a mother in Israel.

God hath chosen a new thinge. He hath overcome β potea in batrayll: and yet was there sene neyther shyld neer speare amonge foure thousande in Israel.

My heart loueth β teachers of Israel: ye β are frewillinge amonge the people, playe β the LORDE.

At that tyme vpo saye Misses, ye that ye in iudgment and geue sentence, ye that go by the waye, playe β the LORDE.

Wha β archers cryed betwene β diuwers of warre, then was it spok of β righteounesse of the LORDE, of the righteounesse of his husbande men in Israel: then ruled the people of the LORDE vnder the gares.

Vp Debboia vp, get the vp, get the vp, & rehearse a songe. Arise Barac, & catch him β caddeth the, thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then had the desolate the rule with the might of the people. The LORDE had β dominion thowm the giantes.

Out of Ephraim was their rote against Amalek, and a fetter him Ben Jamin in thy people.

Out of Issachir haue teachers ruled, and one of Zabulou are there become gouernours thowm the wyntinge penne.

And out of Issachar there were princes with Debboia, and Issachar was as Barac

Why a bocest thou betwixt the borders, when thou hearest the noise of the flockes: because Ruben stode bye in his owne confyte, and separated him selfe from vs.

Gilead abode beyonde Iordane, and why dwelc Dan amonge the shippes? As for Issachar in the haue of the see, and caried in his possessions.

But Babilons people toperde their life vnto death: It healt also in the coppe of β selde of Hierom.

The Erynges came & foughte, then foughte β Erynges of the Cananites at Thounay by the water of Megiddo, but spoyle of money broughte they not ther from.

From haue were they foughte agaynst the starres in their courses foughte with Sissera.

The broke Elyon overwhelmed them, the broke Abumam, yee the broke Elyon. My soule treade then vpon the mighte.

Then made the hoise see a russhinge together, for the greates violence of their mighte heart men.

Curst the cite of Meros (sayde β angell of the LORDE) curst the citysma throff, be cause they ceine noot to helpe β LORDE, to helpe the LORDE to the giantes.

He bowed him selfe downe at his fete, he fell downe, and laye there. He sank downe, and fill at his fete: than he had soude downe, he laye there destroyed.

His mother lothed out at the wyndowe, & cried pitecully thowm the crollace: Why a riech his chauce out so longe. that he cometh not: Why for do the wchles of his chares make so longe tansenger?

The wysef amoge his labies answered, & sayde vnto her: Shulde they not finde & deald the spoyle, vnto every man a saye mayde or two for a pray. & parrye coloured garmentes of noble worke to Sissera for a spoyle, parrye coloured garmentes of noble worke aboute the necke for a pray?

Thus all thine enemies must perishe

LORDE: but they that loue the, shall be euen as the Sonne vsing up in his mighte.

And the londe had peace fortye yeares.
The vi. Chapter.

21 WHAN the children of Israel byd well in the sighte of the LORDE, the LORDE deliuered them vnder the hande of the Midianites vij. yeares. And whā the hande of the Midianites was to mighte ouer the childen of Israel, the childen of Israel made them dysses in 3 mountaynes, and caues and holdes, to defende them selues from y Midianites. And whā Israel somed any thinge, 3 Midianites and Amalechite, and the childen comarde the south came up vpon them, and pitched their ctes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the londe borne vnto Basa, 2 let nothinge remayne ouer of the bestes in Israel, neither shepe, ner oxen, ner asses. For they came up with their cartell and tentes, as it had bene a greate multitude of greshoppere (so that ne ther they nor their camels mighte be nombred) and fell in to the londe, that they mighte destroye it. Thus was Israel exceedinge small before the Midianites. Then cried the childen of Israel vnto the LORDE.

22 But whā they cried vnto the LORDE because of 3 Midianites, 3 LORDE senthe a prophete, which sayde vnto the: Thus saith the LORDE the God of Israel: I caried you out of Egypte, 2 broughthe you out of y house of bondage, 2 deliuered you from the hande of the Egyptians, 2 from the hande of all them that oppressed you, and I haue thrust them out before you, 2 giuen you their lde and sayde vnto you: I am the LORDE youre God. Feare not ye the goddesses of the Amorites, in whose londe ye dwell: inuertbeles ye haue not hearkened vnto my voyce.

16. 12. 2

And ther came an angell of the LORDE, 2 sat him downe vnder an Oke at Aphia, which belongeth vnto Joas the father of y Ephraim, and his sonne Gedeon was thoskinge wheate in the barn, that he mighte slye a waye before the Midianites.

C Then appeared vnto him the angell of 3 LORDE, and sayde vnto him: The LORDE with 3 thou mightie giants. But Gedeon sayde vnto him: Sy, yf the LORDE be w us, wherfore is all this then happened vnto us? And where are all the wonders, which oure fathers tolde us, 2 sayde: The LORDE broughthe us out of Egypte: But now hath the LORDE forsaken us, and deliuered us in to the hande of the Midianites.

The LORDE turned him vnto him, 2 say de: Go thy waye in this thy strength, thou shalt deliuer Israel out of the hande of 3 Midianites. I haue sent the. But he sayde: My LORDE, wherwith shall I deliuer Israel? Beholde, my tyned is the smallest in Manasse, 2 I am the least in my fathers house: The LORDE sayde vnto him: I will be w the, so 3 thou shalt smyte the Midianites, euen as though they were one man.

He sayde vnto him: If I haue soude grace in thy sighte, then make me a token, that it is thou, which speakest with me: go now awaye, tyll I come to 3, and bringe a meoffer ynge, to set before the. He sayde: I will tary, tyll thou comeist agayne. And Gedeon wote, and made ready a tydd, and an Ephes of unleuened flour, and layed the flesh in a maunde, and put the broth in a pot, and broughthe it forth vnto him vnder the Oke, and came nye. But the angell of God sayde vnto him: Take the flesh and the unleuened bread, 2 set it vpon the stonye rocke that is here, and poure the broth thereon. And he byd so. Then the angell of the LORDE stretched out the staffe that he had in his hande, and with the ende of it he touched the flesh and the unleuened flour: and the fyre came out of the rocke, and consumed the flesh and the unleuened flour. And the angell of the LORDE was shyed out of his sighte.

Now whā Gedeon sawe that it was an angell of 3 LORDE, he sayde: O LORDE LORDE, haue Iebus sene an angell of 3 LORDE face to face? The LORDE sayde vnto him: Peace be with the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Gedeon buyded an alcare there vnto 3 LORDE, 2 called it: The LORDE of peace. The same stonedei yet vnto this daye at Aphia, 3 belongeth vnto the father of y Ephraim.

And in 3 same nighte sayde 3 LORDE vnto him: Take a sedd bullocke frō among thy fathers oxen, 2 another bullocke of its own yeare elde, and breake downe the altare of Baal which is thy fathers, and cut downe the groue that stondech by it, and bynde thou an alcare vnto the LORDE 3 God aboue vpon the toppe of this rocke, and make it ready, and take the other bullocke, and offer a burnt offrynge with the rodd of the groue that thou hast hewen downe. Then came Gedeon ten men of his seruantes, and byd as 3 LORDE sayde vnto him: he was afrayed to do this by daye tyme, for his fathers house and the people in 3 cite, and so he byd it by nighte.

Now whā the people in the cite rose up easily in the mornynge, beholde, Baal also it was broken, and the grone between downe by it, and the other bullocke a burnt offering upon the altare: that was buydded, & one sayde vnto another: Who hath done this? And when they sought & made searche, it was layde: Gebeon the sonne of Joas hath done it. Thei sayde the people of Iuda vnto Joas: Whyngt south y some, he must dye, because he hath broken Baals altare, and between downe the grone thereby. But Joas sayde vnto all them that stode by him: Wyl ye stryue for Baal? Wyl ye deliuer him? he shal death for him: shal dye this mourninge. If he be God, let him auenge him selfe, because he his altare is broken downe. From y daye forth was he called Jerubaal, because it was layde: Let Baal auenge him selfe, that his altare is broken downe.

¶ When y Madianites now & y Amalekites, & the childre towarde the south had gathered the felnes together, & were passed the riuer Jordan: & had pitched their tentes in the valley of Iustal, the spate of the LORD ended Gebeon, & he caused the trumpet to be blowne, & called the house of y Aduites, that they shoulde folowe him: & he sent messengers vnto all Manasse, & called them, & they shoulde folowe him also: and he sent messengers likewise vnto Assir & Zabulon & Naphtali, which came vnto meet him.

And Gebeon sayde vnto God: If thou wilt deliuer Israel thow my hande, as thou hast sayde: the vii. I laye a fleck of woll in the course: yf y dew be onely vpon y fleck: dye vpon all the gronde, then wyl I proue, that thou shalt deliuer Israel thow my hande, as thou hast sayde. And it came so to passe. And when he rose vp early on the morow, he waige y dew out of the fleck, and fylled a vessell full of water. And Gebeon sayde vnto God: Be not wroth at me, that I spake yet this one tyme. I wyl proue yet but once with the fleck, let it be drye vpon the fleck, and dew vpon all the gronde. And God dyd so the same night:

so that it was drye onely vpon the fleck, and dew vpon all the gronde.

The vii. Chapter.

¶ Then Jerubaal (that is Gebeon) gat him vp early, and all the people that was with him, and pitched their tentes by the well of Harod, so that he had the hoost of the Madianites on the north side by the byll of Ilions in the valley. But the LORD sayde vnto Gebeon: The people that be with y are so many for me to deliuer Madian in to their hande, lest Israel doost them felnes agaynst me, and saye: My hande hath deliuered me. Cause a proclamacon now to be made in the eares of the people, and saye: he that feareth, and in a frayd, let him come backe, and get him soome from mount Gilad. Then returned there of the people aboute a two and twenty thousand: so that there was left but ten thousand.

¶ And the LORD sayde vnto Gebeon: The people are yet so many: byngt them downe to the water, there wyl I proue them for y: and of whom I saye that he shal go w the, the same shal go with the: but of whos I saie that he shal not go with the, the same shall not go. And he broughte the people vnto y water. And the LORD sayde vnto Gebeon: Whosoever licketh of the water with his ell ge, as a dogg licketh, make him stonde asyde and lyke wyll who neuer fallt downe vps his necke to drynke. Then was the nombre of them that had lickt out of the hande to the mouth, thic hundred men. And the LORD sayde vnto Gebeon: Thow the thic hundred which haue lickt out, wyl I deliuer you, and geue over the Madianites in to thy hande: As for the other people, let them go enery one vnto his place.

¶ And they toke wyayles with them for y people, and their croppetes: but the other Israelites let he go, carry one vnto his tent. And he strengthened himselfe with the thic hundred men, and the Madianites hoost laye before him beneth in the valley. And the same night sayde the LORD vnto him: Up, and go downe in to the hoost, for I haue geuen them ouer in to thy hande. But yf thou be afrayed to go downe, then let y seruante Para go downe with the vnto the hoost, & thou maiest heare what they saie: after that shalt thou be bolde, and thy hande stronge, that thou maiest go downe in to the hoost.

¶ Then wente Gebeon downe with his seruante vnto y vniuersall parte of y watchtowers of armes y were in y hoost. And y Madianites and Amalekites, and all the children of the south, had layed them selues beneath in the valley, as a multitude of greeshoppers, and their Camels were not to be nombred for multitude, eue as the soude on y see shore. Now when Gideon came, beholde, one tolde another his dreame, & sayde: Beholde. I haue dreamed a dreame. Wt thoughee a baile barley lofe came rollinge downe to y heoff of y Madianites: and when it came to the tize, it smote it, and euerthier it, and turned it vpyde downe, so that the tente fell. Then answered the other: That is nothinge do then y sword of Gideon the sonne of Joas y Jraclite: God hath geue euer the Madianites with all the hooff in to his hande.

¶ When Gideon herde this dreame telde, & the interpretation of it, he worshipped, and came agayne in to the hooff of Jracl, and saye: Up, for the LORDE hath deliuered y hooff of the Madianites in to youre hande. And he deuyded the thre hundred men in to thre partes, and gaue euery one a trompet in his hande, and empye pytchers, and lampes therein, and sayde vnto them: Eke vnto me, and do ye euf so, and beholde, whā I come to the vtremost parte of the hooff, euen as I do, so do ye also. When I blew y trompet, and all theae are w me, then shall ye blowe y pytchers also rounde aboute all the hooff, and saye: Here the LORDE & Gideon. Thus came Gideon and the thre hundred men with him vnto the vtremost parte of y hooff aboute the tyme when the nyght arch begynneth and wakd vpe the u. arches, and blew with the trompettes, and shoute aius der the pytchers in their hande.

¶ So all the theae companies blew with y trompettes, and brake the pytchers. But the lampes helde they in their lefte hande, and the trompettes in their righte hande, so that they blew, and cried: Here the sworde of the LORDE and Gideon. And euery one stode in his place aboute the hooff. Then ranne all the hooff, and cried and fled. And whye the thre hundred men liene the trompettes, y LORDE broughte it so to passe, that euery mans sworde in all y hooff was agaynst another, and the hooff fled vnto Berhsheba Bereracha, and vnto the border of the playne of Mephab beside Tabath. And y men of Jracl of Ephraim, of Asser, & of Manasse cried, and folowed vpon the Madianites.

¶ And Gideon sent messengers vpon vnto all moune Ephraim, sayenge: Come downe agaynst the Madianites, and stoppe the warre from them vnto Berhsara and Jordane. And then cryed all they that were of Ephraim, and stopped the water from them vnto Berhsara and Jordane, and toke the pynnes of the Madianites Oreb and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the roffe of Oreb, and Zeb in the royme presse of Zeb, and folowed vpon the Madianites, and broughte the heubes of Oreb and Zeb, vnto Gideon our Jordane.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ The men of Ephraim sayde vnto him: Wherefore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast not called vs, whā thou wentest forth to fight agaynst y Madianites: and they chode sore with him. But he sayde vnto them: Whye haue I done now that is like youre acte: Is not the ofter gadberyng of Ephraim betwixt them the whole hartus of Abisra: God hath deliuered y pynnes of the Madianites Oreb and Zeb in to youre hande, how coude I do other ye haue done: Whā he had I saye this, the blast was swaged from him.

¶ Now when Gideon came vnto Jordan, he wente euer with the thre hundred that were with him, and they were trecty, and folowed vpon their chace. And he saye vnto the men of Sucoth: I praye you ge the people that are with me, some leanes of bread (for they are trecty) that I maye sturre vpon Zeba and Salmanna the fingers of the Madianites.

¶ But the rulers of Sucoth sayde: In the handes of Zeba and Salmanna in thy hande already, that we must geue bread to thy men of warre: Gideon sayde: Well, when the LORDE deliuereth Zeba and Salmanna in to my hande, I wyll thers the your flesh with thounes of the wynter flis, and with beares. And from thence he wente vnto Penuel, and spake euen so vnto them. And the me of Penuel geue him life as before as they of Sucoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Penuel: If I come peaceably agayne, I wil breake downe this tower.

¶ So for Zeba and Salmanna, they went at Barbar, and their hooff with them vpon a syffene thousant, & whid were all they were lefte of the whole hooff of the children of the East: for there were fallen an hundred and twenty thousande, that coude turne the sworde.

¶ And Gideon wente up by the way, wher they dwell in the tence on the east side of Tadah and Jabeba, & smote the hooff, in the hooff was carelesse, and mystified w things. And Zeba and Salmanna fled, he folowed a fier them, and toke y two h:

ges of the Madianites Zebca and Salmana, and put all the host in feare.

Now when Gedeon of some of Joas came againe first the battayll out of 3 cast, he took a lab of the men of Succoth, 7 examined him, which would him vp the names of the rulers of Succoth, and their Elders, and the scole and seruicemen.

D And he came to the men of Succoth, 7 sayde: Beholde, here is Zebca 7 Salmana, euer mynge wds ye laughed me to scoine, 7 sayde: Are the handes of Zebca and Salmana in thy handes all ready, that we must gene bred woe to them which are weary? And he toke the Elders of the cite, and throue out of the windowes, and beres, and caused 3 men of Succoth to come therewith. And the ruler of Peniel brake he downe, and slawe the men of the cite.

And he saide vnto Zebca and Salmana: What manner of me were they which ye slawe at Gabor: They sayde: They were euen liethes, 7 goodly men, as yf they had bene a kynges chyldre. He sayde: They were my brethren, euen my mother somes: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, yf ye had lette them lyue, I woulde not slaye you.

E And he saide vnto his first borne sonne Jether: Stande vp, 7 slaye them. So wote the laddme not our his swerde, for he was a frayd, for so much as he was yet but a lad. Zebca 7 Salmana sayde: Stande thou vp, 7 slaye us, for as the man is, soch is also his strenght. So Gedeon arose, and slawe Zebca and Salmana, and toke the ornamentes that were aboute their Camels neckes.

Then sayde certayne in Israel vnto Gedeon: Be thou lord ouer vs, thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne, for so much as thou hast deliuered vs from 3 handes of 3 Madianites. Theretoles Gedeon saide vnto them: I wil not be lord ouer you, neither shall my sonne be lord ouer you, but the LORDE shall be lord ouer you.

J Gedeon sayde vnto them: One thinge I desire of you: Every man gene me the earring that he hath spoyled. (For it so much as 3 men were Imaelites, they had earringes.) They sayde: Them wilt we geue thee. And they spred out a cloch, and every man cast the earringe thereon that he had spoyled. And the golden earringes which he requyred, had in weight, a thousande and seven hundred Syles of golde, besyde the spanges and thymes, and scarlet sayment which the kynge of the Madianites dyd weare, and besyde the neckbandes of their Camels. And Gedeon made a coxe armour thereof, and soe it in his cite at Aphia. And all Israel wente there a whoringe after it, and it came on an occasion of fallinge vnto Gedeon and his house.

Thus were 3 Madianites broughte downe before the chyldren of Israel, and lifte vp their heade no more: and the lord was in rest fortye yeares, as lōge as Gedeon lyued.

And Jerubaal the sonne of Joas wote 2 dwel in his house. And Gedeon had thre score 7 ten sonnes, which were come out of his thyre: for he had in many wyse. And his concubine which he had at Sich, bare him a sonne also, whom he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed in a good age, 7 was buried at Aphia in 3 sepulchre of his father Joas the father of the Iffrites.

But when Gedeon was dead, the chyldre of Israel turned backe, and wente awhynge after Baalim, and made a covenante wth Baal Berith, for he shulde be their God. And 3 chyldre of Israel thoughte not on 3 LORDE their God, which had deliuered them fro the handes of their enemies rounde aboute: and they shewed not mercy vnto the house of Jerubaal Gedeon, according to all the good that he had done vnto Israel.

The ix. Chapter.

A Bimelech the sonne of Jerubaal wente vnto Sich to his mothers brethren, 7 spake vnto them, 7 to all the kynred of his mothers fathers house, and sayde: I praye you speake in the eares of all the men at Sichem: What is better for you, that thre score and ten men all chyldren of Jerubaal shulde be lordes ouer you, or that one man shulde be lord ouer you? Remember also that I am youre bone and youre flesh.

Then spake his mothers brether all these wordes for him, in 3 eares of all 3 men at Sichem. And their hart enclined to Abimelech, for they thoughte: He is oure biotther, and gaue him thre score and ten silverlinges out of 3 house of Baal Berith. And thre Abimelech byred men that were vagabondes and of lichte condicions, which followed him. And he came to his fathers house vnto Aphia, and slew his brethren the chyldren of Jerubaal, euen thre thre men and 2 upon one stone. But Jorham the youngest sonne of Jerubaal remayned ouer, for he was bydd. And all the men of Sichem, and all the house of Millo gathered them selfes together, and wente and made Abimelech kynge by the Oke that stonday at Githen.

2. Job. 21. 2

B When this was tolde Iotham, he wente, and stode vpon the toppes of mount Gasiim, and lift vp his voyce, and sayde: heare me ye men of Sichem, that God maye heare you also. The trees wente to anointe a kinde ouer them, and sayde vnto the Olive tree: Be thou ouer kyngge. But the Olive tree answered them: Shall I go and leaue my fatnesse (which both God and men commende in me) and go to be puffed vpon above the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the figge tree: Come thou and be kyngge ouer vs. But the figge tree sayde vnto the: Shall I leaue my sweetnes and my good frute, and go to be puffed vpon above the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vigne: Come thou and be ouer kyngge. But the vigne sayde vnto them: Shall I leaue my sweete wyne, which reioyseth God and men, and go to be puffed vpon above the trees? The figge tree sayde vnto the thorne busshie: Come thou, and be kyngge ouer vs. And the thorne busshie sayde vnto the trees: If it be true, & ye anointe me to be kyngge ouer you, the come, and put youre trust vnder my shadowe. If no, then go fyre out of the thorne busshie, & consume & Cedar trees of Libanus.

If ye haue done righte now and iustly, & ye haue made Abimelech to be kyngge: and yf ye haue done well vnto Jerubaal and to his house, and haue done vnto him as he deserueth vnto you. Which euen my father soughte for your sake, and is perished his lyfe, to be lyeer out of the Madianites hande, eue you, which are rylen vp this daye agaynst my fathers house, & haue slaine his chyldre, the scole perforce & ten vpon one stone, and haue made you a kyngge: euen Abimelech the sonne of his handmaide, ouer the men at Sichem, for so much as he is youre brother.

If ye haue done righte now and iustly vnto Jerubaal and his house this daye, then reioyce ouer Abimelech, and let him reioyce ouer you. If no, then go fyre out from Abimelech, and consume the men of Sichem and the house of Millo: And fyre go out also fro the men of Sichem, and from the house of Millo, and consume Abimelech. And Iotham (whan he had spoken this out) fled, and gat him out of the waye, and wente vnto Ber, and dwelt there because of his brother Abimelech.

D

Now whan Abimelech had reigned the yere ouer Issad, God sent an euill mynde betwene Abimelech and the men of Sichem (for the men of Sichem despised Abimelech, and repeated the nauage done to the sonnes of Jerubaal, and their bloude, and layd it vpon Abimelech their brother which slewe them, and vpon the men of Sichem that strengethed his hande therein, that he mighte slaye his bretheren.

And the men of Sichem set an hynde watch vpon the coppes of the mountaynes, and spoyled all them that walkt ed vnto them by the waye, and it was tolde Abimelech. But there came Gaal the sonne of Eber, and his bretheren, and entred in to Sichem, and the men of Sichem put their trust in him, and wote out in to the felde, and gathered their vynyardes, and pressed them, and made a damme, and wente in to their gyle house, and ate and dranke, and cursid Abimelech.

And Gaal y sonne of Eber sayde: Wherfore is Abimelech? and what is not the sonne of Jerubaal, and hath set Sebul his seruaunt ouer the men of Hemor the father of Sichem? Wherfore shulde we serue him? Wolde he the people were vnder my hande, & I mighte put downe Abimelech.

And it was tolde Abimelech: Inueniethine hooft, and departe. For Sebul the chiefe ruler of the cite, whan he herde the wordes of Gaal y sonne of Eber, he was wroth fully displeasid, and sente messages secretly Abimelech, and caused to saye vnto him: Beholde, Gaal the sonne of Eber and his bretheren are come to Sichem, and make the cite to be agaynst the.

Arise therefore by nyght, thou and thy people that is with the, and laye waye fast in the felde: and comow whan the Sunn ariseth, gat the vp soone, and fall vpon the cite: and yf he and the people that is with him come out vnto the, the deale with him, as thine hande fyndeeth.

Abimelech stode vp by nyght, and alle the people that was with him, and layd waye for Sichem with foure companies of men of warres. And Gaal the sonne of Eber wote out and stode at the doore of the gate of the cite. But Abimelech gat him vp out of his hinder watch, and the people that was with him. Now whan Gaal sawe the people, he sayde vnto Sebul: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from the toppes of y mount. Sebul saide vnto him: Thou seest y shadowe of the mountaynes as though they were: Gaal spake yet more and sayde: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from y mount of the londe, & one bonde of men cometh by the waye to & watch the. The sayde Sebul: Wher is now y mouth & sayde: Wher is Abimelech, that we shalbe streue him: for we see this 3 people, whom thou hast refused: Go forth now, and fighte with him.

Soal wente forth before the citizens of Sichem, and foughte with Abimelech. But Abimelech chased him, so that he fled, and there fell many slayne euen vnto the gate of the cite. And Abimelech abode at Armina. But Sebal dioue awaye Soal and his brethren, so that they must not remayne at Sichem. Vpon the morow wente the people forth in to 3 side. Whā this was tolde Abimelech, he rote the people, and parted them into the holdes of men, and wayted for the side he wold take. Now when he sawe 3 the people were out of the cite, he rose agaynst the, and smote them.

Abimelech and 3 company of men that was with him, fell vpon them, and sleete vnto the doore of the towre: but the other two companies fell vpon all them that were in the side, and sleete them. The sougher Abimelech agaynst the cite all 3 same daye, and wanne it, and sleete the people that was therein, and brake downe 3 cite, and sowed salt thereon.

When all the men of the towre of Sichem herde this, they wente in to a stronge holde of 3 house of their God Berith. But when Abimelech herde, that all the men of the towre of Sichem had gathered the selfe together, he wente vp vnto mount Gelboe, and all the people that was with him, and toke an axe in his hande, and hewed downe a bough of a tree, and toke it vp, & layed it vpon his shulder, and sayde vnto all the people that was with him: As ye haue sene me do, make ye haill, and do euen so as I. Then all the people hewed downe every one a bush, and followed Abimelech: and they layed them to the holde, and set fyre vpon them agaynst them and the holde: and all the men of the towre of Sichem dyed thowse the fynde and fyre, vpon a thousand men and women.

The x. Chap. Ho. xviij.

As for Abimelech, he wrote vnto Thebez, and layed siege vnto it, and wanne it. Due in the myddes of the cite: there was a stronge towre, vnto the which all the men and women, and all the citizens of the cite fled, and shute it a ster them, and cymmed vp to the toppe of the towre. Then came Abimelech vnto the towre, and soughte agaynst it, and came nye vnto the doore of the towre, that he mighte burne it with fyre. But a woman call a peece of a mystone vpon Abimelechs heade, and brake his heane panne. Then Abimelech in alle the haill, called the seruaut that bare his weapon, and sayde vnto him: Dioue out thy swerde, and kyll me, that I be not sayde of me: A woman hath slayne him. Then his seruaut thrust him thorow, and he dyed. Whā the Israelites which were with him, sawe, 3 Abimelech was deed, they gaue them awaye euery one vnto his owne place.

Thus God recompensed Abimelech the enelle that he had done vnto his father, whā he sleete his thre sours and ten brethren: like wise all the enell of the men of Sichem, dyd God rewarde them vpon their heade: and so the curse of Jochem 3 some of Jerubaal came vpon them.

The X. Chapter.

After Abimelech there rose vp a man of their samoure in Israel. Thelsa a man of Yachar, and the sonne of Pua, the sonne of Dodo. And he dwelt at Samir vnto the mount Ephraim, and indged Israel thre and twentye years, and died, and was buried at Samir.

After him sode vp one Jair a Galaadite, and indged Israel two and twentye years, and had thre thirtie simmes, rydinge vpon thre asse soales: and had thre thirtie cities, whose names are (sauoth Jair) that is, the cities of Jair vnto this daye, and he is in Galaad. And Jair dyed, and was buried at Camon.

But the children of Israel thoughte wekdnes in the sighte of the LORDE, and serued Baalim and Astaroch, and the goddesses of Siria, and the goddesses of Sidon, and the goddesses of Moab, and the goddesses of 3 children of Ammon, and the goddesses of the Philistines, and souste 3 LORDE, and serued him not. Then was 3 wrath of 3 LORDE vnto the children of Israel, and he gaue the eme vnto the hande of the philistynes, and of the children of Ammon. And they were and oppressed 3 children of Israel eightene years longe. All the children of Israel that were beyonde Jotdane in the londe of the Moabites, which lyeth in Gilead. The children of Ammon also wente out to Iordane, and foughte agaynst Jaba, Ben Jamin, and agaynst the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was very sore troubled.

C Then cryed the children of Israel vnto the LORDE, and sayde: We haue synned agaynst the, for we haue forsaken our God, & serued Baalim. But the LORDE sayde vnto the child of Israel: Did not the Egipcians, the Amozites, the children of Ammon, y Phi listines, the Sidonians, the Amalechites and the Moabites oppress you, and I helped you out of their hande, when ye cryed vnto me: Now haue ye forsaken me, and serued other goddes: Therfore will I helpe you no more.

111. 4

Go youre waye, and crye vpon the goddes whom ye haue chosen, let them helpe you in the tyme of youre trouble.

D But the child of Israel sayde vnto the LORDE: We haue synned, do thou vnto vs what pleaseth the, onely deliuer vs at this tyme. And they put the strange goddes fro them, and serued the LORDE. And his seale had pytie on the misery of Israel.

And the children of Ammon called them selues together, and pitched in Gilead: But the children of Israel gathered them selues together also, and pitched at Mijpa. And y people of the chereft of Gilead sayde amonge them selues: Who so euer begynneth to fight agaynst the children of Ammon, shall he be ouer all them that dwell in Gilead.

The XI. Chapter.

A Jephthas a Gileadite was a valiant man of armes, but an harlottes child. Gilead begate Jephthas. And when the wyfe had borne children vnto Gilead, and the same wyne child it were waye greace, they thrust out Jephthas, and sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not be here in our fathers house, for thou art another womans sene. Therfore fled he from his birth, and dwelt in the londe of Tob. And there resorted vnto him vagabondes, and wote eue with him. And after a certayne tyme foughte the children of Ammon with Israel.

Now when the child of Ammon foughte thus with Israel, the Elders wente from Gilead to fetch Jephthas out of the londe of Tob, and sayde vnto him: Come, and be oure capteyne, and fighte agaynst the children of Ammon. But Jephthas sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: Are not ye they that hate me and haue thrust me out of my fathers house, and now come ye to me when ye are in trouble?

The Elders of Gilead sayde: Therfore we we now agayne vnto the, that thou mayest go with vs, and fighte agaynst the children of Ammon, and be oure capteyne: and all that dwell in Gilead. Jephthas answered vnto the Elders of Gilead: If ye let me agayne to fighte agaynst the child of Ammon, and the LORDE deliuer them before me, shall I then be youre heade: The Elders of Gilead saide vnto Jephthas: The LORDE beareer betwene vs, if we do not as thou hast sayde. So Jephthas wote with the Elders of Gilead. And the people made him heade, and darte out them. And Jephthas spake all this before the LORDE at Mijpa.

Then sente Jephthas messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, and caused to saye vnto him: What hast thou to do with me, that thou comest vnto me to fighte agaynst my londe: The kynge of the child of Ammon answered Jephthas messengers: Because that Israel toke awaye my londs (when they departed out of Egypce) from Ammon vnto Jaba, and vnto Iordan: I will take it me agayne now: therfore peaceably.

But Jephthas sente yet more messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, which sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth Jephthas: I had rather take no londe, neither from the Moabites nor from the children of Ammon: for when they departed out of Egypce, Israel walked theroon the nyther side into the reed see, and came to Cabes, and sent messengers to the kynge of the Edomites, and sayde: Let me go theroon thy londe. But the kynge of y Edomites wold not heare them. They sent likewise vnto the kynge of the Moabites, which wold not also. Thus Israel abode in Cabes, and compassed the lye of the Edomites and Moabites, and came on the east syde of the londe of the Moabites and pitched beyende Arnon, and came not within the coaste of the Moabites, for Arnon is the border of the Moabites.

And Israel sente messengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amozites at Heshbon, and caused to saye vnto him: Let me go theroon thy londe vnto my place. The king Sihon wolde not truste Israel to go theroon the border of his londe, but gathered all his people, and pitched at Jahja, and foughte with Israel. Sihon bet the LORDE God of Israel gaue Sihon with all his people to Israel, so that they slew them. Thus Israel conquered all the londe of the Amozites that dwelt in y same countrey. And thei toke possessiō of all the borders of the of Israel drewe awaye the Amoitites before his people of Israel, and wylt thou cōquere them: Is it not so, yf thy God Camos gave the oughte to possess, woldst thou not possess: What so ever the LORD E God hath gūe us before us to possess, that shal we conquer and take in possession.

bon, and in the vylages thereof, in Aroer and Ieribe vylages therof, and in all the cities that lye by Arnon. Why dyd not ye rescue it a cheit lanne tyme: I haue not offended the,
ne thou dost me amill to fighte agaynst me:
The LORD E gave sentence this daie betwix Israel and the children of Ammon.

Then artholes the kynge of the children of Ammon wolde not heare yf wordes of Jeph-thae, which he sent vnto him. Then came J syner of the LORD E vpon Jephthae, and he wente thowt Gilthead and Manasse, and thowt Mispa which lieth in Gilead, and for Mispa that lieth in Gilead, vnto J children of Ammon.

J And Jephthae vowed a voue vnto the 112. LORD E, and sayde: If thou wilt deliuer the child of Ammon in to my hande, what so euer cometh first out at the doore of my house in my waye, when I returne agayne peacably from the child of Ammon, that same shalbe the LORD E S, and J wyl offre it for a burnt offeringe.

So Jephthae wente vpon the children of Ammon, to fighte against them. And yf LORD E gave them in to his hande, and he shone tho from Aroer tyll thou comest vnto Min-nith, tūc twenty cities, and vnto the playne of J vnyardes a very greate slaughter, and thos were the children of Ammon subdued before the children of Israel.

Then when Jephthae came to Mispa vnto his house, beholde, his daughter wente out to meete him with tabrettes and daunces: and she was his onely childe, & he had no other sonne ner daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes, & sayde: Alas my daughter, thou hast made my heart so sorow-full, and thou hast opened my mouth vnto the LORD E, and canst thou call it agayne.

She sayde vnto her father, yf thou hast opened my mouth vnto the LORD E, then do vnto me as it is proceeded out of J mouth. E Accordinge as the LORD E hath sayde the of thine enemies the children of Ammon.

And she sayde vnto hit father: Do this for me, geue me leue to go downe vpo the moun-taynes two monethes, that I maye become my virginite with my playferees. She sayde to thy waye. And he let her go two mone-thes. Then wente she with her playferees, and bewailed hit mayden herte vpon the mountaynes. And after two monethes she came agaynt vnto hit father. And he dyd vnto her accordinge as he had vowed. And she had neuer bene in daunger of any man.
And it was a custom: in Israel, that the daughters of Israel shulde go every yere, and mourne for the daughter of Jephthae the Gileadite, foure dayes in the yere.

The XL Chapter.

D Idury of Ephraim made insurtec-cion, & wente northward, & sayde vnto Jephthae: Wherefore wilst thou 104. a. to the battayll agaynst the children of Ammon, & hast not called vs, that we mighte go with the: We wil burne thy house and the with fire. Jephthae sayde vnto the: J and my people had a greate matter with J children of Ammon, and J cried vpon you, but ye helped me not out of their handes. How when I sawe: J there was no helper, J put my soule in my hande, and wente agaynst the children of Ammon, and the LORD E de-liuered them in to my hande. What for come ye vp to me, to fighte agaynst me:

And Jephthae gathered all the men in Gilead, & foughte agaynst Ephraim. And the men in Gilead smote Ephraim, because they sayde: Ye Gileadites are as they J fle awaye before Ephraim, (and dwell) amonge Ephraim & Manasse. And the Gileadites rode yf ferye of Jordan from Ephraim: Tow-ward one of yf fugitive Ephraimites dyd saye: Let me go ouer, yf men of Gilead saybe: But thou an Ephraimite: yf he sayd vnto the: Lo, thy hand hath saue: Siboleth, & he sayde: Sib-leth, & coulde not speake it righte: then they toke him, & flew him at J ferye of Jordan, so the same tyme there fell of Ephraim two & forty men. Jephthae iudged Israel five yea-res. And Jephthae yf Gileadite dyed, & was buried in one of the cities of Gilead.

After him iudged Israel one Ephraim of Bethleem, which had threie sonnes and as many daughters: and his threie daughteres gave he forth to mariage, and threie doughters toke he from without for his sonnes, and iudged Israel seuen yere, and dyed, and shadows 2 loynes: and wete downe, 2 wende in the stone clyffe at Uram. Then wente the Philistynes up, and layed sege vnto Iuda, 2 pitched at Lechi. But they of Iuda sayde: Wherefore are ye come vp against vs? They answered: we are come vp to bynde Samson, for we maye do vnto him, as he hath done vnto vs.

C Then mete there the III. men of Iuda downe to the stone clyffe of Uram, 2 sayde vnto Samson: And nowt thou not that the Philistynes raigne ouer vs? Wherefore hast thou done this then vnto vs? He sayde: As they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto the agayne. They sayde vnto him: We are come downe to bynde the, 2 to deliuer for into the hande of the Philistynes. Samson sayde vnto the: Then care 2 promise me, for ye will not slaye me. They answered him: We will not kyll the, we will but bynde the, 2 deliuer the in to their hande, 2 will not slaye for. And they bounde him with thre new cordes 2 caried him from the stone. And when he came vnto Lechi, the Philistynes shouted, and rane vnto him. But for space of for the LORD came upon him, 2 the cordes aboute his armes were like cheddes burne in the fyre, so for the bondes were loosid from his bondes.

D And he founde the chete bone of a deeb asse then put he forth his hande, and toke it, 2 slew a thousande men therewith: And Samson sayde: With an elce of ses chete bone, ye cut with the chete bone of an esse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had sayde for, he cast for chete bone out of his hande, 2 called the place Ramath Lechi. But when he was sicke a thyssit, he called vps the LORD, 2 saide: Och greate health hast thou geue by the hande of thy seruante, vnto now must I dye a thyssit, 2 fall in to for hande of for vnicuersite. The God opened a gome ege in for chete bone, so for water wete out: when he dranke, his spere came agayne, 2 he was refreshed. Therfore vnto this daye it is ye called for well of for chete bone of him for made intercession. And he indged Israel in the tyme of the Philistynes, euerye yeare.

The XVI. Chapter.

S Amson wente vnto Gasa: 2 there he sawe an harlot, 2 laye with her. The was it saide vnto the Gossizes: Samson is come hither. And they compassed him about, 2 cauld to laye wayte for him piensly, 2 watched all the nighte in the gate of for cite, 2 all that nighte they helde them styll, 2 sayde: A byde, com ome when we sighe, we will slaye him. But Samson laye vnto myghte, then rose he at myghte, 2 toke holde on both for side partes of for gate of the cite, 2 bothe the postes, 2 luffe them with the barres, 2 layed them upon his shoulders, 2 bare them vp to for coppe of for moue ouer agaynst Gethion.

After this he fell in to the love of a woman by for booke of Gath, whose name was Dalila, vnto whom the pynces of the Philistynes came up, and sayde vnto her: What be him, and loke wherun he hath such greute strenght, 2 how we maye our come him, for myghte bynde him 2 subdue him, so we will greute the eury man a lill, and an C. splanagos. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: I praye the tell me, wher in thy greute strenght is, 2 how thou mightest be bounde to be bounde. Samson sayde vnto her: If I was bounde with flur roapes of fresh feneme, which are not yet dryed vp, I shulde be weake, and as another man. The the pynces of the Philistynes broughe vp vnto her thre new roapes, which were not yet dryed vp. And she bounde him therewith. But then was wayte layed for him leside her in the chamber, and she sayde vnto him: The pyntes vpon the Samson. Therethere he brake the roapes in sande, vnto as a rownd chede break ech, when it hath catched the heat of the fyre. And it was not known wher in his strength was.

Then sayde Dalila vnto Samson: beholde, thou hast begyled me 2 vntosembled my metell me yet, wherwithall mayest thou be bounde? He answered her: If thou bounde me with new cordes, wherwith no laber hath bene done, I shulde be sible, 2 as any other man. Then toke Dalila new cordes, 2 bounde him withall, and sayde: The Philistynes vps the Samson (but there was wayte layed for him in the chamber.) And he brake them from his armes, when as it had bene a thede.

Dalila sayde vnto him: Yett hast thou begyled me 2 vntosembled me: What is ye, wherwithall mightest thou be bounde? He answered her: If thou playtest first part lesdes of my heade together in a fille, and softness them in with a nagle (I shulde be weake.) And she saide vnto him: The Philistynes vps the Samson. But he a waked out of his slepe, 2 drue out for played daye with the male and the sylle.

The sayde she vnto him: How cast thou saye for thou louest me, wher as thinkest is not yett with me? The tynes had the disceined me, and not solde me wherwith grate strength is. So when she was everydaye important upon him wth her wordes, & woulde not let him haue rest, his soule was fyrms euen vnto the death, & he shewed her his whole hart, & sayde vnto her: There came neuer rasours vpon my heade, for I am a Flayer of God fro my mothers wombe.

If I were shaven, my strength shoulde depart from me, so that I shoulde be weak, and as all other men. Now when Dalila saue that he had opened all his hart vnto her, she saw & called for the prynces of the Philistines, & sayde: Come ye once vpon, for he hath opened his hart vnto me.

¶ The called the prynces of the Philistines to come her: & brought the money w^{ch} they gave them. And she made him to slepe vpon her lappe, & called one which shone of the best hayne loches of his heade. And she begane to weze him. This was his strength deperit fro him. And she sayde vnto him:
The Philistines vpon the Samson. Now woulde he awake out of his slepe, he thought: I will go forth as I haue done a fore tyme, & eke my strength, & renewe not. The LORDE was departed from him. But the Philistines toke him, & put out his eyes, and brought him downe to Gaza, & bounde him wth fetters, and made him to gyve in the prison. But the hart of his heade begane to growe agayn, where it was shaven of.

¶ When the prynces of the Philistines were gathered together, to make a greatesacrifice into Dagon their god, and to be ioyfull, they sayde: Oure god hath deliuered Samson our enemy in to our hande. Like wyl whan the people sawe him, they prayed their god, & sayde: Oure god hath deliuered in to our handes our enemy, & destroyed oure londe, & slawe many of vs. Now whan their here was ioyfull, they sayde: Let vs fetch Samson, that he maye make some pastyme before vs. Then searched they Samson out of the prison, & he made pastyme before them. And they set him betweene two pilers. But Samson sayde vnto the lad that led him by the han-de: Let me touche the pilers wher vpon the beast stoneth, & I maye leane ther vnto.
As for the house, it was full of men & women.
All the prynces of the Philistines were there also, and vpon the rofe were aboute a thre thousande men and women, which behelde wher pastyme Samson made.

¶ But Samson called vpon the LORDE, & sayde: O LORDE, I praye vpon me, & strengthen me but this once O God, I beseeche thee, for in both myne eyes I maye see agayne in the Philistines. And he rote holde of two myoposts, that the house fode vpon the house by, the one in his right hande, & the other in his left. & sayde: My soule bye the Philistines, & he bowed him selfe mightly: Then fall the house vpon the prynces & vpon all the people that were therein, so that there were mo of the slayne which dyed in his beach, than he slawe whyle he liued. Then came his brethren downe and all his fathers house, and rote him, and caried him vp, and buried him in the graue of his father Ma-noah betwixt Barga and Esbaol. Helged Itrael liued xij. years.

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ Here was a man vpon mount Ephraim named Micha, which sayde vnto his mother: The thousande and hundredth silverlinges which thou hast taken me to the, & swome, and spoken of before my eares: beholde, I haue some money by me, I haue taken it vnto me. Then sayde his mother:
The blessinge of the LORDE be vnto my sonne. So he gaue his mother the thousande & hundredth silverlinges agayne. And his mother sayde: That money haue I sanctified vnto the LORDE wth my hande for my sonne, to make a lean ymage: therfore I gaue it the agayne. Therforthes he deliuered the money agayne vnto his mother.

¶ Then toke his mother two hundredth silverlinges, & put them forth to a goldsmith, which made a molten ymage, & was a ter-warbe in Michas house. And thus the man Micha had a gods house, & made an oberby by coze, & Iudis, and filled the house of one of his women, & he might be his priest. As the ymage was there no fyng in Itrael, & every man dyd the thinge that was righte in his owne eyes. There was a ydger man of Beth-leem Iuba, and he the fyng of Iuba, and he was a Leuite, and was a stranger there.
The same wente out of the cite of Beth-leem Iuba, to walke whither he coulde.

¶ And whan he came vpon to mount Ephraim unto the house of Michas, to go on his iourney, Michas asked him: Wherof愁st thou? he answered him: I am a Leuite of Bethleem Juda, and am past ym where I can. Michas sayde unto him: Carry with me, thou shalt be my father and my priest, I will graue thee earye years ten sheklinges and thy appointed raiment, and increase and daynte: and the Leuite wote on. And the Leuite agreed to abyde with the man: and he holde the yongema, as one of his owne sones. And Michas filled the Leuites hande, that he might be his priest, and so he was in Michas house. And Michas sayde: I am sure the LORD is with me good now, when I hope a Leuite to my priest.

The XVIII. Chapter.

AT that tyme was there no king in Israel. And yf trybe of Danites soughte them an euerlasting to dwell in, for unto that tyme there was no king in Israel. And the child of Dan sent out of their kynne fyve captaynes, which were men of armes: from Barga and Elshaal, to spy and search out the londe. And they sayde unto them: Go your way, and search out the londe. And they came up to nonne Elphaim to the house of Michas, and taried there all night. And whyle they were there w Michas husseholde, they knewe yf voyce of the yonge man the Leuite, and sayde unto him: Who broughte yf hither: What makst thou here: and why woldst thou come hither.

B He answered the: Thus I thus hath Michas done unto me, he hath hyed me to be his priest. They sayde unto him: Ware at God, yf we maye percase, whether our iourney which we go, shal prosper well or not. The priest answered them: Go your way in peace, your iourney yf ye go, is before the LORD. Then the fyve men wente their way, and came unto Aia, and sawe that the people which was therein, dwelt sure, even as yf Sidonians, at rest, and carelesse, and that there was no lorde in the londe to vex them, and were farr frome the Sidonians, and had nothinge to do with my man.

C And they came to their brethren to Barga and Elshaal. And their brethren saide unto them: How is it w you? They sayde: Arise, let us go up unto them, for we have sene the londe: yf it is a very good londe: make haist therfore, and be not slaffe to go, that ye maye come to take possession of the londe. When ye come, ye shall come to a carelesse people, and the londe is wyde: for God hath deliue red this place in to yo hande, where noughte manerly of all yf is upon earth.

Then wente there thence out of the hundred of Dan from Barga and Elshaal, six hundred men ready armed to Aia, and wente up, and pitched at Biriath Jerim in Juda: the fox called they the place, yf hoost of Dan, unto this daye, which is behide Biriath Jerim.

And so thence they wente up unto nonne Elphaim, and came to the house of Michas. Then answered the fyve men that wente out to spye the londe of Aia, and sayde unto their brethren: A name ye not that in this house there is an overbodye colde Idole, a molten ymage: Let us maye ye lorde whiche we use to do. They departed thence, and came to the house of the yonge man the Leuite in Michas house, and saluted him freely. And the six hundred men, which were of yf children of Dan, stood ready armed before yf gate. And the fyve men that wente out to spye yf londe, wente up, and came thither, and sote the ymage, the overbodye colde the molten Idole. In the meane whyle stood yf priest at the gate, with the six hundred ready armed.

How whiche these were come in to Michas house, and sote the ymage, the overbodye colde, and the molten Idole, the priest sayde unto them: What do ye? They answered him: Holde thy peace, and laye thine hande upon thy mouth, and go with us, yf thou mayst be our father and priest. Is it better for the to be priest in one mans house, then amonge a whole trybe and kynne in Israel? This pleased the priest well, he toke boche the overbodye colde, and the Idole, and the ymage, and came in amonge the people. And when they turned them and wente thence, they sent the children, and cattell, and such precious thynges as they had, before them.

When they were come farr from the house of Michas, the men yf were in Michas house, followed yf child of Dan, and cried upon the child of Dan. They came thither face aboute, and sayde unto Michas: What ayleth the, yf thou makst such a crying? He answered: Ye have callen away my goddes, and the priest, and are goinge yo way, and what have I behynde? What is here? And yet ye saye unto me: What ayleth the? But the child of Dan saide unto him: Let us not thy waye be herde amonge us, that we maye not fulfill me thurst not at the, and it yf le and the scale of yf house be destroyed.

the aduice of Deniela on their waye. And Micha, when he sawe that they were to ston- ge his house, turned backe, and came agayne to his house.

7 And they take thec. Micha had made, & the post whom he had, & came vnto Laia, & a quyte carelesse people, and steepe them with the ayde of the shepards, and burne the ci- ty with fire, and thre was no man so hely- ar them for they vsyd sayre frō Eldon, and had to do with no man. And they laye in the valley which is besyde Beth Rehob. Then they told they the cite, & they set her in, & call it Laia Dan, a surname of their father Dan, whom Ihsai began. And it was called Laia of the ymages.

And when the ymage of Dan set up the ymages for them, and Jonathan the ymage of Gai. For the some of it was lost. & his sonnes were pastur amonge the tribe of J. Danites, & vnto the ymge if they were led awaye captiue out of the lande. And thus they set amonge the ymage of Micha, which he had made as he saie, & the house of God was at Silah. The xx. Chapter.

7 The same ymge was there moynge in Irael, and there was a man of Ephraim, which was a stranger besyde mou- nte Ephraim, and had taken him a concubine of Babelon Iuda ro wife. And whā she had playd the harlot besyde him, she ranne frō him to her fathers house vnto Bethleem Iuda, & was there foure yeres longe. And her husbande gat him up, & wente a fewe hert, to speake freely w her, & so fetch her agayne, & had a husband & a couple of asses w him, And he led him into his fathers house. And when the damfelle father sawe him, he was glad, & receaued him: & his father in lawe, & the damfelle father kepte him, so that he rayed the dayes w him: thus they ate and drinke, and raynyed there all nyghte.

8 And on y fourth daye he gat him up, & ar- he, & wolde go his waye. Then sayde the damfelle father vnto his sonne in lawe: Darest thou be sure w a morsell of bread, as yet thou shalt ye go. And they set them downe, & ate and dronte both together: Then sayde the damfelle father vnto the man: Oh carge all nyghte, & we aile refresh chine here. But if thou wilst, & wolde nedes go. And his father in lawe constrayned him to tarre all nyghte. On the fifth daye in the morninge he gat him up, and wolde be gone. Then sayde the damfelle father: I praye the comforte thyng here, & it is as tary tyll thy daye be farther past, and so they ate both together.

And the man gat him up, and wolde go with his concubine and with his seruante. But his father in lawe the damfelle father, saide. wnto his agayne: Lo, the daye is spent, & it begynneth to be even, carry all nyghte be hote, & refresh thyng for this daye, abyde here this nyghte, it shall refresh chine here as comon by wyse get you up, and go your waye vnto thy gate. Rememberles the man wolde not tarre, but gat him up, and wote his waye, and cause our agayne. Jehocheie is Jerusalem, and his couple of asses laide, and his concubine with him.

10 And when they were come nye vnto Je- hocheie, he sayd vnto his seruante: I praye the for to tarre in so chie one of the Iehosites, and set the thei alle nighte. And the seruante sayd vnto him: I wyl not tarre in so chie of the Iehosites, they are the of the children of Ihsai, but I wyl go vnto the house of Gideon, and set the Iehosites. And he sayde vnto his seruante: Gideon is here, that was made come to some place, and tarre at Gibeon, or at Ramah all nyghte. And they wente on and wailed, and the woman wente downe vpon the hard by Gibeon, which lyeth in the tribe of Ben- jamin, and they tarred in there, & they mighte come in the mornge at Gibeon all nyghte. And when he came in, he set him downe in the streete of the cite, for there was no man that wolde lodge them in his house that nyghte.

11 And beholde, then came there an olde man from his worke out of the feld in the eveninge: and he was also of mounte Ephraim, and a stranger at Gibeon: but of that place were the children of Iamin. And when he like up his eye, & sawe the stranger in the streete he sayde vnto him: Whether wilt thou goe? & whense comest thou: he answered him: We are goinge oure iourney from Bethleem Iuda, vntill we come besyde mounte Ephraim, whiche I am, and wente vnto Bethleem Iuda, and now I go vnto y house of y LORD, & no man wil harborow me. Wherof strange and prouder for our asses, and bred and wyne for me and thy handmayners, and for the yonge man which is with thy seruante, so that we wante no thinge.

12 The olde man sayde: Peace be with thei what deseruet thou wantest, thou findest it w me, only tarre ye not in the streete all nyghte. And he broughte him in to his house, and gaue the asses prouender: and they wailed their face, and ate & dronte. And whā they here was now ioyfull, the men of the eyes, the children of Delial, came, and compassed the house round aboute, and ruffled at þe doore, and sayde vnto þe olde man, which was the good man of þe house. Bynge out the mā which is come in to thy house, that we maye knowe hym.

119. m. b

Then the good man of the house wente forth to them, and sayde vnto them: Oh no my husband, do not so wickedly, consideringe this man is come in to my house: Oh do not seke folye. Beholde, I have a daughter yet a virgin, and this man hath a concubine, thofe well. I brynge forth vnto you, that ye maye humble them, and do with them as ye like: but do not seke folye vnto this man. Wherecheles the men wolde not hearken vnto hym. Then toke þe man his concubine and broughed her forth vnto them: and they knewe her, and deale shamefully with her: all þe night vntill the morninge. And when the morninge began to rise, they let her go.

Then came the woman early in the morninge, and fell downe at the doore of the mā's house that her lorde was in, and laye there till it was light. Now when his lorde rose vp in the morninge, and opened the doore of the house, and wente forth to go on his iourney, beholde, his concubynne laye at the doore of the house, and his handes vpon the thier holde. He saide vnto her: Stande vp, let vs go. Wherecheles she gaue him no answer. He toke her vp vpon his asse, gaue hym up, and wente vnto his place.

Now when he came home, he toke a swerde, and heide his concubynne, and cut her to the bones and all in to twelue peeces, and sente them in to all the coastes of Israel. Who so ever sawe it, sayde: Such a thinge hath not bene done ner sene, sence the tyme that þe children of Israel departed out of the londe of Egypte, vnto this daye. Now as concerninge this, take youre aduysment, and geue yō counsell, and shew it forth.

The XX. Chapter.

Then wente the children of Israel out and gathered a congregacion together as one man, fro Dan vntill Ber saba, and from the londe of Gilead vnto the LORDE to Mishpa: and there came together of all the quarters of the people, and of all the tribes of Israel in to the congregacion of the people of God, fouer hundred thowsande force men that were out of þe swerde. Thus the children of Ben Jamin herde, howe that of children of Israel were gone vp vnto Mishpa. And the children of Israel sayde: Tell vs, howe happened this real?

Then answered the Leuite the husbande of the woman that was slayne, and sayde: I came to Gibea in Ben Jamin with myne cabynne, to tary there all night, sence the synes of Gibea gaue them vp a gaynste me, and composed me abedde in the house by night, and thought to slaye me, and despyed my concubynne, so that she byed aben toke: I wayed my concubynne, and cut her in peeces, and sent them in to every corner of the imperiour of Israel: for they haue done an abominacion and folye in Israel. Beholde, here are the children of Israel aduysē you well, and take this matere in hande.

So all the people gaue them vp an ome, and sayde: I would shal go in to his towne, and departe to his house, but this wold be to us a gaynste Gibea: Let vs cast lot, and callen men of an hundred, and an hundred of a thowsande, and a thowsande of ten thowsande, one of all þe tribes of Israel, þe they maye take sode for þe people, to come to warre with Gibea Ben Jamin, accordinge to that sode whiche they haue done in Israel. Thus all the men of Israel beyng conference, gathered them selues together as one man vnto the cite: and the tribes of Israel firste men were all the hundreds of Ben Jamin, and cast a sode vnto them: What maner of wyldeynne is this, that is done amonge you? Deluyte us rethet fore the men the children of Beniamin Gibea, that we maye put them to death, and do awaye the euill out of Israel. Wherecheles the children of Ben Jamin wolde not followe the voyce of their brethren the children of Israel, but gathered them selues one of a cote vnto Gibea, to go forth in battayle a gaynste the children of Israel.

And the same daye were there numbered of the children of Ben Jamin out of the cite, fixe and twenty thowsande men, that were the swerde, beside the carynes of Gibea of whom there were tolde fixe hundred thowsente men. And amonge all this people there were chosen out seven hundred men, which were not the right hande but the left, and yet the synge could theye touch an heer, and not myse. But the men of Israel, beside them of Ben Jamin, were nobid foure hundred the same, which were the swerde, & were all men of armes. And the children of Israel arose, and wente vp to the house of God (in Bethel) and asped at God, and sayde: Who shall go vp for vs to be gonne the battayle with þe children of Ben Jamin? The LORDE saide: Ihu shall begynne.

So the children of Israel gaue the vp in the morninge, & pitched ouer a gaynste Gibea, & came than of Israel wente out to fighte with Ben Jamin, and set them silens in arraye to fighte agaynst Gibeon. Then fell the children of Ben Jamin out of Gibeon, and slewe the same daye amonge Israel two & twenty thousande to the grounde.

But the people of the men of Israel came forth them selens, and made them ready to fighte yet more in the same place, a fere they had prepared them selens the daye afore. And the children of Israel wente vp, and wepe before the LORD E. vntill the eveninge, and sayd at the LORD E. sayde: Shall we go any more to fighte with our brethren the children of Ben Jamin? The LORD E. sayde: Go vp vnto them. And whar the children of Israel gaue them vp to the childen of Ben Jamin on 3 next daye, the Ben Jamin, too fall out of Gibeon agaynst them the same daye, and slewe yet eight thousande of the children of Israel to the grounde, which all was the swerde.

Then wente all the children of Israel vp, and all the people, and came to the house of God, and wepe, and staid there before the LORD E. & fasted that daye vntill the euen, and offered burnt offeringes and beo offeringes before the LORD E. And the children of Israel asped at the LORD E. (the Aelte of the covenants of God was there at that tyme, and Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron stode before him at the same tyme,) they sayde: Shall we go forth any more to fighte with our brethren the childen of Ben Jamin, or shal we leaue of? The LORD E. sayde: Go vp, tomorrow will I deliuer them in to your handes.

And the children of Israel set a pretty watch agaynst Gibeon rounde aboute, and so the children of Israel wente vp to the children of Ben Jamin on the thirde daye, and set them silens in arraye agaynst Gibeon like as the other two tymes afore. The came the children of Ben Jamin out agaynst the place, & battel out of the cite, & begonne to slaye certaine wounded of the people (like as the other two tymes a fore in the same) vpon two streetes: wher of one goeth towards Bethel, the other vnto Gibeon vpon a thirde men in Israel. Then thought the childen of Ben Jamin: They are smyten before vs like as a fore. But the childen of Israel sayde: Let vs see, what we maie promouethem out of the cite in to the hye streete.

Then all the men of Israel gat them vp from their place, and prepared them selens vnto Baal Thamar. And the hinder wardes of Israel brake out of their place, from the caue of Gaba, and came vnto Gibeon, twenty thousande chosen men out of all Israel, so that it was a sore battayll: but they knewe not that the euill shulde happen vnto them. Thus the LORD smote Ben Jamin before the children of Israel, so that the same daye the children of Israel destroyed fye & twenty thousande and an hundred men in Ben Jamin, which all was the swerde.

So whan the childen of Ben Jamin sawe that they were smyten, the men of Israel gaue them rowine (to flye). So they trusted to the watch, which they had set by Gibeon. And the watch made haist also, & battel forth vnto Gibeon, and wente vpon it, and smote all the cite with the edge of the swerde. They were appointed betwene them selens the men of Israel and the hinder watch, so fill vpon them with the swerde, whan the smote of the cite arose. And whan the men of Israel turned them in the battayll, and Ben Jamin begonne to smyte the wounded in Israel vpon a thirde men, and thoughte, they are smyten before vs, like as in the battayll afore, then begonne there a piler of smoke to arise vp from the cite. And Ben Jamin looke behonde them: and beholde, the flammes of the cite wente vp vnto heauen. And the men of Israel turned them, and were farsee vpon the men of Ben Jamin: for they sawe that the euill molde happen vnto them.

And they turned them before the men of Israel in the waye to the wilderness, but the battayll folowed vpon them. And then of the cite destroyed they amoge them. And they compassed Ben Jamin rounde aboute, and folowed vpon them vnto Menusah, and trode them downe vnto a fere Gibeon eastward. And there fell of Ben Jamin eighte thousande men, which were all men of armes.

Whan the remmaines of Ben Jamin sawe that they turned them and fled toward the wilderness vnto the stony rocke of Rimmon

But in the same stre: they slew five thousand men, and solowed upon them vnto Sichem, and slew two thousande of the: and so there fell the same daye of Ben Jamin fyue and twenty thousande men which bene 3 swordes, and were all mē of armes. Onely five hundred men turned backe, and fled toward the wyldernesse vnto the stone rocke of Rimon, and abode in the rocke of Rimon foure monethes. And the men of Israel came agayne to the children of Ben Jamin, and smote them that were in the cite with 3 edge of the sworde, both me and carrell and all that was founde: and what soeuer was founde in the cite, they cast it in to the fyre.

The XXI. Chapter.

21 The men of Israel had swoie at Mispa, and sayde: A woman shal geue his daughter to the Ben Jaminites to wife. And the people came to the house of God (in Silo) aboue there before God vntill the enenyng, and liue vp their voyce, and wept sore, and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, what soe is this come to passe in Israel this daye: But on the morow the people gat the vp early, and diuided there an altare, and offered burnt offerings and deed of frynges.

And the children of Israel sayde: Where is there any mā of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp with the congregacion vnto the LORDE: For there was a greates oath made, that who so came not up to Mispa vnto the LORDE, shoulde dye the deeth. And the children of Israel were sorry for Ben Jamin their brother, and sayde: This daye is there oner the ieste in Israel. How will we do that the remanant maye haue wyues? For we haue swoine by the LORDE, that we wyl not geue the wyues of oure daughters. And they sayde: Where is there any mā of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp to the LORDE vnto Mispa? And behold, there was not one man of the citefins of Jabes in Gilead.

Then sent the congregacion twelue thousande men of armes thither, and commaunded them, and sayde: Go your waye, and smite the citefins of Jabes in Gilead with the sworde, the women also and the children, but so that ye do after this manner: Se that ye damne all them that are males, and all the women that haue lyen with men. And amonge the citefins of Jabes in Gilead they founde foure hundred damfels, which were virgins, and had lyen with noman: those they broughte in to the hoose vnto Silo, which lieth in the londe of Canaan.

Then sent the whole congregacion, and caused to calke with the children of Ben Jamin, which were in the stone rocke of Rimon, and called vnto them friendly. So the children of Ben Jamin came agayne at the same tyme, and they gaue them women which they had of the women of Jabes in Gilead, and sounde no more that manner. There were the people sorry for Ben Jamin, that the LORDE had made a gappe in the trybes of Israel. And the Elders of the congregacion sayde: What wil we do, that the remanant maye haue wyues also: for the women in Ben Jamin are destroyed, and they sayde: The inheritance of them of Ben Jamin that are escaped, must needs remayne, that there be not a trybe destroyed out of Israel: we can not geue them oure daughters to wives. In the children of Israel haue swoine and sayde: Cursed be he that geueh a wyfe to the Ben Jaminites.

And they sayde: Beholde there is a yongly fraile of the LORDE at Silo, which lieth on the north syde of the Gods house, and ende callid, of the strete as a mā goeth from Bethel vnto Sichem, and lieth on the south syde of Libeia. And they commaunded the children of Ben Jamin, and sayde: Go your waye, and waye in the vynyng tyme. And when ye see that the daughters of Silo go forth by dappayes to damns, get you out of the vynyng tyme, and every man take him a wyfe of the daughters of Silo, and go your waye in the londe of Ben Jamin. As for their fathers and brethren, when they come to laue with vs, we will saye vnto them: Be favourable to them, for they haue not taken the in hand: but ye gaue the not vnto them by hand, and it is youre fault.

The children of Ben Jamin did so, and accordinge to their nombre toke them wyues from the damns, whom they caught by violence, and wente their waye, and dwelle in that same inheritance, and buyided cities and dwelce therin. The children of Israel also gat them vp from thence at the same tyme, not one to his trybe and to his tyme, and departed thence, every man to his owne inheritance. And 3 tyme was there no kynge in Israel, and eue ryman dyd 3 thinge 3 was right in his owne eie.

Cap. iiii. Boos marrieth Ruth, which be-causeth Boos graundfather.

The first Chapter.

It is thyme when the Iudges ruled, there was a berth in the lan-de. And there wente a ma from Bethleem Juda to take his iourney
in to the londe of the Moabites w his wife and two sonnes, which man was called Eli Melech, and his wife TLaemi, 2 his two sonnes, the one TLaehlon, and the other Chi-lilon: the first was the father of Boos the Iuda. And when they came in to the londe of the Moabites, they dwelt there. And Eli Melech TLaemis husbande dyed, 2 she was left behinde w his two sonnes, which toke TLaehlon his wyne: 2 the one was called Arpa, the other Ruth. And when they had dwelt the ten years, they dyed both, TLaehlon and Chilon, so that the woman remayned desolate of both hir sonnes and hir husbande.

Then gat she her vp w both hir sonnes wyne, 2 wente agayne out of the lode of the Moabites (for she had berde in the londe of the Moabites) for the LORD had visited his people 2 greden them herie: so she departed from that place where she was, 2 both hir son-nes wyne w her. And as they wete by the waye to come agayne in to the londe of Juda, she sayde vnto both hir sonnes wyne: Go w waye, 2 turne backe ether of you to his mothers hous: the LORD shewe mercy vpon you, as ye haue done on the yare de-ced 2 on me. The LORD geaunte you, 2 ye maie sinde rest ether of you in hir husbandes houses: when ye shal geuen and she kysed them.

Then lift they vp their voyce, and wepte,
2 she was her: We wil go with the wo-

3 people. But TLaemi sayde: Turne agayne my daughter, why wolde ye go with me: How can I haue children any more in my body, so be youre husbandes? Turne agayne my daughter, and go youre waye, for I am now to olde to take an husbande.

And though I shalde saye: I hope this might be to sake an husbande 2 to bringe forth children, yet coulde ye not saye all they wete growe vp: for ye shalde be to olde, so that ye coulde haue no husbandes. It is my daughters, cher foie ain I fory for you, for y^e hude of the LORD is gone forth ouer me.

Then lift they vp their voyce, and wepte yet more, and Arpa kysed hir mother in lawe (and turned backe agayne but Ruth abode still by her: TLaemi helde she sayde: Deholde, thy sister in lawe is turned backe vnto hir people and to hir god, turne thou agat me also a for thy sister in lawe. Ruth answered: Speake no: come therof, that I shalde forsake the, and turne backe from the: whither I com thou goest, thither wil I go also:
and loke where thou abydest, there wil I abyde also: Thy people is my people, 2 thy God is my God. Lette where thou dwelst, there wil I be, and enen there wil I also be buried. The LORDE do this and that vnto me, dearely only shal departe yo.

Now when she sawe, that she was needfastly mynked to go with her, she spake no-more ether therof. So they wete on both together all they came vnto Bethleem. And when they wete come in to Bethleem, the whold cite was moued ouer them, and sayde To no: this TLaemi: TLaehlon helde she sayde vnto them: call me not TLaemi, but TLaehlon: for the Almighty hath made me very sory. I departed full, but the LORD hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why call ye me then TLaemi: wha the LORD hath brought me to me, and the Almighty hath made me fory.

It was aboute the tyme of the begynninge of the barley haruest, when TLaemi and his sonnes wite Ruth 2 TLaehlon, came agayne from the londe of the Moabites into Bethleem. There was a Biniman also of the name of Eli Melech TLaemis husbande, whose name was Boos, which was an honest man. The ii. Chapter.

It is to Ruth the Moabite she dwelt vnto TLaemi: Let me go in to y^e fildes, 2 gather eares of corne, after him, in whose fildes I shal finde fode. She sayde vnto her Go y^e waie my daughter. She wete on, 2 came 2 gathered after y^e reapers in y^e fild. And it founde that the same felde was the enchereance of Doos, which was of the fymde of Elimelech, and beholde, Doos came from Bethlem, and sayde vnto the reapers: The LORDE be wedy you. They answered: The LORDE blisse the. And Doos sayde vnto his youngman which had the ouersight of 3 reapers.

Whose damsell is this? The yonger man that was set ouer 3 reapers, answered and sayde: It is the damsell the Moabitisse, which came agayne with Naomi from the londe of the Moabites. And she sayde: Let me plaue vp and gather: I praiſe the betwene the sheues aſter the reapers: and thus is ſhe come, and hath ſtonde here ever ſince the mouynge, and within a litle whyle ſhe wol-de haue bene gone home agayne.

Then sayde Doos vnto Ruth: Hearſt thou my daughter? Thou shalt not come upon another mans londe to gather, and go not away from hence, but tary with my daſels, and loke where they reape in 3 felde, go thou aſter them: for I haue commaunded my ſeruauntes that no man touch the. And yf thou be a thyiſt, go thy waye to the weſſell 2 drynke, where my ſeruauntes drinke. Then ſhe fell before vpon hir face, and bowed hir ſelf downe to the earth, and sayde vnto him: How haue I founde this fauoure in y sight, that thou woldeſt knowe me, which am yet a ſtranger?

C Doos answered and sayde vnto her: It is to lode me altogether, what thou haſt done vnto thy mother in lawe aſter thy huſ-bands death, how that thou haſt left y father and thy mother, and thy natie countrie, and art come to a people, whom thou haſt not knowne afore. The LORDE recompence the thy doynge, and thy rewarde be perfecte. As the LORDE God of Iſrael, vnto whom thou art come to put thy truſt vnder his wynges.
She ſayde: let me fynde ſanctiſme (ſhe) before thyne eyes, for thou haſt comforted me, and ſpoken friendly vnto thy handmayde, where as I am not yet like one of y handmaydes.

Doos sayde vnto her: When it is eatinge tyme, come hither, and eate of the beeb, and dwypp thy mouſell in the wyneger. And ſhe ſat hir downe beſyde the reapers. And he ſet parched come before her, and ſhe ate, 2 was ſatiſfied, and lefte ouer. And whi ſhe roſe to gather, Doos commaunded his ſeruauntes,

D and ſayde: Let her gather betwene the ſheues alſo, and do her no diſhonour: and caſt of the ſheues vnto her, and let it ſee that ſhe maye gather it vp, and ſe that woman re-proue her for it.

So ſhe gathered in the ſilue vntill eue, and ſhe ſhaked out what ſhe had gathered, and it was almoſt an ell ſpa of barley: as ſhe toke it vp, and came in to the cite, and ſhewed hir mother in lawe what ſhe had gathered. She toke ſom alſo, and gaue her of that which was left, wherof ſhe was ſay-fred. She ſayde hir mother in lawe vnto he:
Bleſſynge haue the man that hath bene the, where thou haſt gathered and laboured this daye.

She tolde hir mother in lawe by whom ſhe had laboured, and ſayde: The man is me, by whom I haue wrought to buye, a Doos. Naomi ſayde vnto hir daughter in lawe: The bleſſynge of the LORDE be with the, for he hath not liſte of to be mercifull vnto the thy ynge - and to the dead. And Naomi ſayde vnto her: The ſame man belongeth to vs, and is ouer nyet kynſman. Ruth the Moabitisse ſaide: ſhe ſande mo ouer wnto: Thou ſhalt reſoite vnto my ſeruauntes, yf they haue made an ende of all my beere.
Naomi ſayde vnto Ruth hir daughter in lawe: It is better my daughter, than thou ſouche with his damſell leſt any man woulde be the in another felde. Thus ſhe kepte hir-ſelf with Doos damſell, ſo that ſhe gathered vntill the barlye harneſt and the whete harneſt was out, and came agayne to her ther in lawe.

The iii. Chapter.

Did Naomi hir mother in lawe ſet vnto her: My daughter, I wyl praye be reſt for thee, that thou maieſt proſere. Doos ouer kynſman, by whoſe damſell thou haſt bene, ſeeketh vp barlye now nigte in his barn. Waſhe thy ſelf therein, and moſſell the, and put on thy clokes, and go downe vnto the barn, ſo y nemiſe knowe the, yll they haue all eaten and dronke.

When he layeth him downe then to ſlepe, mark y place where he lyeth downe, and come thou, and take vp the corner of his ſete, and laye the downe, ſo ſhall he talke what thou ſhalt do. She ſayde vnto he:
what ſo euer thou ſaiſt vnto me, I wil do.

She wente downe to the barn, 2 ſpyed as hir mother in lawe had commaunded.
And whi Doos had eate 2 dronke, his beere was mery, 2 he came and layed him downe behynde a heape of ſheues. And ſhe com-creted, y and toke vp the coverynge at his feet and layed hir downe. Now whi it was nigte, the man was aſrayed, and grope bente him, and beholde, a woman laye at his feet. And he ſayde: Who art thou? She saide: I am Ruth thy handmayden, sprede y myghte ower thy handmayden: for thou art the nyte kynsmā.

C... she saide: The LORDES blessings haue thou my dougher. Thou hast done a better woorke here after then before, y thou art noe gaue after yonge men, neyther riche ner poore. Gaue not no my dougher: All y thou hast saide, will I do for the: for all the cite of my people knoweth, y thou art a vertuous woman. Truth it is now, y I am a nye kynsmā, but there is one nyer then I. Tarye thou all nyghte. Tomorrow ys he take the, well: ys he like noe to take y, then wil I take y myselfe, as truly as y LORDE lyeth. Slepe thou ryll y morning. And she slepte at his fete D wryll y morning. And she rose vp: erer one coude knowe another. And he thoughte thus: That no mā knowe now y there hath com a woman in to the barn, and he saide: Ready me the dolle y thou hast on the, y hold it forth. And she helde it forth. And he met her sixe measures of barye, and layed it upon her, y she wente in to the cite, y came to hir mother in lawe, which saide: How is it to thy daughter? And she tolde her all þe mā had done vnto her, y saide: These sixe measures of barye gaue me, for he saide: Thou shalt noe come empty vnto y mother in lawe. She saide: Abyde my dougher, ryll thou se what y matter wil growe to: for the man wil noe cease, ryll he buyge it to an ende this daye.

The iiii. Chapter.

I... B... Oo wemen vnto y gate, and sae him downe there: beholde, whan y nye kynsmā wente by, Boos spake vnto him, y saide: Come y se the doune here: and called him by his name. And he came vnto her doune, y he rote hermen of the Elders of y cite, y saide: Se ye you doune here. And they sae the doune. The saide he to the nye kynsmā: Naomi which is come againe fro the lode of the Moabites, offereth to sell y pece of lande, y was oure brothers Elimelech, therfore thoughte I to shewe it before thine eares, y to tell the: If thou wilt rede me, then bye it before the cressym, y before the Elders of my people: but ys thou wilt noe rede me, then tell me, y I maie knowe for there is no nye kynsmā ex cept thou, and I wote a sur the.

D... she saide: I wil rede me it. Boos saide: In the baye y thou byest the lode out of y han be of Naomi, thou must take Ruth also the Moabisse the wif of the deed, that thou mayest ysse vp a name to y deed in his inhe ritance. The saide he: I can not rede me it, lest I happya bestrope myne awne emheritance. Rede me thou y I shall rede me, for I can not rede me it. But this was an olde custome in ysael concerninge the redemynge y chalyngynge, y allmatters mighte be stalle, the one put of his shoe, y gaue it vnto y other: y was the testimony in ysael.

And the nye kynsmā saide vnto Boos: Bye thou it, y he put of his shoe. And Boos saide vnto the Elders and to all the people: Ye are witnesses this daie, y I haue boughte out of the hande of Naomi, all that belongeth to Eli Melech, and all that was Chilion and Moablon: And Ruth the Moabisse Moablones wife, take I to my wife, that I maye raise vp a name vnto y deed in his inheritance, and that his name be not rote out from amonge his brethren, and one of the gate of his place: Of this are ye witnesses. And all the people that was in the gate with the Elders, saide: We are witnesses. The LORDE make the woman that cometh in to thy house, as Rachel and Lea (which both haue byryded vnto the house of ysael) that she maye be an ensample of vertue in ysael, and haue an honorable name in Bethleem. And thy house be as y house of Phares: whos Thamara bare vnto yudax: whos the fete, that the LORDE shall gaue the of this damsell.

So Boos rote Ruth, and she became his wif. And whan he laye with her, the LORDE graunted her y she conceaued, and bare a sonne. The saide the wemen vnto Naomi: Prayse be the LORDE, which hath not suffred a kynsmā to cease from y: he at this tyme that his name maye conuynce in ysael: he shall restore thy life agayne, and proude for thine age. For y somes wif which hath loued the, hath done him that is better vnto the, then seven sonnes.

And Naomi rote the childe, and layde it upon hir lappe, and became the noist of it, and hir neyghbours gaue him a name y saide: There is a childe borne vnto Naomi, and they called his name Obed. The same is y father of Dauid.

This is y generacion of Phares. Phares begat Heseom. Heseom begat Aram. Aram begat Aminadab. Aminadab begat Naasson. Naasson begat Salmon. Salmon begat Boos. Boos begat Obed. Obed begat Iai. Iai begat Dauid.

The first Chapter.

There was a man of Ramathaim Sophim, of mount Ephraim, whose name was Elcana, of sonne of Jeroham, of sonne of Elihu, of sonne of Tobu, of sonne of Zaph, of sonne of Ephate. And he had two wyves, of one was called Anna, of other Peninna. So for Peninna, she had children, but Anna had no child. And of same man wrote vp fro his cite. at his tyme, to worshipp and to offer vnto the LORDE Jehoaoh at Silo. There were the priestes of the LORDE Ophni and Phineas, the two sonnes of Eli. Now when it came vpon a daye that Elcana of sed, he gaue partes vnto his wife Peninna, and to all his sonnes and daughter. But vnto Anna he gaue one deale heuely, for he loved Anna. Nevertheless the LORDE had closed hir wombe: that byd hir eury yeare, when they wente vp to the house of the LORDE, and thus she presented her. So she weper, and ate no thinge. But Elcana hir husbards sayde vnto her: Wherefore wepest thou, and whye callest thou not? And wherfore is thine here so pressed? Am not I better vnto the then ten sonnes?

B Then stode Anna vp, when she had eaten and dronken at Silo. But Eli the priest sat vpon a stole by the poste of the temple of the LORDE. And she was full of heauynesse in hir herte, and prayed vnto the LORDE, and weper, and vowed a vowe, and sayde: LORDE Jehoaoh, if thou wilt lode vpon the aduersite of thy handmayden, and thine vpon me, and not forget thy handmayden, and mine gene thy handmayden a name, I wil gene him vnto the LORDE all his life longe, and there shal no rasoure cut me vpon his heade.

And when she had prayed longe before of LORDE, Eli toke heede to hir mouch, for Anna spake in hir herte, hir lippes onely moued, but hir voyce was not herde. Then thought Eli she had bene dronken, and sayde vnto her: How longe wilt thou be dronken? Let come from the the wyne that thou hast by che. Nevertheless Anna answered and sayde: To my lorde, I am a fousfull woman, wyne and stronge drynke haue I not dronken, but haue poured out my herte before of LORDE. Counte not thy handmayden a daughter of Belial; for out of my hert thoughte and shew haue I spoken thus.

Eli answered her, and sayde: O of maye in peace, the God of Israel shal graunte of thy petition that thou hast desired of him. She sayde: Let thy handmayden fynde sauoure in thy sighte. So the woman wente hir waye and ate, and loked nomore so fousfull vnto of of moioe they gaue them vp by tyme. And when they had worshipped before of LORDE, they returned, and came home vnto Ramatha.

And Elcana laye with Anna his wife, and the LORDE remembred her. And after certayne dayes, she conceiued and bare a sonne, and callid his name Samuel, for I haue desired him (sayde she) of the LORDE. And when the man Elcana wente vp with all his household to offre sacrifice and his vowe vnto the LORDE at sod tyme as of custome was, Anna wente not vp, but sayde vnto hir husbards: I wil not go vpyll of child be weened: then will I bynne him, that he maye appaere before the LORDE, and of tyme there: for euer.

Elcana hir husbards sayde vnto her: The do as thou thyntest best, tary till thou haue weened him: but the LORDE performe that he hath spoken. So the woman abode, and gaue hir sonne sucke, till she weened him. And when she had weened him, she broughte him vp with her, with the bullocke, with an Ephri of fyne floare, and a botell of wyne, and broughte him in to of house of the LORDE at Silo.

Nevertheless the child was yet but yonge. And they sleme a bullocke, and broughte the child vnto Eli. And she sayde: O my lorde, as truly as thy soule lyeth my lorde, I am the woman that stode here by of, and made intercession vnto the LORDE, when I prayed for this child. Now hath of LORDE graunted me my petition, which I desired.

red of him, therfore haue I geuen him ouer vnto the LORDE, as longe as he is lent vnto the LORDE. And they worshipped þe LORDE there.

The ii. Chapter.

Did Anna praye, and sayde
My bett reioyseth in the LORDE, 2 my homete is exaltes in the LORDE.

My mouth is opened wyde vps mynes eie wies, for I am glad of thy saluacion.
There is no man holy as the LORDE, for without he is nothyng, and there is no co-fouse like vnto our God.

As go yor greate dooings of hys thynges, let go out of youre mouth that olde bywoorde: for the LORDE is a God þe knoweth all thynges, 2 he hath set all woorkes in order.
The borne of the myghte is broken, and the weakes are gyded aboure with strenght.

They that were fylled afoze, are solde for bede: and they that were hongry, are satisfied: vntill the baren bare seuen, and ryll she that had many childre, was become weak.

The LORDE slayeth, and geueth life: he ledeeth vnto hell, and bringeth our agayne.

The LORDE maketh poore and maketh riche: he bringeth lowe and exaltech.

He calketh vp the neaby out of the dust, and lieth vp þe poore out of the myre, that he may set them amonge the pynces, and to let them inherite the seate of honoure: for the foundacions and corners of the woilde are the LORDES, and he hath set the compasse of the earth thereon.

He shall preserue the feze of his sayntes, but þe vngodly shal be put to sylence in darnesse. For there is no ma that can do ougth re of his owne power.

The LORDES enemies shal be put in feare before him, he shal thdoer vpo the in beane.

The LORDE shall iudge the endes of the woilde, 2 shal geue strenght vnto his kynge, 2 shall exalte the borne of his anoynted.

Elcana wente his waye to Ramath vnto his honse. And the childe became the LOR-DES mynister before Eli the prest. But Eli somewere the child of Belial, and knewe not the LORDE, ner the dutye of the prestes vnto the people: but when any man wol-de offre ougth, the prestes boye came, why-le the flesh was seething, and had a tye for ked fleshope in his hande, and thurst it in to the cauldion, or pannel, or panne, or pot: and loke what he drew forth with the fleshope, that toke the prest therof. Thus dyd they vnto all IJraell which came thither vnto Silo.

As he went, or euer they burned the face, the prestes lad came, and sayde vnto him that broughte the offer ynge: Geue me the flesh, that I maye rote it for the prest, whiche wyl receaue no sodden flesch of y, but none.

If any man sayde then vnto him: As it is fascorne as it oughte to do this daye, and a steruorde take what thine part thou then sayde he vnto him: I thou shalt geue me euen now: y no, I wyl take it from the by wylde ce. Therfore was the summe of y did vey greate before the LORDE, for y simple spake euell of y meate offer ynge of y LORDE. But Samuel was a mynister before the LORDE, and the childe was gyded with an our body cose of linnen. His mother also made him a litle coze of sylte, and broughte it vnto him as anement crymes, whiche she wente up with his husbando to offer y offer ynge in due season.

And Eli blessed Elcana 2 his wife, and sayde: The LORDE geue the side of thine bede: and the good that thou hast lent me the LORDE. And they wote vnto that place. And the LORDE wysed Anna, so that she conceiued and bare thre sonnes and two doughters: but the childe Samuel grewe up with the LORDE.

As for Eli, he was vey olde, and had of all that his sonnes dyd vnto all IJraell, and how they laye with the women that seued God before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and he sayde vnto them: wherfor do ye this? For I heare of youre euell con-sacion of all this people. It is so my child, this is no good repote that I heare, ye can seeke people of the LORDE to offende. If any ma synne agaynst a man, the iudge can dresse it. But yf any ma synne agaynst the LORDE, who can redresse it? Wherfor the herdened not vnto the voyce of then father, for the LORDES wyl was to slaye them.
But the childe Samuel wente and grewe up, 2 was accepted of the LORDE 2 of men.

There came a man of God to Eli, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE I shewed my selfe vnto thy father house, when they were yet in Egypt vnder þe se of pharaon, and chose him there vnto my selfe before all the trybes of IJraell, for the presthode, that he shulde offer vpon my care, and burne incense, and wete the cubbye coze before me, and vnto thy father house I gaue all the offer ynges of the children of IJraell. Why layest thou thy selfe then agaynst my sacrifices and mirafic gates, which I commaunded to offer in habitation: and thou hast offered thy more then me, that ye mighte fede youre soul with the firstlinges of all the weate offer ynges of my people of IJraell;

Therefore sayeth the LORDE God of Iſrad: I haue ſpoken, that thy houſe and thy fathers houſe ſhalde walke before me for euer. But now ſayeth the LORDE: That be ſure ſo me. But who ſo euer honoureth me, him wil I honour alſo: as for thoſe ſeſſe of deſpyſe, they ſhal not be regarded. And Samuel had layed him downe in ſe temple of the LORDE (where the Arke of God was before ſe lampe of God was put in). And the LORDE called Samuel. He answered: Beholde, here am I. And he came vnto Eli, 2 ſayde: Beholde, here am I, thou haſt called me. But he ſaide: I haue not called the, go thy waye agayne, and laye the downe to ſlepe. And he wence his waye, and layed him downe to ſlepe.

¶ The LORDE called a gaine: Samuel. And Samuel aroſe, 2 wence vnto Eli, 2 ſayde: Beholde, here am I, thou haſt called me. Clearelye he ſayde: My ſonnes, I haue not called the. So chy waye agayne, and laye the downe to ſlepe. So for Samuel, he knewe not the LORDE as yet, 2 the woode of ſe LORDE was not yet ſhewed vnto him. And ſe LORDE called Samuel ſe thirde cyme. Samuel wote his waye, and layed him downe in his place. The came ſe LORDE, 2 ſtole, and called like as afore: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel ſayde: Speake LORDE, for thy ſeruaunt heareth. And the LORDE ſaide vnto Samuel: Beholde, I do a thinge in Iſrael, ſe who ſo euer ſhall heare it, both his eares ſhal glome. In ſe daie wilt I rayſe vp vpon Eli: all ſe I haue ſpoke eſcernyng his houſe. Therefore haue I ſworne vnto ſe houſe of Eli, ſe this wickednes of ſe houſe of Eli ſhall not be reddeſted neither ſe ſacrifice net ſe meat offeringe for euer. And Samuel laye vnto ſe mooring, 2 opened the doores of the houſe of the LORDE.

He ſayde: What is ſe woode ſe the LORDE hath ſpoke vnto the: by de: not ſe me. God do this 2 that vnto ſe, yf thou heyd oughe ſe frome, of all that he hath talke of the. Then Samuel tolde him alltogether, 2 hyd nothyng from him. He ſayde: It is the LORDE, let him do what pleaſeth him.

¶ Samuel grewe vp, 2 the LORDE was to him, 2 there ſell none of all his wordes vnto the earth. And all Iſrael ſit Dan vnto Ber ſaba, knewe ſe Samuel was faithfull to be a prophet of the LORDE. And the LORDE appeared agayne at Gilo: for the LORDE ſhewed him ſilſe vnto Samuel at Silo, the rowe the woode of the LORDE.

menant from Silo, & let it come amonge vs, that it may helpe vs from the hande of our enemies. And the people came vnto Silo, & caused to set there the Arke of y^e couenaunt of the LORDE Jezabach, that stoneth vpon the Cherubina. And with the Arke of the couenaunt of God there were the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas.

B And when the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE came in to the hoost, all Israel shouted wth a greates shout, so that the earth sounded withall. But when the Philistynes herde y^e noyse of y^e shout, they sayde: what noyse is this of soch greates shoutinge in the tentes of the hebrues? And when they perceaued y^e the Arke of the LORDE was come in to the hoost, they were a frayd & sayde: God is come in to the hoost. And they sayde morouer: Wo vnto vs, for it hath not bene thus a sate tyme. Wo vnto vs. Who will deliuer vs fro the hande of these h^{ye} goddes? These are the goddes that smote El gyges wth all maner of plagies in the wyldernesse. We stronge now and manly ye Philistynes, that ye serue not the hebrues: as they haue serued you. Be manly and fighte.

C Then saughe the Philistynes, & Israel was smytten, & every one fled vnto his cite, & there was a very greates slaughter, so that there fell of Israel thierye thousande souldiers, & the Arke of God was take, & the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas dyed.

Then rane there one of Ben Jamin out of the fore fronte of the batayl, & came vnto Silo the samedaye, & had his clothes rent, and had earth vpo his heade. And when he came in, Eli sat vpon the seate, & that he mighte loke toward the waye: for his herte was fearfull aboue y^e Arke of God. And when the man came in to the cite, he tolde it foorth: and all the cite cried. And when Eli herde y^e noyse of the crynge, he ayed: What noyse of busynes is this? The man came haistly, and tolde Eli. (As for Eli, he was fourtye and eighthe yere olde, & his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not se.) The man sayde vnto Eli: J come and am fled this daye out of the hoost. He sayde: How is it my sonne?

D Then answered the rydinge bringer, & sayde: Israel is fled before the Philistynes, and a greates slaughter hath there bene amonge the people, & thy two sonnes Ophni & Phineas are ded, yet the Arke of God is take awaye. When he had made mention of the Arke of God, he fell downe backwarde from the seate by the gate, and brake his neck, and dyed: for he was olde, & an hey man. He ind god Israel foure yeres. The wiffe of his sonne Phineas was a childe, & she was sodaye be deliuered, when she herde the crynges of the Arke of God was taken, and y^e childer in lawe and hir husbande were ded. She bore with hir selfe and trauayled: for her payne came vpon her. And when she was vpon the payne of death, the woman thus spake by her sayde: Feare not, thou hast a yonge sonne. But she gaueno answer, neither ingadbed it, and she called the childe Jacob, and sayde: The glory is gone from Israel, because the Arke of God was taken awaye, and hir boother in lawe and hir husbande. And she sayde morouer: The glory is gone from Israel, for the Arke of God is take awaye.

The V. Chapter.

AS for the Arke of God, the Philistynes toke it and broughte it from the stone of helpe vnto Ashdod in to the house of Dagon, and set it besyde Dagon. And when they of Ashdod rose vp earlye the morowe, they founde Dagon lyinge on his face vpon the earth, before the Arke of the LORDE. But they toke vp Dagon, and set him agayne in his place. The next daye when they rose vp earlye on the next morowe, they founde Dagon lyinge on his face agayne vpon the earth before the Arke of the LORDE: but his heade and both his handes weren of vpon the thershelde, so that the blocke laye there onely. Therefore the priests of Dagon, and all they that goe into his house, treade not vpo the thershelde of Dagon at Ashdod vnto this daye.

But the hande of the LORDE was vpon them of Ashdod, and destroyed them, and smote Ashdod and all the borders thar in secrete places. When the men of Ashdod sawe that they were so plaged, they sayde: Let not the Arke of the God of Israel ry with vs, for his hande is to haue vpo vs & gathered all the priences of the Philistynes vnto them, and sayde: What shall we do with the Arke of the God of Israel? The answered they of Beth: Le the Arte of the God of Israel be done aboute. And they carried the Arte of the God of Israel rounde aboute.

C But whā they bare it aboute, there was a very greates rammour in the cite thero in the hande of the LORDE, and smote the people of the cite, from the smallest vnto the greatest, and destroyed them in the secretre places. Then sent they the Arte of the LORDE vnto Elron. But whā the Arte of the LORDE came vnto Elron, they of Elron cried: They haue carried the Arte of God aboute vs, to slaye me and my people.

D Then sent they forth, and gathered all the pynces of the Philistynes together, and sayde: Sende away the Arte of the God of Israel agayne vnto hir place, that it slaye us not: for there is a very greates rammour with the deid in all the cite, and the hande of God is chere. And the people that dyed not, were smytten in secretre places, so that the noyse of the cite wote vp vnto heauen.

The Vi. Chapter.

Ihus was the Arte of the LORDE in the londe of the Philistynes seven monethes. And the Philistynes called their prestes and soothsayers, and sayde: What shal we do with the Arte of the LORDE: Shewe vs, wher with shal we finde it vnto hir place: They sayde: If ye wyll sende away the Arte of the God of Israel, then be it not a maye emptye, but geue a trespass offeringe: so shal ye be made whole, and ye shal knowe, why his hande departeth not from you.

They sayde: What is the trespass offeringe that ye shall geue him: They answered: Sume hynder partes of golde, and sume golde myce, accordinge to the nombre of the fyve pynces of the Philistynes. For there hath bene one maner of plage vpon you all, and vpon youre pynces. Therefore must ye make youre hynder partes of one sushion and foure myce, which haue destroyed youre londe, that ye maye geue the God of Israel the honoure: peradventure his hande shal be the lighter vpon you and vpon youre God, and

D vpon youre londe. Why harden ye youre hart, as the Egipcians and Pharao hardened their hart: Whā he smytten him selfe vpon them: whyd not they let them departe to go their waye:

141 So to now therfore, and make a new cart, and take two myle pync, vpon the which there neuer came yod, and yode them to the cart, and let their calues tary behynde them, and thensward take ye the Arte of the LORDE and laye it vpon the cart: and the Jewels of golde that ye geue him for a trespass offeringe put in a coffer beside it, and sende it awaye and let it go. And loke well: if it go the waye of hit name coaste Beth Seme, the hart be done vs all this greates mell: If not, then shal ye knowe that his hande hath not condeid vs, but that it happened vnto vs by chauce.

The men dyd so, and toke two yonge myle pync, and yoded them to a cart, and led their calues at home, and layed the Arte of the LORDE vpon the cart, and the coffer with the golden myce, and with the myceges of their disease. And the pync wente straight waye vnto Beth Seme vpon the hye strete, and wente on bearinge, and turned necher to the righte hande ner to the left. And the pynces of the Philistynes wente after them vnto the coast of Beth Seme.

The Beth Semeites were euen reapinge downe their wheate harvest in the valley, and lyste vp their eyes, and sawe the Arte, and reioysed so fit. The cart came in to the silde of Josia the Beth Semeite, and there it stode still. And there was a greates stone, and they clene the ymber of the cart, and offered the pync vnto the LORDE for a burnt offeringe.

But the L. witen toke downe the Arte of the LORDE, and the coffer that was by it, wherin the Jewels of golde were, and set it vpon the greates stone. The men of Beth Seme offered burnt offeringes, and ocher offeringes also vnto the LORDE the same daye. And whā the fyve pynces of the Philistynes had sene it, they departed agayne the same daye towards Elron.

D These are the golden diseases, that the Philistynes offered for a trespass offeringe vnto the LORDE: Ashod one, Gasa one: Ashalon one, Gath one, and Elron one: and golden myce, acoordinge to the nombre of all the cities of the Philistynes amonge the fyve pynces, from the walled cite vnto the vylage, and vnto the greates playne felde, wher vpon they set the Arte of the LORDE (which was now this daye vpon the felde of Josia the Beth Semeite.

And certains of Beth Semes were slaine because they had sene the Arte of the LORDE, and he slewe fyfety thousande and stuenty men of the people. Then mourned the people, because the LORDE had done so greates a slaughter in the people. And the men at Beth Seme sayde: Who maye sēde before the LORDE so holy a God: And to whō shal he go sēd us: And they sint messengers to the inhabitants of B. Ierich: Ierich said: The Philistines haue brought the Ark of God agayne, come downe, & sech it vp vnto you.

The VII. Chapter.

So the men of Axiath Jearim came downe, & seched vp y^e Ark of y^e LORD. & brought it in to y^e house of Abinadab at Gibeā, & they consecrated Eleasar his sonne, y^e he might keepe y^e Ark. And fro y^e daye that the Ark of y^e LORD abode at Axiath Jearim, y^e tyme extended south so longe tyll it came to twentye yeares: and all the house of Israel wepte after the LORD.

But Samuel sayde vnto all the house of Israel: If yett come you withall your heert vnto the LORD, then put awaye from you the straunge goddes, and Ashtaroth, and directe your heert vnto the LORD, and serue him onely, so shall he deliuer you out of the hande of the Philistines.

Then the childre of Israel put awaye Baalim and Ashtaroth from them, and serued the LORD onely.

Samuel saide: Gather all Israel together vnto Mizpa, that I maye praye for you vnto the LORD. And they came together vnto Mizpa, and drue water, & poured it out besyde the LORD, and fasted the same daye, and there they sayde: We haue sinned vnto the LORD. So Samuel iudged the childre of Israel at Mizpa.

But when the Philistines herde that y^e childre of Israel were come together vnto Mizpa, the princes of the Philistines were vp agaynst Israel. When y^e childre of Israel herde that, they were afrayed of y^e Philistines, & sayde vnto Samuel: Ceasse not to crye vnto the LORD oure God for vs, y^e he maie helpe vs out of the hande of y^e Philistines.

Samuel toke a fat lambe, & offered an whole burnt offering vnto the LORD, & cried vnto the LORD for Israel, and the LORD heere him.

And whyle Samuel was offeringe y^e burnt sacrifice, y^e Philistines came to fight agaynst Israel. But the LORD throude a thunder vpon the Philistines the same daye & discomfited the, so y^e they were smytte before Israel. The thretye y^e men of Israel forth, & chased y^e Philistines, & smote them all vnder Bethcar. Then toke Samuel a stone, & set it vp betwene Mizpa & Bethcar, & called it y^e helpe stone, & sayde: Hither to hath the LORD helped vs. Thus were the Philistines brought downe, & came nemoire within the border of Israel. And y^e hide of y^e LORD was agaynst the Philistines, as longe as Samuel liued.

So Israel gat the cities agayne, that the Philistines had conquered, fro Ekron vnto Gath, with the borders thereof, those did Israel rescue our of the hande of the Philistines.

The viij. Chap.

Israel had peace with the Amonites. Samuel iudged Israel as lge as he liued, & not ce about euery yeare vnto Bethel & Gilgal & Mizpa: & whā he had iudged Israel in all these places, he came agayne vnto Ramath: for there was his house, & there he iudged Israel, & builded an altare there vnto y^e LORD.

The VIII. Chapter.

When Samuel wared olde, he set his sonnes to be iudges ouer Israel. His firstborne sonne was called Iud & the secōde Abia, & they were iudges at Rasaba. Nevertheless his sonnes walkt not in his wayes, but enclined vnto conuocousnes, & toke giftes, & was yled the laze. Then all y^e Elders in Israel gathered the felous together, & came to Ramath vnto Samuel, & said vnto him: Beholde, thou art waxen olde, & thy sonnes walkt not in y^e wayes, & stande now ouer vs therfore, to iudge vs, as all y^e heithe haue. The was Samuel vs pleased whā they sayde: Goe vs a tynge, to iudge as. And Samuel prayed before the LORD.

The LORD saide vnto Samuel: Herken vnto the voice of the people in all y^e they haue sayde vnto the. For they haue refused the, but me, y^e I shalde not be kinge ouer them. They do vnto the as they haue done euer, since the daie y^e I broughte them out of the lande of Egipt vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes, but now therfore vnto their voyce. I will slye vnto them, and sheme them: the lame of the tynge that shall raigine ouer them.

And Samuel tolde all the wordes of the LORD vnto y^e people, that requyred a change of him. This shal be the lawe of the tynge y^e shal raigine ouer you: If somer shal be take for his charrettes, and for hounny runne before his charrettes, and so he milke & capteynes, to be plowmen to tyll his londe, and to be reapers in his harvest, and to make his harness, and such thinges as belongeth to his charrettes. As for y^e doughtris, he shal take the, to be Apoceries, cofes, and dard. Your best londe, and vynyardes, and oyle gardens shall be take, and geue vnto his seruantes: Of youre sedes also, and winndes shal he take the Tiches, & geue vnto his childerlaynes and seruantes. And youre seruantes and youre maydes, and youre best yongmen, and youre asses shal be take, and to his businesse withall. Of youre flockes shal he take the Tiches, and yr shal be his seruantes. When yr shal crye then at the same tyme, wher youre tynge, whom ye haue chosen vnto the LORD shal not heare you at the same tyme. Nevertheless the people refused it.

heare the voyce of Sammel, and sayde: Let so be, but there shall be a hynge ouer vs. & we maye be as all other heathē, & & hynge maie iudge vs, & go forth before vs, and gouerne ouer our worra. The hērtend Sammel vnto all & & people sayde. & tolde it before & cares of the LORDE. The LORDE sayde vnto the: Herken thou vnto their voyce, and make them a hynge. And Sammel sayde vnto the men of Iſraē: So yare maye eueri one vnto his cite.

The IX. Chapter.

There was a man of Ben Jamin named Cis, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeos, the sonne of Berberah, & sonne of Apiah, the sonne of a man of Jemini, a valiant man, which had a sonne named Saul, which was so goodly a yonge man, that there was not a goodlier amonge the children of Iſraē, bigger by the heade then all the people. Cis the father of Saul had lost his asses, and he sayde vnto Saul his sonne: Take one of the children with thee, go the way, and seeke the asses. And he wente his waye the waye mount Ephraim, and chooseth the lōde of Solisa, and founde them noe. They wente the waye the lōde of Saalim, & there they were noe. They passed the waye the lōde of Jemini, & founde the mee. But whā they came in to the lōde of Daph, Saul sayde vnto the childre, that was with him: Come let vs go home agayne, lest my father let go the asses, and take care for vs. He sayde: Beholde, here is an honorable man of God in this cite, all that he sayeth, cometh to passe. Let vs go thither now, peradventure he maye shewe vs our waye which vs go. Doe Saul sayde vnto his childre: Though we shōde go, what bynne we the man? For the beed is gone out of & water, and els haue we no giste to bringe the man of God, what haue we? The childre answered agayne, and sayde: Beholde, I haue the fourth parte of a syluer Gycke by me, & some wyll we geue the man of God, that he maye shewe vs our waye.

A first tyme in Iſraē, whā a man wente to anye counsell at the LORDE, he sayde: Come, let vs go to the Steer: for they that now are called prophetes, were called Steers afore tyme. Saul sayde vnto his childre: Then haſt will spoken, come let vs go. And whā they wente vnto the cite where the man of God was, and came vp to the cite, they founde barnesle which were gone south to drawe water, vnto them they sayde: Is the Steer here? They answered them and sayde: Beholde, he is there, make haſt, for he came into the cite this daye, because the people haue a sacrifice to do to daye in the hie place. Whā he came in the cite, he shall fynde him, & so he go vp to the hie place for to eate: for the people wyll not eate tyll he come. For he shall blesse the offeringe, then shall they eate that are called. Therefore go ye waye vp, for eue now shall ye fynde him.

And whā they came vp to the cite, and wā a cūen in the myddes of the cite, beholde, Sammel came forth in their waye, and wolde go vp to the hie place. (Doe the LORDE had opened Samuels eare the daye afore, & euer Saul came, and sayde: Come now aboute this tyme wyll I sende a man vnto the oute of the lōde of Ben Jamin, whā shall thou anoynt so be pryncer ouer my people of Iſraē, that he maye deliuer my people from the hande of the Philistynes: for I haue looked vpon my people, and their crye is come before me.) Now whā Sammel beholde Saul, the LORDE answered him: lo, & he is the man of whom I tolde thee, that he shall be raigne ouer my people.

Then came Saul vnto Sammel vnder the gane, and sayde: Tell me (I praye thee) where is the Steer's house? Sammel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the Steer. So he wente with me to the hie place: for ye shall eate with me to daye, common wyll I let thee go, and all that is in thine her, wyll I call thee: and as for the Asses which were lost the daye agoe, care not thou for them, for they are founde. And to whom shall belonge all that is pleasaunt in Iſraē? Shall it not belonge vnto thee, and to all thy fathers house? Saul answered: I am not I a sonne of Jemini, & and of the smallest trybe, and my tyme of the least amonge all the trybes of Iſraē. Why speakest thou so vnto me? Sammel tolde Saul & his childre & brought them in to the perler where they shalbe eate, & satte them aboute those that were called, of whom there were aboute a charite men. And Sammel sayde vnto the coſte: Geue me the poſcion that I gaue thee, and had the kepe it by thee. Then the coſte toke up a shulder, and bare it forth, and set it before Saul. And (Sammel) sayde: Beholde, this is left, laye it before thee, and eate: for it was dopes for the agaynst this tyme, whā I called the people. Thus Saul ate with Sammel the same daye.

And whā they were gone downe from the hie place vnto the cite, he called with Saul in the chamber. And they roſt up early on the morow. And whā the mostryng sprynge arose, Sammel called Saul in the chamber, and sayde: Up, & I maye sende the chy maye. And Saul gaue him vp: & they both wete south egerbes, he and Samuel. And whan they came downe to the ende of the cite, Samuel sayde vnto Saul: Speake vnto þy chyldre, that he go on south before vs, but sitte thou styll now, that I maie shewe the what God hath sayde.

The X. Chapter.

21 When toke Samuel a glasse of oyle, and poured it vpo his heade, and kysed him, and sayde: Seist thou that the LORDE hath anoynted the, to be the pynne ouer . his enheritaunce: Whan thou goest now fro me, thou shalt fynde two men sitte bye. Achela graue in the coast of Ben Jamin at Bethsh, which shal saie vnto the: The asses are founde, whom thou wentest to see: and beholde, thy father hath put the asses out of his mynde, and taketh thoughte for the, and sayeth: What shall I do for my sonne?

22 And whan thou goest on south from thence, thou shalt come to the Oke of Thabor, there shall the men fynde the, which go vp vnto God comarde Bethel: one beareth the kiddes, another the loanes of bierd the chyldre a hornel with wyne: and they shall salute the, and geue the two loanes, which thou shalt take of their hande. After that shalt thou come to the hyll of God, 23 where the philistynes watch is: and whā thou comest there in to the cite, there shall meete the a company of prophetes communynge domine from the hye place, and before them a psaltre, and tabret, a pype and a harpe, and they them silens propheteinge. And the spere of the LORDE shall come vpon the, and thou shalt prophete with them, and shal be chaunged in to another man.

24 Whan these tokens now come vnto the, when do what so euer cometh vnder thyme hande: for God is with the. Thou shalt go downe before me vnto Bēgall: Beholde, thither wil I come downe vnto the, that thou mayest offre burnt offeringes and beest offeringes. Seven dayes shalt thou tary: till I come to the, and shewe the what thou shalt do. And whan he turned his stouder to go from Samuel, God chaunged him another hert, and all these tokens came vnto the same daye.

25 And whan they came vnto the hill, beholde, there met him a company of prophetes: and the spere of God came vpon him, so that he propheted amonge them. Dur whā they which knewe him before, sawe that he propheted with the prophetes, they sayde all amonge them silens: What is hapened vnto the sonne of Cis? Ja Saul also amonge the prophetes: And one of them answered and sayde: Who to their father: herof came the pnceber: Ja Saul also amonge the prophetes: And whā he had left of propheteinge, he came vp to the hyll.

26 Sauls wde sayde vnto him and to his chyldre: Whither wente ye? They answered: To see the asses. And whan we sawe that they were awaye, we came vnto Samuel. Then sayde Sauls wde: Tell me, what sayde Samuel vnto you? Saul answered his wde: He tolde vs, þe asses were founde. One of þy kyngdome he tolde him nothings whas Samuel had sayde.

27 Samuel called the people together vnto the LORDE to Bethsh, and spake vnto the chyldren of Israel: Thus saiech þe LORDE the God of Israel: I broughe Israel out of Egipte, and delyered you from the hande of þe Egiptians, and from the hande of all the kyngdomes that oppossed you. But now haue ye refused yo God, which hath helpe you out of all youre sorowes and troubles, & ye haue saide vnto him: See a thinge ouer vs. Well stonde ye now before þe LORDE: accorde youe trybes and byrdes.

28 Now whan Samuel had broughe forth all the trybes of Israel, the trybe of Ben Jamin was taken. And whan he had broughe forth the trybe of Ben Jamin with his byrdes, the byred of Mani was take, & Saul the sonne of Cis was take. And they sought him, but they founde him not.

29 Then aske they further at the LORDE, whether he was for to come thither. The LORDE answered: Beholde, he hath byt him selfe amonge þe wessels. Then came they thither, and seached him. And whan he was amonge the people, he was hygher by the heade then all the people. And Samuel sayde vnto all the people: There is ye kyng vpon the LORDE hath chosen, for in all the people there is none like him. Then gaue all the people a shout, and sayde: God saueth the kynge.

Samuel tolde the people all the lawe of the kynghome, and wrote it in a boke, and layd it before the LORDE. And Samuel let all the people go, eury one to his owne house. And Saul wente home also vnto Gibea, and there wente with him one parte of the host, whose heres God had touched. But the child of Belial sayde: What shal this solum helpe vs, and despyed him, & brought him no present. But he made him as though he herde it not.

The XI. Chapter.

When Ammonite wete vp & layd siege vnto Jabes in Gilead. And all the men of Jabes sayde vnto Lahai: Be at one with vs, & we wyll serue the. But Lahai & Ammonite answered them: I wil make a cowaunt with you, of this condicion, that I maye thrust out all youre right eyes, and put you to shames amonge all Israel. Then sayde all the Elders of Jabes vnto him: These vs sisen dayes respce, that we maye sende messengers into all the coastes of Israel: If there be then no sauoure, we wyll go south vnto the.

When messengers came vnto Gibeon of Saul, and spak this before the eares of the people. Then all the people lifte vp their voyce, and wepe. And beholde, Saul came after the open out of the sulde, and sayde: What ayleth the people that they wepe? So they tolde him the carande of the men of Jabes. Then came the spere of God vpon him, when he had herde these wordes, and his wrath was soe moued, and he toke a couple of oxen, and hewed them in sunder, and sent them in to all the coastes of Israel by the messengers, sayenge: Who so euer perishe not south after Saul and Samuel, his oxen shalbe thus deale withall.

Then fell the feare of the LORDE vpon the people, so that they wente south like an one man, and they were tolde at Baseth, and of the child of Israel there were thus hundred thousand men, and threie thousande of the child of Iuda. And they spake vnto the messengers that were come: Saye thus to the men of Jabes in Gilead: Tomorrow shal ye haue helpe, when I come in at the whodes. When the messengers came and tolde this co the men of Jabes, they were glad. And the men of Jabes sayde: Tomorrow wyll we come south vnto you, that ye maye be vnto vs, what so euer it pleaseth you. And on the next morow Saul set the people in thre partes, and came into the hooft aboute the morninge march, and since the Ammonites eyll the daye was at the whodes. As for those that remayned, they were so feared, that eue of them abode not together.

Then sayde the people vnto Samuel: Where are they that saye: I shalbe Sauls raigne ouer vs? Whyer vs here the men, that we maye put them to death. But Saul sayde: There shal noman dye this daye, for to daye hath the LORDE geuen healeh in Israel. Samuel sayde vnto the people: Come, let vs go vnto Gilgall, and reue the kynghome there. Then wente all the people vnto Gilgall, and there they made Saul King before the LORDE at Gilgall, and offred vnto offeringes before the LORDE. And Saul with all the men of Israel rayoyd there greatly.

The XII. Chapter.

Samuel sayde vnto all Israel: Beholde, I haue hertened vnto youre voyce in all that ye sayde vnto me, and haue made a fynge ouer you. And now lo, the re goeth youre fynge before you. As for me, I am mayn olde and graye heered, and my sonnes are with you: and I haue gone before you from my youth vp vnto this daye. Beholde, here am I: answer ye agaynst me before the LORDE and his anoynted. If I haue done any violence or wronge, if I haue oppressed any man, or if I haue wronged any mans hand, and kepte it secretly, I wil restraite it you agayne.

They saide: Thou hast done vs neither violence nor wronge, neither oppressed, nor taken oughte of any mans hande. He sayde: The LORDE be witnesse agaynst you, and he be his anoynted this daye, that ye haue sayde nothinge in my hande. They saide: Wee they shalbe witnesse. And Samuel sayde vnto Isai and Aaron, and brought your fathers out of the londes of Egipte (is here present.) Seide south now therfore, that I maye iudge you before the LORDE wher the righte is: for the LORDE, which he hath done for you and your fathers.

When Jacob was come in to Egipte, your fathers cryed vnto the LORDE. And he sent Moses and Aaron to bringe your fathers out of Egipte, and to cause them to dwell in this place.

Gen. 46.
Exod. 1. d.
Exod. 4. b.

in the face of the LORD: so J boldened myself, & offered a burnt offering.

Samuel sayde unto Saul: Thou hast do ne foolishly, and not kept the commaunde-ment of the LORD thy God, which he commanded thee. For if thou haddest not done this, he had prospered thy Kingdom vpon Israel for ever: but now shall not thy Kingdome continue. The LORD hath fought 14 a for him one a man after his owne hart: him hath the LORD commanded to be prynce over his people, for thou hast not kept J the LORD commanded J. And Samuel arose, and went vp from Gilgal vnto Gi-ben Ben Jamin.

And Saul numbered the people that was founde with him, vpon a six hundred men.
Saul & his sonne Jonathan, and J people that was with them, carried at Gibea Ben Jamin: but J Philistynes had pitched their tents at Michmas. And out of the hoost of the Philistynes there wente three hundredes more to destroye: one turned the waye towarde Ephraim in the sonde of Saul: another turned towarde the waye of Bethoron: the thirde turned towarde the waye, that reacheth to the valley of Jezebaim vnto the wylernes.

But there was not a smyth founde in all the lode of Israel: for J Philistynes thought it: The hebrues mighte happily make sword-es and speares. And all Israel were fayne to go downe to the Philistynes, whan any man had a plowshare, a mattock, an axe, or a sycke to sharpe: and the edges of the plow shares, and mattocks, & sickes, and axes, were laboured, and the pointes blont. Now whan the daye of the battayll came, there was neither swerde ner speare founde in the hande of all the people, that was with Saul and Jonathan: but for Saul and Jonathan his sonne there was somewhat foun-
de. And J Philistynes watche wote ouer by Michmas.

The XIII. Chapter.

It fortuned at J same tyme, J Jona-thas sayde vnto his lad which was his wapen bearer: Come, let vs go ou-er to the Philistynes watche J lynch above, that he wold not his father. Saul dwelt at y end of Gibea vnder a Domgranate tre, which was in the suburbs. And the people J me-14 a nt by him, were vpon a six hundred men.
And thus the sonne of Achitob the brother of Jacob, the sonne of Phineas J sonne of El J prest of the LORD at Silo, waite the warby core. But the people knewe not that Jonathan was gone.

Between the passages where Jonathan soughte to go ouer vnto the Philistynes watche, there were two hye rockes, the one on the one syde, the other on the other: the one was called Bozes, the other Benne. And J one laye on the north syde towarde Mid-mas, and the other on the south syde towarde Giba. And Jonathan sayde vnto his wa-pen bearer: Come, let vs go ouer to J watche of these uncircumcised, perambulate the LORD shall reuenge with vs. For it is no hard matter for the LORD to helpe by many or by fewe. Then answered him his wapen bearer: Do all that is in thine hart, go ouer thy wathe, beholde, I am with thee, euen as thine hart wyll.

Jonathan sayde: Well than, When we are gone ouer to the men, and come within the sighte of them, yf they saye: Stande still, till we come to you, then wyll we stande still in oure place, and not go vp to them. But yf they saye: Come vp to vs, we wyll go vp to them, the hath the LORD deliuered them in to oure hande, and this shalbe a token for vs. Now whan they came both in the sighte of the Philistynes watche, the Philistynes sayde: Se, J hebrues are gone out of their holes, that they were crept in to. And the men in the watche answered Jonathan and his wapen bearer, and sayde: Come vp to vs, and we wyll teach you what the matter is.
Then sayde Jonathan to his wapen bearer: Come up after me, the LORD hath deliuered them into Israels hande. And Jonathan claime vp with handes and feete, and his wapen bearer a feet him. And Jonathan smote them downe from his ban, and his wapen bearer stode behynde him, so that the first slaughter that Jonathan and his wapen bearer byd, was vpon a twenty men, with in the length of halfe an after of onde, which a part of ozen maye tyll in one daye.

And there came a fearfulness and flighte in the hoost vpon the felde, and amongst all the people of the watche: and vpon the destroyers there came a fearfulness also and flighte, so that the sonne was in a remour, and there came a flighte towarde God. And Sauls watches at Gibea Ben Jamin sawe, that J muste gat them awaie, and ran-ne to and fro.

Saul sayde vnto the people that was with him: Tell and se which of vs is gone awaie. And whan they nombred, beholde, Jonathan & his wapen bearer was not there.

Then saide Saul vnto Ahia: Drynge hit her the Arke of God (for as that tyme was the Arke of God with the children of Israel.) And whyle Saul was yet speakyng to the puff, the multitude in the Philistynes hoost ga: vp, raine, and was greater. And Saul sayde vnto the puff: Wichdowesthine han-de. And Saul cryed, and all the people that was with him, and came to the battayll.
And beholde, every mans swerde was against another, and there was a very greate rumoure.

The Hebrews also that were with 3 Philistynes afore, and had gone vp with them in the hoost on euery syde, toynded them sel-ues vnto Israel which were with Saul and Jonathas. And all the men of Israel which had hyd thei syles upon mount Ephraim, whan they herde that the Philistynes fled, folowed a fter them in the battayll. Thus of LORDE helped Israel at that tyme, and 3 battayll lastyd vnto Bethauen.

12. a. b

D And whan the meny of Israel came forth, Saul charged all the people the same daye, and sayde: Cursed be euery man, which catcheth dyed vnyell ruen, that I maye avenge me on mye enemies. Then all the people taisted no dyed. And all the people of the ion de came in to the wodd. But there laye hony upon the felde: and whan the people came in to the wodd, beholde, the hony flowed, but no man put of it to his mouth with his hade: so the people were affraid becaus of the oerh. As for Jonathas he had noe herbe, that his father had charged the people, and he put forth his staff that he had in his han-de, and dnypped the ende of it in 3 hony: m be, and turned his hande to his mouth, and his eyes were lighted.

Then answered one of the people, and sayde: Thy father hath charged the people, and sayde: Cursed be euery ma that catcheth oug the this daye. Therewithes the people were saynte. Then sayde Jonathas: My father hath troubled the londe: Se how lighte mye eyes are become, becaus I haue taisted a litle of this hony. If the people this daie had eate of the spoye of their enemies that they founde, the slaughter shulde haue bene greater agaynst the Philistynes. Yet sime te they the Philistynes the same daye fro Michmas vnto Aialon, and the people were very weery.

Q And 3 people turned to the spoyles, and toke shepe and oren, and calues, and slewe them upon the carth, and ate them with the bloude. Then was it tolde Saul. Beholde, the people syne agaynst the LORDE, in that they eate bloude. He sayde: De haue me well: I will vnto me now a greateson.

And Saul sayde moouer: So abide and ge the people, and saye vnto them, that eu-ry one drynge hit ope and his shepe, and sleye them here, that ye maye eate, and see to syne agaynst the LORDE with eatyng of bloude. Then broughte all the people eu-ry one his ope with his hade the same nigh-te, and slewe them there. And Saul buylded an altare vnto 3 LORDE. This is the first altare that he buylded vnto the LORDE.

And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe apon the Philistynes, by nighte, and spoyle them till it be clare morninge, that we leaue non escape. They answered: Do what thou wyldest seth the. But the puff sayde: Let vs go my here vnto God. And Saul aye at God.
Shal I go downe here apon 3 Philistynes:
I wille thou deluyre the in to Israel hande:
I wenter, eles he answered him not as that tyme.

Then sayde Saul: Let all the armys of 3 the people come hit her, and make search afte, in whom is this syne at this tyme. As as truly as God the Gouernour of Israel isureth, 2 though it be in my sonne Jonathas, he shal dye. And no man answered him of all the people. And he sayde vnto all Israel: De ye on the one syde, I 2 my sonne Jonathas wyl be on this syde. The people sayde vnto Saul: Do as it pleaseth the. And Saul sayde vnto the LORDE the God of Israel: De thou that righte is. The was Jonathas and Saul taken: but the people wente forth fro.
Saul sayde: Cast the loe ouer me and mye sonne Jonathas. So Jonathas was safe. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas: Tell me, what hast thou done: Jonathas tolde him, 2 sayde: I taisted a litle hony with the staff that I had in my hande, and beholde, most Ioye the for: The sayde Saul: God doo this and that vnto me, Jonathas thou must dye the death.

But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shal de Jonathas dye, that hath done so greates healch in Israel this night: God sayth.
As truly as the LORDE is ureth, there shal not one her of his beate fall upon 3 earth for with God hath he wroughte at this tyme.
So the people deluyred Jonathas, that he dyed not. Then wente Saul vp from the Philistynes and the Philistynes w. c. c. vnto their place.

Whan Saul had requered the tyme some ouer Israel, he soughte agaynst all menys rounde aboute, against the Moabites, against the childre of Ammon, against the Edomites, against the kynge of Zoba, against the Philistynes: and whither so euer he turned him, he gat victory. And he made an hook, and inuoceth the Amalechites, and deliuered Israel from the hande of all those that spoiled them.

Saul had these sonnes: Jonathan, Jisai, and Malchisua. And these were the names of his two daughters: the first borne Merob, and the yonger Michal. And Sauls wife was called Abinoam, the daughter of Ahimaas. And his chiefe capteynes name was Abner, the sonne of Ner, Sauls uncle. Cis was the father of Saul. But Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Nabal.

There was a mightie foie warre against the Philistynes, as longe as Saul liued. And where Saul fawe a man that was stronge and more for to warre, he cote him to him.

The XV. Chapter.

Samuel sayde vnto Saul: The LORD desireth me to anoynte the for to be kynge ouer his people of Israel: heere now therfore the voyce of the wordes of the LORD. Thus sayeth the LORD of Zebaoth: I haue remembered what Amalek dyd vnto Israel, & how he layed wayte for him in the waye, when he wente out of Egypte: So I wayte now therfore, and spyle the Amalechites, & damne them with all that they haue, & spare him not: but slaye boeth man and woman, children & suckylinges, open & sheepe, Camels and asses. Saul commaunded the people the same, and nombred them at Talam, and hadeth thousande footemen, & ten thousande men of Iuda.

And when Saul came to the cite of the Amalechites, he set an hynder roach by the waye, and sayde vnto the Benites: Get you hence, departe, and go downe from the Amalechites, for I spyle you not with them, for I shewed mercy vnto all the children of Israel, when they departed out of Egypte. So the Benites got them awaye from amonge the Amalechites.

Then smote Saul the Amalechites from Gilaie vnto Sur: which lyeth ouer against Egypte: & cote Agag the kynge of the Amalechites alyue, & dammed all the people to the edge of the sword. Nevertheless Saul and the people spared Agag, and the shepe and oxen that were good and fat, and the lambes, and all that was good, and wolde not damne: he but toke what was soule and not thing worth: that they dammed.

Then came the wordes of the LORD vnto Samuel, and sayde: Je repentech me that I made Saul kynge, for he hath turned him selfe backe fro me, and not esformed my wordes. Therfore was Samuel angrye, & cried vnto the LORD all that nyght. And Samuel gat him vp early, that he might meete Saul in y morninge. And it was tolde him, that Saul was come vnto Carmel, & had set him vp a piler, and was gone aboute, and come downe to Gilgall.

Now when Samuel came to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou vnto the LORD, I haue performed the wordes of the LORD. Samuel answered: What crye is this then of shepes in myne eares, and the crye of oxen which I heare?

Saul sayde: They haue broughte them from the Amalechites: for the people spared the best shepe & oxen for the offeringe of the LORD thy God, the other haue we dammed. Nevertheless Samuel answered Saul: Let me tell the what the LORD hath sayde vnto me this nyght: he sayde: Saye on. Samuel sayde: When thou wast but small in thine amone eyes, wast thou not if heade amonge the trybes of Israel: & the LORD anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel: and the LORD desireth y in to the waye, & sayde: So I waite & damne the synners the Amalechites, and fighte against them, vntill thou hast utterly destroyed the: Whether hast thou not herden vnto the voyce of the LORD, but hast turned thy selfe to the spoyle, and done euill in the sighte of the LORD?

Saul answered Samuel: Yee I haue herden vnto the voyce of the LORD, & I haue gone the waye that the LORD sent me, and broughte Agag the kynge of the Amalechites, & dammed the Amalechites: but the people haue eate of the spoyle, shepe & oxen, and the best amonge the dammed, to offer vnto the LORD thy God in Gilgall. Samuel answered: hath the LORD pleasure in sacrifices and burnt offeringes, as in obeynge the voyce of the LORD? Beholde, obedience is better then offeringe, and to hearken is better then the fac of rammes. For disobedience is as the synne of witchcraft, and rebellion is as the blasphemie of Idolatrye. In so much now as thou hast refused the wordes of the LORD, he hath refused the also, that thou shalt best not be kynge.

Then sayde Saul vnto Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue transgressed the commaundement of the LORD and thy wordes: for I was a shyed of the people, and herkened unto their voyce. And now forges me my syme, & requere with me, that I maye worshippe y^e LORDE. Samuēl saide vnto Saul: I wil not turne backe with y^e, for thou hast refused the worde of the LORDE, and the LORDE hath refused the also, y^e thou shuldest not be kyng in y^e Israel. And when Samuēl turned him backe to go his waye, he gat him by y^e edge of his garment, & cōte it. Then saide Samuēl vnto him: The LORDE hath raide the kyngdome of y^e Israel from y^e this daye, & given it vnto y^e neyghbo^r, which is better then thou. The omer wyinner in y^e Israel also shal not lye, neither shal he repente for he is no man, that he shulde repente.

¶ He saide: I haue synned, yet honoure me now before the Elders of my people and be for y^e Israel, and turne backe with me, that I maye worshippe the LORDE thy God. So Samuēl turned agayne after Saul, that Saul mighte worshippe the LORDE. But Samuēl saide: Dunge me hither Agag the kyng of the Amalechites. And Agag wente vnto him cōfessyng. And Agag saide: Thus departed the bytternesse of deathe. Samuēl saide: Like as thy swerde hath made wemen childlesse, so shal y^e moether also be with our children amonge wemen. So Samuēl hewed Agag in peeces before y^e LORDE in Gilgal.

¶ And Samuēl departed vnto Ramath. But Saul wente vnto his house at Gibea. Saul. And Samuēl sawe Saul nemoie vnto the daye of his deathe. Nevertheless Samuēl mourned for Saul, because it repented the LORDE, that he had made Saul kyng ouer y^e Israel. The XVI. Chapter.

¶ ¶ Vnto y^e LORDE saide vnto Samuēl: How longe mournest thou for Saul, whom I haue refused, that he shulde not be kyng ouer y^e Israel? Will thine home with oyle, go thy waye, I will sende the to y^e Iai the Bethleemite: for amonge his sonnes haue I prouyded me a kyng. But Samuēl saide: How shal I go? Saul shal percase it, and shal slaye me. The LORDE saide: Take the a calf from the bosc, & saie: I am come to do sacrifice vnto y^e LORDE. And thou shalt call y^e Iai to y^e sacrifice, so shall I tell the what thou shalt do, that thou mayest agnoye me him, whom I shall slaye the. Samuēl vnto the LORDE saide, and came to Bethleem. Then were the Elders of the cite aslonyed, and wente forth to meete him, and saide: Is thy commynge peaceable? He saide: Yee. I am come to do sacrifice vnto the LORDE. Sanctifie youre selues, & come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified y^e Iai and his sonnes, and called the to the sacrifice.

¶ Now why they came in, he behelde Saul, & thoughte, whether he shulde be his enemy before the LORDE. But y^e LORDE sayde vnto Samuēl: loke not vpon his countenance, ner vpon the tallnesse of his person, for I iudge not after the sighte of man. A man hath respectes vnto the thinge that is before his eyes, but the LORDE loketh vpon the herte. Then y^e Iai called Abinadab, & broughthe him before Samuēl. And he saide: This hath not the LORDE chosen. Then y^e Iai broughthe Samuēl. But he saide: This also hath not the LORDE chosen. Then broughthe y^e Iai his seven sonnes before Samuēl. Nevertheless Samuēl saide vnto y^e Iai: The LORDE hath chosen none of these.

¶ And Samuēl saide vnto y^e Iai: Take all the childre: he saide: There is yet one y^e least of all, and beholde, he keepeth the shepe. He saide: Samuēl vnto y^e Iai: Stande & call him to be fetchyd, for we will not see the in the cable, wyl he come. Then saide he, & called him to be broughthe. And he was all colored wth saie eyes & of a heavenly countenance. And the LORDE saide: Arise, and anoynte him, that is he.

¶ The oyle Samuel his oyle borne, & anoynted him amonge his brethren. And the spere of the LORDE came vnto Dauid fro y^e boye forth. So for Samuēl, he gat him vp, & wente vnto Ramath.

¶ But the spere of the LORDE departed from Saul, and an euill spere from y^e LORDE vnto him. Then saide Sauls seruantes vnto him: Beholde, an euill spere from God vnto the. & et oure lord saie vnto his seruantes which stonde before him, y^e they see a man which can playe vpon the harpe, and instrumente, that when the euill spere of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe wth his hande, to ease the witchall. Then saide Saul vnto his seruantes: Prouyde we a man that can playe well vpon the instruments, ⁊ bringe hit into me.

D Then answered one of the children, ⁊ sayde thus, I sawe a sonne of Iſai ⁊ Dabshal, which can playe vpon the instrumente, an honest ⁊ valiant man, and one ⁊ hath warres in his matters, ⁊ is well fauoured. The Saul sent messengers vnto Iſai, sayenge vnto Dauid ⁊ his sonne, which is with the shepe. Then toke Iſai an asse wth bred, ⁊ a bottell wth wyne, and a byd, and sent it vnto Saul by Dauid his sonne. So Dauid came to Saul, ⁊ stode before him, ⁊ he leued him well, and he became his wapen bearer. And Saul saue vnto Iſai, sayenge: Let Dauid remaine before me, for he hath founde fauor in my sight. How vnto what the spere of God came vnto Saul, Dauid toke ⁊ harpe, ⁊ played wth his hande: so was Saul reſreshed, ⁊ casteth the euill spere departed from him.

The XVII. Chapter.

In the Philistynes gathered their hoost to ⁊ batayll, and came to gether to Socho in Iuda, ⁊ pitched their tentes betwene Socho ⁊ Aſeka, at the ende of Damus. But Saul ⁊ the me of Iſrael came to gether, ⁊ pitched in the Oke valley, ⁊ prepared them selues to the batayll agaynst the Philistynes. And the Philistynes stode vpon a hyll on the one syde, and the Iſraelites vpon a hyll on the other syde, so that there was a valley betwene them.

Then steepe they forth from amonge the Philistynes a stout bolde man, named Goliath of Gath, six cubites and an hande lenth hie, and had an helme of stele on his head, and a fast habergion vpon him, and the weight of his habergion was fyue thousande Sicles of stele, and harness of stele had he vpon his legges, and a shyld of stele vpon his shuldere: and the shaft of his spere was like a weener lome, and the yon of his spere had six hundred Sicles of yron, and his wapen bearer wente before him.

B And he stode and called vnto the hoost of Iſrael, and sayde vnto them: Wherefore are ye come forth to prepare youre selues to the batayll? Am not I a Philistyne, and ye the seruantes of Saul? I hope one amonge you to come downe vnto me: yf he can fight agaynst me and slaye me, then wil we be youre seruantes: but yf I can overcome him and slaye him, then shall ye be oure seruantes, so do we serueye. And the Philistyne sayde: I haue spored his donkey vnto the hoost of Iſrael this daye. Geue me one, and let fight together. When Saul and all Iſrael herde these wordes of ⁊ Philistyne, they were afformyed, and fore afrayed.

But Dauid was the sonne of a man of Ephraim of Bethleem Iuda, whose name was Iſai, which had eight sonnes, and was an olde man in Sauls tyme, and was well stryken in age amonge men. And the thre eldest sonnes of Iſai were gone with Saul to the batayll. And there names were these: Eliab the first borne, Abinadab the second, and Sarmas the thirde. But Dauid was the yongest of all. So when the thre eldest were gone with Saul to the batayll, Dauid wente agayne from Saul, to kepe his father shepe at Bethleem. But the Philistynes steepe forth early in the morninge and at euen, and stode there foure dayes.

Iſai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: Take this Ephra of sennetye for thy brether, and thre ten loades of bred ⁊ ranne to the hoost vnto thy brether: ⁊ these ten new drestes, and bringe them to ⁊ captayne, and lette how thy brether do, whether it go well with them or no, and take what they byd thee. But Saul and they, and all the men of Iſrael were in the Oke valley, and fought agaynst the Philistynes.

Then Dauid gat him vp early in the morninge, and commyted the shepe to ⁊ Reper, and toke his burthen, wente his waye, as Iſai commanded him, and came to the cke. And the hoost was gone forth, and had prepared them selues, and cried in the batayll: For Iſrael had set them selues in aray, and the Philistynes were agaynst their hoost in their aray also.

Then lefte Dauid the vessel that he bare, with the Reper of the stuffe, and ranne to the hoost, and wente in, and saluted his brether. And whyle he was yet talkyng with them, beholde, then came vp the stout bolde man, whose name was Goliath, the Philistine of Gath, out of the Philistynes hoost, and spake thus as afore, and Dauid herde it. But every man of Iſrael, when he sawe the man, fled from him, and was fore afrayed of him.

And every man in Iſrael sayde: Howe ye see the man commyng vp hither? For he is come vp hither, to speake disdainably vnto Iſrael. And who so euer smyeth him, him will the Iynges make ryche, and geue him his daughter, and make his fathers house fre in Iſrael.

Then sayde Dauid vnto the men that stode by him: What shalbe done to the man,

The i. booke of the Iynges.

that smyrecþ this Philistyne, and turnech this shame a waye from Iſrael: for what is he this Philistyne this vncircumcyed, that despyrþ the booke of ʒ Iyunge God: Then the people colde him as afore. Thus shall it be done vnto ʒ: in that smyrecþ him. And Eliab his gre ater brocher herde him talke with the men, and was very wroth agaynst Dauid, and sayde: Wherefore art thou come downe, and why hast thou left a fewe shepe in the wyldernesse: I knowe thy presumption is well ynough, and che wickednesse of thine hert: for thou art come downe to se the battayll. Dauid answered: What haue I done now: Is there not an occasion: And he rannþ him selfe from him vnto ano cher, and spake accordinge as he had sayde be fore. Then che people answered him like as afore.

And when they herde the wordes which Dauid sayde, they colde them in the presen ce of Saul, and he caused him be fetched. And Dauid sayde vnto Saul: Let no mans hert be discouraged because of him. Thy ser uant shall go, and fighte with the Philistyne. A: marchelo Saul sayde vnto Dauid: Thou art not able to go agaynst this Phy listyne to fighte with him, for thou art but a chyld: but this is a man of warre from his youth vp.

E Dauid sayde vnto Saal: Thy seruante keppe his fathers shepe, and there came a lyon and a Beere, and caried awaye a shepe from the flocke, then wente I soch after him, and smote him, and delyuered it out of his mouth. And when he wolde haue tene vpon me: I toke him by his kerde, and smote him, and slewe him. So chy seruante smote bech che Lyon and ʒ Beere. Therefore shall this Philistyne this vncircumcyed be euen as one of them: for he hath despyd the booke of the Iyunge God. And Dauid sayde: The LORDE that delyuered me from ʒ Lyon and Beere, shall delyuer me also from this Philistyne.

And Saal sayde vnto Dauid: Go thy waye, che LORDE be with the. And Saal clothed Dauid with his clothes, and set an helme of stele vpon his heade, and put an habergion vps him. And Dauid girded his swerde about his clothes, and beganne to go, for he had neuer bene used to it afore. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saal: I can not go thus, for I haue not bene used to it, and so he laied it from him, and toke his staff in his hande, and choke fyue lighte stones out of the ryuer, and put them in the shepardes bagge which he had by him, and toke a shepe as his booke, and made him to the philistyne. And the Philistyne menter forth, and made him to Dauid, and his weapon beame before him.

Now when the Philistyne looked ʒ saw Dauid, he thoughte some of him: for he was but a chyld, well coloured, and dainty, full to loke vpon. And the Philistyne sayde vnto Dauid: Am I a dogg then, that thou comest vnto me with a staffe: And he answered Dauid by his God, and sayde vnto Dauid: Come hithe to me, I wil geue chy flesh to the foules vnder the heauen, and to the bestes in the felde. Then heles Dauid sayde vnto the Philistyne: Thou comest vnto me with swerde, speare and shyde. But I come vnto the in the name of the LORD Zabaoth che God of the booke of Iſrael, whom thou hast despyse. This daye shall the LORDE delyuer the in to my hande, that I maye smyte the, and take thy heade from the, and geue the bodies of the boock of the philistynes this daye vnto the foules vnder the heauen, and to the wyde beastes vpon the earth, that all che londe maye knowe: Iſrael hath a God. And all this congregacion shall knowe, that the LORDE smyteth the thowd swerde ner speare: for the battayll is the LORDES, ʒ he shall delyuer vs in to oure handes.

Now when the Philistyne gat hit vp, and wente forth and diue nye vnto Dauid, Dauid made haifte, and ranne from ʒ boock vnto the Philistyne. And Dauid put his heade in his bagge, and roke out a stone, ʒ thre it with the Iynges, and hite the Philistyne euen in the fore heade, so that the stone sticke in his fore heade, and he fell downe to the grounde vpon his face.

So Dauid euermace ʒ Philistyne with che Iynges and with ʒ stone, and smote him, and slewe him. And for so moch as Dauid had no swerde in his hande, he ranne and stode ouer ʒ Philistyne, and roke his

he, and drew it out of the sheeth, and strewed him, and smote of his heade with all. When the Philistines sawe that the strongest of them was dead, they fled. And the men of Israel and Juda gat the vp, and cryed and sounded upon the Philistines, till they came vnto the walley, and to the Portes of Beron. And the Philistines fell downe slayn vnto Gath and to Beron. And the children of Israel turned agayne from chas-ting of the Philistines, and spoyled their tents.
But Dauid toke the heade of the Philistine, and brought it vnto Iherusalem, as for an armour, he layed it in his tent.

When Saul sawe Dauid go south agaynst the Philistyne, he saide vnto Abner his chiefe captayne: Abner, whose sonne is this child? Abner sayde: As truly as thy soule luyeth O Kinge, I wote not. The Kinge sayde: Are thet whose sonne the yongeman is. Now when Dauid came agayne from the slaughter of the Philistyne, Abner toke him, and brought him before Saul, and he had the philistyne heade in his hande.
And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne art thou, thou yongeman? Dauid sayde: I am a sonne of ehytrauun: I sai the Bethleemite.

The XVIII. Chapter.

When he had made an ende of talkyng with Saul, the soule of Jonathas was bounde with the soule of Dauid, and Jonathas loued him as his owne soule. And Saul toke him the same daye, and let him goe agayne to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid made a covenant together, for he loued him as his owne soule. And Jonathas put of his owne armour that he had vpon him, and gave it vnto Dauid, and his bowe, his sword, his bowe, and his girdell. And Dauid wente south wether so euer Saul sent him, and behaued himselfe wysely. And Saul set him ouer the men of warre, and he pleased all the people well, and all the seruantes of Saul.

It fortuned, that when Dauid was come agayne from the slaughter of the Philistyne, the women wente out of all the cities of Israel with songes and daunces, to meete the Kinge Saul, withymbels, with mynth, and with syddels. And the women sange vnto another, and played & sayde: Saul hath slayn ten thousande: but Dauid his ten thousande.

Then was Saul very wroth, and he mooued his pleasaunt men, and he sayde: They haue ascribed ten thousande vnto Dauid, and but one thousande vnto me: what shall he haue more but the Kingdome? And from that daye forth, Saul loked souerely vpon Dauid.

The next daye after came the euell spore of God vpon Saul, and prophesied in myddes of the house. But Dauid played on the instrumente with his hande, as he was wonted dayly. And Saul had a sauleynge in his hande, and cast it, and throughte: I will strike Dauid fall to the wall. Nevertheless Dauid turned himselfe wyse awaye from him. And Saul was astrayed of Dauid: for the LORD was with him, and was departed from Saul. Then Saul put him from him, and set him to be kynce ouer a thousan de men, and he went out and in before the people. And Dauid behaued himselfe wysely in all his doynges, and the LORD was with him.

Now when Saul sawe that he was so exceedyng wysely, he stode in feare of him.
But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, for he wente out and in before them. And Saul sayde vnto Dauid: Beholde, my greatest daughter Merob: wyl I geue thee to wyfe: be stronge now, & gouerne the warres of the LORDE. For Saul throughte: my hande shall not be vpon him, but the hande of a Philistyne.
Nevertheless Dauid answered Saul: Who am I? & what is my life? & the kynce of my father in Israel, that I should mary the kinges daughter?

But when the tyme came, that Merob the daughter of Saul shulde haue bene geue vnto Dauid, she was geuen vnto Achis the holachite to wyfe. Nevertheless Michol Sauls daughter loued Dauid. When this was tolde Saul, he wroth, and he sayde: I wyl geue him her, & she maye be a snare vnto him, & that the handes of Philistynes maye come vpon him. And he sayde vnto Dauid: This daye shalt thou be my daughteres husbande if thou wilt. And Saul spoke vnto his seruantes: Take ye Dauid secretly & saye: Beholde, the Kinge hath pleased in the, and all his seruantes loue the, mary thou shalt be the Kinges daughter.

And Sauls seruantes spake these wordes vnto the eares of Dauid. But Dauid saide: Thynke ye it be a small matter, to mary the Kinges daughter? As for me, I am but a poore simple man. And Sauls seruantes tolde him agayne, and sayde: Soch wordes hath Dauid spoken. Saul sayde: Then saye ye vnto Dauid: The Kinge desireth no dowry, but onely an hundred fortye tymes of the philistynes, that vengeance maye be taken of the kynges enemies. Homber Saul thought to cause Dauid to be slayne by the handes of the philistynes. Then his seruantes tolde Dauid thes wordes, and Dauid was contented with the matter, to marry the kynges daughter.

C And after a some dayes Dauid gaue him up, and wente with his men, and smote two hundred men amonge the philistynes. And Dauid broughte their foreskynes, and made theire nombre sufficient vnto the kyng. & he mighte marry the kynges daughter. The Saul gaue him his daughter Michol to wyfe. And Saul saue and perceaued, that the LORDE was w Dauid. And Michol Sauls daughter loved him. Then was Saul the more a frayed, and became his enemye as longe as he liued. And when the princes of the philistynes were fowch, Dauid behaued him selfe more wisely then all the seruantes of Saul in their ouergoyngs: so that his name was in greate reputation.

The XIX. Chapter.

S Saul spake to Jonathas his sonne, and to all his seruantes, that they shoulde kyl Dauid. Neuertheless Jonathas the sonne of Saul loued Dauid exceedingly, and colde him, and sayde: Saul my father goeth aboute to slaye the. A speche therfore (I praye the) in the mourninge and abyde in secreete, and hyde the. But I wyll go forth, and stonde besyde my father in the fild where thou art, and wyll speake of the vnto my father: and what soeuer I shall bringe the worde.

And Jonathas reported & best of Dauid vnto Saul his father, and sayde vnto him: Oh let not the kyng synne agaynst his seruante, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and his doyng is very necessary for the, he put his lyfe in his hande also, and smote the philistyne, & the LORDE dyd a greate healyng vnto all Israel: this hast thou sene, and reioysed therof. Wherefore wylt thou then ofende agaynst innocent bloude, that thou woldest kyl Dauid without a cause? Then beroued Saul vnto the voice of Jonathas and saue: As truly as the LORDE lyueth he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid, and tolde him all thes wordes, and broughte him to Saul, so that he was in pynce like as afore tyme.

But there arose a batayll agayne, and Dauid wente forth, and fought agaynst the philistynes, and smote a greate slaughter, so that they fled before him. Neuertheless & emell speere of the LORDE came vpon Saul, and he sat in his house, and had a iankeyn in his hande. But Dauid placed vpon his strumment with his hãde. And Saul thought with the iankeyn to strike Dauid in the wall. For he, he wente asyde fro Saul and the iankeyn smote in the wall. But Dauid fled, and escaped that nyght.

For with standinge Saul sent his menssaungers to Dauids house, that they shoulde laye wayte for him, and kyl him in the bynyng. Michol Dauids wyfe tolde him this, and sayde: I praye the, thou shalt not dye this nyght, thou shalt dye tomorrow. Then Michol let him downe thowse of the wyndow, so that he wente his waye, fled, and escaped. And Michol toke an ymage, and layde it in the bed, and laide a goates synne at the heade of it, and couered it with clothes. Then Saul sent menssaungers, to fetch Dauid. But she sayde: He is sicke. Neuertheless Saul sene menssaungers to se Dauid, & sayde: bringe him vp to me with the bed, that he maye be slayne.

Now when the menssaungers came, to holde the ymage in the bed, and a goates synne at the heade of it. Then sayd Saul vnto Michol: Why hast thou begyled me, and lett myne enemye go, that he mighte escape? Michol sayde vnto Saul: he sayde vnto me: Let me go, or I wyll kyl the. And for Dauid, he fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and colde him all. & Saul had bene vnto him. And he wente w Samuel, and they abode at Naioch.

And it was tolde Saul: Beholde, Dauid is at Naioch in Ramath. Then Saul sente menssaungers to fetch Dauid. And they saue a company of prophetes prophesyinge, and Samuel had the ouersight of them. Then came the speere of God vnto the menssaungers of Saul, so that they prophesied also.

When this was tolde Saul, he sent other menssaungers, which prophesied likewise. Then sente he menssaungers the thyrde tyme, and they in like maner prophesied. And when he himselfe also wente to Ramath, and when he came to the greate well which is at Secho, he aied and sayde: Where is Samuel and Dauid? Then was it tolde him: he holde, at Naioch in Ramath. And he wente thither, cum vnto Naioch in Ramath. And y speere of God came vpon him also, and he wote & prophesied till he came vnto Naioch in Ramath. And he put of his clothes, & prophesied likewise before Samuel, & fell downe

Jonathas sayde: That be farre from the,
that I shoulde peccasse my father to inten-de any well agaynste the, and shoulde not tell the. Dauid sayde: Who shal bringe me worde, yf thy father greethe an horse answere?
Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: Come, let vs go forth into the felde. And they wente out both in to y side. And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid:

LORDE God of Israel, yf I peccasse by my father tomorrow on the thirde daye, that it goeth well with Dauid, & I finde not wroche, and shewe the before thine eares, then let the LORDE do this and that vnto Jonathas. But yf my father deliue in me agaynste the, I wil shewe it before thine eares also, and let y go, that thou mayest depart in peace.

And the LORDE be with the, as he hath bene with my father. If y do it not, then do thou no mercy of the LORDE on me, while I lye, no not when I dye, and plaunte thy mercy fro my house for euer. And when the LOR-DE roterch out y enemies of Dauid, eury one out of the londe, then let Dauid rote out Jonathas also with his house, and the LOR-DE requyre it of the hande of Dauids enemies.

And Jonathas proceeded further, and swore vnto Dauid (he loved him so well: for he loved him euen as his owne soule) and Jonathas sayde vnto him: Tomorrow is y new Moone, and thou shalt be ased a star: for thou shalt be wanted where thou wast wonte to sit. But on the thirde daye come downe soone, 2 z go in to y place where thou hydest the on the word daye, & set the downe by the side of Bethlem: and I shute the arrowes on y side, as though I wolde shute at a marck:
and beholde, I wil sende the boye, and saye vnto him, Go see y arrowes. If y saye now vnto the lad: Lo, the arrowes lye by the marck
3 k be bynde y, seech them, then come thou, for it is peace, and there is no perill, as truly as the LORDE lyueth. But yf y saye vnto the lad beholde, the arrowes lye yonder: arde before the, then go thou thy waye, for the LORDE hath let the go. As for the boye 4 thou and I haue spoke together, the LORDE is betwene me and the for euer.

Dauid hid himselfe in the felde. And whā the new Moone came, the Iynges sat him downe at the table to eate. Whā the Iynges had set him downe in his place as he was wonte by the wall, Jonathas stode vp, but Abner sat him downe byside Saul. And Dauid was myssed in his place. And Saul spake no thinge that daye, for he thoughte: There is some nat happend vnto him, that he is not cleane. On the seconde daye of the new Mone, a han Dauid was myssed in his place, Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sennet: Where fore is not the some of Isai come to the table necher yesterdaye ner todaye?

Jonathas answered Saul: he payed me that he mighte go vnto Bethlem, and sayde: Let me go, for oure tyred haue a sacrifice to do in the cyte, and my brother hath sint for me himselfe: yf I haue sumbe fauore re now in thy sighte, I will go, and be my brother: therfore is he not come to the Iynges table. Then was the Iynges wroch at Jonathas, and sayde vnto him: Thou art wroch and unchaste, I knowe how that thou hast dyed in the some of Isai, so the shams of chy selfe and of y^e shamefull mocher. For so longe as y^e forme of Jai lyeueh vpon earth nether thou nor thy kyngdome shal vnspeere. Sende now therfore, and cause him to be fetted into me, for he is a childe of death.

1. Re. 17. f

Jonathas answered his father Saul and sayde vnto him: Wherefore shal he dye: what hath he done? Then spake Saul the iaculyng at him, that he might smite him. The parsoned Jonathas, that his father was vterly deterrmed to kill Dauid, and he rose vp from y^e table in a wroch full displeasure, and ake no bled y^e saine seconde daye of the new Moneth: for he was wred because of Dauid, that his father had done him soch dishonour.

On the morow wente Jonathas forth in to the felde, at the tyme appoynted of Dauid, and a litle boy with him, and sayde vnto y^e boy: Runne and take me the arrowes which I shute. When the boy ranne, he shot an arrowe quer him. And when the boy came to the place whither Jonathas had shot y^e arrowe, Jonathas cryed after him, and sayde: The arrowe lyeth vnderwarde before thee. And he cryed after him a gayne: haist the, and stonde not still. Then the boy gathered vpon Jonathas arrowes, and brought them to his lorde. And the boy knewe nothinge, only Jonathas and Dauid knewe of y^e matter.

Then Jonathas gaue his boy his warpes and sayde vnto him: So thy waye, and cary them in to the cite. And when the boy was gone, Dauid arose from the place towarde the south, and fell vpon his face to the groun, and worshipped thre tymes, and they kysed one another, and wepte together. But Dauid most specially. And Jonathas saide vnto Dauid: So thy waye in peace. What sener we both haue sworne y^e spoek together in the name of the LORDE, the LORDE he will nesse betwene me and the, betwene my selfe and y^e selfe for euer. And Jonathas gat him vp, and came in to the cite.

The XXI. Chapter.

And came to Hebeo y^e prest Ahimelech. And Ahimelech was affonyed, when he sawe Dauid commynge, and sayde vnto him: Why comest thou alone, and noman is with the? Dauid sayde vnto Ahimelech the prest: The kinge hath comyered a matter vnto me, and sayde: Lett nomā knowe wherefore I haue sent the, and what I haue commaunded the: for I haue appoynted my seruantes to meete me here & there. If thou haue now ought vnder thy hande, a lease of bled or fyne, geue me the same in my hande, or what so euer thou findest.

The prest answered Dauid, and sayde: I haue no comen bled vnder my hande, nor holy bled, if the yonge men haue onely kydned them selves from women. Dauid answered the prest, and sayde vnto him: The men were kepte thre dayes from an when we departed south, and the yonge men of selfe were holy. But this waye is withoute werthelesse it shalbe sanctified to be y^e instruments. Then the prest gaue him y^e holy, in so much as there was none other bled but the sheuwaedes, which were taken vp before the LORDE, that there might be no other fleshy bledes. It therin the daye which he toke them awaye.

But the same daye was there a man fetted in be fore the LORDE, one of Sauls seruantes, named Doeg an Edomite, y^e chief amonge Sauls hytomen. And Dauid sayde vnto Ahimelech: Is there not a spear or a swerde here vnder thine hande, whiche not taken my swerde and weapons of me: for the kynges matter requyred had. The prest sayde: The swerde of Goliath the Philistine - whom thou smocest in the Beth valley, is here wrapped in a cloth behynde the altar: whiche whiche thou wilt haue take it, for here is els none bute. Dauid sayde: These is not soch another, geue me it.

And Dauid gat him vp, and sit him Saul, and came to Achis y^e kyng of Gath. But Achis seruantes sayde vnto him: This is Dauid the kyng of the Ioudes, of whom they singe in the daunse, and sayde: How hath synyzen his thanke, but Dauid had ten thousande. And Dauid toke thei wordes to hert, and was sore affrayed of Achis the kyng of Gath, and altered his countenance before them, and shewed himselfe as he had bene madd in their handes, and shewed towarde the doores of the gate, and his slauerynges ranne downe his beard. Then sayde Achis vnto his seruantes: Whiche ye se that the man is out of his wye, why he be ye brought him vnto me? Saue I to him madd men, that ye haue broughte this heere to be madd before me: Shalde he come in my house?

The XXII. Chapter.

Dauid wente fro thence, y^e flod was the cause of Abullam. When he had thien and all his fathers house: he that they came downe thither vnto him. And there gathered vnto him all the men that were in trouble and der, and soye of war, and he became their heade, so that thien with him upon a foure hundred men.

 And Dauid wence from thence towarde Mispa in the lande of the Moabites, and sayde vnto the kyng of the Moabites: Let my father and my moeher go oute and in amonge you, tyll I se what God wil doo with me. And he lefte them before the kyng of the Moabites, so that they remayned by him, as long as Dauid was in the castell. The-next daye the prophet Gad sayde vnto Da-uid: Abide not in the castell, but go y waye, and come into the lande of Iuda. Then departed Dauid, and came into the woodd of Parai. And Saul herde that Dauid and the men which were with him, were come forth.

B Then whyle Saul dwelt at Gibeon vnder a greene in Rama, he had a Javeling in his hande, and all his seruantes stode by him.
 Then sayde Saul vnto his seruantes that stode by him: Heare ye children of Iuminis What the sonne of Iai geue iobes and wys yades vnto you all, & made you all captyues ouer the chanaanites and ouer hitwardes, that ye haue all conspyed agaynst me, and there is no man that sheweth it before myne eares, as I haue moche as my sonne also hath made a couenaunt with the sonne of Iai: There is no man amonge you that letteth it for my safe, or y openeth it vnto myne eares: for my sonne hath stered vp my seruantes agaynst me, that he maye laye waye for me, as it is manifest.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite which stode byside Sauls seruantes, and sayde:
 I sawe the sonne of Iai, that he came vnto Nob, the Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, which ared counsellor the LORDE for him, and gaue him brede, & the swerde of Goliath the Philistyne.

C Then sene the kynges, and caused to call Achimelech the prest the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house, the prestes that were at Nob, and they came all to the kyng.
 And Saul sayde: Heare thou sonne of Achitob, he sayde: here am I my loide. And Saul sayde vnto him: What seare haue ye conspyed agaynst me, thou the sonne of Iai, that thou hast geuen him brede and a swerde, and ared counsellor at God for him, so stered him up, that he mighte laye awaye for me, as it is manifest.

Achimelech answered the kyng and sayde:
 And who is amonge all thy seruantes like Dauid, which is faithfull, and hath married the kynges daughter, and goeth in thine obediens, & is honorably taken in thine house?

Howe I begonne then first this daye to are counsellor at God for him: That he sarre for me. Let not the kyng laye such to his seruantes charge in all my fathers house: for thy seruantes knowe: not of all these thynges nether small nor greate. Then answered the kyng sayde: Achimelech thou must dye by death, thou and all thy fathers house. And the kyng sayde to his fore men that stode by him:
 Turne you, and slaye the prestes of the LOR-DE, for their hande is with Dauid also.

Then which stode by the kynges seruantes wolde not not laye their handes upon the prestes of the LORDE, so slaye them. Then sayde the kyng vnto Doeg: Turne the, and slaye the prestes. Doeg the Edomite turned him, and slew the prestes, so that the same daye there dyrd fyve, and foure score men, which waye overbodey cotes of linnen. And Nob the cite of the prestes smore he with the edome of the swerde, both men and women, children and such thynges, open and alse, and shepe.

Nevertheless there escaped a sonne of Achimelech (the sonne of Achitob) whose name was Abiathar, and fled after Dauid, and tolde him that Saul had slayne the prestes of the LORDE. Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I knowe well the same daye that Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde tell Saul. I am giltye of the soles of thy fathers house. Abide thou with me, and spare not. He that layeth waye for my lyfe, shall laye waye for thyme also, and thou shalt be preferred with me.

The XXX. Chapter.

AND it was tolde Dauid: Beholde, the Philistynes fighte agaynst Cegila, and spoyle the barnes. Then Dauid ared at the LORDE, and sayde: Shall I go, & smyte these Philistynes? And the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: So thy waye, thou shalt smyte the Philistynes, and deliuer Cegila. But y men that were with Dauid, sayde vnto him Beholde, we are hitte in feare in Jemy, and shall we goe Cegila vnto the hooffe of the Philistynes? The Dauid ared at the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE answered him, and sayde: Up, get the downe to Cegila, for I wil deliuer the Philistynes in to thy hande.

So Dauid wence with his men vnto Cegila, and fouzth agaynst the Philistynes, & diuode awaye their carell, and smore them wa greate slaughter. Thus Dauid deliuered them of Cegila. For when Abiathar the sonne of Achimelech fled vnto Dauid at Cegila, he bare downe the overbodey cote with him.

This was it tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Cegila, and he sayde: God hath deliuered him in to my hãde, for he is shut fast in, now that he is come in to a cite which is keepe wth gates and barres. And Saul caused for to call all the people downe to y^e barraill vnto Cegila, y^e they might besiege Dauid and his men. But when Dauid perceaued y^e Saul in that maner agaynst him, he saide vnto Abiathar y^e prest: Deynge me hither the ouerbody coere. And Dauid sayde: O LORDE God of y^e Israel, thy seruauit hath heard, that Saul goeth aboute to come for to destreye the cite of Cegila for my sake. Shal the citys of Cegila deliuer me ouer in to his handes? And shal Saul come downe, as thy seruauit hath herd: Tell thy seruauit this, O LORDE God of y^e Israel. And the LORDE saide: He shal come downe.

C Dauid sayde: Shall the citys of Cegila deliuer me and my men in to Saules handes? The LORDE sayde: Yee. The Dauid gat him vp with his mē, of whom there were vpon a sixe hundred, & walked whither they coude. Now when it was tolde Saul that Dauid was of escapet from Cegila, he let his journeye sone. As for Dauid, he remayned in the wilderness in the castell, and abode vpon the mount in the wilderness of Siph. But Saul sought him as longe as he tyed. Nevertheless God gaue him not in to his handes. And Dauid sawe, that Saul was gone forth to seeke a fier his life. And Dauid was in the wilderness of Siph, in the woodd.

Then Jonathas the some of Saul gat him vp, and wote vnto Dauid in to the wood, and strenghted his hande in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, my father Saules hande shal not finde y^e: and thou shalt be kyng ouer y^e Israel, so will I be thy nerte vnto the. D And y^e my father knoweth righte well. And they made a couenaunt both together before the LORDE. And Dauid remaynd in the woodd. As for Jonathas, he went home agayne.

Par. 4. But the Siphites wente vp to Saul vnto Gibeah, and sayde: Is not Dauid hid with vs in the castell in y^e woodd, vpon mount Gathila, which lyeth on the righte hande of the wilderness? Let the kyng come downe now therfore acordinge to all the desire of his hert, and we will deliuer him in to the kynges hande. Then sayde Saul: Blessed be ye of the LORDE, that ye haue had pytie vpon me: Go youre waye now therfore, and be sure, that ye maye knowe and se in what place his feet haue bene, and who hath sent him there: for it is tolde me, that he is hid in some place. Let well and spye out all the places, where he hydech him, and come agayne to me, when ye are sure, and I will go with you. If he be in the lorde: I will enquire after him amonge all the thowsandes in y^e land.

Then gat they them vp, and wente thre waye vnto Siph before Saul. But Saul and his men were in the wilderness of Mahan in the silde on the righte hande of the wilderness. Now when Saul wente thither with his men to seeke him, it was tolde Dauid and he gat him downe to the rokke, and abode in the wilderness of Mahan. When Saul herde that, he followed a fier Dauid in the wilderness of Mahan. And Saul with his men wente on the one syde of the hill Dauid, and his menon y^e other syde of the hill. But when Dauid made hast to escape from Saul, Saul with his men compassed aboute Dauid and his men, that he might catch him. Nevertheless there came a messenger vnto Saul, and sayde: Make hast and come, for the Philistines are fall in to the lorde. So Saul turned him from chasinge of Dauid, and wente agaynst the Philistines. There is y^e place called Sela Mahaloth. But Dauid wote vp from thence, and abode in the castell at En Gaddi.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Now when Saul came agayne from the Philistines, it was tolde him: Behold, Dauid is in the wilderness of Engaddi. And Saul toke the thowsandes chosen men out of all y^e Israel, and wente to seeke Dauid with his men vpon the stony fles of the wyde goates. And when he was come to the shepe foldes by y^e waye, there was a caue, and Saul wente in to coner his feet. But Dauid and his men sat behinde with the caue.

Then sayde Dauids men vnto him: All this is the daye, where of the LORDE thy God hath sayde vnto the: Beholde, I will doe vnto thyne enemye in to thy hande, that he mayest do wth him what it pleaseth the. So Dauid stode vp, & cut of the tipp of Saules garment quyetly. Then he cut it in toe a fterwarde in his hert, because he had cut the tipp of Saules garment, and sayde vnto his men: The LORDE let that be sarme me, that I shulde do it, & laye my hande vpon my lorde the LORDE S amonds: for he is a noyered of the LORDE. And Dauid wote be his seruantes with wordes, & suffred it not to ryse vp agaynst Saul.

But when Saul gat him vp out of th came, and was goinge his waye, Dauid rose vp also after him, and wente out of the cave, and cried behynde Saul, & sayde: My lord the kyng. And Saul looked behynde him. And Dauid bowed downe his face to the earth, and worshipped, and sayde vnto Saul: Why persecutest thou vnto the wordes of men, that saye: Dauid seeketh thy myffort: Beholde, thine eyes se this daye that the LORDE gaue thee in to my hande in the cave, and I was couneiled to slaye thee: Yet I withheld thou wast sauoured, for I sayde: I wil not laye my hande vpon my lord, for he is the LORDES anoynted. Beholde, my father the tpype of thy garment in my hande, that I wolde not slaye thee; when I cut of the tpype of thy garment. And nowe and fe, I there is no euill ner trespasse in my hande: neither haue I offended thee, and thou followest after my soule, to take it awaye. The LORDE shall be mynged betwene me and thee, and anngime on the, but my hande shall not be vpon thee, accordinge as it is sayde after the wyrd: Vngodlynes commeth of the wyrd: but my hande shall not be vpon the. Whom persecutest thou O kyng of Irael, whom persecutest thou: a deed doynge after: The LORDE be iudge, and geue sentence betwene me and thee, and observe it, and defende my cause, and deliuer me from thy hande.

¶ Nowe when Dauid had spoken out these wordes vnto Saul, Saul saide: Is not this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? And Saul liſte vpon his voyce, and wept, and saide vnto Dauid: Thou art more righteous then I: for thou hast recompysed me good, but I haue rewarded thee euill. And this daye hast thou showed me howe thou hast done me good, for so much as I LORDE hath deliuered me in to thy hande, and thou neuertheless hast not slaine me. What is he, which yf he fynde his enemye, wyll let him go in a good waye: The LORDE rewardeth the good for I thou hast done vnto me this daye: Beholde now, I knowe that thou shalt be kyng, & the kyngdome of Irael shall be in thy hande: I sweare now therfore vnto me by the LORDE, I thou shalt not rote out my seede after me, neither dystroie my name out of my fathers house. And Dauid swore vnto Saul. Then went Saul home, but Dauid gat him vp with his men vnto the castell.

The XXV. Chapter.

¶ And Samuel byed, and all Irael gathered them selues together, mourned for him, & buried him in his house at Ramath. And for Dauid, he rose, and wente downe into the wyldernes of parat. And there was a man at Mach, and his possission at Carmel, and the man was of greates power, and had thre thousand shepe, and a thousand geates. And it fortuned that he clypped his shepe at Carmel, and his name was Utabal, but his wyfys name was Abigail, and she was a woman of good vnderstandinge, & beuery full of face. But the man was hard, and wicked in his doynge, and was one of Caleb.

¶ Nowe when Dauid herde in the wyldernes I Utabal clypped his shepe, he sent vnto an yonge man, & saide vnto him: Go vp vnto Carmel, & when ye come to Utabal, salute him frendly on my behalfe, & saye: Good lucke, peace be to the & thine house, & with all I thou hast. I haue herde saye that thou hast shepe clyppers. ¶ Nowe I shepherdes when thou hast, haue bene with vs, we haue done them no dishonoure, and they waied nothinge of their nombre, as long as they were at Carmel: Be: by yonge men, they shall tell thee, and let thy yonge men fynde sauoure in I sighe: for we are come in a good daye, when thy seruantes & thy sonne Dauid, wote thy hande synberch.

¶ And when Dauid's yonge men came, and spake all these wordes on Dauid's behalfe vnto Utabal, he y lyste of. But Utabal answered Dauid's seruantes, & sayde: What is he I Dauid? & who is the sonne of Iai: There are many seruantes now I ronne awaye from their masters. Shalde I take my hie, water and flesch, that I haue slayne for my clyppers, & geue it vnto in whom I knowe not whence they are?

¶ The Dauid's yonge men turned their waye agayne. And when they came agayne vnto him, they tolde him all these wordes. The sayde Dauid vnto his men: Let every man gyde his swerde aboute him. And euery one gyde his swerde aboute him. And Dauid gyde his swerde aboute him also, and they went vp after him vpon a foure hundred men, but two hundred remained w the staffe.

¶ Therethelvs Abigail Utabal's wyf tolde one of hir yonge men, and sayde: Beholde, Dauid sent messengers one of the wyldernes to blesse our loode, I to wnderstandinge he was swace vps them, and yet haue they bene very profitable men vnto vs, and haue done vs no dishonoure, and we named none of the name: it is as lge as we walked with them, when the were in the felde: but they haue bene our: wall daye and nyght, as lon ge as we keepe the shepe by them. Take he-de now therfore, and loke well what thou doest, for there is surely a myffourne at han-de agaynst our lord, & agaynst all his house. And he is a man of Belial, to whom no man durst saye any thinge. Then Abigail made haire, and toke two hundred loanes of bied, and two boteles of wyne, and fyue she-pe ready dighte, and fyue measures of firmeny, and an hundredth frayle of raisens, and two hundredth frayle of fygges, & layd them vpo assen, and sayde to hir yonge men: Go ye youre waye before me, beholde, I wyl come a feet. And she tolde Labal his hous-hede nothinge therof. And as she rode vpo the asse, and wente downe in the shadowe of ʒ hyl, beholde, Dauid & his me met hir be-twene, so that she came vpon them.

D But Dauid sayde: Wel, all that this man had in ʒ yfoursens, haue I kepte for naughte, so that there was noo thinge of all that he had, and he is warde by me euell for good.
God do this and yet moie vnto the enemies of Dauid, yf vntyll comynge in the mainyng I leaue this man (of all that he hath) so much as one that maketh water agaynst ʒ wall. It was when Abigail sawe Dauid, she lighte downe from the asse in all the haire, and fell vpo hir face before Dauid, and worshipped him to the grounde, and fell at his fete, and sayde: Oh my lord, let this trespass be myne, and let thy handmaide speake before thine eares, and heare the wordes of thy handmaiden: Let not my lord see his hert agaynst this Labal the man of Belial, for he is a foole, accordinge as his name is called: his name is foole, and foolishnes is with him. As for me thy handmaide, I sawe not my lordes yonge men, whom thou bydest sende.

But now my lord, as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, the LORDE hath keepe the backe, ʒ thou shalt deffest come agaynst bloude, and he hath delivered thine hanbe.

E Thine enemye be now as Labal, and so be they that wolde wy loite euell. Here is ʒ blessyng, ʒ thy handmaide hath broughte my lord, take it, and geue it vnto the yonge men, that make vnder my lord. For a sure house thal ʒ LORDE make my lord, which figreth the figre of the LORDE, and no swell shall be founde in the all thy life longe.
And yf any man risse vp to persecute ʒ, and to laye waye for thy soule, then shalt the soule of my lord be bounde in the bundell of ʒ fynyng, euen with the LORDE thy God.

But ʒ soule of thine enemye shall be bounde backe to the fynyng. When the LORDE doeth all this good for my lord (which he hath promysed the) and commaundeth ʒ to be his Duke over ʒ Israel, then shalt thou be stomblyng bloude, not occasion of fallynge vnto my lordes hert, that thou shalt not bloude without a cause, and avenge thy selfe, then shalt ʒ LORDE do good vnto my lord, and thou shalt thynke vpon thy mayden.

Then saide Dauid vnto Abigail, blef-be the LORDE God of ʒ Israel, which hath sent thee to meete me this daye, and blef-thy speach, and blef- be thou, which hast kepe me backe this daye, that I am not me agaynst bloude, to avenge me vnto me anye hanbe. Verely (as truly as the LOR-DE the God of ʒ Israel lyueth, which hath hynried me that I shal do the no euill, If thou habdest not met me in all this waye, Labal shalde not haue had lefe for my ʒ lighte moynyng, so much as one that seek water agaynst the wall. So Dauid of hir haire what she had broughte and sayde vnto her: Go vp in peace vnto thy house: beholde, I haue hardened vnto ʒ we, and accepted thy performe.

But when Abigail came to Labal, be-holde, he had prepared a feast in his house like a fynyng feast, and his hert was merry, for he was very dionken. And she tolde him all thinge, necher small nor greate vntyll ʒ dure moynyng. But when it was daye, & the wyne was come from Labal, his wife tolde him these thinges.

Then was his hert deed in his body, & that he became euen as a ston: and ouer two dayes the LORDE smote him, so ʒ he dyd.
When Dauid herde that Labal was dead, he sayde: Blef- be ʒ LORDE which hath auenged my rebulle on Labal, and performe his seruante from euell. And the LORDE hath rewarded Labal that euell vpon his heade.

And Dauid sent, and caused to call Abigail, ʒ he mighte take her to wife. And when Dauides seruantes came to Abigail vnto Carmel, they spake vnto her, and said: Dauid hath sent vs vnto thee, that he may take ʒ to wife. She rose vp, and worshipped vpon hir face vnto the earth, and sayde: Beholde, here is thy handmaide, that shal do seruyce vnto the seruantes of my lord, and to wash their feet. And Abigail wente, and gat her vp, and rode me after Dauid's messengers, and became his wife. Dauid took Abinoam of Jerusalem also, and they both became his wives. But Saul gave Michol his daughter the wife of Dauid unto Phalti y sonne of Laish of Galun.

The xxxviij. Chapter.

3 They of Githon came to Saul unto Gibeon, and sayde: "Is not Dauid hid vnder the hill of Hachila, which lieth ouer agaynst the wyldernesse? Then Saul gat him vp, and wente downe to the wyldernes of Githon, and pitched vpon the hill of Hachila, which lieth by the waye before the wyldernes. But Dauid remayned in the wyldernes, and when he sawe that Saul came after him in to the wyldernes, he sent out spyes, and knewe of a suertie, that he was come in to be." 1. 22. 10

And Dauid gat him vp, and came to the place where Saul had pitched his tent, and sawe the place where Saul laye with his deest captaynes. Abner y sonne of Ner: for Saul laye in the tent, and the hoost aboute him. Then answered Dauid, and sayde vnto Abimelech the Gethite, and to Abisai the sonne of Ner y brother of Joab: Who wil go downe with me to Saul in to the hoost? Abisai sayde: I wil go downe with thee. 1. 22. 11

3 So Dauid and Abisai came to the people in the nyght season, and beholde, Saul laye and slepe in the tent, and his speare staue in y grounde at his heade. But Abner and the people laye rounde aboute him. The sayde Abisai vnto Dauid: God hath closed this course in thyne hande this daye. Therefore wil I now thrust him thorow once with the speare now in to the grounde, y he shall haue ynough of it. Leuertheles Dauid sayde vnto Abisai: Destroye him not, for who wil laye hande vpon the anoynted of y LORD? It trauayleth me in gyle: Dauid sayde moreover: As truly as the LORD E liueth, yf y LORD E him selfe smyte him not, or excepte his ryght come that he dye, or that he go in to the battayll and perishe, the LORD E let it be sette fro me, that I shulde laye my hande on the LORD E S anoynted. Take y speare now therof out of his heade, and the cuppe of water, y let vs go. So Dauid toke y speare and the cuppe of water at Sauls heade, and they wente their waye. And there was no man y sawe it, ner perceaued it, ner awaked, but they slepe every one, for there was a depe slepe fallen vpon them from the LORD E. 1. 22. 12

Now when Dauid was come out of y other syde, he stode vpon the coppe of the mount a farr off (so that there was a wyde space betwene them) and cryed vpon y people, and vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, y sayde: Hearest thou not Abner? And Abner answered and sayde: Who art thou that cryest so, and distastest the kyng? And Dauid sayde vnto Abner: Art thou not a man? And where is thine sode one as thou in y heade? Why hast thou not then kepe thy loide y kyng? for there is one of y people come in to destroye thy loide y kyng. It is not well that thou hast done. As truly as the LORD E liueth, ye are the children of death, because ye haue not kepe youre loide the LORD E S anoynted. Beholde now, where is y kyngs speare, and the cuppe of water that was at his heade. 1. 22. 13

Then knewe Saul the voyce of Dauid, and said: "Is not that thy voyce as my soune Dauid?" Dauid sayde: "It is my voyce my loide the kyng. And he sayde moreover: Why doest thou so persece me my strauant? What haue I done? and what well is there in my hande? But let my loide the kyng heare but the wordes of his strauant. If y LORD E prouoke the agaynst me, let there be smelle of a meuroffering: but yf the childre of men do it, curst be they before the LORD E, because they haue thrust me out this daye: that I shulde not dwell in the LORD E S inheritance, and saye: So y waye, and sete other goddes. So fall now mine my blame vpon the earth from the face of the LORD E. For the kyng of y Israel is gone forth to see a flet, as a partiche is folowed vpon the mountaynes." 1. 22. 14

And Saul sayde: "I haue synned: Come at: gayne Dauid my soune, I wil do the nomost harme, because my soule hath bene deare in y sighte this daye. Beholde, I haue done foolishly and very vnwisely. Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde, here is the kyngs speare, let one of the yongemen come and bere and sech it." But the LORD E shal reward eury one accordyng to his righteousnes and faith, for y LORD E deliuered y this daye into my hande: nevertheless I troole not lais my hande vpon the LORD E S anoynted. And as y soule hath bene greatly reposed in my sighte this daye, so let y LORD E repute my soule in his sighte, and deliuer me from all tribulacion. Saul sayde vnto Dauid: "Thou shalt do this Dauid my soune, thou shalt do it, it be able. But Dauid wente his waye, and Saul returned agayne vnto his place." 1. 22. 15

The xxviii. Chapter.

And thoughte in his hert: One of these dayes shal I fall into the handes of Saul: It is better that I get me my waye in to the londe of the Philistynes, than Saul maye leaue of from followinge me in all the coastes of Israel, so shall I escape his handes. And he gat him vp, and wente awaie with the five hundred men that were with him: vnto Achis the sonne of Maachy kyng of Gath. So Dauid remayned by Achis at Gath, with his men, every one with his household, and Dauid with his two wyues, Abinoam the Ierusalemite, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel. And whan woide came to Saul that Dauid was fled vnto Gath, he soughte him nomore.

And Dauid sayde vnto Achis: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte, then let there be gotten me a place in one of the cities of the londe, that I maye dwell therein. Wherfore shalbe thy seruants dwell in the kynges cite with the: Then Achis gaue him Gidag the same daye. Therfore belongeth Gidag to the kynges of Iuda vnto this daye. The tyme that Dauid dwelt in the londe of the Philistynes, is foure monethes.

Dauid wente up with his men, and fell in to the londe of the Gessurites and Gittites, and Amalekites: for these were the inhabitants of this londe of olde, as thou comest to Sur vnto the lode of Egypte. But wha Dauid smete of Ionde, he lett neither man ner woman lyue, and toke the shepe, oxen, asses, Camels and tyme, and returned and came to Achis. So whan Achis spake: Whither wilt thou goe? Dauid sayde: Towarde the fourth parte of Iuda, towarde the fourth parte of the Jerahmilites, and toward the fourth parte of the Amitea. And Dauid lett neither man ner woman come luyng vnto Gath, and thoughte: They mighte peradventure speake & repone agaynst vs: thus byd Dauid, and thus was his maner as long as he dwelt in the londe of the Philistynes. Therfore Achis gaue credence vnto Dauid, and thoughte: he hath made him selfe feyned before his people of Israel, therefore shal he be my seruant for ever.

The xxviii. Chapter.

At forward at the same tyme, that the Philistynes gathered their hostes together to the battail, to go agaynst Israel. And Achis sayde vnto Dauid: Thou shalt knowe, that thou and thy men shal go forth with me in the hoste. Dauid sayde vnto Achis: Well, thou shalt se what thy ser-uants shal do. Achis saide vnto Dauid: Thou shalt see howe I will I aduenteure to be the keper of my heade as long as I lyue. And for Achis, he was bred, and all the people had myght for him, and baried him in his cite Ramath. So Saul had dryuen the soythfayers and sponsoers of cottes out of the londe. And whan the Philistynes gathered their souldiers together, and came and pitched their tents at Sanon, Saul gathered all the people in Gath, and they pitched at Gilboa. And whan Saul sawe the hoste of the Philistynes, he was a fraye, and his hert was discomfited, and he axed counsell at the LORD. And the LORDE gaue him no answer, neither by dremes, ner by the hyght, ner by soothsayes.

The sayde Saul vnto his seruants: Take me a woman which hath a spruce of soythfayinge. And Saul chaunge his clothes, and put on other, and wente his waye and two men with him, and came by nighte vnto the woman, and sayde: Apperthe vnto me, I pray the thow the price of soythfayinge, and bryng me him vp whom I shal name vnto the. The woman saide vnto him: Beholde, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath robd out the soythfayers & wicheas from the londe, wherfore wilt thou bryng my soule then in to me, that I maye be slayne? But Saul sware vnto her by the LORD, and sayde: As I lyue, as the LORDE lyueth, thou shalt not herme happen vnto the for this. Then sayde the woman: Whom shal I bryng up vnto the? she sayde: Bryng me vp Sammel.

Now whan the woman saide Sammel she cryed loude, and sayde vnto Saul: Wherfore hast thou begyled me? Thou art Saul. And the kyng sayde vnto her: Feare not, what saist thou? The woman sayde vnto Saul: The goddes charynge vp one of the earth: she sayde: How is he shapen? She sayde: There cometh up an olde man, and is clothed with a longe garment. Then perceived Saul that it was Sammel, & brought him selfe downe to his face to the ground, and worshipped him.

Sammel saide vnto Saul: Why hast thou begyled me, to cause me to be brought up? Saul sayde: I am sore troubled, the Philistynes fighte agaynst me, & God is departed from me, & gheret me no answer, neither by dremes ner by dremes: therefore haue I tolde the, & thou mightest hearme me, wher-

D shall do. Sammel sayde: What wilt thou are at me. synges the LORDE is departed from the, and is become thine enemye: The LOR-DE shall do unto the euen as he spake by me, and shall plaue the kyngdome out of thy hande, and geue it vnto Dauid thy neighbou-re, because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, nor performed the deuotion of his mouth agaynst Amalek.
Therefore hath the LORDE done this now vnto the. Moreover the LORDE shall deliuer Israel with the also in to the handes of the Philistynes: comowen shalt thou and thy yonges be with me. And thy hoost of Israel shall the LORDE deliuer in to the handes of the Philistynes. Then fell Saul immediatly vnto the earth, for he coude not stonde, and was for a strayed at these wordes of Sa-mel, so that there was no more strength in him: for he had eaten no bread all that daye and all that nyght.

E And the woman wente in to Saul, & sawe that he was sore vexed, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy handes yde hath hearkened vnto thy voyce, and I haue put my soule in my hande, so that I haue hearkened vnto y wordes which thou spakest vnto me. Therefore somewhat alio the voyce of thy hand may be.
I wil be as a morsell of bread before the to eat it, that thou mayest come to thy strength, to go y waye. But he refused, and sayde, I wil not eate. Then his seruantes & the woman cōpelled him, so that he hearkened vnto their voyce.

And he rose vp from y grounde, and sat vpon the bed. The woman had a fat calfe at home, so she made haist, and kyled it, and toke it well and dyd kneete it, and baked suete cakes, & broughen them forth be fore Saul, & before his seruantes. And when they had eaten, they stode vp, and wice their waye y nyghte.

The XXX. Chapter.

The Philistynes gathered all their armes together at Askelon. But Israel pitched at Bein in Israel. And the prynces of the Philistynes were forth with hundreds and with thousands, but Dauid and his men were bekynde with Achis. The sayde the prynces of the Philistynes: What shal these do? Achis saide vnto the:
Is not this Dauid y seruante of Saul kynge of Israel, which hath bene with me now yeres and dayes, & I haue founde no euill in him? (since the tyme that he fell to me vnto this daye.) Nevertheless the prynces of y Philistynes were much at him, & sayde vnto him: Let the man come backe agayne, & abyde in his place, which thou hast appointed him, that he go not downe with vs to y ba-taylor, and become our adversary in y fildes.

For wherin coude he better do his loue a pleasure, the in the heades of these men? Jo not this Dauid, of whom they singe in the daunce: A Gail hath smytte his thousande, but Dauid his ten thousande: Then Achis called Dauid, and sayde vnto him: Truly as the LORDE lynch, I take the for an honest man, and thy our goyng and ingoyng with me in y hoost pleased me well, and no euill haue I marked in the, fence y tyme that thou comest to me vnto this daye. But thou pleasist not the prynces. Returne now therfore, and go y waye in peace, that thou do no euill in the sighte of the prynces of y Philistynes.

Dauid sayde: What haue I done, & what hast thou marked in thy seruante, since y cy-me that I haue bene in y piasunce vnto this daye, that I shulde not come and fighte a-gaynst the enemies of my lordes kyng?
Achis answered and sayde vnto Dauid: I knowe well that thou pleast myne eyes eue as an angell of God. But the prynces of y Philistynes haue sayde: Let him not go vp with vs vnto the bataylor. Get the vp therfore comowen by tymes, and y loude seruauntes which are come with the. And when ye haue gotten you vp early in the moonyng, when it is lig hie, go yd waye. So Dauid & his men gat them vp early, & go their waye in the moonyng, and to come agayne in to the londe of the Philistynes. But the Philis-tynes wente vp towards Jersai.

The XXX. Chapter.

Now when Dauid came to Sidag, & on the thirde daie with his men, the Amalechites had fall in on y south parte and at Sidag, and had sixteen Sid-dag, and burned it with fyre, and had caried a waye the want out of it, both small & greate. Nevertheless they had slayne no man, but druen the thence, and were goyng on their waye. Now when Dauid with his men came to the cite, and sawe that it was bene defyrte, and that that wyues, some & daughter-tes were led awaye captiues, Dauid and the people that was with him leste vp their voyce, and wepte so loude tyll they coude wepe no more. For Dauides two wyues also were caried awaye captiues, Abinoam y Jersai-tiffe, and Abigail Labala wife of Carmel.
And Dauid was very sorrowfull, for the people wolde haue stoned him: for y soule of all the people was in greete benygne, entry one ouer his sonnes and daughters.

D Then Achis Dauid strengthened him selfe in the LORDE his God, & sayde vnto Abisathar þæt þis is the forme of Ahimelech: Bring me hithe the ouerbodie coze. And when Abisathar had broughte the ouerbodie coze vnto Dauid, Dauid arood at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I folowe vpon the men of warre, and shal I ouertake them? He sayde: Yee, folowe vpo them, thou shalt ouertake them, and shalt rescue the pray. Then wente Dauid his waye, and the sixe hundred men that were with him. And when they came to the ryuer of Besor, some stode styll. But Dauid and the four hundred men folowed a fere: As for the two hundred men that stode styll, they had bene slowe to go ouer the ryuer of Besor.

And they founde a man of Egiptee vpon the felde, him they broughte vnto Dauid, & gaue him bread to eat, and water to drynke, and gaue him a quantite of fygge, & two quantities of raisyn. And when he had eaten, his spere came to him againe: for in the dayes and the nightes he had eate no bred, and drynke no water.

C Dauid sayde vnto him: Whose art thou? & whence art thou? He sayde: I am a chyld of Egiptee, an Amalechite seruante. My master hech forsaken me, because I was sicke thes dayes a goo. We sell her in towarde þæt south syde of Chanaan, and vpon Iuda, and towarde þæt south parte of Caleb, & haue burned Sidag with fyre.

Dauid sayde vnto him: Wilt thou bringe me downe to these men of warre? He sayde: Swear vnto me by God, þæt thou shalt noe slaye me, ner deliuer me in to my masters hande, and I will bringe the downe to these men of warre. And he broughte the downe, and beholde, they were scattered vpon all þæt groun de, eatinge and drynkyng, and keepyng holy daye, and were makinge merry chere, because of all the greates spoyle that they had taken out of the londe of the philistynes and of Iuda.

D And Dauid smote them from þæt morow tyll the euen, agaynst the nyghte daye, so that there of scapd none, excepte foure hundred yonge men, which rode vpon camels, & fled. So Dauid rescued all that the Amalechites had taken, and his two wyues, & there mysfed nothyng, neither small ner greates, neither sonnes ner daughter, ner spoyle: and what so euer they had taken, Dauid broughte all agayne. And Dauid soke the shepe and ope, and browe þæt calld be fore him. And they sayde: This is Dauids spoyle.

And when Dauid came to the two hundred men, which had bene slowe to folow a fere Dauid, and abode at the ryuer of Besor, they wente south to meete Dauid, and the people þæt was with him. And Dauid came to the people, and saluted them frendly.

Then answered such men as were with Dauid men (amonge them that had gone with Dauid) and sayde: Syringe they were not wth vs, they shal haue none of the spoyle that we haue rescued: but let eury man ke his wyfe & his children and be gone.

Then sayde Dauid: Ye shall not be separated from me with that which I LORDE hath gyven vs, and hath preferred vs, and redeemed these men of warre: which were come agaynst vs in to oure handes. Who shal take of some vnto you herin? like as the portion of them that wente downe to the battayll, so shal þæt portion be of them also that were wth the staffe, & shalbe deuoyd a lye.

From that tyme forth had this banan ordynance & lawe in Israel vnto this daye. And when Dauid came to Sidag, heist of the spoyle vnto the Gethers in Iuda his neighbours, and sayde: Beholde, chere hat ye the blessinge out of the spoyle of the camies of the LORDE, namely vnto them of Bethel, vnto them at Ramath in the south, vnto them at Iathir, vnto them at Aron, vnto them at Siphonoth, vnto them at Bethemoa, vnto them at Rachal, vnto them the cities of the Ierabonites, vnto them the cities of the Arceues, vnto them at Iyma, vnto them at Bozajan, vnto them at Bethon, vnto them at Gethon, and vnto all the places where Dauid had walked wth his men.

The XXXI. Chapter.

D The philistynes foughte agaynst Israel, and the men of Iisrahel fled before the philistynes, and fell browe fuytteen vpon the mount Gilboa. And the philistynes preassed vpon Saul and his sonnes, and slawe Iemathas, & Abinadab and Malchisua the sonnes of Saul. And the batayll was fore agaynst Saul, & the archer fell vpon him with bowes, and he was wounded of the archers.

Then sayde Saul vnto his wapen bearer: Dure out thy swerde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcised come not and slawe me, and make a longhinge stowe of me. Then Achis his wapen bearer wolde not for he was fore a prayed. Then toke Saul his swerde, and fell therein. How when his wth

The first Chapter.

After the death of Saul when David was come agayne from the slaughter of y^e Amalechites, and had remayned two dayes at Siclag, beholde, on the thirde daye there came a man out of Sauls hoost, with his clothes rent, and earth upon his heade. And when he came vnto David, he fell downe to the ground, and worshipped. David sayde vnto him: Whence comest thou? he sayde vnto him: Out of the hoost of Israel am I fled. David sayde vnto him: Tell me, what is the matter? he sayde: the people is fled from the battayle, and many of thy people are fallen: see and Saul also is deed and his sonne Jonathan. David sayde vnto the yonge man that brought him this word: how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his sonne are deed? The yonge man y^e tolde him this, sayde: I came by chance vnto mount Belboa, and beholde, Saul leaned vpon his speare, & the charrettes and horsemen followed hard after him: and hee was turned him about, and saue me, and called me. And I sayde: here am I. And he sayde vnto me: What art thou? I sayde vnto him: I am an Amalechite. And he saide vnto me: Come to me, and kill me, for anguyshe hath gotten holde of me: for my life is yet whole within me. Then stept I to him, and slewe him, for I knowe well that he coulde not liue after his fall. And I rote the crowne from his heade, and the armuret from his arme, and haue broughte it here vnto my lord. Then toke David holde of his clothes, and rente them, and so dyd all the men that were with him, & mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntyll the euen, ouer Saul & Jonathan his sonne, and ouer the people of the LORD, and ouer the house of Israel, because they were fallen thorow the swerde.

C And David sayde to the yonge man that broughte him word: What art thou? he sayde: I am y^e sonne of a straunger an Amalechite. David sayde: how happeneth it that thou wast not afraid to laye thine hand vpon the LORDS anointed to destroye him? And David sayde vnto one of his yonge men: Come hither, and slaye him. And he smote him that he dyed. Then sayde David vnto him: Thy bloud be vpon thyme owne heade. For thymouth hath spoken agaynst thy selfe and sayde: I haue slayne the anointed of the LORD. And David mourned this

D lamentacion ouer Saul and Jonathan his sonne, and commanded to teach the child of Juda the bowe. Beholde, it is written in the booke of the righteous.

The eldest in Israel are slayne vpon the height of the Gilead. How are the Worthies fallen.

Tell it not at Gath: speake not of it in y^e streets at Ascalon: lest the daughteres of y^e Philistynes reioyse, lest the daughteres of y^e vncircumcised triumphe.

The mountaynes of Belboa, neither denier rayne come vnto you, neither lode be made of cornne: hence offer ynges: for there is y^e shyde of the Worthies smytten downe, the shyde of Saul, as though he had not beene anointed with oyle.

The bowe of Jonathan is sayled not, and the swerde of Saul came not agayne vnto the founteyne of the bloudes of the slayne, and fro the fat of the giants.

Saul and Jonathan lovely and pleasant in their lyfe, and in their death were not parted asunder: lighter then Eagles, and stronger then Lyons.

The daughteres of Israel wepe ouer Saul which clothed you with purple in plumes, and decked you with Jewels of golde in youre garmentes.

How are the Worthies fallen so in the battayle: Jonathan is slayne vpon y^e height of the Gilead.

I am sorry for the my brother Jonathan: thou hast bene very loyally vnto me: Thy loue hath bene more speciall vnto me, then the loue of women.

How are the Worthies fallen, and y^e mountains destroyed:

The ii. Chapter.

D After these actes David was asked at the LORD, and sayde: Shall I go vnto one of the cities of Iuda? And the LORD sayde vnto him: Go vp. David sayde: Whither? he sayde: Vnto Hebron. So David wente thither with his two wyues, Abinoam the Ierusalymite, and Abigail the baile wyfe of Carmel. And David brought vnto the men that were with him also, & cryed out with his heuylholde, and they dwelt in the cities of Hebron. And y^e men of Iuda came, and there they anointed him kynge ouer the house of Iuda.

And when it was tolde David, that they of Iabes in Gilead had buried Saul, he sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: Blessid be ye of the LORD, that ye haue done this mercie vpon youre lord Saul, and haue buried him. The LORD therefore shewe man over and faithfullnes upon you. And because ye have done this, I also will do you good. Let your hate now therefore be comforted, and be ye stronger: though Saul your lord be dead, yet hath the house of Iuda chosen me to be kynge over them.

B But Abner the sonne of Ner, which was Basils chiefe captayne, took Ithobeseth the sonne of Saul, and brought him thowen the hooff, and made him kynge over Beleah, Issari, Israhel, Ephraim, Ben Iamin and over all Itrael. And Ithobeseth the sonne of Saul was fortye yeare olde, when he was made kynge of Itrael, & he reigned two yeares. But the house of Iuda helde with Dauid: The tyme that Dauid was kynge at Hebron over the house of Iuda, was seven yeare and sixe monethes longe.

And Abner the sonne of Ner wente forth with the seruantes of Ithobeseth the sonne of Saul, one of a hooff vnto Gibeon. And Joab the sonne of Zeru Ia wente forth with Dauids seruantes, and they met together by the pole at Gibeon, and there laye on the one syde of the pole, the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde vnto Joab: Let the yonge me get them vp, and playe before vs. Joab sayde: Let them aryse. Then gat they them vp, & wente in nombre twolue of Ben Iamin on Ithobeseth Sauls fornes syde, and twelue of Dauids seruantes. And every one gat another by the heade, and thrust his swerde in his syde, and fell together: the fornes is the place called helath hazarim (that is, the place of the Woithies) which is at Gibeon.

C And there arose a sore hard battayll the same daye. But Abner and the men of Itrael were put to flight of Dauid's seruantes. The sonnes of Zeru Ia were there, Joab, Abisai & Asahel. As for Asahel, he was slayne of Itrael as a Roo in a fynde, & folowed after Abner, and turned not asyde neether to the righte hande ner to a lefte from Abner. Then Abner turned him aboute, and sayde: Are thou Asahel? He sayde: Yee. Abner sayde vnto him: So chy was ye ether to the righte hande or to the lefte, and get the one of a yonge men, and take his battysse from him. Whereby he wolde not leaue of frō him. Then sayde Abner agayne to Asahel: Get the waye for me, why wilt thou that I smyte to the grounde? and how darre I lyste vnto my face before a brother Joab: how best he wolde not go his waye.

Then Abner thrust him with a speare into his belly so that the speare wote out behynde him. And there he fell and dyed before him: and who so came to the place where Asahel laye dyed, stode still there. But Joab and Abisai folowed upon Abner, all the sonne wente downe. And when they came to the hill of Amma, which lieth before Gad, by waye to the wilderness of Gibeon, the children of Ben Iamin gathered them selfe to gether behynde Abner, and grewe to a multitude, and stode upon the topp of an hyll.

And Abner called vnto Joab, and sayde: Shal the swerde the deuoure withoute? In no wise thou not, that it will be dryer at the last: how longe will it be on thou saie wnto the people, that they leaue of from their brethren? Joab sayde: As truly as God liueth yf thou haddest sayde thus daye in the morninge, the people had ceased every one from his brother. And Joab blew the trompet, & all the people stode still, and folowed none upon Itrael, neether sought they any more.

Abner and his men wente all that same night over the playne felde, and passē ouer Iordane, & walke thowen all Dyrhon, and came to the wates. Joab turned him from Abner, and gathered all a people together. And of Dauid's seruantes there mysted synnere men, and Asahel. But Dauid's seruantes had synnere so amonge Ben Iamin and the men of Abner, that the hundredth and the fiftie men were dead. And they toke up Asahel, and buried him in his fathers graue at Bethleem. And Joab with his men wote all that nyght: and at the break of the daye they came vnto Hebron.

The liij. Chapter.

AND there was a longe battayll betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid. But Dauid wente and increasēd, and the house of Saul wente and mynisthed. And vnto Dauid were children borne at Hebron. His first borne sonne Amnon of Ahinoam the Iesrahelisse: the seconde Chisleab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal of Carmel: the thirde Absalon the sonne of Maacha the daughter of Chalmat kynge of Gessur: the fourth Adonia the sonne of Hagith: the fyfth Saphatia the sonne of Abital: a sixth Ierhameam of Eglia Dauid's wyfe. These were borne vnto Dauid at Hebron.

Now when it was warre betwene the house of Saul: the house of Dauid, Abner strengthened Saals house. And Saul had had a concubynne, whose name was Rissa the daughter of Aia. And Ithobeseth sayde vnto Abner: Wherfore liest thou with my fathers concubynne?

Then was Abner very wroth at these wordes of Ihsobosch, and sayde: Am I a dogge haue then, that I agaynst Iuda do wroty vnto the house of Saul thy father, and vnto his brethren and kynfolkes? and haue not deliuered the into þy hande of Dauid, and thou layest a trespass to my charge this daye for a woman sake? God do Abner this and that, yf I do noc: as the LORDE hath sworne vnto Dauid, that the kyngdome maye be taken frō the house of Saul, and yf state of Dauid sit vpon Irael and Iuda, from Dan vnto Bersiba. Then coulde he not answer him one worde agayne, he feared him so.

And Abner sent messengers vnto Dauid, sayinge: Whose is the loue? And sayde: What thy coneuynce with me. Beholde, my hande shall be with the, so turne all Irael vnto the.

2nd. c.

C He sayde: Wel, I will make a conuynce with the, but one thyng I desire of the, that thou shal noc my face, excepte thou bringe me first Michol Sauls daughter, when thou comest to se my face. Dauid sent messengers also vnto Ihsobosch the sonne of Saul, sayinge: Geue me my wyfe Michol, whom I married with an hundred shekels of the philistynes. Ihsobosch saw, and caused for to take her from the man - Paltiel the sonne of Laio. And his husbande wente with her, and wepte behynde her vnto Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto him: Turne backe agayne, and go thy waye. And he turned backe agayne.

1. R. 2.

And Abner talked with the Elders in Iffrad, and sayde: Your mynde haue bene set afore tyme and longe a goe vpon Dauid, that he mighte be kyng ouer you, do it now therfore, for þe LORDE hath sayde of Dauid: I will deliuer my people of Iffrad by the hande of Dauid my seruante, from the hande of the philistynes, and from the hande of all their enemies.

D Abner spake also before the eares of Ben Jamin, and wente to speake before the eares of Dauid at Hebron all that Iffrad and the whole house of Ben Jamin was contented withal. Now when Abner came to Hebron vnto Dauid, and twety men with him, Dauid made them a feaste. And Abner sayde vnto Dauid: I will grete up, and go gather all Iffrad together to my loude the kyng, and that they maye make a conuynce with the, that thou mayest be kyng, as thy soules desire.

So Dauid let Abner go from him in peace. And beholde, Dauid seruautes and Iud came from the men of warre, and brought a greates spoyle with them. And Abner noc now wroth Dauid at Hebron, for he had sent him from him, so that he was gonne his waye in peace.

But when Joab and all the host with him was come, it was tolde him that Iud the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, as how he had sent him frō him, so that he was gone his waye in peace. Then wente Iud into the kyng, and sayde: What hast thou done? Beholde, Abner came to the, why had thou sent him from the, that he is gonny his waye? A knowest thou not Abner the sonne of Ner? For he came to the to discomforth, that he mighte knowe thy wrongs, and ingoynge, and to speie out all that thou hadst done. And when Joab wente out from Dauid, he sent messengers after Abner, to fetch him agayne from Bobsaira, and Dauid knewe not thereof. Now when Abner came agayne vnto Hebron, Joab brought him in to middes vnder þe gate, to talke with him face to face, and thrust him there in to þe helyth dych, because of his brother Absaloms bloud.

When Dauid knewe of it therfore, he sayde: I am enuyley, and so is my kyngdome for ever before the LORDE, because the bloud of Abner þe sonne of Ner laye vpon the heade of Joab shall it, and vpon all his fathers house, and in the house of Joab there ceasse not one to haue a remynge eye and a leprousy, and to go vpon a fust, as shall thou the swerde, and to haue lamens of bed. Thus Joab and his brother Absalme Abner, because he had slayne the brother Abner in the battail at Hebron.

Dauid sayde vnto Joab and to all þe people þe was with him: Keme youre clothes, and gyde sacke cloth aboute you, and make lamentacion for Abner. And the kyng made a feire the Ner. And when they buryd Abner at Hebron, the kyng lifte vpon his wyce, and wepte besyde Abners graue, and all the people wepte also.

And the kyng mourned for Abner, and sayde: Abner is not dead as a foole dyth. Thy handes were not bounde, thy feet were not vexed with fetters, thou art fallen as a man falleth before wicked vncyphures. Thus all the people bewailed him yet more.

Now when all the people came in to see with Dauid, whyle it was yet hie daye, Dauid swaure, and sayde: God do this and that vnto me, yf I easte erber bread or synne afore the Sone go downe. And all of þe me it. and it pleased them well all that y finge byd in the figne of all the people.

 And all the people and all Israel perceived the same day, that it came not of the fynge, that Abner the sonne of Ner was slayne.
 And the fynge sayde vnto his seruants:
 Know ye not that at this daye a princie and a greete man is fallen in Israel: As for me, I am yet but eader and anoynced fynge.
 But the men the children of Bern Ja are to hard for me. The LORDE recompen ce him that doth euill, accordinge to his wick ednes.

The III. Chapter.

Whan Sauls sonne berbe y Abner was dead at hebron, his handes wa re feble, all Israel was foiey. But there were two men capteynes ouer the fon dres vnder the ionne of Saul, the one was called Baena, the other Reheb, sonnes of Rimon y Berechite, of the childof Ben Jamin: for Ezech was coliced also in Ben Jamin. And the Berechites were fled vnto Bethaim, 2 were strangers there vnto this daye. Jonathan also the sonne of Saul had some which was lame on his fete, 2 was fye yeare olde when the rumoure of Saul and Jonathan came from Iffrael. And his wife toke him, and fled. And whyhe she ma de haist and fled, he fell, and was lame: And his name was Mephibosheth.

Then wente the sonnes of Rimon y Be rechite, Reheb 2 Baena, 2 came to the hou se of Jhibosheth, in the heare of the daye, 2 he laye vpo his bed at the noone daie. And they came into the house to fetch wheate, 2 thrust him in the bed, 2 gat them awaye, for wha they came into y house, he laye vpo his bed in his chamber, 2 they sticke him to death, 2 snore of his heade, and toke his heade, and bepared by the waye of the playne side all that night, and broughte the heade of J hibosheth to Dauid vnto hebron, and sayde vnto the kynge: Beholde, there is the heade of Jhibosheth the sonne of Saul thine enemye, which laye readye for thy soule. This daye hath the LORDE auenged my loude the kyn ge of Saul and his side.

Then answered Dauid vnto Reheb and Baena his brother, y sonnes of Rimon y Berechite, 2 sayde: As truly as the LORDE I swch which hath deliuered my soule out of all trouble, I toke him y broughte me wor de and sayde: Saul is dead, and he thoughte he had bene a good messenger, and at Sid deas I put him to death, vnto whom J shal be haue given a reward for his message,

And these vnghobly performes haue slayne a righteous man in his owne house vpon his bed. See shulde not I requyre his blood of youre handes, and take you awaye from y earth: And Dauid commaunded his yonge men, which slewe them, and smote of their handes and fete, and hanged them vp by y pole at hebron. But the heade of Jhibosheth toke they, and buried it in Abneros graue at hebron.

The V. Chapter.

And all the crybes of Israel came to Dauid vnto hebron, and sayde: Beholde, we are thy bone and thy flesh. And a fore kynne wha Saul was kynge ouer vs, thou ledest Israel out and in. So the LORDE hath sayde: Thou shalt kepe my peo ple of Israel, and shalt be the duke ouer Is rael. And all the eldres in Israel came to y fynge vnto hebron. And kynge Dauid made a conuenaunt with them at hebron before y LORDE. And they anoynced Dauid to be kynge ouer Israel. Thynie yeare olde was Dauid when he was made kynge, and reig ned fortye yeres. At hebron raigned he se uen yeres and sixe monethes ouer Iuda: but at Ierusalem he reigned thre and thirtie ye res ouer all Israel and Iuda.

And the kynge wente with his men to Ierusalem, agaynst the Jebusites, which dwelt in the londe. Neuertheles they sayde vnto Dauid: Thou shalt not come hither but the blynde and lame shal dwye y waite. (They thoughte plauey, that Dauid shul de not come in.) Howbeit Dauid wanne the castill of Sion, which is the cite of Dauid.
 Then sayde Dauid the same daye: Who so euer smyth the Jebusites, and openeth the perquellies, the lame 2 the blynde, which (Jebusites) Dauids soule hateth. I wil co methe the piousbe: Let no blynde nor lame come in to the house. So Dauid dwelt in y castill, and called it the cite of Dauid. And Dauid builded rolde aboute fro Millo and within. And Dauid grewe, 2 the LORDE the God Zebaoth was with him.

And hitam the kynge of Tyre sent mes saungers vnto Dauid, and Cedar trees for walles, and Carpenters, and Masons, to buil de Dauid an house. And Dauid knewe, that the LORDE had confirmed him kynge ouer Israel, and exalted his kyngeome for his peo ple of Israel sake. And Dauid toke yet mo wyues and concubynes at Ierusalem, after he was come from hebron, and there were yet mo sonnes 2 daughters borne vnto him.
 And these are the names of them that were borne vnto him at Jerusalem: Samma Solab, Tarhan, Salomon, Jebhar, Elisua, Uepheg, Jappia, Elisama, Liaba, Eliphale.

And whan the Philistines herde that Dauid was anoynted kinge ouer Irael, they wote up all to seke Dauid. Whan Dauid perceaued that, he wote to come in to a castell. But the Philistines came and scattered than selues beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid ased at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I go vp agaynst the Philistines? and wyle thou deliuer them in to my hande: The LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go vp, I wyl deliuer the Philistines in to thy hande.

1. Reg. 17. 1. 2. 3. 4.

And Dauid came vnto Baal Paraim, and smote the tere, and sayde: The LORDE hath deuoyded myne enemies, euen as the waters parce asunder: ther fore is the same place called Baal Paraim. And they leste their ymagines there, but Dauid and his men caried the awaye.

Wherethelisse the Philistines wente vp agayne, and scattered them selues beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid ased at the LORDE. The LORDE sayde: Thou shalt go vp, but compass them behinde, that thou mayest be upon them euer agaynst the pectrees: and whan thou hearest upon the toppes of the pectrees, the sounde of the goinge be belde, for then is the LORDE gone forth before thee, to smyte the hoost of the Philistines. Dauid yd as the LORDE commaunded him and smote the Philistines from Geba, vntil thou comest vnto Gazer.

The vi. Chapter.

And Dauid gathered agayne all the yonge chosen men in Irael, euen thie thousande, and gat him vp, and wente with all the people that was with him of the kinnes of Iuda, to sech vp the Arke of God from thence: whose name is: The name of the LORDE Zebaoth dwelleth thereon berene the Cherubins. And they caught the arke of God to be caried vps a new cart, and fetched it out of the house of Abinadab, which dwelt at Gibea. Dauid and Abio the sonnes of Abinadab drewe it new cart. And whan they broughte it with the Arke from the house of Abinadab which dwelt at Gibea, Abio wente before the Arke: and Dauid and all the hoost of Irael played before the LORDE, with all manner of instrumentes of pincere, with harpes, and psalteries, and taborettes, and belles, and Cymbals.

And whan they came to the barnes floore of Naohon, Dauid stretched out his hande, and helde the Arke of God, for the omynde our ayde. Then wared the much of the LORDE strake agaynst Dauid, and God was with him there because of his presumption, so that he dyed there besyde the Arke of God. This was Dauid sory, because the LORDE had made such a rente vpon Dauid, and he callid the same place Pines Dauid vnto this daye. And Dauid feared the LORDE the same balis, and sayde: How shall the Arke of the LORDE come vnto me? And he wolde not let it be broughte to him in to the cite of Dauid, he caused it to be broughte in to the house of Obed Edom the Gachite. And whan the Arke of the LORDE had continued thie moneth in the house of Obed Edom the Gachite, the LORDE blessed him and all his hous.

And it was colde tynge Dauid, that the LORDE had blessed the house of Obed Edom and all that he had because of the Acts of God. Then wente he, and fetched up the Arke of God out of the house of Obed Edom in to the cite of Dauid with ioye. And whan they were gone fixe stappes in with the Arke of the LORDE, they offered an oxe with a shepe. And Dauid bannted to all his myght before the LORDE, and was girded with an overbody coce of lynn. And Dauid and all Irael broughte vp the Arke of the LORDE with taborettes and trom pettes.

And whan the Arke of the LORDE came in to the cite of Dauid, Michol the daughter of Saal looked out at a window, and saw tynge Dauid leapinge, spynginge and dauncing before the LORDE, and despyed han a hie hart. But whan they broughte in the Arke of the LORDE, they set it in her place in the myddes of the Tabernacle, which Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offered burnt offerynges and beed offerynges before the LORDE. And whan Dauid had made an oblation offeryng the burnt offerynges and beed offerynges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE Zebaoth, and dealt out vnto all the people, and to the multitude of Irael, both to man and woman, vnto every one a cubit of bred, and a peece of flesch, and a meece of pincere. Then wente all the people their waye, every one vnto his be use.

Whan Dauid came agayne to bless the house, Michol the daughter of Saal wente forth to meete him, and sayde: How glorious hath the tynge of Irael bene to daye, which hath covered himselfe before the mayn of his seruauours, like as the rascall people discover them selues. But Dauid saide vnto Michol: I wil playe before the LORDE, which hath chosen me a fore & father, and a fore all his house, because he hath commaunded me to be the kynge ouer the people of the LORDE, men ouer Israel, and yet wyl I be vnder them, and wyl be lowe in myne owne sight: and with the maydens wherof thou hast spoken, wyl I be honoured. As for Michol the daughter of Saul, she had no childe vnto the daye of hir death.

The vii. Chapter.

When the kynge sat in his house, and the LORDE had geuen him rest from all his enemies on euery syde, he sayde vnto the prophet Nathan: Dwelle, I dwell in the house of Cedar, and the Ark of God dwelleth amonge the curtaynes. Nathan sayde vnto the kynge: So thy wyfe, what so euer thou hast in thine hart, & desire the LORDE is wth the. But the same nyght came & wordes of the LORDE vnto Nathan: & sayde: So & speake to my seruante David: Thus sayeth & LORDE: Shalt thou build me an house to dwell in? I haue dwelle in no house since the daye that I broughte the children of Israel vnto this daye, but haue dwelt in the Tabernacle and habitation, whiche so euer I wente with the children of Israel. Why euer speake to eny of the tribes of Israel whom I commaunded to kepe my people of Israel? sayde: Wherfore do ye not build me an house of Cedar woode?

So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruante David: Thus sayeth the LORDE Zebooth: I toke thee from the pasture when thou wast behynde hyr shepe. & thou shalt best be & prince ouer my people of Israel, & haue bene wth the whicher so euer thou wast: & haue roced out all thine enemies before the, & haue made the a greate name, accordinge to the name of the greate men vpon earth. And for my people of Israel I wyl appoyne a place, and wyl plant them, that they maye remaine there, nomore to be removed, and & the chylde of wisdomne openeth them nomore, like as afore, and since the tyme that I ordeyned Judges ouer my people of Israel. And I wyl geue the rest from all thine enemies. And the LORDE stremeth the, that the LORDE wyl make the a house.

Now when & tyme is fulfilled & thou shalt stepe wth thy fathers, I wil after & saye vnto thy syde, whiche shall come of thy body: his kynge wyl I stablish, he shall build an house for my name, & I wyl stablish & state of his kynge dome for euer. . .

wyl be his father, and he shall be my sonne. When he doth a trespass, I wyl reprove him with the rodd of men and with the plaige of & chylde of men: But my mercy shall not be wth inuemen fro him, as I haue wth David fro Saul, whos I haue take awaye before the. As for & house & thy kynge dome, it shall be stablished for euer before the, & thy seate shall endure fast for euer more.

When Nathan had tolde all these wordes & all this vision vnto David, kynge Dauid came and sat him downe before the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE God, who am I? and what in my house, & thou hast brought me thus farre? This O LORDE God hast thou thoughte to litle also, but hast spoken of the house of thy seruante yet litle for to come. O LORDE God, is that the same of men?

And what shall David speake vnto the? thou knowest thy seruante O LORDE God, for thy wordes sake and accordinge to & hart hast thou done all these grete thynges, & thou mightest shewe the vnto thy seruante. Therfore art thou greatly magnified O LORDE God: for there is none like the, & there is no God but thou, accordinge vnto all that we haue heare of eares. For where is there a people vpon earth as thy people of Israel? For whose sake God wente to deliuer him a people, and to make him selfe a name, and to do them such grete and terrible thynges in thylde before y people, whom thou hast deliuered vnto thy selfe fro the gyfte, from the people, and from their goddes. And thy people of Israel hast thou prepared the to be a people vnto thine owne selfe for euer, and thou O LORDE art become their God.

Stablish now & worde therfore for euer O LORDE God: whiche thou hast spoke ouer thy seruante & ouer his house, & do accordinge as thou hast sayde. So shall thy name be grete for euer, so that it shall be sayde: The LORDE Zebooth is the God ouer Israel, & the house of thy seruante Dauid shall be made sure before the. For thou LORDE Zebooth, thou God of Israel hast opened the eare of thy seruante, and sayde: I wil builde the an house. Therfore hath & seruante founde his hart, to praye this praye vnto the. . . Now LORDE God thou thy selfe art God, & thy wordes shall be the truth. Thou shalt spoken such good ouer thy seruante. Begynne now therefore, and blisse & seruantes house, that it maye be before the for euer, for thou LORDE God thine awne selfe hast spoken: and

And it fortuned after this, that β kynge of the children of Ammon dyed, & his sonne Hanun was kynge in his steade. Then sayde Dauid: I will do mercy vpon Hanun the sonne of Laban, as his fa- ther dyd mercy vpon me. And so he sent, and comforted him by his seruantes ouer his se- thers death. Towr when Dauids seruantes came into the londe of the children of Am- mon, the myghty men of the children of Am- mon sayde vnto Hanun their lord: Why- test thou it is for the hono^r of β father in β sight, β Dauid hath sent comforters vnto thee: hath he not sent his seruantes vnto β (why test thou β spye and search out the ci- ty and to ouerthrow it?

B Then toke Hanun the seruantes of Da- uid, and shoue of the one halve of their beer- des, and cut of the halfe of their garmices euen by the girdell, and so let them go. Wh β this was tolde Dauid, he sent to meete them: for the men were put to greate shame. And the kynge caused to saye vnto them: Abye at Jericho, tyll youre beerdes be growne, & then come agayne.

When the childre of Ammon sawe that they shyned in the sighte of Dauid, they sent and hymed the Syrians of the house of Re- hob, and the Sirians at Zoba euen twentye thousande fore men, and from the kynge of Maacha a thousande men, and from Jstol- raulac thousande men. When Dauid her- ded that, he sent Joab with all the hoost of β myn of warre. And the children of Ammon receiue fecht, and prepared them selues to β battayll before the entrance of the gate. But the Sirians of Zoba, of Rehob, of Jilob and of Maacha were alone in the felde.

C Now when Joab sawe that the battayll was set vps him before and behynde, he cho- se of all the best yonge men in Jsrail, & pre- pared him selfe agaynst the Sirians. And the residue of the people put he vnder the hande of his brother Abisai, that he mighte prepare him agaynst the childre of Ammon. And sayde: If β Sirians be to mightie for me helpe them me: but if the children of Am- mon be to mightie for the, Jsrail helpe the. Take a good counsaile vnto the, and let vs be stronge for our people, and for β cite of our God: neuertheless the LORD do what pleaseth him.

And Joab made him forth with the peo- ple that was with him, to fighte agaynst the Sirians: and they fled before him. And when the children of Ammon sawe that the Sirians fled, they fled also before Abisai, & wente in to the cite. So Joab turned agay- ne from the children of Ammon, & came to Jerusalem. And when the Sirians sawe β they were smytten before Jsrail, they came together.

And Hadad Esfer sent & broughte out β Sirians beyonde the water, and came they their power in, & Sobach the cheif capta- yne of Hadad Esfer wente before the. When this was tolde Dauid, he gathered all Jsrail to gether, & wente ouer Jordan, and came to Helam, & the Sirians prepared them sel- ues agaynst Dauid to fighte with him, how- beit the Sirians fled before Jsrail. And Da- uid slew of the Sirians six hundred char- rettes, & foure thousande hoim^e, & Sobach the cheif captaigne smote he also, so that he dyed there. When the kynge which were vnder Hadad Esfer sawe, that they were smyt- ten before Jsrail, they made peace with Jsrail, and were subdued vnto them. And the Sirians were a frayed to helpe the childre of Ammon any more.

The XI. Chapter.

And when β yere came aboute what tyme as β kynge was to go forth, Da- uid sent Joab and his seruantes with him, and all Jsrail, to destroye the children of Ammon, and to laye siege vnto Rabbat: but Dauid abode at Jerusalem.

And aboute the entree it fortuned that Dauid arose from his restinge place, & wente vpo β coppe of the kynge's palace, and from β coppe he sawe a woman^e wasshin- ge hir selfe, and the woman was of a very saye bewyrt. And Dauid sent, and caused to aske what woman it was, and sayde: Is not that Bethsiba the daughter of Eliam the wif of Dina the hechite? And Dauid sent messagers, and caused for to fetch her. And wh β she was come in vnto him, he laye with her. Then theles she halowed hir selfe from that tyme on, and turned a gyfte vnto β house. And the womā was with childe, and sent, and caus'd to tell Dauid and to saye: I am with childe. Dauid sent vnto Joab saye ge: Send me Urias þe hechite. And Joab sent Urias vnto Dauid. And when Urias came to him, Dauid aske him yf it stode well with Joab, and with the people and with the battayll.

- B And Dauid sayde to Urias: Go downe in to thy house, and wash thy feet. And when Urias wente out of the kynges palace, the kynges gyste solomed him. And Urias layed him downe to slepe before the kynges palace gate, where all his lordes seruantes laye, & wente not downe in to his house. When mos be came to Dauid, Urias is not gone downe in to his house. Dauid sayde vnto him: Camest thou not ouer the syde? Why wentest thou not downe in to thy house? Urias sayde vnto Dauid: The Arke and Israel & Iuda abyde in the contee: And Joab my lorde and my lordes seruantes lye in þe feilde, and shal I go in to my house to eate and drynke, and to lye with my wyfe? As cruly as thou lyeest, and as cruly as thy soule lyeath, I wyll not do this thinge. Dauid sayde vnto Urias: Abyde here then to daye, tomorrow wil I let the go. So Urias abode at Jerusalem the same daye, and the nexte also. And Dauid called him to eate & drynke before him, & made him dronken. And at euen he wente to lye him downe for to slepe upon his couche with his lordes seruantes, and wente not downe in to his house.

- C On the morow wrote Dauid a letter vnto Joab, & sent it by Urias. After this maner receiue in the letter: See Urias in þe forrest parte of þe battayll, & turne vnto behynde him, & he maye be slayne. For whā Joab layed segeto the cite, he set Urias in þe place, where he knewe þe mightiest men of times were. And when the men of the cite fell out and foughte agaynst Joab, there fell certayne of þe people of Dauid's seruantes. And Urias the hechite dyed also.

Then sent Joab, and caus'd to call þe kyng all the matter concernyng the battayll, and commaunded the messaunger, and sayde: When thou hast tolde þe kyng all the matter concernyng the battayll, and seist that he is wroth, and yf the kyng saye vnto the: Wherefore came ye so nyne the cite with the battayll? A now ye not how they use to shute from the wall? Who smote Abimelech the sonne of Ierubaal? Dyd not a womā cast a peece of a myllstone vpo him from the wall, so that he dyed at Hebez? Why came ye so nyne the wall? Then shall thou saye: Thy seruante Urias the hechite is dead also.

The messaunger wente his waye, and came and tolde Dauid all together, wherupon Joab had sent him. And the messaunger seide vnto Dauid: The men prayed agaynst vs, and fill our vnto vs in to þe feilde, and were vpon them hard at the doie of þe puer. And the archers shote from the wall vpon thy seruantes, and slewe certayne of the kynges seruantes: and thy seruante Urias the hechite is dead also.

Dauid sayde vnto the messaunger: Thou shalt thou saye vnto Joab: Let not þe wrothe, for the swerde confirmeth now one man another. So saye with the battayll agaynst the cite, that thou mayest destroye, and disperse the men. And when Urias wast hath that Urias was dead, she moumed for her husbande. But when she had made an ende of mournyng, Dauid sent, and caus'd her be fetch'd vnto his palace, and he became his wyfe, and bare him a sonne. Wherthles this deede þe Dauid dyd, displeaseth the LORDE.

The XII. Chapter.

WHEN the LORDE sente Nathan vnto Dauid. When he came to him, he tolde him: There were two men in one cite, the one riche, the other poore. The riche man had very many shepe and oxen: but the poore man had nothinge save one litle shepe, which he had boughte, and nourish'd it, so that it grewe vp with him and his children together. It ate of his biere, and drinke of his cuppe, and slepe in his lappe, and he helde it as a daughter. But when thā came a straunger vnto the riche man, he desired to take of his awne shepe & oxen to prepare oughte for the straunger that was come vnto him) and tolde the poore mans shepe, and prepared it for the man that was come vnto him.

This was Dauid wroth with greuous pleasure agaynst that man, and sayde vnto Nathan: As cruly as the LORDE lyncheth the man that hath done this, is the childe of death. The shepe also shal hee eat foure folde, because he hath bene so charyge, and not spared it.

Then sayde Nathan vnto Dauid: Thou art euen the man. Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: I haue anoynted thee to be kyng ouer Israel, and dysturbed thee out of the hande of Saul, and hast built thee the þe lordes house, and his wyues in the lage, and the house of Israel and Iuda ha re I gaue the and yf that be to lide, I wyl ye do this and that for the alfo. Wherefore hast thou them despyed the woide of the LORDE, to do such euill in his sighte: Vias the cheyfe hast thou slayne with the swer de: his wyfe hast thou taken to bechy wyfe, but him hast thou slayne with þe swerde of the children of Ammon.

C For therefore shal noe þe swerde depart from thy house for ouer, because thou hast despyed me, and taken the wyfe of Vias the cheyfe, to bechy wyfe. Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde. I wyl raise vp euell of thyne awne house, and wyl take thy wyme before thyne eyes, and wyl geue them in to thy neyghboure, so that he shall lye with thy wyue by Some lighte. For thou hast done it secretly, but I wyl do this in the sighte of all Israel, and by Sonne lighte.

A Then sayde Dauid vnto Tachan. I haue sinned vnto the LORDE. Tachan sayde vnto Dauid: So hath the LORDE also taken away thy synne, thou shalt not dye.
But for so much as thou choost this dede hast caused the enemies of the LORDE to blaspheme, þe some that is done vnto the, shall dye the death. And Tachan wente home. As for the chyld which Vias wyfe bare vnto Dauid, the LORDE smooce it, so that it was dead sicke.

D And Dauid besoughte God for the childe, and fasted and weene in, and laie all night vpon the earth. Then rose the Elders of his house, and wolde haue taken him vp fro the grounde: neuertheless he wolde not, nether ac he w them. Upon the seuench daye þe chyld dyed. And Dauide seruantes durst not tell him that the chyld was dead. For they thoughte: Beholde, whan the chyld was yet al yue, we spake vnto him, and he her deid not vnto our voyce, how much more shall it greeue him, yf we saye: The chyld is dead: And Dauid saue that his seruantes made a whysperinge together, and perceaued that the chyld was dead, and sayde vnto his seruantes: Is the chyld dead?
They sayde: Yee. Then rose Dauid vp from the earth, and waashed him selfe, and anoynted him, and put on other garments, and wente in to the house of the LORDE, and worshipped.

E And whan he came agayne, he commaunded to set bedd before him, and ate. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: What maner of change is this that thou doest? Whan the childe was al yue, thou fastedst and weprest but now that it is dead, thou sittest vp and eatest: he sayde: I fasted and weprest for the chyld whan it was yet a lyue, for I thoughte: ee: Who knoweth, peraduenture the LORDE maye be gracious vnto me, that the chyld maye lyue. But now that it is dead, wherefore shulde I fast: Can I sech it agayne? I shal go vnto it, but it shall not come agayne vnto me. And whan Dauid had comforted Bethsaba his wyfe, he wente in vnto her, and laye with her. And she bare a sonne, whom he called Salomon. And the LORDE loued him. And he put him vnder the hyde of Tachan þe prophet, which called him Iedibia because of the LORDE.

So Joab foughte agaynst Rhaba of þe children of Ammon, and wanne the kynges cite, and sent messengers vnto Dauid, and caused to saye vnto him: I haue foughte agaynst Rhaba, and haue wonne the water cite also.
Gather thou therefore the residue of the people together, and laye sege to þe cite, and wymme it, that I wymme it not, and haue the name thereof. So Dauid gathered all þe people together, and wente, and foughte agaynst Rhaba, and wanne it, and cofe their kynges creme fro his heade, which in weighte had a talent: of golde, and precious stones) and was set vpon Dauide heade, and very much spoyle caried he out of the cite. As for the people that was therein, he broughte the fourth, and laye them vnder yon sawes and hookes and wedges of yon, and burned the in tye ouens. Thus dyd he vnto all the cities of the children of Ammon. Then returned Dauid and all the people vnto Jerusalem agayne.

The XIII. Chapter.

A Vnto it fortunad after this, that Abslem þe sonne of Dauid had a saye sister, whose name was Thamar, and Ammon the sonne of Dauid loued her. And Ammon was in greute cembraunce, in so much that he was euen sicke, because of Thamar his sister. Yn she was a virgin, and Ammon thoughte it shulde beharde for him to do eny thinge vnto her. But Ammon had a sise de, whose name was Jonadab the sonne of Simca Dauide broother, and the same Jon-adab was a very wyse man, which sayde vnto him: Why art thou so leane (thou kynges sonne) from daye to daye: What tell me?
Then sayde Ammon vnto him: I loue Thamar my broother Absaloms syster exceedingly.

Jonadab sayde vnto him: laye the dow-ne vpon thy bedd, and make the sise. And by ij

whan thy father cometh to loke how thou doest, saye vnto him: Oh let my sister Thamar come, that she maye sice me, and make a meece of meate before me, that I maye se it, & eate it of hir hande. So Ammon layed him downe, and made him sice. Now whā the kyng came in to loke how he byd, Ammon sayde vnto the kyng: Oh let my sister Thamar come, and make me a sypynge of tees, and that I maye eate it of hir hande. Then sent Dauid for Thamar in to the house, and sayde vnto her: Go thy waye to thy brother Ammons house, & make him a meece of meate. Thamar wente vnto hir brother Ammons house, but he laye in his bed. And she coke floure, and mixte it, and dighte it before his eyes, and made him a sypynge. And she coke the meece of meate, and poured it out before him: but he wolde not eate.

C And Ammon saide: Put forth euery man fro me. And euery man wete soth from him. Then sayde Ammon vnto Thamar: Dighte me that meece of meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate it of thy hande. Then coke Thamar ȝ sypynge that she had made, and broughte it vnto Ammon hir boeher in to the chamber.

And whan she broughte it vnto him ȝ he mighte eate, he coke holde of her, & sayde vnto her: Come my sister, lye with me. Teneertheles she saide: Oh no my boeher, for ce me not: for so do they not in Israel, do nor thou soch sily. Whiche shal I go with my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the wyse in Israel. But speake vnto the kyng, he shal not withholde me from the.

Gen. 14.2
Cui. 18.2
Howbeit he wolde not herken vnto her, and ouer came her, & forced her, and laye with her. And Ammon heard her exceddingly, so that the hate was greater than the loue was before. And Ammon sayde vnto her: Up, and get the hence.

She saide vnto him: This euell that thou hast left me out, is greater than the other, that thou hast done vnto me. Teneertheles he herkened not vnto her, but called his boye that serued him, and sayde: Put awaye this woman fro me, and locke the doore after her. And she had a partye garment on: for soch garments waye ȝ kynges, dough ters whyle they were virgins.

And whā his seruaut had put hir forth, & locke the doore after her, Thamar strowed ashes vpon hir heade, and rente the partye garment which she had vpon her, and layed hir hande vpon hir heade, and wente on, and cryed. And hir boeher Absalom sice vnto her: Hach thy boeher Ammon haue with the? Now holde thy peace my sister: for he is thy boeher, and take not the matter sober.

So Thamar remayned a wydbowme in boeher Absaloms house. And whan Dauid heard herde of all this, he was very sory. As for Absalom, he spake neither euill ne good to Ammon: but Absalom hated Ammon, because he had forced his sister Thamar.

After two yeares had Absalom shooe clyppers at Bethoron, which lye by Ephraim. And Absalom called all the kynges children, and came to the kyng, and sayde: Beholde, thy seruante hath shooe clyppers, let it please ȝ kyng with his seruante to go with his seruante. And the kyng sayde vnto Absalom: To my sonne, let us not all go, lest we be to chargeable vnto the.

And he wolde nedes haue had him to go, howbeit he wolde not, but blessed him. Absalom sayde: Shall my boeher Ammon go with vs then? The kyng sayde vnto him: Wherfore shall he go with the? Then was Absalom so importune vpon him, that he let Ammon and all the kynges childer go with him.

But Absalom commaunded his young men, and sayde: Take hede whan Ammon is mary with wyne (and ȝ saye vnto you Smyte Ammon, and slaye him) that ye be not a fraied: for I haue commaunded you, be stronge, and playe the men. So Absaloms yonge men byd vnto Ammon, as Absalom had commaunded them. Then stode all the kynges childer vp, and euery one gat him vp vnto his wall, and fled. And wher they were yet on their waye, the rounoure came to kyng Dauid, that Absalom had slayne all the kynges childer, so that not one of them was left.

Then stode the kyng vp, and rente his clothes, & layed him downe vpon the earth, and all his seruantes that stode aboute him, rente their clothes. Then answered Iudab ȝ sone of Simes Danides boeher, and sayde: Let not my lord thinke that all the yongemen the kynges childer are dead, but ȝ Ammon is deed onely: for Absalom hath kepte it in him selfe since the daie that he siced his sister Thamar. Therfore let not my lord the kyng take it so to hart, that all the kynges childer shalbe be deed, but that Ammon is deed onely.

The ii. booke of the kynges. The xiiii. Chap. Fo. xlii.

As for Absalom, he fled. And the yonge man that kepte the watch, lifte vp his eyes, and loked, and behelde, A greates people came in the waye one after another by the hill side. Then sayde Jonadab vnto the kyng: Beholde, the kynges children come. Euen as thy seruante sayde, so is it happened. And when he had ended his talkyng, the kynges children came, and lifte vp their voyce, and wepte.

The kyng and all his seruantes wepte also very sore. But Absalom fled, and wente into Thelmai the sonne of Ammihad kyng of Gesur. As for Dauid, he mourned for his sonne euery daye. When Absalom was fled and gone vnto Gesur, he was there three year. And kyng Dauid ceased from goynge out agaynst Absalom, for he had considered him selfe ouer Amnon that he was dead.

The XIII. Chapter.

Joab the sonne of Ieru Ia perceived that the kynges heart was agaynst Absalom, and sent vnto Thecoa, and caused to fetch from thence a prudent woman and saide vnto her: Take lamentacion, and weere mourninge garmente, and anoynt the nos with oyle: but saye thy selfe as a woman which hath mourned longe ouer a deed, and thou shalt go in to the kyng, and speake so so vnto him. And Joab tolde her what she shoulde saye.

And when the woman of Thecoa wolde speake with the kyng, she fell vpon his face to the grounde, and worshipped, and sayde helpe me O kyng. The kyng sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: I am a wedowe, a woman that mourneth, and my husbande is dead. And thy handmaide had two sonnes, which stroue together in the felde, and whiche of them was woman to parce the senter, the one smote the other, and slawe him.

And beholde, all the whole kynged rynged vp agaynst thy handmaiden, and saie: We lynch him which hath smyten his brother, that we maye kill him, for the soule of his brother whom he hath slayne, and that we maye defoyre the heire also. And thus are they mynded to pur our my sparke, which yet is left, that there shalbe no name nee any thinge do remayne ouer vnto my husbande vpon earth.

The kyng sayde vnto the woman: Go y waye home, I wil geue a commaundement for y. And the woman of Thecoa saide vnto y kyng: The respace be vpon me my lord: y kyng and vpon my fathers house: but the kyng and his seate be in gilt ye. The kyng sayde: he that speaketh agaynst the, bringe him vnto me, so shall he touch the nomour. She sayde: Let the kynge thynke vpon the LORD his God, that there be not to many auengers of bloude to destroye, and that they bringe not my sonne to nauyge. He sayde: As truly as the LORD Elyah, there shall not one brer of thy sonne fall vpon the earth. And the woman sayde: Let thy handmaide speake somewhat to my lord: the kyng. He sayde: speake on. The woman sayde: Wherefore hast thou deuised such a thinge agaynst the people of God? And how happeneth it that the kyng speaketh soch, to make himselfe guiltye, and causeth not his owne soule to be broughte agayne? For we all dye the death, and as the water that runneth in to the earth, which is not taken vp. And God will not take awaye the lyfe, but will be thynketh himselfe, y euen the very oulmes be not cleane: thrust out from him.

Thus am I come also to speake this to my lord: the kyng in the presence of the people, for thy handmaiden thoughte: I will speake to the kyng, peraduenture he shall do that his handmaiden saith, for he shall heare his handmaiden, to deliuer me from the hande of all them, that wolde destroye me with my sonne from the inheritance of God. And thy handmaiden thoughte, y worde of my lord: the kyng shall be as a meat offeringe: for my lord: the kyng is as an angell of God, so that he can heare good and euill, therefore shall the LORD the God be with the.

The kyng answered and sayde vnto the woman: Take nothyng from me that I ate the. The woman sayde: Let my lord: the kyng speake on. The kyng sayde: Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this? The woman answered and sayde: As truly as thy soule lyueth (my lord O kyng), there is also nomour neether at the righte hande ner at y lefte, but such as my LORD: the kyng hath sayde, for thy seruante Joab hath commaunded me, and he himselfe hath caughte thy handmaiden all these wordes, that I shoulde curie this matter of his sufferis, this hath Joab thy seruante done. But my lord: is wysse, as the wysdome of an angell of God, so that he knoweth all thynges vpon earth.

Then sayde the kyng vnto Joab: Beholde, I haue done this: go thy waye: the-fore and byng the child Absalom agayne. Then fell Joab upon his face vnto the ground, and worshipped, and thanked the kyng, and sayde: This daye doth thy seruants perceiue, that I haue founde grace in thy sighte my lord the kyng, in that the kyng doth as his seruant hath sayde. So Joab gat him vp, and wente vnto Gedor, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. But the kyng sayde: Let him go againe in to his house, and not se my face. Thus Absalom came agayne to his house, and sawe not the kyngs face.

Now in all Irael there was not so fayre, and so maruallous goodly a man, as Absalom. From the sole of his foote vnto the coppe of his heade there was not one blemish in him. And when his heade was rounde (that was comonly everye year, for it was to heny for him, so that it must nedes haue bene rounde) the hair of his heade weighed two hundred Sicles after the kynges weight. And vnto Absalom there were borne thre sonnes and one daughter, whose name was Chamar, and she was a woman of a fayre beauty: So Absalom abode two yeares at Jerusalem, and sawe not the kynges face.

And Absalom sent for Joab, that he might sende him to the kyng. And he wolde not come to him. But he sent the seuerall tyme, yet wolde he not come. Then sayde he vnto his seruantes: Ye knowe Joabs pecc of londe that lyeth by myne, and he hath barlye thereon: go yente waye therfor, and set fyre vpon it. So Absaloms seruantes set fyre vpon Joabs pecc of londe.

Then Joab gat him vp, and came to Absalom in to the house, and sayde vnto him: Wherefore haue thy seruantes set fyre vpon my pecc of londe: Absalom sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, I sene for the, and caused to saye vnto the: Come hithe, that I maye sende the to the kyng, and to saye: Wherefore came I from Gedor? It were better for me that I were there yet. Let me therfore se the kynges face. But yf there be anye crevice in me, then put me to deathe. And Joab wente in to the kyng, and tolde him. And he called Absalom, to come in to the kyng, and he worshipped vpon his face to the ground before the kyng. And the kyng kysed Absalom.

The XV. Chapter.

After this it fornamed that Absalom caused to prepare himselfe deare tes and horses, and fiftye men, which were his foremen. And Absalom gat him vp alwaye early in the morninge, and sit vnto the waye by the porte: and when any man had a matter which shalde come to the kyng for iudgement, Absalom called vnto him and sayde: Of what case art thou? If he sayde that thy seruant is of one of the trybes of Irael, then sayde Absalom vnto him: Doubt not, thy matter is righte and plaine: but then is no man appointed of the kyng to iudge the.

And Absalom sayde: O who seeth me to be iudged in Ionde, that euery man which hath a pecc or matter to do in Ioua, might come to me, that I might helpe him to righte. And when any man came to him to be iudged, he put his hande vnto his cheeke, and he put his hande vnto his eye, and he helde him to kysse him. Thus in this maner dyd Absalom vnto all Irael: when they came to the lawe vnto the kyng, and so byd he steale awaye the heart of the men of Irael.

After fortye yeares sayde Absalom vnto the kyng: I will go and persewemyne waye at Ghebon, which I made vnto the LORDE. For thy seruant made a votue, when I dwelt at Gedor in Siria, and said: When the LORDE byngeth me agayne to Jerusalem, I shal do a Gods seruice vnto the LORDE. The kyng sayde vnto him: So thy votue is peace. And he gat him vp, and wente into Ghebon.

But Absalom had sent out spies in all the trybes of Irael, sayng: When ye here the noyse of the trompe, saye: Absalom is made kyng at Ghebon. There wente with Absalom two hundred men called from Jerusalem, but they wente on slyly, and knewe not of the matter. Absalom sent all for Achitophel (the Silonye) Davids counsellor, one of his cite Elders. Now when he dyd the sacrifice, the conspiracion was made, and the people ranne together, and multiplied with Absalom.

Then came one which tolde Dauid, and sayde, that the hert of euery man in Iudah followed Absalom. Dauid sayde vnto all his seruantes that were with him at Jerusalem: Op, let vs fle, for here shall be no dwellinge for vs before Absalom.

Make haist that we maye be goinge, lest he overtake vs and catch vs, and byng us by the myffiture vpon vs, and smyte the eye with the edge of the swerde. Then sayde the kynges seruantes vnto him: Lete what my LORDE ys sayng: for we are here.

thy seruantes. And the kyng wente forth on foot wth all his householdes. But ten countenaynes lefte he to kepe the house.

And whan the kyng and all the people come south on foot, they wote farre from home, and all his seruantes wente by him, and all the Chuzians and Plesbians, and all the Gethuzes (euen six hundred men) which were come on foot from Gath, wente before the kyng.

And the kyng sayde vnto Jehai & Gethuz: Why goest thou also with vs? Turne backe, and byde with the kyng, for thou art a stranger: gett the hence agayne vnto thy place. For canestt yester daye, and to daye thou inperdest to go with vs? So for me, I wyl go whiche I can: wote thou backe agayne, and mercy and faith shal happen vnto thy brethren with the. Jehai answered, and sayde: As truly as the LORD liueth, and as truly as my lord the kyng liueth, I lye in what place my lord the kyng shalbe, (whether it chaunce to life or death) there shal thy seruante be also.

Dauid sayde vnto Jehai: Then come, and go with vs. So wente Jehai the Gethuzite and all his men, and the whole multitude of the children that were with him. And all the lorde wepte with lorde to see, and all the people with them. And the kyng wente ouer the brode Cedron, and all the people wente euer by the waye that goeth to the wilderness.

And beholde, Sadoe was there also, and all the L. comes that were with them, & they bare y^e Arke of the couenant of God, and set it there. And Abiathar wente vp, tyll all the people came out of the cite. But the kyng sayde vnto Sadoe: Brynge the Arke of God in to the cite agayne. If I shal fynde grace before the LORD, he shall stretche agayne, and shall let me sit, and the house of it. But if he saye thus: I haue no pleasure in y^e, beholde, here am I, let him do with me as it pleaseth him.

And the kyng saide vnto Sadoe y^e priest: O then, Ser, turne a gayne to y^e cite with peace, and Abimaoe chy some with the, and Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar: beholde, I wyl tary in the playne of the wilderness, tyll the message come from you, and tell me. So Sadoe and Abiathar broughe the Arke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and remaine there.

But Dauid wente up to mounte Olyuete and wepte, & his heade was covered. And all the people that was with him, had euryman his heade covered and wente on and wepte. And whan it was tolde Dauid, that Achiochel was in the chibbera cy with Absalom, he sayde: LORD, turne thou Achiochels counsell to foolishnes.

And whan Dauid came up to the toppes of the mount, where the vnt was to worshippe God, Chusai the Aradite met him with his cote rent, and earth upon his heade. And Dauid sayde vnto him: If thou go with me, thou shal be charged vnto me: but if thou goest a gayne in to the cite, and sayest vnto Absalom: I am thy seruante, O kyng, euen as I was thy fathers seruante, so wyl I now be thy seruante. Then shal thou brynge Achiochels counsell to naughte. So to Sadoe and Abiathar y^e prestes with the, and all that thou hearest out of the kynges house, tell it vnto Sadoe and Abiathar the prestes. Beholde, their two sonnes are with the: Abimaoe the sonne of Sadoe, and Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar, by them mayest thou fynde me worde what thou hearest. So Chusai Dauids frende, came in to the cite. And Absalom came to Jerusalem.

The XVI. Chapter.

And whan Dauid was gone a tyele by from the coppe of the mount, beholde, Sibn the seruante of Mephiboseth met him with a couple of asses laden, wher on were two hundred loaves of bred, and an hundred quantites of raisins and an hundred quantites of figges, and a beerdell of wyne. Then sayde the kyng vnto Sibn: What wilt thou do here with? Sibn sayde: The asses shalbe for the kynges householdes to ryde vpon, and the loaves and figges for the yongemen to eat, and the wyne shalbe for them to drynke whan they are weary in the wilderness. The kyng sayde: Where is thy lorde some? Sibn sayde vnto the kyng: Beholde, he abydeth at Jerusalem, for he saide: To daye shal y^e house of Israel restore my fathers bigdome vnto me. The kyng saide vnto Sibn: Beholde, all the Mephiboseths bath shalbe thine. Sibn sayde with reuerence, Let me fynde grace in chy sighte my lord. O kyng.

But whan kyng Dauid came to Bahurim, beholde, there wente out a man of the kyng of the house of Gad, whose name was Senni the sonne of Gera, which wente forth and cursed, and cast stones at Dauid, and at all kyng Dauids seruantes, and all the people and all the mighty men men were at his righte hande and at his lefte. Lhmo sayde Semai whan he curst: Get the south, get the south thou bloody hounde, thou man of Belial. The LORDE hath rewarded the for all the bloude of the house of Saul, & thou becamest kyng in his steade. Lhmo hath the LORDE given the kyngdome into y handes of Absalom thy forme, and beholde, now stickest thou in thine owne mythe, for thou art a bloody hounde.

But Absai the sonne of Jeru Ja sayde unto the kyng: Shall this dreg dogg curse my soule the kyng: J will go and take the head away from him. The kyng saide: Ye children of Jeru Ja, what haue I to do wth you: Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: Curse David. Who can saye now: Why doest thou so?

C And David sayde unto Absai and to all his seruantes: Beholde, my sonne which came of my body, seeketh after my life, how much more now the sonne of Jimint: Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: peraduenture the LORDE shall confounde my aduersarye, and recompence me good for his cursing this daye. So David wente on his waye with his men. But Semai wente on by the mount besyde him, and curst, and cast stones at him, & thierw clothes of earch.

The xvij. Chapter.

A Lhmo Achitophel sayde unto Absalom: I will chuse our twolue thousand men and will get me up, and persue David by nighte, and fall vpon him whan he is fat and weery: When I were him the, so that the people which is by him, flieth, I will take the kyng onely, and bynne all the people unto the agayne. So whan euery man broughte unto the as thou desirest, shall all the people be in peace. Absalom thought that good, and so byd all the elders in Israel. But Absalom sayde: J praiue you of Chusai the Archite also, and let us heare what he sayeth thereto. And wha Chusai me in to Absalom, Absalom saide unto him: Thus hath Achitophel spoken, saye thou now, shal we do it or no?

Then sayde Chusai unto Absalom: Je no good counsell y Achitophel hath giuen at this tyme. And Chusai sayde more: Thou knowest thy father well and his men, that they are stronge and of a worthfull mad, cawen as a Deer that is robbed of his yonge ones in the felde. Thy father alius a man of warre, and wyl not be negligent wth the people. Beholde, he hath now peraduenture hyd himselfe in some caue or in some place. If it camet o^r passe then that it chaunceth eall at the first, & there shulde come a rasi and saye: There is a slaughter done in the people that foloweth Absalom: this shalde our man be discouraged, which els is valiant: haeth a hert like a lyon: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is stronge, and that all they which be with him, are mightie men.

But this is my counsell, that thou gather together all Israel from Dan unto Bethis (is nombis as the sonde of the See, and yth thou thine owne person amonge them, thou wilt we fall vpon him in what place we find him, and wyl ouerwhelme him euen as the deu falleth vpon the earth, so that we shal not leane one of him and of all his men. But yf he resorte in to a cite, then shall all Israel cast roopes aboute the same cite, and drawe it in to the river, so that there shal not one of us be sounde.

Then sayde Absalom and euery man in Israel: The counsell of Chusai the Archite hence then Achitophels counsell.

¶ And the LORDE broughte it fore pass-sage þy good counsell of Achitophel was hynned, that the LORDE myghte bringe red upon Absalom.

¶ And Absai sayde vnto Sadoe & Abi-shar the passers: Thus and thus hath Ach-itophel counceiled Absalom and the Elders in Israel: but so and so haue I counceiled.
Sende now therfore in all the hast, and tell Dauid, and saye: Abye not all myghte in the playne fildes of the wyldernes, but get the owt, that the kyng be not swalowed vp, and all the people that is with him. As for Jonathas and Ahimaas, they stode by the well of Rogel, and a damsell wente thither and tolde them: They wene on their waye, and tolde the kyng Dauid, for they durst not be sene come into the cite.

¶ But as lad sawe them, and tolde Absalom.
Flaunted he they wene on their waye, and came to a mans house at Bahurim, which had a well in his court, and they wete downe in it. And the woman toke and spred a coveringe ouer the welles mouth, & strewed fenice come thereon, that it was not perceiued. Now when Absaloms seruantes came to the woman in to the house, they say where is Ahimaas and Jonathas: The woman sayde vnto them: They are gone ouer the litle water.

¶ And whā they soughte and founde them not, they wente agayne to Jerusalem. And when they were gone, they clymmed vp out of the well, and wente their waye, and tolde Dauid þy kyng, and sayde vnto Dauid: See you vp, and go soone ouer þy water, for thus and thus hath Achitophel gotten counsell agaynst you.

¶ Then Dauid gat him vp, and all the people that was with him, and passid ouer Jordane: and there was cleare moonyng. And there was no one, but he wente ouer Jordane.

¶ When Achitophel sawe that his counsell wente not forþ, he sabled his asse, gat him vp, and wete honic in to his cite and put his house to pyrre, and hanged him self, and died, and was buried in his fathers grave.

¶ And Dauid came to Mahanaim, and Absalom wente ouer Jordane, & all the men of Israel w him. And Absalom had set Amasa ouer the heef in Joubes streete. Amasa was the sonne of a man, whose name was Ithra a Israhelite, which laye with Abigail the daughter of Nabal the sister of Zera Ja Joubes mocher. But Israel and Abi-sai pitched in Gilead.

¶ When Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Nabal of Rabbath of the childre of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Ammiel of Lodebar, and Barisai a Gileadite of Bo-glum broughte besyffesse, capestrie woche, basins, earthen vessel, wheat, barley, meal, parched corne, beemes, oremell, rye, hony, butter, cheese, and sic open vnto Dauid, and to þy people that was with him, for to eat: for they thought, The people shall be hongry, weerys and thiryste in the wyldernes.

The xviii. Chapter.

¶ And Dauid mustred the people þy was with him, and six captaynes ouer the, ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes.
¶ And sent out of the people one thirde parte vnder Absai the sonne of Zerui Ja Joubes brother, and one thirde parte vnder Jehoi-adab the Gethite. And the kyng sayde vnto the people: I wyl go forth with you also. Cle-uerthales the people sayde: Thou shalt not go forth, for though we see, or die halfe of vs they shall not regarde vs. For they are as ten thousandes of vs. Therfore is this better that thou mayest helpe vs out of the cite.
The kyng sayde: Lete what ye are content withall, that wyl I do. And the kyng stode in the gace, and all the people wente forth by hundredes and by thousandes. And þy king commaunded Joab and Absai, and Jehoi-adab, and sayde: Inreate me the yonge man Absalom gently. And all the people herde it, whā the kyng commaunded all the capetaynes concernyng Absalom. And when the people were come forth in to the fildes agaynst Jerusalem, the battayll beganne in the wood of Jephaim. And the people of Israel were smitten there before Dauides seruantes, so that there was a greates slayghter the same daye, of twenty thousande men. And the battayll was scatterd abode there in the londe. And the wood consumed moche more people the same daye, then the swerde consumed.

¶ And Absalom met Dauides seruantes, and rode vpon a Mule. And when the Mule came vnder a greates thicket of Oke tre, his heade toke halde on the Oke, and so hanged he betwene heauen and earth, but the Mule ranne awaye from vnder him. When a cer-tayne man sawe that, he tolde Joab, and sal-de: Beholde, I sawe Absalom hange vpon an Oke tre. And Joab saide vnto the mā þy tolde it him: Beholde, sawest thou that, why smocest thou him not there to the grounde so woolde I haue geuen thee of myne awne behalf ten sylanzynges and a gyddell.

C The man sayde vnto Joab: If thou haddest weyed me a thousande syluer kynges in my handes, yet wolde I nor haue layed my handes on the kynges somme. For the kyng commanded the and Absai and Jehai before oure eares, and sayde: Receiue the yonge man Absalom. O yf I had dyssembled vpon the openy of myn owne soule (for so much as nothing shulde be hyd from y kyng) thou thy self shuldest haue stode agaynst me. Joab sayde: Not so, I wil vpon him be fore thy face.

Then toke Joab the speare in his hande, and thrust Absalom thorow y here, while he was yet alyue vpon the Oke. And ten yonge men Joabs were peniters, came abate him, and smete him to death. Then blew Joab the tromps, and brought the people agayne, that they shulde followe no more vpon Irael. For Joab wolde fauoure the people. And they toke Absalom, and cast him in the wod in to a greete pyre, and layed a greete heape of stoncs vpon him. And all Irael fled, eury one vnto his tence.

D Absalom had set him vp a piler whyle he was yet alyue, which stode in the kynges valley, for he sayde: I haue no somme, therfore shall this be a remembrance of my name: and he called the piler after his owne name. And vnto this daie it is yet called Absaloms place.

Ahimaas the sonne of Saboc sayde: Let me runne now, and bynge the kynges worde, that the LORDE hath gotten him righte fro the hande of his enemies. But Joab sayde: Thou shalt bynge no good rynges to daie another daye: shalt thou bynge him worde, and not to daie, for the kynges sonne is dead. But vnto Chusi sayde Joab: Go thou thy waye, and tell the kyng what thou hast sente. And Chusi doo his obeyssaunce vnto Joab, and came. Ahimaas the sonne of Saboc sayde agayne vnto Joab: What and I ranne also? Joab sayde: What wilt thou runne my sonne: Come hithe, thou shalt bynge no good rynges. (He answered:) What and I ranne yet. He sayde vnto him: Come on thy waye then. So Ahimaas ranne the straight waye, and came before Chusi.

As for Dauid, he sat betwene the two wytes. And the watchman wente vnto y wyte of the poire vpon the wall, and lyste by his eye, and sawe a man rennyng alone, and cryed, and tolde the kyng. The kyng sayde: If he be alone, then is there good tyngs in his mouth. And as the same wente and came forth, the watchman sawe another man rennyng, and cryed in the poire and sayde: Beholde, there renneth a man alone. The kyng sayde: The same is a good messenger: so. The watchman sayde: I se the rennyng of the first as it were the rennyng of Ahimaas the sonne of Saboc. And the kyng sayde: He is a good man, and byngeth good rynges. Ahimaas cryed, and sayde vnto y kyng: Peace, and woshipp be fore the kyng vpon his face to the grounde, and saye: Praised be the LORDE thy God, which hath geuen ouer y men that lyste vpon their handes agaynst my LORDE the kyng.

The kyng sayde: Goeth it well with y yonge man Absalom? Ahimaas sayde: I sawe a greete vponwe, when Joab the kynges seruaunt sente me thy seruaunt, and I wote not what it was. The kyng sayde: Go to bourc, and stonde here. And he wente abow and stode there. Beholde, then came Chusi and sayde: I bynge good rynges my lord the kyng: The LORDE hath executed righte for the this daye, from the hande of all that that rose vp agaynst the. But the kyng sayde vnto Chusi: Goeth it well with the yonge man Absalom? Chusi sayde: Euen so go it doo all the enemyes of my lord the kyng, and with all them that rise vp agaynst the: wot enell, as it goeth with the yonge man. That was the kyng forousfull, and wente vp into the perler vpon the gate, and wepte, and as he wente, he sayde thus: O my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God y I shulde dye for the. O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

The XIX. Chapter.

AND it was tolde Joab: beholde, he sayde wepeth & mourneth for Absalom. And so ent of y victory of y daye: there came a mourninge amonge all the people. For the people had herde the same daye, y the kyng toke on heuily because of his sonne. And y people stode a waye the same waye, so that they came not in to the cite: as a people that is put to shame, pyeth them self was away, when they are fled in a battayll. So for the kyng, he had covered his face, and cryed loud, and sayde: Oh my sonne Absalom, Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

But Joab came to the kyng in to the house, and sayde: This daye hast thou shamed all thy seruantes (which haue belyued thy sale this daye, and the soles of thy fynn, of thy doughers, of thy wyues, and of thy cōsnynges) in that thou lovest them that hate the, and hast those that love y. for to daye thou shewest thyselfe, that thou canst not for the captaynes and seruantes. In y perceave this daye, that yf Absalom and y were alure, and we all deed this daye, thou wouldest thynk it were well.

B He the up now therefore, and go south, and speake longly vnto thy seruantes. In ysware vnto thee by y LORD, yf thou go not south, then shall not be lesse the one man this nyght: this shalbe worse vnto y, than all the euill that happened the sence y went up hither to. The kyng gat him vp, and las in the gaue. And it was sayde vnto the people: beholde, the kyng syteth in the gaue. Then came all the people before y kyng. But y Israel was fled euery one vnto his tent.

And all the people stroue in all the trybes of y Israel, and sayde: The kyng ryd vo from the hande of some enemies, and delyured vo from the hande of the Philistynes, and was faine to sic one of thee doe for Absalom. So Absalom whom we had annoynd ouer vo, is dead in the battayll. Why are ye so styll now: that ye sech not the kyng agayne?

C The kyng tunc vnto Gadoc & Adiachar the prestes, & caused to saye vnto the: Speake to the Elders of yuda, & saye: Why wyl ye be the last to sech the kyng agayne vnto his house? (for y sayenge of all y Israel was came before the kyng in to his house) ye are my brethren, my bone, and my flesch. Wherefo wyl ye then be the last to bryng the kyng agayne? And saye vnto Amasa: Art not thou my bone and my flesch? God do this & that vnto me, yf thou shalt not be the chiefe captayne before me in Joaba steade, as long as thou lyest.

And he bowed the here of all the men of yuda as of one man. And they sent vnto y kyng: Come agayne, thou and all thy seruantes: So the kyng came agayne. And when he came vnto Jordan, y men of yuda were come to Gilgal, for to go downe to meet the kyng, that they mighte bryng y kyng ouer Jordan. And Semai the sonne of Gea the sonne of Termini, which dwelt at Bahurim, made halfe, and it was downe with y men of yuda to meete kyng Dauid, and there were with him a thousande me of Ben Jamix. Sibba also the seruante of the house of Saul with his systere sonnes and twenty seruantes, & gat them throug Jordan and passed ouer y ferry, that they mighte bryng ouer the kyngs housholde, and to do him pleasure.

But Semai the sonne of Gea fell downe before the kyng, when he passed ouer Jordan, and sayde vnto the kyng: O my loide, laye not the trespace vnto my charge, & thynke not: upon it that thy seruantes wyted the, in the daye when my loide the kyng wente out of y Jerusalem: and let not y kyng take it to hart, for thy seruante knoweth that he hath synned. And beholde, this daye am y come the first amonge all the house of y Joseph, for to go downe to meete my loide the kyng.

Isaiah the sonne of Seru Jaanierod and sayde: And shulde not Semai the sonne of Gea sayde: he hath cursid y annoynd of y LORD: But Dauid sayde: What haue y to do with you ye children of Bern: Jo, that ye wyl become Sathan vnto me this daye: Shulde any man dye this daye in y Israel: Thynk thou that y knowe not, y I am become kyng ouer y Israel this daye: And y kyng sayde vnto Simei: Thou shalt not dye: And the kyng swore vnto him.

Mephobesech the sonne of Han came downe also to meete the kyng. And he had not made cleane his feete nor docthe his beard, neither had he washed his clothes from the daye that the kyng was gone awaye, vntill the daye that he came agayne in peace. Now wha he came to y Jerusalem for to meete the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: Mephobesech, wherfore wentest thou not with me: And he sayde: My loide O kyng, my seruante hath dealede vnrighteously with me: for thy seruante thoughte: I wyl sell an ass and y ride thereon, and go vnto the kyng: for thy seruante is lame, and he hath cursid thy seruante before my loide y kyng.

But my loide y kyng: is an angell of God, and thou mayest do what pleaseth the. For all my fathers house was nothinge, but people of death before my loide y kyng. And yett hast thou set thy seruante amonge them that eate at y table. What other righteousnes haue y, that y shulde crye any moue vnto the kyng: The kyng sayde vnto him: What speakest thou yett more of thy matter: I haue sayde: Then and Sida parte the londe betwene you. Micphibosech sayde vnto the kyng: Let him take it all, in as much as my lord: & the kyng is come home in peace.

S And Basillai the Gileadite came to him from Regim, and brought the kyng ouer Iordane, that he mighte chace him in Iordane. And Basillai was very olde, so good as foure score yeare olde, the same had p' uoyd of kyng of sode whyle he was at Mahanaim, for he was a very noble man. And the kyng sayde vnto Basillai: Thou shalt go ouer with me, I will take care for the whymme a wne selfe at Jerusalem. But Basillai sayde vnto the kyng: What haue I yet to lye, that I shoulde go vp to Jerusalem w' the kyng? This daye am I foure score yeare olde. How shoulde I knowe what is good or euill, or what I eate or drynke, or heare vnto the Musicians do synge: Why shoulde thy seruante be chargeable first vnto my lord the kyng? thy seruante shall go a litle with the kyng ouer Iordane. Why wil the kyng recompence me after this maner? Let thy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye bye in my cite besyde my father and my mothers grave. Beholde, there is thy seruante Chimeam, let him go ouer with my lord the kyng, and do vnto him what pleaseth the.

C The kyng sayde: Chimeam shall go ouer with me, and I will do for him what liketh the: and what so euer thou desirest of me, that will I do for the also. And when all the people was gone ouer Iordane and the kyng lykewyl, the kyng kysed Basillai and blessed him, and he turned vnto his place. And the kyng passed ouer vnto Gilgal, and Chimeam wente with him. And all the people of Iuda brought the kyng ouer, howbeit there was but halfe of the people of Israel there.

And beholde, the came all the men of Israel vnto the kyng, & sayde vnto him: Why haue our brethren the men of Iuda stolen the awaye, and haue conueyed the kyng and his household ouer Iordane, and all Davids men with him? Then answered they of Iuda vnto them of Israel: The kyng is of our nye kynde, why are ye angrie therfor? Why wil ye that we haue receaued any sode or giftes of the kyng? Then answered they of Israel vnto them of Iuda, & sayde: We haue ten tymes more with the kyng and with David, then thou, why hast thou regarded me then so lightly, that oures were not the first to seche our kyng agayne? But they of Iuda spake harder then they of Israel.

The XX. Chapter.

There was a famous man of Belai there, whose name was Seba the sonne of Dichu, a ma of Iemim, whych biuere the trompe, and sayde: We haue a poision in David, net in beritanace in the name of Israel: let every man hit his ax, & Israel. Then fell eury man in flight from David, and folowed Seba the sonne of Dichu. But the men of Iuda cleued vnto the kyng from Iordane vnto Jerusalem. When David came home to Jerusalem, he toke the ten concubynes, whom he had lefte to the house, and put them in a holde to be kept, and made p'ouision for them: but he lay not with them, and so were they flate vnto their death, and layed w' them.

And the kyng sayde vnto Amasa: Call in all the men of Iuda together before me this daye, & be thou here p'sente also. But Amasa wote to call Iuda together. And he was slacke to come at the tyme whych he had appointed him. And David sayde vnto Absai: How shall Seba the sonne of Dichu do more harme then Absalom. Let the sword leide vs seruantes, and folowe vpon him, he synde not some stryde cities for him, and so scape out of oure sight. Then wente Iaba me forth after him, and the Cherethians and Plethians, and all the mighty men: at they wote out of Jerusalem to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Dichu.

But when they were by the greete flint at Gibeon, Amasa came before them. And Joab, he was gyrded aboue his garment which he had on, and vpon it he had a sherd be gyrded, which hangd by his the with sheath, and wente easly out and in, and hit vs him. And Joab sayde vnto Amasa: Peace be with the my brother. And Joab hit Amasa by the beerde with his right hand, and kysed him. And Amasa wote not he had the sword in Joabs hand, and he thrust the sword in to the hely, & his bowels came out vpon the earth, and he thrust at him more. And so he dyed.

Joab & his brother Absai folowed vpon Seba the sonne of Dichu. And one of Joabs seruantes sode by him, and sayde: What is he this the wolde be agaynst Joab to Iuda David, and to be with David in Iuda? He saide: As for Amasa, he laye reld with bloude in the myddes of the street. And one sawe that all the people sode about, he remoued Amasa from the street with side, and cast a clothe vpon him, for so moch as he saue, that who so euer came by him, so he wyl. Now when he was put out of the way, euery man wote after Joab, to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Achis.

And he wote thow all þe trybes of Israel vnto Abel Beth Maacha, and all the best choyse men gathered them selues together, & folowed after him, and came and beset him at Abel Beth Maacha, and made a bank adoune to cire harde on þe wall. And all the people that was with Joab, layed to their ordynance, and woude haue cast downe the wall.

Then cryed there a wyse womā out of þe cite heere, heere, saie vnto Joab that he come heere. I wyl speake with him. And whā he came heer, the woman sayde: Art thou Joab: he sayde: Yee. She sayde vnto him: heere the wordes of thy handmayden. He sayde: I heere. She sayde: The comon sayen geuen som tyme: Who so wyl are, let him geue a Abel, and so came it to a good ende.

¶ This is þe noble and faithfull cite in Israel, and wyl thow destroye the cite and the mother in Israel: Why wylt thou swallowe vp the inheritance of the LORDE?

Joab answered and sayde: That be farre, that be farre frome, that I shulde swallowe vp and destroye. The matter is not so, but a certeyne man of moure Ephraim named Seba the sonne of Achis, hath lifte vp his fist agaynst þyng Dauid, deliuer him one hand I wyl departe from the cite. The woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heade shal be cast vnto the ouer the wall. And the woman came in to all the people with hir myddone. And they smote of the heade of Seba the sonne of Achis, and cast it vnto Joab. Then blew he the cympe, and they departed from the cite, euery one vnto his tent. But Joab came agayne to Jerusalem into the kyng.

¶ Joab was captayne ouer all the hoost of Israel: Benaiā þe sonne of Joiada was ouer the Cherethians and Pleschians: Abotam was rent gatherer: Josaphat the sonne of Achis was Chanceler: Seia was the scribe: Sadoc and Abiathar were the priests. It is also þe Jaicite was Dauides priest.

The XXI. Chapter.

¶ There was a verch also in Dauides tyme the yeres together. And Dauid soughte the face of þe LORDE. And the LORDE sayde: Because of Saul and because of the blowy householde þe flewe the Gibeonites. Then the kyng caused fou to call the Gibeonites, and spake vnto them. (As for the Gibeonites, they were not of þe children of Israel, but a remnant of the Amorites: howbeit the children of Israel had smoute vnto the, and Saul soughte for to smyte them in his gelouy, for the childre of Israel and Juda.) Then sayde Dauid to the Gibeonites: What shal I do vnto you? And wherewithal shal I make the attonement, that ye maye blesse þe inheritance of þe LORDE: The Gibeonites sayde vnto him: It is not for golde and syluer that we haue to do wth Saul and his house, necher haue we oughte to do for to slaye any mā in Israel.

¶ He sayde: What saie ye then, that I shal do vnto you: They sayde vnto þe kyng: The man that hath destroyed vs and broughte vs to noughte, shulde we destroye, that nothinge be left him in all the coastes of Israel. Let there be geuen vs seven men of þe sonnes, that we maye hange them vp vnto the LORDE at Gibeon of Saulde chysen of the LORDE. The kyng sayde: I wyl geue them. Howbeit the kyng sparde Mephiboseth þe sonne of Jonathas þe sonne of Saul, because of the ooth of the LORDE þe was betwene them: namely, betwene Dauid & Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But the two sonnes of Kisha þe daughter of Lia, whom she had borne vnto Saul, Amnon & Mephiboseth, and the yre sonnes of Michol the daughter of Saul, whom she bare vnto Adonid the sonne of Barzillai the Gatharite, dyd the kyng take, and gaue them in to the handes of þe Gibeonites, which hanged the vp vnto the moone before the LORDE.

¶ So these iij. fell at one tyme, and dyed in the tyme of the first harvest, when þe barley harvest begynneth. Then toke Kisha the daughter of Lia a sackcloth, & spied it vpon the rood in the begynnynge of the harvest, vntill the water from the heaues dropped vnto them, and suffred nor the soales of the beauen to rest on them on the daye tyme, necher the wynde beestes of the felde on the nyghte season. And it was tolde Dauid what Kisha the daughter of Lia Sauls concubynne had done.

¶ And Dauid wente and toke the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his sonne from þe citeins of Jabes in Gilead (whiche they had stollen from þe sters at Bethsan, where þe Philistynes had hanged the, what tyme as the Philistynes had smyten Saul vpon mount Gilboa) and broughte them vp from thence, and gathered them together wth the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and of his sonne Jonathan buried they in y^e londe of Ben Jamin, besyde y^e grave of his father Cis. So after this was God at one with the Iombe.

But there arose warre agayne of y^e Philistynes agaynst Israel. And Dauid wente do more to his seruantes with him, & soughte agaynst the Philistynes. And Dauid was weery, & Jesai of Iob (which was one of the children of Alpha, and the weighe of his spere was thre C. weighe of brass, and had a new harmisse upon him) thoughte to smyte Dauid. Therfor heles Abisai the sonne of Neru Ja held him, & smote the Philistyne to death. Then swore Dauid to men with him, & sayde: Thou shalt nomore go forth with vs vnto the warre, that the lantern in Israel be not put out.

¶ Afterwarde there arose yet more at Iob with the Philistynes. Then Sibechai the Husit hitte Imore Saph, which also was one of the children of Alpha.

And there arose yet warre at God with the Philistynes. Then Eshnan the sonne of Jaere Ogim a Bethleemite smote Goliath the Gethite, which had a spere, whose shaft was like a weener a Iome.

And there arose yet warre at Gath, wher there was a cōtencious man, which had sixe Iyniges on his handes, and sixe toes on his fete, that is foure and euey in the nombre, and he was boine also of Alpha. And whan he spake despitfully vnto Israel, Jonathan y^e sonne of Simea Dauides brether smote him. These foure were boine vnto Alpha at Gath, and sell thowm the hande of Dauid and of his seruantes.

The XXII. Chapter.

¶ Dauid spake the wordes of this songe before the LORD, what tyme as the LORD had deliuered him fro the hande of all his enemies, and from the hande of Saul, and he sayde.

The LORD is my stony rock, & my castell, and my deliuerer.

God is my strength, in him wyl I put my trust: my shyld, & the horne of my saluacion, my defence, & my refuge, my Sauoure, thou shalt helpe me from violent wronge.

¶ I wyl call vpon the LORD with prayse, so shal I be deliuered fro myne enemies.

For the seiowes of death compassed me, and the bioles of Helial made me a frayd.

The paynes of hell came aboute me, and the snares of death had ouertaken me.

¶ Wher I was in trouble, I called vpon the LORD, yet euen my God called I vpon, & so he herde my voyce fro his holy temple, & my cōplayne came yn to his eares.

The earth trembled and quaked, the foundations of the heauen shoke and moued, because he was wroth.

Smoke wente vp from his nose, and consuminge fyre out of his mouth, coles were kyndled therof.

He bowed the heauens and came downe, and it was darke vnder his fete.

He sat vpon Cherub and vpo fyre, and appeared vpon the Ietchers of the wynde.

He made darke his paunlion round aboute him, thick water in the cloudes of Iayre.

As the brightnesse of him were the fyre coles kyndled.

The LORDE thondered from heauē, and the Ghyll put forth his voyce.

He shot his arrowes, and scattered thow he lightened, and discomfited them.

The pourynges out of the See were Ione, and the foundations of the earth were discovered at the chydyinge of the LORD, & at the breth of the spere of his wrath.

He sent downe from aboue, and reward me, and diue me out of many waters.

He deliuered me fro my stronge enemy, from them that hated me, for they were myghtie for me.

They overtoke me in the tyme of my trouble, but the LORDE was my succoure.

He broughte me forth in to liberty, the deities were me, because he had a fauoure vnto me.

The LORDE shal reward me after my righteousnes, and accordinge to the cleines of my handes shal he recompence me.

For I haue kepte y^e waye of the LORD, & haue not bene vn godly agaynst my God.

For I haue an eye vnto all his lawes, and haue not put his ordinaunces fro me.

Therfor wyl I be perfect vnto him, and wyl shewe myne innocēce.

So shal y^e LORDE reward me after my righteousnes, accordinge to the cleines of my handes in his eye sighte.

With the holy shalt thou be holy, and with the perfecte thou shalt be perfecte.

With the cleane thou shalt be cleane, and with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde.

For thou shalt saue the poore oppresse people, and shalt set thine eyes agaynst the proud to luyne them downe.

For thou O LORDE art my lantern. The LORDE shal lightee my darkeesse.

For in y^e LORDE shalt thou disceiue an host of men, & in my God I shalt leape ouer the wall.

The ij. booke of the Iyngeos.

The xxiiij. Chap. Ho. li.

The waye of God is perfecte: & wordes of the LORDE are tryed in the fynde: he is a shyde for all thet that put their trust in him. For where is there a God, excepte THE LORDE: Or who hath any strength without our God?

God hath strenghted me with power, and made playne a perfecte waye for me.

He hath made my fere like barres of fyre, & hath set me up an hye.

He readyed my handes to fyghte, and benedict the selfe home with myne armes.

And thou hast geuen me the shyde of thy health, and with thy louyng correccion shalt thou multiply me.

Thou hast enlarged my goyngs vnder me, and myne anckles haue not slyded.

I wyl folowe vpon myne enemies, and destroye the: and wyl not turne backe agayne, tyll I haue brought them downe.

I will consume them, and thrust them thorow, that they come not vp: they shal fall vnder my feete.

Thou hast gyded me with strength to the battayll, and hast subdued them vnder me: & rose vpon agaynst me.

Thou hast made myne enemies to turne their backs vpon me, that I mighte destroye them that hate me.

They shal crye, but there shalbe no Saviour: yett euen vnto the LORDE, but he an swereth them not.

I will beate them as small as the dust of the earth: euen as theye claye of the strewes wil I make them thynne, and spiede them out abrode.

But me shalt thou deliuer from the strynges of the people, and shalt kepe me to be the heade of the sheyden: A people whom I haue not knowe, shal serue me.

The strange children haue denyed me: in the hearinge of the eare shal they herke into me.

The strange children are waxen olde, & are shutt vpon their prison.

The LORDE Iynch, and blessed be my God, and magnified be the strenght of my health.

God seyth that I be auyged, and subdued the people vnto me.

He byngeth me out fro myne enemies: & from them I rise vpon agaynst me, shal he create me, and from thy cruell man shalt thou deliuer me.

In this cause wyl I geue thankes vnto the amonge the sheyden, and synge payntes vnto thy name.

Which doth greate health for his kynge, & sheweth mercy vnto Dauid his anoynted, and to his kide for evermore.

The XXXII. Chapter.

These are the last wordes of Dauid: THE Dauid the sonne of Ihu. The man, that was set vp to be a anoynted of the God of Jacob, & a pleasaunt vnter of songes of Israel, sayde: The strenght of the LORDE hath spoken by me, and the veteraunce therof is done thowse my kynge. He sayde: The God of Israel hath spokt vnto me, the strenght of Israel, the gouernour amonge men, the righteous gouernour in the feare of God. As the lighte is in the moynyng when the Sonne aryseth, so that for the brightnesse therof no cloud remaineth: and as the grasse loketh vpon the earth thorow the rayne, euen so shal my house be with God. For he hath made an euell thinge to me: as I wyl, well appoynted on euery syde and sure. For this is all my health & pleasure, that it shal growe. But the Belial shal be vnto me: & cleane rooted out as the thornes, which me take not in their haues. And they that touch them, shal destroye them: as vpon a spear: & in the fyre shal they be burnt, that they maye be brought to naught.

These are the names of Dauides Worthies: Insabem & sonne of Hadmoni, the cheifest amonge the, which list vpon his speare, & slewe eight hundred at one tyme.

After him was Eleasar the sonne of Dothi the sonne of Ahobi amonge the cheif Worthies with Dauid, when they spake besyde fully to the Philistynes, and were gathered together to the battayll, and the men of Israel wente vp. Then stode he vp and smote the Philistynes, tyll his hande was so weery that it trembled with the swerde. And the LORDE gaue a greate victory at the same tyme, so that the people turned after him to spoyle. After him was Samma the sonne of Age & Hararite. Whā the Philistynes had gathered themselves in a company, and in the same place there was a peece of lode full of small corne, and the people sled before the Philistynes, the stode he in the myddes of the peece of lode, & deliuered it, & smote & philistynes. And God gaue a greate victory.

And these the principall amonge the cheif, came downe in the barnest vnto Dauid, in the case of Abullam, & the chooff of & philistynes laye in the valley of Rephaim. But Dauid was at the same tyme in the castell, and the philistynes people laye at Bethleem. And Dauid was despayred, and sayde: Wol-de God þe same man wolde fetch me a drynke of water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate. The bispe the the Wothies into the boote of the Philistynes, and drue of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder þe gate, ⁊ caried it ⁊ broughet it vnto Dauid: neuertheless he wolde not drynke it, but offered it vnto the LORDE, ⁊ sayde: The LORDE let this be farre frome, that I shulde do it. For it not the bloude of the man that interbed their lyues, and wente thither: And he wolde not drynke it. This dyd the the Wothies.

D Abisai þ brother of Joab the sonne of Sera Ja was one also these amonge the. He liſte vp his speare ⁊ smote the hundred, ⁊ was an auincient man: moſte the, ⁊ the nobleſt amonge the, ⁊ was their ruler. But he came not vnto the the.

Per. 12. 1 And Benais the sonne of Joiada, the sonne of Jshai (a man of greete aces of Cobzsell smote twoomightie giantes of þ Moabites, ⁊ riſe downe ⁊ ſlæie a Lyon as a well in the ſnowe tyme. He smote also a ſayie goodly man of Egipete, which had a ſpeare in his hande. But he wete downe to him with a ſtoffe, and toke the ſpeare out of the Egipcians hande by violence, and ſlæie him with his owne ſpeare. This dyd Benais the sonne of Joiada, and was a famous man amonge the Wothies, and more honorable then the theire, but he came not vnto the the. And Dauid made him of his ſerres couell.

Abel the brother of Joab is amonge y theire: Elham his vnckel ſonnet at Bethleem. Samma the Hararite, Elia the Hararite, Seley the Palrite, Ira the sonne of Theire. Abier the Amhorite, Niebanai the Huſethite, Zalmont the Abobite, Mahe-raithe the Terphanite, Jethai the sonne of Abai of Gibra of the child of Ben Jamin, Benais the Pirgathonite, Iuidai of the boote of Gaas, Abialbon the Arbachite, Alina the the Bahonite, Eliaheba the Baalbonite. The children of Jaſen and Jonathan: Samma the Hararite, Eliphelz the sonne of Abaſbai þ sonne of Maachath, Eliam the sonne of Achitophel þ Gilonite, Geſrai of Carmel, Paerai the Arbite, Jergael the sonne of Tathar of Soba, Hani the Gadite, Seleg the Ammonite, Maharai the Beerothe, the weapen bearer of Joab the sonne of Sera Ja. Ira the Jethite, Gareb the Jethite. Vnto the thethe. Theſe are all the the ſerren and theire.

The XXXIIJ. Chapter.

D THE LORDE was wroth fully þe pleased of þ newe againſt Jſraell, and moned Dauid amonge them, becauſe he ſaide: So, nombie Iſraell and Juda. And the kyng ſayde vnto Joab þ cheſt captaine of his hoost: Go aboute in all the ryues of Iſraell, from Dan vnto Berſeba, and nombie the people, that I maye knowe how many they be. Joab ſayde vnto the kyng: The LORDE Ely God adde vnto this people hundred hundred tymes as much as it is now, the my lorde the kyng maye ſe his eyes luſt the on. But why haſt my lorde the kyng a diſſere to this thinge: For theſe the kyngs woide preuayle againſt Joab and the captaynes of the hoest.

So Joab and þ captaynes of the hoost wente forth from the kyng, to nombie the people of Iſraell, and paſſe ouer Jordan, and pitched at Arzor, at the ryghte hande of the cite which lyeth in þ ryuer of Gad, and at Jaſer, ⁊ came to Gilad, and in the kinne countree of Gaſſi, and came vnto Dan Jaan, and aboute Sidon, and came to the ſtrong cite of Tyras, and all the cities of the theſe and Canaanites, and came forth to the ſouth parte of Juda vnto Berſeba, and wete rounde aboute that countree, and aſſerayre monethes and twi: any daies they came to Jeruſalem. And Joab deliuered vnto þ kyng the ſumme of the people that was nombied. And in Iſraell there were eighty C. the ſande ſtronger men, that drue out the ſonde and in Juda ſyue hundred the ſande men. And a ſerch that the people was nombied. Dauid heert ſince him ſelfe. And Dauid ſayd vnto þ LORDE: I haue ſynned ſore, that I haue done this. And now LORDE take away the trespace of thy ſeruaunt. For I haue bene very vnwyſely.

And when Dauid roſe vp in the mornyng, the woide of the LORDE came vnto the prophete Gad, Dauids Seer, ⁊ ſayde: Go ſpeake vnto Dauid. Thus ſayeth the LORDE: I wyng the theſe thinges, choſe one of them, that I maye do it vnto the. Gad came vnto Dauid, and ſolde him, and ſayde vnto him: Wile thou chaſe ſeuene yeare bereb ſer come in to chy londe: Or that thou be ſayd to ſyue before thine aduerſaries the monethes, and theye perſeute the: Or that thou be preſſence the dayes in the londe: Le the aduerſarye theſe and ſie, what anſwere I ſhal bringe againe vnto him þ ſeruaunt.

So the LORDE sent pestilence in to Israel from the morow vnto the tyme appoyned, so that there dyed of the people from Dan vnto Berseba, thre score and ten thousand men. And when the angel stretched his hand vnto Ierusalem to destroye it, the LORDE repented ouer the euill, and sayde vnto the angel: It is ynough, holde now thy hande. The angell of the LORDE was beynde the barre of Arafna the Jebusite. But when Dauid sawe the angell that smote the people he sayde vnto the LORDE: behold, It is I that haue sinned, I haue done the trespass: As for these shepe, what haue they done? Oh let thy hande be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came to Dauid at the same tyme, and sayde vnto him: Go vp, and set up an altare vnto the LORDE in þe barre of Arafna the Jebusite. So Dauid wote vp as Gad sayde, and as the LORDE had commaunded.

¶ And when Arafna toke aboute him, he sawe the kyng with his seruantes goinge vnto him, and he worshipped vpon his face to the ground, and sayde: What foie commeth my lorde y kyng vnto his seruant? Dauid sayde: To bye the barre of the, and to buylte an altare vnto the LORDE, that the plague maye cease from the people.

But Arafna sayde vnto Dauid: Let my lorde the kyng take it, and offre what pleaseh him. To behold, there is an oxe for a burnt offeringe, and stedes, and vessels of open to the wodd. All this gaue Arafna vnto the kyng. And Arafna sayde vnto y kyng: The LORDE thy God make the accepted vnto him. ¶ Then heles y kyng sayde vnto Arafna: What oxe, boke I will bye it of the for as much as it is worth. For I will not offre burnt offeringes vnto y LORDE, of y which I haue for naughte. So Dauid boughte the barre and the oxe for fiftye Sicles of siluer, and buylde an altare there vnto the

LORDE, and offered burnt offeringes and vber offeringes. And

And whā kinge Dāuid was olde & well strycke in age, he coulde not be warme, though he was couered with clothes. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: Let vs see a yonge damsell a virgin for oure lorde the Kyng, to stonde before the Kyng, and to nourshe him, & to slepe in his armes, and to warme oure lorde the Kyng. And they sought a saye damsell in all the coastes of Iſrael, and founde Abisag of Sunem, and brought her vnto the Kyng. And she was a very saye damsell, and nourshe d the Kyng, and serued him. Howbeit the Kyng knewe her not.

Abonias the sonne of Hagith liſte vp him selfe, and sayde: I wyll be Kyng. And he prepared him charetes and hoisēn, and fſtye men to be remmers on foot before him. And his father reſpoued hi not therfore, so much as to saye: Wherefore doest thou so? And he was a man of a very saye bewey: and he had begotē him nexte a ſter Abiſag. And his mater ſode by Joab the sonne of Zeruia and by Abiathar the prief, which helpe d Abonias. But Sadoc the prief, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and Tathan the prief and Semci and Kei, and Dauides Worthies were not with Abonias.

And whā Abonias offered shepe and oxe, and ſat cattell beyde the lions of Behelech, which lye by the well of Rogel, he called all his birche the kynges ſonnes, and all the men of Iuda the kynges ſeruantes. But the prophete Tathan and Benaia, and the Worthies, and his brother Salomon called he not. Then sayde Tathan vnto Dethſeba Salomons niſter: Haſt thou not herde the Abonias is kyng, and oure lorde Dauid knoweth not therof? Come now therfore, I wyll geue the counsell, that thou mayſt deliuer thy ſoule and the ſoule of thy ſonne Salomon. Come now and go in to kyng Dāuid and ſaye vnto him: Haſt not thou my lorde the Kyng ſwoine and ſayde vnto thy handmaiden: Salomon thy ſonne ſhall be kyng after me, and he ſhall ſit vpon my ſeate: Why is then Abonias made kyng? Beholde, while thou art yet here, and talkeſt with the Kyng, I wyll come in a ſter the, and tell ſaith thy ſayle. And Dethſeba went in to the kyng to y chamber. And the kyng was very olde. And Abisag of Sunem ſerued the Kyng. And Dethſeba bowed hiſſelfe, and worſhipped the Kyng.

The Kyng ſayde: What wilt thou? She ſayde vnto him: My lorde, Thou haſt ſworne vnto thy handmaide by the LORD the God: Thy ſonne Salomon ſhall be kyng after me and ſit vpon my ſeate. But now, Abonias is kyng, and my lorde the Kyng knoweth it not. He hath offered oxen and ſat cattell, and many ſhepe, and hath called all the Kynges ſonnes, and Abiathar the prief, and Joab the cheſt captaine. But thy ſonnam Salomon hath he not bydden. Nevertheless thou my lorde art kyng, theſe of Iſrael loke vnto the, that thou ſhaldeſt ſhewe them who ſhall ſit vpon the ſeate of my lorde the Kyng after the. And whā my lorde the Kyng ſlepeſt with his ſerues then ſhal I and my ſonne Salomon be ſayne to be ſuucco.

But whyle ſhe yet ſpoke to the kyng, the prophete Tathan came, and ſhe tolde y kyng: behelde, there is the prophete Tathan. And whā he came in before the kyng, he worſhipped the kyng vpon his face to the ground, and ſayde: My lorde O kyng, haſt thou ſayde: Abonias ſhall be kyng after me? ſit vpon my ſeate: For he is gone downe this daye, and hath offered oxen, and ſat cattell: hath called all the kynges ſonnes, and the captaines, and the prief Abiathar. And beholde, they eate and drynke before him, and ſaye: God ſaue the kyng Abonias. But me thy ſeruante, and Sadoc the prief, and Benaia the ſonne of Joiada, and thy ſeruante Salomon hath he not called. Hath my lorde the kyng commaunded this, and not certified his ſeruantes who ſhall ſit vpon the ſeate of my lorde the kyng after him?

The kyng answered and ſaide: Call Dethſeba vnto me. And ſhe came in before the kyng. And whā ſhe ſode before the kyng, the kyng ſware and ſayde: Mo truly as the LORD E lyueth (which hath deliyered my ſoule out of trouble,) I wyll do vnto the this daye, euen as I ſware vnto the by the LORD the God of Iſrael, ſo that Salomon thy ſonne ſhalbe kyng after me, and he ſhall ſit vpon my ſeate in my ſteade.

Then Dethſeba bowed hiſſelfe with hiſ face to the grounds, and thanked the kyng and ſayde: God ſaue my lorde kyng Dauid for euermore. And the kyng ſayde: Call me the prief Sadoc & the prophete Tathan, and Benaia the ſonne of Joiada.

And whā they came in before the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto them: Take yonge lites seruantes with you, and set my forme Salomon vpon my Mule, and carry him downe to Gihon: and let Saboc þe prest and the prophet Nathan, an oyncce him there to be kyng ouer Israel, and blowe the trompe, and saye: God saue kyng Salomon, and so re vp after him: and when he cometh, he shall sit vpon my seate, and be kyng in my stead: for I haue ordeyned him to be pryncce ouer Israel and Iuda. Then answered Benia the sonne of Joiada vnto the kyng, and sayde: Amen. The LORDE God of my loue the kyng saye thus also. As the LORDE hath bene with my loue the kyng, so be he with Salomon also, that his seate maye be greater then the seate of my loue kyng Dauid.

Then wente they downe, the prest Saboc and the prophet Nathan, and Benia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chertians, and Plethians, and set Salomon vpon kyng Dauides Mule, and broughte him to Gihon. And Saboc the prest toke the oyle borne out of the Tabernacle, and an oynced Salomon. And they blew the trompe: And all þe people sayd: God saue kyng Salomon.

¶ And all the people wente vp after him, and the people piped with pipes, and was very ioyfull, so that the earth rang as the noise of them. And Adonias herde it, and all they whom he had called, which were with him, and they had new eaten. And when Joab herde the noise of the trompe, he sayde: What meaneth this noise of the cite and this busynesse? But whye he yet spake, beholde, Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar þe prest came.

And Adonias sayde: Come in, for thou art a dauntour man, and bringest good tynges. Jonathan answered and sayde vnto Adonias: Alas, of loue kyng Dauid hath made Salomon kyng, and hath sene with him Saboc the prest, and the prophet Nathan, and Benia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chertians and Plethians, and they haue sit him vpon the kynges Mule: and Saboc þe prest with the prophet Nathan hath noyced him kyng at Gihon, and from thence they gone vp with ioye, that the cite rang with all: that is the noyse that ye haue herde.

¶ Salomon also syttech vpon the kynges seate, and the kynges seruantes are gone in to wish good lucke vnto ouer loue kyng Dauid, and haue sayde: Thy God make Salomon a better name then thynyme is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And they haue wysshed the kyng good lucke vpon the bedd: I loue þe kyng hath sayde thus: Prayed he of LORDE God of Israel, which this daye hath made one to sit vpon my seate, that myne eye haue sene it.

Then were they a fra yob, and gatt them vp all that were called by Adonias, and so they departed eueri man his waye. But Adonias was a fra yob of Salomon, and gat him vp, and wote his waye, and toke holde of þe homes of þe altare. And it was tolde Salomon: beholde, Adonias feareth kyng Salomon, and beholde, he toke holde of the homes of þe altare, and sayd: Let kyng Salomons sweare vnto me this daye, that he shall not slaye his seruant with the swerde. Salomon sayde: If he wil be an honest man, there shall not one heer fall from him vpon the earth: but yf there be euill founde in him, he shall dye. And kyng Salomons sene, and caused him to be fetcht from the altare. And when he came, he fell downe before kyng Salomon. But Salomon sayde vnto him: So þe waye into thy hooft.

The ii. Chapter.

¶ Now when the tyme came that Dauid should dye, he commaunded Salomon his sonne, and sayde: I go the waye of all the worlde, Be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thy selfe a man, and kepe the wordes of the LORDE thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and holde his ordinaunce, his commaundementes, his lawes, and his testimonies, as it is written in the lawe of Moyses, that thou mayst be wise in all that thou doest, and whiche so euer thou turne: that the LORDE maye rayse vp his worde, which he hath spokẽ ouer me, and sayde: If thy children kepe their waye and walke before me faithfully and truly and with all their heart and with all their soule, the shal there neuer see the a man vpon the seate of Israel.

¶ Thou knowest well also what Joab the sonne of Seru Ja hath done vnto me, what he hath done vnto the two chefe captaynes of Israel, Abner the sonne of Ner, and Amasa the sonne of Iether, whom he slew and shed the bloude of warre vnto it was peace, and put the bloude of warre vpon his girdel: I was aboute his loines, and in his shutes that were vpon his fete: Do then accordinge to thy wysdome, that thou bringe to thy graye heart downe to the grave in peace.

Deut. xviij.

I. Re. x. c.

And to the children of Barsai the Gileadite, thou shalt shewe mercy, that they maye care at thy table. So so iomed they the places vnto me, when I fled before thy brother Absalom. And beholde, thou hast with thee. Some the sonne of Sera the sonne of Jemini of Zabaram, which caused me with very bytter and shamefull cursynge, what tyme as I wente to Mahanaim. He came he downe to meete me at Jordan, where I swaue vnto him by the LORDE, and sayde: I wyll not slaye the with the swerde. But suffre not thou him to be vngilte, for thou art a wise man, and shalt wil knowe what thou oughtest to do vnto him, that thou mayest bring his graye heer downe to the graue with blood.

So Adonias slepe with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of David. The tyme that David was kynge ouer Israell, is forie yeare. Seven yeares was he kynge at Hebron, and thre and thirtie yeare at Ierusalem. And Salomon sat vpon the seate of David his father, and his kyngdome was made very sure.

But Adonias the sonne of Hagieh came into Bechsheba Salomons mocher. And she sayde: Is thy commynge peaceable? He spake: Yee, and sayde: I haue som what to saye to the. She sayde: Saye on. he sayde: Thou knowest that the kyngdome was mine, and that all Israell had set their selues vpon me, that I shoulde be kynge, but now is the kyngdome turned, and become my brothers: for he hath it of the LORDE.

Now desyre I one petition of the, Make not my face ashamed. She sayde vnto him: Saye on. he sayde: Speake vnto kynge Salomon (for he shall not shame thy face) that he maye geue me Abisag to wyfe. Bechsheba sayde: Wel, I wil speake to the kynge for the.

And Bechsheba came in to kynge Salomon to speake with him. And the kynge stode vp, and wente to meete her, and worshipped her, and sat him downe vpon his seate. And there was a chayne set for the kynges mocher, so that she sat at his righte hande. And he sayde: One petition desyre I of the make not my face ashamed. The kynge sayde: Yee O my mocher, I wyll not shame thy face. She sayde: Let Abisag of Sunem be geuen thy brother Adonias to wyfe.

Then answered kynge Salomon, and said vnto his mocher: Why desyest thou Abisag of Sunem for Adonias? Are the kyng-domes of him also, for he is my greater brother, and hath Abiachar the prest, and Joab the sonne of Zeruja. And the kynge swaue by the LORDE, and sayde: God is thine and that vnto me, Adonias shall be spoken thus agaynst his lyfe. And now as truly as the LORDE lyueth which hath ordred me, and made me to sit vpon the seate of my father David, and hath made me a house (as thou sayng as he sayde) this day shall Adonias dye.

And kynge Salomon sent thither by Zinai the sonne of Joab, which smote him that he dyed. And to the prest Abiachar sayde: Thou maye vnto Zinai to thy londe, for thou art a man of truth. Thou shalt I wyll not slaye the this day, for thou hast bene the pryke of the LORDE: God befor my father David, and hath freed also where my father suffred.

Thus Salomons put forth Abiachar, that he muste remoue be the pryke of the LORDE, that the worde of the LORDE myghte be fulfilled, which he spake ouer the house of Dauid at Silo.

And this rumoure came before Joab: Joab cleued vnto Adonias, and not vnto Salomon. Then sled Joab into the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and toke holde of the homes of the altare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, that Joab was sled into the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and beholde, he stondec at the altare.

Then sent Salomon Benai the sonne of Joada, and sayde: Go slaye him. And when Benai came to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, he sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the kynge: Come forth. he sayde: No, I wyll not go. And Benai coldethis vnto the kynge: he sayde: Thus hath Joab spoken, and thus hath he answered me.

The kynge saide vnto him: Do as he hath spoken, and slaye him, and bury him, that thou mayest put fro me and my fathers the se the bloude which Joab hath shed with out a cause, and that the LORDE maye recompence him his bloude vpon his heade, because he smote two men, which were righteous and better then he, and slane them with yf swerde, that my father Dauid. There not of: namely, Abner yf sonne of Neri the chefe captaine ouer Israell, and Amasa the sonne of Iether yf chefe captaine ouer Iuda: yf their bloude maye be recompensed vnto the heade of Joab and of his side for euer: but David and his seide house and his kin hau peace for evermore of the LORDE.

¶ And Denaiā the sonne of Joiada wente up, and smote hym, and slewe hym: ⁊ he was buried in his house in the wyldernes. And ⁊ kynge of Denaiā ⁊ name of Joiada in his stude over the heest. And Saboc ⁊ piest of the kynge sit in the steade of Abiarhar.

And the kynge sente, and caused for to call Semai, and sayde unto him: Wyldest thou be at Jerusalem, and dwell there, and beare not from thence, nether hyther ner thither. In what daye so ever thou departest forth, and goest over ⁊ broke Cedion, be thou sure, that thou shalt dye the deeth: thy bloude be upon thy heade. Semai sayde unto the kynge: This is a good meanyng, as my lord the kynge hath sayde, so shal thy seruante do. So Semai dwelle at Jerusalem a longe season. But after thre yere it fortuned that mo seruantes ranne awaye from Semai unto Adia the sonne of Maccha kynge of Bath.

And it was tolde Semai: beholde, thy seruantes are at Bath. Then Semai gat him up, and sables his asse, and wote unto Bath to Adia, for to seeke his seruantes. And whā he came thither, he broughte his seruantes from Bath.

¶ And it was tolde Salomon, that Semai wene from Jerusalem unto Bath, and was come agayne. Then sent the kynge, and caused for to call Semai, and sayde unto him: Whate not ⁊ to the by the LORDE, and assured the, and sayde: Tell me what daye so ever thou departest out, and goest hitther or thither, be sure that thou shalt dye the deeth: And thou saydest unto me: I haue herde a good meanyng. Why hast thou not bepe the then according to the ooch of the LORDE, and commaundement that I commaund be thy?

And the kynge sayde unto Semai: Thou rememberst all ⁊ wickednes, which thy hert knoweth: that thou dydest unto my father Dauid. The LORDE hath recompensed ⁊ thy wickednes upon thy heade. And kynge Salomon is blessed, and the seate of Dauid shal be stablished before ⁊ LORDE for ever. And the kynge commaunded Denaiā ⁊ sonne of Joiada, which wente forth, and smote him: the he dyed. And the kynge dome was stablished by Salomons hande.

The liij. Chapter.

¶ And Salomon made marriage ⁊ pharao the kynge of Egipt, ⁊ wote pharaos daughter, and boughte her in to the cite of Dauid, vyl he had buylded his house, and the LORDES house, and the walles rounde aboute Jerusalem. But the people offered yett upon the hye places: for as yett there was no house buylded unto the name of the LORDE unto that tyme. But Salomon loued the LORDE, and walked after the ordinaunces of Dauid his father: cepte onely that he offered and burnt incense upon the hye places.

¶ And the kynge wente unto Gibson, to do sacrifice there: for that was a goodly hye place. And Salomon offered a thousande burnes offeringen upon the same altare. And the LORDE appeared unto Salomon at Gibson in a visame of the nyght, and God sayde: Telle what I shal geue ⁊. Salomons saide: Thou hast done greace mercy unto my father Dauid thy seruante. Like as he walked before the LORDE in faith, salnes and righteounesse, and in a true hert with the, ⁊ this greace mercy hast thou layed up for him, and geuen him a sonne to sye upon his seate, as it is now come to passe.

¶ Now LORDE my God, thou hast made thy seruante kynge in my father Dauids steade: As for me, I am but a small yonge man, knowyng nether my ongoynge ner ingoynge. And thy seruante is amonge the people whom thou hast chosen: which is so greace, that no man can nombe them ne descrybe them for multitude. Geue thy seruante therfore an obedient hert, that he maye iudge thy people, ⁊ understande what is good ⁊ bad: for who is able to iudge this thy mightie people?

This pleased the LORDE well, that Salomon ased such a pericion. And God sayde unto him: For so much as thou ased this, and desyrest not longe lyfe, nether riches, nether ⁊ soules of thine enemies, but in desyre dinge to heere iudgmente, beholde, thefore haue I done according to thy wordes. Be bold, I haue geuen the an hert of wysdome, and understandyng, so that such one as thou hast not bene before the, nether shall ryse up after the.

Yett and that thou hast not prayed for, haue I geuen the also, namely, ryches, and honoure, so that amonge the kynges in ⁊ tyme there is not such one as thou. And yf thou wilt walke in my wayes, so that thou bepe myne ordinaunces and lawes, as Dauid thy father hath walkid, then wyl I geue the a longe lyfe.

And when Salomon awaked, beholde, it was a dreame, and he came to Jerusalem, and stode before the Aste of the LORDES co-meane, and offered burnt offerynges, and bealthe offerynges, and made a greates feast vnto his seruantes.

At the same tyme came there two harlottes vnto þe kynge, and stode before him. And the one woman sayde: Oh my lord, I and this woman dwel in one house, and I was deliuered of a childe in the house with her: on the thirde daye after that I was deliuered, she was deliuered of a childe also. And we went together, so þe there was no stranger in þe house, but we two: & this womans sonne died in the nyghte (for she smothered him in the slepe) and she rose vp in the nyghte, and toke my sonne for my syde (where the handmayde slepte,) and layed it in his arme, and his deede sonne layed she in myne arme. And when I rose vp in the moynynge to see my sonne safe, beholde, he was dead. But in the moynynge I lothed well, and beholde, it was not my sonne, whom I had borne.

D The other woman sayde: Not so, my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is dead. But she sayde: Not so, thy sonne is dead, and my sonne liueth. And thus spake they before the kynge. And the kynge sayde: This womans saith: my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is dead: yonder woman sayeth: Not so, thy sonne is dead, & my sonne lyueth. And the kynge said: Get me a swerde. And when the swerde was brought before the kynge, the kynge sayde: Parte the lyuynge childe in two partes, and geue this woman the one halfe, and yonder woman the other halfe.

Then sayde the woman whose sonne lyued, vnto þe kynge: for his motherly heart was kyndled with pite ouer his sonne: Oh my lord, geue him the childe a lyue, and I will it not. But the other sayde: Let it rather be myne nerthing, but let it be parted. Then answered the kynge, and sayde: Geue this woman the lyuynge childe, and slaye it not, for she is his mother. And all Israel herde of this iudgment that the kynge had geuen: and they feared the kynge, for they sawe that þe wysdome of God was in him to kepe iudgment.

The iiiij. Chapter.

Ahus was Salomon kynge ouer all Israel. And these were his prynces: Aharai the sonne of Saboc the prest: Ahiioseph, and AhiJa the sonnes of Bisha, were prestes: Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was chanceler: Denais þe sonne of Jolada was the cheefe captayne: Sadoc and Abiathar were prestes: Aharai the sonne of Aharai was ouer the officers: Sabud the sonne of Aharai the prest was the kynge freede: Aharai was steward: Athonias the sonne of Aboa was rent gatherer.

And Salomon had twelue officers ouer all Israel, which made prouision of foode for the kynge and his house: One had a month longe in yere to make prouision: The sonne of Hur upon mount Ephraim. The sonne of Deber at Maaz and at Baalhim: at Bethsames, and at Elon, and at Bethgai. The sonne of Gased at Aruboch, and at therto Socho and all the londe of Geph. The sonne of Abinadab all þe loysshippe vnto: & had Caphar Salems daughter to wife. Baena þe sonne of Ahilud at Thumach & at Magiddo, & ouer all Bethsan, which lyeth betwixt Zarthana vnder Jasin from BethSean vnto the playne of Hebron, vnto the other syde of Jatmeam. The sonne of Geber at Ramoth in Gilead: he had the countes of Jair the sonne of Mansi in Gilead, and had y coastes of Argob which lyeth in Basan, vnto the score greates wald ciuities, and wald basen barres. Abinadab þe sonne of Iddo at Mahanaim. & Ihanas a Thephthian: he also toke Basmath Salmons daughter to wife. Baena the sonne of Gusal in Aser and at Alorch. Josaphat the sonne of Parua in Jachar. Semci the sonne of Ela in Ben Jamin. Geber the sonne of Vu in the londe of Gilead, in the londe of Siden kynge in the Amouzes, and of Og the kynge in Basan. One officer was in the londe. As for Juda and Israel, they were in nombre as the sonde of the see, and as dead donke, and were mercy. This was Salomon loide ouer all the kyngdomes (from the wynter of the londe of the phylistines, vnto the border of Egipte) which brought him gyltes, and stred him as longe as he lyued.

And Salomon had þat to his wynter thirte quarters of syne mel, the fower quarters of ocher meden far eren, and twelue small cattell, and an hundred shepe, wylde hartes and Roes, and wylde goates, and scapone, and foules. For he had the loysshippe of all the londe on this syde the water: in Ephra vnto Gasa, and ouer all þe kynges of this syde þe water: & had peace of all his kyngdomes rounde aboute, so that Juda and Israel dwelt safe, every one vnder his wynter, and vnder his sigge tre, from Dan vnto Beithle, as longe as Salomon lyued.

And Salomon had fowre thousande carboyses, and twelue thousande hoysmen. And the officers prouided the kynge Salomon with wyntles: and what soeuer belonged to the kynge table, that brought every man his moneth, and myssed not: Darlye also z shewe for the houses and courtes, z brough them unto the place where þe kynge was, every one a fter his charge.

¶ And God gaue Salomon maruelous great wysdome and vnderstoninge, and a large herte, as the synbe that lyeth vpon þe See þere: so that the wysdome of Salomon was greater then the wysdome of all the children towards the fourth and of all þe Egyptians. And he was wiser then all men, yet wiser then Ethan the Ghibite, Herman, Chalcal, and Darda, the sonnes of Maholi and had a greater name amonge all the hethyen on every syde. And he spake thre thousand þe proverbes, z his songes were a thousand þe ffray. And he spake of trees, from þe Ceder of Libanus vnto the Iosep þe groweth out of þe malher called also of cecell, of fouls of fowles, of fyshes. And there came of all nacions to heare þe wysdome of Salomon, and there came of all the kynge of þe earth, which had herde of his wysdome.

The V. Chapter.

¶ When Hiram þe kynge of Tyre sent his servauntes vnto Salomon, for he had herde, þe they had admynted him kynge in his fathers reade: for Hiram - loved Hiram as lge as he lyved. And Salomon sent vnto Hiram, sayenge: Thou knowest that my father might not buyde an house vnto the name of the LORDE his God, because of the warre that was aboute him, on tylle the LORDE delyvered them vnder the shes of his fete: But now hath the LORDE my God given me rest on every syde, so that there is no aduersary ncr euyl hynderaunce: Beholde, I am therfore aduysed to buyde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, acordyng as the LORDE spake vnto

12 Did my father, and sayde: Thy sonne, whom I shall see vpon thy face in thy leade, shall buyde an house vnto my name. Commaunde therfore that they be woe me downe ceders out of Libanus, and that thy seruauntes be with my seruauntes, z the rewarde of thy seruauntes wyll I geue the, what so ever thou shalt axe: for thou knowest, þe with vs there is no man which can hence cymber as the Sidonians.

¶ When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon, he was very glad, and sayde: Praisyd be the LORDE of this daye, which hath given David a wyse sonne ouer this greates people.
And Hiram sent vnto Salomon, sayenge:
I haue herde what thou hast sent vnto me:
I wyll be acordyng vnto all thy desire with Ceders and pynetrees, My seruauntes shall bryng them downe from Libanus vnto þe See, and I wyll make them to floce vnto þe See, vnto the place which thou shalt shewe me, and there wyll I cause them to aryue, z thou shalt make the to be readye. But thou shalt fulfill my desire also, and geue fode me to my householdes felles. So hita gaue Salomon Ceders and pynetrees accordyng to all his desire. But Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheate co-eace for his householdes, and twetye quarters of beateen oyle. This gaue Salomon yearly vnto Hiram.

¶ And the LORDE gaue Salomon wysdome, acordyng as he had sayde vnto him, z there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, and they made a covenante both together. And Salomon made an outchofynge (of woomen) thowout all Israel. And þe outchofynge was thirtie thousande men, and he sent the to mount Libanus every two monethes ten thousande, so that they were one moneth vpon Libanus, and two monethes at home. And Adoniram was ouer the out-chofynge.

¶ And Salomon had thre score thousande z ten that bare burthens, z foure score thousande that be wred cymber vpon the mount, besyde Salomons dyse officers, which were ordenyed ouer the worke: namelye thre thousande and thre hundred, which ruled þe people that laboured there in the worke. And þe kynge commaunded, that they shulde breake out greates and costly stones, namelye fre stone, for the foundacion of the house. And Salomons masons, and Hirams, and they that were in those coastes, be wred out z prepared cymber and stones to the buyllynge of the house.

The VI. Chapter.

¶ In the four hundred and foure score years after the departinge of the children of Israel out of the londe of Egypte, in the fourth year of the raigne of Salomon ouer Israel, in the moneth Sisk þe ded vnto the LORDE. This house that kynge Salomon buyded vnto þe LORDE, was thre score cubytes lge, twenty cubytes brode, z thirtie cubytes hie. And he buylde a poyche before the temple of twentye cubytes longe after the bryeth of the house, z ten cubytes brode before the house. And in þe house he made wyndowes, which might be opened and shut with lyddes.

¶ And rounde aboute by the wall of þe hou-

he buylded a compase, so γ it wente both above the temple and the quere, and made his ourwarde wall roide above. The nether most station was fyue cubytes wyde, and γ myddel six cubytes wyde, and the thirde ten cubytes wyde. For he layed balles rounde aboute the house, that they couched not γ wall of the house.

- B And when γ house was buylded, it was buyded of wholke and ouerbooken stones, so γ there was herde nether hammer ner axe, ner any other instrument of yron, when the house was a buyldinge.

But on the righte syde of the myddes of the house there was a doore, so γ they might go up to the myddel station by a turne greise, γ from the myddel station vnto γ thirde. Thus buylded he the house, γ fynished it, γ syde γ house both above γ by the walles w^{ch} Cedar wodd, he buylded a galery also above vpon the wholke house fyue cubytes hie, and couered the house wth Cedar tymbre.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto Salomon, γ sayde: See this be the house γ thou buydest. If thou shalt walke in myne ordinaunces, γ do a cordinge to my lawes, γ kepe all my commaundementes, so walke therein, then wilt I stablish by me my worde with γ .

Re. 7. b

- C Thus Salomon buylded the house, γ fynished it, γ buylded the walles on the insyde wth Cedar tymbre, from the grounde of γ house vnto the rofe, and syled it wth ymbric on the insyde, and ouerlayed the floore of γ house wth boades of Pyntre.

And behynde in the house he buylded a wall of Cedar tymbre twenety cubytes longe, from the floore vnto the rofe. And there on the insyde buylded he the quere for the most holy. War the house of the temple before the quere was forty cubytes longe: on the insyde was the whole house of Cedar wth threwe Knoppes and floures, so that there was no stone sene. As for the quere, he prepared it on the insyde of the house, that the Ake of the couenaunt of the LORDE might be set therein. And before the quere (which was twenety cubytes longe, twenety cubytes bode, and twenety cubytes hie, and ouerlayed wth pure golde) he syled the altare wth Cedar.

- D And Salomon ouerlayed the house on γ insyde wth pure golde, γ shot barres of golde before the quere, which he had ouerlayed wth golde, so that γ whole house was layed ouer wth golde. And all the altare also before γ quere ouerlayed he wth golde.

He made also in the quere two Cherubins ten cubytes hie of Olyue tre. One wyng of ether of the Cherubs had fyue cubytes, so that from the edge of his one wyng to the edge of his other wyng: there wenten ten cubytes. Euen so had the other Cherub ten cubytes also, and both the Cherubs were of one measure and of one quantite: so γ ether Cherub was ten cubytes hie. And he put the Cherubins within in the house. In the Cherubins spied forth their wynges, so that the wyng of the one touched the one wall, and the other Cherub wynges touched the other wall. And in the myddes of γ house the one wynges touched another. And he ouerlayed the Cherubins wth golde.

And on all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he caused to make carued worke wth carued Cherubins, palme trees, and floures. And the pavement of the house he layed he also wth golde plates. And at the entrance of the quere he made two bores of olyue tre wth fyue squared postes, and caused carued worke to be made eibth wth Cherubins, palme trees and floures, γ ouerlayed them wth plates of golde. So made he also at the entrance of the temple, four squared postes of Olyuete, and two bores of Pyntre (so that ether doore had two fyue bores one hanginge to another) and made carued worke eibth of, palme trees and floures, right as it was appoynted.

And he buyded a court also within the towres of fre stone, and wth one row of playne Cedar tymbre.

In the fourth yere in the month Eth, was the foundation of the LORDES house layed: and in the eleuenth yere in the month Bulchet is the eight month was the house fynished as it shalbe, so that they were seven yere a buyldinge of it.

The VII. Chapter.

D Et Salomon was a buyldinge hit in the thirte yere, γ fynished it, namely, he buylded an house of the wodd of Libanus, an hundred cubytes longe, fifty cubytes wyde, γ threie cubytes hie, four squared wth rowes of pilers, and he caused Ceders. And the rofe above syled he also wth Cedar wodd vpon the fyue γ four pilers, for one rowe had fyue pilers, so γ there stode euer the pilers one right eibth against another: so that: every space betwixte the pilers was one oort against another four squared wth the pilers.

And he made a porche with pilers which was fyfte cubites longe, and thurte cubites broad, & yet a porche before it with pilers & a greate possie. He made a porche also vn to þe fynge scate, wherein þe iudgment was kepe, and made it to be the porche of iudgment, and syled it with Cedar from the pane went vnto the pavement agayne, and his owne house wherein he dwelt, in y^e backe cour d he a house for Pharaos daughter, & whom Salomon had taken to wife.

All these were costly stone betwen after þe measure, cut with sawes on euery syde, from the ground vnto the rofe: and without the greate court also. As for the foundaciōns, they were costly and greate stones, ren and nyght cubites greate: and costly yre stones throu a cubite to þe measure, and Cedera.
But the greate court rounde aboute had the rofe of yre stone, & one rowe of player Cedera: Euen so also the court by þe house of the LORD within, and the porch by the house.

And kynge Salomon sent to seche one 144 Iuzam of Tyre a weddome sonne, of the tribe of Ieffthali, and his father had bene a man of Tyre, which was a conynge mā in metall, full of wysdome, vnderstandynge and knowlege to make all maner of metall worke. When he came to kynge Salomon, 145 he made all his worke, & made two basin pilers, eche of them eighete cubites 146 bye, and a chede of yre cubites was the measure aboute both þe pilers: and he made two knoppes of brasse molten, so set above vpon the pilers: and euery knoppe was fyue cuby-tes hye: and on euery knoppe aboute vpon þe pilers siue mythen ropes like cheynes. And vpon euery knoppe he made two rowes of pomegranates rounde aboute on one rope, wherwith þe knoppe was covered. And the knoppes were like roses before þe porche sou-ten cubites greate. And the pomegranates in the rowes rounde aboute were two hundred aboute and bench vpon the rope, which were rounde aboute the thynnes of the knoppe, on euery knoppe vpon both the pilers.
And he set vpon the pilers before the porche of the temple. And that which he set on the ryght hande, called he Jachin: and that which he set on the left hande, called he Boos. And so stode it aboute vpon the pilers like roses. This was the worke of þe pilers synghed.

And he made a molten lauer ten cubytes wyde from the one syde to the other rounde aboute, and fyue cubites hye, and a chede of thurte cubites lōge was þe measure rounde aboute: and aboute the same lauer that was then cubites wyde, there wente knop-pes on the edge therof rounde aboute the lauer. Two rowes were there of the knoppes molten with the lauer.

And it stode vpon twolue balloces, wher of thre were turned towarde the north, the two towarde the west, thre towarde the south, and thre towarde the east, and the lauer aboue theron, so that all their hynder partes were within vnder the lauer: wherof the chidnesse was an handbrieth: and the edge of it was like the edge of a cuppe, and as a fleured rose, and it coneyned two thousande Battes.

And he made ten basen staves, euery one four cubites longe and brode, and the cu-bites hye. The stave was made so, that it had fyde betweene the ledges. And on the fyde betweene the ledges there were Lyons, bulloces and Cherubins. And on þe ledges which were aboute and bench the Lyons and bulloces, were the fydes made so, that they were set downnwarde. And euery stole had fyue basen wheles with basen apertrees. And vpon the foure corners there were pioppes molten, euery one ouer a gaynste another, vnder set vnto the Ketell.

And the soler vpon the stole was a cubyte hye and rounde, a cubyte and an halfe wyde: and on the soler there were knoppes in solde, which were foure squared & not rou-nde. The foure wheles stode bench by the fyde, & the apertrees of the wheles were harde on y^e scate. Euery whel was a cubite and a halfe hye, and they were wheles like curt wheles. And their apertrees, spokes, nales, & shafes were all molten. And the foure pioppes vpon the foure corners of euery scate were harde on the scate.

And on the soler aboute vpon the stave a cubyte and an halfe rounde aboute, there were ledges and fydes harde on the scate. And on the plat of the same fyde and ledges, he caused to carde Cherubins, Lyons and palme trees, one by another rounde aboute theron.
After this maner made he ten molde staves, one maner of measure & widenes was in all.

And he made ten copper Ketells, so that one Ketell coneyned foure Battes, and was four cubites greate, and vpon euery scate was a Ketell. And fyue staves set by the ryght syde of the house, and the other fyue on the left syde. And the lauer set by the foote

on the righte hande towarde the south.

And hit was made postes also and shoules and basins, & so finished be all the worke, that kyng Salomon caused to be made in the house of the LORD: namely þe two pilers, and the rounde knoppes aboue upon the two pilers, and the two wythen ropes to couer the two rounde knoppes upon the pilers. And the foure hundred pomgranates on the two wythen ropes, euer two rowes of pomgranates vnto euery rope, to couer the two rounde knoppes upon the pilers. And the ten scales, and ten ketels thereon, and the laver, and twolue bullockes vnder y lauer. And the postes, shoules and basens. And all the ornementes which hit was made vnto kyng Salomon for the house of the LORD, were of pure metall. In the countrey by Iordane, caused the kyng them to be molten in thide earth, betwene Succoth and Zartban. And Salomon let all the apperall be vntweyed, because the metall was somuch.

Moreover Salomon made all the apperall that belonged vnto the house of the LORD: namely a golden altare, a golden table that the shewbread laye on, fyue censelstiches on the righte hande, and fyue censelstiches on the lefte (before the quere) of pure golde, w flouris, lampes and snuffers of golde, therto flat peeces, charges, basens, spones and censours of pure golde. And the booke of þe doore on the insyde of the house in the most holy, and in the doore of the house of the cypile of the LORD were of golde.

Thus all the worke that kyng Salomon made in þe house of the LORD, was finished. And Salomon brought in that his father Dauid had sanctified, of syluer and golde and ornementes, and layed it amonge the treasures of the house of the LORD.

The viii. Chapter.

¶ Then gathered kyng Salomon all þe Elders in Irael together, all the rulers of the trybes and prynces of the fathers amonge the children of Irael, vnto Ierusalem, to byngge vp the Arke of the covenante of the LORD, out of the cite of Dauid, that is Zion. And there refused vnto kyng Salomon all the men in Irael, at the half in the month Shebanim, that is þe second month. And when all þe Elders of Irael came, the prestes toke the Arke of the LORD, and broughte it up, and the Tabernacle of witness, and all the ornementes of the Sanctuary that were in the Tabernacle. This dyd the prestes and the Levites.

And kyng Salomon and all the congregation of Irael þe were gathered vnto him, wente with him before the Arke, and offris shepe and bullockes, so many, that they coulde not be nombred ner tolde.

So the prestes broughte the Arke of the LORDS covenante vnto hir place, as in to þe Quere of the house in the most holy under þe wynges of the Cherubins. For þe Cherubins spak our their wynges in the place where the Arke stode, and couered the Arke and the staves thereof from aboue. And the staves were so longe, that þe knoppes of them were sine from the Sanctuary before þe quere, but on the one syde were they not sine, and they were there vnto this daye.

And in the Arke there was nothinge, but only the two tables of stone, which Moses had layed therein at Horeb, when þe LORD made a covenante with the chylde of Irael, what tyme as they were departed out of the lande of Egypt.

But when the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary, a cloude fylled the house of the LORD, so þe prestes coulde not stonde: euen the office for the cloude: for the glory of the LORD fylled the LORDS house. Then sayde Salomon: The LORD sayde, that he wolde dwell in a bark cloude. I haue buylded an house, to be an habitation vnto thea face, þe thou mayest dwell therfor euer. And þe kyng turned his face, & blessed all the congregation of Irael. And all the congregation of Irael stode, & he sayde: Praise be the LORD God of Irael, which promised by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, and by his haue haue fulfilled it, and sayde: Since the daye þe I broughte my people of Irael out of Egypt, howe I chosen no cite amonge all the trybes of Irael, to buyde me an house, that my name might be there. But Dauid haue I chosen, to be ouer my people of Irael.

And in dede my father Dauid was mynded to buyde an house vnto the name of the LORD God of Irael: inerthele the LORD sayde vnto my father Dauid: Where as thou wast mynded to buyde an house vnto my name, thou hast done well, that thou art so aduised. Howbeit thou shalt not buyde the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loyns, he shall buyde an house vnto my name. And the LORD hath performed his worde that he spake: for I am come vp in my father Dauids steade, and sit upon the seate of Irael, as the LORD sayde: I haue buylded an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israel: and there haue I admyred a place for the Arke, wherein is the LORDES conuenant, which he made with our fathers, when he broughte them out of y lande of Egipte.

And Salomon stode before the altare of theLORDE in the presence of the whole congregation of Israel, and heide out his hands as cometh beauen, and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, there is no god like the, neither aboue in heauen, ner beneath vpo earth, thou that bepest comant and mercy for all thy seruantes that walke before y with all thy hart, thou that hast kepte promyses with my father Dauid thy seruaunt: With thy mouth thou saydest it, and with thy hande hast thou fulfilled it, as it is come to passe in this daye. Now LORDE God of Israel make good vnto my father Dauid y seruaunt, that which thou hast promysed him, and sayde: Thou shalt not wante a man before me to sit vpon the seate of Israel, yf thy childre kepe their waye, so y they walke before me like as thou hast walked before me. Now thou God of Israel, let y worde be verified, which thou hast promysed vnto my father Dauid thy seruaunt.

For thy sake thou y God dwelleth vpon earth: Beholde, the heauens and the heauens of all heauens maye not containe the: how shalde then this house do it, that I haue builded? But came the vnto the praye of thy name, and to his supplicacion: O LORDE my God, that thou mayest heare the thankes, praye and prayer, which thy seruaunt maketh before the this daye, so that thine eyes be open ouer this house mighte and mercie: My name shall dwell there. That thou mayest heare the prayer which thy seruaunt maketh in this place, and heare the intercession of y seruaunt and of thy people of Israel, which they shall make here in this place of thy habitacon in heauen: and when thou hearest it, be gracious.

When any man synneth agaynst his neyghbour, and catcheth vpon him an ooth whereby he byndeth him selfe, and y ooth cometh before thine altare in this house, then heare thou in heare, and se that thy seruaunt haue right, to confirme the vngodly, and to bringe his waye vpon his owne head, and to iustifie the righteous, to geue him accordinge to his righteousnes.

When thy people of Israel is synneres lesse their enemies (whyche they haue synned agaynst the, and yf they came vnto the

and knowlege thy name, and make their prayer and intercession vnto thee in this house, the heare thou them in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people of Israel, and bringe them agayne into the lande, y thou hast geuen vnto their fathers.

When the heauen is shut vp, so yf rayneth not (so yf moche, as they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they make their prayer in this place, and knowlege thy name, and turne from their synnes whiche thou troublest them, heare thou them then in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synnes of thy seruaunt, and of thy people of Israel, that thou mayest shewe them the good waye, wherein they shulde walke, and let it rayne vpon the lande that thou hast geuen thy people to inheritaunce.

When a dreth, or pestillence, or drought, or burninge, or grethopper, or cantripiler, is in their lande, or when his enemy layeth lege to his portes in the lande, or when any other plague or discaise happeneth, who so ener then maketh his prayer and peticion, whether tobe any other man or thy people of Israel (which the are aware of their plague) euery one in his hart, and spiebeth out his hande vnto this house: Heare thou then in heauen in the seate where thou dwellest, and be mercifull, so that thou geue euery one accordinge as he hath walked, like as thou knowest his hart (for thou only knowest the hart of all the children of men) that they maye allwaye feare the, as longe as they lye in the lande, which thou hast geuen vnto our fathers.

And when any stranger, that is not of thy people of Israel, cometh out of a farre countrie for thy names sake (for they shall heare of thy greace name, and of thy mighte habde, and of thy ouerstretcht army) and cometh to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then in heauen, euen in the seate of thy dwellinge, and do all for the which that stranger calleth vpon thee, euen all the nation: vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and that they maye feare the, as thy people of Israel do: and that they maye knowe, howe that this house which I haue builded, is named after thy name.

When thy people go forth to the battayll agaynst their enemies, the waye that thou shalt sende them, and shall paye vnto the LORDE to make the waye of the crosse which thou hast chosen, and towards the house that I haue builded vnto thy name, heare thou then their prayer and peticion dered them out to be an inheritance vnto thy selfe, from amonge all the nations vpon earth, accordinge as thou saydest by Moyses thy seruant, when thou broughtest oure fathers out of Egipte.

to. 12. a. ⁊ And whā Salomon had ended all this prayer and peticion before the LORDE, he rose vp from the altare of the LORDE, and lefte of fremtynge and holdynge out of hande towarde heauen, and stode and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with loud voyce, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE which hath geuen rest vnto his people, accordinge as he sayde. There hath not one sayed of all his good wordes, which he spake by his seruant Moyses. The LORDE oure God be with vs, as he hath bene with oure fathers, and forsake vs not, nether withdrawe his hande frem vs, but haue oure hearts vnto him, that we maye walke in all his wayes, and kepe his commandementes, ordinaunces and lawes, which he commaun-

Par. 7. a. And whā Salomon had ended all this prayer and peticion before the LORDE, he rose vp from the altare of the LORDE, and lefte of fremtynge and holdynge out of hande towarde heauen, and stode and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with loud voyce, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE which hath geuen rest vnto his people, accordinge as he sayde. bed oure fathers. And these wordes wherwith I haue made my peticion before the LORDE, come nye vnto the LORDE oure God daye and nyght, that he maye execute iudgment for his seruant: and for his people of Israel, every one at his tyme: that all nacions vpon earth maye knowe, that the LORDE is God, ⁊ that there is none other. Let youre heart be pacifere with the LORDE oure God, to walke in his statutes, and kepe his commandementes, as it is the daye.

And the kyng with all Israel his people offered sacrifice before the LORDE. And Salomon offered beed offerynges (which he offered vnto the LORDE) two and twenty thousand oxen, and an hundred ⁊ twenty thousand shepe. So the kyng and all the diam of Israel dedicated the house of the LORDE. The same daye byd the kyng dedicate the myddelmost turre, which was before the house of the LORDE: that he might there performe the burnt offerynges, wasser offerynges, and the fat of the beed offerynges: for the basen altare the stode before the LORDE, was to litle for the burnt offerynges, wasser offerynges, and for the fat of the beed offerynges.

And at the same tyme made Salomon a solempne feast, and all Israel a greete congregacion with him, from the border of the math vnto the ryuer of Egipte, before the LORDE oure God, seven dayes, and yet seven dayes, that were fourtene dayes. And on the eighth daye he let the people go. And they blessed the kyng, and wente vnto their tentes reioysinge and with a merry heart, because of all the good that the LORDE had done vnto Damb his seruant, ⁊ to his people of Israel.

The IX. Chapter.

¶ When Salomon had finished the buyldinge of the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and all that his desyre and pleasure was to make, the LORDE appeared vnto him the seconde tyme, euen as he appeared vnto him at Gibeon. And the LORDE sayde vnto him: I haue heerd thy prayer and peticion, that thou hast made before me, and because I sanctified this house which thou hast buylde, that I maye see my name there for ever: and myn eyes and my heart shall be there all waye. And yf thou walke before me (as thy father Dauid walked) with a pacifere and a true heart, so that thou do all that I haue commaunded the, and kepe myn ordinaunces and lawes, the

and I stablish the seate of thy kyngdome in Israel for ever, according as I promyse thy father David, and sayde: Thou shalt not wante a man from the seate of Israel.

But if ye returne back from me, ye and your children, and kepe not my commandments and ordinances which I have layed before you, but go and serve other goddes, and worship them, then will I rove Israel out of the londe that I have given them. And of the house that I have hallowed unto my name, will I put awaye fro my face. And Israel shall be come a byworde and scallams ge all nations, and so shall this bye house: so that every one that goeth by shall be ashyed, and make an byssynge, and saye: Wherefore hath the LORD done thus unto this londe and to this house? Then shall it be answered:
Because they forsake the LORD their God, (which brought their fathers out of the londe of Egypt) and have received other god-des, and worshipped them, and served them.
Therefore hath the LORD brought all this ill upon them.

Now when the twenty yeares were ended, wherin Salomon buyded the two houses for the LORDS house and the kynges house, when unto Hiram the kyng of Tyre boughte Salomons Cedar trees & Pome trees, and golde after all his desire, then gave Hynge Salomon unto Hiram twentye cities in the countrey of Galile. And Hiram departed from Tyre to visite the cities which Salomon had given him, & they pleased him not, and he sayd: What manner of cities are these my brether that thou hast sent me? And he called them the londe of Cabul unto this daye. And Hiram sent unto the kyng, sixe four hundred weighte of Golde. And the same is the summe of the care, that kyng Salon broughte to the buyldinge of the house of the LORD, and his a wone house, & Mil-lo, and the walles of Jerusalem, and Gaser, and Megiddo, and Gaser.

So Pharaos kyng of Egypte came up, and wone Gaser, & went it with Hynge, & steepe the Canaanites that dwelt in the cite, & gave it for a gift unto his daughter Salomons wife. So Salomon buyded Gaser, & the londe Bethoron, and Balaich and Thamar, in Judem, in the londe, & all the cities of the countrey that Salomon had, and all the cities of the chareetes, & all the cities of the basemen, and what he pleased him to buyde in Jerusalem, in Libanus, & in every coun-trei of his domynion.

And all the rannaum of the people of the Amorites, heptites, Phereites, Gentites and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel, their children which they left behynde them in the londe (whom the children of Israel coulde not utterly destroye) chose byd Salomon make embassaries unto this daye.

But of the children of Israel he made no bondmen, but let them be men of warre, and his servautes, and prynces, and Englites, and over his charetes and basemen. And the officers which were over Salomons busynesse, were sixe hundred and fiftye, which ruled the people, and performed the worke.

And Pharaos daughter wente up from the cite of Daud, in to hir house: which he had buyded for her. Then buyded he Mil-lo like this. And the tymes in the yeare byd Salomon offre burnt offerynges and dees offerynges upon the altare: that he had buyded unto the LORD, and burnt incense upon it before the LORD, and so was the house ended and synished.

And Salomon made shippes also as Ezeon Geber, which they byd by Elorh beyde the Red Sea shippes in the londe of the Idomites.
And Hiram sent his servautes by shippes, which were shipmen, and had experience of the Sea, with Salomons servautes, and they came unto Ophir, and fetched from thence one & twentye score hundred weighte of golde, and brought it unto Salomon.

The X. Chapter.

Now when kyng Salomon came of the name of the LORD came to the care of the Quene of the Arabia, she came to please him with darts sentences.
And she came to Jerusalem with a marvellous greace creayne, with camels which bare spices, and much golde, and precious stones.
And when she came in to kyng Salomon, she spake unto him all that was in hir heart.
And Salomon tolde her every thinge, and the kyng had nothyng in secreete, but he tolde it her. But when the Quene of ri-che Arabia sawe all the wysdome of Salomon, and the house that he had buyded, and the meace of his table, and the walling ge of his servautes, & the offyce of his mi-nistres, and the ir garmentes, and his butlers and the burnt offerynges which he offered in the house of the LORD, she wonderd exceedingly, and coulde no longer refrayne, Et iij

but sayde vnto the kyng: It is true that I haue herde in my londe of thy behaunour and of thy wysdome. And I woulde not beleue it, tyll I came and sawe it with myne eyes: and beholde, the halfe hath not bene tolde me.

Then haust more wysdome and good, the the same is that I haue herde. Happte are thy people and thy seruantes, that alwaie stonde before the, and heare thy wysdome. Right be the LORD thy God, which had such a pleasure vnto the, that he set the vpon the state of Israel: because he hath alwaie loued Israel, and hath set the to be kyng, that thou shouldest manayne iustyce and equyte.

And he gaue the kyng syxt score hundred weighte of golde, and very much spycer, and precious stones. There came neuer so much spycer thither, as the Quene of riche Arabia gaue vnto kyng Salomon. And Hiarams shippes, which caried golde out of Ophir, broughthe maruelous much costly ymber and precious stones from Ophir. And of that costly ymber the kyng caused to make pilers in the house of the LORD, and in thynge houses, and harpes and Psalteries for the Musicians. There came nemoer soch costly ymber, nerher was it seie vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue the quene of riche Arabia, all that she desired and asked, besides that which he gaue her of a frye bande. And she returned, and departed in to hir lande with hir seruantes.

The golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was nyne and thyrty score hundred weighte, besides that which came of chapmen, marchauntes and Apoecaries, and of the nexte kynges, and of the mighty men in the londe. And kyng Salomon caused to make two hundred spares of beaten golde sixe hundred peces of golde pur he to euery spare: and thir hundred shylde of th best golde, euen the pounde of golde vpon euery shylde. And the kyng put them in the house of the wod of Libanus.

And the kyng made a greate state of Query, and outlayed it with most precious golde. And the state had sixe steepe, and th heade of the state was rounde behynde. And there were two postes to leane vps on both the sydes of the state, and two Lyons stode vpon the leanyng postes, and twolue Lyons stode vpon the sixe steepe on both the sydes. Each one hath not bene made in eny kyngdome. All kyng Salomons dreyng vessels were of golde, and all the vessels in the house of y wod of Libanus were of pure golde also: for Israel was not regarded in Salomons tyme. For the kynges Seruantes th sayed vpon the See with th shippes of Iram, came once in the yere, and broughth golde, syluer, Query, Apes, and Peccora.

Thus was kyng Salomon greater in riches and wysdome, then all the kynges vpon earth: And all the wolde desired to se Salomon, that they mighte heare the wysdome which God gaue him in his hert. And thou broughthe him yearly euery man his pusses, vessels of syluer and golde, rayment and harness, spycer, horkes and Mules. And Salomon broughthe charrettes and hoisemen together, so that he had a thousande and fou hundredth charrettes, and twolue thousande hoisemen: and those he put in th charre team, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.

And the kyng broughthe it to passe, that there was as much syluer at Jerusalem as in the sea: and as many charrettes as there were vnto the figge trees in the valleyes. And Salomons hoises were broughthe out of Egypte, and th Aca: for the kynges marchauntes stode them from Aca for money. And a charre came vp out of Egypte for sixe hundredth sheles of syluer, and an hoise for an hundred and fiftye. Thus were they broughthe also in to the kynges of the hebrizes and to the kynges of Siria by their handes.

The XI. Chapter.

WHEN kyng Salomon loued many outlandish women, th Pharaon daughter, and women of Moab, of Ammon, of Edom, of Sidon, and of heathen of the seynacions, that the LORD spakke of vnto the children of Israel: So noc ye vnto them, neither noc them come vnto you: they shal surely bowe youre hertes after their goddes: And these dyd Salomon encluye with affliccion. And he had strem hurderh wyues and his wyues turned his hert alyse. And when he was now elde, his wyues bewod his hart after straunge goddes, so that his hert was not whole with the LORD his God, as was the hert of Dauid his sacher.

So Salomon walked after Astarte the god of the Sidonians, and after Moloch the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomon dyd th which displeasid the LORD, and folowed not yf LORD to yf vnto as dyd his sacher Dauid. The dyuylde Salomons an hie place vnto Chemos the abhominacion of th Moabites: vpon the mounte th lynch before Jerusalem: and vnto Moloch th Administration of the Ammonites.

This by Salomon for all his overlords was, which burnt incense, and offered unto their goddes. But the LORDE was wroth at Salomon, because his heart was turned aside from the LORDE God of Israel, which had two tymes appeared unto him, and commanded him, that he shulde not walke after other goddes: and yet kepe he net that the LORDE commanded him. Therfore sayde the LORDE vnto Salomon: Forsomuch as this is done with the, and hast not kept my commaund and myne ordinaunces, which I commanded the, therfore wyll I also plaucke thy kyngdome from the, and ge-ue it vnto thy seruante: Nevertheless in thy eye wyll I not do it, for thy father Dauid sate, but from the hande of thy sone wyll I plaucke it. So wyll I not plaucke thy kyngdome cleane awaye. One tyme wyll I geue it vnto thy sone, for Dauid my seruantes sake, and for Iherusalems sake which I haue chosen.

And the LORDE raysed vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, euen Hadad the Edomite of the kynges rde, which was in Edom.
For when Dauid was in Edom, and Ioa-ab the chiefe captayne wente up to bury the slayne, he smote all the males in Edom. (For Ioaab remayne there syre monethes and all Iherusalem he had reed out all the males that were in Edom.) Then fled Hadad, and certain men of the Moabites with him, of his fathers seruantes. As for Hadad, he was a yonge man.

And they gat them vp fro Madian, and came vnto Paran, and toke men with them out of Paran, and came in to Egypt vnto Pharao the kyng of Egypt: which gaue him an house and certayne wyales appoy-nted gaue him a countre. And Adab sum-the graue fauoure in the sighte of Pharao, so that he gaue him to wyte euen the sister of his owne wyfe Chapheres the Quene. And Chapheres sister bare him Genubath his sone, and Chapheres nourished him vp in Pharaos house, in so moch that Genubath was in Pharaos house amonge Pharao s children.

Now whan Hadad herde in Egypt, that Dauid was falle on slepe with his fathers, and that Ioaab the chiefe captayne was deed, he sayde vnto Pharao: Let me go in to my countre. Pharao sayde vnto him: What labor thou with me, that thou wilt go in to thy countre: he sayde: No tyme, but yet let me go.

God raysed him up another aduersary also, one Rezon the sonne of El Joba, which fled from his lord Hadad the kyng of Saba, and gathered men agaynst him, and was a captayne of the men of warre when Dauid smote them: and they wente vnto Damaucus and dwelt there, and reigned at Damaucus, and he was Israels aduersary as long as Salomon luyed. This is the harme that Hadad suffred: therfore had he euill will at Israel, and was kyng ouer Israel.

Now our Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephraite Salomons seruante (and his mothers name was Zeruga, a reprobke; lise vp his hande also agaynst the kyng. And this is the cause wherfore he lise vp his han-de agaynst the kyng: When Salomon buyd the silde, he stee vp a gappe in the cite of Dauid his father. And Jeroboam was a me of armes. And when Salomon sawe that it was a meece yonge man, he set him ouer all the burthens of the house of Ioseph.

But at the same tyme it occurred, that Jeroboam wente out from Iherusalem, and the prophet Abias of Silo founde hym by the waye, and he had a new clove vpon hym, and they two were alone in the silde. And Abias toke holde of the new clove that he had on, and rente the same in to twolue pecces, and sayde vnto Jeroboam: Take thou cert peces vnto the.

For thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Beholde, euen thus wyll I rente the kyngdome from the hande of Salom, and wyll geue the ten trybes. One tyme shall he haue for my seruante Dauid sake, and because of the cyt of Iherusalem, which I haue chosen one of all the trybes of Israel:
for they haue forsaken me, and worshipped Ashtorech the god of the Sidonians, Cha-mos the god of the Moabites, and Malch the god of the children of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to fulfill my pleasure, myne ordinaunces, and lawes, as thy Dauid his father.

Now with this mynge I wyll not take the whole kyngdome from out of his hande, for yet make him a pryncce as longe as he luyeth for my seruant Dauid sake, as hath I byd chose, which kepte my commaundmentes & ordinaunces. From out of the hande of his sone wyll I take the kyngdome, and wyll ge-ue it vnto thybes vnto the, and eue vnto his sonne, that Dauid my seruante maye alwaye haue a lanternne before me in the cite of Ieru-salem, which I haue chosen, that I maye sit my name there. Therfore wyll I take the now, to raygne ouer all that thine her: desy-rech, and thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel.

 ¶ If thou follow: now all that I shall com-mande the, and walke in my waye, and fulfill my pleasure to kepe myne ordinaun-ces and commaundementes, as dyd my seruauit Dauid, then wyl I be with the, and buylde the a sure house, as I buylde vnto Dauid, and wyl geue Israel vnto the and therewith wyl I subdue the stee of Dauid, but not for euermore. But Salomon soughte to kyll Jeroboam. Then Jeroboam gat him vp, and fled in to Egipte to Sisak the kynge of E-gipte, and remayned in Egipte, vntill Salomon dyed.

What more there is to saye of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of Salomon.
 The tyme that Salomon was kynge at Jerusalem ouer all Israel, is fortye years. And Salomon fell on slepe with his father, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XII. Chapter.

¶ All Roboam went vnto Sichem, for all Israel was come to Sichem to make him kynge. And whan Jeroboam of some of Etebat herde that, while he was yet in Egipte. (whither he was fled for Salomon) he came agayne out of Egipte, and they sent for him, and called him. And Jeroboam with all the congregacion of Israel came and spake to Roboam, and sayde: Thy father made ouer you the harde bondage: make thou now the harde bondage and the sore yocke lighter, and we wyl submyt oure selues vnto the. He sayde vnto them: So your waye vnto the thirde daye, and then come to me agayne. And the people went their waye.

And Roboam the kynge helde a counsell with the Elders that stode before Salomon his father while he liued, & he sayde: What is your counsell, that we maye geue this people an answer? They sayde vnto him: If thou do this people's pleasure to daye, and folowe their mynde, and heare them, and geue them good wordes, then shal they be obedient vnto the as long as thou liuest.
 ¶ Therupon he soughte the counsell that the Elders had geuen him, and aſked counsell at the yonge men which were growne vp with him, and stode before him.

¶ And he sayde vnto them: What is your counsell that we maye answer this people which haue sayde vnto me: Make the yocke lighter, that thy father hath layed vpon us. And the yonge men that were growne up with him, sayde vnto him: Where as the people haue sayde vnto the: Thy father hath made ouer you a sore, make thou it easie for vs. Thus shal thou saye vnto them: My litle synger shall be thicker then my fathers loynes. Now, my father layed a yocke vpon you, but I wyl yet laye more on: My father correcte you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions.

So vpon the thirde daye came Jeroboam with all the people vnto Roboam, as the kynge had appoynted and sayde, come agayne on the thirde daye. And the kynge gaue the people an harde rough answer, and forsoke the counsell that the Elders had geuen him, and talked with them after the counsell of the yonge men, and sayde:
 My father made your yocke sore, but I wyl make it yet sorer vpon you. My father correcte you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions. Thus the kynge solorde the peoples mynde, for he was turned to see the WORDE, that he mighte stablishe his word: which he spake by Achas of Sidon Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

But whan all Israel sawe that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people gaue the kynge an answer, and sayde: What punction haue we then in Dauid or in his house in the sonne of Isai? For the co thy tents O Israel. Lo, thou now to thy house Dauid. So Israel wente vnto their tents.
 As for Roboam, he reigned but ouer the children of Israel, which dwelle in the cite of Iuda. And whan the kynge Roboam sawe that the Eiders the reuengatherer, all Israel stoned him to deathe. But the kynge Roboam strenghted himselfe, and gat him vp vnto a charret, to fle vnto Ierusalem. Thus departed Israel from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

¶ Now whan all Israel herde, that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent for him to the whole congregacion, and made him kynge ouer all Israel. And no man followed the house of Dauid, save onely them that be of Iuda.
 ¶ And whan Roboam came to Ierusalem, all the house of Iuda and the city of Ben Iamin (even an hundred and foure thousande chosen men of armes) gathered them selfes together to fight agaynst the house of Israel, & to bringe the kynge agayne vnto Roboam of some of Salomon.

But the word of God came to the man of God, and sayde: Speake thou

12 Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Iuda, and to all þe house of Iuda and Ben Iamin, and to the other people, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Ye shall not go vp and fighte agaynste youre brethren the children of Iſrael. Let every man go home agayne, for this is my worde. And they herke not vnto the worde of the LORDE, and cur not backe, to go their waye, as the LORDE sayde. But Roboam hath yd Sicheon vpon mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein, and departed thence, and builded Penuel.

13 Jeroboam thoughte in his herte: The kingdome shall fall agayne now vnto the house of Dauid, if this people go vp to offer in the LORDES house at Ierusalem, and so shall the herte of this people turne to the lord Roboam kynge of Iuda, and the shal they slaye me, and fall agayne to Roboam kynge of Iuda. And the kynge helde a counsell, and made two golden calves; and sayde vnto them: It is to much for you to go to Ierusalem: beholde, there is chy God (O Iſrael) which broughte y out of Egipte. And the one hee at Bethel, & the other in Dan. And this dede turned to synne, for the people wente before the one vnto Dan.

14 He made an house also in the hylle place, and made priestes of the smallest in the people, which were not of the childre of Leui. And vpon the fifteene daye of the egipte moneth he made an holy daye, like as the solempne feast in Iuda, and offered vpon the altare. This daye hee at Bethel, in doynge sacrifice vnto the calves which he had made, and at Bethel hee ordeyned the priestes of the hylle place that he had made: and offered vpon the altare (which he had made) at Bethel, the fifteene daye of the eight moneth, which hee inuened of his owne herte. And hee made the children of Iſrael an holy daye, & wente vnto the altare to burne incense.

The xliij. Chapter.

15 And beholde, there came anii of God from Iuda (whowse the worde of the LORDE vnto Bethel, and Jeroboam stood by the altare to burne incense. And hee cryed agaynste the altare whowse the worde of the LORDE, and sayde: O altare, altare, thus saith the LORDE: Beholde, there shal be come vnto y house of Dan a sonne of Iosias by name: which on the shal offer the priestes of the hylle places, that burne incense vpon the, and mens bones shal be burne on the. And hee gaue a wonder token the same daye, and sayde: This is the token, that the LORD hath spoken, beholde, the altare shall ruse, and the ashes, that are thereon, shall be poured out.

16 And whan the kynge herde the worde of the man of God, that cried agaynste the altare at Bethel, he stretched out his hande by f altare, and sayde: Laye handes on him. And his hande that he stretched out, withered, and he couide not drawe it vnto him agayne. And y altare reue, and the ashes in it poured out from the altare, accordinge to the wonder token that the man of God had geuen by the worde of the LORDE.

17 And the kynge answered, and sayde vnto the man of God: O praye the face of the LORDE chy God, and make intercession for me, that my hande maye be restored vnto me agayne. Then prayed the man of God vnto the face of the LORDE. And the kynge hande was restored him agayne, and became as it was afore. And the kynge sayde vnto the man of God: Come home with me, and dwyne, and I wil geue the a reward.

18 But the man of God sayde vnto the kynge: If thou geuest me halfe thy house, I wil not come with the: for in this place will I neither eate bread, ner drynke water. For thus am I commauided, and thus is it sayde vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt eate no bread, and drynke no water, neither returne the waye that thou wentest.

19 And he departed another waye, and returned not agayne the waye that hee came to Bethel. But at Bethel there dwelt an olde prophet vnto whos his sonnes came, & tolde him all the wordes that the man of God had done that daye at Bethel, & the wordes that hee had spoken vnto the kynge. And the father sayde vnto them: Which waye is he gone? And his sonnes shewed him the waye that the man of God was gone: which came from Iuda. He sayde vnto his sonnes: Gaddell me the ass. And whan they had sawed him the ass, he rode thereon, and wente after the man of God, and founde him sittinge vnder an Olive tree, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the man of God that came from Iuda? He sayde: Yee.

20 He sayde vnto him: Come home with me, and eate bread. He sayde: I maye not turne backe with the, and come with the. Neither will I eate bread, ner drynke water with the in this place: for it is spoken vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt neither eate bread there, ner yet drynke water, neither shalt thou go agayne by the waye which thou wentest. He sayde vnto him: I myselfe am a prophet as well as thou, and an angell hath spoken with me by woode of the LORDE, and saide: Bynge him agayne with the chear he maye eat bried, and drynke water. But he lyed vnto him, and broughe him a gayne, so that he ate bried, and dranke water in his house.

And whan they sat at the table, the woode of the LORDE came to the prophet that had broughe him agayne, and cryed vnto the man which was come frō Iuda, and sayde: Thus saith the LORDE: Because thou hast bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, and hast not kept the commaundment that the LORDE thy God commaunded the, but hast turned backe, and hast eaten bried, and dranke water in the place, wher of he saide vnto the: Thou shalt necher eat bried ner drynke water, therfore shall not thy body come in to thy fathers graue.

And whan he had eaten bried and dranke the asse was sabled vnto the prophet whom he had broughe agayne. And whā he was gone, a lyon found him by the waye, and slew him, and his body was cast in y waye. And the asse stode by him, and the lyon stode by the body. And whā men wente by, they sawe the body cast in the waye, and the lyon ston dyng beside the body, and came and tolde it in the cite, where the olde prophet dwelt.

Whan the prophet which had broughe him agayne, herde that, he sayde: It is the man of God, that hath bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, therfore hath the LORDE dryuend him vnto the A yon, which hath rence him, and slayne him, and dyng to the woode that the LORDE spake vnto him. And he sayde vnto his sonnes: Saddle me the asse, and whan they had sabled it, he wente, and founde his body cast in the waie and the asse and the lyon ston dyng beside the body. The lyon had eatd nothyng of the body, necher had he coune the asse. Then toke the prophet the deed coate of the man of God, and layed it vpo the asse, and broughe it agayne in to the cite of the olde prophet, to mourne, and to burye him.

And he layed the coate in his awne graue, and they mourned for him: Alas my brother. And whan they had buried him, he saide vnto his sonnes: Whan I dye, burye me in the graue where the ma of God is buried, and laye my bones beside his bones. For it shal come to passe, that he crieth thoro the woode of the LORDE against Bethel, and agaynst all the houses of the hye places, which are in the citie of Samaria.

So wher a after this acte dyd not Jeroboam turne from his evil waye, but was perued, and made prestes of the hye places, of the smallest of the people: & the whome pleased him, his handes be fylled, & he was prest of the hye places. And thus turned he synne vnto the house of Jeroboam, to destroy him and to brynge him to naught.

The XIII. Chapter.

The same tyme was Abia the sonne of Jeroboam sicke, and Jeroboam saide vnto his wyfe: See the vp, and disguise the, so that no man perceaue that thou art Jeroboams wyfe, and go vnto Silo, wher there is the prophet Abias, which promysid me that I shulde be kynge ouer this people: and eate with the ten houes of bad and cakes, and a cuppe with honey, & giue him, that he maye tell the howe it shal go with the chyld. And Jeroboam wyf did so, and gat hir vp, and wente vnto Silo, and came in to the house of Abias. But Abias coulde not se, for his eyes were dysmaie for age. Neuerthelesse the LORDE sayde vnto Abias: He helde, Jeroboams wyfe cometh, to see matter at the for hir sonne, for he is sicke. Speake thou therfore vnto her thus: Thus saye I vnto the: Thou shalt be kynge ouer this people: but whan Abias herde the newe of hir sizz goynge in at the doore, he lookede me in thos wyfe of Jeroboam. Why shewest thou thy selfe so straunge? I am sent vnto you an harde messaunger.

So thy waye and tell Jeroboam: Thus saith the LORDE God of Israel: I haue cast out the from amonge the people, and for the to be pryncce ouer my people of Iuda, and haue rence the kyngeome from the house of Dauid, and geuen it the. But thou hast not bene as my seruant Dauid, which kept my commaundmentes, and walked after me with all his hert, so that he did only of this ge that was righte in my sighte: and thou hast done worse then all they that haue bene before the: thou hast gone thy waye and worshaped the other goddes, and molten ymagis, & ydone the vnto wath, and hast cast me behynde thy backe.

Beholde therfore, I wil brynge my synne vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wyllt eare from Jeroboam out him that maketh warer agaynst the wall, the prestour and is taken in Irael: and the posterite of the house of Jeroboam wyll I swepe out, as donge I swepte out, tyll he be cleane brynged to naught. For that dyeth of Jeroboam in the cite, the dogges shal eate him vp. And whan he dyeth in the felde, shall the fowles of the ayre set up, for the LORDE hath spoken it.

 c. See the up ther fore, and go home, & when thy feet enter in to fyre, the childe shall bye.
 And all Israel shall bewaile him, and burye him. For he only of Jeroboam shall come to the grave, because there is some good founde in him before the LORDE God of Israel, in Jeroboams house. But the LORDE shall rouse him up a kynge, which shall rote out of the house of Jeroboam in that daie. And what is it, it is now in hande all ready. And the LORDE shall smyte Israel, like as a rebe is moved in the water: & shall rote out Israel from this good londe, that he gave unto their fathers, & shall scatter them beyonde the water, because they have made their groves to prouoke the LORDE unto wrath. And Israel shall be gnen out because of the synne of Jeroboam, which hath synned him selfe, & made Israel to synne.
D And Jeroboams wife gat her up, wente his way, & came unto Tihira. And when she came vpo the thresholde of the house, she calde dyed, & they buried him, & all Israel made lamentacion for him, accordinge to the word of the LORDE, which he spake by his prophete. What more the is to saye of Jeroboam, how he fought & reigned, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Croni-cles of the kynge of Israel. The kynge that Jeroboam raigned, was erro & twentye yea-re. And he slepte with his fathers. And his sonne was kynge in his steade.
Roboaam & some of Salomon was kynge in Juda. One and fortye yere olde was Roboaam whan he was made kynge, & seven yere he raigned he at Jerusalem, in the city the LORDE had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, to set his name there. His mothers name was Naama an Ammonitisse.
 And Juda dyd he which displeasid the LOR-DE, & prouoked him to indignacion more the all that his fathers had done wth their synnes which they dyd: for they likewyse buylded them heyl places, pilers, and groues vpo one hyl, and amonge all grene trees. The were whoms gers also, & they dyd all the abominacions of the heythens, whom the LOR-DE broode out before the children of Israel.
In the fifth yere of kynge Roboaam came Sisaak kynge of Egipte up agaynst Jerusalem, & rote the treasure out of the house of the LORDE, & out of the kynge house, & all that mighte be gotten, & rote all the synthes of golde, which Salomon caused to be made. In steade wherof the kynge Ro-boam caused for to make synthes of stele, & commyted them vnder the handes of the these foremen, which kepte the doore of the kynge house. And as of the kynge went in to the house of the LORDE, the fore men bare them, and brought them agayne in to the fore menes chamber.

What more there is to saye of Roboaam, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynge of Juda. But betwene Roboaam & Jeroboam there was warre as long as they lyued. And Roboaam slepte with his fathers, & was buried wth his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naama an Ammonitisse.
 And his sonne Abia was kynge in his steade. The XV. Chapter.

In the eightenth yere of kynge Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, was Abia kynge in Juda, and reigned the yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Maacha, the daughter of Absalom, and she walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before him, and his hart was not perfecte wth the LORDE his God, as was the hart of Dauid his father. For because of Dauids sake dyde the LORDE his God geue him a lancere at Jerusalem, so he rayed his sonne after him, & maney: ed him at Jerusalem, because Dauid dyd the thinge he was righte in the sighte of the LOR-DE, and departed not from all that he commaunded him as long as he lyued (saunge in the matter wth Uria the hebitie). But there was warre betwene Roboaam and Jeroboam, as long as he lyued.

What more there is to saye of Abia, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynge of Juda. There was warre also betwene Abia and Jeroboam.
 And Abia slepte with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of Dauid. And Asa his sonne was kynge in his steade. In the twentieth yere of kynge Jeroboam ouer Israel, was Asa kynge in Juda, and reigned one & fortye yere at Jerusalem. His graund mothers name was Maacha the daughter of Absalom. And Asa dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, as dyd his father Dauid. And he remoued the remonger out of the londe, and put downe all the ydols that his fathers had made.
He put his mother from the mynistracion, that she had made vnto the synthes in the greue. And Asa reed out his Miplezech, and bent it in the biode Cedron: but the heyl places put he not downe. He was the hart of Asa perfecte wth the LORDE as long as be syned. And the syluer and golde, and vessels that his father had halowed, ⁊ such as was sanctified unto ⁊ house of the LORDE, that brought he in. And there was warre betwene Asa ⁊ Baesa the kyng of Israel, as long as they liued.

C Baesa the kyng of Israel wente up agaynst Iuda, and buylded Rama, that no man shulde go out and in of Asa syde the kyng of Iuda. Then toke Asa all the syluer and golde that was lesse in the treasure of the house of the LORDE, and in the treasure of the kynges house, and desyuered it in to his seruautes handes, ⁊ sent it vnto De

Re 14, 2 nabab the sonne of Tabimon the sonne of Bezion kyng of Siria, which dwelle at Damascus, and lee saye vnto him: There is a covenant betwene me and the, and betwene my father and thy father: therfore sende I the a present of syluer and golde, that thou shouldest breake the covenant which thou hast with Baesa the kyng of Israel, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadab agreed vnto kyng Asa, and sent his captaynes agaynst the cities of Israel, and smote Iion and Dan, ⁊ Abel Beth Maacha, and all Cinerath with the whole sonde of Tephthal. Whā Baesa herde that, he left of from buylding Rama, and wente agayne vnto Thirza.

D Kyng Asa caused it be proclaimed in all Iuda: here be no man excepte. And they toke awaye the stones and tymber from Rama, ⁊ therewith Baesa had buylded. And kyng Asa buylded Geba. Wen Jamin ⁊ Mispa therewith.

What more there is to saye of Asa, and of all his power, and all that he dyd, and of cities which he buylded, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda: sayunge that in his olde age he was distastid in his see. And Asa slepte with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the cite of Dauid his father. And Josaphat his sonne was kyng in his steade.

Pa. 11, 2

E Que Nabab the sonne of Jeroboam was kyng ouer Israel in the secōde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, ⁊ raigned ouer Israel two yere, and dyd euell in the sightes of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of his father, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne. Howbeit Baesa the sonne of Ahia of the house of Isachar conspired agaynst him, ⁊ smote him at Gibbethon, which was the Philistynes: for Nabab and all Israel laye sene to Gibbethon. So Baesa slene him in the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Iu-da, ⁊ was kyng in his steade. Now whā he was kyng, he smote all the house of Jeroboam, and let nothings of Jeroboams remayne that had bieth, till he had destroyed it, accordinge to ⁊ woode of the LORDE, whiche he spake by his seruante Ahia of Silo, because of Jeroboams synnes which he dyd, ⁊ made Israel synne withall: euen with ⁊ yuot ynge wherewith he displeasid the LORDE God of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Nabab, all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel, and there was warre betwene Asa ⁊ Baesa the kyng of Israel, as long as they liued.

In the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda was Baesa ⁊ sonne of Ahia kyng ouer all Israel at Thirza foure and twenty yere, and dyd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne.

Nevertheless the woide of the LORDE came vnto Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baesa, and saye: for so moch as I lised thee out of the dust, and made the pryncer ouer my people of Israel, and thou wast in the waye of Jeroboam, and madest my people ouer Israel sote to synne, to putt ke me into wraeth: thou wast their synne, beholde, therefore wilt I take awaye the possidite of Baesa, and the possidite of his house, and wilt sethine house euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. - he that of Baesa dyeth in the cite, the dogges shal deuoure him: and if he be kyng of him dyeth in the felde, the foules of the ayre shall eat him vp.

What more there is to saye of Baesa, ⁊ what he dyd, ⁊ of his power, beholde, it is wyrtten in ⁊ Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Baesa slepte with his father: ⁊ was buried at Thirza: ⁊ his sonne Ella was kyng in his steade. And the woordes of ⁊ LORDE came by the prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, ouer Baesa, and ouer his house, and agaynst all the euill that he dyd in the sighte of ⁊ LORDE, to prouoke him vnto wraith: ⁊ there the woordes of his handes: for that he became as the house of Jeroboam, and because he slewe: thus man.

The XVI. Chapter.

S In the six ⁊ twentieth yere of Nabab kyng of Iuda, was Ella the sonne of Baesa kyng ouer Israel at Thirza two yere. Nevertheless his seruante Sumri, ⁊ principall man ouer the halfe of ⁊ hercees cōspyed agāynst him. As for Elia, he was at Chirza, drunk & was dronke in þe booke of Aza the ruler of Chirza. And Simri came in, and slawe him in the seven & twentyeth year of Aza kyng of Juda, and was kyng in his steade. And whan he was kyng, and sat upon his seate, he smote all the boose of Baesa, & lefte noe so moch as one to make water agāynst þe wall: his blood & songes also & his frendes. Thus dyd Simri destroy all the house of Baesa, acordyng to the worde of the LORDE, which he spaketh ouer Baesa by the pꝛophet Jehu, because of all the synnes of Baesa and of Elia his sonne, which he dyd, and made Israel for to synne, to pꝛouoke the LORDE God of Israel vnto wrath thowgh their vanities. What more there is to saye of Elia, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the seven and twentieth year of Aza kyng of Juda, was Simri kyng vj. dayes at Chirza, and the people laye before Gibbethon of the Philistynes. But whan the people in the hooffe herde saye þe Simri had vsurped and slawe the kyng, then all Israel the same daye made Amri the chiefe capteyne kyng ouer all in the hooffe. And Amri went vp and all Israel with him from Gibbethon, and laye siege vnto Chirza. But whan Simri sawe þe cite shalbe betwixt: he went in to the palace in the kynges booke, & brunt it with þe kynges house, & dyed because of his synnes which he had commited, in that he dyd well in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes which he dyd, wherwith he made Israel to synne.

What more there is to saye of Simri, and how he conspired, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. At the same tyme were þe people deuyded in two parties: the one parte helde with Tibni the sonne of Ginath, & the other parte made him kyng. The other parte helde with Amri. But the people that helde with Amri, were mightier than the people which helde with Tibni of some of Ginnath. And Tibni dyed, and Amri was kyng.

In þe one and thirtiech year of Aza kyng of Juda, was Amri kyng ouer Israel twolye yeres, & raigned at Chirza sixe yeres. He boughte the mount of Samaria of Semer for two hundred weight of syluer, & builded vpon the mount, and called the cite which he builded, after þe name of Semer þe mount of þe mount of Samaria. And Amri dyd that which was well in þe sighte of the LORDE, and was worse then all they that were before him, and walked in all þe wayes of Jeroboam þe sonne of Nebat, and in his synnes, wherwith he made Israel to synne, so that they pꝛouoked the LORDE God of Israel vnto wrath in their vanities. What more there is to saye of Amri, & all that he dyd, and his power that he exercised, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Amri slepeth with his father, & was buried in Samaria, and Achab his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the eight & thirtiech year of Aza kyng of Juda, was Achab the sonne of Amri kyng ouer Israel, & raigned ouer Israel at Samaria two & twentie yeres, & dyd well in the sighte of the LORDE, more then all they þe were before him. And he thoughte it but a small matter to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat: and toke Jesabel the daughter of Eth Baal kyng of Sidon to wife, and wente and serued Baal, and wooshiped him. And vnto Baal he serued an altare in Baals house, which he builded him in Samaria, and made a groue: so that Achab dyd more to pꝛouoke the God of Israel vnto wrath, then all the kynges þe were before him in Israel.

At þe same tyme dyd Hiel of Bethel buylde Jericho: he cost him his first sonne Abiram, & he layed þe foundation: & his youngest sonne Segub, & he set vp the portes: Accordyng to the worde of the LORDE, which he spaketh by Josiah the sonne of Manu.

The xvij. Chapter.

Unto Elia & Thebeto one of the inhabytens of Gilead, saide vnto Achab: As truly as the LORDE God of Israel lyueth, whose seruante I am, there shal neyther rayne nor dew come this yere, excepte I speake it.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto him, and saide: Get the hence, and turne thee toward the east, and byde the byche ryuer Crith, which is ouer agāynst Iordane, and thou shalt drynte of the ryuer: and I shall cummyned the rauens, that they shal feede the there. He departed, and dyd accordyng to the worde of the LORDE, and wente his waye, and sat him downe by the ryuer Crith, which is ouer agāynst Iordane. And the rauens broughte him bread and flesch in the morninge and in the eveninge, and he drynte of the ryuer.

And it fortuneth after certayne dayes, that the ryuer was dryd: vp for there was no ray ne in the lds. Then came y^e woide of y^e LORDE vnto him, and sayde: * Get y^e vp, and go vnto Sarepta, which lieth by Sidon: for there haue I commaunded a wedome to make prouision for the.

 And he gat him vp, and wente vnto Sarepta. And when he came to the gate of y^e cite, beholde, the wedome was there, and gat hered skides. And he called her, and sayde: Get me a litle water in a vessell, y^e I maye drinke. And as she was goinge to fetch it, he cried vnto her, & sayde: Drynge me a mosfull of beed also in thine hande. She sayde: As truly as the LORDE y^e God lyueth, I haue no beed, but an handfull of flour in a pitcher, & a curtsey oyle in a cruse: and beholde, I haue gathered vp one or two skides, & will go and prepare it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate and be dr.

Eliaas sayde vnto her: Feare not, go thy waye, & do as thou hast sayde: yet make me first a mosfull of beed therof, & bringe it me forth: & a firwarder shalt thou make it for y^e & thy sonne. For thus sayeth y^e LORDE God of y^e Israel: The meel in the pitcher shall not be spent, & the oyle in y^e cruse shall not fayll, vnto the daye y^e the LORDE shal cause it for to raine vpon earth. She wente & dyd as Eliaas sayde. And he ate, & she also, and hir house a certayne season. The meel in the pitcher was not mysfith, and the oyle in the cruse fayled not, accordinge to the woide of y^e LORDE which he spake by Eliaas.

 And a fer therf aces the sonne of the wife of y^e heuif was sicke: and his sicknes was so excretinge foue, that there remayned no breath in him. And she sayde vnto Eliaas: What haue I to do with the, thou man of God? Art thou come in vnto me, y^e my synne shalde be kepte in remembriance, & that my sonne shalde be slayne? she sayde vnto her: Gene me thy sonne. And he rote him fro his lappe, & carried him vp into y^e chamber where he hum selfe dwelle, and layed him vpon his bed, & called vpon the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE my God, hast thou dealt so euell wth the wedow with whom I dwell, y^e thou wouldest slaye hir sonne? And y^e stretched oute him selfe ouer the chyldre this tymes, & called vpon the LORDE, and saide: O LORDE my God, let the soule of this chyldre come agayne into him. And the LORDE herde the voyce of Eliaas. And the soule of the chyldre came agayne vnto him, & he renyued. And Eliaas rote the chyldre, and broughte him downe from the chamber into the house and belyuered him vnto his mother, and joyce: De-hold, thy sonne lyueth. And the woman shewed vnto Eliaas: How knowe I that thou art a man of God, & that the woide of the LORDE is in thy mouth of a truth.

 And after a longe season came y^e woide of the LORDE vnto Eliaas in the thirde yere, & sayde: O how many shewe y^e selfe vnto Achab, & I maye cause it for to raine vpon earth. And Eliaas wente to shewe him selfe vnto Achab. But then was a greates berch iⁿ Samaria. And Achab called Iddia his chiefe offitour: (As for Iddia, he feared y^e LORDE greatly: for whan he sabel roted oute y^e prophetes of y^e LORDE, Iddia rote an C. prophetes, and byd them in a tree, here fiftye, & there fiftye, & prouyded for them wth beed and water.) Achab now sayde vnto Iddia: Go thou with the londe vnto all the wellles of water & ryuers, yf happanye maye fynde hay, & to save y^e boues & mules, & all the cattell pershe not. And they parted the sidles into the londe, to go thowen. Achab departed the one waye alone, and Iddia y^e other waye alone.

Now when Iddia was on y^e waye, he met him. And when he knewe him, he fell downe vpon his face, & sayde: Art not thou my loude Eliaas? he sayde: yee, go thy waye, and tell y^e lorde: beholde, Eliaas is here. But he sayde: What haue I offended, that thou wilt deliuer thy seruante in to the handes of Achab, that he maye slaye me? As truly as the LORDE thy God lyueth, there is no people nor king dome, but my loude hath sent thither to sike the. And when they sayde he is not here, he rote an oorch of the same byrg dome and nation, that they had not siked the. And now thou sayst: Go tell y^e LORDE: beholde, Eliaas is here. Now when I wente gene from the, the spere of the LORDE shalde take y^e waye, I can not tell wher he wente: yf I then came and tolde Achab, and fowde the noe, he shalde slaye me: But thy seruante feareth the LORDE from his yowth vp. Hath it noe bene tolde my loude whan y^e dyd, when Isabell slew the prophetes of the LORDE, howe that I had an hundred of the LORDES prophetes, here fiftye, and there fiftye in the caues, and prouyded for them with beed and water: And thou sayd now: Go thy waye, tell thy lorde: Eliaas is here, that he maye slaye me. Eliaas saide: As truly as y^e LORDE Isabell lyueth, be fore whan I sliede, I will shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. Then wente Iddia to meete Achab, and tolde him. And Achab wente for to meete Eliaas.

And whan Achab saue Elias, Achab saye to vnto him: Art thou he that troublest Irad: he sayde: I trouble not J'raael, but it is thou and thy fathers house, because ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the LORDE, and make a ster Baal. So to, sede such nom, and gather me all J'raael together vnto mount Carmell, and the foure him duth and fiftye prophetes of Baal, and the foure hundred prophetes of y' groue, which sete of J'esabels table. So Achab sent vnto all the children of J'raael, and gathered the prophets together vnto mount Carmell.

Then steepe Elias vnto all the people, and sayde: How longe halte ye on both y' sydes?
 If the LORDE be God, the make a ster him: but y' Baal be he, the folowe him. And the people gaue him no answer. The sayde Elias vnto the people: I onely am leftie a prophet of y' LORDE: but Baals prophetes are four C. and fiftie mē. Geue vs now two bullockes, and let them chose one bullocke, and hewe him in peeces, and laye him vpon the wod, and put so fyre theron so wil I take y' other bullock, and laye him vpon the wod, and put no fyre theron. After call ye then vpon the name of y' god, and I wil call vpon the name of the LORDE: so he which God now answereth with fyre, let the same be God. And all the people answered and sayde: This is righte. And Elias sayde vnto Baals prophetes: Chose ye one bullock, and do ye it first (for ye are many) and call ye vpon the name of youre god, and laye no fyre theron.

And they toke the bullock which he gaue them, and prepared it, and called vpon the name of Baal from the morning vntill the noone daye, and sayde: O Baal heare vo. But there was neither voyce ner answer. And they hepped aboute the altare, as their vse was to do. Then whan it was noone daye, Elias medd them, and sayde: Crye loud.
 For he is a god, peradventure he is misynge, or hath somwhat to do, or is gone some iour-ney, or happlye he slepech, so that he wolde be waked vp. And they cried loud, and prouoked the (alwa with knyues and bockens, as their maner was) yll y' bloud folowed. But whan y' noone daye was past, they prophetid vntill the tyme that the meat offeringe shoulde be offered, and there was neither voyce ner answer, ner one to regarde them.

Then sayde Elias vnto all the people: O me rather all ye people vnto me. And whan all y' people came to him, he repayred y' altere of the LORDE y' was broken, and toke twelve stones accordyngs to the nombre of y' rybes of the hillside of Jacob (vnto whom he woode of the LORDE) spake, and sayde: Thy name shal be J'raael, and of y' sydes he buylded an altare in the name of the LOR-DE, and made a pyre rounde aboute the altare, like two fououres in the come londe, and prepared the wod, and hewed y' bullock in peeces, and layed him vpon the wod, and sayde: Geth foure pitchers full of water, and poured it vpon the burnt offeringe, and vpon the wod. And he sayde: Do it yet once. And they dyd it once agayne. And he sayde: Do it y' thirde tyme.

 And they dyd it the thirde tyme. And y' water ranne aboute the altare, and y' pyre was full of water also.

And whan the tyme was to offer y' meat offeringe, Elias steepe forth, and sayde: O LORDE God of Abraham, of Isaac and of J'raael, let it be knowen this daye, that thou art God in J'raael, and J'ehy'suaime, and that I haue done all this accordyng vnto y' worde. Heare me O LORDE, O heare me, y' this people maye knowe, how that thou art the LORDE God, that thou mayest after warde come their heres. Then fell downe the fyre of the LORDE, and consumed the burnt offeringe, the wod, the stones and the earth, and licked vp the water that was in the pyre. Whan all the people sawe that, they fell vpon their faces, and sayde: The LORDE is God, y' LORDE is God. Elias sayde vnto them: Laye handes vpon Baal prophetes, y' none of them escape. And they toke them. And Elias broughte them downe vnto y' brook Eyon, and slene the ther.

And Elias sayde vnto Achab: Go vp, eate and drynke, for it soundeth as though it wolde be rayne sore. And whan Achab wote vp to eate and drynke, Elias ascended vp to the toppe of Carmel, and hewed him selfe downe to the earth, and put his heade betwene his knees, and sayde vnto his lad: Go vp, and loke toward the see. He wote vp and loke, and sayde: There is nothinge. He sayde: Go agayne toward the see. And at the sixth tyme he sayde: Behold be, there goeth vp a litle cloude out of the see, like a mans hande. He sayde: Go vp, and saie vnto Achab: Wynde y charret, & go downe, y the rayne ouertake the nor. And as a ma coude carrie him, the heauen was blacke w cloudes & wynde, & there came: a greate rayne. But Achab rode his waie, & departed vnto Iesrael. And the harte of y^e LORDE came vnto Elias, and he gyde his loynes, & ranne before Achab, tyll he came vnto Iesrael.

The XX. Chapter.

AND Achab rode Iesabel all y^e Elias had done, & he w^h he had slayne all Baals p^rophetes w^h the swerde. The sent Iesabel a messenger vnto Elias, sayenge: The goddes do this & that vnto me, y^e I remember aboute this tyme, make not thy soule as one of these. Then was he afraid, & gat him vp, & wente where he wolde, & came vnto Beisaba in Iuda, and leste his lad there. But he him selfe wente a daies journey in to y^e wylderne, & came in, & sat him downe vnder a Juniper tre, & wysshed vnto his soule y^e he might dye, & sayde: It is now ynough LORDE, take my soule, for I am no better then my fathers. And he layed him downe & slepe vnder the Juniper tre.

And beholde, y^e angell touchyd him & sayde vnto him: Stonde vp, and eat. And he leked aboute him, & beholde, at his heade there was a bied baken on the coles, & a crafte w^h water. And whan he had eaten and dronke, he layed him downe agayne to slepe.

B And y^e angell of the LORDE, came agayne the seconde tyme, & touchyd him, & sayde: Stonde vp, and eat, for thou hast a greate waye to go. And he arose, and ate and dronke, and wente on thow the strengthe of that meate. fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes, eue vnto Horeb: y^e mounte of God: and there he came to a caue, & abode there all nyghte.

And beholde the worde of the LORDE came to him, and sayde vnto him: What dost thou here Elias? He sayde: I haue bene zelous for the LORDE God Zebaoth: for the children of Iisrael haue forsaken thy covenante, and broken downe thine altares, and slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, and I am lesse onely, & they sette to take awaye my life. He sayde: Go south, and stonde vpon the mounte before the LORDE. And beholde, the LORDE w^hite ouer: and a greate mightie wynde, w^hich rouse the mountaynes, and brake the harde stones, came before the LORDE, but the LORDE was not in the wynde. After the wynde came there an earthquake, but the LORDE was not in the earthquake.

And after the earth quake there came a fyre, but the LORDE was not in the fyre. And after the fyre came there a still softe byssinge. Whan Elias herde that, he covered his face with his cloke, and wente forth, and hede in the doore of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: Whan hast thou here to do Elias?

He sayde: I haue bene zelous for the LORDE God Zebaoth: for the children of Iisrael haue forsake thy covenante, broken downe thine altares, slayne y^e prophetes w^h the swerde, & I onely am lesse, and they sette to take awaye my life. But the LORDE sayde vnto him: Go y^e waye agayne thow to the wylderne vnto Damascon, & go in, & anoynthe Isael kyng ouer Siria, & Zebaoth the sonne of Tamsi kyng ouer Iisrael, & Elisias y^e son of Saphar of Abel Methola to be prophete y^e seade. And it shal come to passe, y^e whoso escapeth the swerde of Hadael, Zebaoth slaye him, & whoso escapeth y^e swerde of Isha, Elisias shal slaye him. And I wil requite vnto me w^h III. men in Iisrael: namely, all y^e knes which haue not bowed the knes w^ho Baal, and every mouth y^e hath not tyfied.

And he departed thence, & founde Zebaoth Elisias y^e sonne of Saphar, plowman & wolue yode of oxen before him, & he had solde it as a m^oge the twolue. And Elisias wote vnto him, & cast his cloke vpon him. And he leste the oxen, & ranne after Elias, & sayde: Let me tyffe my father & my mocher, & then wil I folowe the. And he sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, & come agayne, for I haue some whar to do with the. And he ranne agayne from him, and coke a yode of oxen, and ofred it, and sod y^e flesch with the web of the oxen plowes, and gaue it vnto the people to eat, & gat him vp, & folowed Elias, and mynistrd vnto him.

The XX. Chapter.

AND Benadab y^e kyng of Siria gathered all his power, & there were two & thirtie kynges w^h him, & hoises & charrettes, and he wente vp, and layed siege vnto Samaria, & soughte agaynst it. And he sent messengers vnto Achab y^e kyng of Iisrael in to y^e cite, & causyd to saye vnto him: Thus saith Benadab: Thy suster & thy gold is myne also. The kyng of Iisrael answered & sayde: My lord O kynges, euen as thou hast sayde, I am thine, and all that I haue.

And the messengers came agayne, & sayde: Thus saith Benadab: For so much as I haue sent vnto the, sayenge: Thy suster & gildethy wynde z thy chyldre shalte thou ge a me, come w aboute this tyme wil I sen te my seruantes vnto the. þy they maye sech thye hoose and the hoose of thy subiecte: let what pleasaunt thinge thou hast, þ shalt take in their handes, and carrye away. So the kyng of y Israel called all þ elders of the lorde. z sayde: Mark well z se, wharwyl these thio mē siteth: he sent wnto me sou my wyues z chyldeu, for siluer z golde. I haue noe sayde him naye. Then sayde all the elders and all the people vnto him:

 Thou shalt not cōsente nei agree vnto him.
 And he spake vnto Denababa messaggers, Say vnto my lordes þ kyng: All þ thynge wherfor thou bydest finde vnto me y seruant at y fill, wil I do, but this can I not do. And þ messaggers wete, and tolde this againe. The sent Denabab vnto him sayte:
 The goddes do this and þ vnto me, yf the best of Samaria shalbe ynough, for euery one of my people to byngre me an handfull therof. But þ kyng of y Israel answered, z sayde: Tell him. & nor him þ putteth on y barens, make his booffe like him y hach put it of. Whā Denabab herde þ (as he was dymyng w the kynges in þ panylion) he syde vnto his seruantes: Set yō silues in awaye. And they see the silues in arait against

And beholde, there came a pio- (y) cue.
 ther vnto Achab þ kyng of y Israel, z sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Hast thou sene all this grete multitude: Beholde, this daie wil I deluyr the in to y hande, so þ thou shalt know, how þ I am þ LORDE. Achab sayde:
 I dymyng: he sayde: Thus sayeth the LOR-DE: Euen by the yongemen of the rulers of the londe. he sayde: Who shal orde the battaly: he sayde: Thou. Then mustered he the yonge men of the rulers of the londe, z the re were two hundred and two and thyrrie of them: z after the mustered he of the whole people of all the chyldre of y Israel, sent thou some men, and they wente out in the moone daye. As for Denabab, he dyanke and was dyonred in the panylion with the crew z thirtie kynges which were come to helpe him.
 And the yonge men of the rulers of the lon-de wente forth first.

Denabab sent forth, z they brought him word, z sayde: There come men out of Samaria. he sayde: Take them alyue, whether they be come forth for peace, or for warre.
 And whan the londe rulers yonge men were gone forth, and the booffe behynde them, ne they smote him þ came in his waye. And the Syrians fled, and y Israel followed after them. And Benadab the kyng of Syria escaped with hoors and hoimel. And the kyng of y Israel wente forth, and smote hoors and charrettes, and vnto a grete slaughter on the Syrians.

Then came there a prophete vnto the kyng of y Israel, and sayde vnto him: Wo thy waye and strength the, and take hede, and loke well what thou doest: for whan the ya-re is aboute, the kyng of Syria shall come agaynst the of this new. For the kyng of y Syrians seruantes sayde vnto him: These goddes are goddes of the mountaynes, the fore howe they gotten the victory.

But let vs sytche with them on the play-ne, and thou shalt see that we shal ouer come them. Do thou, put awaye the kynges euery one from his place, and set duces in their steades, and appoynte the an booffe as was that which thou hast lost, z hoors z charrettes as the other were, and let vs fight agaynst the in the plaine, and thou shalt see that we shal haue the victory. he cōsented vnto that they would do so.

Now was the yeare was gone aboute, Denabab appoynted the Syrians, and wente up towarde Aphe, to fighte agaynst y Israel, and the chyldre of y Israel mustered, and prouyded them silues with wyales, and wente to mee them, and pitched their cotes ouer agaynst them, like two litte flockes of goates but the londe was full of the Syrians.

And there came a man of God, and sayde vnto the kyng of y Israel: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because the Syrians haue sayde, that the LORDE is a God of the mountaynes and not a God of the valleyes, therfore haue I geuen all this grete heape in to thy han-des, that ye maye knowe how that I am þ LORDE. And the y pitched their cotes righ-tuer agaynst them seven dayes. But upon y seventh daye they wente together in to the battaly: and the chyldre of y Israel smote of the Syrians an hundred thousande force men in one daye, and the remaine fled to Aphe in to the cite, and the mall fell vpon the other stuen and twenty thousande men.
 And Denabab fled also vnto the cite in to a litte chamber.

Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: Be-holde, we haue herte that the kynges of the hoose of y Israel are mercifull pinges, let vs thesese put sack cloth aboute oure loyues, and holiers aboute oure neckes, z go forth to the kyng of y Israel, peradventure he shal let y leuie lyue.

And they put sack cloth aboute their loy- 3 nen, and halcers aboute their nedes, and came to the kynge of Israel, and sayde: Denadab thy seruante sayeth vnto the: O let my soule lyue. He sayde: yf he be yet al yue, he is my brother. And the men toke him spozily at his wordes, and expounded it for thim selues, and sayde: Denadab is thy brother. He sayde: Come and byngre him. The wozte Denadab forch vnto him, and he causid him to sit vpon the charre, and sayde vnto him: The vices that my father toke from thy father, wyl I gene the agayn. And make thou stretes for thyselfe at Samaria, as my father did at Samaria, so wyl I let the go with a bonde of peace. And he made a couenaunt with him, and let him go.

Then spake there a man amonge the dylliden of the prophetes vnto his neighbours by the woode of the LORDE: I praye the smite me. But he refused to smite him. Then said he vnto him, because thou hast not herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, beholde, therefore shall there a lyon synce the, whan thou goest for me: And whan he wente fro him, a lyon founde him, and slewe him.

And he founde another man, and sayde: I praye the smite me. And the man spose him, and wounded him. Then wente the prophet, and slepet vnto the kynge by the waye syde, and altered his face with asshes. And whan the kynge wente by, he cried vpon yf kynge, and sayde: Thy seruante wente forch in to the baccayll, and beholde, there wente one ashyde, and broughce a man vnto me, and sayde: Kyspe this man: yf he be myffid, thy soule shall be in steade of his soule, or els thou shalt weye doune an hundred weighte of syluer. And whyle thy seruante had here t there to do, he was awaye. The kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: It is thine owne iudgement, thou hast geuen it thyselfe.

Then put he the asshes from his face in all the haiff. And the kynge of Israel knewe him, that he was one of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast let the dammed man go, therfore shall thy soule be for his soule, and thy people for his people. And the kynge of Israel departed vnto his house, beinge troubled in his mynde and full indignacion, and came to Samaria.

The XXI. Chapter.

After these accens it forciued, that Naboth the Iesraelite had a vmyrde at Iesrael besyde the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake to Naboth, and sayde: Gene me thy vmyrde,

I wyl make me an herb garden therof, because it is so nye my house: I wyl gene the a better vmyrde for it: or yf it please the, I wyl gene the syluer for it, as much as thou wouth. But Naboth sayde vnto Achab: The LORDE let that be farre for me, that I shulde gene yf my fathers heritage. Thus came Achab home, beinge moued and full of indignacion, because of the woide that Naboth the Iesraelite had spoken vnto him, sayde: I wyl not gene the yf my fathers heritage. And he laied him downe vpon his bed, and turned his face ashyde, and ate no bread. Then Iesabel his wyfe came in to him and sayde vnto him: What is yf matter, whan thy spere is so cobbred, and that thou eatest no bread? He sayde vnto her: I haue spokyn to Naboth the Iesraelite, and sayde: Gene me thy vmyrde for money: or yf it please yf. I wyl gene the another for it. But he refused: I wyl not gene the my vmyrde.

Then sayde Iesabel his wyfe vnto him: What kingdome were in Israel, yf thou doste not? Stande up, and eate bread, I wyl geue the the vmyrde of Naboth the Iesraelite. And she wroce a lictur vnder Achabs name, and sealed it with his signet, and sent it vnto yf Elders and rulers in his cite, which dwelt aboute Naboth, and wroote thus in yf lictur: Proclame a fast, and set Naboth aboute in the people, and set two men of Belial before him, to testifye and saye: Thou hast blasphemed God and the kynge. And bringe him forch, and stone him to deach.

And the Elders and rulers of his cite, which dwelt in his cite, byd as Iesabel had commaunded them, accordinglye as she had wrytten in the lictur that she sent vnto them, and they proclamed a fast, and caused Naboth to sit alone amonge the people. Thus came the two men of Belial, and stode besyre him, and testifyed agaynst Naboth in presence of the people, and sayde: Naboth hath blasphemed God and the kynge.

Then broughce they him out of the cite, and stoned him to deach. And they sent Iesabel woide, sayenge: Naboth is stoned: yf to deach. Whan Iesabel herde that Naboth was stoned and deed, she sayde vnto Achab: Up, and take possession of the vmyrde of Naboth the Iesraelite, which he denyed to gene the for money: for Naboth hath no more but is deed. And whan Achab herde yf Naboth was deed, he refuzed to go downe to the vmyrde of Naboth the Iesraelite, and to take possession of it.

But the woode of the LORDE cometh

Elias the Theſſbite, and ſayde: See the vp, and go downe to mere Achab the kyng of Iſrae, which is at Samaria: behold, he is in Taboro vnyerde, in to the which he is gone downe to take poſſiſſion of it, and calleth thou with him, and ſpeake: Thus ſayeth the LORD E: Thou haſt ſlayne, and taken in poſſiſſion. And thou ſhalt calke moouer vnto him, and ſay: Thus ſayeth the LORD E: 141 • I am in the place where the dogges liued vp vnto Taboro bloude, ſhall the dogges liethey bloude alſo. And Achab ſayde vnto Elias: Haft thou euer founde me thine eneſe thou art euen ſolde to do euell in the ſighehouſe of Jeroboam ſonne of Nebat, and as the houſe of Baſa the ſonne of Ahia, becauſe of y prouocacion wherewith thou haſt picketed me vnto weath, and made Iſ-rael to ſinne.

And our Jeſabel ſaith the LORD E alſo
143 and ſayde: The dogges ſhal deuoure Jeſa-144 bel in y ſelde of Iſrael. • Who ſo of Achab byethin y cite, him ſhal the dogges eate vp:
and who ſo byeth in the ſelde, the ſoules vnder the heauen ſhall eate him vp. So cleane

DE: hath no man bene, as Achab: for his Jeſabel hath ſo diſtraued him, and he maketh him ſelfe a greace abhominacion, that he goeth a ſer Jools, accordyng vnto all as byd 146 the Amozites, • whom the LORD E expelled before the children of Iſrael.

But when Achab herbe theſe wordes, he reue his clothe, ⁊ put a ſack cloth on his body, ⁊ ſatſed, and ſlepe in ſack cloth, and wen-tr aboute hanginge downe his heade. And the wordes of the LORD E came to Elias the Theſſbite, ⁊ ſayde: Haft thou not ſene how Achab humbled him ſelfe before me: for ſo wooth now as he humbled him ſelfe in my ſight ueth: but by his ſonne his wil I byn-ge my ſonne vpon his houſe.

The XXX. Chapter.

148 Unto there paſſed ouer the yeaeres, that there was no warre betwene the Si-nians ⁊ Iſrael. • Dur in the thirde yea-re wente Joſaphat the kyng of Iuda downe to the kyng of Iſrael. And the kyng of Iſrael ſayde vnto his ſeruanttes: A none ye-not y Ramoth in Gilead is ouer: and we ſye ſtyll, and take it not out of the hande of the kyng of Syria. And he ſayde vnto Joſaphat: Wilt thou go with me to the battail vnto Ramoth in Gilead? Joſaphat ſayde vnto the kyng of Iſrael: I will be as thou my people as thy people, and my houſes as thy houſes. And Joſaphat ſayde vnto y kyng of Iſrael: Art thou daye at the wordes of the LORD E. Then the kyng of Iſrael gardered the prophetes aboute a ſoure hundred men, and ſayde vnto them: Shall I go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fighte, or ſhal I ſte-149 t alone: They ſayde: Go vp, ⁊ Dur ſhal be lyner it in eo y kynges hande. But Joſaphat ſayde: Is there not one prophet here more of y LORD E, that we maye aſe at him:

The kyng of Iſrael ſaide vnto Joſaphat 150 here is yet a man, one Mithaeas the ſonne of Iemla, at whom we maye aſe of the LORD DE: but I hate him, for he prophecieth me no good, but euell. Joſaphat ſayde: Let not the kyng ſaye ſo. It then called the kyng of Iſ-rael a chamberlayne, and ſayde: Byn-ge bi-ther ſoone Mithaeas the ſonne of Iemla. As for the kyng of Iſrael and Joſaphat ⁊ tinge of Iuda, they ſat ether of them vpon bis ſeate, at rayed in their garmentes in the place at y bore of the porte of Samaria, and all y prophetes prophecieth before the. And Sedechias the ſonne of Cnaana had made him houſes of yron, and ſayde: Thus ſayeth the LORD E: With theſe ſhale thou poſſiſſe at y Syrians, vnto thou byn-ge them to nau-151 ghere. And all the prophetes prophecieth liſenyſt, and ſayde: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, thou ſhale poſſere righte well, ⁊ the LORD E ſhal deliuer it in to the kynges hande. And the meſſaungere that wente to call Mithaeas ſayde vnto him: Beholde, The wordes of y prophetes are with one accorde good before the kyng, let thy woide therfore be as thair wordes, and ſpeake thou good alſo.

Mithaeas ſayde: As truly as the LORD E li-ueth, ſolde whate the LORD E ſayeth vnto me, 152 y wil I ſpeake. And when he came to the kyng, the kyng ſayde vnto him: Mithaeas, ſhal me go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fighte or ſhall we let it alone: he ſayde vnto him Yee, go vp, thou ſhale poſſere righte well, the LORD E ſhall gene it in to the kynges hande. But the kyng ſayde vnto him agayne: I charge y that thou ſaye no ether thinge vnto me but the truth, in the name of y LORD E. He ſayde: I ſawe all Iſrael ſeuered abrode vpon the mountaynes, as as the ſhepher that haue no ſhepherde. And the LORD E saide: haue these no loue: Let euery one turne home agayne in peace. Then sayde y kyng of Israel vnto Josaphat: Toldst thoue I f that he wolde prophecie me no good, but euell?

D He sayde: I haare now therefore the worde of the LORD: I sawe the LORD sate vpon his seate, and all the host of heauen sitting by him at his right hande & at his lefte. And the LORD saide: Who wil discease Achab to go vp, & fall at Ramoth in Gilead. And one sayde this, another that. Then were there forth a spere, & stode before the LORD. And sayde: I wyll discease him. The LORD sayde vnto him: Wherewith? he sayde vnto him: I wyll go forth, and be a false spere in the mouth of all his prophetes. He saide: Thou shalt discease him, and shalt be able to go forth and do so. Beholde now, the LORD hath geue a false spere in y mouth of all these y prophetes, and the LORD hath spoken well ouer the. Then stode forth Sechias the sonne of Anaas, and smote Michas vpon the cheke, and sayde: What, is the spere of the LORD departed from me, to speake with thee? Michas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt see in y daye, when thou shalt go fro one chamber to another to hyde the.

E The kyng of Israel sayde: Take Michas, and let him remayne with Amon the ruler of the cite, and with Joas the kynges sonne, and saye: Thus sayeth the kyng: Put this man in prison, and fede him with bread and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Michas sayde: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath not the LORD spoken chorow me. And he sayde: herken to all ye people.

So the kyng of Israel and Josaphat y kyng of Iuda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: Change thy clothes, and come in to y battayll in thine arate. The kyng of Israel changed his clothes also, and went in to the battayll. But the kyng of Siria commaunded the rulers of his charrettes (of whom there were two and thirtie) and saide: De shal fighte rather agaynst small men greater, but only agaynst the kyng of Israel. And when the rulers of the charrettes sawe Josaphat, they thoughte it had bene the kyng of Israel, and fill vpon him with fightinge. But Josaphat cried, So when the rulers of the charrettes sawe that it was not y kyng of Israel, they turned back fro him.

J A certain man bended his bowe hard, and shotte the kyng of Israel betwene the name and y longes. And he sayde vnto his charretman: Turne thine bowe, and carye me out of the host, for I am wounded. And y battayll was fore the same daie. And the kyng stode vpo his charre, agaynst the Siria and dyed in the eveninge, and the blood ranne from the wounde in to the myddes of the charre. And when the Sonne was come downe there was a proclamation made in the host, and sayde: Let euery one get him in to his cite, and to his countere. Thus the kyng dyed, and was brougheet vnto Samaria, and they buried him in Samaria. And when they reposed the charre in the pok of Samaria, y dogges licked his blood (but the harlottes washed him) according to the worde of y LORD which he saide.

What more there is to saye of Achab, & all y he dyd, and of the Xeruy house which he buylded, beholde, it is written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. So Achab slepte with his fathers, and his sonne Ihesias was kyng in his steade.

And Josaphat the sonne of Asa was kyng ouer Iuda in the fourth yeare of Achab kyng of Israel, and was fyne and thre yeare olde when he was made kyng, and reigned fyne and twentye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Absiba y daughter of Silbi, and he walked in all the wayes of his father Asa, & departed not there from. And he dyd that which was right in y sighte of the LORD, yet put he not awaye y high places, and y people offered and burnt in offerye vpon the hye places, and he had peace with the kyng of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Josaphat and the mighte that he exercised, and how he foughte, beholde, it is written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. He put out of the londe also the whoremongers that y were left, which remayned ouer in the tyme of his father Asa. And at that tyme there were no kynges in Edom. And Josaphat had caused to make shippes vpon the Sea, which shulde go to fetch golde in Ophir, but they wente not: for they were broken at Ezion Gaber. At that tyme sayde Achas the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruantes passe with thy seruantes in the shippes. But Josaphat wolde not. And Josaphat slepte with his fathers, and was buried in y cite of Dauid. And Joas his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The fyfth Chapter.

Achas the sonne of Achab was fyngyng ouer Israel at Samaria in the seuenth year of Josaphat tige of Iudaa, & reigned ouer Israel two yeres, & dyd which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of his father and of his mother, & in the waye of Jeroboam for sone of Achab, which made Israel for to synne. And serued Baal, and worshipped him, and displeasid the LORDE God of Israel, as his father dyd. The Moabites also fell awaye from Israel, when Achab was deed.

And Ochozias fell thoro of grace in his chaber at Samaria, and was deed sicke, and sent messaungers, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, and axe counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, whether I shall recouer from this sickness. But the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto Elias the Thesbite: Op, & go mets the messaungers of the fyngyng of Samaria, and saie vnto them: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to axe counsell at the god of Ekron? Therfore thus saye the LORDE: Thou shalt not come from the bed wheron thou lyest, but shalt dye the death.

And Elias came to Ochozias agayne. He sayde vnto the: Why come ye agayne? They sayde vnto him: There came vp a man in our waye, and sayde vnto vs: Go agayne to the kyng that hath sent you, and saye vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE: Is there no God in Israel, the god of Ekron? Is there no God in Israel, the god of Ekron? Therfore shalt thou not come from the bed wheron thou lyest, but shalt dye the death. He sayde vnto them: What manner of man was it that met you, and sayde this vnto you? They sayde vnto him: he had a rough heer upon him, and a leatheren gyrdell aboute his loymes. He sayde: It is Elias the Thesbite.

- C And he sint vnto him a capeayne ouer fyfye, with the same fyfye. And whan he came vnto him, beholde, he sat aboue upon the moss. He sayde vnto him: Thou ma of God, the kynge sayeth: Thou shalt come downe Elias answered the capeayne ouer fyfye, and sayde vnto him: If I be a man of God, the fyre fall downe then from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfye. Then fell there fyre from heauen, and consumed him and his fyfye. And agayne he sent another capeayne ouer fyfye vnto him, with his fyfye, which answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou man of God, thus sayeth the kynge: Come downe in all the haill. Elias answered, and sayde: If I be a ma of God, fyre fall downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfye. Then fell the fyre of God from heauen, and consumed him, and his fyfye. Agayne, he sent vnto him the thirde capeayne ouer fyfye, with his fyfye.

- D Now whan he came to him, he kneled to Elias, and besoughee him, and sayde vnto him: Thou man of God, let my soule and þy soules of thy seruantes thes fyfye, be sent what worth in thy syghte. Beholde, the fyre fall downe from heauen, and hath consumed the first two capeaynes ouer fyfye w their fyfyes. But now let my soule be sent what worth in thy syghte. Then saide the angel of the LORDE vnto Elias: Go downe with him, and feare him not. And he gat him vp, and wente downe with him vnto þe kynge.

And he sayde vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE: Because thou hast sinte forth messagers, and caused to axe counsell at Bethel, wher the god of idolon, as though there were no God in Israel to axe counsell at his worde, therfore shalt thou not come from the bed wheron thou hast layed the, but shalt dye þe death. So he dyed, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE which Elias sayde. And Joam (his brother) was kynge in his steade in the seconde yere of Joam the sonne of Josaphat kynge of Juda: for he had no sonne.

What more there is to saye of Ochosias, what he dyd, beholde, it is wyrted in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The ii. Chapter.

- 23 Whan the LORDE was mynded to take vp Elias in the tempest, Elias and Eliseus wente from Gilgall. And Elias sayde to Eliseus: Tary thou here I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me vnto Bethel. But Eliseus sayde: As truly as the LORDE liueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I will not forsake the. And whan they came downe vnto Bethel, the prophetes children that were at Bethel, were sent to Eliseus, and sayde vnto him: A knowest thou not, that the LORDE wil take thy loue awaye from thy heade this daye? He saide: I knowe it well, holde ye your peace.

And Elias sayde vnto him: Eliseus, tary thou here I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me vnto Jericho. Neuerthelesse he sayde: as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wil not forsake the.

And whan they came vnto Jericho, the prophetes children which were at Jericho, strepe forth to Eliseus and sayde vnto him: A knowest thou not, that the LORDE wil take þy loue awaye from thy heade this daye? He sayde: I knowe it well, holde ye yo' peace. And Elias sayde vnto him: I praye the tary here, for þe LORDE hath sent me vnto Jordan. But he sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wil not forsake the. And they wente both together. But fyfye men of þe prophetes children were forth, and stode ouer agaynste a farr of: but they both stode by Jordan. Then toke Elias his clothe, and waipod it together, and smote the water, which dyded it selfe on both the sydes, so that they wente by shod thowm it. And whan the yeres came ouer, Elias sayde vnto Eliseus: In what I shall do for the, afore I be taken awaye from the. Eliseus saide: That thy spirit maye be vpo me to speake wyse as now.

He sayde: Thou hast desired an harte thinge: neuertheles yf thou shalt se me wher I am taken awaye from the, it shal be sicke no, the shal it not be. And as they were goinge together, and he talked, there came a fyrie charer with hoises of fyre, and parted the both agayn. And so wente Elias vp in heauen in the storme. But Eliseus wept, and cryed: My father, my father, the hartman of Israel and his housine. And he sawe him nomore.

And he toke halfe of his clothes, and cutte them in two peces, and toke vp Elias clothe that was fallen from him, and curnd it in two, and stode by the shoure of Jordan, and toke the same clothe of Eliseus which was fallen from him, and smote it in the water, and saide: Where is now the LORDE God of Eliseus? And he smote it in to the water, and the part was asunder on both the sydes, and he his wente & chorow.

D And whan the prophetes children which were at Jericho came ag ynst him, sawe him, they sayde: The spere of Elias resteth wpo Elias, and so they wite south to mee him, and worshippid him to the groude, and sayd he wote him: Beholde, there are fiftye valiant men amonge thy seruantes, let them go and siter thy lorde, peraduencure the spere of the LORDE hath taken him, and cast him vpon some mountaine or in some valley. But he saide: Sende them not. Nevertheless they constrained him, tyll he was ashamed, and sayde: Let them go. And they sent fiftye men, which sought him thre dayes: but they founde him not, and came agayne vnto him. And he abode at Jericho, and sayde wto them: I olde not J you, that ye shalde no go: And the men of the cite sayde vnto Elias: Beholde, there is good vnto thyng in this cite, as my lorde seyth, ture the water is cressel, and the lorde vnto ite full.

E He sayde: Bynge me hither a new vessell, & put sale in it. And they broughe it him. Then wete he south vnto the well of water, and cast the sale therein, & sayde: Thus sayth the LORDE: I have heald this water: from hence south shal there no deed ner vnto fruitles come of it. So the water was heald vnto this daye, a comynge to the woide of Elias which he spate.

And he wete vp towards Bethel. And as he was goynge vp by the waye, there came like beastes out of the cite, and moched him, & sayde: Come up hith thou balde heade, come up hith thou balde heade. And he turned him aboute. And whā he sawe them, he cursed them in the name of the LORDE. Then came there two Deeres out of the wood, and tote two and fortye of the children. From thence wete he vp vnto mount Carmel, and thū it turned he backe to Samaria.

The iiii. Chapter.

J Owan the sonne of Achab was kynge over Israel at Samaria in the eighth & tenth yere of Josaphat kynge of Iuda, & reigned xii. yeres, & dyd y which was twel in the sighte of y LORDE: but not as his father & his mocher: for he put awaye y ples of Baal, which his father caused to make. Nevertheless he cleued vnto y synnes of Iroboam y sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne, & departed not thre fro. Mesa y kynge of the Moabites had many shepe, & payed tribute vnto the kynge of Israel w the wolle of an hundred thousande, & of an hundred thousande rāmes.

And whan Achab was dead, the kynge of Moabites fell awaye fro the kynge of Israel. & y same yere wote kynge Josiam fro Samaria, & mustered all Israel, & sent vnto Josaphat kynge of Iuda, sayynge: The kynge of the Moabites is fallen awaye fro me, come thou w me to fighte agaynst y Moabites. He sayde: I wil come vp, I am wnto as thou, and my people as y people, and my horses as thy horses. And sayde mocher: Which waye wil we go vp? He sayde: by the waye in the wyldernes of Edom.

So the kynge of Israel, the kynge of Iuda, & the kynge of Edom wente south. And whan they had gone aboute seure dayes to the ny, y heest & the cattel y were amonge the had no water. Then sayde the kynge of Israel: Alas, the LORDE hath called these thre kynge, to deluyne the in to the hande of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: Js herte no prophete of y LORDE, y we maye as call at y LORDE by him: Then answered one of y kynge of Israels seruantes, & saide: he re is Elihu y sonne of Saphat, which poured water vpon Elias hande. Josaphat sayde: The woode of y LORDE is with him. So the kynge of Israel & Josaphat, and y kynge of Edom wente downe vnto him.

But Elias sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: What hast thou to do w me: go to the prophetes of thy father & to y mothers prophetes. The kynge of Israel saide vnto him: To, for y LORDE hath called these thre kynge, to deluyne them in to the hande of the Moabites. Elias sayde: As truly as the LORDE behoch syneth, be fore whom J stode, yf J regarded not Josaphat the kynge of Iuda, J woude not regarde the, ner see oughte by y. So bynge me now a mynstrell, and whan the mynstrell played vpo the instrumente, the hande of the LORDE came vpo him. And he saye: Thus sayth the LORDE: Makee pices by this broke. For thus sayth the LORDE: ye shal se nether wynde ner rayne, yete shall the broke be full of water, that ye and youre houholdees & youre cattel maye drynke. See and that is but a small thinge in the sighte of the LORDE. And the Moabites shal be deluyne in to youre hande, so y ye shal smyte alle the stronge cities, and all y chosen cities: & shal fill downe alle the good trees, and stoppe alle the wellis of wate and alle the good feldees shall ye make wastte with stones.

On the morow, whan the meaofferynge is offered, beholde, there came water y waye from Edom, and fylled y londe with water.

The iiii. booke of the kynge.

The iiii. Chap.

But when the Moabites herde, þ the kynge came vp to fighte agaynst the, they called all þ harnesse men, 2 their rulers, 2 stode on þ border. And when they rose early in þ mornynge, 2 the Sonne wate vp upon þ water, the Moabites thoughte the water ouer agaynst the to be cut as red as bloude, 2 they sayde: It is bloude, þ kynge haue destroyed them silens w the swerde, 2 one hath smyten another. Now Moab grete vp to the spoyles. But when they came to the tentes of Israel, the Israelites gat vp, 2 smote the Moabites, 2 they fled before them.

¶ When they came in, 2 smote Moab, 2 brake downe the cities, 2 every one cast his stone vpon all the good felde, and made them full, and stopped all þ welles of water, and filled downe all the good trees, tyl there remayned but the stones in the brick-wall, and they compassed them aboute with synge, and smote them.

But wha the kynge of þ Moabites saue þ the batzayll was to stryge for him, he toke to him seuen C. men, which dure þ swerde, to fall vpon the kynge of Edom: neuertheles they were not able. Then toke he his first sonne, which shulde haue bene kynge in his steade, and offered him for a burness: kynge vpon the wall. Then came there a greate wrath ouer Israel, that they departed from him, and turned agayne in to their londe.

The iii. Chapter.

¶ And there cried a woman amogge the wyues of the prophetes childen vnto Elisius, and sayde: Thy seruauce my husbande is dead, and thou knowest that thy seruauce fearde the LORD. Now com meth the man that he was better vnto, and wyl take awaye both my children: to be borne seruauces. Elisius sayde vnto hir: What shal I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in the house? She sayde: Thy handmayden hath nothinge in the house but a picher w oyle. He sayde: Go þ waye, borrowe with me of all thy neighbours empye vessels, 2 eache one a fenne, and go in, and shut þ doore behynde the with thy sonnes, and peare of it in to all þ vessels: 2 when thou hast fylled them, deliuer them forth.

She wente, and shut the doore vnto her with hir sonnes, which broughte her the vessels, and so she poured in. And when the vessels were full, she sayde vnto hir sonne: Driue me yet one vessell. She sayde vnto hir: There is not one vessell more here. Then stode þ oyle still. And she sent, and tolde the man of God. He sayde: Go thy waye, sell the oyle, and paye the creditor: but lye thou and þ shales of the residue.

And it fortuned at þ same tyme, that seuen wemen vnto Sunem. And there was a riche woman, which helde him to teachen hir: 2 as he passid ofte thorow þ waye, that he came vnto her: 2 ate w her. And she sayde vnto hir husbande: Beholde, I perceaue that this is an holy man of God, which geueth me thorow this waye, let vs make him a little chamber of boordes, 2 sit a bed, a table, a chaire, 2 a candelshede therein, that when he cometh vnto vs, he maye repose thither.

And it fortuned vpon a tyme, that he came in, 2 layed him downe in the chamber, 2 slepe therein. And he saide vnto Gehasi his childe: Call this woma of Sunem. And wha he had called her, she stode before him. He sayde vnto him: Speake thou vnto hir, wylthou, thou hast mynistrd vnto vs in all these thinges, what shal I do for the? Shall I take any matter to be spoken for to the kynge, or to the chefe captayne of the host? She sayde: I dwell amonge my people. He sayde: What hast thou then to do? Gehasi sayde: Alas, she hath no sonne, and hir husband is olde. He sayde: Call hir. And wha he had called her, she stode at the doore. And he sayde: A boute this tyme yf þ frute can lye, thou shalt embrace a senn. She sayde: Alas, my lorde, thou man of God, lye not vnto thy handmayden. And the woman cometh, and bare a sonne aboute the same tyme, wha the frute could lye, accordinglye as Elisius had sayde vnto her.

But when þ childe was growne, 2 sent me, þ he wente forth to his father vnto the reapers, 2 sayde vnto his father: Oh my father, my head. She saide vnto his seruauce: Bring him to his mother. And he toke him, and broughte him to his mother: and she layd him vpon hir lappe vntyll þ noone daye, 2 thither dyed. And she wente vp, and layed him vnto the bed of the man of God, 2 shut: the doore, and noke forth, 2 called hir husbande, 2 sayde vnto him: Send me one of the seruauces, and an Ass, I wyl go quickly vnto the man of God, and come agayne. He sayde: Why wilt thou go vnto him? To daye is it newe moone ner Sabbath. She sayde: Well. And she sabled the esse, 2 sayde to the woman: Driue forth, and kepe me not but with thynges, and do as I byd the.

So she wente, and came to the man of God vnto mount Carmell. Wha the man of God sawe her ouer, 2 saynt him, he sayde vnto his childe Gehasi: Beholde, the woman the pot: for they might not eat it. Theretheles he sayde: Whynge meel hither. And he put it in the pot, & sayde: Poure it out for the people, that they maye eat. And then was it not bytter in the pot.

There came a man from Dal Salisa, & broughe the man of God beed of the first frutes, namely twentye barley loaves, & new come in his garment. But he sayde: Geue it unto y^e people, that they maye eat. His mynster sayde: How shall I gaue an hundred men of this? He sayde: Geue it unto the people, that they maye eat. For thus sayeth the LORDE: They shal eat, and there shall be lesse ouer. And he set it before them, so that they ate, and there lesse ouer, accordinge to y^e woorde of the LORDE.

He sayde unto Gehasi: Girde vp thy loyne, and take my staffe in thy hande, and go thy waye. As any man meete the, salute him for me: and yf any man salute the, thanke him for me, and laye thow my staffe vpon y^e chyldes face. But the chyldes mother sayde: As truly as the LORDE liueth, and as truly as y^e soules liueth, I will not leaue the. Then gaue he vp, and wente a fere her. As for Gehasi, he wente before them, and layed the staffe vpon the chyldes face, but there was neither voyce nor silyng. And he wente agayne to meete him, and spewed him, and sayde: The chyld is not ryng vp.

And whan Elisus came into the house, beholde, y^e chyld laye ded vps his bed. And he wote in, & shote the boie on the boche, & made his puyer vnto the LORDE, & wente vp, & layd hym selfe vpon the chyld, & layed his mouth vpon the chyldes mouth, and his eyes vpon his eyes, and his handes vpon his han-des, & so stretched him selfe forth vpon him, so y^e the chyldes body was warme. And he rose vp, & wente into the house once hit her, and thether, & wente vp, & layd hym selfe a longe vpon him. Then nesed the chyld seue tymes, and a fere warde the chyld opened his eyes.
 And he cried vpon Gehasi, and sayde: Call the Sunamitisse. And whan he had called her, she came in vnto him. He sayde: Take thow thy sonne. Then came she, and fell at his feet, and worshipped vnto the grounde, and softe hit sonne, and wente forth.

And whan Elisus came agayne vnto Gilgal, there was a deeth in the londe, & the prophetes chyldren dwelt before him, & he sayde vnto his seruants: Set on a greete pot, and make potage for the chyldren of the propheteres. Then wente there one into the felde, to gather herbes, and founde a Cucumbers stalke, & gathered vnto Cucumbers therof his coursell. And whan he came, he chopped it small for potage to the poet, for they knewe it not. And whan they poured it forth for the pot to eat, & they ate of y^e potage, they cried and sayde: O thou man of God, deeth is in the pot: for they might not eat it. Theretheles he sayde: Whynge meel hither. And he put it in the pot, & sayde: Poure it out for the people, that they maye eat. And then was

 it not bytter in the pot.

There came a man from Dal Salisa, &
 broughe the man of God beed of the first frutes, namely twentye barley loaves, & new come in his garment. But he sayde: Geue it unto y^e people, that they maye eat. His mynster sayde: How shall I gaue an hundred men of this? He sayde: Geue it unto the people, that they maye eat. For thus sayeth the LORDE: They shal eat, and there shall be lesse ouer. And he set it before them, so that they ate, and there lesse ouer, accordinge to y^e woorde of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

U Aman the chiefe capteyne of the kynge of Syria, was an excellent mā in the sighte of his lorde, and mede set by (for thow he was the LORDE gane health vnto Syria) and he was a mightie man, but a leper. And there had men of war fallen out of Syria, and caried awaye a little damsel out of the londe of Israel: the same was in seruyce with Taamāns wife, and sayde vnto hir mastrisse: O what my master were with the prophet at Samaria, he wold heale him from his leprosy.

Then wente he in to his lorde, and tolde him, and sayde: Thus and thus hath the damsel of the londe of Israel spoken. The kynge of Syria sayde: Go thy waye then, & I will wyte a letter vnto the kynge of Israel.

And he wente, and toke with him ten hundred weighte of syluer, and sixe thousande guildens, & eni chaunge of sayment, & broughte the letter vnto the kynge of Israel, with these wordes:

Whan this letter commeth vnto the, be-holde, thou shalt vnderstonde y^e I haue sent my seruante Taaman vnto the, that thou mayest heale him of his leprosy.

And whan the kynge of Israel red the letter, he rente his clothes, & sayde: Am I God then, that I can kill and quyre agayne, y^e he sendeth vnto me, to heale the man fro his leprosy? Considre and se, how he seeketh an occasion vnto me.

Whan Elisus: the man of God herde, y^e the kynge of Israel had rente his clothes, he sent vnto him, sayenge: Why hast thou renteth thy clothes? Let him come to me, that he maye knowe, y^e there is a prophet in Israel.

So Taaman came with hoses and charrettes, and behelde still at the dore of Elisus house. Then sente he lifew a messenger vnto him, sayinge: So thy waye, and washshe the fewen tymes in Iordane, so shal thy flesh be restored agayne, & be cleansed. Then was Naaman woech, & wence his waye, & sayde: I thoughte he shulde haue come forth wnto me, & to haue stode here & to haue called vps the name of the LORDE his God, & to haue toucht the place with his hande, & so to haue put awaye the leprosy. Are not y waters of Arans and Pharpar at Damascon better then alle the waters in Jisael. I mighte washshe me therein & be clest: and he turned hym, and wete his waye in displeasure. Then his seruantes gaar the to him, and sayde: Gather, ys the prophet had commaunded the my greate charge, shuldest thou not haue done it: much more the ys he says vnto the: Washe the, & thou shalt be cleane. Then wete he do as he, & washshe him selfe in Iordane fewe tymes: as the man of God sayde: & his flesh was restored him agayne, even as the flesh of a yonge childe. and he was cleansed.

Luc 4 c

And he turned agayne to y man of God with all his armye. And when he came in, he stode before him, and sayde: Beholde, I knowe that in all londes there is no God, but in Jisrael. Take now therfore this blessinge: I praye the of thy seruante. Heurtheles he sayde: As truly as the LORDE I lyeth, before a hom J stonde, I wil not take it. And he wolde nedes haue him to take it, but he wolde not. Then sayde Naaman: Mighte there not a burthe of this carth be geue vnto y seruante, as much as ten Oxen maye beare: for thy seruante wil nemo re do sacrifice and offer burmes offeringes vnto other goddora, but vnto the LORDE. That the LORDE maye be gracious vnto thy seruante, ys I woulde in the house of Rimmon, whā my loide goeth there in to y house to wetslipp, & leaneth vpon my hande, he sayde vnto him: So thy waye in peace.

1. Re. 1. b
Dan. 1. d

And as he was gone from him a felde betwch in the londe, Gehasi the seruante of Lifew, y man of God thoughte: beholde, my loide hath spared Naama this Syrian, so that he hath not taken from him y rehyd he broughte: As truly as y LORDE lyeth, I will rine a ster him, & take some thinge of him.

So Gehasi folowed Naaman. And whā Naaman sawe y he ranne a ster him, he lighte downe from the chare to mete him, & sayde: Are all thinges well? he sayde: Yee. But my loide hath sente me, & earid to saye vnto the: Beholde, there are now cemet to me from mount Ephraim two yonge men of the pro phetes childe, geue them a caltre of siluer, & praye the: & two chaunge of raymon. The mā saide: Go to, take two caltres. And he pelled him, & banded two talentes in two bagges, and two chaunge of rayment, and banded it vnto two of his seruantes, which bare it before him. And when he came in y dore, he toke it from their handes, & layd it a syde in the house, & let the men go.

And when they were gone their waye stode before his loide. And Lifew sayde vnto him: Whence comest thou Gehasi? he sayde: Thy seruante wente nether wither thither. But he sayde vnto him: Where was my herth the, when the man turned backe from his chare to mete the? How thou haddest eate the syluer & the rayment, olys trayn, & myrdes, shepe, oxen, seruantes & mayden. But the leprosy of Naaman shal dwelle vnto the & to thy syde for ever. Then wnt he forth from him leproous as snowe.

The Vi. Chapter.

The children of y prophetes seryd Lifew: Beholde, the place wher we dwell before y, is narrow for vs, let vs go vnto Iordane, & eray one byste tymbre there, & we maye there buyde vs a place to dwell in. he sayde: Go ys waye. And one sayde: Go to then, & come w thy seruante. he sayde: I wil go with you. And he wete with them. And when they came to Iordane, they hewed downe tymbre, and as soon was sillynged downe a tre, the yon fill in the water, and he crieth and sayde: Fill my loide, & it is burrowed. But the man of God sayde: Where fell it in? And when he had shewed him the place, he cut downe a fute, and thusst it in there. Then swāme the yon. And he sayde: Take it vp. So he put vnto his hande, and toke it.

And the kynge of Syria marred agard Jisrael, and toke counsell at his seruante, and sayde: There & there will me ly. But the man of God sent to y kynge of Jisrael, sayinge: Bewarre y thou go not vnto that place, for the Syrians rise there. So they seryd of Jisrael sent vnto y place wher y man of God colde him, & kepce it, & helde vnto there: & byd that not once or twise ondy.

The was y kynge of Syria here vnto therfore, and called his seruantes, and sayde vnto them: Will ye not tell me, wherof cure men is sild vnto the kynge of Jisrael? Then sayde one of his seruantes: It is my loide O kynge, but Lifew the prophet of Jisrael telleth the kynge of Jisrael that thou speakest in thy chamber.

that sayd. He sayde: So youre waye the and the where he is, that I maye sende, and can be hit. And they shewed him and sawe. Beholde, he is at Dothan. The first he was in house, & charres, & a greates power.
 And whay they came thither by nyght, they compassed the cite aboute. And the mynister of the ma of God arose early to get him up.
 And as he went forth, beholde, there laye a hooff of men aboute y cite with horses and charres.

D Then sayde his childe unto him: Alas sye, how will we now do? He sayde: Feare not, for there are mo of them y are with vs, then of those that are with them. And Elifus prayd & sayde: ORDE open his eyes, y he maye se. Then the LORDE opened y childes eyes, y he sawe, & beholde, y mount was full of faine horses & charres to ride aboute Eli sus. And whay they came downe unto him, Elifus made his prayer, & sayde: LORDE open the eyes of this people & byndnes. And he sene in the with byndnes according to the worde of Elifus. And Elifus sayde unto them:
 This is noe y waye noi the cite, folow me, and I bringe you to the man whom ye see.
 And he broughte them unto Samaria.

E And whan they came to Samaria, Eli sus sayde: ORDE open thes mens eyes, y they maye se. And the LORDE opened their eyes, y they sawe, & beholde, they were in the mydes of Samaria. And whan the kyng of Israel sawe them, he sayde unto Elifus: My father shal I synce the? He sayde: Thou shalt not, synce the: I lode whom thou takest with thy swerde and bowe, synce thes. Set led and water beside them, that they maye ate and drynke, and let them departe unto their lode. That was there a greates bynter payed. And whan they had eaten and dronken, he let them go to departe unto their lode. From that tyme forth came the men of wars of the Syrians nomie in to the lode of Israel.

F After this is forsaquen, that Benabab the kyng of Spyn gathered all his hooff, and went up, & laye siege unto Samaria: there was a greates verch at Samaria. But they laye siege to the cite so longe, tyll an Asses hade was moeth soure soote sylver pte, and the fourth part of a Cab of boues donge was the fourth part of a Cab of boues donge of Israel wente unto the wall, a woman and mee him and sayde: helpe me my lode O kyng. He sayde: If the LORDE helpe the, noe, wherwith shal I helpe the? with y haue I with the wyne passer. And the kyng sayde unto her: What a lady y? She sayde: This woman sayde unto me: Gete to y forme, that we maye eate him, somowit will we eate my forme. So we sod my forme, & he we eaten him, and I sayde unto her on y ther de daye: Gete vs thy forme and let us eate him, but she hath byd him awaye.

Whan the kyng herde the womans wodes, he rente his clothes, whyle he was gynnge to the wall. The same alle the people, that he had a sackcloth vnder upon his body.
 And he sayde: God be this and that unto me, yf the heade of Elifus the sonne of Sa-phat shal this daye stonde upon him. So for Elifus, he sat in his house, & the Elbers sat by him. And he sene a man before him, but on tuer the messaunge came to him, he sayde unto y Elbers: Gynce ye aoe sine howe this childe of murthure hath sente hither, to take awaye my heade: Take hebe, whan the messaunger cometh. y he holde him at the doer.
 Beholde, y noy: of his lordes sice foloweth him. Whyle he was thus callynge to them, beholde, y messaunger came to him, & sayde: Beholde, this euill cometh of y LORDE, and what more shal I lode for the LORDE:
 The VII. Chap.

G Elifus sayde: Heare the worde of the LORDE. Thus sayeth the LORDE Comowit aboute this tyme shal a busshel of fyne intel be solde for one Sytle, and two busshels of barley for one Sytle under the poite of Samaria. Then a knyghte (upon whose hande the kyng leant) answered the ma of God, and sayde: And though the LORDE made in yondowes in heate, how coulde such a thinge come to passe? He sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thine eyes, & shalt noe eate therof.

And there were foure leporous men at y doer before the poite, and one sayde unto another: Why eary we here whyle we bye?
 Though we thoughte to come in to the cite, yet is there verch in y cite, and there shul-de we be sayne to bye. And yf we eary here, we must bye also. Let vs go now, and fyve unto the hooff of the Syrians. If they let vs hyn, we shall hyn: yf they slaye vs, then are we deed. And so they gat them up early, to come unto the hooff of the Syrians. And whan they came to the vermost ende of y dennes, beholde, there was no body.

For the LORDE had made the Syrians to heare a noy of horses, charres, and of a mightie greates hooff, so that they sayde one to another amonge the selues: Beholde, the kyng of Israel hath byred the kyng of the Tethites, and the kyng of the Egipcians agayn vs, to come wpe vs. And they gat them vp, and stode early in the twilight, and left their boches, and hoyses and asses in the tentes as they stode, & flew enery man wher he myghte save his life.

C Now whan the lepra came to the place of the tentes, they wente in to the tentes, and donke, and toke siluer, golde and rayment, and wente and hyd it: & came agayne & entered in to another tene, and toke therout, and came and hyd it. But one of them saide vnto another: Let vs not do thus, this daye is a daye of good tynges. If we kepe this sicke and hyde tyll the lighte morninge, oure trespasse wyl be founde out. Let vs go now therfore, that we maye come, & tell the kynges house.

And whan they came, they cried at the pore of the cite, and tolde them, and sayde: We came to the tentes of the Syrians, and beholde, there is no man there, neither yet eny mans voyce, but heises and asses bounde, and the boches as they stode. Then cried þe porters and tolde it within in þe kynges house. And the kyng arose in the nyght, & sayde vnto his seruauntes: I wyl tell you how þe Syrians deale with vs: they knowe þe we suffer hunger, and are gone out of the cite, to hyde them selues in the selde, and thynke thus: whan they go out of the cite, we wyl take them alyue, & come in to the cite. Then answered one of his seruauntes, and sayde: Let vs take the synes hoyses that remaine, which yet are left in the cite (beholde, theise are left therein for all þe multitude in Iseal, which is destroyed): let vs sende these and se. The toke theye two charettes with þe hoyses. And the kyng sent them vnto the tentes of the Syrians, and sayde: Go youre waye and se.

D And whan they wente a ster the vnto Jordan, beholde, the waye laye full of garments and vestes, which the Syrians had cast from the, whyle they made haist. And whan the messenger came agayne, and tolde the kyng, the people wente fowr, and spoiled the tentes of the Syrians. And a bushel of fyne meell was solde for a Sycke, and two bushels of barley for a Sycke also, according to the woide of the LORD. But the kyng appoynted the kynghe: upon whose hande he leered to be at the gate, & the people trode upon him, so that he dyed, euen as the man of God sayde, whan the kyng came downe vnto him. And it came to passe euen as if man of God tolde the kyng, whā he sayde: Lemoro to aboute this tyme shal two bushels of barley be solde for one Sycke, and a bushel of fyne meel for one Sycker the gate at Samaria. And the kyng answered the man of God, and sayde: he holde, though þe LORD made wntowen in heauen, how coulde such a thyng come to passe? Therfor he sayde: We shalde, with thine eye shal thou se it, and shal thou be therof. And euen so fortunat it was hit, for the people trode upon him in the gate, he dyed.

The VIII. Chapter.

Elisha spake vnto the woman, whosonne he had restored vnto life agayne, and sayde: Get the vp, & go with thine household, and be a stranger in the land thou camst: for the LORD shall call thee berth, which shal come in to the londe sauyn yearle longe. The woman gat her vp, and wpe as the man of God sayde, & wente with her household, and was a stranger in the land of the Philistynes siven year. But whan the siven years were ended, the woman came agayne out of the Philistynes lde, and wente forth to crye upon the kyng for his house and londe. The kyng spake vnto the basse the seruaunt of the man of God, & sayde: Tell me all the greates actes that Elisha hath done. And whyle he was tellinge the kyng how he had made one that was deade, to lyue agayne, beholde, the woman whosonne he had caused to reayne, came came in the meane season, and cried vnto the kyng for his house and londe. Then sayde the kyng: My lorde O kyng, this same is the woman, and this is his sonne, whom Elisha restored vnto life agayne. And the kyng arose þe woman, and she tolde him. Then the kyng delyered her a chamberlayne, & sayde: Kether agayne all that is hitte, and all the increase of the londe, since the tyme that she left the londe vntill now.

And Elisha came to Damascus, & Nabab the kyng of Syria laye sicke. And was tolde him, and sayde: The man of God is come hither. Then sayde the kyng vnto Hasael: Take gyses with the, & go meete the man of God, and aske counsell at þe LORD by him, and saye: Maye I recovere from this sickness? Hasael wente for to meete him, and toke rewarde with him, and of all the gyses at Damascus, as much as fortye Camels mighte beare. And whan he came, he stode before him, and sayde: Thy sonne Benadab the kyng of Syria hath sent me vnto the, sayinge: Maye I recovere from this sickness?

Elifas sayde vnto him: So y waye and with him: Thou shalt recover. But the LORDE hath shewed me, y he shal dye y deahty.
 And the man of God loved earnestly, & makes irrevocable countenance, & wepeth. The sayde Elifas: What for wepeth my loude? he sayde: I knowe what shall thou shalt do vnto the children of Israel: Thou shalt burne their stronge cities with fyre, and slaye their yonge men with the sword, and kyll their yonge children, and y tpype vp their women with daide.

Elifas sayde: How so, is thy seruant a dogg, that he shulde do such a greate thyn-ge? Elifas saide: The LORDE hath shewed me, y thou shalt be kynge of Syria. And he went his waye from Elifas, & came to his lorde, which saide vnto him: What saiech Eli-fas vnto the? he sayde: he tolde me, Thou shalt recover. But on the nyte daye he toke y his coneyng, and dyped it in water, and shewd it ouer him, and he dyed, & Elifas was kynge in his steade.

In the fyfth yere of Josiam the sonne of Achab kynge of Israel, was Josiam y sonne of Josaphat kynge of Juda. Two & thirtie years olde was he whā he was made kynge, reigned eighte yeres at Jerusalem, & walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as the house of Achab dyd: for Achabs daughter was his wyfe: he dyd y which was euell in y sighte of the LORDE. Nevertheless the LORDE wolde not destroye Juda for his seruant: Dand saide, as he promysed him, to geue him ever a lantern and ge his childre.

As y same tyme fell y Edomites a waye from Juda, & made a kynge ouer them sel-uen: y cause was this, Josiam had gone tho wth Seira, and all the charrettes with him, & had gotten him vp by nyghte, and smyten the Edomites that were aboute him, and y tolde ouer the charrettes, so that the people fled vnto their tentes: ther fore fell the Ed-omes a waye from Juda vnto thio daye. At the same tyme fell Libna a waye also.

What more there, is to saye of Josiam, & all y he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Josiam fell on slepe with his fathere, & was buried wth his fathere in y cite of Dauid, & Jehosia his sonne was kynge in his steade.

In the twelth yere of Josiam the sonne of Achab kynge of Israel, was Ocho-sias y sonne of Josiam kynge in Juda. Two and twentye yere olde was Ochofias when he was made kynge, & reigned one yere at Jerusalem. His wyfethes name was Aulia the daughter of Amri kynge of Israel, & he walked in the waye of the house of Achab, & dyd that which was euell in the sighte of LORDE, euen as dyd the house of Achab: for he was sonne in lawe in the house of Achab.

 And he went with Josiam the sonne of Achab in to the battayll agaynst Elifas y kin-ge of Syria vnto Ramoth in Gilead, but y Syrians smote Josiam. Then Josiam the kin-ge turned backe, to be healed at y Iheruel of y womanes, wherewith the Syrians had wounded him at Ramoth, whā he foughte with Elifas kynge of Syria. And Ochofias y sonne of Josia kynge of Juda, came downe to visit Josiam the sonne of Achab at Iheruel, for he laye sicke. The ix. Chapter.

Elifas the prophet called one of the prophete childre, & sayde vnto him: Burde vp y loynes, and take thio cruse of oyle with the, and go vnto Ramoth in Gilead: and whā thou comest thither, thou shalt se there one: Jehu, y sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Nami, and go in, and byd him stonde vp amonge his brethren, and bringe him in to the ynnost chamber, & take thio cruse of oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, & saye: Thus saiech the LORDE: I haue anoited the to be kynge ouer Israel: & thou shalt open the doore, and stye, and not tary. And the prophete yonge man, the childre wente his waye vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the horse stode there, and he sayde: I haue som what to saye vnto the Captaynes. Jehu saide: Vnto whom amonge vs all? he sayde: Euen vnto the captaynes.

Then stode he vp, and wente in. So he poured the oyle vpon his heade, and sayde vnto him: Thus saiech the LORDE God of Israel: I haue anoynted y to be kynge ouer the LORDES peo-ple of Israel, and thou shalt smyte thio loude Achabs house, that I maye avenge the bloude of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the LORDES seruantes, from the hande of y Esabed, that all the house of Achab maye perishe. And J-huh rose out from Achab, euen him that mached water agaynst the wall, and the closed vp and the desolate in Israel: and the house of Achab wyl I make euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, and as the house of Baesa the sonne of Ahis, and y dog-ge shall eat vp y Esabed vpon the steepe at Iheruel, and nonian shall burye her. And he opened the doore, and fled.

And whā Jehu came forth to his lorde seruantes, they saide vnto him: Are all thio ges well: Wherefore came this madd felow unto thee: he saide unto them: Ye knowe the man well, & what he hath spoken. They sayde: That is not true, but tell thou vs. he sayde: Thus and thus hath he spoken unto me, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. Then made they haiff, and euery one colde his garment and laied them vnder him in maner of a wynde seat, and blew the trumpet, and sayde: Jehu is made kynge. So Jehu the son ne of Josaphat the sonne of Timsi, made a confederacion agaynst Joiam. So for Joia he laye before Ramoth in Galaad with all Israel agaynst Hasael the kynge of Syria.

But Joiam the kynge was cured backe, if he might be healed of the woundes wher with the Syrians had wounded him, wha he feughit with Hasael the kynge of the Syrians.

And Jehu sayde: If it be youre mynde, there shall nothing scape out of the cite, to go and toll it at Ierusal. And he rode, and be-parted vnto Ierusal: for Joiam laye there, and Ochosias the kynge of Iuda was come downe to vyte Joiam. But the watchman that stode vpon the tower at Ierusal, sawe the company of Jehu commynge, and sayde: This a company. Then sayde Joiam: Take a charre, and sende to meete this, and saye: Is it peace? And the charreman rode to meete them, and sayde: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne the behynde me.
The watchman tolde it, and sayde: The missaunger is come vnto them, and cometh not agayne. Then sent he another charreman, which whan he came to them, saide: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne the behynde me.

And the watchman tolde it, and sayde:
he is come to them: and cometh not agayne, and the goynge is as it were the goynge of Jehu the sonne of Timsi: for he dyueth on as he were mad. Then sayde Joiam: Bin-de the charre fast. And they bounde the chare, and so they wente forth, Joiam the kynge of Israel, and Ochosias the kynge of In-da, euery one vpon his charre, to meete Jehu.
And they founde him vpon the felde of Ta-both the Ierusalemite. And whan Joiam sawe Jehu, he sayde: Jehu, is it peace? But he sayde: What peace? The wordome and witchcraft of thy moether Iesabel is not yet come to an ende.

Then turned Joiam his hande and fled, and sayde vnto Ochosias: There is treache-rye. But Jehu colde his bowe, & shote Joiam betwene the armes, that the arrow wente thorow his hert, and he fell downe in his charre. And Jehu sayde vnto Zibbæ the Ephytaite: Take and cast him in the felde of Ierusal: Take and cast him in the felde of Ierusalem: for I remember since thou rodest with me in a charre after Achab his father, that the LORDE woulde laye this heuy burthen vpon him.

Jehu holde (sayeth the LORDE) I will recompence the the felde of Ierusal and of his cities, euen in this pece of Ierusal. Take him and cast him in to that pece of Ierusal, & ac-cordinge to the worde of the LORDE.

Whan Ochosias the kynge of Iuda sawe this, he fled by the waie vnto J garon ha-se. But Jehu folowed after him, and commanded to smyte him also vpon his charre in the goynge vpon the waye to Gur, which lieth by Ierusalem: and he stode vnto Ierusalem, and dyed there. And his seruantes caried him to be caried vnto Ierusalem, and there they buryed him in his owne graue with his fathers in the cite of Damid. Ochosias reigned ouer Iuda in the eleuenth yere of Ioua the sonne of Achab. And whan Jehu came to Ie-rusal, and Iesabel herde thereof, she coloued her face, and deckt her heade, and loked ouer at the wyndowe. And whan Jehu came vnder the gate, she sayde: Prospered I am: all that thou slewe his loue.

And he lifte vp his face to the wyndow, and sayde: Who is with me? Then reioyced there two of the chamberlaynes vnto him. he sayde: Cast her downe headlynges. And they cast her downe headlynges, so that the wall and the hostes were sprentled with her bloude, and she was trodded vnder feet. And whan he came in, and had eaten and drinken, he sayde: Take vpon yonder caried woman, & burye her, for she is a kyngees daughter.
Hewerpeles whan they wente in to burye her, they founde nothinge of her, but the skull and the feet, and the palmes of her handes. And they came agayne and broughte him worde. he saide: This is comme that the LORDE spake by his seruante Elia the Thesbite, and sayde: In the felde of Israel shal the dogges eate Iesabels fleshe.
So the deed carcase of Iesabel became eate as dogges in the felde of Ierusal, so that it coulde not saye: This is Iesabel.

The X. Chapter.

Achab had thre sonne and ten daughters at Samaria. And Jehu wrote a letter, and sent it to Samaria, vnto the more of the cite Jestael, euen vnto the Elders. 2 to Achab tutors, sayenge thes wordes: Whan this letter cometh vnto you whom are youre lordes sonnes, charrees, hee is stronge cities, 2 obynounce, take which is the best and most righteous amonge youre lordes sonnes, 2 set him vpon his fathers seate, and fygge for youre lordes house.

Then whiles they were soe a frayed, and sayde: Beholde, two kynges were not able to stonde be soe him, how wyl we then endure? And they that were ouer the house and ouer the cite, and the Elders and tutors sent vnto Jehu, sayenge: We are thy seruantes, we wyl do alle that thou sayest vnto vs: We wil make no man kyng, do thou that pleaseth the. Then wrote he the seconde letter vnto them with these wordes: As if he myne, and broken into my voyce, then take the heades of the men your lordes sonnes, and bringe me them conioiue by this tyme vnto Jestael.

B The kynges sonnes were this sorte men and ten, and þese men of the cite brought the vp. How whan this letter came they toke the kynges sonnes, and slewe them euen thes: (some men and ten, and layed their heades in baskets, and sent them to him vnto Jestael. And whan the messauger came, 2 toke him, and sayde: They haue brought the heades of the kynges children. he sayde: Laye them vpon two heapes at the doore of the porte tyl comen ouer.

And on the morow whan he wente forth, he stode, and sayde vnto alle the people: Be ye righteous: Beholde, I haue made an apoyment against my loude, and slayne him, who hath slayne all these then: Vnderstonde ye now therfore, that there is not fallen vpon the earth one worde of the LORDE, which he spake agaynst the house of Achab: and the LORDE hath done, euen as he sayde by his seruante Elias. So Jehu smote all the remanent of the house of Achab at Jestael, all his greates men, his kynfolkes, and his prestes, tyl there was not one lefte ouer. And he gat him vp, wente his waye, and came to Samaria.

C By the waye there was a shepherdes houske, where Jehu founde the brethren of Ochozias kyng of Iuda, and sayde: Whence are ye? They sayde: We are Ochozias brethren, and are goinge to worke to salure the kynges children, and the quenes children. he sayde: Take them alyue. And they toke them alyue, and slewe them by the welles syde at the shepherdes house, euen two and forty men, and let not one of them remayne.

And whan he wente from thence, he fosse the Jonadab of sonne of Achab, which met him, 2 saluted him. And he sayde vnto him: In thyne here thyght, as myne heart is with thyne heart: Jonadab sayde: Yea. As if he so sayde he: then gaue me thy hande. And he gaue him his hande. And so he caused him to syt byside him in the chare, and saide: O me wiche me, and se my selfe for the LORDE. And they caryed him with him vpon his chare. And whan he came to Samaria, he smote alle that remayned of Achab at Samaria, tyl he had destroyed him, a cordyng to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake vnto Elias.

And Jehu gathered alle the people together, and saide vnto them: Achab did Baal, but litle seruyce, Jehu wyl serue him better. Call vnto me now therfore alle Baals prestes, all his seruantes and all his prestes, that there be none remainyng, for I haue a greatesacrifice to do vnto Baal. Who so enteis mysfed, shal not lyue. But Jehu dyd it craftely, that he mighte destroye alle the mynisters of Baal. And Jehu sayde: Sanctifie þe feast vnto Baal, and proclame it. And Jehu sent in to all Israel, and causede all Baals mynisters to come, so that there was nomore lefte behynde, which came not. And they came in to Baals house, so that the house of Baal was full from one corner to another.

Then sayde he vnto him that had the rule of the vestrye. Drynge south rayment for alle Baals mynisters. And he broughte forth the rayment. And Jehu wente in to Baals house wiche Jonadab the sonne of Achab, and sayde vnto Baals mynisters: Search and se that there be not here amonge you any mynister of the LORDE, but only Baals mynisters.

And whan they came in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerynges, Jehu appoynted him foure score men withowt, 2 sayde: If any of these men scape whom I deliuer vnto your handes, then shal the same mans soule be for his soule. Now whā he had made an ende of the burnt offeringe, Jehu sayde vnto the foemen and kynges: Go in, & smyte every man, let no man go forth. And they smote eche with the edge of the swerde. And the foce men and knyghtes chere the awaie and wex vnto the case of Baals house, and broughte forth the piler in ʒ house of Baal, and wrent it, and brake downe Baals piler wch the house of Baal, and made a piety house therof vnto this daie. But Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But Jehu lefte noe of from the sinnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat which caused Israel to synne; namely, from the golden calves at Bethel and at Dan. And the LORDE sayde vnto Jehu: Because thou hast bene willinge to do that which was righte in my sighte, & hast done vnto Achabs house all that was in my hert, therefore shall thy children sit vpon ʒ seate of Israel vnto the fourth generation.

1. Re. 15. b

S Teneuerlesse Jehu was not diligente to walkein the lawe of the LORDE God of Israel with all his hert: for he leste noe of his sinnes of Jeroboam which made Israel to synne. At the same tyme beganne the LORDE to be greued at Israel. For Hasael smote them in all the borders of Israel from Jordan to Eastward, and all the londe Gilad of the Gadites, Rubenites and Manassites, from Aroer that lyeth on the ryuer by Arnon, and Gilead and Basan.

1. Re. 2. 2

What more there is to saye of Jehu, and all that he dyd, and all his power, beholde, it is wryten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jehu fell on slepe with his father, & they buryed him in Samaria. And Joahas his sonne was kyng in his steade. The tyme that Jehu reigned ouer Israel, is eithe and twentye yeares at Samaria.

The xi. Chapter.

21 Pa. 1. d Q ueen Athalia the mother of Ocholias, whiche saue that hir sonne was dead, gat her up, and destroyed all the kynges seate. But Joice kyng Jorams daughter the syster of Ocholias, toke Jona the sonne of Ocholias and saue him awaye with his nose in the chamber from amonge the kynges children which were slayne, and she hyd him from Athalia, so that he was not slayne. And he was hyd with her in the house of the LORDE fyve yeares. But Athalia was queene in the londe.

Pa. 4. 2

Teneuerlesse in the seventh yeare sent Joida, and toke the rulers ouer hilteds with the capteynes and foemen, and caught the

to come to him in to the house of the LORDE and made a covenant with them, and set an othe of them in the house of the LORDE, and shewed them the kynges sonne, and demanded them, and sayde: This is he that ye shall do: One thirde parte of you which enter on the Sabbath, shall kepe the watch in the kynges house, and one thirde parte shall be at the porte of Sur, and one thirde parte shall be at ʒ porte which is beynde the foemen, and ye shall kepe the watch at the house of Massa. But two partes of you all the go of on the Sabbath, shal kepe the watch in the house of the LORDE aboute the kyng: and ye shall geve you rounde aboute ʒ kyng: and every one with his weapen in his hande: and who so ever cometh within ʒ wall, let him die, so that ye be with the kyng, whi he goeth out and in.

And the rulers ouer the hundredes byd as Joida the prest had commaunded them, and toke vnto them their men which came vpon the Sabbath, with those that were on the Sabbath, and came to Joida ʒ pist. And the prest gaue the capteynes speeres and shyldes which had bene kynges daudes, and were in the house of the LORDE. And the foce men stode aboute the kyng: every one with his weapen in his hande, in the corner on the righte syde of the house to the corner of the lefte syde, euen into the altare and to the house. And he broughte forth the kynges sonne, and set a crowne vpon his heade, and toke the women, and made him kyng, and they were glad, and clapped their handes together, and sayde: God saue the kyng.

And whan Athalia herde the noise of the people that ranne together, she came to the people in to the house of the LORDE, and looked, and beholde, the kyng stode by the piler, as the use was, and the syngers and trumpeters by the kyng: and all the people of ʒ lode were glad, and blewe with cornettes. But Athalia rene hir clothes, & sayde: Vproure, vproure. Teneuerlesse Joida ʒ pist commaunded ʒ rulers ouer hundredes, which were appointed ouer the hoost, and saide to them: Drynge her without the wall, and who soeuer followeth hir, let him dye of the swerde: for the prest hat sayde, that she shal be not dye in the house of the LORDE. And they layde handes vps her, and she was in by the waye wherethe horses go into ʒ kynges house, and there was she slayne.

Then made Joida a covenant betwene the LORDE and the kyng, and the people, & they shoulde be the people of the LORD. It was also betwixt the kynge and the people. Then wente all the people of the londe into the house of Baal, and brake downe his altars, and destroyed his ymages right well. And Mathan the prest of Baal slewe they before the altare: And the prest appoynted the officers in the house of the LORD, and toke the rulers ouer hundreds, and the capaynes, and the force men, and all the people of the londe, & broughte the kynge downe from the house of the LORD, and came the waye from the porte of the forte men into the kynges house, and he sat vpon the kynge seat. And all the people of the londe were glad, and the cite was at rest. As for Athalia, they slewe her with the swerde in the kynges house. And Joas was seven years olde, when he was made kynge.

The XII. Chapter.

IN the fifteth yeare of Iohn, was Joas made kynge, and reigned foure years at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Zibea of Bersaba. And Joas dyd that which was right in the sighte of the LORD, as long as Joiada the prest taught him. But they put noe downe the hye places: for the people offered burnt incense yet vpon the hye places.

And Joas sayde vnto the prestes: All the money that is sanctified to be bestowed vpon the house of the LORD, namely the money that every man giveth vnto the treasury, and the money that every man giveth for his soule, and all the money that every man giveth of a free hart, to be bestowed on the house of the LORD, let the prestes take it vnto them, every one his portion: with that shall they repare the decaye in the house of the LORD, where they fynde that there is any decaye.

But when the prestes repayed noe the decaye in the house vnto the thirte and twelce yeare of kynge Joas, Joas the kynge called Joiada the prest with the other prestes, and sayde vnto them: Wherefore do ye noe repare the decaye in the house?

Therefore shall ye not take the money vnto you now every one his portion, but shall geue it to the decaye of the house. And the prestes agreed to take no money of the people, and to repare the decaye of the house.

Then Joiada the prest toke a chest, and bound an hole aboute therein, and set it on the right hande besyde the altare, at the entryn into the house of the LORD. And the prestes that were presche the lawe, put all the money therein that was broughte vnto the house of the LORD. When they sawe that there was much money in the chest, the kynge styrde came up with the prest, and bounde the money together, and tolde it as moche as was founde in the house of the LORD. And so the ready money was gyven vnto them that woughte and were appoynted to the house of the LORD, and they gaue it forth to the carpenter and to the that buyled and wroughte in the house of the LORD, namely, to the builders and masons, and to them that boughte timber and freestone, to repare the decaye in the house of the LORD, and all that they founde to have neede of repayinge in the house.

Howbeit there were no syluer chargers, flat bezes, balens, trompettes, nor any other vessel of golde and syluer made on the house of the LORD, of the money that was broughte vnto the LORDS house: but it was gyven vnto the workmen to repare the decaye in the house of the LORD theroof. The men also that the money was deliuered vnto, for to geue the workmen, wold not to make any a compece, but did their busynesse vpon credence. But the money of trespasses offeringes and synne offeringes was not broughte vnto the house of the LORD: for it was the prestes.

At the same tyme wente Hasael the kynge of Syria up, and foughte agaynst Gath, and vanne it. And when Hasael sawe his force to go vnto Ierusalem, kynge Joas toke all that was sanctified, which his father Josaphat, Joram and Ochozias the kynges of Juda had halowd, and what he himselfe had sanctified, and all the golde that was founde in the treasures of the house of the LORD, and in the kynges house, and sent it vnto Hasael the kynge of Syria. And so he departed from Ierusalem.

Wherfore there is to saye of Joas, and all that he dyd, it is written in the Cronicles made of the kynges of Juda. And his seruantes made insurrection, and conspired, and smote him in the house of Millo, at the goinge downe vnto Silo. For Joshat the sonne of Simeath, and Josab had the sonne of Semei his seruantes smote him to deathe: and he was buried with his father in the cite of Dami. And Amasias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XIII. Chapter.

IN the xxxii. yeare of Joas the sonne of Ochozias kynge of Juda, was Joas the sonne of Iehu kynge ouer

Israel at Samaria, sixtenteene years: & byd þe which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked after the synnes of Ieroboam þe sonne of Nebat (which caused Israel to synne) and lefte nocht from them. And of many of the LORDE wroth wþoe upon Israel, & he deluyced them ouer vnder the bande of Hasael kynge of Syria, and vnder the bande of Benadab the sonne of Hasael, as longe as they lyued.

And Joahas besoughte the face of the LORDE. And the LORDE herde him, for he considered the myserie of Israel, how the kynge of Syria opprested them. And þe LORDE gaue Israel a sauoure, which broughre them out of the power of the Syrians, so þe children of Israel dwelt in their cotes, like as afore tyme.

B Yet lefte they not from the synnes of the house of Ieroboam, which caused Israel to synne, but walked in them. The greut at Samaria shal also. For of the people of Joahas there were no mo lefte, but fiftye hoisemen, ten charretes, and ten thousande foote men: & the kynge of Syria had destroyed them, and made them as the dust in the barn.

4. Re. b

What more there is to saye of Joahas, and all that he dyd, and his power, beholde, it is wyryten in the Cronicles of the Kynges of Israel. And Joahas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, & Joas his sonne was kynge in his steade.

C In the seven and thirtieth yere of Joas kynge of Juda, was Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge ouer Israel at Samaria sixtenteene yere. And he dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel fou to synne, but walked in them. What more there is to saye of Joas, and what he dyd, & his power, how he foughte with Amasias kynge of Juda, beholde, it is wyryten in the Cronicles of the Kynges of Israel. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and Ieroboam sat vps his face. And Joas was buried in Samaria wþ the kynges of Israel.

As for Elifus, he fell in to a sicknes, wher of he dyed. And Joas the kynge of Israel came downe vnto him, and wepce for him, and saide: My father, my father, the charer man of Israel, and his hoisemen. Elifus sayde vnto him: Take the bone and the arrowes. And whan he had taken the bone and the arrowes, he sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: Bende the bone with thine hande. And he bent it with his hande. And Elifus layde his hande upon the kynges hande, and sayde: Open that mynde me towards the LORDE. And he opened it. And Elifus saide: And he shal be sayd vnto the LORDE, one arrowe of the nation of the Syrians: and thou shalt be sayd to naughte.

And he sayde: Take y arrowes. And whan he had taken them, he sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: Emptie the earth. And he was that tyme and stode still. Then was the word of God wroth at him, and sayde: As thou haddest synneten fyve or sixe tymes, thou haddest haue synneten y Syrians, tyll thou haddest verryly broughre them to naughte. And now shalt thou synne them the tyme.

Whan Elifus was deed and buried, the men of warre of the Moabites fell in to sloude the same yere. And it fouraunt þe they buried a certaine man. But whan they saw the men of warre, they cast the man into Elifus graue. And whan he was therein, he touchte Elifus bones, he rearyued, and stode vpon his feete.

So Hasael the kynge of Syria opprest Israel, as longe as Joahas lyued. But the LORDE was gracious vnto them, and had mercy vpon them, and caried him to the sea for his covenantes sake, with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and wolde not destroye them: neþer dyd he cast them out from his presence vnto this houre.

And Hasael the kynge of Syria dyd, and Benadab his sonne was kynge in his steade. But Joas turned backe, and toke one of the bande of Benadab the sonne of Hasael the cyties which he had take in battaill out of the bande of his father Joahas: The cyties dyd Joas synre him, and boughte the cyties of Israel a gayne.

The xiiii. Chapter.

In the seconde yere of Joas þe firste of Joahas kynge of Israel, was Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda made kynge: fyve and twentye yere olde was he, whan he was made kynge. He reigned nyne and twentye yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joaban of Israel. And he dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE: yett not as his father David, but euen as his father Joas: but so dyd he also: for y hys places were not put downe, but the people offred and bent: and sette vpon the hys places. To w whom he had gotten the power of the kyngdom, & since his seruantes which had slytten the kyng his father: but the children of J deed sayers slewe he nor, accordinge to J which is wyrtten in the booke of the blame of Moyses, where the LORDE hath commaunded z sayde:

• The fathers shal not dye for the children, z the children shal not dye for the fathers: but every one shal dye for his awone synne.

3 Ten thousande of the Edomites smote he also in the Sale valley, and wanne Sela in baccayl, and called it Jatheel vnto this daye. • Then sent Amasias messaungers vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jaba kyng of Israel, sayenge: Come hither, for as it is one another. But Joas J kyng of Israel sent vnto Amasias the kyng of Juda, sayenge: The hawthorne that is in Libanus, sayenge: Here thy daughter vnto my sonne to wite. But a wynde beeft of the selde ranne ouer hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou hast slytten the Edomites, therefore is thine here warm proude: Take the payse, and byde at home: why stryest thou for my fortune, J thou mayest fall, and Juda with the: Howbeit Amasias consented not.

C Then wene Joas the kyng of Israel vp, and they laue one another, he and Amasias the kyng of Juda at Beth Serues which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was slytten before Israel, so that every one fled in to his tent. And Joas the kyng of Israel toke Amasias the kyng of Juda, the sonne of Joas the sonne of Ochosias at Beth Serues, and came to Jerusalem, and brake downe J wall of Jerusalem from J poore of Ephraim vnto the corner poore, euen foure hundred cubites lēge: and toke all the golde and syluer, and ornaments that were founde in the house of the LORDE, and in J treasuries of the kynges house, z the children also to pled ge, z departed agayne to Samaria.

Whatmore there is to saie of Joas, what he dyd, and of his power, z how he soughte with Amasias the kyng of Juda, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried at Samaria amonge J kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam his sonne was kyng in his steade.

d But Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, dyed after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kyng of Israel, sixtē yeare. Whatmore there is to saie of Amasias, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And they conspyred agaynst him at Jerusalem, but he fled vnto Lachis. And they sent for him vnto Lachis, and slewe him there. And they broughte him vpon horse, z he was buried at Jerusalem with his fathers in J cite of David. And all the people of Juda toke: Asarias in his sixtēth yeare, and made him kyng in steade of Amasias his father. He buylde d Wloch, and broughte it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kyng was fallen on slepe with his fathers.

In the sixtēth yeare of Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, was Jeroboam the sonne of Jois kyng ouer Israel at Samaria, one and forty yeare. And he dyd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne.

But the boylers of Israel broughte he agayne from Symath vnto J see that lyeth in the playne selde, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE: Bob of Israel, which he spake by his seruant • Jonas J sonne of Ami thal the prophete, which was of • Gath Ephraim. For the LORDE considered the myserable affliction of Israel, how that euen they which were shut vp and desolate, were amayne, and that there was no helper in Israel. • And the LORDE sayde not that he wolde destroye the name of Israel from vnder heauē. And he helped the by Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

What more there is to saie of Jeroboam, and all that he dyd, and of his power, how he soughte, and how he broughte Damascion and Symath agayne vnto Juda in Israel, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam fell on slepe with his fathers, with the kynges of Israel. And Zacharias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The xv. Chapter.

¶ In the thēten z twentieth yeare of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, reigned Amasias the sonne of Amasias kyng of Juda: and was sixtē yeare olde when he was made kyng: and reigned two and sixtē yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jehalhis of Jerusalem. And he dyd righte in the sighte of the LORDE, accordinge to all as dyd Amasias his father, sayenge that they put not doune the hie places. For the people dyd sacrifice and burnt incense yet vpon the hie places, howbeit the LORDE smedd the kyng, so that he was leper vnto his death, and dwelt in a hie house. But Jeroboam the kynges sonne ruled the house, and inbegerde the people in the londe.

What more there is to saye of Asarias, ⁊ all þe byd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Asarias fell on slepe with his fathers. ⁊ was buried with his fathers in the cite of Dauid, ⁊ Jotham his sonne was kyng in his steade.

B In the eight and thirtiech yeare of Asarias kyng of Iuda, was Zacharias the sonne of Jeroboam kyng ouer Israel at Samaria sice monethes. And he dyd þe which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, euen as his fathers byd. He departed noe from þe synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Selam the sonne of Jabea conspyred agaynst him, and slew him in the presence of þe people, and slew him, ⁊ was kyng in his steade. What more there is to saye of Zacharias, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And this is it, þe LORDE saye vnto Jehu: Thy children shall srye vnto the scate of Israel vntill the fourth generation. And euen so came it to passe.

Ac. 104

Some reade: Asa.

C Sellum the sonne of Jabea reigned in þe thirtiech yeare of Asarias kyng of Iuda, ⁊ reigned one moneth at Samaria. For Manahem the sonne of Gadi wote vp from Tbirza, ⁊ came to Samaria, and smote Sellum the sonne of Jabea at Samaria, ⁊ slew him, and was kyng in his steade.

What more there is to saye of Sellum, ⁊ of his kydric which he sfered vp, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. At the same tyme dyd Manahem srye: Tiphza, ⁊ all þe wote therein, ⁊ the coastes therof from Tbirza, because they wolde net let him in, and smote all their women w child, and cypre them vp.

D In the thirtiech yeare of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Manahem the sonne of Gad to reigne ouer Israel ten yeares at Samaria, and byd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE. As long as he luyed, departed he noe from þe synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Phul the kyng of Assiria came in to the lode. And Manahem gaue vnto Phul a thousande calentes of syluer to holde with him, and so cōfirme him in the kyngdome. And Manahem cayed up a waye in Israel vpon the richest, fiftie Syckes of siluer vpon euery man, to geue vnto þe kyng of Assiria. So the kyng of Assiria wete hom: agayne, and caried noe in the londe.

What more there is to saye of Manahem, ⁊ all þe byd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Manahem fell on slepe w his fathers. And Pecahia his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the sixtiech yeare of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Pecahia the sonne of Manahem to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria two yeare, and byd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE: for he departed noe frō the synnes of Jeroboam þe sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Pecah the sonne of Romelia his krynghre conspyred agaynst him, ⁊ smote him at Samaria þe palace of the kynges honie w Argob and Ariah, and fiftie men w him of þe child of Gilead, ⁊ slew him, ⁊ was kyng in his steade. What more there is to saye of Pecahia, ⁊ alle that he byd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the two and sixtiech yeare of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Pecah the sonne of Romelia to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria, twentye yeare, ⁊ byd that which was euell in the sighte of þe LORDE: for he departed noe from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne.

In the tyme of Pecah the kyng of Israel, came Tiglatphalser the kyng of Assiria, ⁊ toke Esai, Abel Bech Meacha, Jannoth, Abes, Saso, Gilead, Galile, and all the londe of Tephthali, ⁊ caried the away in to Assiria.

And Osea the sonne of Ela conspyred agaynst Pecah the sonne of Romelia, ⁊ slew him, and was kyng in his steade in the twentieth yeare of Jotham the sonne of Osea. What more there is to saye of Pecah, ⁊ alle that he byd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the thirde yeare of Pecah the sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel, was Jotham the sonne of Osea kyng of Iuda, ⁊ was thre and twentye yeare olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned sictene yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusa the daughter of Sabot. And he byd þe which was righte in þe sighte of the LORDE. Lodginge vnto alle as byd Osea his father, ⁊ vnto that he put noe downe the hie place: for the people effied ⁊ burne incense vpon the hie places. He bylded the hyppote of the house of the LORDE. What more there is to saye of Jotham, and alle that he byd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda.

At þe same tyme beganne þe LORDE to srye be Rezin þe kyng of Syria, ⁊ Pecah þe sonne of Romelia in to Iuda. And Jotham on slepe with his fathers, and was buried w his fathers in the cite of David his father.

And Achas his sonne was kynge in his stea

salem, 2 dyd not y which was tyghte in the sightes of y^e LORDE his God, as dyd David his father: for he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel. • Yee and caused his son ne to go therto the fyre, a fter the maner of the abhominacions of the heethen, whomit the LORDE diode awaye before the child of Israel. And he dyd sacrifice, and burnt in cense upon the hye places, 2 upon all hilles, and amonge all grene trees. • Then wente

Rezin the kynge of Syria, and Decah the sonne of Romelia kynge of Israel up to Je rusalem to fighte agaynst it, and layed siege to Achas: but they coulde not wynde it. At thesame tyme dyd Rezin the kynge of Sy ria, bynne. • Cloth agayne unto Syria, and thust y^e Iudees out of y^e lloch. But the Sy rians came to Iudee therin vnto this daye.

Thenerephes Achas sent messaugers vnto Teglarphalassar y^e kynge of Assiria, saye ge: Jam thy seruauant 2 thy sonne, come vp to helpe me out of y^e hande of the kynge of Sy vp agaynst me. And Achas toke the siluer 2 golde y^e was founde in y^e house of y^e LORDE, 2 in the treasures of y^e kynges house, 2 sent a presente to y^e kynge of Assiria. • And y^e kynge of Assiria consented vnto him, 2 wente vp to Damascon, 2 wanne it, 2 caried them awaye vnto Cir, 2 slawe Rezin. And kynge Achas wrote to Damascon for to mete Teglarphal assar y^e kynge of Assiria. And wha he sawe an altare y^e was at Damascon, kynge Achas sent a pacer 2 frimliche of y^e same altare vnto the prest Urias, even as it was made.

And Urias the prest buyded an altare, and made it accordinge as kynge Achas had sent vnto him from Damascon. yill Achas y^e kyn ge came from Damascon.

And whan y^e kynge came from Damas con, and sawe the altare, he offred theron, 2 bynded his burnt offerynges and meate offe rynges vpon it, and poured his burnt offerris vpon theron, 2 caused the bloude of y^e deede of ferynges which he offred, to be spientled vpon the altare. But the basen altare thae stode before the LORDE, was he awaye, so that a stode not betwene the altare and the house of the LORDE, but stode in the corner of the north syde of the altare.

And Achas the kynge comanded Urias y^e prest, 2 sayde: Vp to the greates altare shal thou bynde y^e burnt offerynges in the mornyn ge, 2 the meate offerynges in the euenynge, 2 the kynges burnt offerynges 2 his meate offerynges, 2 the burnt offerynges of all the people in the londr, w^{ch} their meate offerynges 2 burnt offeryng ges. And all the bloude of the burnt offeryng ges, 2 all the bloude of the other offerynges shal: thou spientle theron: but with the bas sen altare wyl I dryue what I can. • Vnto the prest yd all a coudinge as Achas the kyn ge comanded him.

And kynge Achas brake downe the sta ges, and put a waye the • Kell from about, and toke the lauer from the basen bullockes thar were there vnder, and set it vpon y^e pa vement of stone. And the pulpis for the Sab barth which they had buyded in the bush, and y^e entree of the kynges house turned he vnto the house of the LORDE, for the kynge of Assiria sake.

What more thers is to saye of Achas, but the LORDE which broughte you out of the lorde of Egipte, with greace power and wondrous armes, hym feare, him worshipped, & vnto him do sacrifice: and the statutes, ordinances, lawes & commaundement which he hath comaunded vnto you, those he saue ye kepe, that ye allwaye do there after, and feare none other gooddes. And forger not the commaunde which he hath made with you, lest ye feare other gooddes. But feare ye LORDE your God, he shall deliuer you from all your enemies. & Thercheles they wolde not herken, but vnto after their olde custome.

Thes thes they then feared the LORDE, and feared their Judas also, and so vnto their children and childrens children likewise. As as their fathers haue done before them, so do they vnto this daye.

The XVIII. Chapter.

In the thirde year of Oseas sonne of Ulia kyng of Israel, reigned Uezachias sonne of Achaz kyng of Juda, and he was fyne and twentie year olde when he was made kyng, & reigned nyne & twenye year at Jerusalem, his mothers name was Abi the daughter of Zachary. And he vnto that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, accordinge vnto all as vnto Dauid his father. He put awaye the hie places, and brake downe the pilers, & rote out the groones, and brake the basen serpente which Uiloses had made. For vnto that tyme had the children of Israel brent incense into it. And it was called Uethusphan. He purcha trust in the LORDE God of Israel, so that after him there was not his like amonge all the kynges of Juda necher had bene before him. He cleued vnto the LORDE, and departed not backe from him, and kepe his commaundementes, which the LORDE had comaunded Uiloses. And the LORDE was wth him. And wherther so euer he wote south, he behoued him selfe wisely. He resisted the kyn of Assiria, and was not subdued vnto him. He smote the Philistynes also vnto Gaza, and their borders, from the castles vnto the stronge cities.

In the fourth year of Uezachias kyng of Juda, he was the seuenth year of Oseas the sonne of Ulia kyng of Israel, came Salmanser the kyng of Assiria vnto agaynst Samaria, and layed siege vnto it, and warne it a fyer the yere in the sixte year of Uezachias, that is in the nyenth year of Oseas kyng of Israel, the was Samaria wotm. And the kyng of Assiria caried Israel awaye vnto Assiria, and set them at Salah and Habor by the water Uofan, and in the cities of the Medes. And all because they herkened not vnto the voyce of the LORDE their God, and had transgressed his commaunde: And as for all that Uiloses the seruante of the LORDE had comaunded the, they had necher herkened vnto any of those, nor done them.

In the fourth year of kyng Uezachias vnto Sennacherib the kyng of Assiria come vnto agaynst all the stronge cities of Juda, & conquered the. Then sente Uezachias the kyng of Juda to the kyng of Assiria vnto Lachis, sayenge: I haue offered, come backe for me, I wil beate what thou layest vnto me, I wil beate it. The kyng of Assiria layed vnto Uezachias the kyng of Juda, the hundred talentes of syluer, & thirtie calentes of golde. So Uezachias gaue all the syluer he was founde in the house of the LORDE, & in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same tyme brake Uezachias the kyng of Juda the doore of the temple of the LORDE, & the places of golde which he him selfe had caused to laye ouer the, & gaue the vnto the kyng of Assiria.

And the kyng of Assiria sente Thartan, and the chiefe chamberlayne, & the chiefe butler from Lachis to kyng Uezachias with a greate power vnto Jerusalem. And they wote it: and when they came there, they stode styll at the contrye by the oore pole, which lyeth in the waye vnto the fullers londe, and called vnto the kyng. The kyng thes forth vnto them Ueliam, the sonne of Soldanias the steward, and Uobna the scribe, & Ioah the sonne of Assaph the Secretary.

And the chiefe butler sayde vnto the kyng & the kyng of Assiria: What presumption is this? thou trustest vnto: Ueliam thou, thou hast yet counsell and power to fighte: Where vnto trustest thou then, that thou art fallen of frome: Beholde, puttess thou thy trust in this broken staffe of reede, in Egipte: which who leanech vpon, it shall go in to his hande, & pearse it throught. Then sente Pharao the kyng of Egipte vnto all them that put their trust in him. But yf ye wolde saye vnto me: We put our trust in the LORDE our God. To not that he, whose hie places and altars Uezachias hath brake downe, and sayde vnto Juda and Jerusalem: Be so this altare which is at Jerusalem, shall ye worshipped?

Ueliam a murtherer now therfore vnto my lord the kyng of Assiria, and I wil geue ye two thousande heires, let se yf thou be able to man them: how wilt thou then endure before the smallest pynce of my lordes subiectes? And trustest thou vnto Egipt because of the charcoates and boyimen? But thinkest thou that I came up hither withoute of the LORD: to destroye these cities? The LORD E hath commaunded me: Go up in to that londe and destroye it.

Then sayde Eliachim the sonne of Seldia z Sobna and Joah vnto the chiefe butler: Speake to thy seruantes in the Syrius language, for we vnderstande it, and speake not vnto vs in the Jewes speche before the eares of the people that are vpon the wall. Neuerthelesse I the chiefe butler sayde vnto thei: Each my lorde then sent me vnto thy lorde, or to the, to speake these wordes: See euen vnto the men, which sit vpon the wall, that they maye eate their owne donge and drynke their owne steale wch you. So the chiefe butler stode and cried with londe voyce in the Jewes language, and spake and sayde: Heare the worde of the greates kynge the kynge of Assiria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Ezechias disceane you, for he is not able to deliuer you fro my hande: I let not Ezechias make you to trust in the LORD E, sayenge: The LORD E shall deliuer vs, and this cite shal not be geuen in to the handes of I the kynge of Assiria. Folowes not ye Ezechias, for thus saith the kynge of Assiria:

Do methis blessing, and come forth vnto me, so shal euer yman eate of his wyne and of his fygge tre, and drynke of his well, tyll I come in myselfe and fetch you in to a londe, which is like your awne lode, wherein is cotne, wyne, bred, vynyardes, oyle trees, oyle and hony, so shal ye lyue, and not dye. Folowes not ye Ezechias, for he disceanech you, when he sayeth: The LORD E shal deliuer vs. Have the goddes of the heythen deliuered euer one his londe from the handes of the kynge of Assiria? Where are the goddes of Chemath and Arphad? Where are the goddes of Sepharusim Sena and Iua? haue they deliuered Samaria from my hande? Where is there one god amonge the goddes of all londes, which hath deliuered his londe from my hande? chace the LORD E shulde deliuer Jerusalem from my hande.

As for the people, they helde their peace, and gaue him no answer: for the kynge had commaunded and sayde: Answer him nothing. Then came Eliachim the sonne of Seldia I the sonne of Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Assaph the Secre tary vnto Ezechias with rente clothes, and tolde him the wordes of the chiefe butler.

The XIX. Chapter.

When Ezechias I the kynge herde this, he rente his clothes, z put on a sack cloth, z wente in to I the house of the LORD E, z sent Eliachim the scribe z Sobna the scribe with the eldest prestes, docther in sack cloth, vnto the prophet Esay I the sonne of Amos, z they saide vnto him: Thus sayeth Ezechias: This is a daye of trouble, z of deshaunce z blasphemie. The childer are come to the bysch, z there is no strength to be deliuered of them. If happily the LORD E thy God wil heare all the wordes of I the chiefe butler, when his lorde the kynge of Assiria he ch sent, to blasphemie I the kynge of Assiria, z to dese him with such wordes I the LORD E thy God hath herbe, therefore like thou vnto thy prayer for the remaunace, which are yet lefte to bynde.

And wha I the chiefe butler commaundes a me to Esay, Esay sayde vnto them: Speake thus vnto your lorde: Thus sayeth the LORD E: Feare not thou the wordes I the chiefe butler, wherwith the kynge of Assiria commaundes haue blasphemed me. Beholde, I wil put him in another myrde, so I the childer heare rydinges, z go agayne in to his awne countre, and in his awne londe wil I send him to fall thowme the strette.

And whan I the chiefe butler came agayne, he founde the kynge of Assiria fightinge agaynst Libna: for he had heard that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde of Lachis the kynge of the Moitiens: Beholde, he is gone forth to fighte with the. Then returned he backe, z sent messengers to Ezechias, z caused to saye vnto him: Let not thy God disceane the, on ynom thou trustest I the kynge of Assiria shal not be geue in to the handes of the kynge of Assiria. Beholde, thou hast bene what the kynge of Assiria hath done to all londes, z how they vained them, z shal thou be deliuered? haue I the goddes of Assiria then deliuered the, whom my father belonyed, as Golan, Haran, Reseph, z the childer of Eden which were at Chalassar? What is I the kynge of Chemath, I the kynge of Arphad, I the kynge of Sepharuim, Sena z Iua?

And whan Ezechias had receiued the letters of the messengers and had red them, he wente up vnto the house of the LORD E, and layd them abedde before the LORD E, made his prayer for the LORD E, and sayde: O LORD E God of Israel, I the chiefe butler test vnto the Cherubim, thou onely art the among all y kyngdomes of the earth, thou hast made heauen and earth. Wcndyne thine care O LORD, and heare: open thine eyes, and beholde, and heare the wordes of Sen nachem, which hath sene hither to blasphemers the luyng God. It is true O LORDE that the kynges of Assiria have destroyed the heythen and their londe with the fixe, and have cast their goddes in the fyre: for they were not Goddes, but y worke of mens hondes, wood and stone, therfore haue they destroyed them. But now O LORDE helpe thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyng domes vpon earth maye knowe, that thou LORDE EAR: God alone.

1) Then sene I Esay the sonne of Amos vnto Eschias, sayenge: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Where as thou hast made thy payer vnto me concernyng Sennacherib y kyng of Assiria, I haue herde it. This is it that the LORDE hath spoken agaynst him: he hath despyed y and mocked the O virgin thou daughter Zion: he hath shakē his heade at the O daughter Ierusalem.

2) Whom hast thou despyed z blasphemed: vnto whom hast thou lyste vp thy voyce: And agaynst y holy one in Israel hast thou lyste vp thine eyes: thou hast blasphemed y LORDE by thy messengers, and sayde: Thou art the mercinate of my charetes: haue I gone vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, vpon the sydes of Libanus. I haue hewen downe his hye Ceders and his choysen Pyne trees, and am come to the vttermost habitacon of the wod of Carmel that belongeth vnto it. I haue dygged and dycke vp the strange waters, and with y soles of my fetter haue I trayed vp the See.

3) But hast thou not herd how that I haue done this longe ago, and haue prepared it from the begynnyng: How haue I caused it for to come, that conciences stronge cities myghte fall in to a wastt heape of stonnes, z they that dwell therein, shal be saynt, and fearfull and a shamed, and shal be as the grass upon the felde, and as y grent herbe, and bay vpon the heuse toppes, that wythereth afore it be growne vp. I knowe thy habitacon, thy ouer and ingoynge, and that thou targett agaynst me. For so moche then as thou targett agaynst me, and seynge thy piteumpcion is come vp to myne eares, therfore wyll I put a ryng in thy nose, and a byde byt in chy lippes, and wyll bringe the agayne, even the same waye thou camst.

4) And Iacob be a token vnto the O Ze-chias. In this year eate y which is fallen, in the seconde year (sch as groweth of it selfe: In y thirde year sowe and reape, and plante vynyardes, and eate the fruce therof. And the daughter Iuda which is escaped z remayneth, shall from hence forth eate rotes beneath, and beare fruce about. For the remanent shal go forth from Ierusalem, z they y are escaped, shall go out from mount Zion. The zelousy of the LORDE Zebaoth shall bringe this to passe.

Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE concernyng y kyng of the Assyrians: he shall not come in to this cite, and shall haue no rowme therein, neyther shal there come any shyde before it, neyther shall he bygge any bakē aboute it, but shal go agayne the waye that he came, and shall not come in to this cite, sayeth the LORDE: and I wyll defende this cite, to helpe it for myne awne sake, and for my seruante Dauides sake.

And in the same nyghte wente the angell of the LORDE, and stode in the hoost of the Assyrians, au hundred and fyne and foure score thousand men. And when they gate them vp in the moynnyng, beholde, all theye full of deeth coarso. So Sennacherib the kyng of Assiria brak vp, and departed, and returned, and abode at Linnuc. And as hee was worshipped in y house of Asrad his god, his sone sonnes Adramalech and Saraccer smote him with the sword, and slew in to y londe of Ararat. And Asarbadon his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XX Chapter.

That tyme was Eschias becside. And the prophete I say y some of Amos, came to him, z sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth y LORDE: See thine house in orde for thou shalt dye z not lye. And hee cur ned, his face to the wall, and prayed vnto y LORDE, and sayde: A remembre O LORDE that I haue walked faithfully before the, z with a perfect here, and haue done y which is good in thy syghet. And Eschias wept sore. But when I say was not gone out of halfe the cite, y woide of y LORDE came to him, z sayde: Turne back, z tell Eschias y prynce of my people: Thus sayeth y LORDE God of thy father Dauid: I haue herde thy prayer, z considered y reares. Beholde, I wil heale y: on the thirde daye shalt thou go in to y house of the LORDE, z sifene yeares wil I adde vnto y life, z wyll deliuer the z this cite from the kynges of Assiria, z this cite wil I defende for myne awne sake, and for my seruante Dauides sake. And I say sayde: But 25 Ezchias sayde vnto Esay: Which is tooken, that the LORD will heale me, and that I shal go up in to the house of the LORD on the thide daye: Esay sayde: This token shal thou haue of the LORD, that the LORD shal do accordyng as he hath sayde. Shal the shadowe go ten degrees forwarde, or shal it come ten degrees backward: Ezchias sayde: It is an easy thinge for the shadowe to go ten degrees downward, y it is not my mynde: but that it go ten degrees backward. Then cryed the prophet Esay vnto the LORD, and the shadowe wente backe ten degrees in Achas Wyall, which he was descended a foote.

At the same tyme Merodach Dalaban the sonne of Dalaban kynge of Babilon, sent letters and pismes vnto Ezchias, for he had herd that Ezchias had bene sicke. And Ezchias reioysed with them, & shewed them all the best of robes, the silver, golde, spyes, and the best oyle, and the house of ordinaunce, and all that was founde in his treasure. There was nothinge in his house and in all his domynion, but Ezchias shewed it them.

C Then came Esay the prophet vnto kynge Ezchias, and sayde vnto him: What haue these men sayde? and whence came they vnto thee? Ezchias sayde: They came to me out of a faire countre, euen from Babilon. He sayde: What haue they sene in thine house? Ezchias sayde: They haue sene all that is in my house, and there is nothyng in my treasure: but I haue shewed it them. Then sayde Esay vnto Ezchias: Heare the wordes of the LORD E: Behelde, the tyme cometh, that it shall all be carryed away vnto Babilon, and whatsoever thy fathers haue layed vp vnto this daye, and there shall nothyng be left, sayeth the LORD E. And the children which come of thee, whom thou shalt beget, shall be taken awaye, to be chamerlaynes in the kynge of Babilons palace. Ezchias sayde vnto Esay: It is good that the LORD E hath spoken. And he sayde more vnto: See there be peace yet and saith fulfille in my tyme.

What more there is to saye of Ezchias, and all his power, and what he dyd, and of the pole and water condyte, wher by he conyeyd water in to the cite, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynge of Iuda. And Ezchias fell on slepe with his fathers, and Manasse his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXI. Chapter.

Manasse was twelues yearre old, when he was made kynge, and reigned fyue and sixty yearre at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Sephiah. And he dyd that which was euill in the sight of the LORD, euen after the abhominacions of the heithen, from the LORD E repented before the children of Israel and would forwarde, and builded vp the hye places which his father Ezchias had destroyed, and he builded vp Baals altars, and made groves, as Achaz the kynge of Israel dyd, and worshipped alle the hoost of heauen, and strucke thumpe And builded altars in the streete which was before the LORD E sayde: I will sit my name at Ierusalem. And in both the corners of the house of the LORD E builded he altars vnto all the hoost of heauen. And he caused his sonne to go thowen the fyre, and magyck, bydaes, yenge and tokens, and rewarded forth sayers, and expounders of robes, and so much dyd he of this which was euill in the sight of the LORD, that he provoked him vnto wrath.

A groue Ihol also which he had made set he in the house, wherof the LORD E spoke vnto Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: In this house, and at Ierusalem, which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, I set my name for ever, and will not cause the foot of Israel to be removed eny more from the londe, which I gave vnto their fathers, yet so that they obserue and do accordyng vnto all that I haue charged them, and obserue all the lawe that my seruauit Moyses commaunded them. Tenethales they would not hearken, but Manasse dysceded thys, so that they dyd worse then the heithen, whom the LORD E called before his children of Israel.

Then spake the LORD E by his seruauit the prophetes, and said: Because thou Manasse the kynge of Iuda hast gone the abhominacions, which are worse then all the abhominacions that the Amozites haue done which were before them, and hast caused to do also to synne agaynst their God, thus saith the LORD E God of Israel: Beholde, I will byynge Iuda a place vpon Ierusalem and Iuda, that who so cometh hit, both his eares shall glowe, and euen Ierusalem will I stretch forth the lync of Babilonia, and the weighte of the hoost of Iuda, and will wype out Ierusalem, euen as I wyperth a plater, and I will conuert the sixteenth yeare of kyng Jo-inge sent Saphan þ sonne of Aisa me of Ierusalem the scribe, in to þ the LORDE, and sayde: Go vp to the hye prest, that the money that is broughte vnto þ house of y LORDE which the resholde keepers haue gathered of y people maye be deliuered vnto them, that they maye geue it to the workmen which are ap-poynted in the house of the LORDE, & to ge-use it vnto the labourers in the house: þ they maye re paye the decaye of the house, name-

And Helchias þ prest sayde vnto Saphā þ the scribe: "I haue founde the boke of the lame in the house of the LORDE. And Helchias gaue the boke vnto Saphan, that he mighte reade it. And Saphan the scribe hare it vnto the kyng, and broughte him wordes agayne, & sayde: Thy seruantes haue gathered together þ money þ was founde in the house, & haue deliuered it vnto the workmen, which are appoynted in þ house of the LOR-DE. And Saphan the scribe tolde the kyng and sayde: Helchias the prest hath deli-uered me a boke, and Saphan red it besyde the kyng.

And whā the kyng herde the wordes of the boke of lame, he rente his clothes. And the kyng commaunded Helchias the prest, & Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, & Achob the sonne of Michaia, and Saphan the scribe, & Aisia þ kynges seruante, and sayde: Go y waye and ase counsell at the LORDE for me, for the people, and for all Iuda, concernyng the wordes of this boke that is founde: for greace is the wrauth of the LORDE that is kyndled ouer vs, because o' fathers haue not hertened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do all that is wyrtzen vnto vs therein.

Then wente Helchias the prest, and Ahilcam, Achob, Saphan & Aisia vnto Helia the prophete: þ wife of Sellu the sonne of Theca the sonne of Harham the keeper of þ cloches, and she dwelid at Jerusalem in the seconde poynt, and they spake vnto her. And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth y LORDE God of Israel: Tell the man that sent you vnto me, Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, I wil bringe euell vpon this place, and the inhabiters thereof, vntil all the wordes of þ lame which the kyng hath caused to be red, because they haue forsaken me, and burnt incense vnto oþer goddes, to prouoke me vnto wrauth with all the wordes of their han-des. Therfore is my wrauth kyndled agaynst this cite, and shall not be quenched.

D But all this vnto the kyng of Iuda, which hath sent you to are counsaill at the LORDE: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Because thine hart is not departed fro the wordes which thou hast herde, and hast humbled thy selfe before the LORDE, to heare what I haue spoken agaynst this place and the inhabiteres thereof: how that they shall become a very desolation and curse: I haue remeue thy clothes, and wept before me, I haue herde it, sayeth the LORDE: therefore will I gather thee vnto thy fathers, so that thou shalt be put in to thy graue in peace, and thine eyes shall see all the euill that I will bringe vpon this place. And they broughte the kynges worde agayne.

The XXX. Chapter.

AND the kynges sent fetch, and all the Elders in Iuda and Jerusalem reserued vnto him, and the kynges wente vp in to the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Iuda, and all the inhabiteres of Jerusalem with him, the prestes and prophetes, and all the people both small and greete, and all the wydes of the booke of the covenante that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were red in their eares. And the kynges stode vpon a piler, and made a councaill before the LORDE, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, and to keepe his commandementes, witnesses, and ordinaunces with all their hart and with all their soule, that they shulde see vpon the wydes of this covenante, which are wyrtren in this booke. And all the people entred in to the covenante.

And the LORDE commanded Helchias the hie prest, and the prestes of the secunde court, and the keepers of the thre holtes, that they shulde put out of the temple all the vessells which were made for Baal, and for the groue, and for all the host of heauen, that he burnt them without Jerusalem in the valley of Cedron, and the dust of them was carryed vnto Bethel.

AND he put downe the Bethelm, which the kynges of Iuda had founde, to beare witness vpon the hie places, in the cite of Iuda, and aboute Jerusalem. He put downe also them that beent incense vnto Baal, in the Sonne, and the Mone, and the wydes of heauen, and to all that host of heauen. And the groue caused he to be carryed from the house of the LORDE out of Jerusalem in to the valley of Cedron, and burnt it in the valley of Cedron, and made it to dust, and cast the dust vpon the graues of the comen people. And he brake downe the whoredores houses which were by the house of the LORDE, wherby the women made mansions for the groue.

And he caused all the prestes for to come out of the cite of Iuda, and suspended the hie places, where the prestes beent incense, from Geba vnto Bersaba. And brake downe the hie places in the postes, that were at the doore of the gate of Josias that sheweth of the dore, at the left hande as one goeth to the cite porte. Yet had not the prestes of the hie places offered vpon the altare of the LORDE in Jerusalem, but ate vnto euened vnto amonge their diettes.

He suspended Thophet also in the valley of the children of Ennon, wher a woman shulde cause his sonne or his daughter to goe downe that shee vnto Moloch. And he put downe the hoises, which the kynges of Iuda had set vnto the Sonne, at the miringe in to the house of the LORDE, besyde the chest of Sathum Melch the chambriaire which was at Partuarim, and the charrettes of the Sonne beent he with fire, and the altare vpon the roste of Achabes prest, which the kynges of Iuda had made. And the altare, which Manasses had made in the two courtes of the house of the LORDE, vnto the kynges brake downe. And raimed from thence, and cast the dust of them in to the hoise Cedron.

And the hie places that were besyde Jerusalem on the right hande of Moab, the which which Salomon the kyng of Israel had buylde vnto Harech the abhominacion of Sidon, and to Carno the abhominacion of Moab, and to Malcan the abhominacion of the children of Ammon, these did the kynges suspende, and brake the pilers, and reerd out the grones, and fylled their places with mens bones.

And, the altare at Bethel, and the hie place that Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat made, which caused Israel to synne, these did he brake downe, and the hie place, that beent the hie place, and made it to dust, and burnt vpon the groue. And Josias turned him above, and same the graues that were vpo the mount, and caused the bones to the pre-cher out of the graues, and brent them vpo the altare, and suspending it, accordinge to the woorde of the LORDE, which the man of God sayd out, that tolde this befoe.

And he sayde: What tithell is this, that I se here: And the men of the cite sayde vnto him: It is the graue of the man of God, which came from Iuda, and eried out this that thou hast done agaynst y altare of Bethel. And he sayde: Let him lye, no man touche his bones. Thus were his bones deliue-red with the bones of the prophet that came from Samaria.

¶ He put away also all the houses of the hye places in the cities of Samaria (which the kynges of Israel had made to prouoke y LORDE vnto wrath) and dyd with them accordinge to all as he had done at Bethel.
In all y pyeces of the hye places that we re there, offered he vp vpon the altares, and y subuerted he mens bones thereon, and came agayne to Jerusalem.

¶ And the kyng commaunded the people, and sayde: Be ye Easter vnto the LORDE yere God, as it is wyrtten in the boke of his coenamēt. For there was no Easter so kepe as this, since the tyme of the Judges whych indyded Israel, and in all the tymes of the kynges of Israel, and of the kynges of Iuda: but in the eightynthe yere of kyng Josias, was this Easter kepe vnto the LOR-DE at Jerusalem.

¶ And Josias expelled all soothsayers, expellers of totes, ymagēs and Idoles, and all the abhominacions which were sene in the londe of Iuda and at Jerusalem, that he might see vp the wordes of the lawe, whych were wyrtzen in the boke, that Heldisias y prest foude in the house of y LORDE.

¶ This lre was no kyng before him, whych y covered vnto y LORDE w all his hart, w all his soule, z with all his strength, ac-cordinge to all the lawe of Mōses. And after him came there noe vp such another. Yet the wd not the LORDE from the indignacion of his greates wrath, wherwith he was dis-pleasid ouer Iuda, because of all the prouoca-cion wherwith Manasse had prouoked him. And y LORDE sayde: I wil put Iuda out of my presence also, even as I haue put awaye Israel: and this cite whych I haue chym, wil I cast out, name'y, Jerusalem, z the house wherof I sayde: My name shalbe there. What more there is to saye of Josias, and all that he dyd, be holde, it is wyrtten in ther Josias stead, z turned his name Joachim. But Joahas toke de, z broughe h m in to Egipce where he dyed. And Joachim gawe the siluer z golde vnto Pharaos, yet taf-ed he the londe, y he might geue y siluer a-cordinge to Pharaos commaundement. Eue-ry one amonge the people in y londe cared he after his abilitie in siluer z golde, to geue it vnto Pharaos. yme z twentye yere olde was Joachim whan he was made kyng, z reigned eleven yeres at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Seluda y daughter of Pedaia of Rama, z he dyd euill in the sight of the LORDE, even as his fathers had done.

The XXiiii. Chapter.
¶ In his tyme came vp Nabuchodonosor y son of kyng of Babilon, z Joachim was in subieccion vnto him iij. yere. And he turned back, z rebelled agaynst him. And y LORDE sent men of warre vpon him out of Chaldea, out of Syria, out of Moab, z fro amonge the childre of Ammon, z caused the foe to come in to Iuda, to destruie it according to the woorde of the LORDE, whych he spake by his seruantes the prophetes. It foerned euil so vnto Iuda, accordinge to y worde of the LORDE, that he wolde put the cite awaye from his presence, because of y sinnes of Manasse whych he dyd, z because of the innocent bloude that he shed. And he filled Jerusalem with innocēt bloude, therfore wolde not the LORDE be reconcyled.

The xxv. Chap.

AND it fortunend, that in the nyenth yere of his reigne, vpon the tenth daye of the tenth month, Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon came with all his power agaynst Jerusalem. And they layd siege vnto it, and buylded stronge holmes aboute it. Thus was the cite besieged to the cleuenth yere of kyng Sebedchias. But on the nyenth daye of the fourth moneth was the hunger so stronge in the cite, that the people of the londe had nothinge to eate. And the cite was broken vp, and all the people of the londe fled in the nyght by the waye of the porte betwene the two walles, which led to the kynges gard. But the Caldees aboute the cite. And he fled by the waye the playne felde. Therafter the power of the Caldees folowed after the kyng, and toke him in the plaine felde of Jericho: and the men of warre that were with him, were scattered abrode from him. And they toke the kyng, and led him vp to the kyng of Babilon vnto Babelarha. And he gaue wounde vpon him. And they slew Ezechias that he before his eyes, and put out Sebedchias and bounde him with cheynes, and caried him vnto Babilon.

Vpon the seventh daye of the fifth moneth, that is the nineteenth yere of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon, came Nabuzanban the chefe captayne the kyng of Babilons seruaunt, vnto Jerusalem, and burnt the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, all the houses at Jerusalem, and all the grete houses burnt he with fyre. And all the piuer of the Caldees which was with the chefe captayne, brake downe the walles round aboute Jerusalem. As for the other port that yet were left in the cite, and were led vnto the kyng of Babilon, and the other men people, Nabuzanban the chefe captayne caried them awaye. And of the poore people dyd the chefe captayne leaue in that he to be wyngardners and plowmen.

But the basyn pilers in the house of

The iiii. boke of the kynges.

THE LORD, and the scales, and the brasen laver that was in the house of the LORD, byd þe Caldees brasse boume, and caried the metall into Babilon. And the pottes, shoules, fleschpotes, spomes, and all þe brasen vessel that was occupie in the seruaice, caried they awaye. And þe these captayne toke awaye þe censers and basins þe were of golde and silver, two plates, one lauer, and the scales þe Salomon had made for þe house of the LORD. The metall of all these ornamentes could not be weighed. Eightene cubytes hye was one piler, and þe knoppe thereon was of brasen also, and thre cubytes hye: and the rope and the pennanzes upon the knoppe rounde aboute, were all of brasen. And for the same maner was the other piler also with the rope.

And the these captayne toke Seraia the priest of the first course, and Sophony the priest of the seconde course, and thre doctores, and one chamberlayne one of the cite, which was appointed over þe men of warre: and five men that were euer before the kyng, which were founde in the cite: and Sopher the captayne, which taughte the people of þe londe to fighte: and thre chiefe men of þe people of the londe, that were founde in the cite: these byd Nabuzardan þe these captaynes take, and broughe them to the kyng of Babilon unto Reblatha. And the kyng of Babilon steepe them at Reblatha in þe londe of Semeth. Thus was Juda caried awaye out of his awne londe. But over the remembrance of the people in the londe of Juda, whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon lefte behynde, he set Godolias þe sonne of Ahicam yf sonne of Saphan. Now whā all the captaynes of the soudyers, and the men here, that the kyng of Babilon had made Godolias gouernour, they came to Godolias unto Irlispa, namely, Jimacl þe sonne of Ierachamas, and Johanna yf sonne Carea, and Seraia þe sonne of Tanhometh the Etyophaite, and Jelanias þe sonne of Maachathid their men. And Godolias swaure unto them: that they shoulde, saye unto them: I feare not ye yf officers of the Caldees, tary in the londe: I wilmyte youre selues unto the kyng of Babilon, and ye shal prosper. But in the seventh month came Jimacl the sonne of Ierachamas the sonne of Elisama, of the kynges Etyopes, and comen with him, and steepe Godolias, and the Jewes and Caldees that were with him at Irlispa. Then alle the people gat them up, both small and great, and the captaynes of the host, and came into Beiris, for they were astrayed of þe Caldees.

The xxv. Chap. Fo. lxxxix.

Howbeit in the seven and thirtieth yere after that Joachim the kyng of Juda was caried awaye on the seven and twenty daye of the twelvemonth, Belshazzar the kyng of Babilon in the first yere of his reigne, lift up the kyng of Joachim þe kyng of Juda out of prison, and spake louyngly unto him, and set his throne above þe thrones of þe kynges that were with him at Babilon, and chaunged the clothes of his captayne. And heate allwaye before him as long as he lyued. And hee appointed him his portion, which was euer geard him daylye of the kyng, as long as he lyued.

The XI. Chapter.

¶ The philistynes soughte agaynst Israel. And they of Israel fled before the philistynes, and 7 wounded fill upon mount Gilboa. And the philistynes followed vpon Saul and his sonnes, and smote Jonathas, Aminadab and Malchijua 3 sonnes of Saul. And the battayll was foue a-gaynst Saul. And the archers came vpon him, so that he was wounded of the arches. Then sayde Saul vnto his weapenbearer: Driue out thy swerde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vnicircumcised come not, and deale shamefully with me. Wherevnto his weapenbearer wolde not, for he was frauyed. Then toke Saul his swerde, and self therein. Whan his weapenbearer sawe the Saul was dead, he fell vpon his swerde, and dyed.

Thuo dyed Saul and his thre sonnes, and all his household together. And whan the men of Israel which were in 3 valley, sawe that Saul and his sonnes were dead, they left their cities and fled: and the philistynes came and dwelt therein.

On the morowe came the philistynes spoyle the slayne, and founde Saul, and his sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gelboa, and they cut him out, and toke his heade, and his harness, and sent it aboute in to 3 lande of the philistynes, and caused it to be shewed before their Idoles and the people. And his weapen bearer layed they in the house of their god, and stycke vp his heade vpon the house of Dagon.

¶ Whan all they of Jabes in Gilead herde of euery thinge, that the philistynes had done vnto Saul, they gat them vp (as many as were men of armes) and toke the body of Saul and of his sonnes, and broughte them vnto Jabes, and buried their bones vnder the Oke at Jabes, and fasted foue dayes.

Thuo dyed Saul in his trespass which he commyted agaynst the LORD Eke cause he kepte not the worde of the LORD Eke because he ased counsell at the soothsayers, and ased not at the LORD Eke before he slant he him, 7 turned the kyngdome vnto Dauid.

The XII. Chapter.

¶ Vnto all Israel returned to Dauid vnto Hebron, and sayde: Bechele, we are in bone and thy flesh. And asen vnto whan Saul reigned, 7 denoted 7 Israel and in. So the LORD Eke by God hath vnto vnto the: Thou shalt kepe my people of Israel, and thou shalt be the prince of my people of Israel. And all the Elders of Israel came to the kyng vnto Hebron. Dauid made a cecunauum with them at Hebron before the LORD Eke. And they anoynted Dauid to be kynge ouer Israel. And they did so to the worde of the LORD Eke by Samuil.

¶ And Dauid and all Israel went vnto Jerusalem, that is Ibus: for the Ibus ward in the 16de. And the cities of Ieruzalem were Davids: I thou shalt not come in his cher. Howbeit David wane y castell of Sion, which is y cite of David. And David sayde: who ever smyth y Jebusites first, shall be a prince & captayne. The Joab y sonne of Zeruia chymmed up first, & was made captayne. So David dwelt in y castell, therfore was it called y cite of David. And he buydd y cite reide aboute, fro Millo south on eary side. As for y remnant of y cite, Joab buydd it, & reparyed it. And David were fast y greue, & the LORDE Zebaoth was w

These are y thesse anoyge y might (him. the me of David, which dealt valiantly w him in his kyngdome w all ysrael, to make him kyng, accordinge to the wyrd of y LORDE over ysrael. And this is y nombre of Davids mighty men: Jethiam the sonne of Hadum, the cheffest amonge thirte. He list up his speare, & smote the C. at one tyme.

After him was Eleazar the sonne of Dothai the Gethite, and he was amonge the thesse myghte. This man was w David wha they besyged, & the Philistynes gatherd the foun there w y dayell. And eue then was there a pece of londe full of bury, & the people stode before the Philistynes. And they stode in the myddes of the londe, and rescued it, and smote the Philistynes. And the LORDE gave a greute healt.

And thus of the cheffest thirte were down to the rede wnto David in to the caue of Adullam. But the Philistynes hoost laye in the valley of Rephaim. As for David, he was in the castell. And the Philistynes people met then at Bethleem. And David was besyged, and saye: O that some wolde geue me to drynke of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gaze. The byake hose thyn in to the Philistynes hoost, and brue of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gaze, and caried it, and broughte it wnto David. Therfore he wolde noe drynke it, but poured it wnto the LORDE, and sayde: God let this be sure fro me, y I shal do it, and drynke the bloude of these men in y parrell of their life: for with the parrell of their life haue they buyghe it: ther fore wold he noe drynke it. This dyd the thesse Worthies.

Abhai the brother of Joab, he was the cheffest amonge thes. And he list up his speare, and smote the hundred. And he was famous amonge thes, and before the thirde, more honorable then the two, yre came he noe wnto the thes.

Benai the sonne of Joiada the sonne of Bishai of Gabzei, was a man of greute actes. He smote two Lyons of the Moabites. And he wente downe, and smote a Lyon in the myddes of a well in the tyme of inuente. He smote a man of Egypte also, which was yre cubites greute of stature, and had in his hande a speare like a reiers some. Ther wente he downe to him with a staffe, and rote the speare out of his hande, and slawe him with his awone speare. This dyd Benai the sonne of Joiada, and was a famous man amonge thes Worthies, and most auerient amonge thes. But wnto the thes: came he noe. Howbeit David made him of his secreete councill.

The valeaunt Worthies are these: Ashbel the brother of Joab, Elhanan his Onicles sonne of Bethlehem, Samoth the Gathite, Heley the Pelonite, Ira the sonne of Ezeu the Etheote, Abisai the Anathothite, Sibechai the Husathite, Iai the Abobite, Matherai the Hieropontite, Heled y sonne of Baena y Hieropontite, Ithai y sonne of Ribai of Gibeath of the hill of Ben Jamin, Benai the Pirgathite, Gura of the booke of Saas. forms, and shote arrows with the bowe.

Of Sauls brethren which were of Ben Jamin: The first Abieser and Joas of children of Samia the Gibeathites. Jesiel and Pelezer children of Amasech. Baracha and Jehu the Amthozites. Jesmaia the Gibeonite, valeaunt amonge thirte and ouer thirtie. Ireemia, Jabasiel, Johanan, Josabad the Gederachite. Eleusai, Jerimoth, Bealia, Samaria, Saphania the Garephire, Elkana, Jesua, Arael, Jafabam and Rohayee, Joela and Sabadia the children of Jeroham of Gedoi.

Of the Gaddites referred there vnto David to the castell in the wyldernesse, mightie Worthies and men of armes, which had led speares and swordes, and had faces like lions, were as swite as the Roes upon mountaynes. The first Isser, the seconde Obadia, the thyrde Eliah, the foureth Masmana, the fifteth Jeremia, the sixte Achai, the seuenth Eliel, the eight Johanna, the nyenth Elhabad the tenth Jeremia. I sleuenth Machbanai. These were of the children of Gad; heades in the hoost, the lest ouer an hundred, and the greatest ouer a thousande. These are they which in the first moneth wente ouer Iordane, when it was full on both the shores, so that all the valleyes were raued both toward the East and toward the West.

There came of the children of Ben Jamin also and of Juda vnto the castell of David. But David mente fowr vnto them, and answered and sayde vnto them: If ye come to me in peace, and to helpe me, my hert shall be with you. But if ye come vpo vs to cate, and to be mine aduersaries, where as there is yet no vniaght in me: the God of oure fathers lere vpon it, and rebuke it. Where theles the sperte endued Amasai the captayne amonge thirte, and he sayde: We are thine O David. and holde with the thewsenne of Isai. Peace, peace be with the, peace be with thy helpers, for thy God helpeth the. Then David receaued them, and made them captaynes ouer the men of warre.

And of Manasses there fell certaine vnto David, when he came to the battayll with the Philistynes agaynst Saul, and helped them not. for the prynces of the Philistynes counselde to let him go from them, and sayde: If he fell vnto his soue Saul, it mighte cost vs oure needes. Now when he departed vnto Siclag, there fell vnto him of Manasses, Adna, Josabab, Jebisai, Michael, Josabad, Elthai, Silthai, heades ouer thousande in Manasses. And they helped David a-gains the men of warre: for they were all valiant Worthies, and were captaynes ouer the hoost. And every daye came they to David, to helpe him, till there was a grete hoost as an hoost of God.

And this is the nombre of the hebre harnessid vnto the warre, which came to David vnto Hebron, for to curre the kyngdom of Saul vnto him, accordyng to the word of the LORDE.

The children of Juda, which handled speares and swordes, were sixe thousande, and eight hundred ready harnessid vnto the warre. Of the children of Simeon noble men of armes for the battayll, seven thousande and an hundred. Of the children of Leui foure thousande and sixe hundred. And Joiaha the pyncce amonge them of Zaron with the thousande and seven hundred. Sadoe the syng valeaunt man of armes with his house house, two and twenty rulers. Of the children of Ben Jamin Sauls brother, thurte hundred: for vnto that tyme helde many sight yet with the house of Saul.

Of the children of Ephraim, twenty thousande and eight hundred valeaunt men of armes, and famous in the house of their fathers. Of the halfe tribe of Manasse, eight thousande, named by name, to come and make David kyng. Of the children of Judchar (which were men of vnderstandyng, when nedes requyred to knowe what Iud shall do) two hundred captaynes, and all their brethren folowed their woide. Of Sebulon, such as wente forth in the hoost in the warre, ready with all maner of weapons for the battayll, fiftie thousande, beinge of one mynde to kepe them selues in orde.

Of Tephelai, a thousande captaynes, with them such as handled speare and bowe, seven and thyrte thousande. Of Dan by harnessid to the battayll, eight and twenty thousande, and sixe hundred. Of Isser, such as wente forth in the hoost, ready harnessid to the battayll, fortye thousande, few beyonde Iordane, of the Rubenites, Gomer and the halfe tribe of Manasse, with all maner of weapons to the battayll, an hundred and twenty thousande.

All these men of warre, ready harnessid to the battayll, came with a whole hart to Hebron, to make David kyng ouer all Israel. And all Israel besyde were of one hart, that David shulde be made kyng. And there were they with David the daye, to be prepared for them. And such neighbours more aboute them vncyill Jſachar, Zabulon and Iſſachar, beinge byed vpon Aſſer, Gaſſar, Manaſſer and opene to eate: meel, fygge, raiſins, wyne, oyle, open ſhepe, very many: for there manioye is Iſrael.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ And Dauid helde a counsell with the chiefe men of Iſrael, and ſaide vnto all the congregation of Iſrael: If it ſeemeth vnto you, and vnto the LORD our God, let vs ſende forth on euery ſyde our bretheren in all the countrees of Iſrael, and to the preſtes and Leuites in the cities wher they haue ſuburbes, & they maye be gathered together vnto vs, and let vs fetch the Arke of oure God agayne vnto vs: for by Sauls tyme we aſed a ſer ſer. The ſayde the whole congregation, that the ſame ſhalde be done, for it pleaſed all the people well.

So Dauid gathered all Iſrael together from Siſoi of Egipte, tyll a man come vnto hemath, to fetch the Arke of God from Ainath Jearim. And Dauid wente vp wth all Iſrael to Ainath Jearim, which lieth in Iuda, to buyng the place thence the Arke of God: the LORDE, that ſtandeth vpon the Libanus, where the name is named: and they cauled the Arke of God to be caried vpon a new cart from the houſe of Abinadab.

¶ And his bretheren drew the cart. As for Dauid and all Iſrael, they played with all their ſtrength before God, with ſonges, with harpes, with psalteries, with chabrettes, with cymbales and trompes.

But when they came to the barn ſtoore of Chidon, Uſa ſtretched out his hande to holde the Arke: for the oxen wente our aſyde. Then reared the wrath of the LORD ſearce our Uſa, & ſmote him, becauſe he ſtretched out his hande to the Arke, ſo he dyed there before God. The was Dauid ſory, becauſe the LORD had made ſuch a rente vpon Uſa, and called the place Perez Uſa, vnto this daye. And Dauid ſtoode in feare of God the ſame daye, & ſayde: how ſhal I bringe the Arke of God vnto me? Therfore wolde he not let the Arke of God be broughte vnto him in to the cite of Dauid, but caried it in to the houſe of Obed Edom the Gathite. So the Arke of God abode with Obed Edom in his houſe thre monethes. And the LORD bleſſed Obed Edoms houſe and all that he had.

The XV. Chapter.

¶ And Iſraim the ſynge of Tyne ſent meſſengers vnto Dauid and Abiathar

ber, and maſons and carpenters, to buyde him an houſe. And Dauid perceaued, that the LORD had confirmed him kynge ouer Iſrael: for his kynge dome increaſed for his people of Iſraels ſake. And Dauid toke yet mo wyues at Jeruſalem, & begat yet mo ſonnes & daughter. And the names of them that were borne vnto him at Jeruſalem, are theſe: Gamma, Sobab, Nathan, Salomon, Iebehar, Eliſua, Elipale, Toga, & Thebeg, Japhia, Elihanana, Baal Jaba, & Eliphale.

And when the Philiftynes herde that Dauid was anoynted kynge ouer all Iſrael, they wente vp all to ſeke Dauid. When Dauid herde that, he wente ſouthe agaynſt them. And the Philiftynes came, and ſcattered the ſlues bench in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid aſed counsell at God, & ſaide: ſhal I goe up agaynſt the Philiftynes? and wude theſe deliuer them in to my hande? The LORD ſaide vnto him: Goe up, and I wil deliuer them into thy hande. And when they were gone vp to Baal Paraim, Dauid ſmote them there. And Dauid ſaide: God hath deſpyded myne enemies theore my hande, euen as the water partech aſunder: therfore called they the place Baal Paraim. And the reſeſte they their goddes. Then commannded Dauid to burne them with fyre.

But the Philiftynes gaue them thither agayne, and ſcattered them ſlues bench in the valley. And Dauid aſed counsell at God agayne. And God ſaide vnto him: Thou ſhalt not goe up thynde them, but turne the ſide from them, that thou mayeſt come vpon the ouer agaynſt the Peeretes. So when thou heareſt aboue vpon the Peeretes the noyſe of the goyng, goe thou forth then to the barayll: for God is gone forth then before thee to ſmyte the hoſt of the Philiftynes. And Dauid byd as God commaunded him. And they ſmote the hoſt of the Philiftynes from Gibeon forth vnto Gaſer. And Dauids name was noyſed out in all londes. And the LORD cauſed the feare of him to come vpon all the Geythen.

The XVI. Chapter.

¶ And he buyded him houſes in the cite of Dauid, & made ready a place for the Arke of God, & pitched a Tabernacle for it. At that tyme ſaide Dauid: The Arke of God is not to be borne, but onely of the Leuites: for them hath the LORD choſen to beare the Arke of the LORD, & to myniſter vnto him for ever. Therfore gathered Dauid all Iſrael together vnto Jeruſalem, to bringe vpon the Arke of the LORD unto the place which he had prepared for it.

And Dauid broughte the children of Zion & the Levites together. Of the children of Zabab: Oziel the chiefe & his brethren, an C. and twenty. Of the children of Merari: Afsai the chiefe & his brethren, two C. and twenty. Of the child of Gerson: Joel the chiefe & his brethren, an C. and thirte. Of y child: of Elisaphan: Semai the chiefe & his brethren, two hundred. Of the child of Lezion: Eliel the chiefe, with his brethren, foure score. Of the children of Uziel: Aminadab the chiefe, with his brethren, an hundred and twelue.

25 And Dauid called Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes, and the Levites, namely Oziel, Afsai, Joeli, Semai, Eliel, Aminadab, and sayde unto them: Ye are the heades of y fathers amonge the Levites: sanctifie yo selves therfore & youre brethren, y ye maye bringe vp the Arte of the LORDE God of Israel, to the place y I have prepared for it.

Par. 4 h . . . For a fore whan ye were not there, the LORDE our God made a rent amonge vs, because we soughte him not, as we shalde haue done. So y prestes & the Levites haloweth the flutes, y they mighte bringe vp the Arte of the LORDE God of Israel. And the children of Levi bare the Arte of God the LORDE upon their shuldres with the flutes theren, no 21 b . . . as Moyses commaunded accordinge to y worde of the LORDE.

And Dauid ordeyned y rulers of y Levites, that they shalde ordeyne some of their brethren to be syngers with psalteries, harpes and laude instruments, and Lymbales, to syng loude with ioye.

C Then the Levites appoynted Heman y sonne of Jeeli: and of his brethren Asaph the sonne of Barachias: and of the children of Merari their brethren, when the sonne of Afsai: and with them their brethren of the seconde course, namely Zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Dmi, Eliab, Benai, Masfia, Machibis, Eliphelcia, Michiel, Obed Edom, Jeiel, the docters. For Heman, Asaph and Ethan were syngers, with brakin beses makinge a loude noyse: but Zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Dmi, Eliab, Masfia & Benai with psalteries to Alamoth: Machibis, Eliphelcia, Michelcia, Obed Edom, Jeiel & Afsai with harpes to syng above them on hye. Chama the ruler of the Levites was the master of Musick to teach them fore to syng, for he was a man of understandinge.

And Barachias and Elcana were the bo keepers of the Arte. But Sachana, Josphar, Machaneel, Amasai, Zacharias, Benai, Elieser the prestes, blessed the congregates before y Arte of God. And Obed Edom and Jehia were docters of the Arte.

So Dauid and the Elders of Israel, and the captaynes ouer thousandes wente up to seech the Arte of the covenant of the LORDE out of the house of Obed Edom w iye. And whan God had helped the Levites y bare the Arte of the LORDES covenant, they were offered seven bullocks & seven rams, and Dauid had a synne garment vpo ym, and so had all the Levites y bare the Arte, and y syngers, and Cheman the master of Musick & the syngers. Dauid had an obedy care of synne upon him self.

Thus all Israel broughte vp the Arte of the covenant of the LORDE with mysh, with trompettes, tabrettes, & loudeymbales, with psalteries and harpes. Now whan the Arte of the covenant of the LORDE came in to the cite of Dauid, Michiel y brother of Saull looked out at a window: & when he sawe syng Dauid dauncyng & playinge, he despised him in his heart.

The xvij. Chapter.

¶ When they brought in the Arte of God, they set it in y Taberna cle, the Dauid had purched for it, and offered burnt offerynges & thank offerynges before God. And whan Dauid had ended the burnt offerynges and thank offerynges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE: & he tributed unto every man in Israel (both to man and woman) a cake of bread, and a pece of fleshy and a meece of potage.

And he appoynted before the Arte of y LORDE certayne Levites to mynister, that they shalbe geue praye, thankes and laudes unto the LORDE God of Israel: namely Asaph the first, Zacharias the seconde, Jehiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Machibis, Eliab, Benai, Obed Edom and Jehiel, with psalteries and harpes. But Asaph with lymbales. Benai and Jehiel the prestes with tabrettes, alwaye before the Arte of covenant of God.

At the same tyme ordeyned Dauid first of all to genthates unto the LORDE by Asaph and his brethren.

O geue thankes unto the LORDE, all upon his name, tell the people what they geue hath done.

O let youre songes be of him: praise him and let youre tall wynges of all his wordes & workes,

Give his holy name a good repute: let þe part of them reioyce, that seeke the LORDE.
O seeke the LORDE and his strengch, seeke his face evermore.

Ambrise his maruolous woikes that he hath done, his wonderis, and the indgmetes of his mouth.

Ye seke of Jsrael his seruauit, ye children of Jacob his chosien.

He is the LORDE oure God, his indgmetes are in all londes.

¶ Be mynde full euer of his couenaunt: what he hath commaunded in to a thousande generacions.

¶ Which he made with Abraham, & his oob vnto Jsac.

¶ And he: confirmid the same vnto Jacob in a perpetuall laue, and to Jsrael for an euerlasting couenaunt.

¶ And sayde: Vnto the myl I geue þe londe of Canaan, þe mecelync of yo^r inheritaunce. Wha they were yet but small & fewe in no ke, and straungers in the same londe.

¶ And they wente from one nation to another, & from one realme to another people.

¶ He suffred no man to hurt them, and rewarded euen hymes for their talas.

¶ Koch not myne anoymed, & do my po ptes no harme.

¶ O synge vnto þe LORDE, let all þe earth be tillinge of his saluacion from daye to daye. Declare his holynes and yger the heylthe, the wonderous woikes amonge þe people.

¶ For the LORDE is greate, and can not wouche by playste, and more to be had in awe then all goddes.

¶ As for all the goddes of the heylthe, they are but Idols: - but it is the LORDE that made the heuens.

¶ Thanke synge and woishipe are before him, strengch and ioyce in his place.

¶ As synge vnto the LORDE ye hymes of nations: as synge vnto the LORDE woishipe and strengch.

¶ As synge vnto the LORDE the honoure of his name: bynne picimes, and come before him, and woishipe þe LORDE in þe bewte of holynes.

¶ Let the whole earth sitte in awe of him: he hath made the compase of the world so fast, that it can not be moued.

¶ Let the heauens reioyce, and let the earth be glad: and let it be solde amonge the heylthe, that the LORDE reigneth.

¶ Let the See make a noyse, and the fulme thereof: let the selde be ioysfull, and all that therein is.

Let all the trees in the wod leape for ioyce before the LORDE, for he commaund to indge the earth.

¶ O geue thankes vnto the LORDE, for he is gracious: and his mercy endureth for euer.

¶ And saye: helpe vs O God oure Sanctouer, and gather vs together, and deliuer vs from the heylthe, that we may geue thankes vnto þe holy name, and synge playste vnto the in thy psalms.

¶ Praised be the LORDE God of Jsrael from euerlasting: to euerlasting: and let all people saye, Amen, And: Praised be vnto the LORDE.

¶ So he lefte Assaph and his brethren the re before the Arke of the conuenaunt of the LORDE, to mynister all waye before the Arke, euery daye his daye woike. But Obed Edom and their brethren, eight and thre score, and Obed Edom the sonne of Jeduthun, and Issai, to be doer keepers. And Saboc þe prest, & his brethren the prestes, lefte he before the habitacon of the LORDE vpon the hie place at Gibeon, to offere burne crifices daylie vnto the LORDE vpon the altare of burnt offerynge, in the moynge & in the eueninge, as it is wyrtun in the booke of the LORDE, which he commaunded vnto Jsrael. And with them Haman & Jeduthun, and þe other chosien, which were named by name to geue thankes vnto the LORDE, because his mercy endureth for euer. And with them Haman & Jeduthun to synge vpon the taberco and Tymbales, and the musycall instrumentes of God. As for the childre of Jeduthun, he made them doer keepers. So all the people departed, euery one to his house: and Dauid returned also to blisse his house.

The x. viij. Chapter.

¶ It forcometh wha Dauid dwelt in his house, he sayde vnto þe prophet Nathan: Beholde, I dwell in a house of Cedar, and the Arke of the conuenaunt of the LORDE is amonge the curtains.

¶ Nathan saide vnto Dauid: What so euer is in thine heart, that do: for God is with þe. But the same nyght came þe woide of God vnto Nathan, and sayde: Go and speake to Dauid my seruauit: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou shalt not buyde me an house to be an habitacon: for I have dwelt in no house since the daye that I broughte forth the children of Jsrael, vnto this daye: But where the Tabercoke and habitacon hath bene, there haue I bene where so euer I haue walked in all Jsrael. Spake I euer to any of the Judges in Israel (whom I commanded to keep my people) and saye: Wherfore do ye not buyde me an house of Cedre symbet?

B So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruant Dauid: Thus sayeth the LORD Ezebaob: Take the stone from the pasture beynde the shepe, that thou shouldest be the prayne ouer my people, and haue bene with the whither so euer thou wolest, and haue roted out all thine enemies before the, and haue made the a name, accordinge to the name of the greater men that are vpon earth. And for my people of Israel, I will appoyne them a place, and will plante them, that they maye dwell there, and nomore to be remoued. And the dyblde of wick ednes shall oppresse them nomore, like as afore tyme, when I comded the Judges ouer my people of Israel. And I will subdue all thine enemies, and do declare vnto the, that the LORD E will buyde the an house.

1 Re. c. 22. 1. 11. 12.

• But when thy dayes are fulfilled, that thou departest hence with thy fathers, I will a ster the rayle vp thy seide, which shall be eue one of thy ionnes: his Kingdome will I stablish, he shall buyde me an house, & I will make his seate sure for euer. I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne. And I will not with drawe my mercy from him, as I haue with drawen it fro him that was before the: But I will see him in my house and in my Kingdome for euer, so that his seate shall be sure for euer more.

C And when Nathan had spoken vnto Dauid accordinge to all these wordes & all this vision, Kinge Dauid came and sae him downe before the LORD E, and saye: O LORD E God, what am I? and what is my house, & thou hast builded me this house: And this O God hast thou thoughte yet to hie, but hast spoken of thy seruantes house yet longe for to come. And thou LORD E God hast looked downe vpon me from aboue, euen as one man looketh vpon another. What moue shall Dauid saye vnto the, & thou bringest thy seruante to such honoure: Thou knowest thy seruante O LORD E, for thy seruantes sake and accordinge to thy hert hast thou done all these great things, that thou mightest shewe all greater things vnto thy seruant. LORD E, there is none lyke the, and there is no God but thou, of whom we haue herde with oure eares. terrible things, to cast out the heathen for thy people, whom thou hast deliuered out of Egypte: and thy people of Israel hast thou made & people for euer, and thou LORD E art become their God.

• Now LORD E, let the worde be written for euer, that thou hast spoken ouer thy seruant and ouer his house, & be as thou hast spoken: and let thy name endure and benamified for euer, that it maye saye: The LORD E Zeboob, the God of Israel to the end in Israel, and that the house of thy seruant Dauid maye be stablished before the: for thou LORD E hast opened the eare of Ierusalem, that thou wilt buyde him an house. Therefore hath thy seruant founde confidence: & made his prayer before the. Now LORD E, thou art God, and hast promised such good vnto thy seruant. Begynne now to blesse the house of thy seruant, that maye be euermore before the: for loke what thou blessest O LORD E the same is blissh for euer.

The XXX. Chapter.

After this smote Dauid the Philistines, and subdued them, and rode about the wyllages thereof out of the hande of the Philistines. In those tyme the Moabites likewise, so that the Moabites were subdued vnto Dauid, and gaue him tribute. He smote Hadab Esir also & Kinge of Zoban Sennath, when he wente to see vpon his powe by the water of Euphrate.

And Dauid toke from him a thousand charrettes, seven thousande horsemen, and one thousande fore men. And Dauid had all the charrettes, and kepte an hundred charrettes ouer. And the Syrians came from Damascus, to helpe Hadab Esir the Kinge of Zoban. Herbeit Dauid smote two & twenty thousande of the same Syrians, and led men of warre at Damascus in Syria, where the Syrians were subdued vnto Dauid, and broughte him tribute. For the LORD E helped Dauid, whiche so euer he wente.

And Dauid toke the hynde of Gode, Hadab Esir a seruante had, & broughte it to Ierusalem. And out of Epherath & the cities of Hadab Esir, toke Dauid much brass, whereof Salomon made the brasen lauer, and piers, and brasen vessels.

And when Thogu the Kinge of Hamath herde, & Dauid had smytten all & broughte Hadab Esir, he sent his sonne & aboune Kinge Dauid, to salute him & to blesse him: cause he had feugher w Hadab Esir, and he had feugher w Hadab Esir.

and all the same vessels of golde, silver and of brass, byd kynge Dauid consecrate vnto the LORD, with the silver and golde that he had eaten from the heyl, namely, from the Edomites, Moabites, Ammonites, Philistynes and Amalechites.

C And Abisai the sonne of Neru Ja smore eighten thousande of the Edomites in the Sale valley, and layed me of warre in Edom, so that all the Edomites were subdued vnto Dauid: for the LORD helped Dauid, whither so ever he wente.

Then Dauid reigned ouer all Israel, and created iudgement and righteousnes vnto all the people. Joab the sonne of Neru Ja was captayne ouer the hoost. Jehoshaph the sonne of Abiathar was Chauncier. Sadoc the sonne of Achitob, and Ahimelech the sonne of Abiathar, were prestes. Sausa was Scribe. Berisai the sonne of Joiaha was ouer the Cherethians & Plethians. And Dauid sonnes were these at the kynge hande.

The XX. Chapter.

After this dyed Nabab the kynge of the childre of Ammon, and his sonne was kynge in his steade. Then saye Dauid I wil do mercy vpon Hanun the sonne of Nabab, for his father dyd mercy vpon me: and so he sent messengers to comfort him ouer his father. And wha Dauids seruantes came in to the londe of the childre of Ammon vnto Hanun to comforte him, the pryces of the childre of Ammon saye vnto Hanun: Thinkest thou that Dauid honoureth thy father in thy sighte: that he hath sent comforters vnto thee? For his seruantes are come vnto thee, to search and to overthrowe, and to spye out the londe. Then toke Hanun the seruantes of Dauid, and shone them: & cut the halfe of their garmettes of, and by the loynes, & so let the go. And they wente their waye, & sent men to tell Dauid. Therforthe he sent to meete them: for men were put to greates shame: and the kynge sayde: Abye at Jericho, till your beebes be growne, and then come agayne.

When the childre of Ammon sawe, that they shuld in a sighte of Dauid, boch Hanun and the childre of Ammon sent a thousande talentes of silver, to buye charrettes and horsen ouer of Mesa perenna, ouer of Maacha and ouer of Zobab: and byed two and thirtie thousande charrettes, & the kynge of Maacha with his people, which came & pitched their tentes before Hebbai. And the childre of Ammon gathered them selues together out of their cities, and came to the battayll.

When Dauid heerde that, he sent Joab the cher with all the hoost of the men of amon. And the childre of Ammon were gone forth, and prepared them selues to the battayll before the gate of the cite. But the ynges were come, & were them abye in the felde.

Now wha Joab sawe that the battayll was agaynst him boch before and behynde, he chose of all the best yonge men in Israel, and prepared him selfe agaynst the Syrians. As for the residue of the people, he put them vnder the hande of Abisai his brother, that they shuld prepare them selues agaynst the childre of Ammon, and he sayde: If the Syrians be to mightie for me, helpe thou me: but if the childre of Ammon be to stronge for me, I shall helpe thee: make a good courage vnto the, and let vs quyte our selues manly for our people: and for the cause of our God: neuertheles the LORD do what pleaseth him. And Joab made him forth with the people that was with him, to fighte agaynst the Syrians: & they fled before him. And when the childre of Ammon sawe that the Syrians fled, they fled also before Abisai his brother, and wente in to the cite. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

But when the Syrians sawe that they were shyerred before Israel, the syennestians were, and broughte forth the Syrians which were beyonde the reater. And Sophach the cheif captayne of Hadad their wente before them. Wha this was tolde Dauid, he gathered all Israel together, and wente ouer Joiaha. And when he came at them, he set the battayll in araye agaynst them. And Dauid prepared him selfe to the battayll agaynst the Syrians, & they foughte with him: but the Syrians fled before Israel. And Dauid slew of the Syrians seven thousande charrettes, & forty thousande fore men. And Sophach the cheif captayne slew he also. And when Hadad their seruantes sawe that they were shyerred before Israel, they made peace with Dauid & his seruantes. And the Syrians wolde helpe the childre of Ammon ne more.

The XXI. Chapter.

After this came aboute, what tyme as the ynges were to goe forth, Joab broughte the power of the hoost, & destroyed the londe of the childre of Ammon, and came and layed siege vnto Rabba. But Dauid abode at Jerusalem. And Joab smote Rabba, and brake it downe. And Dauid toke their ynges crowne from his heade, and founde the weighte of a talente of golde theron, & precious stones. And it was fit vps Dauids heate. And very much spoy le caried he out of the cite. As for the people that were therein, he broughte the south, & parted them in sunder in shawes, & holtes & beccles of yron. Thus vndo Dauid vnto all þe cities of the childre of Ammon. And Dauid departed againe, with the people vnto Jerusalein.

- 23 Afterwarde arose there warre at Gath with the Philistynes. Then Sibechai þe Gathite smote Sibai, which was one of the children of Arphaim, and he subdued him. And there arose warre agayne wth the Philistynes. The Elbamah þe sonne of Jaic smote Labemi þe brother of Goliath þe Gathite, whose speare staff was like a weener lene. Afterwarde was there a battayll at Gath, where there was a man of a greates stature, þe had sixe fingers and sixe toes, which make foure and twenty. And he was boine also of Rapha, and spake despyrefully vnto Israel. But Jonathan the sonne of Simea Dauids brother smote him. These were the childre of Rapha at Gath, & sellchewen þe hande of Dauid, and of his seruantes.

The XXX. Chapter.

- 21 Unto Nathan stode agaynst Israel, & entred Dauid to nombre Israel. And Dauid sayde vnto Joab & to þe vicars of the people: So ye maye, nombre Israel from Bersiba vnto Dan, and bynge me the nombre of the, that I maye knowe it. Joab sayde: The LORD Emake his people an hundred tymes mo than they are now. But my loide O kyng, are they not all my loides seruantes? Why doth my loide then aske the number? Wherefore shal there a trespase come vpon Israel?

Then helde the kynges worde pleased agaynst Joab. And Joab wente forth, and walked thowow all Israel, and came to Jerusalem, and deliuered vnto Dauid þe nombre of the people that was tolde. And of all Israel there were a thousande tymes a thousande, and an hundred thousande men, that bane cut the sword: and of Juda foure hundred thousande and seuktye thousande men, which bane our the sword. As for Levi and Ben Jamin, he nombred them not amonge the: for the kynges worde was at hominable vnto Joab.

- 23 But this displeasid God righte sore: for he smote Israel. And Dauid sayde vnto God: I haue synned greuously, that I haue done this. But now take a waye the trespase of thy seruants: for I haue done very unwysely. And the LORD E spake vnto Gad Dauides Seer, & sayde: So speake to Dauid & saye: Thus saiech the LORD E: Thou hast ges laye I be fore the, chose of one of them, I maye do it vnto the. And wha Gad saide to Dauid, he spake vnto him: Thus saych the LORD E: Chose þe ether this year worch in the monethes of syde be fore thine altars, & be fore: the swerde of thine enemies, & it maye ouertake the: or this daye þe swerde of the LORD E, & perselice in the londe, & the angell of the LORD E maye destroye in all þe coastes of Israel. Lo ete now what answer I shal geue vnto him: þe first me. Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in greates trouble: yett I rather fall in to þe hande of the LORD E, for his mercy is especyallyng greates, & I wil not fall in to the handes of men.

Then vndo the LORD E cause pestilence to come into Israel, so that there fell of Iud the seor & ten thousande me. And Gad sent the angell to Jerusalem for to destroye it. And even in the destruction the LORD E compassed, and he repeted of the euill, and sayde vnto the angell þe destroyer: It is ynough þe be now thy hande.

The angell of the LORD E stode besyde þe barme of Aman þe Jebusite. And Dauid loked vpon his eyes, and sa we the angell of the LORD E stonbinge betwene hys hande and carth, and a naked swerde in his hande stretched out vnto Jerusalem. Then Dauid and þe Elders beyng clothed with sack cloth, fell vpon their faces. And Dauid sayde vnto God: Aman is he that causid the people to be nombred: I am he that hath synned and done euill: for these shepe, what haue they done? LORD E my God, let thine hande be agaynst me, and agaynst my fathers house, and not agaynst thy people to plage them.

And the angell sayde vnto Gad, that he shulde speake vnto Dauid, that Dauid shulde go vp, & set vp an altare in the barme of Aman the Jebusite. So Dauid wente vp a cordunge to þe reorde of Gad, whiche Aman turned him, and sa we the angell and his foure sonnes: & ich him they byd the swerde: for Aman the of shed whate.

Then whan Dauid came to Aman, Aman loked, and was aware of Dauid, and wote seuth out of the barme, and wistlyppid Dauid with his face to the grounde. And Dauid sayde vnto Aman: Seue me come in the barme, to buyde an alcare vnto the LORD E therein: for þe fullmoney shal I geue it me, that the plage maye cease from the people.

The i. boke of the Cronicles. The xxiiij. Chap. Fo: lxxxviiiij.

So Arnon sayde unto David: Take it unto the, and let my leste the kynge do as pleaseth him. Beholde, that ore gene I for a burnt offering, and these vessels to the ore, and prepare for the meacofferinge, I give it all. Hencethyles the kynge sayde unto Arnon: No so, but for I full money wyl I bye it: for that which is thine wyl I not I take for the LORDE, and offre a burnt offeringe for my name.

So David gaue Arnan for þe roome, sixe hundred Syckles of golde in weichte. And there buyde David an altare unto y LORDE, & offered burnt offeringes & slayn offeringes. And when he called vpon the LORDE, he herde him thorow the fyre from heauyn vpon y altare of the burnt offeringe. And y LORDE sayde vnto the anuell, that he shalde put his swerde in to his sheeth.

At the same tyme whā David sawe, that the LORDE had herde him vpon the come floure of Arnan y Iehusite, he yd sacrifice there for y habitation of y LORDE which Micha had made in the wyldernes, and the altare of burnt offeringes, was at that tyme in the hyle place at Gibeon. But David coude not go thither to see God before it, for he feared the swerde of the LORDES anuell. And David sayde: Here shal be y heuile of God y LORDE, and this the altare of burnt offeringes se. Irael.

The XXXI. Chapter.

And David commaunded to gather together the strangers that were in y londe of Irael, and appoynted masons to hewe stone for the buydinge of the house of God. And David prepared much timber for nailes in the dores of the poorte, and for such thinges as were to be nailed together, and so much brasse, that is was not to be weyde; and Cedre trees innumerable: for they of Sidon & Tyre broughte Dauid much Cedre timber: for Dauid thonghte, Salmo my sonne is bar a child, and tender. But the house that shal be buyde vnto the LORDE, shal be greate, that his name y prayse maye be exalced in all londes, therfore wyl I prouyde for him. So David made greate prouy sion before his deathe.

And he called Salomon his sonne, & commaunded him to buyde the house of LORDE God of Irael, and sayde vnto him: My sonne, I was minded to buyde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, but the wyde of y LORDE came vnto me, and sayde: Thou hast shed much bloude, and stricken many bartayle, therfore shalt thou not buyde an house vnto my name, for as much as thou hast shed so much bloude vpon the earth before me. Beholde, the some which shal be borne vnto the, shal be a quyet man: and I wyl cause him to be in rest from all his enemies in every syde, for his name shalbe Salomon: for I wylly graue peace and rest vpon Irael as longe as he lyueth. He shal buyde an house vnto my name. He shal be my sonne, and I wyl be his father. And I wyl stablyshe y iuate of his kyngdome vpon Irael for euer.

Now my sonne, the LORDE shal be with the, and thou shalt prosper, that thou mayest buyde an house vnto the LORDE thy God, accordinge as he hath spoken of the. The LORDE also shal geue the wysdome & vnderstandyng, and shal commence Irael vnto the, that thou mayest kepe the lawe of the LORDE thy God. But when shal thou prosper, yf thou take heed to do after the ordynances and lawes which the LORDE commaunded Micha vnto Irael. Be stronge, and take a good courage vnto the, feare not, and be not synne hated. Beholde, I haue in my poorte prouyde for the house of the LORDE, an hundred thousande talentes of golde, and a thousande tymes a thousande talentes of syluer, and brasse and yron withoute nombre: for there is so much of it.

And rymbre and stone haw: I prepared, thou mayest get more therof. Thou hast many workmen also, masons and carpenters in stone and tymber, and all maner of men that haue vntersondyng in all wyse off golde, syluer, brasse, and yron withoute nombre. Receyue the xv, and be wyng, and the LORDE shal be with the.

And David commaunded all the tulers of Irael, to helpe Salomon his sonne, and sayde: Is not the LORDE youre God with you, and hath geuen you rest on every syde: for he hath dwelld in the inhabytars of the londe in to youre handes, and the londe is subdued before the LORDE and before his people. Geue ouer youre hart now therfore, and youre hande, to see the LORDE youre God, and gett you vp, and buyde a Sanctuary vnto the LORDE God, that the Arke of the covenant of the LORDE and the holy vessels of God, maye be broughte in to the house, which shal be buyde vnto the name of the LORDE. So David made Salomon his sonne kyng ouer Irael, when he himselfe was olde, and had lyued yonghe.

The XXXII. Chapter.

AND Dauid gathered all the rulers in Israel together, and the prestes & Leuites, to nombre & Leuites from thirtie yeare olde & aboue. And þe nombre of the (which were strong men) fro heade to heade, was eight and thirtie thousande: of whom there were foure & twentie thousande, which byd their diligence in the worke ouer þe house of the LORDE, and fixe thousande officers and Iudges, and foure thousande porters, & foure thousande that souge prayse vnto þe LORDE with instrumentes, which he had made to synge prayse with all.

And Dauid made the ordinaunce amonge the children of Levi, namely amonge Gerson, Zabab & Merari. The Gersonites were: Laadan and Simeel. The children of Laadan: the first, Jehiel, Sethan, and Joel, the seithie.

The children of Simeel were: Salomith, Hasiel and Saran, these thre. These were the chefe amonge the fathers of Laadan. These also were the children of Simeel: Jaharh, Sina, Jus and Bria, these foure were Simeels children also. Jaharh was the first, Sina the seconde. As for Jus and Bria, they had not many children, therefore were they counted but for one fathers house.

B The childre of Zabab were: Amram, 100. d. c. Jeychar, Hebion and Vziel, these foure. The childre of Amram were: Aaron and Moses, 10. 29. 8

* As for Aaron, he was separated, to be sanctified for the Most holy, he & his sannes for ever, to burne in censse before the LORDE, to minister and blesse in þe name of the LORDE for euermore. And the children of Moses the man of God were named amonge þe trybe of the Leuites. - The childre of Moses were: Gerson and Elieser, 100. a. d.

The children of Gerson, the first was Seuel. The children of Elieser, the first was Rehabia & Elieser had none other children. But þe childre of Rehabia were many thre other. The children of Jeychar were: Salomith the first. The children of Hebion were: Jeria the first, Amaria the seconde, Jahasiel the thirde and Jekneam þe fourth. The children of Vziel were: Michah the first and Jesia the seconde.

C The children of Merari were: Mabel & Mosi. The children of Mabel were: Eleasar and Cis. And Eleasar dyed, and had no sennes but daughter. And the children of Cis their brethren cōde them. The children of Mosi were: Mabel, Uder and Jeremoth, these thre. These are the children of Leui amonge their fathers houses, and the cheffest of the fathers, which were counted a firste nombre of þe names heade by heade: that created the worke of the offices in the house of the LORDE - from thirtie yeare olde & aboue. For Dauid sayde: The LORDE God of Israel hath geuen his people rest, & he dwelle at Jerusalem for euer.

Amonge þe Leuites also were the childre of Leui numbered from thirtie yeare olde & aboue, that they neded not to beare þe burden with all the vessels of their office, but accordinge to þe last wordes of Dauid, they shulde stonde vnder the hande of the children of Aaron, to minister in the house of the LORDE in the court, and to the doores, and for purifyinge, and to all maner of sanctifyinge, and to every worke of the office in the house of God. And for þe showre, for the synne flour, for the meate offeringe, in the wakened wafer, for the panes, for þe fryenge, and for all maner of wright measure. And in the moynynge to stonde to geue chautes and to prayse the LORDE, and in the euenynge likewise. And vpon Sabbathes, Temones and festiues of fre all the burnes offeringes vnto the LORDE, accordinge to the nombre and orde, alwaye before the LORDE to wayte vpon the Table of witnessse and of the Sanctuary, and vpon their besyde the children of Aaron, to minister in the house of the LORDE.

The XXXV. Chapter.

This was þe ordinaunce of the childre of Aaron. The children of Aaron were, Zabab, Abihu, Eleasar & Jeyhamar. But Zabab and Abihu dyed for their fathers, and had no children. But Eleasar and Jeyhamar were prestes. And Dauid ordeed them after his maner: Sabo one of the children of Eleasar, and Abimelech one of the children of Jeyhamar, accordinge to their nombre and office. And there were mo cheffest stronge men founde amonge the children of Eleasar, then the children of Jeyhamar. And he ordeened them after this maner: namely, sixtene out of þe childre of Eleasar to be rulers thow out the seithen house: eight of the children of Jeyhamar thow one of their fathers house. Moreover he ordeyned them by lot, because they both the principall of the children of Eleasar and of Jeyhamar were in þe Sanctuary and cheffest before God. And the sayde Abimeia the sonne of Methaneel one of the Leuites, moue them up before þe Fryng and before the rulers, and before Sabo the prest before Abimelech, þe sonne of Abihai.

beside the these of the fathers amonge the priestes of Leuice: namely one father house for Eleasar, and the other for Jehamar.

5 And the first lot fell vpon Josabab, the seconde vpon Jehana, the thirde vps Harim, the fourth vpon Seonim, the fifth vps Melch, the sixte vpon Meleam, the seventh vpon Sadoy, the eight vpon Abia, the ninth vpon Jesua, the tenth vpon Gedania, the eleuenth vpon Elisib, the twolaceth vpon Jothim, the thirentith vpon Hups, the fourtith vpon Jesibeab, the fiftenth vpon Balga, the sixtenth vpon Immer, the sevenentith vpon Esir, the eightenth vpon Hopye, the nyntenth vpon Nehabab, the twentieth vpon Jehesbed, the one and twentieth vpon Jachin, the two and twentieth vpon Samu, the thie and twentieth vps Dalai, 3 fourte and twentieth vps Masia. This is their course after their offic, to go in to the house of the LORDE, accordinge to their maner vnder their father Aaron, as the LORDE God of Israel commaunded him.

C Of the children of Levi amonge the children of Amram, was Sabacl. Amonge the children of Sabacl, was Jehodea. Amonge the children of Achabab, was 3 first Jesia. Amonge the Tercharites was Selomoth. Amonge the children of Selomoth was Jachab. The children of Sebon were: Jerin 3 first, Amania the seconde, Jehasiel the thirde, Jehoram the fourth.

The children of Ofiel were: Micha. Amonge the children of Micha was Samir. The brother of Micha was Jesia. Amonge the children of Jesia was Zacharias. The children of Merari were: Mabeli 2 Musi, whose sonnes was Jaesia. The child of Merari of his sonne Jaesia were: Sehan, Sacur 2 Jubi. Mabeli had Eleasar: for he had no sonnes. Of Cis, the children of Cis were: Jerahmeel and Musi. The children of Musi were, Mabeli, Ser and Jeremioch. These are the child of 3 Leuice chosen out 3 house of their fathers. And the lot was cast for them also before their brethren the children of Aaron, in the presence of kynge Dauid and Sadoe and Ahimelech, and before the these fathers amonge the priestes of Leuice, as well for the least brother as for the chiefest amonge the fathers.

The xxvi. Chapter.

17 And Dauid with the these captaynes sended to the offic amonge 3 child of 3 Assaph, Heman 2 Jeduthun 3 prophete with harpe, psalteries 2 Cymbals, and they were nombred into the worde acordyng to their offic. Amonge the child of 3 Assaph was Sator, Josiph, Methania. Asarai, child of 3 Assaph vnder 3 Assaph which propheted beside 3 kynge. Of Jeduthun: The children of Jeduthun were, Gedalia, Zoi, Jesia, Hasabiah, Machibia (Sime) the sixte vnder their father Jeduthun was harpe, whose propheteinge was to geue thanks and to praise the LORDE. Of Heman: The children of Heman were: Dufai, Machania, Ofiel, Sebul, Jerimioch, Hanania, Eliab, Gilchi, Ammihiezer, Jafbassa, Malloch, Hothir and Meshior. All these were the children of Hemi: the kyngees were in the wordes of God to lyfe up the house for God gaue Heman fourtene sonnes 2 the daughters.

25 All these were vnder their fathers Assaph Jeduthun and Heman, to synge in the house of the LORDE with Cymbales, Psalteries 2 harpes, accordyng to the office in the house of God beside the kynge. And their nombre with their brethren, which were taught in the songe of the LORDE (every one hauyng vnder sondyng) was: a two hundred 2 eight and foure score. And they cast the lottes ouer their offic, for the least as for the greater, for the master as for the scolar.

And the first lot fell vps Joseph which was of Assaph: the seconde vps Gedalia whose brethren and sonnes, of whom there were twolue. The thirde vps Sacur with his sonnes 2 brethren, of whos there were twolue. The fourth vpon Jeri with his sonnes and brethren, of whom there were twolue. D

1. Re. 4. d was with the kynges children. Achitophel also was of the kynges counsell. Josai the Arathite was the kynges frende. Afer Achitophel was Josada the sonne of Benaias and Abiathar. As for Joab, he was the kynges chiefe captayne of warre.

The XXX. Chapter.

After David gathered vnto Jerusalem all the rulers of Israel, namely of priences of the trybes, the rulers ouer the courses, which wayed vpon the kyng, the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, the rulers ouer the goodes and carell of the kyng and of his sonnes, with the chāberlaines, warryers and valeaunt men. And David the kyng stode vp vpon his feet, and said: heare me my brethren and my people:

1. a * I was mynded to buylde an house, where the Arke of the couenant of the LORD shalde rest, and a stee stode for the seue of oure God, and prepared my selfe for to buylde. But God sayde vnto me: Thou shalt not buylde an house vnto my name, for thou art a man of warre, and hast shed bloude.

B * Now hath the LORD God of Israel chosen me out of all my fathers house, & I shalde be kyng ouer Israel: for Iuda hath be chosen to be the prynce, and in the house of Iuda amonge my fathers children hath he had pleasure vnto me, to make me kyng ouer all Israel: and amonge all my sonnes (for the LORD hath geuen me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to sit vpon the seate of the kyngdome of the LORD ouer Israel, and hath sayde vnto me: Salomon thy sonne shall buylde me an house and my courtes: for I have chosen him to be my sonne, & I wil be his father, & I will stablish his kyngdome for euer, yf he be constant to do afeer my commandementes and lawes, as it is this day. Let vs in the sight of all Israel the congregacion of the LORD, and in the cares of oure God, se that ye obserue and kepe all the commaundementes of the LORD yf God, that ye maye possesse this good londe and that ye and youre children maye haue the inheritaunce thereof for euer.

1 Pr. 13. b
1. a. 1. b
C And thou my sonne Salomon, heere thou the God of thy father, and stee him with all thy heart, and with the desyre of thy soule: for the LORD searchoeth all hertes, and vnderstondeeth all thoughtes & ymaginacions. If thou stee him, thou shalt fynde him: but yf thou forsake him, he shall refuse the seuer. Take hede now, for the LORD hath chosen the, to buylde an house to be the seate of the stronge, and make it.

And David gaue Salomon his share patrone of the Douche, and of his best of the felles and perlers and ymmentables, and of the house of the mercenary of all that he had in his mynde, namely of the courtes of the LORDS house, and of the oratories rounde aboute the treasure of house of God, and of the treasures of things as were halowed, of the ornaments of the prestes, and Levites, and of all busynesse of the offyces in the house of the LORD.

Golde (gaue he him) after of golde weigh for all maner of vessels of euery offyce, and all siluer ornaments after the maner of the maner of vessel of euery offyce: and weigh for the golden candlestickes and golden lampes, for euery candlesticke and his lampes. He gaue he the weight to the candlestickes his lampes, accordyng as was requyred in euery candlesticke. He gaue golde also in cables of the shewbald, for euery table in weight and siluer lyte wise for the shewbaldes. And pure golde for the shewbaldes, leuens and cuppes: and for the golden cuppes, vnto euery cuppe his weight: and for the silver cuppes, vnto euery cuppe his weight: and for the acaire of incense his weight, the most pure golde.

And a patrone of the charet of the golden Cherubins, that they mighte stee them selues, and cover the Arke of the name of the LORD. All this is geuen me wytyng of the hande of the LORD, as we keue vnderstande all the workes of the throne.

And David sayde vnto Salomon his sonne: We thou manly and stronge, and make feare vnto, and be not faynt hearted, the LORD God my God shal be with the, and shall not withdraue his hande, nor saye that thou haue fynished euery worke for the house of the LORD. Behold the courses of the prestes and Levites to all the offyces in the house of God are with the, euery worke, and are willing, and haue come to do all the offyces: and so haue the prestes and all the people for euery thing that thou hast to do.

The XXX. Chapter.

After the kyng David sayde vnto all the congregacion: God hath chosen Salomon one of my sonnes, which ys yett yonge and tender. But the worde is geuen for it is not a mans palace, but the LORD God. Yet haue I after all my abillite and into the house of God, golde for the vessels of golde, syluer for them of syluer, brasse for them of brasse, yron for the of yron, wood for them of wood, Ony stones, for Abyes, 2 stones of dyuerse coloures, 2 all precious stones, 2 Marblestones in multitude. Besides this, for the good wyll y I haue to the house of God, I haue of myne owne proper good the 11. talents of golde of Ophir, 2 seven 11. talents of pure syluer, which I gaue unto the holy house of God, besyde all y I haue prepared, to ouerlaye y wallis of the house, the same which ought to be of golde, maye be of golde: 2 that it which ought to be of syluer, maye be of syluer: and for all maner of worke by the hande of the craftsmen. And who is now fitte wyllinge, to fyll his hande this daye vnto the LORDE:

B Then were the pynce of the fathers, y pynce of the trybes of Israel, the captaynes ouerthousandes 2 oner hundredes, the in less ouer the kynge busynes, sixte wyllinge, 2 gaue to y ministracion in the house of God fyue 11. talents of golde, and ten 11. gulden, and ten 11. talents of syluer, eigheteen 11. talents of brasse, and an hundred 11. talents of yron. And by whom so euer were sold stones, they gaue them to the treasure of the house of the LORDE, vnder the hãde of Jehiel the Gerfonite.

And y people were glad that they were fitte wyllinge: for they gaue it w a good wyll (such was all their hert) vnto the LORDE. And Dauid also y kynge reioysed greatly, and prayde God, and sayde before the whole congregation: Prayde be thou O LORDE God of Israel oure father, vnto the belongeth wysshippe and power, glory, victory 2 theate: for all that is in heauen and earth, is thine: thine is y kynngdome, and thou art exalted aboue all prynces. Thine are riches and honoure before y, then reigneist ouer all, in thy hande consisteth power and myght, in thy hãde is it to make euery man greates and stronge.

C Now thãke we the oure God, and praye y name of thy glory: For who am I? What is my people: that we shulde be able with a fitte wyll to offre, as this is done? For of the cometh all, and of thy hande haue we gotten it the: For we are but pulgremes 2 straungers before the, as were all oure fathers. Our rest vpon earth is as a shadowe, and here is no abynging. O LORDE oure God, alle this abundance that we haue prepared to buylde the an house vnto thy name, came of thy hande, and is thine altogether. I knowe my God, that the trustest the hert, and that wysfayntnes is acceptable vnto the: therefore haue I gene all this: with an wyllinge hert, eue with a good wyll, and now haue I had ioice to se thy people (which here are present) offre with a fitte wyll vnto the. O LORDE God of oure fathers Abraham, Isaac, 2 Israel, kepe then euermore such purposes and thoughtes in y hertes of thy people, 2 purpargeth thou their hartes vnto the. And graunte my sonne Salomon a perfecte hert, that he maye kepe thy comãdementes, thy testymones, 2 thy statutes, that he maye do all, 2 buylde this palace, which I haue prepared.

And Dauid sayde vnto the whole congregation: O praye the LORDE y God, And all the congregation prayde y LORDE God of their fathers, 2 bowed them selues, 2 were shipped the LORDE 2 then the kynge, and offre sacrifice vnto the LORDE. And on y nexte morow offre they burned forrynges, a 11. bullockes, a 11. rãmes, a 11. lãbes w their dryn offerrynges, 2 plentifully effeed they amonge all Israel. And they eue boughte the same daie before the LORDE with greates ioye, and made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge, 2 seconde tyme, and anoynted him to be y pryncer for the LORDE, 2 Sa-
1 Re. 1

Thus sae Salomon vpon the state of y LORDE, kynge m his fathers scãde, 2 prospered. And all Israel obeyed him, 2 all y rulers 2 mighty men, 2 all kynge Dauides children subwyted themselves vnto kynge Salomon. And y LORDE made Salomon excelent 2 greates in y sighte of all Israel, 2 gaue him such a glorious kynngdome, as none had before him ouer Israel.
2 Re. 4

So had Dauid now bene kynge ouer all Israel. And y tyme that he was kynge ouer Israel, is fortye yeares: At Hebron reigned he fene yeare, and at Jerusalem the thirtie yeare, 2 dyed in a good age, full of dayes, riches and honoure. And Salomon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

These actes of kynge Dauid (both y first and last) beholde, they are wyrtten amonge the actes of Samuel the Seer, and amonge the actes of the prophet Nathan, and amonge the actes of Gad the Seer, with all his kynngdome, power and wyrtes which passed vnder him, both vpon Israel 2 vpon all the kynngdomes of the earth.

Serubbias is made kyng, and at the last carrieth awaye prisoner with the people, and Ierusalem is destroyed.

The first Chapter.

AND Salomon the sonne of Dauid was wiselye in his kyngdome, and the LORDE his God was with him, I made him exceedinglye greate, and Salomon spake vnto all Irael, to the captiues ouer thousande and out hundredes, to the Iudges, and to all y prisoners in Irael, and to the chiefe fathers, if that they wente (Salomon and the whol congregation with him) vnto the thyr place which was at Gibe: for there was y tabernacle of y witnessse of God, which Ihesus the seruaunt of the LORDE had made in y wyldernes. For Dauid had brought vnto the Arke of God from Kiriaz Jear, whan he had prepared for it: for he had prepared a tent for it at Ierusalem. As for y tabernacle which Ihesus the sonne of Dauid had made, it was there before the habitation of the LORDE: and Salomon and the congregation soughte God. And Salomon offered a thousande burnt offeringes vnto the basen aiares that stode fore the Tabernacle of witnessse.

In the same nyghte appeared God vnto Salomon, and sayde vnto him: Mye, what shal I geue thee? And Salomon sayde vnto God: Thou hast done greates mercie vnto my father Dauid, and hast made me king in his steade. Nowe LORDE God, let y answere that thou hast pomyse vnto my father Dauid, be verified, • for thou hast made me kynge ouer a people, which is as many in nō be as the dust vpon the earth. Graunce me wysdome therfore and knowlege, • I maye go out and in before this people: for who is able to indge this greates people of thine?

Then sayde God vnto Salomon: For so moch as thou art so mynded, and hast not be had riches ner good, ner hono^r, ner the foules of thine enemies, ner longe life, but hast requyrd wysdome and knowlege, to indge my people, ouer whom I haue made the kynge, wysdome therfore and knowlege be geuēthe. Moreover, riches ⁊ good and honou^r will I geue the, so that such one as thou hast not bene before the amōge the kynges, nether shal be after the.

So came Salomon from the hie place (which was at Gibeon) vnto Ierusalem from the Tabernacle of witness, and reigned ouer Israel. And Salomon gathered him charrettes and hoisēn, so that he had a thousande and foure hundred charrettes, ⁊ twolū: thon sūde hoisēn: and those appoynted he to be in the charettes, and with the kynge at Ierusalem. And the kynge broughte it so to passe, that there was as moch syluer ⁊ golde at Ierusalem as stones: and as many Ceders, as the Wollberyes trees, that are in the valley. And there were hoises brought vnto Salomon out of Egipte, ⁊ the kynges marchantes fetched them from Kena for moⁿey. And they came up, and broughte out of Egipte a charet for sixe hundred syluer pēs, and an hoise for an hundred and fiftye. They broughte they also vnto all the kynges of the southē, and to the kynges of Syria.

The II. Chapter.

Unto Salomon thoughte to buyde an hoise vnto the name of the LORDE, ⁊ an hoise for his kynge dome: and tolde ouer the scois and ten thousande men to beare burthen, and foure score thousande that beared tymber vnto the mount, and the thowⁿ and sixe hundred officers ouer them. And Salomon sent vnto Hiram the kynge of Tyre, sayenge: As thou dydest with my father, ⁊ sendest him Cedar trees, to build an hoise for to dwell in: (euen so do thou do me also.) Beholde, I wyl buyde an hoise vnto the name of the LORDE my God, to sanctifie it, for to burne good incense before him, and allmāye to prepare the shēmbred, and burnt offerynges in the morninge and in the eveninge, on the Sabbathes ⁊ Lēw^{er} moⁿes and solemnities feastes of the LORDE oure God ouer more for Israel.

And the hoise that I wyl buyde, shal be greater for oure God in greater then all goddes. But who is able to buyde them an hoise? For heauen ⁊ the heauens of all heauens maye not cōprehēde him. Who am I then, that I shalde buyde him an hoise? But only for this intent to burne incense before him:

Geue me now therfore a wyse mā to worke with golde, syluer, basse, yon, scarlet, purple, yalowe sylke: and such one as can grave carued worke with the wyse men that are with me in Jewy and Ierusalem, whom my father Dauid ordeyned. And sende me tymber of Cedar, pyne tre and costly wodd from Libanus: for I knowe that thy seruantes can beare tymber vpon Libanus. And be holde, my seruantes shalbe with thy seruantes, to prepare me moch timber for the hoise: that I wyl buyde, shalbe great ⁊ maruelous goodly.

And beholde, I wyl geue vnto the carpenters thy seruantes which beere the tymber, euerie thousande quarters, of sheaten wode ce, and twenty thousande quarters of barlye, and twenty thousande Barthes of wyne, and twenty thousande Barthes of oyle.

Then sayde Hiram the kynge of Tyre by writinge, and sent it vnto Salomon: Because the LORDE loneth his people, therfore hath he made the to be kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreover: Pleased be thy LORDE God of Israel, which made heauen earth, that he hath geue kynge Dauid a wyse and prudent some, and such one as hath vnderstandyng to buyde an hoise vnto the LORDE, ⁊ an hoise for his realme. Therfore sende I now a wyse man that hath vnderstandyng, euen Hiram Abi: which is the some of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was of Tyre: which can worke in golde, syluer, basse, yon, stone, tymber, scarlet, yalowe sylke, lymen, purple and to carve all maner of thynges, and to make what cōnyng thynges so euer is green hie, with thy wyse men, and with the wyse men of my lord kynge Dauid thy father. And now let my lord sende the wheat, barlye, oyle and wyne vnto his seruantes, according as he hath sayde, and so wyl we heere thy tymber vpon Libanus, as moch as thou needest, and wyl bringe it by fleeces in the See vnto Japho, from thence thou mayest bringe it vp to Ierusalem.

And Salomon numbered all the strangers in the lande of Israel, according to the nombre when Dauid his father nombred them: and there were founde an hundred and fifty thousande, thre thousande and sixe hundred. And of the same he made thre score and ten thousande beares of burthens, and soore score thousande beuere vps of mount, and thre thousande and sixe hundred ousters, which helde 3 people at their worke.

The III. Chapter.

AND Salomon begonne to buyde the house of the LORD at Jerusalem upon the mount Moria, that was shewed into Dauid his father, which Dauid had prepared for the temple, upon the come floore of Aran the Jebusite. In the seconde daye of the seconde moneth in the fourth yere of his reigne begane he to buyde. And so layde Salomon the foundation to buyde the house of God: first the length thre score cubytes, the bredth twentye cubites: and the porche before the wydenes of the house, was twentye cubites longe, but the height was an hundred and twentye, and he overlaid it on the ynsyde with pure golde.

But the greates house fyled he with Pyne tre, and overlaid it with the best golde, and made palme trees and thowen worke thereon, and overlaid the house with precious stones to beautifie it. As for the golde, it was golde of Parauaim. And the balles and postes above, and the wallis, and the doore of it overlaid he with golde, and ouerfed Cherubins to be carued on the wallis.

He made also the house of the Most holy, whose length was twentye cubites accordinge to the wydenesse of the house: and the bredth of it was twentye cubites likewise, and he overlaid it with the best golde by sixe hundred talentes. And for moles he gaue fiftye Sicles of golde in weight, and overlaid the chambers with golde. He made also in the house of the most holy, two Cherubins of carued worke, and overlaid them with golde: and the length on the wynges of the Cherubins, so that one wyng had fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of the house: and the other wyng had fyue cubytes also, and touched the wynges of the other Cherub.

C Then so had one wynges of the other Cherub fyue cubites likewise, and touched the wall of the house: and his other wynges had fyue cubites also, and touched the wynges of the other Cherub: so that these wynges of the Cherubins were spred ouer twentye cubi-tes wyde. And they stode vps their feet, and their face was turned to the house worke.

He made a wayle also of yallow sife, (as let, purple and lymocrite, and made Cherubins thereon. And before the house he made two pilers fyue and thirtie cubites long, and the knoppes above thereon, fyue cubites. And he made thre wain worke for the wynges, and put it above upon the pilers: and made an hundred and thre pomgranates, and put them on the wynges worke. And he set vpon pilers before the temple, the one on the righte honde, and the other on the left: and the one on the righte honde called he Jachin, and the one on the left honde called he Boos.

The III. Chapter.

HE made a brasen altare also, twentye cubytes longe, and twentye cubytes brede, and ten cubites hye. And he made a molten lauer ten cubites wyde, and the one syde to the other rounde aboute, and fyue cubytes hye. And a merlyne of thre cubites mighte comprehend it above. And ymagis of Quilodes were vnder it. And aboute the lauer (which was ten cubites wyde) there were two rowes of knoppes, 3 were in the one, and 3 in the other.

He stode so upon the bullockes, that they were turned towards the nose, the one towards the west, thre towards the south, and the other towards the east, and the lauer above vpon them, and all their hynter partes were on the ynsyde. The thidnesse of it was an halfe bredth, and the edge of it was like the top of a cuppe, and as a flowered rose. And he set vpon the lauer thre thousande Barbes.

And he made ten ketzels, whereof he set fyue on the righte hande and fyue on the left, to wash in them such thinges as be belonged to the burnt offering, that the ymagis shuld be washed therein: but 3 lauer (made like the other) for the prestes to wash in.

Ten golden candellsticks made he also as they ought to be, and set them in the temple: fyue on the righte hande, and fyue on the left. And made ten tables, and set them in the temple: fyue on the righte hande, and fyue on the left. And made an hundred basens of golde. He made a courte likewise for the prestes, and a greace court, and two in the courte, and overlaid 3 doors with basens. And the lauer set he on the righte syde towards the south east. And Hiram made candellsticks, shouels and basens.

So Hiram finished the worke which he made for King Salomon in the house of God namly the two pilers with the roundels and knoppes aboute upon both the pilers, and both the wythen ropes to couer both the roundels of 3 Knoppes aboute vpon the pilers, and the foure hundred pomgranates on both the wythe ropes, two ropes of pomgranates on every rope, to couer the roundels of the knoppes that were aboute vpon the pilers.

He made the stoles also and 3 Ketrels vpon the stoles, and a laver, and twolue bullockes there vnder. And pottes, howels, shewels, and all their vessels made Hyram Abif of pure metall for kynge Salomon vnto the house of the LORDE. In the coaste of Iordan was the kynge caused them to be molten in thide earth betwene Succoth and Zarephath.

And Salomon made all these vessels which were so many, that the weight of 3 metall was not to be soughte out. And Salomon made all the ornaments for the house of God: namly, the golden altare, the tables and the shewels thereon, the candlesticks with their lampes of pure golde, to burne before the Quere a cordinge to the maner: and the flowers and the lampes and the snuffers were of golde, all these were of pure golde.

And the krynges, basens, spones and pettes, were of pure golde. And the incense and his doies within vnto the Most holy, and the doies of the house of the temple were of golde. Thus was all 3 worke finished, which Salomon made in the house of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

And Salomon broughte in all 3 his father Dauid had sanctified, namly, silver and golde, and all maner of ornaments, and layd them in the treasures of the house of God. The gathered Salomon all the Elders in Israel together, all 3 heades of the trybes, princes of the fathers amonge the childe of Israel vnto Jerusalem, to bringe vpon the Arke of the couenant of the LORDE out of the cite of Dauid, thas is Hebron. And there rested vnto the kynge all the men in Israel as the staff, that is in the kinde of onech, and all 3 Elders in Israel came.

And 3 Lewites toke the Arke, and broughte it up vnto the Tabernacle of witness, and all the holy vessels that were in the Tabernacle: and 3 prestes and Levites broughte it up. As for kynge Salomon and all the congregation of Israel that was gather-red vnto him before the Arke, they offered the pe and oren, so many, that no man coude nombre nor reken them.

Thus the prestes broughte the Arke of 3 couenant of the LORDE vnto hir place in to the quere of the house, euen in to 3 Most holy vnder the wynges of the Cherubins, so that the Cherubins spud out their wynges ouer the place of the Arke: and the Cherubins covered the Arke and the staves thereof from above. And the staves were so long, 3 the Knoppes of them were sene from the Arke before the quere, but on the outside were they not sene. And it was there vnto this daye. And there was nothinge in the Arke, save the two tables, which Moses put there in at Horeb, when the LORDE made a couenant with the childe of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of Egipte.

And when the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary (for all 3 prestes that were founde, sanctified them selves, because the courses were not kepte) the Levites with all those that were vnder Asaph, Seman, Jedithan and their childe and brethren, beinge clothed in lynnen, songe with Cymbales, psalteries and harpes, and stode vnto the east parte of the altare, and an hundred and twenty prestes with them, which blew w trompettes. And it was, as if one had tromped and synged, as though a voyce had bene heard of prayng and geuyng thanks vnto the LORDE.

And when the voyce arose from 3 trompettes, cymbales and other instruments of musick, and from prayng the LORDE (because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer) the house of the LORDE was fylled on the insyde with a cloude, so 3 the prestes coude not stonde to mynistre for the cloude: for the glory of the LORDE fylled the house of God.

The VI. Chapter.

Then sayde Salomon: The LORDE I sayde, that he wolde dwell in a barncloude: I have dyuided an house to be an habitacion vnto thee: a seate, 3 thou mayest dwell there for euer. And the kynge turned his face, and blessed all the congregation of Israel: for the whole congregation of Israel stode, and sayde: prayed be the LORDE God of Israel, which promysed by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, and with his hande hath fulfilled it, what he sayde: Execute the tyme that: I broughte my people out of the londe of Egipte, I have chosen no cite in all 3 trybes of Israel, to byde an honse for my name to be there, neither have I chosen any man to be prince ouer my people of Israel. But Jerusalem haue I chosen, for my name to be there: & David haue I chosen, to be prince ouer my people of Israel.

B And when my father David was mynded to buyde an house vnto the name of the LORD E God of Israel, the LORD E sayde vnto David my father: Where as thou wast mynded to buyde an house vnto my name, thou hast done well: howbeit thou shalt not buyde the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loynes, shall buyde the house vnto my name.

Thus hath the LORD E now performed his woite, that he spake: for I am come vp in my father Davids steade, and sye vpon the state of Israel, euen as the LORD E sayde, & haue buyded an house vnto the name of the LORD E God of Israel, in it haue I put the Ark, wherein is the covenante of the LORD E, which he made with the childre of Israel.

C And he stode before the altare of the LORD E in the presence of the whole congregation of Israel, and spred out his handes: for Salomon had made a basin palpit, and set it in the myddes of the court, fyue cubites longe, and fyue cubites bröde, and the cubites hie: vpon the same stode he, and fell downe vpon his knees in the presence of the whole congregation of Israel, and halde out his handes towarde heauen and sayde:

REG. 4 O LORD E God of Israel, there is no god like the, neither in heauen ner vpon earth, thou that kepest covenante and mercy for thy seruantes, that walke before the with all their heart. Thou hast kepte promises w my father David thy seruante: With thy mouth thou saydest it, and with thy hande hast thou fulfilled it, as it is come to passe this daye. Now LORD E God of Israel, make good vnto my father David thy seruante, that which thou hast promysed him, & sayde: Thou shalt not want a man before me, so sye vpon the state of Israel: yf thy childre kepe their waye, so they walke in my lawe, like as thou hast walkid before me: Now LORD E God of Israel, let thy woide be verified, which thou hast promysed vnto David thy seruante.

D For thinkest thou that God in very deede dwelleth amonge men vpon earth? Behold, he holdeth the heauen and the brauens of all heaues maye not cōteyne the: how shulde then this house do it, which I haue buyded: But come the vnto the prayer of thy seruante, and to his supplicacōis (O LORD E my God) that thou mayest heare the thankesgivinge and prayer, which thy seruante maketh for the, so that thine eyes be open ouer the house daye and night, euen ouer this place (wherin thou saydest thou woldst see my name) that thou mayest heare the praye which thy seruante shall make in this place: heare now therfore the intercession of thy seruante and of thy people of Israel, who so ever they shall be in this place: that thou se from the place of thy habitacion from heauen: and when thou hearest my mercifull

Whan enymā synneth agaynst his neighbour, and an oath be put vpon him which he ought to sweare, and the oath cometh before thine altare in this house, then thou shalt send him from heauen, and it shall be thy seruantes right, so that thou rewardest the wages, and receivest him his waye vpon his own head, and to iustifye the righteous, and gent him according to his righteousnes.

Whan thy people of Israel is synnifed: see their enemies (whyle they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they turne vnto thy knowledge thy name, and make their praye and intercession before the in this house: heare thou them from heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people of Israel: bringe them agayne in to the land, which thou hast giuen them and their fathers.

Whan the heauen is shut vp, so that I maye not (for so much as they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they make their praye in this place, and knowlege thy name, and turne from their synnes (whan thou hast brought them lowe) heare thou them in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy seruantes, and of thy people of Israel: that thou mayest teach them the good waye wherein they shulde walke, and let us rest vpon thy loude which thou hast giuen thy people to possesse.

Whan a verth or pestilence, or drought, or blasting, or grechopper, or canker, or a plague, or when their enemy layeth siege to their cities in the land, or when any plague or distace happeneth, we be cōuerted: maketh his prayer or petition amonge the manner of men, or amonge all thy people of Israel, yf any man fele this plague and distace, and speekeh out his handes vnto thy house: heare thou them from heauen, euen from the state of thy habitacion, and be mercifull and gent every man according to all his waye, in so much as thou knowest his heart: for thou only knowest the heart of the children of men: that they maye feare the, and waye walke in thy wayes, as longe as they lye in the londe, which thou hast geuen vntooure fathers.

And when any straunger which is not of thy people of Israel, cometh out of a farre countrie because of thy greates name, and mighte hands, and out stretched arme, and cometh to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then from heauen, euen from the seat of thy habitacion: and do all for which that straunger calleth vnto thee, that all the nations vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and feare thee, as thy people of Israel doe: and that they maye knowe, how this house which I haue builded, is named after thy name.

When thy people goe forth to fight agaynst their enemies, the waye that thou shalt sende them, and shall praye vnto thee, ^b towards the waye of this cite which thou hast chosen, and towards the house that I haue builded vnto thy name, heare thou the their prayer and petition from heauen, and helpe them to their righte.

^b When they synne agaynst thee (for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be wroth at them, and geue them ouer before their enemies, so that they carry them awaye captiue in to a countrie farre offe, and yf they tume within their herres in the londe where they are prisoners, and so conuerte, and make their mercifullness vnto the in the londe of their captiue, and saye: We haue synned, and done amysse, and haue bene vngodly: and so tume them selues vnto thee with all their here and with all their soule in the londe of their captiue, when they are prisoners: and make their prayer towards the waye of their owne londe, which thou hast chosen, and towards the cite which thou hast chosen, and towards the house that I haue builded vnto thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplication from heauen, euen from the seat of thy dwellinge, and helpe them to their righte, and be mercifull vnto thy people that haue synned agaynst thee. O my God, let thine eyes now be open, and see thine earres geue heere vnto prayer in this place. Arise now O LORD God vnto thy resting place, then and the arte of thy strength. See thy priestes O LORD God be clothed with healeth, and let thy sayntes reioyse ouer this good. O LORD God, tume not awaye the face of thine anointed vnto vpon the mercies of thy seruant Dauid.

The vii. Chapter.

AND when Salomons had ended his prayer, there fell a fyre from heauen, and consumed the burnt offeringe and the other offeringes. And the glory of the LORD filled the house, so that the priestes coulde not go in to the house of the LORD, while the glory of the LORD filled the LORDS house. And all the children of Israel sawe the fyre fall downe, and the glory of the LORD ouer the house: and they fell on their faces at their faces to the grounde vpon the pavement, and worshipped, and gave thanks vnto the LORD, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for ever. As for the kyng and all the people, they offered before the LORD.

So the kyng Salomon offered two and twentye thousand bullockes, and an hundred thousand sheepe, and twenty thousand oxen, so both the kyng and all the people dedicated the house of God.

But the priestes stode in their watches, and the Levites with the musicall instrumentes of the LORD, which kyng Dauid had caused to make for to geue thanks vnto the LORD, (because his mercy endureth for ever) vnto psalmes of Dauid thowse their banes. And the priestes blew trumpettes ouer agaynst them, and all Israel stode.

And Salomon halowed the myddelmost course, which was before the house of the LORD, for there prepared he the burnt offeringes and the fat of the slayne offeringes for the brasen altare that Salomon made, mighte not conteyne all the burnt offeringes, meat offeringes, and the fat.

And at the same tyme helde Salomon a fast seven daies longe, and all Israel with him a very greates congregation, from Gemach vnto the ryuar of Egipten, and on the eithe daye helde he a conuocation. For the dedication of the altare helde the thysseuendales, and the fast seven dayes also.

But on the thie and twentieth daye of the seventh month he let the people go vnto their tentes ioyfull and with merry heeres because of all the good that the LORD had done vnto Dauid, vnto Salomons, and to his people of Israel.

Thus finished Salomons the house of the LORD, and the kinges house, and all that came in his her to make in the house of the LORD, and in his owne house prosperously. And the LORD appeared vnto Salomon in the night season, and sayde vnto him: I haue heard thy prayer, and chosen this place vnto my selfe for an house of sacrifice.

Beholde, when I shew the heauē so ſh' it raine not, or commaunde the greſshopper to coſume the londe, or cauſe a preſilence to come amonge my people, to humble my people, which is named after my name: and yf they praye, and ſet my face, and turne from their euill wayes, the wyll I heare them from hea- ven, and wyll forgive their ſinne, and heale their londe. So ſhal myne eyes now be open, and myne eares ſhal be attente vnto prayer in this place. Thus haue I now choſen this houſe, and ſanctified it, that my name maye be there for euer: and myne eyes and my heere ſhal alwaye be there.

D And yf thou walke before me, as thy father David walked, ſo that thou do all that I commaunde the, and kepe myne ordina- ces and lawes, then wyll I ſtabliſhe the ſea- te of thy Kingdome, accordinge as I promiſed thy father David, and ſayde: Thou ſhalt not wante a man to be londe ouer Iſrael. But yf ye turne backe, and forſake myne ordinaunces and commaundementes which I haue layed before you, and ſo go youre waye, and ſerue other goddes, and worſhip- pe them, the wyll I reue. you out of my londe: that I haue geuen you: and this houſe which I haue ſanctified vnto my name, wil I caſt awaye out of my preſence, and geue it ouer to be a wyrdde and ſabell amonge all na- tions. And every one that goeth by, ſhall be aſtonnyd at this hye houſe, and ſhall byſſe at it, and ſay: Wherefore hath the LORDE deale thus with this londe and with this houſe? Then ſhall it be ſayde: Euen becauſe they haue forſaken the LORDE God of their fathers (which brought them out of the len- de of Egipte) ⁊ haue cleued vnto other god- des, ⁊ worſhipped them, and ſerued the: ther- fore hath he broughte all this euill vpon the.

The viij. Chapter.

After twentye yeares (wherein Sa- lomons builded the houſe of the LORDE and his anme houſe) he builded the cyties alſo which Hiram gaue vnto Sa- lomons, and cauſed the children of Iſrael to dwell therein. And Salomon wente vnto the math Toba, and made it ſtronge, and builded Tabaſin in the wyldernes, and all the coneycties which he builded in Zemarath. He builded the upper and lower Bethoron likewiſe, ſo that they were ſtronge cities w' mulles, pones and hares. And Baclath, and all the coneycties which Salomon had, and all the cities of the charrettes and of the houſe men, and all that Salomon had laſt to buyde, both at Jeruſalem and vpon Li-banus, and in all the londe of his buy- mon.

All the remnant of the people of the li- thico, Amontes, Pherites, Geras, and Jebuſites, which were not of the children of Iſrael, and their children which they ha- leſte behynde them in the londe, (wherein children of Iſrael had not receyved them; thoſe by Salomon made tributaries was this daye. As for the children of Iſrael, Sa- lomons made no bondmen of them vnto his worke, but they were men of warre, and be- ſe captaynes, and ouer his charrettes ⁊ hor- ſes. And the chefe of Pygge Salomons of- ficers were two hundred and fyftee, who ruled the people.

And Salomon cauſed Pharaos daug- ter to be fetcht up out of the cite of Dan, vnto the houſe that he had builded for her: for he ſayde: My wyfe ſhall not dwell in the houſe of David the kynge of Iſrael, ſhe wil ſanctified, in as much as yf ſhe of the li- DE is come in to it.

Then eſſed Salomon burnt offerings vnto the LORDE vpon the LORDES aul- ter, which he had builded before the poole, eueri one vpon his daye to offer a ſerui- mandement of Moſes, on the Sabbath, Twemones ⁊ at the appointed ſeaſon of the yeare, euen thier tymes, namely in ⁊ fiſh of vntwended beed, in the feaſt of wextar, in the feaſt of Tabernacle.

And he ſet the pteſtes in ordie to their mi- niſtration: accordinge as David his father had appoynted, and the Lrites in their of- fices, to geue thanks and to myniſter in the preſence of the pteſtes, eueri one vpon his daye. And the douctees in their conſe, v- nery one at his doore, for ſo had David the mi- of God commaunded.

And they departed not from the dyn- g commandement ouer the pteſtes and Le- uites in eueri matter and in the treaton. Thus was all Salemons buyſſment ma- ready, ſynce the daye that the foundacion of the LORDES houſe was layed, vntill it was ſyn- niſhed, ſo that the houſe of the LORDE was all prepared.

Then wente Salomon vnto Eſyon Ge- ber, and vnto Elath by the See ſyde in the londe of Edome. And Hiram ſent himſel- pe by his ſeruautes which had know- of the See, and they wente with Salomons ſeruautes vnto Ophir, and fetcht ſyn- thence four hundred and fyftee calons of golde, and broughte it vnto Pygge Salo- mon.

The IX. Chapter.

And when the queene of rich Arabia herbe the same of Salomon, she came with a very greates cryme to Jerusalem (with Camels that bare spyes and golde, and precious stones) to prouide Salomon with darts of sentences. And when she came vnto Salomon, she spake vnto him all that she had desired in hir mynde. And the kynge tode her all hir matters, & Salomon had nothing in secreete, but he colde it her.

And when the Queene of riche Arabia sawe the wysdome of Salomon, and y howe that he had buyded, the meates of his table, the dwellinges of his seruantes, y effices of his mynisters and their garmentes, & his butlers and their apparell, and his parlor where he wente up in to the house of the LORD, she coulde no longer refrayne. And she sayde vnto the kynge: It is true that I haue herde in my londe of thy behauiour and of thy wysdome: howbeit I wolde not beleue their wordes, vntill I came my selfe, & sawe it with myne eyes: and beholde, the halfe of thy greates wysdome hath not bene tolde me: there is more in y then the same that I haue herde. Happy are thy men, and happy are these thy seruantes, y all wayes stande before the, and heare thy wysdome. Praye for the LORD thy God, which had soch pleasure vnto the, that he hath set the vpon his seate to be kynge vnto the LORD thy God. Because thy God loneth Ihsaia, to set them vp for euer, that foue hath he ordeyned y to be kynge ouer them, that thou shouldest mayntayne iustice and equitye.

And she gaue y Fynge an hundred and twentye talentes of golde, & very much spyes & precious stones. There were no mo such spyes as these that the Queene of riche Arabia gaue vnto kynge Salomō. And hit was streames and the seruantes of Salomon, which broughe golde from Ophir, broughe a costly mynber also of precious stones.

And of the same costly mynber dyd Salomon cause to make staires in the house of the LORD, and the Fynge house, and harpes and psalteries for the Musicians. There was no such mynber sene before in the londe of Iuda. But kynge Salomon gaue the Queene of riche Arabia all that she desired and axed, & much more then she had broughe vnto the kynge. And she returned, and departed in to hir londe with hir seruantes.

The golde that was broughe vnto Salomon in one yere, was sixe hundred and sixe and thre score talentes, besydes that y chap men and marchantes broughe. And all the Fynge of the Arabians, and the lodes in y londe broughe golde and siluer vnto Salomon. Of the which Fynge Salomon made two hundred speeres of beaten golde, id y sixe hundred peces of beaten golde came vnto one speare: the hundred shuldes of beaten golde, so that the hundred peces of beaten golde came to one shylde: and the Fynge put the in the house of the wod of Libanus.

And the Fynge: made a greates face of Xery, and overlaid it with pure golde: and the face had sixe steeppes, and a forestle of golde fastned vnto the face, and it had two leaninge postes vpon both the sydes of the face, and two Lyons stode besyde the leaninge postes, and there stode two Lyons vnto the syre steeppes on both the sydes. In all realmes hath not sode one bene made.

And all the Fynge Salomons dayntynge vessels were of golde, and all the vessels of the house of the wod of Libanus, were of pure golde: for siluer was reckned nothyng in Salomons cryme. For the Fynge shippes wente vpon the See with the seruantes of hit, & came once in thre yeres, and broughe golde, siluer, Xery, Apes and precocles.

Thus was kynge Salomon greates then all the Fynge vpon earth, in riches and wysdome. And all the Fynge of y earth desired (to see) Salomons face, and to heare his wysdome, which God had geuen him in his heart. And they broughe him yearly eueri mā his present: Jewels of siluer and golde, raynes, harness, spyes, horses and Mules.

And Salomon had foure thousande charchoises, and euolue thousande housmen, and put them in the chareeries, and with the Fynge at Jerusalem. And he was loide ouer all the Fynge from the water vnto the londe of the Philistynes, and to the coaste of Egipte. And the Fynge broughe it so to passe, that there was no moch siluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Cedres, as there were Mobery trees in the valley. And the re were horses broughe vnto him out of Egipte, and out of all countrees.

What more there is to saye of Salomon, both of his first and of his last, beholde, it is wurd in the Cronicles of the prophet Iherem, and in the prophesies of Abia of Silo, & in y acres of Ieddie the Seer against Ieroboa y sonne of Nebat. And Salomō reigned at Jerusalem ouer all Ihsaia foure yeres. And Salomon fell on slepe at his fathere, & was buried in the cyte of Dauid his fathere. And Aboā his sonne was Kinge his steade,

The X. Chapeer.

And Roboam wente vnto Sichem: for all Israel was come vnto Sichem: to make him kinge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat herde that, which was in Egiptee (whether he was fled for kynge Salomon) he came agayne out of Egiptee. And they sent for him and called him. And Jeroboam came with all Israel, and spake to Roboam, and sayde: Thy father made y^e yocke greuous: make thou lighter now y^e yocke bondage of thy father, and y^e heuy yocke that he layed vpon vs, and we wyl submyt- tene oure selues vnto the. He sayde vnto them: Come to me agayne ouer thre dayes. And y^e people wente their waye.

B And Roboam the kynge aued coull as the Elders, which had stonde before Salomon his father whyle he liued, and he sayde: What is youre counsell, that I maye geue this people an answer? They spake vnto him, and sayde: If thou be louynge vnto this people, and denie gently wth them, and geue them good wordes, then shal they all waye be obedient vnto the. Tauerthelesse he forsooke the counsell of the Elders: that they had geuen him, and toke counsell at y^e yonge men which were growne vp wth him, and stode before him. And he sayde vnto the: What is youre counsell, that we maye answer this people, which haue spoken vnto me, and sayde: Make oure yocke lighter, y^e thy father layed vpon vs: The yongemen y^e were growne vp with him, spake vnto him, and sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the people, that haue talked with the: Thy father made oure yocke to heuy, make thou y^e yocke lighter. Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My litle finger shalbe thicker then my fathers to ynce. If my father hath layed ag heuy yocke vpon you, I wyl make youre yocke the more. My father chastened you wth scourges, but I wyl beate you with scorpions.

C Now when Jeroboam and all the people came to Roboam on the thirde daye (ac- cordinge as y^e kynge sayde: Come to me agayne on the thirde daie) the kynge gaue the an- swere. And Roboam the kynge forsooke y^e counsell of the Elders, & spake vnto the after y^e yonge mens counsell. & sayde: If my father haue made y^e yocke to heuy, I wyl make it yett heavier. My father chastened you wth scourges, but I wyl beate you wth scorpions. Thus the kynge folowed not y^e peoples minde: for so was it betemyned of God, y^e y^e LORD mighte stablish his worde, which he spake by Ahia of Silo, vnto Jeroboam y^e sonne of Nebat. But when all Israel saue the kynge wolde not consente vnto them, y^e people answered the kynge, and sayde: What portion haue we then in Dauid, or inheri- tance in the sonne of Isai? Let every man of Israel geue him to his tent. Lo, thou wth thy houshold Dauid. And all Israel wente vnto their tentes, so that Roboam reigned ouer the children of Israel that dwelt in the citie of Iuda. And Roboam sent forth Ja- ram the reue gatherer, but the children of Israel stoned him to deathe. And kynge Reui strengethed himselfe vpon his charre, to fly vnto Ierusalem. Thus fell Israel awaie from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

The XI. Chapeer.

And when Roboam came to Ierusalem, he gathered together the kingdome of Iuda and Ben Jamin (as in his dierch and foure score: thoulens chosen men of armes) to fyghte agaynst Israel, as they mighte bynne the kyngeome agayne vnto Roboam. But y^e worde of the LORD came to Semai the man of God, and sayde: Speake to Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Iuda, and to all Israel in Iuda and Ben Jamin, and saye: Thus saith the LORD: Ye shal not goe vp, ne fight agaynst youre brether: for every man is wth me agayne, for this is my dede. They had ned vnto the wordes of y^e LORD, and wente south agaynst Jeroboam. As for Reui, he dierch: as Ierusalem, and buylded vpon stronge citie in Iuda, namely Bethle- ean, Tekoa, Bethsur, Soco, Aballa, Beth Marsa, Siph, Adonim, Ladera, Alisha, rega, Aialon, and Bethon (which were the finest citie in Iuda and Ben Jamin) made them stronge, and set paynes that prouyded them of veytales, oyle and wyne, and in all citie prepared he shildes and harres, and made them very stronge. And Iuda and Ben Jamin were wth him.

B The Prestes and Leuites also came wth him out of Israel and from all the towne therof, and lefte their suburbs & possessi- on, and came to Iuda vnto Ierusalem: for y^e roboam and his samnes expelled them, as they shulde not execute the offyce of y^e presthode vnto y^e LORD. But for himselfe he had dede prestes to y^e hye places, two thousand & calues, which he caused to make. And when they came there men one of all the tribes of Israel, which gaue ouer their bettes vnto y^e LORD: God of Israel, & came to Ierusalem to offre vnto the LORD God of their fathers. And so strengethed they y^e kyngeome.

Juda, and maynyned Roboam the sonne of Salomon the yere longer for they walked in foye of David z Salomon the yere.

And Roboam toke Mabelath z daughter of Jeremoch z sonne of David to wife, z Abial the daughter of Eliab z sonne of Jisrahub bare him these sonnes: Jeus, Semia z Sabam. After her toke he Maacha the daughter of Absalom, which bare him Abia, Zebai Sifa and Selemith. But Roboam loved Maacha the daughter of Absalom better then all his wyues z concubynes: for he had eighete wyues and thre score concubynes, and begat eithe z twentye sonnes, and thre score daughters. And Roboam set Abia the sonne of Maacha to be heade and prince amonge his brethren: for he thought to make him kynge: for he was wyse, z mo righte then all his sonnes in all the countra of Juda z Ben Jamin, and in all the stronge cities. And he gane them plenteousnes of iobe, and beyred many wyues.

The xliij. Chapter.

¶ When the kynge dome of Roboam was confirmed and stablyshed, he for soke the lawe of the LORDE z all Jfud with him. And in the fyfth yere of Roboam wote Sifack the kynge of Egipte vp agaynst Jerusalem (for they had transgressed agaynst the LORDE) with a thousande and two hundred charrettes, and with thre score thousande hoysmen, and the people we innumerable that came with him out of Egipte, Libya, Suthim z out of Ethiopia, and he wote the sixte cities that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semia y prophet unto Roboam and to z rulers of Juda (which were gathered together at Jerusalem for Sifack) z saye unto them: Thus sayeth z LORDE: Ye have lette me, eber fore have I lette you also in Sifack's hande. The rulers in Jfud wote with the kynge submyted them selues, and saye: The LORDE is righteouse.

But when the LORDE sawe z they humbled them selues, z saye: z worde of the LORDE came to Semia, z saye: They have humbled them selues, eber fore wyl I not destroye them, but I wyl geve them a litle deluyraunce, that my indignacion fall not upon Jerusalem by Sifack: for they shalbe subdued unto him, z they may knowe what it is to strue me, z I wyl be the kynge dome of the worlde.

Thus wote Sifack the kynge of Egipte vnto Jerusalem, z toke the treasures in the house of the LORDE, z the treasures in the kynge's house, and carried all awaye, and wote the shyldes of golde, that Salomon caried to make in steade of the kynge Roboam made shyldes of slea, and comynged the warre to the chese foremen, which kepte the dore of the kynge's house. And as often as the kynge wente in to the house of the LORDE, z foremen came z bare eham, z brought hem agayne in to z fore men's chaber, z for so muche as he submyted himselfe, z muche of z LORDE turned fro him, so that all was not destroyed: for there was yet some good in Juda.

Thus was Roboam the kynge stablyshed in Jerusalem, and reigned. One and fortye yere olde was Roboam when he was made kynge, and reigned sixteen yere at Jerusalem in the cite, which the LORDE had chosen out of all the trybes of Jfud, to sit his name there. His mothere name was Lemma an Ammonitisse: and he was cruel, and prepared not his heart to see the LORDE.

These actes of Roboam, both first and last, are wyrtten in the actes of Semia the prophet, z of Jode the Seer, and are neede, z so are the warres that Roboam and Jeroboam had together as long as they luyed. And Roboam fell on slepe with his fathers and was buryed in the cite of David, z Abia his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The xliij. Chapter.

¶ In the eightenth yere of kynge Jeroboam, wote Abia kynge in Juda, z reigned thre yere at Jerusalem. His mothere name was Michia the daughter of Deiel of Gibea. And there was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia prepared himselfe to the battayll with some halfe thousande stronge chosen men of warre. But Jeroboam made himselfe ready to fight agaynst him w eight hundred thousande chosen men of strengthe.

And Abia gaue him vp upon the hill Geraraim, which lyeth upon mount Ephraim, and saye: Gerden vnto me thou Jeroboam, and all Jfud: A nome ye not that the LORDE God of Jfud hath geuen David of kynge dome of Jfud for ever, vnto him and his sonnes with a salt couenaunt: But Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, the seruaunt of Salomon Davids sonne, gaue him up z fell awaye from his loide. And there resused vnto him vagaboundes and children of Belial, and haue strengthed them selues agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was bus yonge and of a fearfull heart, and coulde not resiste them.

Now thinke ye do sit your selues agaynst the kynge dome of the LORDE amonge trompettes, to trompe agaynst you. The children of Israel, fighte not agaynst the LORDE God of ys fathers: for ye shal not prosper.

Then Jeroboam made a piewy watd on euery syde, to come vpon them behynde, so that they reere before Juda, and 3 piewy watd behynde. Now wha Juda et-red them, beholde, there was battayll before the 2 behynde. Then cryed they vnto 3 LOR-DE, 2 the priestes tromped with the trompetes, 2 wha euery man in Juda gaue a shre-ec, God plagued Jeroboam and Israel before Abia and Juda. And the children of Israel fled before Juda, and God gaue them in to their handes, so that Abia 2 his people byd a greates slaughter vpon them, and there fell wounded of Israel fye hundred thousand chosen men.

Thus were the children of Israel subbe-at that tyme, but the children of Juda were comforted, for they put their trust in 3 LOR-DE God of their fathers. And Abia folowed vpon Jeroboam, and wanne cities frs him, Bechel with the vylages therof, Jesana w hir vylages, and Ephion with the vylages therof, so that Jeroboam came nemore to strength, as longe as Abia luyed. And the LORDE smote him that he dyed.

Now whan Abia was strengthened, he to-ke foure nye wyues, and begat two and twen-tye sonnes and sixtene daugthers. What more there is to saye of Abia, and of his wyues and his doynges, it is wyrtten in the scoye of the prophet Iddo. And Abia fell on slep with his fathers, and they buried him in cite of Dauid: and Asa his sonne reyg-in his steade. In his tyme was the lowde rest ten years.

The XIII. Chapter.

Asa byd that which was right in the sighte of the LORDE God, and put awaye the strange carres, and the hye places, and built the lera, and hewed downe the grones, and be vnto Juda, that they shulde site the DE God of their fathers, and to do the la we and commaundementes. And the places and ymages put he awaye out of the cities of Juda: and the kynghoms be-rest before him. And he bulded stronge in Juda, whyle the lowde was in quyn-whyle there was no warre agaynst him the same years: for 3 LORDE gaue him rest.

And he sayde vnto Juda: Let vs be vpon these cities, and sette them rounde ce with walles and towres, with portes barre, while the lowde is yet with vs: for haue foughte vs the LORDE oure God, and hath geuen vs rest on euery syde. Set bylde, and it wene prosperously with vs.
 And Asa had an hoost of 5 me which was des 2 peaces, out of Juda the 1. C. thousand and out of Ben Jamin two hundred and score thousand, that bare shylde 2 can-de shate w bowes, and all these were the stronge men.

But Gerah the Moryan came out gainst the 10 an hoost of a thousande a thousande, and with thre hundred tee, and came vnto Marais. And Asa was forth agaynst him. And they prepared the selues to the battayll in the valley Zephor before Marais. And Asa called vpon 3 LOR-DE his God and sayde: LORDE, it is not ferce w 3, ro helpe by fewe or by many, but pe vs 3 LORDE oure God: for our trust is the, 2 in thy name are we come forth agaynst this multitude. LORDE oure God, let not piewayle agaynst the.

And the LORDE smote the Morys before Asa and before Juda, so that they fled. As Asa with 3 people that was by him, fol-ed vpon them vnto Gerah. And the Morys fell, so that none of them remained alive, but were smyrtten before the LORDE and left his hoost. And they caried awaye ceatings and spoyle from thence. And he smote all the ties aboute Gerah. For a fearfullnes of 3 LORDE came vpon them. And they forgo all the cities, for there was no ch them. They smote the caries of the can-

The ij. boke of the Cronicles. The xvi. Chap. Fo. xxvij.

And toke many shepe and Camels, and ca me agayne to Jerusalem.

The XV. Chapter.

Unto the space of God came vps Asa nas the sonne of Obed, which wene such to Asa, and saye unto him: Sea rune Asa and all Juda ⁊ Ben Jamin: The LORDE is with you, whyte ye are with him:
and if ye forsake him, he wyll sounde of you.
But if ye forsake him, he shal forsake you al sa. Therefore there shal be many dayes in Israel, that there shalbe no true God, no pastor, no lawe. And when they tur ne in their trouble unto the LORDE God of Israel, and see him, he shalbe founde. Ac cordinge shall it not be well with him that geth out and in: for there shal be greate up rour upon all them ⁊ dwell on the earth.
Some people shall all to smyte another, ⁊ one cite another: for God shal wepe them w all maner of trouble. But be ye stronge, and be not youre handes be feeble: for youre wor ke hath his rewarde.

When Asa herde these wordes, and the prophetes of Marias the sonne of Obed the prophet, he toke a ceasinge unto him, and put awaye the abominacions out of all ⁊ lode of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the cities that he had worne upon mount Ephraim: and requed the LORDES altare, which stode before the poiche of the LOR DE. And all Juda and Ben Jamin gathe red them selues together, and the straungers with them out of Ephraim, Manassio and Simeon: for there fell many unto him out of Israel, when they sawe that the LORDE his God was with him. And they resorted unto Jerusalem in the thirde moneth of the fiftenth yere of the reigne of Asa, and the same daye offered they unto the LORDE of the spoule that they had broughte, seven hu dred oxen, and seven thousand shepe.

And they entred in to ⁊ covenant, that they wolde like the LORDE God of their fa thers, with all their hert: and with all their soule. And who so ever wolde not like ⁊ LOR DE God of Israel, shulde bye, both small ⁊ great, both man and woman: and they swa re unto the LORDE with loud voice, with shoutinge, with trompettes and with shaw mes. And all Juda were glad over the oed: for they had bin me with all their hert, and they soughte him with a whole mynde: and he was founde of them, and the LORDE gaue them rest on every side.

And Asa ⁊ kynge put downe his woerth from the mystification, that she had souer bed in the groue vnto Miplezeb. And Asa roze out her Miplezeb, and beate it in sun der, and brent it by the broke Cebion. But the hye places were not put downe out of Israel. Yet was the hert of Asa perfect as longe as he lyued. And loke what his father had halowed, and what he him selfe had hal owed, he broughte it in to ⁊ house of God, syluer, golde and ornaments. And there was no more vnto the fyue and thirtith yere of the reigne of Asa.

The XVI. Chapter.

In the sixe and thirtith yere of ⁊ A reignis of Asa, wente Baesa the kyn ge of Israel vp agaynst Juda, and buylded Rama, to let Asa the kynge of Ju da, ⁊ he shulde not go out and in: But Asa toke southe the treasure in the house of the LORDE, and the syluer and golde in the kyn ges house, and sent it unto Zenadab ⁊ kyn ge of Syria, which dwelt at Damascus, and caused to saye unto him: There is a cove nant betwene me and the, betwene my fa ther and thy father, therefore haue I sent ⁊ syluer and golde, that thou mayest deate ⁊ covenant with Baesa the kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frome.

Zenadab berthened unto kynge Asa, and sent his host agaynst the cities of Israel, which sinnede Eion, Dan and Abel Maim, and all the come cities of Neptzali. When Baesa herde that, he lefte off from buyld inge Rama, and ceased from his woerke. But kynge Asa toke all Juda unto him, and caried awaye ⁊ sonnes and cymbere with Baesa buylded, and he buylded Geba ⁊ Mi pa withall.

At the same tyme came Zanani the Seer vnto Asa the kynge of Juda, and sayde v nto him: Because thou hast trusted unto the kynge of Syria, and not purthy trust in the LORDE thy God, therefore is the power of the kynge of Syria escaped thy hande. We see not, the Moayans and Lybians a greate multitude with exceedinge many charrees and horses: yet gaue the LORDE them in thy hande, when thou bydest put thy trust in him: for the eyes of the LORDE loke rounde aboute all londes, to strengthen them ⁊ are in him with all their hert. Thou hast done unrightly, therefore shalte thou haue warre from hiee such. But Asa was woth at ⁊ Seer, and put him in prison: for he mur mured with him over this thinge. And Asa oppressed certayne of the people at ⁊ same tyme.

These actes of Asa both first and last, be. C holde, they are wyrtten in the booke of 9 Synge of Iuda 7 Israel. And Asa was diseased in his feet in the nyne and thirtieth yeare of his reigne, and endured ther euer. Neither sought he the LORDE in his sickness, but trusted vnto physicians. Thus fell Asa on slepe with his fathers, 7 byed in the one and fortieth yeare of his reigne, 7 was buried in his awne sepulchre which he had caused to be grauen for him selfe in the cite of Dami. And they layed him vpon his bed, which was fylled with sweet odoures 7 all maner of spyces (made after 3 Apocaries craft) and made a very greate burninge.

The xviii. Capter.

AND Iosaphat his sonne was kynge in his steade, 7 wayed mightie agaynst Israel. And he put men of warre in all the stronge cities of Iuda, and set officers in the towne of Iuda, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wone. And the LORDE was w Iosaphat: for he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, 7 foughte not w Baalim, but the God of his father, 7 walked in his commandementes, & not a feare the woikes of Israel: therfore byd the LORDE stablyshe the kyngdome in his hãde. And all Iuda gaue presentes vnto Iosaphat, 7 he had greate riches 7 worshippe. And when his here was couered in the wayes of the LORDE, he put downe stylle the hye places and groues out of Iuda.

In the thirde yeare of his reigne, sent he his prynces, Benhail, Obadiah, Zacharias, Tethanel 7 Michai, to teach in the cities of Iuda: 7 with them the Lcrites: Semaiah, Tethania, Sebada, Ahsel, Semiramoth, Jonachan, Adonia, Tobia 7 Tob Adonia, 7 with them 3 prestes Elisama 7 Joiam. And they taughte in Iuda, 7 had the boke of the lawes of 3 LORDE w them. 7 wente aboute in all 3 cities of Iuda, 7 taughte the people.

And the feare of the LORDE came vpon all 3 kyngdomes in the countree that laye aboute Iuda, so 3 they soughte not agaynst Iosaphat. And the Philistynes broughte presentes and tribute of syluer vnto Iosaphat. And the Arabians broughte him seuenthoustante and seuen hundredth rammes, and seuen thousande and seuen hundredth he goates. Thus increased Iosaphat, 7 grewe euer greater. And he buylded castles and cotte cities in Iuda. And dyd much in the cities of Iuda, and had valaunt and mightie men at Jerusalem.

And this was 3 ordinance thow out the house of their fathers, which were rulers ouer the thousande in Iuda. And captiue, 7 w him were the children of seuenthougent men. Terte vnto him was Hanan 3 chere, and with him were hundredth and foure score thousande. Terte was Amasia the sonne of Secha the husbunge of 3 LORDE, and with him were hundredth thousande valaunt men. His children of Ben Jamin was Elisama gentie man, and with him were two hundredth thousande ready with bowes and shyts. Terte vnto him was Josabed, and w him were an hundredth and foure score thousande harnessid men of warre. All thow out vpon the synge, before thow that 3 synge had layed in the firste citie thow out all Iuda.

The xviii. Capter.

AND Iosaphat had greate riches in worshippe, and made frendshipp w Achab. And a fere two yeres more he done to Achab vnto Samaria. In Achab caused many shepe and oxe to be se for him and for 3 people that was w him. And he conuened him to goe w Ramoth in Gilead. And Achab the kyng of Israel sayde vnto Iosaphat the kyng of Iuda: Go with me vnto Ramoth to be lead, he sayde vnto him: I am as thou art my people as thy people, we will goe w the vnto the battayll.

But Iosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: Are counsell 3 paye thes the wy at the wynde of the LORDE. And the kyng of Israel gathered the pryphets together, euen foure hundredth men, 7 sayde vnto thes: Shal we go to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead, or shal 3 let it alone: They sayde: Go up, God shal deliuer it into the kyngs hãde. W Iosaphat sayde: In cheen next one pryphet of the LORDE here, 3 we maye aye at him: The kyng of Israel sayde vnto Iosaphat: There is yet one man, at whome we maye aye of 3 LORDE: Ebar 3 heere is, for he propheteieth me no good, but alwaye euill, namely Mithaas the sonne of Iuda. Iosaphat sayde: Let not the kyng synch. And the kyng of Israel callede one of his chamberlaynes, 7 sayde: W ynge hurte me Mithaas the sonne of Iuda.

And the kyng of Israel, and Iosaphat the kyng of Iuda, sat either of them vpon his seate, arrayed in their garmentes. And in the place at the doore of the porte of Sennabab sat they, and all 3 pryphets propheteid before them. And Sedecias the sonne of Cnana had made him house of 3 and sayde: Thus saýeth the LORDE: With this spak thou posshest the Syrians, tyl thou bringe them to nangebe. And all the prophetes prophecied likewise, & sayde: Go up vnto Ramoth in Gilead, and thou shalt prosper, and ¶ LORDE shal deliuer it in to the kynge banbe.

And the messenger that wente to call Michas, spake vnto him, and sayde: Beholde, ¶ wordes of the prophetes are with one accord good be fore the kynge: let thy worde ¶ praye the be as one of theirs, and speake thou good alse. But Michas sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyeth, I loke what my God sayth vnto me, ¶ wyl I speake. And when he came to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: Michas, shoulde we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to the batcayll, or shoulde we let it alone? he saide: Go vp, and ye shal prosper. It shal be gent you in yore handes. But ¶ kynge sayde vnto him: I charge ¶ yet agayne, that thou tell me nothinge but ¶ traueth in the name of the LORDE.

Then saide he: I sawe all Israel scattered abode vps the mountaynes, as the shepe ¶ has no shepheard. And the LORDE sayde: Some this no louder: Let every one turne home agayne in peace. The kynge the kynge of Israel vnto Josaphat: Wyd noe I tell the, ¶ he wolde prophecie me no good, but euill.

And he sayde: The four heare ye the worde of the LORDE: ¶ I sawe the LORDE sýe vpon his seate, and all the host of heauen standinge at his right hande & at his left. And the LORDE sayde: Wo wyl disceane And the kynge of Israel, that he maye go vnto Ramoth in Gilead: And when en: sayde thus, another so, there came forth a spize, and Iode before ¶ LORDE, and sayde: I wyl disceane him. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Wherewith? he sayde: I wyl go forth, and be a false spize in the mouth of all his prophetes. And he sayde: Thou shalt disceane him, and shalt be able: go thy waye, and do so. Beholde now, the LORDE hath given a false spize in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and the LORDE hath spokt euill agaynst the.

Then steepe forth Sebedias the sonne of Cnaens, and smote Michas vpon the cheete, and sayde: Which waye is the spize of ¶ LORDE departed fro me, to speake thoum the? Michas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt see it, when thou comest in to ¶ ynnest chancere to byde the. But the kynge of Israel sayde: Take Michas, and let him remayne wth me on the ruler of the cite, and with Iona the sonne of Melech, and saye: Thus saýeth the kynge: Put this man in prison, and fede him wth bread and water of trouble, tyl I come agayne in peace. Michas saide: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath noe the LORDE spoken thou to me. And he sayde: Herten to all ye people.

So the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat ¶ kynge of Iuda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And ¶ kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: Change thy clothes, and come to the batcayll in thine aray. And ¶ kynge of Israel chaunged his rayment, & came in to the batcayll. But the kynge of Syria had commaunded the rulers of his charrettes: Ye shal fighte neether agaynst small nor greace, but onely agaynst the kynge of Israel.

Now when the rulers of the charrettes sawe Josaphat, they thoughte: It is ¶ kynge of Israel, and they were aboue to fighte agaynst him. But Josaphat cryed, and the LORDE helped him. And God turned them from him: for when the rulers of the charrettes sawe that it was noe ¶ kynge of Israel, they turned backe from him. But a certayne man benched his bowe harbe, & shot the kynge of Israel betwene the mawe and the lon ge. The kynge he vnto his charret man: Turne thine háde, and cary me out of the booff, for I am woundid. And the batcayll was fore the same daye. And the kynge of Israel stode vpon his charret agaynst the Syrians untyll the eveninge, and dyed wha the Sonne wente downe.

The XIX. Chapter.

¶ Of Josaphat the kynge of Iuda came home agayne in peace vnto Jerusalem. And Jehu ¶ some of Baanias the Steer wete forth to meete him, & sayde vnto kynge Josaphat: Shaldest thou so helpe the ungodly, and loue them that hate the LORDE? And for this cause is ¶ wraith vps the from the LORDE: neuertheles there is some good founde in the, that thou hast put the grones out of the lonbe, and hast prepared thine here to see ¶ God. So Josaphat abode at Jerusalem.

And he wente agayne amonge the people, from Bersaba vnto moite Ephraim, and broughe them agayne to the LORDE God of their fathers. And he set Iudges throu out the lonbe in all the stronge cities of Iuda, and a certayne in every cite. And sayde vnto the Iudges: Take hebe what ye do for ye execute noe the iudgment of man, but of the LORDE, and he is with you in iudgment: therefore let the state of the LORDE be with you, and bewarre, and do it: for with the LORD our God there is no unrighteousnes, ner respect of personnes, ner acceptinge of bribes.

C And at Jerusalem dyd Josaphat ordeyne certayne of the Levites and prestes, and of the amonicite fathers of Israel for iudgment of the LORD, and over the matter of the lawe, and caused them to dwell at Jerusalem, and commaunded them, and sayde: Se that ye do thus in the feare of the LORD, in faithfulness and in a perfect heart. In all causes that come vnto you from youre bretheren (which dwell in their cities) betwene bloude and bloude, betwene lawe and commaundement, betwene statutes and ordinaunces ye shal enforce them, & they synne not againste the LORD, and so the wrath to come vpon you and youre bretheren. Do thus, and ye shal not offende.

Beholde, Amaria the prest is chiefe over you in all causes of the LORD: so is Zababias the sonne of Jimael prync in the house of Juda in all the bygges matters: he haue efficacy likewise the Levites before you. Take a good courage vnto you, and be doynge, and the LORD our God shal be with the good.

The XX. Chapter.

After this came the child of Moab, the children of Ammon, and certayne of Amanini w them, to fighte againste Josaphat. And they came and tolde Josaphat, and sayde: There cometh a greate multitude agaynst the from beyonde the See of Syria, & beholde, they are at Hazizon Thamar, that is Engabbi.

And Josaphat was afrayed, & set his face to seeke the LORD, & caused a fast to be proclaimed in all Juda. And Juda came together to seeke the LORD. And one of all the cities of Juda came they to seeke the LORD. And Josaphat stode amonge the congregacion of Juda & Jerusalem in the house of the LORD before the new court, and sayde:

O LORD our God of oure fathers, are not thou God in heauen, and hast domynion in all the kyngdomes of the heuhen? And in thy hande is strenght and power, and there is no man that can withsteede thee. Hast not thou O God expelled the inhabitants of this londe before thy people of Israel? and hast sent it vnto the side of Abraham thy loner for euery thing that they haue dwelt in it, & haue buried the a Sanctuary vnto thy name there is, and in ydc: If there come any plage, sword, indignite, pestilence, or verbe vpon vs, we will stonde before this house euen before the

(for thy name is in this house) and wilt thou vnto the in oure trouble, and thou shalt beare, and shalt saue vs. Beholde now, the children of Ammon, of Moab, & they of mount Seir, vpon whom thou woldest not suffer the children of Israel to go, when they wente out of the londe of Egypte, but they were fayne to departe from the, and not to destroye them: and beholde, they deale contraryly with vs, and come to chynst vs out of the inheritance, that thou hast given vs in possession. O our God, wyle thou not forsake this greate multitude that cometh agaynst vs. We knowe not what we shal do, but oure eyes seke vnto thee. And all Juda stode before the LORD, with their children, wyues and sonnes.

But vpon Jehasiel the sonne of Zacharias, the sonne of Benaias, the sonne of Jehoiada, the sonne of Machabias the Levite of the children of Issachar, came the spere of the LORD in the myddes of the congregacion, and sayde: Geue heede all thou Juda, and ye he bicars of Jerusalem, and thou kynge Josaphat: Thus sayeth the LORD vnto you. Be not ye afrayed, neither feare ye this greate multitude: for it is not ye that fighte, but God. Tomorrow shal ye go downe vnto the. And beholde, they go vp by Sis, and ye shal fynde them at the reed see by the brooke beside the wyldernes of Jeruel: for ye shal fighte in this cause. Do ye not sleepe slepe, and stonde, and se the health of the LORD, that is with you. Feare not O Juda and Jerusalem, and be not afrayed, tomorrow ye south agaynst them, and the LORD shal be with you.

The Josaphat beweb him selfe w hissece to the earth, & all Juda, & the inhabitants of Jerusalem fill before the LORD, & worshipped the LORD. And the Levites of the children of the Cohathites arose to praise the LORD our God of Israel w leude voyce on byre. And they gart hem vp early in the mornynge, and wete forth by the wyldernes of the Tekoa.

And when they were goinge out, Josaphat stode, & sayde: Herte me me O Juda, & ye inhabitants of Jerusalem: put youre trust in the LORD our God, & ye shal be safe and prosper. And he gaue counsell vnto the people, and appointed the syngers vnto the LORD, and them that gaue playe in the harpe of holynes, so go before the hornes, and to saye: O geue thanke vnto the LORD

fu his mercy and mercie for ever. And when they beganne to geue thanks and praife, the LORDE caused the hynder watch that was come agaynst Juda, to come upon the ciuities of Ammon, Moab z them of mount Seir, and they smote them. Then stode the children of Ammon z Moab agaynst them of mount Seir, to damme them, and to destroye them. And when they had destroyed them of mount Seir, one helped another to destroye them silues also. And when Juda came to Mispa vnto the wyldernes, they came thither towarde the multitude, and beholde, the deeb bodies laye vpon the earth, so that none was escape.

¶ And Josaphat came with his people to deuote the spoyle of them. And they founde amonge them so much goodes and raryent and precious Jewels (which they roke from them) that they coude not beare them. And the deuyes were they deuydinge the spoyle, for it was so much. On the fourth daye came they together into the valley of blessinge: for there blessed they the LORDE. Therefore is the place called the valley of blessinge vnto this daye.

So eueri man of Juda z Jerusalem turned backe agayne, z Josaphat before them, to go to Jerusalem with ioye: for the LORDE had gaue them gladnesse on their enemies. And they entred into Jerusalem with psalteries, harpes z trumpettes vnto the house of the LORDE. And there came a feare of God ouer all the kyngdomes in the londes, when they heard that the LORDE had foughte agaynst the enemies of Israel. Thus was the kyngdome of Josaphat in quietnes, z God gaue him rest on eueri syde.

¶ And Josaphat reigned ouer Juda, z was foure thirtie yeare olde when he was made kynge, z reigned thye z twentieth yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Absa the daughter of Sulbi. And he walked in the waye of his father Asa, z departed not asyde from doynge the which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE: sayynge that the hie places were not put downe, for the people had not yet prepared their hart to the God of their fathers. What more there is to saye of Josaphat, beeb the first z the last, beholde, it is written in the actes of Iehu the sonne of Chanani, which be noed up in the booke of the kynges of Israel.

¶ Afterwarde byd Josaphat the kynge of Juda agree w Absa the kynge of Israel, which was w goodly in his doynge. And he agreed with him to make shippes, for to go upon the sea. And they made the shippes at Ezion Gaber. But it lieth the some of Dodana of Marsea prophete ad agaynst Josaphat, and sayde: Because then hast agreed with Absa, the foue hath the LORDE beenthy woltes. And so the shippes were broken, z mighte not go vpon the see.

The XXI. Chapter.

¶ And Josaphat fell on slepe & his fathers, z was buried w his fathers in the cite of Dauid, z Joram his sonne was kynge in his steade. And he had beeb the some of Josaphat: Azaria, Jehiel, Zacharias, Azaria, Michael z Sephania. All these were the children of Josaphat kynge of Juda. And their father gaue them many giftes of syluer, golde z Jewels, w stronge cities in Juda. But the kyngdome gaue he vnto Joram: for he was the first borne.

But when Joram came vp ouer his fathers kyngdome, z had gotten the power of it, he sleme all his beebth with the sword, z certayne rulers also in Israel. Two z thirtie yeare olde was Joram when he was made kynge, z reigned eight yeare at Jerusalem, z walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, euen as the house of Achab byd: for Achabs daughter was his wyfe: he byd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE.

¶ Twentye yeres the LORDE wolde not destroe the house of Dauid, for the conuenaunce sake, which he made w Dauid, and a condynge as he had sayde, the wolde graue him and his children a lanterne for euermore.

¶ At the same tyme fell the Edomites awaye from Juda, and stode a kynge ouer them selue: for Joram had gone ouer with his captaynes and all the charrettes with him, z had gotten him up in the night season, and slayne the Edomites on eueri syde, and the rulers of the charrettes: thei sel fell the Edomites awaye from Juda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell Lyons awaye from him also: because he soughte the LORDE God of his fathers. He made hie places also on the mountaynes in Juda, z caught them of Jerusalem to go ambourynge, and disceined Juda.

But there came a wytyng vnto him fro the prophet Elias, sayynge: Thus saith the LORDE God of thy father Dauid: Because thou hast not walked in the waye of thy father Josaphat, neher in the waye of Asa the kynge of Juda, but walkest in the waye of the kynges of Israel, and makest Juda and them of Jerusalem to go ambourynge after the wyrdome of the house of Achab, and hast I saye thy beebth all of thy fe, thers house, which were better the than. Be hold, the LORD shall smyte the w a great plague on thy people, on thy children 7 thy royne, and on all thy substance. But thou thy selfe shalt haue much sickness in thy bowels, eyll thy bowels go forth from daye to daye for very distaste.

D So the LORD raised up agaynst Joiam, the spruce of the Philistynes, 7 Arabians, which lye besyde the Morians, and they wente up in to Iuda, and waysted it, and caried awaye all the substance that was founde in the Pynges house, 7 his sonnes, and his wyua, so that there was not one sonne left him, save Iobaas his yongest sonne. And a fere all this dyd the LORD smyte him in his bowels, with such a sickness as coulde not be healed. And wayle that endured from daye to daye, when the tyme of two yeares was expyred, his bowels wente from him w his sickness, and he dyed in euill distaste.

And they made not a burninge ouer him, as they dyd vnto his fathere. Two and threie yeare olde was he when he was made kynge, and reigned eight yeare at Ierusalem, and walked not well. And they buried him in the cite of Dauid, but not amonge the sepulchres of the kynge.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

AND the of Ierusalem made Ochosias his yongest sonne kynge in his steade: for the men of warre that came w the hoste of the Arabians, had slayne all that first, therfore reigned Ochosias the sonne of Joiam kynge of Iuda. Two and forty yeare olde was Ochosias when he was made kynge, and reigned one yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Athalia the daughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Achab: for his mother enuysed him so that he was vngodly. Therfore dyd he euill in the sighte of the LORD, euen as the house of Achab: for they were his counsell geuere after his fathere deathe, to destroye him, and he walked a fere their counsell.

B And he wente with Joiam the sonne of Achab kynge of Israel, to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead, agaynst the kynge of Syria. But the Syrians smote Joiam, so that he returned backe to be healed at Ierusalem: for he had wounded that were geuen him at Ramas, when he foughte with the kynge of Syria. And Athalia the sonne of Joiam kynge of Iuda wote downe to wyte Joiam the sonne of Achab at Ierusalem, which laye sicke: for it was ordeyned of God vnto Ochosias, that he shoulde come to Joiam, 7 so to go forth with Joiam agaynst Iehu the sonne of Timis, whom the LORD had ordeyned to receiue the house of Achab.

Now when Iehu wolde be anoynted of the house of Achab, he founde certaine men of Iuda, and the children of Ochosias which schraue Ochosias, and he slawe them. And he soughte Ochosias, and they onedde him, when he had byd him at Samaria: 7 he was broughte vnto Ieru, which slawe him, and they buried him, for they sayde for his the sonne of Josaphat, which soughte the LORD with all his heart. And there was no man more of the house of Ochosias that mighte be kynge.

When Athalia the mother of Ochosias sawe that her sonne was dead, she gat hir up, 7 destroyed all the kynge's side in the house of Iuda. But Josabab the kynge's sister caried Ioaas the sonne of Ochosias, and staid him awaye hid amonge the kynge's childen: 7 wote slayne, 7 put him with his nose in a chamber. Thus Josabab the kynge's daughter, the wyfe of Joiaas the prest, byd him from Athalia, so that he was not slayne: for she was Ochosias's sister. And he was byd with them in the house of God fixe yeares, such much as Athalia was quene in the reioe.

The xxv. Chapter.

IN the seventh yeare was Joiaas bold, and colde the rulers our handes: namely Athalia the daughter of Ioram, Jisrael the sonne of Ioram, Athalia the daughter of Ioram, and Elisaphat the sonne of Sicha with him, in to the covenant: and they wente about in Iuda, and broughte the lawes together out of all the cities of Iuda, and the chiefe fathers of Israel, to come vnto Ierusalem. And all the congregation made a covenant with the kynge in the house of God, and he sayde vnto them: Beholde, the kynge's sonne shall be kynge, euen as the LORD hath ordeyned the children of Dauid.

This is it the threie that ye shal do: The threie parte of you that entre on the Sabbath shalbe amonge the prestes 7 Levites, which are doctores at the churchholles: 7 one threie parte in the kynge's house, and one threie parte at the grounde porte. But all the people shalbe in the court of the house of the LORD, and there no man go in to the house of the LORD, excepte the prestes and Levites that minister there, they shal go in: for they are halowed. And let all the people wote vpon the LORD. And the Levites shal geue them counseils aboute the kynge, every with his weapen in his hande. And who so is geath in to y house, let him dye. And they shall be w the kynge wha he geath out r m.

And the Levites r all Juda byd as Joia ba y prest had commaunded, and ever y one of the men that entred on the Sabbath, w thofe y wente of on the Sabbath: for Joia ba y prest suffred not thofe two companies to parte asunder. And Joia ba y prest gaue the captaynes over hundredes speares r syl des, and kynge Daudis weapens, which we re in the house of God, and se all the peple every one w his weapen in his hande, from the ryghte corner of the house, unto the lense counte of the altare, and to the house warde aboute the kynge. And they broughte forth the kynge sonne, r set the crowne upon his hede, and gaue them the wynter, r ma ke him kynge. And Joia ba w his sonnes amyned him, r sayde: God save the kynge.

¶ And whan Athalia herde the noyse of y peple y came together and played y kyn ge, she wntre forth to the peple in to y hou se of the LORDE, and let v: and beholde, y kynge stode in his place at y intrauance, and the rulers and trompettes aboute y kynge; and all the peple of the londe were glad, r knewe the trompe, and there were synners y coude playe w all maner of musicall in strumentes. But she rote hir clothes, r sayde: Gedion, gedion. Neuertheles Joia ba y prest gaue him forth with the captaynes over hundredes and rulers of the hoose, and sayde unto them: Whynge her soth betwene y wal le, r who so ever foloweth her, shall be slay ned with y swerde: for the prest had comma nded, that she shulde not be slayned in y hoose of the LORDE. And they layed handes on her. And whan she came at the intrauance of the hoosegate of the kynge house, they put her to death there.

¶ And Joia ba made a covenent betwene him and all the peple, and the kynge, y they shulde be the peple of the LORDE. The w re all the peple in to the hoose of Baal and distored it, r brake doune his altares r yma ges, r sente Machan the prest of Baal be fo re the altare. And Joia ba appoynted y of fers in the hoose of the LORDE amog the priests r Levites, whom Daud had orde ned for y hoose of the LORDE, to offre burnt offringes unto y LORDE, as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses: w ioye r songes made by Daud. And y porters sit he at y gates of y hoose of y LORDE, y none shulde entre, whiche were desired w eay maner of thinge.
And he orde the captaynes over hundredes and the mightie men and lordes of y peple, and all the peple of the londe, and broughte the kynge doune from the hoose of the LOR DE, and broughte him thowen the byr poyes of the kynge hoose, and caused the kynge sit upon the seate roiall. And all the peple of the lde were glad, and the cite was at rest.

But Athalia was slayned with the swerde.

The XXXIIL Chapter.

¶ This was seuen years elde whan he was made kynge, and reigned fortie years at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zibea of Beuseba. And Joas byd that which was ryghte in the sighte of the LORDE, as long as Joia ba the prest lyved. And Jo ia ba gaue him two wyues, r he begat sonnes r daughteres. Afterwarde deuyed Joas to reue the hoose of the LORDE, r gathered to gether the prestes and Levites, r sayde unto the: Go forth vnto all the cities of Juda, r gather the money of all ysrail, to repaie y hoose of God yearly, and do it ryghte soones but the Levites made no haist.

¶ Then the kynge called Joia ba the princ pall, and sayde vnto him: Why lokest thou not vnto the Levites, y they bing in from Juda and Jerusalem, the collection whiche Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE appoy nted to be gathered amog ysrail for the Ta bernacle of witness: for y vngodly Athalia r hir sonnes haue wasted the hoose of God, and all that was halowed for the hoose of the LORDE, haue they bestowed on Baalim.

¶ Then commaunded the kynge to make a chest, and to set it without at the intrauan ce of the hoose of the LORDE: r trausd it to be proclaimed in Juda and Jerusalem, that they shulde bing in to the LORDE the collecti on, whiche Moses the seruaunt of God appoynted vnto ysrail in y wilderness. The were all y rulers glad, r so were all y peple, r broughte it, and cast it into the chest, tyll it was full.

¶ And whan the tyme was y the Levites shulde bringe the Arke at y kynges comma ndement (whan they sawe y there was moch money therein) then came the kynges kryge, r he y was appoynted of the chest prest, and empryed the chest, and caried it againe in to his place. Thus byd they every day, so than they gathered moch money together. And y kyng r Joia ba gaue it vnto y workmaisters of y hoose of the LORDE, and they hired ma sones r carpenters to repaie the hoose of y LORDE, and men that coude worke in yron and bussie, to repaie the hoose of y LORDE.

¶ And the labouers wroughte, so that y re pairinge in y wynter was forwarde thowen

¶ And he orde the captaynes over hundredes

And the childre of Juda toke ten thousande of the ayre, whom they brougher vp to the coppe of a mountayn, and cast the downe headinges from the coppe of the mount, so that they all to burst in sunder. But þe childre of themen of warre whom Amasias had sent away agayne (that they shulde not go to the battayll with his people) fell in to the cite of Juda, from Samaria vnto Bethoron, and smore the thousande of me, and toke much spoyle.

And whan Amasias came agayne from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brougher the goddesses of the children of Seir, and made them his goddesses, and worshipped before them, and burnt incense vnto them. Then was the LORDE very wroth at Amasias, & sent vnto him a prophet, which sayde vnto him: Why stilst thou the goddesses of the people, which coulde not deliuer their folke from þe hande? And whan he talked with him, the prophet sayde vnto him: Hane they made þe of the kynge's counsell: Ceasse, why wilt thou be smyren? Then the prophet ceased, & sayde: I perceaue, that the LORDE is mynded to deliuer þe, because thou hast done this, and betterest not vnto my counsell.

And Amasias þe kynge of Juda toke costell, & sent vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas þe sonne of Jehu, kynge of Israel, sayyng: Come, let vs be one another. But Joas the kynge of Israel sent vnto Amasias þe kynge of Juda, sayyng: The hantwoine in Libanus sit vnto þe Edomites in Libanus, sayyng: Ge withy bougher vnto my sonne to wife. But a wyde beest in Libanus ranne ouer þe hantwoine, & rode it downe. Thou thinkest: De helte, I hane smyren the Edomites, therfore is thine hert proud to boaste. Now byd at home: why stryest thou after myffortune, that thou mayest fall to Juda's dete?

Further thes Amasias consented not: for so was it brougher to passe of God, þe they might be ginen in to the handes of the enemies, because they soughte the goddesses of þe Edomites. Then wente Joas the kynge of Israel vp, & they fere one another, he and Amasias the kynge of Juda, at Beth Seemes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smyred before Israel, and they fled every one vnto his dete.

And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amasias þe kynge of Juda, the sonne of Joas þe sonne of Joahas, at Beth Seemes, & brougher him to Jerusalem, & brake downe the wall of Ierusalem, from yf pence of Ephraim vnto the water pence, and foure hundredeth cubites longe: and toke with him all the golde, and silver, and all the ornaments that were founde in y house of God with Obadom, and in the treasures in the kynge's hous, and the childre to pledge vnto Samaria. And Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, liued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge of Israel fiftene years.

What more there is to saye of Amasias (both the first and last) beholde, it is written in þe booke of the kynge of Juda & Israel. And fro the tyme forth that Amasias departed from the LORDE, they conspyred agaynst him at Jerusalem. But he fled vnto Lachio. The first they after him vnto Lachio, & lewe him there. And they brougher him vps horses & buried him beside his fathers in the cite of Juda. The xxvi. Chapter.

Then all the people of Juda toke Othasias, which was fiftene years olde, and made him kynge in steade of his father Amasias. He builded cloth, & brougher it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kynge was fallen on slepe with his fathers. His tene years olde was Othasias whan he was made kynge, and reigned two and fiftene years at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jedahia of Jerusalem. And he did right in the synge of the LORDE, as his father Amasias had done, and soughte God as long as Zacharias lyued, which taughte in the visions of Gods: and as long as he soughte the LORDE, God made him to prosper.

For he wente forth, and soughte agaynst the Philistynes, and brake downe þe walles of Gath, and the walles of Jabne, and the walles of Ashdod, and builded cities aboue Ashdod, & amonge the Philistynes. For God helped him agayne the Philistines, agaynst the Arabians, agaynst them of Sur Baal, & agaynst the Menutes. And þe Ammonites gaue Othasias presentes, & his name came in to the gyfte: for he was of ceadinge stronge. And Othasias buylde dwetes at Jerusalem vpon the cornerpoynt, and on the valley gate, and on other corners, and made them stronge. He buylde castles also in the wyldernesse, and bygged many welles: for he had many cattell, both in the medowes and in the playnes, husbandmen also and wyne gardeners on the mountaynes and on Carmel: for he layd in husbandrye.

And Othasias had an hoost of men of warre goyng forth to the battayll, which were not bad vnder the bande of Ieriel the scyrie & of Maseas the offycer, vnder the hade of Chanania of the kynge's culere. And the nombre of the chiefe fathers amonge the stronge me of warre, was two thousande and fyve hundred. And vnder the hande of the hooffe thie hundred thousande, and seven thousande and fyve hundred more for the battayll, in the strength of an armye to helpe the Kinge agaynst the enemies. And Osias prepared for all the hooffe, shyltes, speares, helmettes, best places, bowes and syngstones. And at Jerusalem he made ordinaunce continually, to be vpon the towers and in the pynacles, to shate arrowes and greace stones. And the same of him came farre abode, because he was specially helped, tyll he became mightie.

And when his power was greate, his herte arose to his awne destruction: for he respected agaynst the LORD his God, and wente in to the temple of the LORD, to burne incense vpon the altare of incense. But Asarias the prest wente after him, and foure score prestes with him, valeant men, and withstode kynge Osias, and saide vnto him: "It belongeth not vnto thy office (Osias) to burne incense vnto the LORD, but vnto the prestes belongeth it, euen vnto the children of Aaron, which are halowed to burne incense. Go forth out of the Sanctuary: for thou offendest, and it shall be no worshippe vnto the before God the LORD.

And Osias was wrooth, and had a censore in his hande. And whyle he murmured with the prestes, the leprosie sprong out of his foreheade in the presence of the prestes in the house of the LORD before the altare of incense. And Asarias the chiefe prest turned his heade towards him, and so dyd all the prestes, and behelde, he was leper in his foreheade. And they put him out from thence. And he made haist himselfe to go south, for his plague came of the LORD. Thus became Osias a leper vnto his deathe, and dwelt full of leprosie in a sic house: for he was pur out of the house of the LORD. But Joziam his sonne had the oversight of the kynges house, and iudged the people in the lord.

What more there is to saie of Osias (both first and last) I say the sonne of Amos hath wrytten it. And Osias fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the peece of grounde beside the kynges sepulchre: for they saye he is leporeus. And Joziam his sonne was kynge in his steade.

162-11
Joziam was fyve and twentye years olde when he was made kynge, and reigned sixtene years at Jerusalem, his motheres name was Ierusa the daughter of Saboc: he dyd righte in the sighte of the LORD, as did Osias his father. And when he wente not in to the temple of the LORD, and the people yet marred the same. He buried the hye poire of the house of the LORD, and on the wall of Oppel by the he moche, and buried the cities vpon the mountaynes of Juda, and in the wodes by godes castles and towers.

And he fought with the kynge of the children of Ammon, and ouer came them, so that the children of Ammon gaue him 3 sime yere an hundredth calices of silver, ten thousande quarters of wheate, and ten thousande of barley. So much dyd the children of Ammon geue him also in 3 scondre & thirde yere. Thus became Joziam mightie, for he dyd his waye before the LORD his God.

What more there is to saie of Joziam, all his warres, vnto his wifes, behelde, is wrytten in 3 booke of the kynges of Iuda. Fyve and twentye yeres olde was he when he was made kynge, & reigned sixte yere at Jerusalem. And Jozias fell on slepe with his fathers, & they buried him in the care of Dauid, and Achas his sonne was kynge in his steade. The XXVIII. Chapter.

Achas was twentye yeres olde when he was made kynge, and reigned sixte yere at Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD, as did Dauid his father, but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Iuda, and made molten ymagines vnto Baalim, and burnt incense in the valley of the children of honon, and did his awne sonnes in 3 fire, after the abominacions of the fathers, vnto the LORD expelled before the child of Iuda. And he dyd sacrifice and burnt incense vpon the hye places and vpon the hilles, and amonge all grene trees.

Therefore dyd the LORD his God hurt him in to the hande of the kynge of Syria, so that they smote him, and carryed awaye a greates multitude of his men prisoners, and broughte them to Damascus. He was taken also vnder the hande of the kynge of Iuda, so 3 he dyd a greates slaughter vpon him. For Decah the sonne of Romias smote in Juda an hundredth & twentye thousande in one daye (which all were valiant men) because they had forsaken 3 LORD God of their fathers. And Sichai a mighty man of Ephraim smote Mafseia 3 kinges sonne, & Afsarim the prynce of the house, & Abiana the nexte vnto the kynge. And the ch men of Israel caried of their brethren presons two hundred thousande, women, sonnes and daughters, and rooke a greatespoyle from them, and broughte the spoyle vnto Samaria.

But after there was there a prophete of J LORDE, whose name was Obed, which w t he our to meete J hoost that came to Samaria, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, because the LORDE God of youre fathers is worshipp at Iuda, therefore hath he geuen them ouer in to youre handes: but ye haue slayne them substantially, that it is come vnto heaut. Now thinke ye to subdue the children of Iuda and Jerusalem, to debandmen and bond maydens vnto you. In noe this a trespass that ye vs agaynst the LORDE yo r God: hearken now vnto me, and sende J prisoners hence agayne, whom ye haue caried awaye from youre brethren: for the wrath of J LORDE is seare ouer you.

Then gat vnto certayn of the chiefe of the aduise of Ephraim, Alaias the sonne of Jehonan, Barachias the sonne of Mesilliech, Ezechias the sonne of Salum: and Amas is J sonne of Gablai, agaynst them J came from J Bethsill, and sayde vnto them: Beholde bringe the presoners in thither, for youre mynde is bute to make vs therspace before the LORDE, to make oure synnes and offence the greater: for the trespass is to much allready, the wrath is seare ouer Israel. So the hoost lefte the prisoners and the spoyle before J raiers and before the whole congregacion.

C Then shodp the men (which now were theared by name) and robe the presoners, and as many as were naked amonge them, dathed they with J spoyles, and decked them, and put shooes upon their fete, and gauced them to eat and drynte, and anoynted them, and caried them vpon asses, as many as were feble, and broughte them to Iericho to J Palmes vnto their brethren, and came agayne to Samaria. At the same tyme sent J yn J Ahas vnto the kynge of Assur, J they shoulde helpe him. And the Edomites came agayne, and smocke Iuda, and caried some awaye captiue. The Philistynes also fell in to the cities in the playne, and cowarde J south parte of Iuda, and wanne Beth Semea, Aialin, Gethroth, and Socho with the villages therof, Timna with the villages therof, and Duedith therin, for J LORDE subdued Iuda for Ahas sith J kynge of Iuda, because he made Iuda to rebel, and rebelled agaynst the LORDE. And Esarhaddon the kynge of Assur came agaynst him, and besiged him, and he was not mightie ynough for him.

For Ahas spoked the hoost of the LORDE , and the kynge house, and of the rulers, to geue vnto J kynge of Assur, but it helped him not. Now our Kinge Ahas trespassed yet more agaynst the LORDE, when he was trouble, and byd sacrafyce into the goddes of them of Damascus, which had synnen him, and sayde: The goddes of the kynge of Syria helpe them, therefore wil J offre vnto them, that they maye helpe me also, where as the same yet were a fall vnto him and to all Israel.

And Ahas gathered the vesselle of J house of God together, and brake the vesselle in J house of God, and shute the doores of the house of J LORDE, and made him altars in all corners at Jerusalem, and eury where in the cities of Iuda made he hye places to burne incense vnto other goddes, and pronounced J LORDE God of his fathers vnto wrath.

What more there is to saye of him and of all his wayes (both first and last) beholde, it is wyreten in the booke of the kynge of Iuda and Israel. And Ahas fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of Jerusalem: so they broughte him not amonge the sepulchres of the kynge of Israel. And Ezechias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXX. Chapter.

Ezechias was kynge twentye yeare of J de when he was made kynge, and reigned thye J twentye yeares at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abia J boughter of Zachary. And he byd that which was right in the sighte of the LORDE, as did his father Dauid. He opened the doores of J house of the LORDE in the first moneth of J first yeare of his raigne, and made them stronge, and broughte in the prestes and Leuites, and gathered them together vnto the East streete and sayde vnto them: Harken vnto me ye Leuites, sith sith ye youre selles now, J ye maye halowe the house of the LORDE God of yo r fathers, and put sutchyngs one of the Sanctuary: for our fathers house trespassed, and done J which was well in the sighte of the LORDE our God, and haue forsaken him. For they turned their faces from the habitacons of J LORDE our God, and turned their backes on ic, and shute the doores of the Portes, and put out the lampes, and burnt no incense, and offered no burnesacrifices in the Sanctuary vnto the God of Israel.

Therefore is the wrath of the LORDE come ouer Iuda and Jerusalem, and he had gathered them ouer to be scattered abrode, befolde and to be hyll'd at, as ye se with ydria: for beholde, euen for the same cause fell ouer sithers thoro the swerde, cure sonnes daughters and wyues were carryd awaye captiue. Now am I mynded to make a cōtēnāme with the LORDE God of Israel, & he maye turne awaie from vs his wrath & indignation. Now my sonnes, he not ye negligent: for the LORDE hath chosen ye to stōde before him, and to be his ministers and to barme incensē vnto him.

Then rose the Leuites: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Joel the sonne of Asaria the child of the Bazarhico: Of the children of Merari: Cis the sonne of Abbi, & Asaria the sonne of Jehaleiel. Of the children of the Seridonia: Joab the sonne of Simnia, and Edm the sonne of Joab. And of the child of Eliazaphan: Simi & Jeiel. And of the child of Assaph: Zachary and Nathania. And of the child of Geman: Jehiel and Simei. And of the children of Jedihuan: Semai and Uziel.

C And they gathered their brethren together, and were sanctified, and came in according to the Kynges commaundment at the worde of the LORDE, to cleane the house of the LORDE. And the prestes entred within in the house of the LORDE to purifie, and put out all the uncleines that was founde in the temple of the LORDE, in the course of the LORDES house: and the prestes toke it up, and a ydria it out in the broke Cedon. The first daye of the first moneth begaune they to sanctifie them selues, and on the eighte daye of the moneth wente they in to the poche of the LORDE, and hallow'd the house of the LORDE eighte dayes, and finished it on the sixteenth daye of the first moneth.

And they were in to the kyng Ezechias, and sayde: We have cleansed all the house of the LORDE, the altare of burnt offeringes, and all his vessels, the table of the shewbread and all the apparell thereof: and all the ornaments: that kyng Achas cast awaye whē he was kyng, what tyme as he cranstrefsed, those haue we prepared and hallow'd. Beholde, they are before the altare of the LORDE.

D The kyng Ezechias gaue him vp early, and gathered together the elders of the cite, and wente vp vnto the house of the LORDE, and they broughte seven bullockes, seven rammes, seven lambes, and seven he goates to be the synofferinge, for the Sanctuary, & for Juda. And he spake vnto the prestes the children of Aaron, that they shoulde offer vpon the altare of the LORDE.

So they slew the bullockes, and the prestes toke the bloude, and sprentled it vpon the altare: and slew the rammes, and sprentled the bloude vpon the altare: and slew the lams, and sprentled the bloude vpon the altare. And of goates to synofferinge brought they before the kyng and the congregation, and layd their handes vpon them: and the prestes slew them, and sprentled that they were vpon the altare to make attonement for all Israel: for the kyng commaunded to offer burnt sacrifices and synofferinges for all Israel.

And he set the Leuites in the house of the LORDE with Cymbales, psalteries and harpes, as David had commaunded, and Ga the kynges Secer, and the prophet Nathan: for it was the commaundment of the LORDE by his prophetes. And the Leuites stode with the muscicall instrumentes of David, the prestes with the trompettes. And Ezchias commaunded them to offer burnt offerings vpon the altare. And aboute the tyme that the burnt sacrifice begane to be offerd the synge of the LORDE begane alle, and of trompettes, and of other instrumentes of David the kyng of Israel and all the congregation gaue praise & thankes: and the synge of the Musicians, and of blowinges of the trompettes, endured all tyme the burnt offeringe was finished.

Now when the burnt offeringe was performed, the kyng and all they that were with him, bowed them selues, and gaue praise and thankes. And Ezchias the kyng & the rulers commaunded the Leuites to payse the LORDE with the songes of David and Assaph the Secer. And they gaue praise: they were ioysfull, and they bowed themselves, and worshipped.

And Ezchias answered and said: We haue yfild your habes vnto the LORDE: steppē forth, and bringe hither the burnt offerings and thankofferinges vnto the house of the LORDE. And the congregation brought burnt offerings and thankofferinges, and curial of a fre willinge here brought burnt offerings: and the number of the burnt offerings that the congregation brought, was the seuen bullockes and ten, an hundred lams, and two hundred lambes, and all of them for the burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE: and they sanctified six hundred bullockes, and the thousand shepe.

But the prestes were to fewe, and could the place of the stynnes of all the burnt offeringes, therfore take they their bucheyn the Levites, tyll the worke was synished, and tyll the prestes were halowed (for the Levites are toster to be halowed then the prestes) and many of the borne offerynges were with the fat of the than offerynges and burnt offerynges to the burnt sacrifices. Thus was the ministracion of the house of the LORDE prepared. And Eschias reioysed with all the people, that they were prepared with God: for it was done righte busidly.

The XXX. Chapter.

WHEN Eschias sent in to all Israel and Juda, and wrote letters unto Ephraim and Manasse, that they shulde come to the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem, to kepe easter unto the LORD God of Israel. And the kynge helde a counsell with his rulers, and all the cōgregacion at Jerusalem, to kepe Passover in the seconde month: for at that tyme they coulde not kepe it, because the prestes were not sanctified yough, and the people were not yet come togerher unto Jerusalem. And it pleased the kynge well and all the cōgregacion. And they appointed it to be proclaimed thurou out all Israel from Berseba unto Dan, that they shulde come to kepe Passover unto the LORDE God of Israel: for they were not many to kepe it as it is wycten.

And the postes wente with the letters from the bande of the kynge and of his rulers thurou out all Israel and Juda, at the kynges commandement, and sayde: The childen of Israel, turne you unto the LORDE God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and he shal turne you of escapad, which are lefte over amonge you from the bande of the kynge of Assir: and be not ye as youre fathers and brethren, which rebelled agaynst the LORDE God of their fathers, and he gaueth ouer into desolacion as ye se youre selves. Be not ye hardened now as were youre fathers, but offre youre hertes unto the LORDE, and come to his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ever, and serve the LORDE youre God: so shal the indignacion of his wrath turne awaye from you. For if ye turne unto the LORDE, then shal youre brethren and children have mercy in the sighte of them which holde them in captivite, that they maye come agayne in to this londe: for the LORDE youre God is gracious and merciful: and shal not turne awaye his face from you, if ye converte unto hym.

And the postes wente from one cite to another in the londe: of Ephraim and Manasse, and unto Zabulon. But they mocked them and laughed them to scorne. There were there some of Assir and Manasse, and of Zabulon, that submyred them selves, and came to Jerusalem. And the bande of God came in to Juda, so that he gaued the one here to do after the commandement of the kynge and the rulers at the worde of the LORDE. And there came togerher unto Jerusalem a greate people, to kepe the feast of unleavened bread in the seconde month, a very greate congregacion.

And they gat them up, and put downe of altars that were at Jerusalem, and all the incense put they awaye, and cast it in to the brack Cedron, and slewe the Passover on the fourteenth daie of the seconde month. And of prestes and Levites were a thame, and halowed them selves, and broughte the burnt offerynges to the house of the LORDE, and stode in their ordinance, as it was acordinge, after the lawe off Moses the man of God. And the prestes sprented the bloude from the bande of the Levites: for there were many in the cōgregacion which were not sanctified, therfore doo the Levites tyll Passover for them: which were not clenfed, that they mighte be sanctified unto the LORDE.

There were many people also of Ephraim, Manasse, Issacar and Zabulon, which were not cleane, but ate the Easter lambe not as it is wycten: for Eschias prayed for them, and sayde: The LORD which is gracious, shal be mercifull unto all them that prepare their hertes unto God, to seke the LORDE God of their fathers, though they be not clenfed after the holy purification. And the LORDE herbe Eschias, and healed the people. Thus the childen of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem, helde y feast of unleavened bread seven dayes with greace ioye. And the Levites and prestes offered the LORDE every daie with the loud instruments of the LORDE. And Eschias spake herely unto all y Levites, which had good understandinge in the LORDE, and they ate the feast seven dayes, and offered thur offerynges, and gaued thankes unto y LORDE God of their fathers.

And all the congregacion busied to kepe the feast yet ocher seue dayes, and so they helde it thur seven dayes also with ioye: for Eschias the kynge of Juda gaued an thur offeryng for the cōgregacion, even a thou-sanke bullockes, and seven thousande shepe. But the rulers gaue an heuerofferinge for y congregation, euen a thousande bullockes, and ten thousande shepe. And many of the prestes sanctified them likewise.

And the whole congregation of Iuda reioyde, the prestes and Leuites, and all the congregation that came out of Israel, and the straungers that were come out of the londe of Israel, and they that dwelt in Iuda, and greate ioye was there at Jerusalem: for sense the tyme of Salemon the sonne of Dauid the kynge of Israel, was there no such ioye at Jerusalem. And the prestes and Leuites stode vp and blessed the people, and their voyce was herbe, and their prayer came in to his holy habitation in heauen.

The XXXI. Chaprer.

AND when all this was synished, all the Israelites that were founde in y cities of Iuda, went out, and brake the pilers, and hewed downe the groves, and brake downe the hie places and altares out of all Iuda, Ben Iamin, Ephraim and Manasse, yll they had destroyed the. And all the children of Israel wente agayne euery one to his possession wth their cities.

But Ezechias se the prestes and Leuites in their ordinaunces, euery one after his office, both the prestes and Leuites, for the burnt sacrifices and thank offerings, to my nister, to geue thanks and praye in the gates of the house of the LORD. And the kynge gaue his portion of his substance for the burnt offerings in the morninge and euenyng, and for the burnt offerings of the Sabbath, and of the new mone and of the fastes, as it is written in the lawe of the LORD.

AND he spake vnto y people which dwelt at Jerusalem, that they shulde geue portions vnto the prestes and Leuites, y they mighte the more stedfastly endure in the lawe of the LORD. And wha y woode came forth, the childre of Israel gaue many first frutes of come, wyne, oyle, hony, and all maner increase of the filde, and broughte in much of all maner riches. And the children of Israel and Iuda which dwelt in the cities of Iuda, broughte the tithes also of ore and shepe, and the riches of such thinges as were sanctified, which they had halowed vnto the LORD their God, and made here an heape, and there an heape. In the thirde moneth began they to laye vpon heapes, and in the seventh moneth byd they synished.

And wha Ezechias wth the rulers gaue in, and saue the heapes, they prepared the LORD, and his people of Israel. And whiche are the prestes and Leuites conuynge the heapes. And Asaria the prest chiefe in the house of Sado, saide vnto him: Sense the tyme that they beganne to laye the heuerofferinges in to y house of the LORD, we haue eaten, and are satysfied, and yet is there lesse ouer: for the LORD hath blessed his people, therfore is this hepe lefte ouer. Then commaunded he the prestes, that they shulde prepare chesens in the house of the LORD. And they prepared them, and put in the heuerofferinges, and wine, and that which was halowed, faithfully.

And the oversighte of the same was Cuanania the Leuite, and Simei his brother seconde, and Jehiel, Afasia, Haglach, Zehel, Jerimoch, Josabab, Elid, Jemah, Mahach and Benais, ordeyned of the hande off Chanania and Simei his brother, accordinge to the commaundement of the kinge Ezechias. But Asaria was pryncipe of the house of God. And Cose y sonne of Iama the Leuite the porter of the east gate was ouer the strowlinge giftes of God (which were geuen for heuerofferinges vnto the LORD) and ouer the best holy. And vnder his hands were, Eden, Miniamin, Jusua, Semua, Amaria, and Sachama in the cities of the prestes vpon credence, that they shulde geue vnto their brethren accordinge to their courses, to the lesse as to the greater.

And vnto them that were counted in mon childre from the yere olde and abow, amonge all the that were in the house of the LORD, euery one vpo his daye to the office in their attendaunces after their courses. And they that were reked for portions in the house of their fathers, and the Leuites from twente yere and abow, in the attendaunces after their courses. And they that were reked amonge their children wyues, sonnes and daughters amonge the whole congregation: for that which was by lowed, sanctified they vpon credence. There were men also named by name amonge Aarons children the prestes vpon the fildes of the suburbs in all y cities, that they shulde geue portions vnto all the men which were amonge the prestes, and to all them that were nombred amonge the Leuites.

Thus byd Ezechias in all Iuda, and by that which was good, righte and iust the sighte of the LORDE his God. And in all the joyces that he colde in haue concerninge the seruice of the house of God, as cominge to the same and commaundment, to see his God, that byd he wold all his hert, and therfore prospered he well.

The XXXII. Chapter.

After these actes and faithfulness came Sennacherib the kynge of Assur, and wente in to Juda, and pitched be fore the stronge cities, and thoughte to plucke them vnto him. And whan Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib came, and that his face shone to fighte agaynst Jerusalem, he besought with his rulers and mighty men, to cover the waters of the welles that were without the cite, and they helped him: and they gathered together a greates people, and covered all y^e welles and water brokes in the myddes of the londe, and sayde: Lett the kynge of Assur fynde moche water whā they come. And he toke a courage vnto him, and buydd all the walles where they were in decaye, and made towres thereon, and buydd yet another wall without, and strenghtned the wall in the cite of Dauid. And made much ordinance and shylde, and set captaynes of warre over the people.

And gathered them vnto him upon the hode strete by the gate of the cite, and spake heredy vnto them, and sayde: Be stronge and bolde, feare not, and be not a frayed for the kynge of Assur, ner all y^e multitude that is with him: for there is one greater with vs than with him. With him is a flesshly arme, but with vs is the LORDE our God, to helpe vs and to fighte for vs. And y^e people trusted vnto the wordes of Ezechias kynge of Juda.

Afterwardes sent Sennacherib the kynge of Assur his seruantes vnto Jerusalem (for he laye before Ezechias, & all his hoost wth him) to Ezechias y^e kynge of Juda, & to all Juda that was at Jerusalem, sayenge: Thus sayeth Sennacherib y^e kynge of Assur: Wherin putt ye your trust ye that dwell in the besyged Jerusalem: Ezechias disceaueth you, that he maye deliuer you vnto death, by syng and byss, and sayeth: The LORDE our God shal deliuer vs from the hande of the kynge of Assur. Is it not Ezechias, that hath put awaye his hye places and altars, and layde vnto Juda and Jerusalem: Before we abate shal ye mousshippe, and burne in ash theron?

Come ye not that I and my fathers haue done to all y^e people in the londe: haue the goddes of the heychen in the londe bene able to deliuer their countrees from my hande? What is he amonge all the goddes of these heychen (whom my father damned) that was able to deliuer his people from my hande: y^e your God shal be able to deliuer from my hande. Therefore let not Ezechias nowtise cause you, and let him not perswade you any such thinge, and beleue him not. For yf no god of all the heychen and kynngdomes mighte deliuer his people from my hande and from the hande of my progenitours, then shal not your goddes be able to deliuer you from my hande.

His seruantes also spake yet more agaynst the LORDE God, and agaynst his seruante Ezechias. And he receiued a letter to blasphemethe LORDE God of Israel, and spake of him, and sayde: Lett as the goddes of the heychen in their londes haue not bene able to deliuer their people from my hande, euen so shal not the God of Ezechias deliuer his people from my hande.

And they cryed with loude voyce in the Jewissh langage vnto the people of Jerusalem that were vpon the wall, to make them fearfull and to be sayntbarred, that they mighte wynn the cite. And they spake agaynst the God of Jerusalem, euen as agaynst the goddes of the nations vpon earth, which were but the wordes of mens honde.

But contrary wyse the kynge Ezechias and the prophet Ilay the sonne of Amos prayed, and cryed vnto heauē. And the LORDE sent an angell, which destroyed all the mighty men of the hoost, and the princes and rulers in y^e tentes of the kynge of Assur, so that he departed agayne with shame in to his owne londe. And whan he wente in to his gods house, they y^e came of his owne body, slere him there with the sword. Thus the LORDE helped Ezechias and them at Jerusalem, out of the hāde of Sennacherib y^e kynge of Assur, and of all other, and mayn tayne the frōt all on euery syde, so y^e many broughte prisoners vnto the LORDE to Jerusalem, and Jewels vnto Ezechias the kynge of Juda. And afterwardes was he exalted in the sighte of all heychen.

He y^e same tyme reas Ezechias beddycke, and he prayed vnto the LORDE, which made him promys, and gaue him a wonder to be. But Ezechias receyued not a cobinbe as was geuen vnto him, for his hert was lifted vp: therfore came the wrath vpon him, and upon Iuda and Jerusalem. These the-les Ezechias humbled him selfe because his heart had bene exalted, with them at Jerusalem: therefore came not the wrath of the LORDE vpon them, whyle Ezechias liued.

And Ezechias had very greate riches and weishippe, and made him treasures of siluer, golde, precious stones, spices, slydes, and all maner costly vessill, and come houses for the increace of coue, wyne and oyle, and stables for all maner cattell, and foldes for the shepe, and buyded him cities, and had many cattell of shepe and oxen: for God gaue him very much good.

S It is the same Ezechias that covered the hys water conyeyr in Gihon, and conyeyr it vnder on the west syde of cite of Dauid: for Ezechias prospered in all his workes.
But whan the interpreters the chiefe of Ba-bilon were sent vnto him, to aske question at him: concerninge the wonderfull that had happened in the londe: God lesse him • to be compeed, that it mighte be knowne what foener was in his heart.

of Amos, and in the booke of the Kinges of Iuda and Israel. And Ezechias fell on slepthat was euell in the sighte of the LORDE to prouoke him vnto wrath.

Carued ymages also and Idols (which he caused to make) set he vp in Gods house, wherof the LORDE saide vnto Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: "In this house at Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, wyl I see my name: fumes and wyl nomore let the face of Israel see the londe that I appoynted forther fathers, so farre as they obserue to do all I haue commaunded them, in all the law, statutes and ordinance by Moses. But Manasse disceined Iuda and them of Jurusalem, so that they byd worse then the fathers, whom the LORDE destroyed before the children of Israel. And the LORDE be vnto Manasse and his people, and they regardet it not.

Therefore byd the LORDE cause the ruines of the hoost of the kynge of Assir in rich bedes, and boante him with cheyn, & broughet him vnto Babilon. And whan he was in trouble, he made intercession before the LORDE his God, and humbled him selfe greatly before the God of his fathers, and prayed and besoughte him. Then hete his prayer, and broughet him againe Jerusalem to his kynngdome. And Manasse knewe that the LORDE is God.

Afterwarde buyded he y^e vncleynesse of the cite of Dauid, on the west syde of Gihon by the wycke, and at the entrance of the sythgate, and rounde aboute. Cypyl, and made it very hys, and layed caperaynes in stronge cities of Iuda, & put awaye y^e sime ge goddes & Idols out of y^e house of y^e LORDE, and all the altares which he had buy-ded vnto the mount of the hoost of the LORDE, and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the cite, and buyded the altare of the LORDE, and offered slaynofferinges and thank-offeringes thereon, and commaunded Iuda, that they shalde serue the LORDE God of Israel. Nevertheless though the people offred vnto the LORDE their God, yet offred they vpon the hys places.

and stumbe ydole, a foue he humbled himselfe, beholde, they are wyemen amonge the acres of the Greco. And Manasse fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in his best, and Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twetye yeare olde was Amon whā he was made kynge, and reigned two yeaere at Jerusalem, and dyd eutill in the sighte of the LORDE, as Manasse his father had done. And Amon offred vnto all the Idols that his father Manasse had made and serued thē. Yet dyd not he humble himselfe before the LORDE, as Manasse his father had subuerted himselfe: but Amon trespassed euer more and more. And his seruantes conspyed agaynst him, and serue him in his house. Then smote the people in the londe all them that had conspyed agaynst kynge Amon. And the people in the londe made Josias his sonne kynge in his steade.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Josias was eithe yeare olde when he was made kynge, and reigned one and thirtie yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, and turned not asyde, neither to the righte hande nor to the lefte. For in the eight yeare of his reigne he was yet but a chyldre, he beganne to seeke the God of his father Dauid: and in the twolue th yeaere beganne he to cleane Iuda and Jerusalem from the hye places and groves, and carued Idols, and molten ymages: and caused the altars of Baalim to be broken downe before him, and the ymages that were thereon, he wredde downe. And yf groves and carued Idols and molten ymages brake he in peeces, and made them to dust, and scattered it vpon the graues of them that had offred vnto them. And the bones of the prestes went he vnto the altars, and so clefde he Iuda & Jerusalem, in yf cities of Manasse, Ephraim, Simon, and vnto Iephthali in their wyldernes on euery syde. And whā he had broken downe the altars and groves, and smyte to the Idols in peeces, and herred downe all the ymages in all the londe of Iuda, he came agayne to Jerusalem.

In the eighteenth yeare of his reigne whā he had clenched the londe and the house, he sent Saphan the sonne of Azzalia and Maachia the Sheme of the cite, and Joath the sonne of Joahas the Chamceler, to repaie the house of the LORDE his God. And they came to helchias yf hye puse, and there was deliuered vnto them the money that was broughte vnto the house of God, which the Leuites (that kepe the chylthoolde) had gathered, of Manasse, Ephraim, and of all the residue in Iuda, and of all Iuda & Ben Jamin, and of them that dwel at Jerusalem, and they deliuered it vnto the handes of the worke men in the house of the LORDE, and gaue it vnto those that wroughte in the house of the LORDE, where it was in decaye, yf they shulde repaie it. And the same gaue it forth vnto the carpenters and buylders, to buye freestone and heuen tymber for the balke in the houses, which the kynge had destroyed. And the men laboured faithfully in the worke.

And ouer them were ordeyned, Jathath and Obadiah the Leuites of the children of Merari: Zachary and Mesullem of the children of the Zabathites, to further the worke, and they were all Leuites that coulde playe vpon instruments. But ouer them that bare burthens and furthered all manner of worke in all the officis, there were saybes, officers, and bore keepers of the Leuites. And whā they toke out the money that was broughte vnto yf house of the LORDE, helchias the puse founde the boke of the lawe of the LORDE given by Moyses. And helchias answered, and saide vnto Saphan the Scribe. I haue founde the boke of the lawe in yf house of yf LORDE. And Saphan deliuered the boke vnto Saphan. And Saphan bare it vnto the kynge, and broughte yf kynge worde agayne, and sayde: All that was greuen vnder the handes of thy seruantes, that make they: and yf mony that was founde in yf horse of the LORDE, haue they gathered together, and deliuered it vnto yf officers, and to the workmen. And Saphan the Scribe tolde the kynge, and sayde: helchias the puse hath deliuered me a boke.

And Saphan red therein before the kynge. And whā the kynge herde the wordes of the lawe, he reme his clothes. And the kynge commaunded helchias and Azicam the sonne of Saphan, and Zibdon the sonne of Niche, and Saphan the Scribe, and Azia the kynge's seruant, and sayde: Go youre waye, are counsell at the LORDE for me and for the remnant in Iuda, and for Iuda, concerninge these wordes of the boke that is founde. For greate is the indignacion of the LORDE that is gone forth ouer vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of the LORDE, to do accordinge as it is wryten in this boke. Then were Helchias (with the ocher that were sent from the kynge) vnto the prophetesse Hulda the wife of Salum the Sonne of Thecoath the sonne of Hasra the keper of the clothes, which dwelle at Jerusalem in the secde parte, and they spake this vnto her.

E And she sayde vnto them: Thus saeyth the LORDE God of Israel: Tell the: I have sent you vnto me: Thus saeyth the LORDE: Beholde, I wil bynge plagis vpo this place and the inhabitants thereof, all the curses which are wryten in the boke, that was red before the kynge of Iuda: because they haue forsake me, and haue incise vnto ocher goddes, to promote me with all the workes of their handes. And my indignacion shal go forth vpon this cite, and shal not be quenchid.

And after this maner shal ye saye vnto the kynge of Iuda, that sent you to axe counsell at the LORDE: Thus saeyth the LORDE God of Israel concerninge the wordes that thou hast herde: Because thine hert is moued, and because thou hast humbled thy selfe in the sighte of God, whan thou herdest his wordes agaynst this place and the inhabitants thereof, and hast submytted thy selfe before me, and rent thy clothes, and wepe before me, therfore haue I herde the, saeyth the LORDE. Beholde, I wil gather the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be layed in thy graue with peace, so that thine eyes shal not see all the euill that I wil bynge ouer this place, and the inuellers thereof. And they broughed the kynge wordes agayne.

S Then sent the kynge, and caused all the elders in Iuda and Jerusalem to come together. And the kynge wente up in to the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Iuda and inhabitants of Iersolē, the prestes, the Levites, and all the people both small and greate: and all the wordes in the boke of the couenaunt that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were red in their eares. And the kynge stode in his place, and made a couenaunt before the LORDE, that they shalde walke after the LORDE, so kepe his commaundement, his testimonies, and his statutes with all their hert and with all their soule, to do acordinge vnto all the wordes of the couenaunt that are wryten in this boke.

And there stode all they that were founde at Jerusalem and in Ben Jamin. And of inhabitants of Jerusalem byd acordinge to the couenaunt of God the God of their fathers. And Josias put awaye all abhominacions out of all the londes that were the children of Israel, and caused all them that were founde in Israel, to serue the LORDE their God. No longe as Josias lyued, departed they not from the LORDE the God of their fathers.

The xxxv. Chapter.

AND Josias kepte Passouer vnto the LORDE at Jerusalem, and serued the Passouer on the fourteenth daye of the first moneth, and set the prestes in their offices, and strenged them to their ministracion in the house of the LORDE, and sayde vnto the Levites that taught in all Israel, and were sanctified by the LORDE: Put the holy arte in the house that Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel byd orde. Ye shal beare it nomer vpon your shuldres. Se that ye serue now the LORDE your God, and his people of Iuda, and prepare the house of your fathers in your courtes, as it was appoynted by Dauid the kynge of Israel, and by Salomon his sonne: and stonde in the Sameray of our comf of the fathers houses amonge your brethren the children of the people. And after the counse of the fathers houses amonge the Levites, and byll Passouer, sanctifye and prepare youre brethren, that they may do acordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moyses.

And Josias gaue lambs and yonged kids which were males, to the sheu offeringe for the comonye (all to the Passouer for euery one that was founde) in the nombre thirtye thousande, and thre thousande oxen, all of the kynges good. And his pryces of their anne good wyl gaue to the sheu offeringe for the people, for the prestes and Levites: namely, Helchias, Zachary and Jehiel the prynces in the house of God amonge the prestes) for the Passouer, two thousande and six hundred oxen, and thre hundred oxen. But Chanania, Semaia, Ithobad and his brethren, Gasabia, Jehiel and Josiab the chefe of the Levites gaue the sheu offeringe for the Passouer, two thousande shepe, and thre hundred oxen.

Thus was the Gods seruyce prepared, and the prestes stode in their place, and the Levites in their courtes acordinge to the kynge's commaundement. And they kille the Passouer, and the prestes toke it off their handes, and sprentled it and the Levites toke the stynnes off them, and reuened the burned offeringe there from, so that

Amonge the porcions of the fathers hon for in the multitude of their congregacion to offer unto the LORDE, as it is wyrtten in y boke of Ioseph, when so dyd they with the oren also. And they bighte the Passco-ner at the fyne accordinge to the lawe. And that which was haloweb, bighte they in pomes, feeces, and pannes, and made haiff for the comon people. Afterwarde prepared they for them selves also and for y prestes: for the prestes the children of Aaron were occupied in the burnt offerynges and sat vn till the nyghte. Therfore must the Leuites prepare for them selves and for the prestes the chylden of Aaron.

And the syngers the chylden of Asaph stode in their place (accordinge to Dauides commandement) and Asaph and Heman, and Jedaihim the synges Ser, and the portars at all the gates. And they departed not from their office. For the Leuites their brethren prepared for them. This was all the Gods seruyce prepared the same daye, that the Passouer mighte be kepte, and the burnt sacrifices offered vpon the altare off the LORDE accordinge to the commandement of synges Josias.

So the chylden of Israel that were at hande, helde Passouer at that tyme, and the feast of unleuenede bad, seven dayes.
 Since y tyme of Samuell the prophete, was no Passouer kepte in Israel like this: and no kynge of Israel had holde such a Passo-uer as Josias dyd, and the prestes, Leuites, all Jude, and such as were founde of Israel, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. In the eightyeth yere of the reigne of Josias was this Passouer kepte.

After this, when Josias had prepared the house, Necho the kynge of Egypte went up to fighte agaynst Carcamis besyde Euphrates. And Josias wente forth agaynst him. But he sent messengers unto him, sayinge: What haue I to do with the O kynge of Juda? I am not come now agaynst the, but I fighte agaynst another house: and God hath sayde, that I shal make halfe. Ceasse from God which is with me, that he destroye the not. Nevertheless Josias turned not his face from him, but prepared himselfe to fighte with him, and hertofore had vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, z came to fighte w him upon the playne besyde Megiddo. But the Archers shot at kynge Josias. And the kynge sayde vnto his seruauntes: Carry me awaye, for I am sore wounded. And his seruauntes toke him from the chare, and caried him vpon his seconde chare, and broughte him to Jerusalem. And he dyed, and was buried amonge the sepulchres off his fathers.

And all Jude and Jerusalem mourned for Josias, and Jeremy bewayled Josias, and all the synginge men and women, spake their lamentacions ouer Josias vnto this daye, and made a custome therof vnto this daye. Beholde, it is wyrtten also amonge the Lamentacions. What more there is to saye of Josias, and his mercy accordinge to the scripture in the lawe of the LORDE, and of his aces (both first and last) beholde, it is wyrtten in the boke of the synges of Iffad and Iuda.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

And the people of the londe toke Joa-chas the sunne of Josias, and made him kynge in his fathers steade at Jerusalem. This and twenty yere olde was Joahas when he was made kynge, and reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. For the kynge of Egypte deposeth him at Jerusalem, and contemned the londe in an hundred talents of syluer, and one talent off golde. And the kynge of Egypte made Eliachim his brother kynge ouer Juda and Jerusalem, and turned his name Joachim. But Necho toke his brother Joahas, and caried him in to Egypte.

Five and twenty yere olde was Joachim whā he was made kynge, and reigned cleue yere at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE his God. And Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon wente up agaynst him, and downe douned him with cheynes, to cary him vnto Ba-bilon. And Nabuchodonosor broughete cer-tayne vessels of y house of the LORDE vnto Babilon, and put them in his temple as Babilon. What more there is to saye of Joachim, and off his abominacions which he dyd, and that were founde in him, beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the syn-ges of Israel and Iuda. And Joachim his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Eight yere olde was Joachim when he was made kynge, and reigned thre monethes and ten dayes at Jerusalem, and dyd y which was euill in the sighte of y LORDE.
 But whā the yere came aboute, Nabuchod-onosor sent elcher, and caused him to be seched vnto Babilon with the costly vessels and Jewels of the house of the LORDE, and made Sedechias his biother kynge ouer Iuda and Jerusalem.

4.Rt.24 d
One and twenty yeare olde was Sedechias when he was made kynge, & reigned eleven yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euill in the sightes of the LORDE his God, and submyted not himselfe for the face of the prophet Jeremy, which spake out of the mouth of the LORDE. He fell awaye also from Labuchodonsor the kynge of Babilon (which had taken an oath of him by God) and was styfnecked, and hardened his hert, that he shulde not conuerse vnto the LORDE God of Israel. And all y^e chise amonge the prestes, and the people, multiplyd their synnes, acordinge to all the abhominacions of the heythen, and dyfled the house of the LORDE, which he had sanctified at Jerusalem.

And the LORDE God of their fathers sent vnto them early by his messaugers, for he spared his people and his habitation) but they laughet the messaugers of God to scound, and despyed his wordes, and had his prophetes in derision, so longe tyll the indignacion of the LORDE increasid ouer his people, and there was no remedye of healinge. For he broughte the kynge of the Caldees vpon them, and caused for to slaye all their yonge men with the swerde in the house of their Sanctuary, and spared nether yongemāner virgin, nether aged ner grauis father, but gaue them all in to his hande. And all the vessels in the house of God, greates and small, the treasures in the house of the LORDE, and the treasures of the kynge and of his prynces, all this caused he to be caried vnto Babilon. And they brent the house of God, and brake downe the wall of Ierusalem, and all the palaces therof burnt they with fyre, so that all the costly ornaments of it were destroyed.

And loke who escaped y^e swerde, he caried he awaye vnto Babilon, & they became his seruantes, & the seruantes of his sonnes, tyll the Persians had the empyre: that y^e woerde of the LORDE by the mouth of Jeremy mighte be perfourmed, men vntyll the londe had yough of hir Sabbathes: for all the tyme of the desolacion was it Sabbath, vntyll the seuentye yeares were fulfilled.

But in the first yeare of Cymus the kynge of Persia (that the woerde of the LORDE spoken by the mouth of Jeremy mighte be fulfilled) the LORDE rayshed vp the spruce of Cymus the kynge of Persia, that he caused it be proclaimed throug out all his empyre, and by wytynges also, sayenge: That sayeth Cymus the kynge of Persia: The LORDE God of heauen hath gauen me all the kyngdomes in the londe, and hath commaunded me to buyde him an house at Jerusalem in Iuda. Who fewer now amonge you is of his people, the LORDE his God be with him, and let him go vp.

In the first yeares of Cyrus kynge off Persia (that the worde of the LORD is spoken) by the mouth of Jeremy might be fulfilled: the LORD ESTERD UP the spiere of Cyrus kynge of persia, & he caused it be proclaimed thorow out all his empyre, yee and by wyryng also, sayinge: Thus sayeth Cyrus the kynge of persia: The LORD God of heauē hath giuen me all the kyngdomes in the londe and hath commaunded me to buyde him an house at Jerusalem in Juda. Who seker now amonge you is of his people, the LORD his God be with him, and let him go vp to Jerusalem in Juda, and buyde the house of the LORD God of Israel. he is y God that is at Jerusalem. And who so ever remayneth yet in any maner of place (where he is a stranger) let the me of his place helpe him with syluer and golde, with good and cattell of a good frewill, for the house of God at Jerusalem.

Then gat vp the principall fathers of Juda and Ben Jamin, and the prestes and Levites, and all they whose spiere God had tyled to go up, and to buyde the house of the LORD at Jerusalem. And all they that were aboute them, strengethed their hande with syluer and golde, with good and cattell, and Jewels, besides that which they gave of their owne frewill. And kynge Cyrus broughte forth the vessels of the LORDS house, which Nabuchodonosor had takē out of Jerusalem, and put in his gods house. But Cyrus y kynge of persia broughte the forth by Mishayath the measurer, and numbered the unto Sebbazar the prynce of Juda. And this is the nombre of them: thire balens of golde, and a thousand balens of syluer, and nyne and twentye Pryces, thryve cuppes of golde, and of other syluer cuppes foure hundred and ten, and of other vessels a thousande. So that all the vessels both of golde and syluer, were fyve thousande and foure hundred. Sebbazar broughte them all vp, with them that came vp out of the captiuyte off Babylon unto Jerusalem.

The II. Chapter.

These are the childre of the londe that wente up out of the captiuyte (whos Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon had caried awaye unto Babylon) and came agayne to Jerusalem and into Juda, euery one unto his cite, and came with good babil, Jesu, Tejemias, Seraias, Keleias, Marbadai, Bilan, Mispar, Begesai, Xebum and Baans. This is now the nombre of the men of the people of Israel: The children of pharais, two thousande, an hundred, and two and fawentye: the children of Sephathia, thre hundred and two and fawentye: the children of Arath, seuen hundred and fyve and fawentye: the children of Pahath Moab amonge the children of Jesu, Joab, two thousande, eight hundred and twolue: the children of Elam, a thousande, two hundred and foure and fiftye: the children of Sathu, nyne hundred and fyve and fortye: the children of Sacai, six hundred and thre score: the children of Dani, six hundred and two and fortye: the children of Debai, six hundred and thre and twentye: the children of Aigad, a thousande two hundred and two and twentye: the children of Aboniam, six hundred and sixe and sixtye: the children of Bigesai, two thousande and sixe and fiftye: the children of Adin, foure hundred and foure and fiftye: the children of Ater of Esadrias, eight and nyneetye: the children of Bezai, thre hundred and thre and twentye: the children of Joathab, an hundred and twolue: the children of Samsar, two hundred and thre and twentye: the children of Sibbar, fyve and nyneetye: the children off Bethleem, an hundred and thre and twentye: the men off Neophah sixe and sixtye: the men off Anathoth, an hundred and eight and twentye: the children off Alimaueh, two and fortye: the children off Biriath Arim, Caphira and Beeroth, seuen hundred and thre and fortye: the children off Rama and Gaba, six hundred and one and sixtye: the men off Michmas, an hundred and two and twenty: the men of Bethel and Ai, two hundred: and thre and twenty: the childre of Netbo, two and fifty: the children of Magbis, an hundred and five and fifty: the childre of the other Lam a thousande, two hundred and foure and fifty: the children of Sarim, the hundred and twenty: the childre of Odbabab and Ono, seak hundred and five and twenty: the childre of Jericho, thre hundred and five and forty: the children of Senaz, thre thousande, five, hundred and thirtie.

The prestes. The children of Jedaias of the house of Jesua, nyne hundred and thre and twenty: the childre of Jemmer, a thousande and two and fifty: the children of Pasur, a thousande and two hundred, and seven and forty: the childre of Sarim, a thousande and sevenentie.

The Levites. The children of Jesua and Camiel of the children of Sobiaias, foure and twenty: The singers, the children of Asaph, an hundred and eighte and twenty. The children of the docters. The children of Salum, the children of Aear, the childre off Salmon, the children off Azub, the children off Sataias, and the children off Sobiaias: altogether an hundred and nyne and thirtie.

seruantes were altogether, thre hundred and two and nyenty.

And these were also, Mithel, Melah, Thel, Sarfo, Cherub, Adon and Jem. But they coulde not shewe their fathers house nor their sede, whether they were of Israel. The children of Deiaia, the children of Tobias, the children of Necoda, five hundred and two and fifty.

And of the children of the prestes. The children of Sobiaias, the children of Sason, the children of Barfillai, to whiche toke one of the daughters of Barfillai the Gileadin to wife, and was counted amonge the same names: these soughte the register of their byrth, and founde none, therefore writinge out from the register. And Sarchias saide vnto them, that they shoulde seeke of the most holy, till theretoise vp a pilgrimage - lighte and perfectenisse.

The whole congregation as one man, was two and forty thousande, thre hundred and thre score: besyde their seruantes and maydes, of whom there were seak thousande, thre hundred and thre and threty. And they had two hundred singynge men and women, seak hundred and five and threty horses, two hundred and fyne and forty mules, foure hundred and fyne and threty Camels, and sixe thousande, seven hundred and twentye asses.

And certayne of the chiefe fathers, when they came to the house of the LORDE in Jerusalem, they were well mynded vnto the house of God, that it shoulde be seyn in peace, and gaue a fere their ability vnto the measure of the worke, one and thre score thousande gulden, and fyve thousande pounde of syluer, and an hundred prestes garments. So the prestes and the Levites, and certayne of y people, and the singers, and the porters, and y Techinims dwelt in their cities, and all Israel in their citie.

The iij. Chapter.

D It was when the seventh moneth came, and the children of Israel were assembled in their cities, the people came together as one man, vnto Jerusalem. And there stode vp Jesua the sonne of Josabab and his brethren the prestes, and Josabab the sonne of Saalchid and his brethren, and buylde the altare of the God of Israel, to offre burnt offerynges thereon, as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moses the servant of God, and the altare set they upon the foudraies: for there was a fear fulnes among then because of the nacions and lodes) and offered burnt offerings thereon unto the LORD in the morning and at euen. And he led the staff of Tabernacles, as it is written, and offered burnt sacrifices daylie after the number as according was, every daye his sacrifice. Afterwarde the daylie burnt offerings also, and of the new Moones and of all the first dayes of the LORD that were halowed, and all manner of fre willinge offerings, which they did of their awne fre will unto the LORD.

Upon the first daye of the seuenth month beganne they to offer burnt sacrifices unto the LORD. But the foundation of the temple of the LORD was not yet layed. Nevertheless they gaue money unto the sons and carpenters, and meate and drynke and oyle unto them of Sidon and of Tyre, to buye the Cedre ymbre from Libanus by Sea unto Joppa, according to the commandment of Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yere of their commynge was the house of God at Jerusalem in the seconde month, beganne Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josiab, and the remanent of their brethren the priests and Leuites, and all they that were come out of the captiuite unto Jerusalem, and appointed the Leuites fro tiven yre yere olde and aboue, so that the work of the house of the LORD were forward. And Jesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Cabniel with his sonnes, and the children of Juda, to further the worke of the house of God, namely the childre of Senebad with their children and their brethren the Leuites.

And when the builders layed the foundation of the temple of the LORD, the prestes stode in their array, with trumpets. And the Leuites the children of Saphaiah and Camiata, to playe the LORD with the Pyre of David kynge of Israel. And they sung together, geuyng praye thanke unto the LORD, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer upon Israel. And all the people shouted loude in playng the LORD, because the foundation of the house of the LORD was layd. Nevertheless many of the oldeprestes and Leuites and auuncient fathers, which had bene the house a fore in his foundacion, and this was now before their eyes, wept loude. But many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a greatesounde, in so much that the people coulde not knowe if ioyfull sounde for the noyse of the wepinge in the people: for the people shouted loude, so that the noyse was herde farre of.

The iiiii. Chapter.

When the aduersaries of Juda and Ben Jamin herde, that the children of the captiuite builded the temple unto the LORD: God of Israel, they came to Zorobabel and to the pryncipall fathers, and sayde unto them: We wyl builde with you: for we like the LORD your God like as ye do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto him, since the tyme that Assur hadon the kynge of Assur boughe vs vsu hither. But Zorobabel and Jesua and the other auuncient fathers of Israel, answered them: It is not meete for vs and you to builde the house of oure God, but we wyl builde alone unto the LORD God of Israel, as Cyrus the kynge of Persia hath commanded vs.

Then the folke of the londe bynded the people of Juda, and made them asrayed to builde, and bynded counselors aganst them and bynded their dayce, as long as Cyrus the kynge of Persia liued, vntill the reigne off Darius kynge off Persia. But when Darius was kynge, in the beginninge off his reigne wrote they vnto him a complayne aganst them of Juda and Jerusalem.

And in the tyme of Artaxerxes, wrote Bithsalam, Michudach, Tabeel and the other of their counsell vnto Artaxerxes the kynge of Persia, that the scripture of the letter was wyrtten in the Syrians speach, and was interpreted in the langage of the Syrians. Rehum the chanceler, and Simsai the scribe, wrote this letter agaynst Jerusalem to Artaxerxes the kynge.

We Rehum the chanceler, and Simsai the scribe, and other of the counsell of Bina, off Arphasath, off Tarpat, off Persia, off Arach, of Babilon, of Sulai, of Weba, and of Elam, and other of the people, whoms the greete and noble Anaphar broughte ouer, and set in the cities of Samaria, and other on this syde the water, and in Canaan, and this is the summe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes:

They seruaunt the men on this syde the water and in Canaan. Be it knowne vnto the kynge, that the Jewes which are come vnto us from the reue of Jerusalem in to thar sciuous and wicked cite, builde the same, and make up the wall of it, and bygge it out of the foundacion. Be it knowne now therfore vnto the kynge, if this cite be builded to the malice made vp agayne, the shal not they gene-tribute, toll, and yearly custome, and their deuoyce shal be of kynges harme. But now that we all are thereby which destroyed the temple, we wolde no longer se the kynges disho-noure. Therfore sent we our, and caused the kyng to be certified therof: That it maye be sought in of Cronicles of the prophetez, and is shal theu fynde in the same Cronicles, and perccauce, that this cite is fidicious and noysome vnto kynges and lonces, and that they cause other also to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cite destroyed. Therfore do we certifie the kyng, that of this cite be buylded, and the walles therof made vp, thou shalt kepe nothinge on this syde the water by the reason of it.

D Then sent y kyng an answer vnto Re-hum the chawnceler, and Simai the Serybe, and to the other of their counsell that dwelde in Samaria, and vnto the other beyonde y water. Pence and saluacion. The letter which ye sent vnto vs, hath bene opely red before me, and I haue commaunded to make search: and it is founde, that this cite of olde hath made insurreccion agaynst kynges, & how y vnto and rebellion hath bene committed therein. There haue bene mightie kynges also at Ierusalem, which haue reigned ouer all that is beyonde the water, and toll, tribute, and yearly custome was geuen vnto them. Do ye now ascer this commaundement, for byd the same men, that the cite be not buylded, yll I haue good commaundemēt. Take hede now that ye be not negligent here in, lest the kyng haue harme there throug.

Now whā kyng Artaxerxes letter was red before Rehum the chawnceler and Simsai the Serybe and their counsell, they wente vp in all the huffe to Ierusalem vnto the Iewes, and forbade them with the arme and auctorite. Then ceased the worke of the house of God at Ierusalem, and continued so vnto the seconde yeare of Darius kyng of Persia.

The V. Chapter.

A The prophetes, Aggeus and Zecha-ry y sonne of Iddo, propheted vnto y Iewes that were in Iuda and Ierusalem, in the name of the God of Israel.
Then gat vp Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesua the sonne of Iosede, and begannto buyde the house of God at Jerusalem, and with them the prophetes of God which strengned the. At the same tyme came to the Thathnai the debite on this syde the water, and Serhar of Bosen, and the councellers, and sayde thus vnto them: We hath commaunded you to buyde this house, and to make vp the walles therof: We tolde we them the names of the men that made this buylding. But the eye of the God came vpon the Elders of the Iewes, that they were not in hilyre, yll the maner was brought before Darius, and yll the came a wytyng therof agayne.

This is the summe of the letter y Thath-nai the Debite on this syde the water, and Serhar of Bosen, and their counsell of Aphasach (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kyng Darius, and the maner of the wordes that they sent vnto him: Vnto Darius the kyng, all peace. Be it knowne vnto the kyng, that we came in to Ierusalem to the house of y greates God, which is buy-ded with all maner of stone, and buld was layed in the walles, and y worlde goodly saw, and prospereth in their habites. No withles we ared the Elders and sayde vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buyde this house, and to make vp the walles therof? We ared their names also, that we might certifie the, and haue myghty iustice of the men that were their rulers.

But they answered vs in these wordes and sayde: We are the seruantes of the God of heauen and earth, and buyde the house y was buylded many yeares agoe, which a greates kyng of Israel buylded and saw.
Howbeit whan our fathers provoked the God of heauen vnto wrath, he gaue them ouer in the hande of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon the Caldee, which had downe this house, & caried y people away vnto Babilon.

Nevertheless in the first yeare of the kyng of Babilon, y same kyng had commaunded to buyde this house of God for the vessels of golde and siluer in the house of God, which Nabuchodonosor the king of the temple at Ierusalem, and brought in to y temple at Babilon, the kyng the kyng take out of y temple at Babilon, and deliuered them vnto Serhasar by name, whom he made Debite, and sayde vnto him: Take these vessels, go thy way and bringe them vnto the temple at Jerusalem, and let the house of God be buylded in this place. Then came the same Serhasar, and layed y foundacion of the house of God at Ierusalem. Since that tyme hath bene in buylding, and yet is it not finished. It please y kyng now, let there be frath

In 3 bygges treasure house which is at Babilon, wherby it haue bene bygge C yus commandment, that the house of God at Jerusalem shalbe builded: seade vs 3 bygges wryte concerninge the same.

The vi. Chapter.

Then commaunded Kinge Darius, that searche shoulde be made in 3 library of 3 bygges treasure house, which laye at Babilon. So at Esdras baranio in a castell that lyeth in the londe of the Medes, there was founde a boke, 2 in it was there an othe wryten after this maner: In the first yere of bygge C yus, commaunded the same bygge C yus to buyde 3 house of God at Jerusalem, in the place where the sacrifice is made, 2 to laye the foundation to beate this seate vnto the hygge, 2 this seate cubites brede, 2 the walles of all maner of stones, and one wall of sember, 2 the expence shalbe geuen of the bygges house. And the golde and silver vessell of 3 house of God, which the hebrewe men toke out of the temple at Jerusalem, and broughte vnto Babilon shalbe restored agayne, 3 they maye be broughte vnto the temple at Jerusalem to their place in the house of God.

Get you farre from them therfore, thou Dathnai Debye beyonde the water, and Sathar of Bosen, 2 youre counsellors which are beyonde the water. Let them worke in 3 house of God, that the Debye of 3 Jewes and their Elders maye buyde the house of God in his place. I haue commaunded also, what shalbe done to 3 Elders of Iuda for the buydinge of the house of God, that thei shal diligently be take of the bygges good, and of the rentes beyonde the water, 2 geaue vnto the men, and that they be not bynded.

And if they haue neede of calues, lambes, 2 goates for the burnt offryng vnto 3 God of heauen, wheat, sale, wyne and oyle, after the custome of the prestes at Jerusalem, thei shalbe geuen them daylie as is a cordinge: and if that this be not done negligently, that they maye offre sweete savoures vnto 3 God of heauen, and praye for the bygges lyfe, and for his children. This commaundement haue I geue. And what man so ener he be that sleneth this wordes, there shal a halke be taken from his house, and he shal be hangid thereon, and his house shalbe pryed for the breke.

For the God that dwelleth in heauen, defende all bygges and people, that put to their handes to alce and to beake downe the house of God at Jerusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be diligently done.

Then Dathnai 3 Debye be youde y master, and Sathar of Bosen with their counsellors (to whom bygge Darius had sent) they their diligencie. And 3 Elders of the Jewes buyde, and they prospered thei on the prophesies of Aggeus the piophete and Zachary the sonne of Iddo: and they buyde, and set vp the worke, a cordinge to the commaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaundement of C yus, Darius and Artaxerxes bygges of Persia. And they performed the house vnto the thirde daye of the moneth Adar, that was the first yere of the reigne of bygge Darius.

And the children of Israel, the prestes, the Levites, and the other children of 3 caprynte helde the dedication of the house of God with ioye, and offered at the dedication of the house of God, one hundred calues, two hundred lambes, foure hundred goates: and for the synnoffryng for all Israel, twolue he goates, a cordinge to the nombre of the trybes of Israel, and set the prestes in their courses, and 3 Levites in their offices, to mynstre vnto God which is at Jerusalem, as it is wryten in the boke of Moses.

And the children of the caprynte helde Passouer upon the fourteenth daye of the first moneth for 3 prestes and Levites had purified them selues, so 3 they were all cleane as one man, and tylded Passouer for all the children of the caprynte, and for their brethre the prestes, and for them selues. And the childre of Israel which were come agayne out of captiuyte, and all such as had separated them selues vnto them from the filthi nest of the heythen in the londe, to sike the LORDE God of Israel, ate 2 helde the feast of unleued bread siben dayes with ioye: for the LORDE had made them glad, and turned the hart of the bygge of Assur vnto the, so that their handes were strengthened in the worke of the house of God, which is 3 God of Israel.

The vii. Chapter.

After these actes in the reigne of Artaxerxes bygge of Persia, there wente up from Babilon, Esdras the sonne of Seraia, the sonne of Azaria, the sonne of Helchias, the sonne of Salum, the sonne of Saboc, the sonne of Achob, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Azaria, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Ithabiah, 3 sonne of Ussi, the sonne of Buki, the sonne of Abias, the sonne of phinas, the sonne of Eleazar, the fonte of Aar on the chese priefe, which was a quyeſcribe in the lawe of Moſes, which the LORDE God of Iſrael dyd geue. And 3 kynge gaue him all that he requyred, acor-dinge to the hande of the LORDE his God vpon him.

And there were vp certayne of the children of Iſrael, and of the priefes, and of the Leuites of the ſyngers, of the porters, and of the Netthinims vnto Jeruſalem, in the ſeuenty yere of the kynge Artaxerſes. And they came to Jeruſalem in the fifth moneth, that is the ſeuenth yere of the kynge. For vpon the firſt daye of the firſt moneth, dreyſed he to go vp from Babilon: and on 3 firſt daye of the fifth moneth came he to Jeruſalem, according to the good hande of God vpon him: For Eſdras prepared his heart to ſeke the lawe of the LORDE, and to do it, and to teach the precepte & iudgment in Iſrael.

23 And this is the ſumme of the letter, that kynge Artaxerſes gaue vnto Eſdras the priefe, the ſcribe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the LORDE and of his ſtatutes ouer Iſrael. Vnto Eſdras the priefe and ſcribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and ſalutation. I haue commaunded, that all they of the people of Iſrael, and of the priefes and Leuites in my realme, which are mynded of their owne good wyll to go vp to Jeruſalem, that they go with the beynge ſent of the kynge and of the ſeuē lordes of the counsell, to viſit Iuda and Jeruſalem, according to the lawe of God, which is in thy hande: And that thou ſhouldeſt take with the, ſyluer and golde, which the kynge and the lordes of his counsell geue of their owne good wyll vnto the God of Iſrael: whoſe habitacion is at Jeruſalem: and all the ſyluer and golde that thou canſt fynde in all 3 countre of Babilon: with it that the people and priefes geue of their owne good wyll to the houſe of God at Jeruſalem.

24 Take thou the ſame, and bye diligently with the ſame money, calves, lambes, goats, and meate offeringes and drynke offeringes, to be offered vpon the altare of the houſe of your God at Jeruſalem. And loke what ſe thyſe the and thy brethren to do with the remaunce of the money, that do after the wyll of your God. And the veſſels that are geuen thee for the mynſtracion in the houſe of thy God, thoſe deliuer thou before God at Jeruſalem.

And what ſo ever thinge more ſhal be ne-ceſſary for the houſe of thy God, which is ne-ceſſary for the to ſpende, let the ſame be geue one of the kyngeſ chamber. I kynge Ar-taxerſes haue commaunded all the treaſure beyonde the water, 3 loke what ſo ever thy diſas the priefe and ſcribe in the lawe of thy God of heauen, requyred of you, that ye ſhal fulfill the ſame diligently, on wyll an hundred quarters of ſyluer, and eyll an hundred quarters of wheate, and eyll an hundred Demij of wyne, and eyll an hundred Demij of oyle, and ſalt without meaſure. What ſo belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauen, let the ſame be done with diligence in the houſe of the God of heauen, that there be no wyach vpon the kyngeſ realme in childe.

And knowe be it vnto you, that ye ſhal haue no accounte to requyre to paye: aſſe me, and yearly rentes vpon any of the portages, Leuites, ſyngers, porters, Netthinims and mynſters in 3 houſe of this God. And thou Eſdras, after the wyſdome of 3 that that is in thy hande ſet thou indges and bitters, to indge all the people that is betwix de Iordane, euen all ſuch as knowe the lawe of thy God: and them that knowe it not ſe ſe that ye teache. And who ſo ever wyll diligently fulfill the lawe of thy God, and the kyngeſ lawe, ſhall haue his indgement in the bette, whether it be vnto death, or to banyſhment, or to be condemned in good, or to be put in priſon.

Prayed be the LORDE God of our fathers, which ſo hath inſpyred 3 kyngeſ to geue 3 the houſe of God at Jeruſalem: and hath enclaymed his mercy vnto me in the preſence of the kynge, and his counſell, and before all the kyngeſ hye ſtates. And I was comforted (acordinge to the bidde of the LORDE my God our me) and ſo gaue 3 the heades of Iſrael together, 3 ſp mighte go vp with me.

The viij. Chapter.

25 Theſe are the heades of their fathers that were named, which wente up to me from Babilon, which came vnto the Artaxerſes reigned. Of the childe of Pheſeas, Geſſem: of the children of Iehonan, Daniel: of the children of Dauid, 3 the childe of Pareos, Zachary, and the childe nombred with him, an hundred and ſixtye. Of the children of Pahath Meſai, Eleonai the ſonne of Serabai, and 3 two hundred males.

Of the children of Secharias, the ſon of Jehaſir, and with him the hundred and ſeuen. Of the children of Adin, 3 the ſon of Jonathan, and with him the hundred and

Of the children of Elam, Iesaja the sonne of Iehobai, and with him threentie males. Of the children of Serphacia, Sebadaia the sonne of Michael, and with him fourescore males.

Of the children of Ioad, Obadaia the sonne of Iehiel, and with him two hundred and eightie men children. Of the children of Semeath, the sonne of Iosiphia, and with him an hundred and thre score males.

B Of the children of Zebai Zachary the sonne of Zebai, and with him eight and twenty males. Of the children of Zigad, Iohanna the youngest sonne, and with him an hundred and ten males. Of the last children of Iudoniam, and these were their names: Eli phiel, Ieiel and Semaia, and with them thre score males. Of the children of Digeuai, Zebai and Sabub, and with them sixtie males. And I gathered them together by the water that runneth towarde Athena, and there abode we thre dayes,

And when I looked amonge the people and the prestes, I founde no Leuites there. The first I writter, Ariel, Semaia, Elsnathan, Iah, Elsnathan, Macha, Zachary and Mesellan the rulers, and Joiarib and Elsnathan the teachers, and these were I vnto Iddo the deifit at Casiphia, that they shulde seche in mynster for the house of oure God, and telle them what they shulde saye vnto Iddo and to his brethren the Leuitims at Casiphia.

C And accordinge to the good hande of oure God upon us they broughte us a wyseman frome amonge the children of Iudabeli the sonne of Leui the sonne of Israel, euen Serabia with his sonnes and brethren, eighte. And Iesabia, and with him Iesaja of the children of Merari, with his brethren and their sonnes, twentye. And of the Techinims, Iudoniam and the princes gaue to myghte vnto the Leuites, two hundred and twentye, all named by name.

And when there at the water byside Athena, I sawe I a fastinge to be proclaimed, and we mighte humble oure selues before oure God, as see of him a righte waye for us, and our children and all oure substance. For I was ashamed to requyre of the kynge, sonne of Darius, to helpe us agaynst the enemye in the waye. For we had sayde vnto the kynge: The hande of oure God is for the best vpon all them that feare him, and his wisdome and reuenge vpon all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and soughte this at oure God, and he berde us.

D And I toke our euoiles of the chiefe prest:

tes, Serabia and Iesabia, and ten of their brethren with them, and weyed them there the siluer and golde and vessell for the house offeringe vnto the house of oure God, which the kynge, and the lordes of his counnail and princes, and all Israel that were at hande, had geuen to the house offeringe: and there weyed I them vnder their hande sixe hundred and fiftye talentes of siluer, and in siluer vessell an hundred and threentie, and in golde an hundred and threentie, twentye cappes of golde of a thousande guildens, and two certy ornaments of good bisse, as cleare as golde, and sayde vnto them: Ye are holy vnto the LORDE, therefore are the vessell holy also, and so is the siluer and golde that is geuen of a good will vnto the LORDE God of youre fathers: Waerch ye therefore and kepe it, tyll ye weye it vnto me before the chiefe prestes and Leuites, and auenture fathers of Israel at Jerusalem in the chiesse of the house of the LORDE. Then toke the prestes and Leuites that weyed siluer and golde a vessell, to bringe it to Jerusalem vnto the house of oure God.

So we bade vp, frome the water of Athena on the twelveth daye of the first moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon us, and deliuered us frō the hande of the enemies and prynt maynges by the waye. And we came to Jerusalem, and abode there thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the siluer and golde, and vessell weyed in the house of oure God vnder the hande of Iudoniam the sonne of Darius the prest, and with him Iesasar the sonne of Phineas, and with them Iosabab the sonne of Iesua, and Iudoniam the sonne of Darius the Leuites, accordinge to the nombre and weighte of every one. And the weighte was all written up at this same tyme.

And the children of the captiue, which were come out of prisson, offered burnt offeringe vnto the God of Israel: wolue hallockes for all Israel, sixe and threetye rammes, seven and threetye lambes, and twolue goates for a synofferinge, alio to the burnt offeringe of the LORDE. And they deliuered the kynges commissiō vnto the kynges officers, and to the deuytes on this syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

The IX. Chapter.

Shan all this was performed, the rulers came to me, and sayde: The people of Israel, and the prestes, and Leuites are not separated frome the nations to ij

in the londes as touching their abhominations, namely of the Canaanites, Hethites, Pherezites, Jebusites, Amorreues, Moabites, Egyptians, and Amorites. For they haue taken the daughters of the same, & their sonnes, and haue myxed the holy seede with y^e nations in the londes: and the hande of the rulers and lordes of counsell hath bene principall in this trespase.

When I herde this, I rente my clothes and my raiment, and plucked out the heere of my braide and of my beard, and sat mourning ge. And there rejoiced vnto me all such as feared the worde of the LORDE God of Israel because of the greates transgression. And I sat mourning vntill the euenynge sacrifice. And aboute the euenynge sacrifice I rose vp fro my hewnes, and rente my clothes and my raiment, and fell vpon my knees, and spread out my handes vnto the LORDE my God, and sayde:

Deu. 32. d

My God, I am ashamed, and darre not liue vp mine eyes vnto the my God: for oure wickednesse are growne ouer oure heade, & oure trespases are wayen grace vnto y^e heauens. Since the tyme of oure fathers haue we bene in greates trespase vnto this daie, and because of oure wickednesse haue we and o^r kynges bene deliuered in to the hande of y^e kynges of the nations, in to the swerde, in to captiuite, in to spoyle, and in to confusion of face, as it is come to passe this daie.

C

But now is there a litle and sobane graciousnes come from the LORDE oure God, so that some of vs are escaped, that he maie geue vs a name in his holy place, that oure God maye lighte oure eyes, and geue vs a litle lyfe in oure bondage. For we are bondmen, and God hath not forsake vs though we be bondmen, and hath enclined mercy vnto vs in the sighte of the kynges of Persia, that they shalbe geue vs lyfe, and promote the house of oure God, and to set vp the desolacion therof, and to geue vs an hebrege in Iuda and Jerusalem.

O oure God, what shal we saye now after this? that we haue forsaken thy commandementes, which thou hast commaunded by thy seruantes the prophetes, and sayde: The lord is wherin ye shal come to possesse it, is an vnclene londe thow the fylthines of the people of the londes, in their abhominacions wherewith they haue made it full of vnclames on euery syde. Therfore shal ye not geue youre daughters vnto their sonnes, and their daughters shall ye not take vnto youre sonnes, and sele not their pesce and welch for euer, that ye maye be strong, and enioye the good in the londe, and ye and youre children maye haue the substance of it for euermore.

And after all this that is come vpon vs (because of oure euill dedes and greates trespase) thou oure God hast spared oure wickednesse, and hast bene vs a deliuerance as it is come to passe.

As for vs, we haue turned backe, & haue let go chy commandementes, to make contracts with the people of thes abhominacions. Wilt thou then be wroth at vs, or wilt we be verely consumed, so that nothinge remaine, and tyll there be no deliuerance? O LORDE God of Israel, thou art righteous, for we remaine yet escaped, as it is this daie. Beholde, in chy presence are we in oure trespase, for because of it is there no standing before thee.

The X. Chapter.

And when Esdras prayed after this manner and knowynged, it was, and he was before the house of God, there returned vnto him oue of Israel a very greates congregation of men and women, and children: the people wepte very sore. And Sachan the sonne of Jehiel one of the children of Eliam, answered, and sayde vnto Esdras: We haue trespassed agaynst the LORDE our God, in that we haue taken strange wyues of all the people of the londe. Now thus hope yet in Israel concerning this, that we see we make a covenante now with ourself, that we shal put awaye all the wyues (and such as are borne of them) conyng to the counsell of y^e LORDE, and of them that sitte the commandement of oure God, y^e maye do a conyng to the lawe. Or the vtther so, for the matter belongeth vnto thee. We will be with thee, be of good comfort, and do it.

Then rose Esdras, and toke an euy of the rulers, prestes and Levites, and of all Israel, that they shulde be accordinge to this worde: and they iuere. And Esdras sat vp before the house of God, and wente in to the chamber of Jehohan the sonne of Eliab. And when he came thither, he sawe much, and diantle no water: for he was moued because of the transgression of them that had bene in captiuite.

And they caused a proclamation be made thow oue Iuda and Jerusalem, vnto all the children which had bene in captiuite, that they shulde gather them selues together to Jerusalem: And that who soeuer cometh when the dayes accordinge to the dayes of the rulers and Elders, all his substance shalbe restored, and he put out from the congregation of the captiue.

C Then all the men of Juda and Ben Iamin gathered them selues together vnto Jerusalem in the dayes, y^e is on the twentieth daye of the ninth month: and all the people sat in the streete before the house of God, and assembled because of the matter, and for the sayne. And Esdras y^e prest stood vp, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue transgressed, y^e ye haue taken strange wyues, to make the disgrace of Israel yet more: confesse now therfore vnto y^e LORD God of youre fathers, & do his pleasure, and separate youre selues from the people of the lande, & from y^e strange wyues. The answered all the congregation, & sayde with loude voyce: Let it be done as thou hast sayde. But the people are many, & it is a raynye weather, & they can not stand here without, neither is this a worke of one daye or two, for we are many y^e haue offended in this transgression. Let vs appointe our rulers therfore in all the congregation, y^e all the which haue taken strange wyues in oure ciues, maye come at the tyme appointed, and the Elders of every cite and ther Judges with them, vntill the month of our God because of this matter be turned awaye from vs.

Then were appointed Jonathan the sonne of Asabel & Jehosia the sonne of Ezechias ther this matter. And Misellam and Sabbai the Levites helpe them. And the children of the captiue dyd euen so. And Esdras the prest, and y^e ancient fathers thorum the house of their fathers, and all that were now rebaptized by name, separated the selues, and sat them downe on the first daye of the tenth month, to examinate this matter. And on y^e first daye of y^e first month brought they the matter to a conclusion, concerninge all the men y^e had take strange wyues.

C And amonge the childre of the prestes the were men fownde y^e had take strange wyues, namely amonge the children of Iehsa the sonne of Joiach & of his brether, Maaseia, Eliezer, Jari & Godolia. And they gaue ther halde there upon, that they wold put awaye their wyues: & for their trespass offered they to geue a rāme for their trespass. Amonge the children of Jimmer, Hanani & Sababai. Amonge the childre of Isurim, Maaseia, Elia, Semai, Jehiel, and Osi. Amonge y^e children of Paschim, Elioenai, Maaseia, Jussual, Techemai, Josabab & Eleasa. Amonge the Levites, Josabab, Simai and Celicia, he is that Celicia, perhaps, Juda & Eleasar. Amonge the singers, Eliafih. Amonge the porters, Gallum, Teim and Ozi.

Of Israel. Amonge the children of parros, Ramia, Jesia, Malacia, Metamin, Eleasar, Malchia & Denai. Amonge y^e children of Elam, Machania, Zachary, Jehiel, Abby, Jeremoch & Elia. Amonge the children of Sachu, Eliomai, Eliafih, Machania, Jeremoch, Sabab & Ahisa. Amonge the children of Debai, Johanan, Hanania, Sabab & Abiai. Amonge the children of Benai, Misellam, Maluch, Abai, Josub, Seal and Jeremoch. Amonge the children of Pahath Moab, Abna, Cheloi, Denai, Maasa, Nathania, Dezael, Benui and Manasse. Amonge the children of Sarim, Elezer, Jesia, Malchia, Semai, Sumeon, De Jamin, Maluch & Samaria. Amonge the childre of Hosam, Jeremai, Machabai, Sabab, Eliphelct, Jeremai, Manasse & Simel. Amonge the childre of Dani, Maebai, Amram, Hucl, Denai, Debia, Chelus, Itai, Jeremoch, Eliafih, Machabai, Machai, Josan, Dani, Benai, Simel, Semai, Nathan, Abai, Madnabai, Saja, Sarai, Zfareel, Serenia, Samaria, Salum, Amaria, & Josaph. Amonge the childre of Itob, Jiel, Machabai, Sabab, Sebina, Jedbai, Joel, and Denai. All these had taken strange wyues. And amonge the same wyues there were some, that had borne children.

These are the actes of Zecharias the sonne of Achabias. He fou-ned in y^e twentieth yea-re, that I was in the castell at Tusan: and Hanani one of my brethren came with certayne me of Juda, and I asked them how the Jewes dyd that were deluyered, and escaped from the captivity.
And they sayde vnto me: The remaines of the capti-uylte are there in the londe in greate myffoiaunce and reboule. The walles of Jerusalem are broken downe, and the portes therof are bren-ned with fyre.

When I herde these woordes, I sat me downe and wept, and mourned two dayes, and fasted, and prayed before the God of heauen, and sayde: O LORDE God of heauen, thou greates and terribles God, thou y^e keepes the covenante and mercy for them y^e love: the y^e obserue thy com-mandementes: let y^e care markes, let thy cities be open, y^e thou mayest heare the prayer of y^e seruantes, which I praye now before y^e daye, and nighte for the children of Iuda: thy seruantes, and thou wylte spise the synnes of the children of Iuda, which we haue comyted agaynst the.

23 And y^e my fathers house haue synned also. We haue bene corrupte vnto the, in y^e we haue not kepte the commandementes, statutes, and lawes, which thou commaundest y^e seruaunt Moses. Now call to remembraunce y^e woordes that thou commaundest thy ser-uaunt Moses, and saydest: If ye trasgress, then wyl I heare you abode amonge the nacion. But yf ye turne vnto me, and kepe my commandementes, I wyl do them: though ye were cast out vnto the vtremost parte of heauen, yet wyl I gather you from thence, and wyl bringe you from thence, euē vnto the place, that I haue chosen for my name to dwell there. They are thy ser-uautes, and thy people, whom thou hast deluyered: thou shalt gide power to myghte hande. O LORDE, let the care markes the praye of thy ser-uautes, and let thy seruantes praye to feare thy name, and let thy seruantes professe this daye, and graunte him mercy in the sight of this man: for I was the kynge's bond.

The ii. Chapter.

In the month Nisan of the twentieth yere of the kynge Artaxerxes, the wyne stode before him, I toke up the wyne, and gaue it vnto y^e kynge, and I was heuy in his presence. Then sayde y^e kynge vnto me: Why lokest thou so sadly? Thou art not sick, there is noe vyll matter, but thou art heuy harted. Wherefore I was sin-naryd, and sayde vnto the kynge: God hath thynges liue for ever, shal I not loke sady: the care of my fathers burayll, and y^e the poyntes therof are consumed with thynges. Then sayde the kynge vnto me: What is thy request? Then made I my prayer to the God of heauen, and sayde vnto the kynge, and y^e thy seruante is wowed in thy sight, I beseeche the for I was vnto Iuda vnto y^e care of my fathers burayll, that I maye buye it.

And y^e kynge sayde vnto me, and so toke y^e queene y^e sat by him: How loge shal thy knyghte conyure, and what wyl thou come agayne?
And he pleased y^e kynge to sende me, and I set him a tyme, and sayde vnto the kynge: If it please the kynge, let him geue me letters in the Debites beyonde y^e water, y^e they may conuey me ouer, tyll I come vnto Iuda: I lette me vnto Nisaph the lord of the kynge wood, y^e he maye geue me wedde for ballast the gates of the palace, which are halden in the Debites beyonde the before the Diagon wall, & to the Dongerpozt. & considered the walles of Jerusalem that were broken downe, & the postes thereof consumed wth the fyre. And I wente ouer vnto the Wall pozt, & to the bygges conuoye, & there was no remaine formy best, for it coulde goe no more. Then wote I on in the nyghte by the lighte of the mone, & considered the wall, & turned backe, & came home agayne to the walley pozt.

D And the milers knewe not whither I wote, as was I joyd: for hither to had I not tolde the James & the prestes, the counsellors & the milers, & the other that laboured in the worke, & I saide vnto thei: These the myserye that we are in. Nowe Jerusalem lynch n^o ayll, & howe the gates thereof are brent & fyre, come, let vs buylde vp the walles of Jerusalem, for we be none other thane. And I tolde thei of the good haire of my God which was vnto me: And the bygges wot that he had spoke vnto me. And they saide: Then let vs goe up. And we buylde, and their handes were strenghted to good.

When Sabanaballat the Geronite, and Tobias the seruante of the Ammonites, & Gosen the Arabian heretic, they laughed vnto vs, & saide: What is this that ye do: Whyl ye fall awaie agayne from the bygge: Then answered I them, and saide: The God of heauen shall cause vs to profp^{er}: for we his seruantes are gotten vp, & are buyldinge. As for you, ye haue no pot^{er} and n^o right, n^o remembraunce in Jerusalem.

The iii. Chapter.

And Eliasib the hie prest get him vp with his brether the prestes, and buylde the Shepegate. They halowed it, and set vp the doores of it: euen vnto the tower Mea halowed they it, namely vnto the tower of Sanael. Texte vnto him buylde the men of Jericho. And besyde him buylde Sachar the sonne of Imi. But the thylp^one of the chyldren of Senaa buylde, they covered it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres of it. Texte vnto him buylde Meremoth the sonne of Onia the sonne of Saccos. Texte vnto him buylde Mesullem the sonne of Barachias the sonne of Meisael. Texte vnto him buylde Sadoc the sonne of Baana. Texte vnto him buylde they of Thecoa. But their accare me put not their neckes to the seruaice of their loide.

D The Ddgate buylde Joiada the sonne of Passah, & Mesullem the sonne of Zerobab: they covered it, and set on the doores, lockes & barres of it. Texte vnto them buylde Melchior of Gibeon, and Jadan of Mlorono, and Obadiah and of Mispa, for the feare of the Debye on this syde the water. Texte vnto him buylde Nhil the sonne of Scharbia the goldsmith. Texte vnto him buylde Hanania the sonne of Zecoray sonne, & they repayed the russet vnto the dyde wall. Texte vnto him buylde Acphnia the sonne of Sur, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Jerusalem. Texte vnto him buylde Jedaia the sonne of Saramaph, ouer agaynst his house. Texte vnto him buylde Saccus the sonne of Saba-bema. But Malchia the sonne of Saram, and Sabas the sonne of Sabach Moad buylde the other pece, and the tower beside the same. Texte vnto him buylde Sallum the sonne of Sulohe the ruler of the halfe quarter of Jerusalem, and his daughter.

The walley gate buylde Hanum, and the carefins of Sanaah. They buylde it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres thereof, and a thorsande cubytes on the wall, vnto the Ddgerpozt. But the Dongerpozt buylde Malchia the sonne of Reebah, the ruler of the fourth parte of the wyngarden: he buylde it, & set on the towe, lockes & barres thereof. But the Wallgate buylde Sallum the sonne of Chahose, the ruler of the fourth parte of Mispa: he buylde it, & covered it, & set on the doores, lockes, & barres thereof, & the wall vnto the pole of Sybah by the bygges garden, vnto the steepe that goe downe from the cite of Dauid. After him buylde Tebemia the sonne of Ahab, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Bethsur, vntill the other syde ouer agaynst the sepulchres of Dauid, and to the pole Auisa, & vnto the house of the myghtie.

After him buylde the Leuites, Rehem the sonne of Dani. Texte vnto him buylde Sabab the ruler of the halfe quarter at Regila in his quarter. After him buylde their brether, Danai the sonne of Sanaab, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Segila. After him buylde the sonne of Sessia the ruler of Mispa, the other pece hard ouer agaynst the thorsent corner. After him buylde Baroc the sonne of Sabai the other pece w^oshippa fully & c^ollij, sith the corner vnto the doore of the house of Eliasib the hie prest. After him buylde Meremoth the sonne of Onia the sonne of Saccos the other pece, sith the doore of Eliasib, vnto the ende of the house of Eliasib. After him buylde the prestes, the m^o of the countie. After him buylde Ben Jamin and Sabas ouer agaynst their house. After thei buylde Asaria the sonne of Maclia, the sonne of Anania: vnto his house. After him buylde Benai the sonne of Sanaab the other pece: from the house of Asaria unto the twentyng, and unto the corner.

After him buylded palat the sonne of Osi, ouer agaynst the corner & the hye corner, which lieth out ouer fro the kynges house, he sydebe the course of the prison. After him Pedaia the sonne of Pareos (As for y^e Techinims they dwelt in Ophel, unto y^e Watergate, towards the east where y^e tower lieth out) After him buylded they of Thecoa y^e other pece ouer agaynst y^e greate tower, y^e lieth out wards, and unto the wall of . Ophel.

a. Pa. s. c. 3

But from the isogate south buylded y^e prestes, euery one ouer agaynst his house. After them buylded Saboc y^e sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. After him buylded Semia the sonne of Sachania y^e Dept of the eastgate. After him buylded Samania the sonne of Selemia, & Hanum the sonne of Zalaph y^e first, y^e ether pece. After him buylded Melullam the sonne of Beredia ouer agaynst his churche. After him buylded Malchia the goltsmythos sonne, vntill y^e house of the Techinims, and of the marchauntes ouer agaynst the counsell gate, and to the peiler in the corner. And betwene the peiler of the corner unto the Shepegate buylded the gold smythes and the marchauntes.

The iii. Chapter.

B When Saneballat herde that we buylded y^e wall, he was wroth, & toke greate indignacion: & mooued y^e Jewes & saide before his biethen & the mightie men of Samaria: What do the importēt Jewes? shall they be thus suffred: shall they offer? shall they perforce me in one daie? shall they make y^e stones whole againe, y^e are brought to dust, & brunt? And Tobias the Ammonite beside him saide: Let the builde on, yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe their stony wall. Heare O thou oure God, how we are despised, curst their shame vpon their awne heads, y^e thou mayest gene them ouer in to despisinge in the londe of their captiuite. Couer not their wickednesse, & put not out their sinne fro y^e presence: for they haue prouoked the buylders. We buylded the wall, & ioy ned it whole together, vnto y^e halfe heicht. And the people were well mynded to labo^r.

B But when Saneballat, & Tobias, and y^e Arabias, & Ammonite, & Asbedites herde, y^e the walles of Ierusalem were made vp, and that they had begonne to stoppe vp y^e gappes, they were very wroth, and despised all together, to come and fighe agaynst Ierusalem, to make an hinderaunce therein. Therefore we made o^r prayer vnto oure God, & set watchmē vpo the wall daye & night ouer agaynst them. And Iuba saide: The strenght of the bearers is to fible, & there is to much dust, we are not able to builde on the wall. And o^r aduersaries thought: They shall knowe neither se, eyll we come in the myddes amonge the, and slaye them, & bynd y^e man Pe. But when the Jewes that dwelt betwixt them, came out of all the places where they dwelt aboute vs, and tolde vs as good as good tymes, then saie y^e the people a fear churche: & rebu with their ierides, I peates & bowmen in the lome places behynde the wall, & looked, and gar me vp, and sayde vnto the churche men and rulers, & to the other people: Be not ye afrayed of them, theyntē vpon y^e greate LORDE which oughe to be feared, & light for y^e biethen, sonnes, daughters, wyues, & house. Therefore whan o^r enemies herke y^e we had goeten woode of it, God brought their counsell to naught, and we turned agayne to the wall, euery one vnto his labo^r. And from that tyme forth it came to passe, y^e the halfe parte of the yonger men by the labour, & the other halfe parte helde the speare, shylde, bowes, and best places, and the rulers stode behynde all the house of Iuda, which buylded on the wall, & bare burdis, from choise that labo^r the. With one hand byd they y^e woike, and with the other helde they the weapen. And euery one y^e buyld, had his swerde giue by his side, to foibidde they. And the trompetters stode beside me.

And I saide vnto the pyncipal man, & rulers, and to y^e other people: The walles greete & large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. I lobe in wher place now ye heare the noise of y^e trompet force ye thither vnto vs. Oure God shall fight for vs, & we wil be labourige in y^e woike. And the halfe parte of the helde y^e speares sit y^e mouninges spinge, till y^e starres came forth. And at y^e same tyme saide I vnto y^e people: Every one abyde with his seruante at Ierusalem, y^e in the night (as for we maye; get our endaunce to y^e watch, and to laboure in the daye tyme. As for me and my biethen & my seruantes, and y^e men of the watch behynde me, we put neuer of oure clothes, so so much as to washe the oure selves.

The v. Chapter.

When there arose a greate complayn of y^e people, & of their wyues agaynst their biethen the Jewes. And that were some y^e sayde: oure sonnes and daughter are to many, let us take some for this eate, that we maye lyue. Some sayde: Let us see of londes, vnynyardes & houses to plant, & take vp come in the death. But some sayde: Let vs borrowe money of the Kinge vnto

17 for our londes and wyngardes. Now are our brethren bodie as our awne bodie, and their children as our children: els shulde we subdue our sones and daughters unto bondage, and some of our daughters are subdued already, and no strength is there in our handes, and other men shal haue our londes and wyngardes.

But when I herde their complainte and saw wofulnes, it displeasid me sore, and I advised so in my mynde, I rebuked the coun-sellers, and the rulers, and sayde vnto them:

18 Wyl ye requyre vsury one of another: And I thought a greete congregacion agaynst them, and sayde vnto them: We (a fewe cure siders) haue boughte our brethren the Jewes, which were sold vnto the heythens.
And wyl ye sell youre brethren, whom we haue boughte vnto vs: Then helde they their pace, & coude synne nothinge to answer.

19 And I sayde: It is not good that ye do.
Oughte ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heythens our enemies: I and my brethren, and my seruantes we haue lent them money and come: but as for vnyng, let vs restore it. Therfore this same daye I that ye restore the their londes agayn us, their wyngardes, oyle gardenes and houses, and the hundredth parte of the money of the come, wyne and oyle that ye haue recei-ued of them. Then sayde they: We wyl restore them agayne, and wyl requyre nothinge of them, and wyl do as thou hast spoken. And I called the prestes, and took an oath of the,
that they shulde do so. And I shot my lap-pe, and sayde: God shake out every man after the same maner frō his house and laboure, that maynteyneth not this woide: euen thus he shal be shaken out, and voyde. And all the congregacion sayde: Amen, and praised the LORDE. And the people dyd so.

20 And from the tyme forth that it was commanded vnto me to be a Debyte in the londe of Iuda, namely from the twentieth yeare vnto the two and thirtiech yeare off kyng Zeraxartes (that is twofoure yeare) I and my brethren tyed not of such sustenante as was gemen to a Debyte: for the olde Debytes that were before me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, and had take of the bud and wyne, and fortye cycles of syluer: And other seruantes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I, and that because of the feare of God. I laboured also in the woite vpon the wall, and boughte no lode. And all my seruantes came thither together vnto I worke. Moreover there were at my table an hundred and fiftie of the Je-wes and rulers, which came vnto me, from amonge the heythens, that are about vs.

And there was prepared me bayle an oyle, and fise chosyn shype, and bynde, and eat once in ten dayes a greete summe of wyne.
But requyred not I the kynging of a Debyte for I bondage was gremous vnto I people.
Thynke vpon me my God vnto I best, accordyng to all that I haue done for the people.

The VI. Chapter.

21 And when Saneballat, Tobias and Gosim the Arabian, and the other of our enemyes herde, that I had buy-ded the wall, and that there were no mo gap-pes ther in, howbeit at the same tyme had I not hanged the doores vpon the gates (Saneballat and Gosim sent vnto me, sayenges Come and let vs meet together in the wyllages vpon the platme of the cite One. Their cheles they thoughte to do no euill. Tuo-wylthondryng I sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: I haue a greete buynges rode, I can not come downe. The woite shul-de stonde still, yf I were negligent, and came downe to you. howbeit they sent vnto me as good as foure tymes after the same maner.
And I gaue the same answer.

22 Then sent Saneballat his seruante vnto me the fifth tyme, with an open letter in his hande, wherein was written: It is colde the heythens, & Gosan hath sayde us, that them and the Jewes thynke to rebell: for I which cause thou buydest the wall, and wyle be their kyng in chesimartara, and hast ordeyned the prophetes to preach of the at Jerusalem, and to saye: He is kyng of Iuda.

23 Now shal this come to the kynges ea-res: come now therfore, and let vs take our councell together. Neuertheles I sent vnto him, sayenge: There is no such thinge done as thou sayest: thou hast sayned it out of thi ne owne hart. For they were all mynbede to make us a frayte, and thoughte: They shal weildome their handes from the woite. I they shal not labour. howbeit I strenght my hande the more.

24 And I came vnto I house of Semaiā I soune of Delaiā the sonne of Medothabael, & he had shut him selfe within. I sayde: Let vs come together in to I house of God, and vnto I myddes of I cite, & I spare I doores of I cite: for they wyl come to slaye I, yett not the night wyl they come to see the ro deach.
But I sayde: Shulde such a mā fyre: Shalde such a mā as I am, go in to I cite, so I saue his life: I wyl not go in.

For I perceived, that God had not sent him: yet spake he prophesye upon me, neuer thelesse Tobias and Saneballar had hired him for money. Therfore toke he the money, that I shoulde be astrayed, and so to do and synne, that they might haue an small repute of me, to blaspheme me. My God thynke thou vpon Tobias and Saneballar, a cōfyrmyng vnto thesē their woikes, and of þe prophēt Nabid, and of the other prophetes, þe wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynyshed on the fyue & twentyeth daye of the moneth Elul, in two and fyfthe dayes. And whan all o enemies herde therof, all the heithen þe were aboute vs, were a fraied, and their courage failed the: for they perceaued, that this woike came of God. And at þe same tyme were there many of þe chete of Iuda, whose letters were vnto Tobias, & from Tobias vnto them: for there were many in Iuda that were swome vnto him: for he was the somme in lawe of Sacharia the sonne of Arab, and his sonne Johanan had the daughter of Misellam the sonne of Barachia, and they spake good of him before me, and tolde him my woordes. And Tobias sent letters, to put me in feare.

The vii. Chapter.

Now whan we had buylded the wall gates, syngers and Leuites were appointed. And I commaunded my brother Sani, and Hanania the ruler of the palace at Jerusalem: for he was a faithfull man, and feared God more then byd many other: and I sayde vnto him: Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened vntyll the Sonne be wbole. And whyle they are yet stondinge in the watch, the doores shall be shute and barred. And there were certayne citifens of Jerusalem appointed to be watchmen, every one in his watch, and aboute his house. As for þe cite, it was large of roome, and greate, but þe people were fewe chetyn, and the houses were not buylded.

And my God gaue me in my hert, that I gatherd together the pyncipall men and þe people, to nombre them, and I founde a register of their nombre, which came up aforsēt out of the captiuyte (whom Nabuchodonosor þe kyng of Babilō had carryd away) and dwelt at Jerusalem and in Iuda, every one vnto his cite, and were come with Zorobabel, Iesua, Nehemias, Asaria, Raamia, Tabeman, Nardachai, Bilan, Mispereth, Bigenai, Trithim and Baena.

This is the nombre of the men of the peo ple of Israel. The children of Paros were two thousande, an hundred and two and fentye: The children of Sepharai, the hundred and two and fentye: the children of Arach, sixe hundred and two and fyfye: the children of Pahach, the hundred and two and fyfye: the children of Iesua and Joab, two thousande, eight hundred, and eighty: the children of Ielam, a thousande, two hundred, and foure and fyfye: the children of Sacha, eight hundred and fyfye and foure: the children of Sacaai, sixe hundred and the score: the children of Zeman, sixe hundred, and eight and forty: the children of Debai, sixe hundred and eight and twenty: the children of Asgad, two thousande, the hundred and two and twenty: the children of Adoniam, sixe hundred and the score: the children of Biguai, two thousande, and seven and the score: the child of Adin, sixe hundred and fyfye: the children of Ater of Ezechias, eight and nynty.

The prestes. The children of Iedaia of the house of Iesua, nyne hundred and the score and fentye: the children of Immer, a thousande and two and fyfye: the children of Pashur, a thousande, two hundred and foure and forty: the children of Sarim, a thousande and fentye.

The Leuites. The children of Iesua of Cadmiel amonge the children of Saron, foure and fentye. The syngers. The children of Assaph, an hundred and eight and forty.

And these wente up also: Michal, Melea, Thehania, Aherub, Abdd, Immer: but they made not shewe their fathers house nor their seed, whether they were of Israel. The children of Delaia, the children of Tobia, and the children of Tecoza, were six hundred and fortye. And of the prestes were, the children of Sabaaia, the children of Sacozi, the children of Basillai, which toke one of the daughters of Basillai the Gileadite to wyfe, and was named after their name. These soughte the register of their generacion, and when they founde it not, they were put from the prest hood. And Sachirfacha sayde vnto them, the people shulde not care of the most holy, yll there came up a prest wth the light and perfectness.

The whole congregacion as one man, was two and thre thousande three hundred, and the score: besyde their seruantes and wyues, of whom there were seven thousande three hundred and sixe and thirtie. And they had two hundred and seven and fortye synge men and women seven hundred and sixe and thirtie boyes, two hundred and sixe and fortye Mules, foure hundred and sixe and thirtie Camels, sixe thousande sixe hundred and twentye Asses.

And certayne of the anointed fathers came vnto the worke. Sachirfacha gaue to the treasure a thousande golden, sixe basins, sixe hundred and thirtie purple garmentes. And some of the chiefe fathers gaue vnto the treasure of the worke, two thousande golden, two thousande and two hundred pounde of silver. And the other people gaue two thousande golden, and two thousande pounde of silver, and sent also thre score prestes garmentes. And the prestes and Leuites, the Porters, the synge, and the other of the people, and the Levitims, and all Israel, dwelt in their cities.

The VIII. Chapter.

When the fourth moneth was nye, and the children of Israel were in their cities, all the people gathered them selues together as one man vpon the streete before the Watergate, and sayde vnto Esdras the scribe, that he shulde seche the booke of the lawe of Moyses, which the LORD commanded Israel. And Esdras the prest broughte the lawe before the congregacion both of men and women, and of all that coulde vnderstande it, vpon the first daye of the fourth moneth, and red therein in the streete that is before the Watergate, from the light morninge vntill the noone daye before men and women and soch as coulde vnderstande it: and the eares of all the people were directed vnto the booke of the lawe. And Esdras the scribe stode vpon an hye pulpit of wood, which they had made for the preachinge, and beside him stode Nathirphia, Sama, Anania Dina, Lechias, and Masia on his right hand: And on his left hande stode Pedaiia, Misael, Malchia, Hasim, Saphadana, Zachary and Mesulam.

And Esdras opened the booke before all the people, for he stode aboue all the people. And when he opened it, all the people stode up. And Esdras prayd the LORD the greates God. And all the people answered Amen. Amen, with their handes up, and bowed the selues, and worshipped the LORD with their faces to the ground. And Jesu, Bani, Serubia, Jamin, Acub, Sabebai, Sodoia, Matasia, Edita, Masia, Josabab, Hanan, Plata, and the Leuites, caused the people to knee before vnto the lawe, and the people stode in their place. And they red in the booke of the lawe of God distinctly and plainly, so that men vnderstode the thinge that was red. And Tebeemas (which is Sachirfacha) and Es-was the priest and scribe, and the Levites & caused the people to take heed, sayde unto all the people: This daye is holy unto the LORD your God: be not ye fery therfore, & wepe not for all y^e people weper, wha they herde the wordes of the lawe.

C Thertise sayde he unto them: Go your waye, and eate the fat, and drinke the sweet, and sende parte unto them also that have not prepared themselves: for this daye is holy unto our LORD E, be not ye fery therfore for the ioye of the LORD is your strength. And the Levites stylled all the people, and sayde: holde your peace, for the daye is holy, vnto noe ye youre selass. And all the people wente their waye to eate and drinke, and to sende parte vnto other, and to make greater mych, for they had vnderstonde the wordes that were declared vnto them.

And on the next daye were gathered together the chiefe fathers amonge all the people, and the prestes and Levites, vnto Esdras the scribe, that he shoulde teach them y^e wordes of the lawe. And they founde wri-ten in the lawe, how that the LORD had commanded by Moyses, that the childre of Israel shoulde dwell in boches in the feast of the seventh moneth. And so they caused it be declared and proclaimed in all their cities, & at Jerusalem, sayinge: Go vp vnto y^e mount and fetch Olive banniches, Pyncbanniches, Myrtbanniches, Palmebanniches, & banniches of the cecreces, to make boches as it is written.

And y^e people wente up, and fered the, and made them boches, euery one vpon the roofe of his house, and in their courtes, and in the courtes of the house of God, and in the streete by the Watergate, and in the streete by Ephraims porte. And all the congregation of them that were come agayne out of the captiuite, made boches, and dwelt therein:
for since the tyme of Josua the sonne of N vnto this daye, had not the children of Israel done so, and there was very greate neste. And euery daye from the first daie vnto the last, red he in the booke of the lawe of God. And seven dayes halde they the feast, on the right daye they gatherynge together, a comynge vnto the maner.

The IX. Chapter.

And the foure and twentieth daye of this moneth came the childre of Israel together with fasting and sack clothes, and stand vpon them, and separated the seede of Israel from all the straunge children, and seide and knowledged their synnes, and the wickednesse of their fathers, and stode up in their place, and red in the booke of the lawe of the LORD thei God seven tymes on the daye, and they knowledged, and worshipped the LORD their God seven tymes on the daye. And the Levites stode in bye, namely Josua, Dani, Cadmiel, Saba-nia, Dani, Serchia, Dani, and Chonani, and cryed loude vnto the LORD their God. And the Levites, Josua, Cadmiel, Dani, Saba-nia, Serchia, Sodia, Sebania, Pachabab, sayde: Stande vp, praye the LORD our God for euer: and let thanke be geue vnto the name of thy gloire, which ex ceileth all chargesynge and praye. LORD, thou art al-me, thou hast made heauen, and the hea-uene of all heaurns, with all their hoste, the earth and all that therein is, the See and all that is therin: thou geneest life vnto all, and y^e hoste of heaue bene themselves vnto the. Thou art the LORD God, that hast chosen Abi-raham and broughte him out of Ur in Chaldea, and called him Abraham, and founde his hum faithfull before the, and madest a covenant with him, to geue vnto his sene the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amozites, Hivites, Iebusites, and Gergisites, and hast made good thy wordes: for thou art righteous.

And hast considered the misery of our fathers in Egipte, and herde their complaint by the reed See, and shewed robes and makers vnto Pharao, and on all his seruantes, and on all his people of his lande: for thou knowest y^e they were pious persons & will agaynst them, & so madest thou the name as it is this daie. And the reed See parted thou in sander before them, so that they wnt therow the myddes of the See drye foot: their persecuters therewest them in to the dope as a stone, in the mightie waters, and best them on the daye tyme in a cloudy pyler, and on the night season in a pillar of fyr, to steare them lighte in the waye y^e they wente.

Thou camest downe also vnto mount Sinai, and spakest vnto them from heaue, and gavest them righte iudgements, and lawes, good commandementes and statutes, and declared vnto them thy holy Sabbath, and commanded them preceptes, ordinaunces, and lawes, by Moyses thy seruante: and ge-west them hied from heauen when they were hongry, and broughte forth water for them out of the rock: when they were thy-ste: and punished them, that they should go in, and take possession of the lande, wher swore thou habbest I sware vnto thyne hande in ermy, Passur, Amaria, Malchia, Satras, Sebania, Malluch, Sarim, Meremoth, Obadiah, Daniel, Sinthun, Baruch, Meisallam, Abia, Merimam, Manasa, Bilgai and Seman: these were priests.

The Levites were: Jesua & sonne of Asinias, Binai amonge the childre of Henadab, Cabniel. And their brethren: Sechania, Ho dia, Celicia, Plasia, Ganan, Micha, Kehob, Kasbia, Sachur, Serobia, Sebania, Hodia, Dani and Deninu. The heades of the people were: Pareos, Pabath Moab, Elam, Sathu, Dani, Dani, Asgab, Sebai, Adonia, Bigenai, Abia, Ater, Hezekias, Asur, Hodia, Kasum, Besai, Gariph, Anathob, Uebai, Magpias, Meisallam, Hefir, Mesesbed, Sa bec, Jaddus, plasia, Ganan, Anala, Hefus, Ganania, Hasub, Salobea, Pilba, Sobel, Kehum, Kasabna, Maesias, Abia, Ganan, Anan, Malluch, Sarim and Baena.

And the other people, the priests, Levites, Porters, Singers, Ueshimmo, & all they that had separated them selves from & people in the lodes vnto the lawe of God, with their wyues, sonnes and daughters, as many as coulde vnderstande it, and their lobes that had rule of them, receaued it for their brethren.

B And they came to sweate, and to bynde them selves with an eech to walke in Gods lawe, which was geuen by Moses the seruant of God, that they wolde obserue and do accordinge vnto all the commaundmentes, iudgements and statutes of the LORD our God: and that we wolde not geue our daughters vnto the people in the lode, neither to take their daughters for oure sonnes. 1. 18. 11. c. And yf & people of the lode broughte were on the Sabbath, and all manner of vntayles to sell, that we wolde not take it of them on the Sabbath and on the holy dayes. Leut. 25. a. Deut. 17. a. And that we wolde let the seaueth yeare be free concerninge all manner of charge.

C And he layde a statute vpon oure sines, to geue yearly & thirte parte of a Syde to the mynistracion in the house of oure God, namely to the shewbrod, to the daylie meate offeringe, to the daylie burnt offeringe of & Sabbathes, of the new mones and feast dayes, and to the thinges that were sanctified, and to the synofferings, to reconyle Israel with all, and to all the busynes in & house of oure God.

And we cast the lot amonge the priests, Levites and the people, for offeringe of & wood, to be broughte vnto & house of & God from yeare to yeare, after the houses of oure fathers, that it mighte be them as tymes appointed, vpon the altare of the LORD our God, as it is wyrtten in the same: and yearly to bringe the firstlinges of & londe, the firstlinges of oure frutes of all trees, year by yeare, vnto & house of the LORD: and the firstlinges of oure sonnes, and of oure cattle, as it is wyrtten in the lawe: and the firstlinges of oure oren and of oure shepe, that we shulde bringe all this to the house of oure God vnto the priestes that mynister in the house of oure God: and that we shulde bringe the firstlinges of oure beewe, and of oure sheue offeringes, and the frutes of all maner trees, of wyne also and of oyle, vnto the priestes to the chestes of the house of oure God. And the riches of & lode vnto the Levites, & the Levites mighte haue the riches in all the cities of oure mynistracion.

And the priest the sonne of Aaron shal be the Levites haue also of the riches of & Levites, so that the Levites shal bringe vnto the riches of their riches vnto the house of oure God to the chest in & treasure house. For the children of Israel and the children of Leui shal bringe vnto the sheue offeringes of the come, wyne and oyle vnto the chestes, that are the vessels of the Sanctuary, & the priestes & mynister, and the porters & singers, & we shal kepe in the house of oure God.

The Xi. Chapter.

AND the rulers of the people dwelt at Jerusalem. But the other people call lottes therfore, so that amonge many parte wente to Jerusalem in to the holy come dwell, and nyne partes in the cities. And & people thantred all the men that were willinge to dwell at Jerusalem.

These are the heades of the londe that dwelt at Jerusalem. In the cities dwelt & da every one in his possession & was in that cities, namely Israel, the pusien, Levites, Ueshimmo, and the children of Salomons seruantes, and at Jerusalem dwelt certayn of the children of Juda & of Ben Jamma.

Of the children of Juda: Athaia the sonne of Abia & sonne of Zachary, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Sephazias, the sonne of Mabelaled, of the children of Pharae. And Maesias the sonne of Baruch, the sonne of Chal hose, the sonne of Gasania, the sonne of Abaia, the sonne of Joiarub, the sonne of Zachary, the sonne of Siloni. All the childre of Pharae that dwelt at Jerusalem, were foure C. and eight & thise score valcane men.

These are the childre of Ben Jamin: Silai the sonne of Meisallam, & sonne of Joh.

the sonne of Gedai, the sonne of Colai, & sonne of Meleai, the sonne of Jehiel, & sonne of Jesai. And after him Sabai, Gallai, and hundredth and eight and twenty. And Judai the sonne of Sathai had the oversight of them: and Judai & sonne of Hasnua over the seconde parte of the cite.

Of the prestes there dwelt: Jebai & sonne of Joiad, Jachin. Serai the sonne of Sadaie & sonne of Mesallam, the sonne of Sadoe, the sonne of Meraioch, the sonne of Sadoe, was prince in the house of God: & his brethren that persecuted the worke in & host: of whom there were v. ij. C. and xxij. And Adai the sonne of Jeroham, the sonne of Plai, the sonne of Ami, the sonne of Jahari, the sonne of Pasnur & his brethren, these were the fathers: of whom there were two hundredth and two and forty. And Amasai the sonne of Marai, the sonne of Abai, the sonne of Mesilemoth, the sonne of Immer: and his brethren were valiant men, of whom there were an hundredth and eight and twenty. And their overseer was Sadaie the sonne of Gedolim.

Of the Levites: Semaia the sonne of Gabai, the sonne of Biriam, the sonne of Sathai, the sonne of Dumi: And Sathai and Jushab of the chiefe of the Levites, in the outward busynesse of & house of God. And Machania the sonne of Mischa, the sonne of Sadaie, the sonne of Asaph, which was the principall to begynne the thankesguynginge unto prayer. And Bachuchia & seconde among his brethren, and Abda the sonne of Samai, the sonne of Galai, the sonne of Jehishan. All the Levites in the holy cite were two hundredth and some & foure score. And porters Acub and Talman, and their brethren & kepte the portes, were an hundredth and two and twenty. As for the residue of Israel, the prestes and Levites, they were in all the cities of Juda, every one in his inheritance.

And the Netthinims dwelt in Ophel: and Sipha and Gusha belonged unto the Netthinims. The overseer of the Levites at Jerusalem was Dsi the sonne of Bari, the sonne of Sathai, the sonne of Machania, the sonne of Mischa.

Of the children of Asaph there were synge about & busynesse in the house of God: for it was the byrges commandement concerning them, that & synge shoulde beate faithfully every daye as a cordinge was.

And Pehua the sonne of Mesabed of the childen of Serai the sonne of Juda was over the synge in all matters concerninge the people. And the children of Juda that were without in the courtes of their londe, dwelt some at Arisay Arva, and in the wyllages thereof: & at Dibon, and in the wyllages thereof: and at Cabzeel, and in & wyllages thereof: and at Jesai, Melaba, Bethpalez, Gasarsai, Bersaba and in their wyllages: & at Sicalag and Mochona, and in their wyllages: And at Erimmen, Zarega, Jeremuth, Sanoah, Adullam and in their wyllages: & at Sichei, and in the felde thereof: & at Asefa, and in the wyllages thereof: and dwelt from Bersaba unto the valley of Ginnon.

The children of Ben Jamin of Gaba, dwelt at Michmas, Aia, Bethel and in their wyllages. And at Anathoth, Tob, Anania, Hazor, Rama, Bithaim, Gath, Ziboin, Uballat, Leod, Ono & in the Carpenters valley. And certayne of the Levites & had possessions in Juda, dwelt in Ben Jamin.

The xlii. Chapter.

These are & prestes and Levites that wente up with Zorobabel & sonne of Sathaiel and with Jesai: Serai, Jeremi, Esdras, Amaria, Maluch, Sathai, Sebania, Rehum, Marmoth, Judo, Gintoi, Abia, Meiamin, Maadai, Bilga, Semaia, Joiarib, Jebai, Sallu, Amel, helchias & Jebai. These were the heades amonge the prestes and their brethren in the tyme of Jesai. The Levites were these: Jesai, Damiel, Cadmiel, Serobia, Judo and Mathania, over the office of thankesguynginge, they & their brethren: Bachuchia & Dumi and their brethren, were aboute them in the watches.

Jesai begat Joachim. Joachim begat Eliashib. Eliashib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan. Jonathan begat Jaddua. And in the tyme of Joachim were these the chiefe fathers amonge the prestes: namely of Serai was Meraia, of Jeremi was Sannania, of Esdras was Mesallam, of Amaria was Johanan, of Maluch was Jonathan, of Sebania was Joseph, of Harim was Adai, of Meraioch was Helcai, of Judo was Zachary, of Gintoi was Mesallam, of Abia was Elchai, of Meiamin Maadai was Pilrai, of Bilga was Sannas, of Semaia was Jonathan, of Joiarib was Machmai, of Jebai was Dsi, of Sallu was Callai, of Amel was Uzer, of helchias was Sathai, of Gedai, was Tethanel.

And in the tyme of Eliashib, Joiada, Jonathan and Jaddua, were the chiefe fathers amonge the Levites, and the prestes wynt under the ruigne of Darus & Persian. The children of Levi the principall fathers were written in the Cronicles, vntill the tyme of Iohanan the sonne of Elisib. And these were the chiefe amonge the Levites, Hosabab, Serobia and Iesua the sonne of Cadmiel, & their diarchen ouer agaynst them, to geue playe and thanke, accordinge as Dauid & ma of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer a gaynyt anoether. Nathania, Zabubchia, Obadiah, Mesullam, Talmon and Zub were posteres in the watch at the thursholdes of the gates. These were in the tyme of Ioiachim the sonne of Iesua the sonne of Iosebec, and in the tyme of Nehemias the Deputy, and in the first Esdras the scribe.

C And in the dedication of the wall at Jerusalem, were the Levites soughte out of all their places, that they mighte be broughte to Jerusalem, to kepe & dedication in gladnesse, with thankesguynges, with synnyng, with Cymbales, psalteries and harpes. And the children of the syngers gathered the selues together from th: playne countre aboute Jerusalem, and from the villages of Teshophachi, and from the house of Gilgal, & out of the felde of Gibeon & Asinath: for the children had buylded them villages aboute Jerusalem. And the prestes and Levites purified them selues, and censed the people, the gates and the wall.

And I caused the prynces to go vp upon the wall, and appointed two greate queenes of thankesguyng, which were on the right hande of the wall towards the Donggate, and a fyer them were Hosabab, and halfe of the prynces of Iuda, & Asaria, Esdras, Mesullam, Iuda, Ben Jamin, Semai and Jeremy: and certayne of the prestes chyldre & trompettes, namely Zachary & sonne of Ioiathan, the sonne of Semai, the sonne of Nathania, the sonne of Michai, the sonne of Sachur, the sonne of Assaph, and his brethren, Semai, Asarel, Mihalai, Bilalai, Misai, Machabeel and Iuda and Hanani, with the musicall instrumentes of Dauid & man of God.

D And Esdras & scribe before the towarde the Westgate, and they wente vp ouer agaynst them upon the steepe of the cite of Dauid at the goynge vp of the wall to the house of Dauid, vnto the Watergate Eastward.

The other queere of thankesguyng were ouer agaynst them, and I a fyer them, and the halfe parte of the people upon the wall, towards the fennegate upwarde, vntill they shode wall, and to the porte of Ephraim, and to the Oldgate, and to the Syngate, which the tower of Hanameel, and to the southe of Meah, vntill the Shrepegate. And in the songate shode they styll, and so shode the queeres of thankesguyng of the house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the prestes, namely Eliodan, Mesia, Miniamin, Michai, Eliodan, Zachary, Hanania, with trompettes, and Misai, Semai, Eleasar, Xfi, Iohanan, Malda, Eliam and Aser. And the syngers songe in de, and Iestabiah was the overier.

And the same daye were there greatesacrifices offred, & they reioysed: for God had geue them greates gladnesse, so that both the wyues and chyldren were ioyfull, & the mych of Jerusalem was herde farre of.

In the same tyme were there men appointed ouer the treasure chistes (wherein was the seuer offeruynges, the firstlings and the tithes) that they shulde gather them out of felde aboute the cite, to distribute in to the prestes and Levites accordinge to the lawe: for Iuda was glad of the prestes and Levites, that they shode and waied upon the office of their God, and the office of the purification. And the syngers & postres shode after the commaundement of Dauid of Salomon his sonne: for in the tyme of Dauid and Assaph, were the chiefe syngers songed, and the songes of playe and thankesguyng unto God. In the tyme of Zorobabel and Nehemias, byd all Israel geue poecion unto the syngers and postres, every daye his poecion, and they gaue thinges halowed unto the Levites, and the Levites gaue thinges that were sanctified, vnto the chyldre of Aaron.

The XIII. Chapter.

AND what tyme as the booke of Mose was red in the eares of the people, there was founde written therein, that the Ammonites and Moabites shulde never come in to the congregation of God, because they mete not the chyldren of Israel to be and to water, and byed Balam agaynst the: that he shulde curse them: men shode curse God turned & curse in to a blessing. Item when they herde the lawe, they separated from Israel euery one that had mynne himselfe therein. And before this had the prest Eliasib deluyered the chiefe of the house of God unto his kynsman Tobiah: so he had made him a greate chiefe, and there had they aforetyme layed the meate & wynges, fennecaul, vntill, and the tithes of come, wyne and oyle (accordinge to the commaundement gent to the Levites, syngers and porters) and the sacrifice of the prestes.

But in all this was not Jac Jerusalem: for in y^e 400 and thirtieth yere of Atraper the kynge of Babilon, came J unto the kynge, and after certayne daies obtayned J licence of the kynge to come to Jerusalem. And J was knowlege of y^e euill that Elisib dyd unto Tobia, in that he had made him a chest in the court of the house of God, and it grend me sore, and J cast forth all the vessels of Tobias house out of the chest, and commaundd them to close the chest. And thither broughte J agayne the vessels of the house of God, the meat of syringe and the incense.

And J perceaued, that the portions of y^e Levites were not given them, for the which cause the Levites and syngers were sedit, euer yone to his lorde for to worke. Then reproved J the rulers, and sayde: Why forsake we the house of God? But J gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then broughte all Juda the tithes of coine, wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And J made treasure ouer y^e treasure, euen Selemia y^e prest, and Sadoce the scribe, and of the Levites Pebia, and embet their hands Hanan the sonne of Sathar the sonne of Marbama: for they were counted faithfull, and their officers, to distribute vnto their brethren.

Le. Thynke vpon me O my God here in, and wyne not our my mercy, that J haue shewed on y^e behalf of my God, and on the offices therof.

At the same tyme sawe J some treadinge wyne presses on the Sabbath, and bringinge in diskers, and asses laden wych wyne, grapes, fygges, and bringinge all maner of burdens vnto Jerusalem, vpon the Sabbath daye. And J rebuked them earnestly y^e some daye that they solde y^e wyntayles. There beate me of Tyre also therein, which broughte fish and all maner of ware, and solde on the Sabbath vnto the childer of Juda and Jerusalem. Then reproved J the rulers in Juda, and saide vnto them: What euill thinke is this that ye do, and beate the Sabbath daye? Dyd not oure fathers enen thus, and oure God broughte all this plague vpon vs upon this cite? And ye make the wrath more vpon y^e sonne of y^e Israel, in that ye beate the Sabbath.

D And when the portes of Jerusalem were shewen vpon before the Sabbath, J commaundd to shut the gates, and charged that they shoulde not be opened tyll after the Sabbath: and some of my seruantes set J at the gates, y^e there shoulde no burche be broughte in on the Sabbath daye. Then remayned the chappens and marchantes on ce or they ce ouer nyghte without Jerusalem with all maner of wares. Then reposed J them seere, and sayde vnto them: Why tary ye all nyghte aboute the wall? If ye do it once agayne, J wil laye handes vpon you. From that tyme forth came they nomore on the Sabbath. And J sayde vnto the Levites which were cleane, that they shoulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbath daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concerninge this also, and spare me accordinge to thy greates mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe J Jewes, that married wyues of Afsod, Ammon and of Meab, and their children spake halfe in the speache of Afsod, and coulde not speake in y^e Jewish language, but by y^e conge mighte a man perceaued euery people. And J reposed them, and cursed them, and smote certayne men of the, and placat them vp, and toke an othe of them by God: Ye shal not gene your daughters vnto their sonnes, neither shal ye take their daughters vnto your sonnes, or for your selues. Wyd not Salomon y^e kynge of y^e Israel synne ther in? ye amonge many the which was there no kynge like him, and he was deare vnto his God, and God made him kynge ouer all y^e Israel, and the outlandish women.

And one of the children of Joiada the sonne of Elisib y^e hys prest, had made a contracte wych Saneballath the hononize: but J chaced him fro me. O my God, thynke thou vpon them that are quyet of the past tyme, and haue desyred the covenant of the presthode and of the Levites. Thus densthe J them from all such as were outlandish, and appoynted the courses of the prestes and Levites, euery one to his office, and to offere the wode at tymes appoynted,

The first Chapter.

¶ The tyme of Abasuerus, which reigned from India unto Ethiopia, ouer an hundred and seven and ewentye lonbes, what tyme as he sat on his seate reuill in the castell of Susan in the thirde year: of his reigne, he made a feast unto all his prynces and seruantes, namely unto the myghtie men of Persia and Media, to the Debitas and rulers of his countreys, that he mighte shewe the noble riches of his kyngdome, and the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse, many dayes longe, even an hundredth and foure score dayes.

And when these dayes were expyed, the kyng made a feast unto all the people that were in the castell of Susan, both vnder greete and small, seven dayes longe in the contere of the garden by the kynges palace: where there hanged wythe, red & yallow clothes, fastened with coarbes of linnen and scarlet: in siluer rynges, vpon pylers of Marble stent.

¶ The benches were of golde and siluer made vpon a panement of grene, white, yelow and black Marble. And y benke was carued in vessels of golde, and there was euery thinge of vessel. And the kynges wine was made accordyng to the power of the kyng. And roman was appoynted what he shalbe his ke: for the kyng had commanded all the officers of his house, that euery one shalbe do as it is byd him. And the queene Dasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Abasuerus. And on the seventh daye when the kyng was merry of the wine, he cometh chamberlaynes (that byd stryue in the presence of kyng Abasuerus) to fetch the queene Dasthi with the crowne regall, that he mighte shewe y people and prynces hir fairness: for she was a bewtiful. And the queene Dasthi wolde not come at the kynges wyde by his chamberlaynes. Then was the kyng very wroth, and his indignacion shewed in him.

And the kyng spake to y wyse men that had vnderstondyng in the obtynance of the lonbes: for the kynges matters must be had byed before all such as haue knowlege of the lawe and iudgment. And the nexte vnto him were, Charfena, Serhar, Admacha, Dasthi, Merez, Marfena and Memuchan, the saw prynces of the Persians and Medes, which sawe the kynges face, and satte aboue in the kyngdome. What lawe shalbe he care: vpon the queene Dasthi, because she byd not accordyng to the wyde of the kyng by his chamberlaynes. The said Memuchan bynt the kyng & the prynces: The queene Dasthi had not onely done well agaynst the kyng but also agaynst all the prynces and all the people in all the lonbes of kyng Abasuerus: for this dede of the queene shall come aboue vnto all women, so that they shall be shy their husbandes before their eyes, and shal saye: The kyng Abasuerus commended Dasthi y queene to come before him, but she wolde not. And so shall the prynces in Persia and Media saye lykewyse vnto all the kynges prynces, when they heare of this dede of the queene, thus shall there aryse dyspaynes and wroth yough. If it pleaseth the kyng, let there go a Fyngyng commandment from him, and let it be wyrtzen accordyng to the lawe of the Persians and Medes (and not to be transgressid) that Dasthi come nomaie before kyng Abasuerus, and let the kyng geue the kyngdome vnto another that is better then she.

The booke of Hester.

And þe this wytyng of the kynge which shalbe made, be published the thowm out all his empyre (which is greates) that all wyues maye helde their husbendes in honoure, & be amonge greates and smal.

This pleased the kynge and the prynces, and the kynge dyd accordyng to the worde of Memachan. Then were there letters sent forth in to all the kynge's londes, in to every towne according to the wytyng the of, and contrary people after their langage, þe every man shulde be loude in his awne house. And this casste to be spoken after the langage of his people.

The II Chapter.

¶ After these accors whan the displeasur of kynge Abasuerus was layed, he thoughte vpon Vasthi, what she had done, and what was concluded concernyng her. Then sayde the kynge's seruantes: Let there be sayre yonge virgins sougth in the kynge, and let the kynge appoynte owt of all þe londes of his empyre, that they maye bringe together all sayre yonge virgins vnto the castel of Susan to the We-men buydinge, vnder the hande of Hegai the kynge's chamberlayne, that kepeth the women, and let him geue them their apparell. And let which damsell pleaseth the kynge, later be quene in Vasthis steade. This plea- sured the kynge, and he dyd so.

In the castell of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Mardochus, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Simei, the sonne of Lea, the sonne of Jemini, which was caried awaye from Jerusalem: whan Jechonias the kynge of Juda was led awaye, (whom Nabudodonosor the kynge of Babilon caried awaye) and he norsheth Hadassa (that is Hester) his vnckles daughter: for she had wyth her ner mother, and she was a fayre and beautifull damsell. And whan her father and mother dyed, Mardochus receaued her as his awne daughter.

¶ Now whan þe kynge's commaundment and commission was published, & many damells were brought together vnto the castell of Susan vnder þe hande of Hegai, Hester was take all vnto þe kynge's house vnder þe hande of Hegai þe keeper of þe women, & the damsell pleased him: she founde grace in his sighte. And he put her wth her maydes in þe best place of þe women's buydinge. And Hester shewed it not vnto his people: & her kynne: for Mardochus had charged her, þe she shulde not tell it. And Mardochus walked euery daye before þe gate of þe Women's buydinge, þe he might knowe how Hester dyd, and what shulde be come of her.

¶ And whan the appoynted tyme of euery damsell came that she shulde come to þe kynge Abasuerus, a fier that she had beene euene monethes in the deetyng of the women (for their deetyng must haue so moch tyme, namely sixe monethes with Salme & Myrrer, & sixe monethes wth good spycs, so wnter the women beautified) when wene there one damsell vnto þe kynge, and what as so euer she requyred, þe must be geue her to go wth her out of the Women's buydinge vnto þe kynge's palace. And whan one came in the eueninge, þe same wete fro him on þe morow in to þe seconde house of women, vnder the hande of Saaf-gas the kynge's chamberlayne, which kepeth þe concubines. And she must come vnto the kynge morow, excepte it pleased the kynge, and that he caused her to be called by name.

¶ Now whan the tyme came of Hester the daughter of Abihal Mardochus wnt (whom he had receaued as his awne daughter) þe she shulde come to the kynge, she desired nothyng but what Hegai the kynge's chamberlayne the keeper of the women sayde.

¶ And Hester founde fauour in the sighte of all them that looked vpon her. And Hester was taken vnto kynge Abasuerus in to the huse royall, in the tenth moneth which is called Tebeth, in the seuenthe yere of his regne.

¶ And the kynge loued Hester above alle the women, and she founde grace and mecy in his sighte before all the virgins: and he set the quene's crowne vpon hir heade, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kynge made a yere's feast vnto all his prynces and seruantes, which feast was because of Hester: and let the londes be in quietnes, & gaue royall giftes.

¶ And whan the virgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Mardochus sat in the kynge's gate. And as yet had not Hester shewed hir kynne and hir people, accordyng as Mardochus had byden her: for Hester dyd after the worde of Mardochus, like as whan he was his curour. At the same tyme whyle Mardochus sat in the kynge's gate, two of the kynge's chamberlaynes, Bigthan and Therax which kepte the doore, were wroth, and sougth to laye their handes on the kynge Abasuerus: Wherof Mardochus gat knowlege, and tolde it vnto quene Hester, and Hester certified the kynge thereof in Mardochus name. And whan in quid cion was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was written in the Cronicles before the Kynges.

The iii. Chapter.

After that a ceece byd the Kyng promote Aman the sonne of Amadathi the Agagar, and sit him bye, & sit his firste above all þe prynces that were with him. And all the Kynges seruautes that were in the gate, bowed their knes, and byd reuerence vnto Aman: for the kyng had so commaunded. But Mardocheus bowed nor the knee, and worshipped him not. Then the Kynges seruautes which were in the Kynges gate, sayde vnto Mardocheus: Why transgressist thou the Kynges commaundement? And when they spake this dayle vnto him; and he folowed them not, they tolde Aman, that they mighte see whether Mardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had tolde them, þe he was a Jewe. And whā Aman sawe, that Mardocheus bowed nor the knee vnto him, nor worshipped him, he was full of indignacion & displeasur, that he shulde laye honours only on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him þe people of Mardocheus, but he soughte to destroye the people of Mardocheus, and all the people that were in the whole empyre of Abasuerus.

In the firste moneth that is the moneth Nissan, in the tweluech yere of kyng Abasuerus, was there occasion and oportunitie soughte by Aman, from one daye to another, and from the same moneth vnto the tweluech moneth, that is the moneth Abar. And Aman sayde vnto kyng Abasuerus: There is a people scattered abroad and dispersed amonge all people in all the landes of thine empyre, and their lawe is contrary vnto all people, and they do not after the Kynges lawes, neither is it the kynges profit to suffice the same in this manner. If it please the Kyng, let him wyte, what they maye be destroyed, & so wil I weye downe ten thousande talentes of silver, vnder the handes of the workmen, to be broughte in to the Kynges chamber. Then toke the Kyng his ringe from his hande, and gaue it vnto Aman the sonne of Amadathi the Agagar the Jewes enemye. And the kyng sayde vnto Aman: Let the silver be gyven the, and that people also, to do withall what pleasest thee.

Then were the Kynges scribes called on the thirteenth daye of the firste moneth, & there was written a cōdyng as Aman commaunded: vnto the Kynges prynces, and to the Deputes eury where in the landes, and to the captaynes of every people in the countrey on every syde, accordyng to the wynges of every nacion, and a fier their languages in the name of kyng Abasuerus, and sealed with the Kynges ringe. And the wynges were sent by postes into to all the kynges londes, to rote out, to kill, and to destroye all Jewes, both yonge and olde, chylde and men in one daye, namely upon the thirteenth daye of the tweluech moneth, which is the moneth Abar, and to spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the wynges: there shulde be a commaundement gyven all londes, to be published vnto all people, þe they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes wente in all the half accordyng to the Kynges commaundement. And in the castell of Susan was the commaundement deuysed. And the Kyng & Aman sat dyanke. But the cite of Susan was byquene.

The iii. Chapter.

When Mardocheus perceived all that was done, he rere his clothes, and put on a sack cloth, & as he wente out into the myddes of the cite, he cried loude and lamentably, and came before the Kynges gate: for there mighte no man be within the Kynges gate, that had a sack cloth on. And in all londes & places, as far as the Kynges wynde and commaundement extended, there was greate lamentacion amonge the Jewes, and many fasted, wept, mourned, & laye in sack clothes & in ashen. So Hester dāels, and hir chamberlaine came and tolde it her. Then was the queene exceedingly astonnyed. And she sent to wite, what Mardocheus shulde put them on, and laye the sack cloth from him. But Mardocheus wolde not take them. The called Esther one of the kynges chamberlaines (which stode before her) and gaue him a commaundement vnto Mardocheus, that he mighte knowe what it were, and when he shuld do. So Esther wente forth to Mardocheus vnto the strette of the cite, which was before the Kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde him of all þe that happened vnto him, and of the summe of silver that Aman had promysed to be gyven in the Kynges chamber because of þe Jewes: for to destroye them, and he gaue him the copye of the commaundement, that was wysed at Susan to destroye them, that he mighte shewe it vnto Hester, and so speake to her and charge her, þe she shulde go in to the kyng, and make her prayer and supplicacion to him for his people.

The booke of Hester.

And whā Hathar came in, and tolde Hester the wordes of Mardocheus, Hester spake unto Hathar, and commaunded him so saie unto Mardocheus: All the Kynges seruantes, and the people in the londe of the Kyngdome, that who so euer commeth within the court vnto y^e Kyng, whether it be man or woman, which is not called, the commaundment is that the same shal dye immediatly, excepte the Kyng holde out the golde ceper vnto him, that he maye lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come in to the Kyng vnto this thirde daye.

And whā Mardocheus was certifiad of Hesters wordes, Mardocheus had saie a gain vnto Hester: Thynde not to saue thine awselfe, whyle thou art in y^e Kynges house be fore all Jewes: for yf thou holdst thy peace at this tyme, then shal the Jewes haue helpe and deliuerance out of anothe place, & thou & thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come in to the Kyngdome, for this tyme sake: Hester had gaue Mardocheus this answer: So thou yf waye then, & gather together all y^e Jewes y^e are founde at Susan, & fast ye foure, & yf yett not & dynde not in this daye, neyther daye nor night. & yf my damselfe wil fast likewise, & so wil I go into the Kyngdome vnto the commaundment: yf I petishe, I perish. So Mardocheus wente his waye, & whā y^e Hester had commaunded him.

The V. Chapter.

And on the thirde daye put Hester on hir royall apparell, and stode in the court of y^e Kynges palace within ouer agaynst the Kynges house. And y^e Kyng sat vpon his royall seate in y^e Kynges palace ouer agaynst y^e dore of the house. And whā the Kyng saue Hester the queene sittinge in the court, she founde graecin his sighte. And y^e Kyng helde out the golde ceper in his hande vnto Hester. So Hester stepte forth, and touched the coppe of y^e ceper. Then sayde y^e Kyng vnto her: What wile thou queene Hester: what request thou'art eue the halfe of y^e empyre, & it shal be geue the. Hester sayde: If it please y^e Kyng, let y^e Kyng & Aman come this daye vnto y^e bancke y^e I haue prepared. The Kyng sayde: Cause Aman to make halfe, y^e he maye do so as Hester haeth saide.

Now whā the Kyng & Aman came to y^e bancke, y^e bancke had prepared, the Kyng sayde vnto Hester whā he had donken to y^e Hester, whā is thy petition: it shal be geue the. And whā he requyest thou'art: wāen the halfe of the empyre, it shal be done.

The vi. Chap. Ho. cxiij.

Then answered Hester and sayde: My petition and desire is, yf I haue founde grace in y^e sighte of the Kyng, & yf it please the Kyng to geue me my petition, and to fulfill my request, then let the Kyng & Aman come to the bancke y^e I shal prepare for the, and so wil I do tomorrow as the Kyng haeth saide.

Then wente Aman forth the same daye toyfull and merry in his mynde. And whā he saue Mardocheus in the Kynges gate, y^e he stode not vp and knelid before him, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus, & Teuzibelas he refrained himselfe: and whā he came home, he sent, and called for his frende, and Seres his wyfe, and tolde them of the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, all together how the Kyng had promoted him so greatly, and how that he was taken aboue the pynces and seruantes of the Kyng. Aman sayde moouer: Yes and Hester the queene let no man come with the Kyng vnto the bancke that she had prepared, excepte me, and tomorrow am I bidden vnto her also with the Kyng. But in all this am I not satisfied as long as y^e Mardocheus the Jewe sytinge in y^e Kynges gate. Then sayde Seres his wife and all his frende vnto him: Let the make a galow of fiftie cubites hie, & tomorrow speake thou vnto the Kyng, that Mardocheus maye be hangid thereon, yf thou comest merely with the Kyng vnto the bancke. Aman was well contente withall, and caused a galow to be prepared.

The VI. Chapter.

The same night coulde not the Kyng sleepe, and he commaunded to bringe y^e Cronicles and storyes: which whā they were red be fore y^e Kinge, they happened on the place where it was wycted, how Mardocheus had tolde, that the Kynges two chāberlaynes, which kepe y^e treasuries songhe to laic bondes on Kinge Achasertis. And whā the Kyng saide: What worshipp and good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore: Then sayde the Kynges seruantes that mysfelle vnto him. There is nothinge done for him. And the Kyng sayde: Who is in y^e court? (for Aman was gone in to y^e court without before y^e Kynges house, y^e he mighte speake vnto y^e Kynges hangid Mardocheus on y^e tre, y^e he had prepared for him. And the Kynges seruantes saide vnto him: Whōsholde, Amā sittinge in the court. The Kyng saide: Let him come in. And whā Amā came in, y^e Kyng saide vnto him: What shal be done vnto y^e man, whō the Kyng & wold sayne bringe vnto wooshippe: But Hamā thought in his heert: Whom shoulde the Kyng els be glad to byngge vnto wooshippe, but me? And Aman sayde vnto the Kyng: Let the man vnto whom the Kyng wolde be glad to do wooshippe, be broughte hither, that he maye be arrayed with the roiall garmentes which the Kyng wesech do wete: and the horse that the Kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne roiall maye be set vpon his heade. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnder the hande of one of the Kynges pynces, that he maye araye the man withall (whom the Kyng wolde sayne honoure) and cary him vpon the horse thorow the strete of the cite, and cause it to be proclaimed before him: That shal it be done to every man, whom the Kyng wolde sayne honoure.

C The Kyng sayde: Make haist, and take (as thou hast sayde) the rayment and the horse, and do euen so with Marдохеus of Iewe that sitteth before the Kynges gate, and let nothinge sayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then rose Aman the rayment and the horse, and arrayed him, and broughte him on horsebacke thorow the strete of the cite, and proclaimed before him: When thus shal it be done vnto every man whom the Kyng is disposed to honoure. And Marдохеus came agayne to the Kynges gate, but Aman gat him home in all the haist, mourninge with bare heade, and tolde Seres his wyfe and all his frendes, euery thyng that had happened him. Then sayde his wyfe men and Seres his wyfe vnto him: If it be Marдохеus of the Jude of the Jewes, before whos thou hast begonne to fall, thou canst do nothinge vnto him, but shalt fall before him. Whye they were yett calyngge with him, came the Kynges chambrelaynes, and caused Aman to make haist to come vnto the bancket that Hester had prepared.

The viij. Chapter.

A And when the Kyng and Aman came to the bancket that queene Hester had prepared, the Kyng sayde vnto Hester on the threede daye when he had drunken wyne: What is thy petition queene Hester, that it maye be geuen the? And what request thou? See are euen halfe of the empyre, and it shal be done. Hester of queene answered and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte (O Kyng) and if it please the Kyng, then graunte me my lyfe at my besyde and my people for my petitions sake: for we are solde to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perishe. And wolde God we were solde to be bondmen and bondwomen, then wolde I hold be my tonge, so shoulde not the enemye be shyte to the Kynges harme. The Kyng answered thus spake: I saide vnto queene Hester: What is he that? Or where is he? I darre psworne in his mynde to do sodey a thinge after that maner: Hester sayde: The enemye and our sary is this wicked Aman.

As for Amā, he was exceedingly a frend to be fore of the Kyng and of queene Hester for his life: for he sawe of there was a mischief prepared for him of the Kynges allearty.

And when the Kyng came agayne out of the palace garden in to the parter where they had eaten, Aman had layd him vpon the bed that Hester sat vpon. Then saide the Kyng: whyl he force the queene also before me in the house? As soone as that worde wente out of the Kynges mouth, they couered Amāns face. And Harbona one of the chambrelaynes that stode before the Kyng, sayde: Beholde, there stondecly a galore in Amāns house sithen euen hys, which he had made for Marдохеus, that spake good for the Kyng. The Kyng sayde: Change him theron. So they hanged Aman on the galore that he had made for Marдохеus. Then was the Kynges wraith styllled.

The viij. Chapter.

The same daye byd the Kyng Abasiers the enemye, vnto queene Hester. And Marдохеus came before the Kyng: so thatter tolde how that he beloged vnto her. And the Kyng put of his synner ryme, which he had taken from Aman, and gaue it vnto Marдохеus. And Hester set Marдохеus out the house of Aman. And Hester spake yett more before the Kyng, and fell downe at his feete, and besoughte him, that he wolde put awaye the wickednes of Aman the Agagite, and his deuice that he had ymagined against the Jewes. And the Kyng helde out the golden cepter vnto Hester. Then rose Hester, and stode before the Kyng, and sayde: If it please the Kyng, and if I haue soude grace in thy sighte, and if it be cōuenyent for the Kyng, and if it be acceptid in thy sighte, then let it be wrytten, of the letters of the deuices of Amāns the forme of Amabachai the Agagite, which is called agayne: which letters be vnto: I desire to be Iewes in all the Kynges lound. In how can I see the euill that shal happen people and how can I loke upon the be-fraction of my kynge?

Then sayde þe kynge Ahasuerus unto que-ne Hester, and to Mardocheus the Jewe: Behold, I haue geuen Hester the house of Israhel, & him haue they hanged vpon a tre, wher he laye hadde vpon þe Jewes. Why-trayn now the cause for the Jewes, as it liketh you in the kynge name, and scale it with þe kynge kynge (for the wyrynges that were written in þe kynge name, and sealed with þe kynge kynge, durst no man dysannulle.) Then were the kynge scribes called at the same tyme in the thirde moneth, that is the month Sivan, on the thre & twentieth daie.
And it was wyrtzen (as Mardocheus comanded) vnto the Jewes and to the pry-nces of the Debities and capaynes in the londes from Iudia vntyll Ethiopia, namely, as hundred and seuen and twentye londe, was every one according to the wyrynges therof, vnto every people after their speche, and to the Jewes according to their wyryn-grent langage.

And it was written in the kynge Ahasue-rus name, and sealed with the kynge kynge.
And by power therof were vpon swyfte yonge Mules, sent be the wyrynges, wher in the lyge gynneth the Jewes (in what cities þe men were to gather them selues to gather, and to stonde for their lyfe, and for to see one, to slaye, and to destroye all the part of the people and londe that wolde not be them, with chyldren and women, and to speke their goode vpon one daie in all the londe of kynge Ahasuerus, namely vpon the thirteenth daie of the twelveth moneth, whiche is the moneth Adar.

The summe of the wyrynges was, how that was a commaundment geuen in all lon-des to be published vnto all the people, that þe Jewes shulde be waky agaynst that daie to saueg them selues on their enemies. And the wyrynges that rode vpon the Mules, made by such a lyl speche, according to the kynge worte: and the commaundment was deuysed in the castell of Susan.

As for Mardocheus, he wente out from the kynge in royall apparell of yalwe and vryte, and with a greate crowne of golde, beinge arrayed with a garment of linnen and purpe, and þe cite of Susan reioysid & was glad: but vnto the Jewes there was come lyght and gladnesse, & ioye & woishippe. And in all londe and citica, in to what places so our the kynge worte and commaundment reached, there was ioye & myrth, prosperite and good dayes amonge the Jewes: in so moch that many of the people in the londe became of the Jewes beleue, for the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The x. Chapter.

¶ The twelveth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the chyrtenth daie, which the kynge worte and comaundment had appoynted, that it shulde be done, was vpon þe same daie þe enemies shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppresed them, se turned contrary wise, when þe Jewes shulde subdne their enemies.
Then gathered the Jewes together in their cities within all þe londe of kynge Ahasue-rus, to laye honde on such as wolde be theenill, & no man coulde withstonde them: for feare of the was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the londe, and prynces and Debities, and officers of the kynge promoteth the Jewes: for the feare of Mardocheus came vnto the. For Mardocheus was grete in the kynge house, & the repaire of him was noted in all londe, how he increased & grewe.

Thus the Jewes smote all their enemies with a sore slaughter, and slawe and destroyed, & dyd after their wyll vnto such as were their aduersaries. And at y castell of Susan slew the Jewes and destroyed fynchthierth men: slew Parsindatha, Dalphon, Alpatha, Poiacha, Anania, Aridatha, Parmas-tata, Arisai, Aridat, Vaisfacha, the ten sonnes of Aman: y some of Amadath: þe enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no han-de. At the same tyme was the kynge certified of the number of those that were slaine at the castell of Susan. And the kynge sayde vnto quene Hester: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed fynchthierth men at y castell of Susan, and the ten sonnes of Amadath: what shal they do in the other londe of þe kynge?
What is thy pericion, that it maye be geuen the? & what requyrest thou more to be done?
Hester sayde: If it please the kynge, let him suffre the Jewes tomorrow also to do accordinge vnto this daie: commaundment, that they maye hang: Amans ten sonnes vnto þe tre. And the kynge charged to do so, and the commaundment was deuysed at Susan, & Amans ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes gathered the selues together at Susan, vpon the fourteenth daie of the moneth Adar, and slew the hundredth men at Susan, but on their goodes they layed no hadde.

As for the other Jewes in the kynge lon-des, they came together, & stode for their ly-ues, & gart rest fro their enemies: and slew of their enemies syue and seuenye thousande, howbeit they layed no handen on their goodes. This was done on the thirtenth daie of the moneth Adar, and on the fourtenth daie of the same moneth rested they, which daie they obeyned to be a daie of feasting and gladnesse. But the Jewes at Susan were come together both on the thirtenth daie and on the fourtenth, and on the fiftenth daie they rested, and the same daie obeyned they to be a daie of feasting & gladnes. Therefore the Jewes that dwelt in the wyllages and unwallid townes, obeyned the fourtenth daie of the moneth Adar, to be a daie of feasting and gladnes, and one sent giftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote these a ctes, and sent the writings vnto all the Jewes the were in all the kyngdomes of Persia, both nye and farr, that they shulde yearly receaue and holde the fourtenth and fiftenth daie of the moneth Adar, as the daies wherin the Jewes came to rest from their enemies, & as a moneth wherin their payne was turned to ioye, and their sorrowe in to prosperite: that they shulde obserue the same as daies of wealch and gladnes, and one to sende giftes vnto another, & to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes receaued it that they had begonne to do, and that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Aman the sonne of Amadathai all the Jewes enemy, had desired to destroye all the Jewes, and caused the lot to be cast for to put them in feare, and to bringe them to naughte: and how Hester wente and spake to the kyng, that thow he lettes his wicked deuice (which he ymagyned agaynst the Jewes) mighte be turned vpon his awne heade, and how he and his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this daie Purim after the name of the lot, a cordinge to all the wydoes of this wytyng: and what they the felowes had sene, and what had happened vnto them.

And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpon them and their seide, and vpon all such as they ned themselves vnto them, that they wold not mysse to obserue these two daies yearly, a cordinge as they were wytyed and appoynted, how the these daies are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of childrens children, and all kynreds in all london and cities. They are the daies of Purim, which are not to be querispyre amonge the Jewes, and the memoriall of them oughte not to perishe from their seide.

And quene Hester the daughter of Abihail and Mardocheus the Jewe, was with all auctorite, to confirme this seconde wytyng of Purim, and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundred and fiftyn and twentye london of the myrie of Abihail, with frendly and saychfull wordes, to confirme these daies of Purim, in their kynred appoynted, a cordinge as Mardocheus the Jewe and Hester the quene had ordeined & cernynged them: yte as they vpon their seide and vpon their seide had confirmed the act of the fastynges and of hir complaints. And Hester commaunded to stablish these actes in this Purim, and to wytye them in a boke.

The X. Chapter.

And the kyng Abasuerus layd wytyte vpon the londe, and vpon the towne of the Sec. As for all the wyte of his power and auctorite, and the greate worshippe of Mardocheus, which the kyng geue him, beholde, it is wytyen in the Cronicle of the kynges of Media & Persia, for Mardocheus the Jewe was the seconde nygum to kyng Abasuerus, and greace amonge the Jewes, and accepted amonge the multitude of his brethren, as one the feithful the welch of his people, and speaketh the best for all his seide.

The first Chapter.

In the booke of Iob there was a man called Job, an innocent and vertuous man, such one as feared God, and eschewed euill.
This man had viij. sonnes, and iiij. daughter. His substance was viij. M, shepe, iiij. M. camels, v. C. yoc of oxen, v. C.
she asses, and a very greate housholde: so he was one of the most principall men all them of the east countre. His sonnes now wente on euery man, and made ban-dettie: one daye in one house, another daye in another, and sent for their iiij. sisters, to eate e drinke with them. So when they had passed ouer the tyme of their bandettie to come aboue, Job sent for them, and clensed them agayne, sode vj. earely, and offered for every one a bickettunge. For Job thoughte that peradventure his sonnes haue done some offence, and haue bene vncapacill to God in their bandes. And thus doo Job euery daye.

Gen. 22. d

Job. 22. c

B Now upon a tyme, when the seruantes of God came and stode before the LORD, Sathan came also amongst them. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: From whence comest thou? Sathan answered the LOR-DE, and sayde: I haue gone aboute the lode, and walked vpon it.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathā: hast thou not considered my seruant Job, how vpar he is an innocent and veruicus mā: soch one as feareth God, and escheweth euill, and that there is none like him in the londe: Sa-than answered, and sayde vnto the LORDE: Doest Job feare God for naughte? hast thou not perserued him, his house, and all his substance on euery syde: hast thou not blessed the wykes of his honde: Is not his possession increased in the londe? But laye thyn houde vpon him a litle, touch once all that he hath, and I holde he shall curse the to thy face. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: lo all that he hath, be in thy power: only vpon him selfe it that thou laye not thine honde.
Then wexed Sathan sooth from the LORDE.

C Now vpon a certayne daye when his son-nes and daughters were eatinge, and drynkinge wyne in their eldest broethers house, the re came a messenger vnto Job, and sayde: Whye the open were a plewinge, and the Asses goinge in the pasture beyde them: the Sabees came in violētly, and toke them all awaye: yee they haue slayne the seruantes with the swerde, and I only ranne my waye, to tell the.

And whye he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The fyre of God is fallen from heauen, it hath consumed 7 bise vp all the shepe and seruantes: and I only ranne my waye, to tell the. In the meane season whye he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The Caldees made this armee, and fell in vpon the camels, whiche they haue caried awaye, yee and slayne the seruantes with the swerde: and I only am goze awaye, to tell the. Whye he was speakinge, there came yet another, and sayde: Thy sonnes and daughters were eatinge and drynkinge wyne in their eldest broethers house, and sodenly there came a mightie greate wynde out off the South, and smote the iiii. corners of the house: whiche fell vpon thy children, so that they are ded: and I am gozen awaye alone, to tell the.

D Then Job stode vp, and rent his clothes shaved his heade, fell downe vpon the groude, and worshipped, and sayde: Blasted came I out of my mothers wombe, and naked shall

I come thither agayne. The LORDE and the LORDE hath taken awaye the DE hath done his pleasure: now blessed be name off the LORDE. In all these thynges byd Job not offende, nor murmure ly agaynst God.

The ii. Chapter.

ET happened also vpon a tyme, that when the seruantes of God came, stode before the LORDE, Sathan came also amongst them, and stode before him.
And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan:
From whence comest thou? Sathan answered and sayde: I haue gone aboute the lode, and walked vpon it.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan:
Hast thou not considered my seruant Job, how that he is an innocent 7 veruicus mā soch one as feareth God, and escheweth euill, and that there is none like him in the londe?
But thou moudest me agaynst him, to peruill him: yee is it in vayne, for he con-fesseth still in his godlynesse.

Sathan answered the LORDE, and sayde Sthyme for slayme: yee a man will get all euill he hath, for his life. But laye thine hand vpon him, touch him once vpon the leg and flesch, and I holde he shall curse the in thy face. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan: where hast thou him in thy power, and spare his life.

So wexed Sathan sooth from the LOR-DE, and smote Job with marvelous sores, from the sole off the fete vnto his croune: so that he sat vpon the grounde in the ashes, and scraped off the eteer off his head with a postherde.

Then sayde his wife vnto him: Whye yet estyme in thy perseuerance: curse God, and dye. But Job sayde vnto her: Thou speakest like a foolish woman. Singe we haue recei-ued prosperitee at the honde of God, whye shulde we not be content with aduantage so? In all these thynges, byd not Job sweare with his lippes.

Now when Jobs frendes herde of all trouble, that happened vnto him, they came thither off them, every one from his place: namely, Eliphaz the Themanite, Baldaad the Subite, and Sophtar the Nathathite.

For they were agreed together to come, to see their compassion vpon him, and to comforte him. So when they life vpon they sawe a sarrer off, they knewe him not.

Then they cried, and wepte: then every one off them rente his clothes, and spyned his haire vpon their beades in the ayre. They sae them downe by him also vpon the groun that daye, and vj. nightes. Whether was there any of them that spake one worde vnto him, for they sawe that his payne was very greate.

The III. Chapter.

When this opened Job his mouth, and curst his daye, and sayde: lost be that daye, wherein I was borne: and the night, in the which I was sayde: there is a mandate concealed. And the same daye be turned to darkness, and not regarded of God from above, neither be shyned vpon wth light: but be covered wth burthenesse, and the shadowe of death. Let the bymme cloude sail vpon it, and let it be lapped in with storme. Let the darkness come ouer me y^e night, let it not be reckened amonge the dayes off the year, nor counted in the monethes. Despise be that night, and discommended: let them that curse the daye, gene it their curse also, men those that bere beyond rayse vpon Leathan. Let the stars be bymme thowr burthenesse of it. Let ite lorde for light, but let it sit none, neither the risinge vpon of the saye maninge: because it shal not vpon the wombe that bare me, nor byd these sorrowes from my eyes.

Alas, why dyed I not in y^e birth? Why dyd not I perishe, as soone as I came out of my mothers wombe: Why set they me vpon of it base? Why gaue they me iust^{ice} with their iustice? Then shalde I now haue lye still, I shalde haue slepe, and bene at rest like as the fynge and lorde of y^e earth, which buyldeth them selues speciall places: As the pryuce that haue greatesubstance of golde, & their houses full of silver. O that I verely had no beinge, or were as a thinge borne out of y^eme (that is put asyde) ether as yonge childe, which neuer sawe the light. There must the world cease from their eyanny, & that such as are ouerlaboured, be at rest: there are those that leuen our fire, which haue bene in paine, so that they heare not more the voyce of the oppugnant: There are small and greates the bonde man, and he that is fre fro his master.

Wherfore is the lighte giuen, to him that is in misery? and life vnto them, that haue ben vnto death? Which longe for death, and a comfort not: for yf they might fynde the grace, they woulde be maruelous glad, as those that bygge vpon treasure) To the man whose waye is hyd, which God expecteth backe from him.

This is the cause, that I syghe before I sae, and my roaringe fall out like a water stone. For the thinge that I feared, is come vpon me: and the thinge that I was afraid of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy: had I not quyetnesse? Was I not in rest? And now cometh such misery vpon me.

The III. Chapter.

When answered Eliphaz of Theman and sayde vnto him: If we begynne so comon with the, peradventure thou wilt be myscontent, but who can withhold himself from speakyng? Beholde, thou hast bene a teacher of many, and hast comforted the weery honden.

Thy wordes haue set vpon those that were fallen, thou hast refreshed the weake knees. But now that the plage is come vpon the, thou shaldest as yet more that it hath couched thy self, thou art salte barred. Where is now thy feare of God, thy fearefastnesse, thy patience, and the perseuerance of thy life? Consider, I praye the, who can perishe, beinge an innocent? Or, when were the goodly destroyed? As for those that plowe wickednesse, as I haue sene myself, and some myschisfe, they reape y^e same. For why? God bloweth vpon them, they perishe, and are destroyed thowr the blast of his wrath. The roaringe of the lyon, the cryenge off the lyonesse, & y^e catch off y^e lyons whelpes are voide. The greace lyon perissheth, because he can get no praye and the lyons whelpes are scattered aboude.

There is spolen vnto me a feyther in counsell, which hathi giuen a terrible founde in myne eare, with a vision in the night, when men are fallen a slepe. Such feare and dread came vpon me, that all my bones shoke. And when the wynde passed ouer by me, the hayres of my flesh stood vpon.

Then stood there one before me, whose face I knewe not: an ymage there was, and the weather was still, so that I herde thio voyce: W^hay a man be iustified before God? W^hay there any man be iudged to be cleane, by the seed of his owne wombe? Beholde, he hath founde vnsechfulnesse amonge his owne seruantes, and poude disobedience amonge his angles.

The V. Chapter.

Ame me one clo, yf thou canst fynde eny: yee loke abouze the, upon eny of the holy men. As for the foolish man displeaseth Elych bun, and anger slayeth yf ignoraunce. I have sene my self, when the foolish man deperegeth, that his beery was sodely destroyed: that his children were without preserue or healeth: that they were slaine in the doie, and no mā to deliuer them: that his harvest was eaten up off the hungrie: that the weapened man had spoyled it, and that the thurste had bronct it up his riches. It is not the earb that bringeth forth trawle, necher commeth forth out of yf ground: but it is man, that is borne vnto misery, like as the byrde for doise.

But now will I speake off the LORDE, and talke of God: which both thinges, that are vnsearchable, and manerles without nūber: Which geath rayne vps the earth, and poureth water vpon all thinges: which setteth vp them of lowe degre, and sendeth pofpente, to those that are in heuynesse: Which destroyeth the deuyces of the sorcill, so that they are norable to performe the thynges that they take in hōde: which compasseth yf wyse in their owne craftynesse, and ouerthroweth the counsell of the wicked: In so moche that they runne in to darcknesse by fayre daye, and grope abouze them at the noone daye, like as in the night.

And so he deliuereth the poore from the swordes, from their mouth, and from the hōde of the cruell: that the poore maye haue hope, that the mouth of the oppositōe maye be stopped.

C Beholde, happie is the man, whom God punisheth: that forso, despyseth thou yf chastenynge of the Almighty. For though he make a wounde, he geath a medecyne agayne: though he smyte, his hondes maketh wbole agayne.

He deliuereth the out of fyve troubles, so that in the seventh there can no harme touch the. In the myddest of hunger he saureth yf from death: and when it is warre, from the power of the swordes.

He shall kepe the from the poysonous: so that when trouble commeth, thou shalt not neede to feare. In destruction and vnto thou shalt be merry, and shalt not be affrayed for the bestes of the earth: But the calfe in the londe shall be confidenciate wth the bestes of the selde shall geue the peace:

Yee thou shalt se, that thy dwellynge place shall be in rest: thou shalt behold thy stauance, and benemore punished for synne. Thou shalt se also, that thy sēde shall manuce, and that thy pesterize shall be as the grass vpon the earth. Thou shalt come to thy graue in a fayre age, like as yf come hōme are brought in to the barn in due season. So, this is the matter, as are one folow heue pceded by experience. Therfore now when thou hearest it, take heed to thy self.

The VI. Chapter.

Job answered, and sayde: O that my misery were reueyed, and my punishment enlarged in the balancē: for thus shulde it be heavier, then the sōnde of the tin. This is the cause, that my wordes are so sorrowfull.

For the allmyghty hath shote at me wth his arrowes, whose indignacion hath thowde vpon my spere, and yf teirilte feares of God fight agaynst me. Doth the wide affrayer when he hath grassed: Or crieth the ox, when he hath fodder ynough: Maye a thyng be eaten vnseasoned, or without salt? What canst thou saye, when thou seest the yoke an ager? The thynges that some tyme I mighte haue wayed wth ball, are now my meate for very sorrow. O that I mighte haue my desyre: O yf God wolde graunte me the chynge, that I longe for: That he wolde begyne and saye: that he wolde let his hondes go, that he woulde. The shalbe I hee some cōfession: I wolde desyre him in my payne, that he shulde neede spare, for I will not be agaynst the wordes of the holy ones.

What power haue I to endure: Or what is myne ende, that my scale mighte be pacē? Is my strengthe the strengthe of stonē? Or is my fleshy made of brasse? Am I able to deliuer my self: Is not my strengthe gone from me, like as yf one withdrōwe a good redde his frende, and seise the feare of God: Myne owne brethren passe euer by me as the water booke, that hastily runneth thowm yf they keye. But they that feare the highest, they shall fall vpon them.

The booke of Job.

When their tyme cometh, they shalbe destroyed and perishe: and when they be sic on fire, they shalbe rymoued out of their place. In the parties y they go in, are croked: they halt after wayne thinges, and shal perishe. Confesse the pathes off T. heman, ⁊ the way a off Gabba, wher in they haue put their trust. Confounded are they, that put eny confidence in them: for whē they came to speeie the things that they looked for, they went through to confusion.

C What are ye also come unto me: but now that ye see my mysery, ye are afrayed. Dyd I desire you, to come hyther: Or, to geue me any off youre substance: To deliuer me from the enemies honde, or to saue me from the power off the mightye: Ready me, and I will holde my tongue: and yf I do erre, shewe me wher in.

Wherfore blame ye then the wordes, that are well and truly spoken: which of you can reproue them: Sayinge only that ye are soylly to deede some saynges, and can speake many wordes in the wynde. Ye fall upon the fatherlesse, ad go aboute to ouerthrowe you some frende. Wherfore loke not only vpon me, but vpon youre selues: whether I be, or no. Turne into youre owne selues. I praye you, be indifferent iudges, and confite myne vngyltlesse: whether there be eny unghewynnesse in my tongue, or wayne wordes in my mouth.

The VII. Chapter.

I Snot the life off mē a vpon earth a very daye yll: Are not his dayes, like the dayes of an hyred seruaunt: For like as a bonde seruaunt despyeth the shadowe, and as an hyredinge wolde fynde haue an ende of his worke: Thus so haue I laboured toholde me neches longer, but in wayne, and wyna care full mighte haue I tolde. When I sayd me downe to slepe, I sayde: O when shal I ryse: A gaue, I longed sore for the night. Thus am I full off sorowe, till it be daye. My flesh is clothed with wormes, sychewysse and dust: My slymme is wythered, and crumpled together: my dayes passe ouer me, as speck, and a wormer can weare out his webbe, and are gone, or I am a warre. O remember, that my life is but a wynde, ad that myne eye shal nomore see the pleasures ther off: yet and that none other mans eye shall see any more. For yf thou fasten thine eyes vpon me, I come to naught, like as a cloude is consumed, and vanysshed a waye, euen so be that goeth downe to hill, commeth nomore vp. neither a gaue in to his house, neither shall his place knowe him any more.

Wherfore I will not spare my mouth, but I will speake in the trouble of my spere, in yf by yremerse of my mynde will I talke. Am I a fre or a whalffyll, that thou expectest me so in prison: When I tynke: my bedd shall come for me, I shall haue some refreshyng by talkyng with myself vpon my couch: The troublest thou me with dreames, ad makest me so afrayed thourou visions, that my soule wyll hech rather to be hanged, and my bones to be deeb.

I can see no remedy, I shall yue nomore: O spare me then, for my dayes are but wayne. What is man, that thou hast him in such reputation, and settest somuch by him: Thou takest diligente care for him, and soobly doest thou crye him.

Why goest thou not from me, ner leauest me alone, so longe, till I shalow downe my spere: I haue offended, what shal I do to tye of, O thou preseruer off men: Why hast thou made me to stonde in thy waye, and am so heuy a burden vnto myself: Why doest thou not forgiue me ray synne: Wherfore takest thou not a waye my wickednesse: Beholde, now must I slepe in the dust: and yff thou sekest me tomorrow in the morninge, I shal be gone.

The VIII. Chapter.

I S an answer Baldad the Sabie: And sayeth: how longe wilt thou talke of such thinges: how longe shal y mouth speake so proud wordes: Dost God peruerse the things that is lawfull: Or, dost the Almighty destroye the thinge that is righte. What thy somes hymed a gauest him, by none be punished the for their wickednesse: Dost thou woldest now restore vnto God by eynes, and make thine humble prayer to of Almighty: yf thou woldest I see a pure and a godly life: shoulde he not waite vp vnto the immediately, ⁊ geue the the beuic of righteousness a gaue: In so much, that where I se euer thou haddest litle a foie, thou shouldest now haue greates abundance. O myner of them that haue bene before the steech diligently amonge thy soueraynes: I am yf, y we are but of yesterdaye, and confide not, that oure dayes vpon earth are but a very shadow. They shall shewe the, they shall tell the, yet they will gladly confesse the same.

B Maye a rest be grene without moyf-ness: maye the grasse growe without reer:
The bush or euer it be shoo forth, and or euer it be gathered) it wythered, be sote eny oether herbe. Euen so geeth it with all them, that saie: God: and euen thus also shal the yppocrites hope cometo naught. His confidence shal be destroyed, for he trusteth in a spiders webbe.

He leeneth him vps his house, but he shal not stonde: he holdeth him fast by it, yet shal he not endure. Of tymes a thinge doeth flourish, and men thynke that it maye abyde the Sonnes hite: it hurth forth the braun chea in his garden, it waterh many rotes, in so much that it is like an house efflonca.

But yf it be taken out off his place, ruery man denyceth it, ysenge: I knowe the net.
So, thus is it wth him, that reioyseth in his owne beinge: and as for oether, they growe out of the earth.

Beholde, God will not cast awaye a ver-tuous man, neither will he helpe the vngodly.
Thy mouth shal be fylld with laughtye, ad thy yppes shall glauenest. They that hate the, shal be confounded, & yf dwellinges of y vngodly shal cometo naught.

If he came by me, I might not lode vps him: yf he were mine waye, I shulde not perceane it. If he be haisty to take eny thinge awaye, who wil make him release it agayne?
Who wil saye vnto him: what doest thou?
He is God, whos: with no man maye truch stode: but the proudest of all must stoupe vnto him. How shulde I then answer him: or, what wordes shulde I fynde out agaynst him: Yet though I be righteous, yet will I not geue him one worde agayne, but much submitte my self to my iudge. All be it that I call vpon him, and he heare me, yet am I not saue, yf he heath herde my voyce: he woulde leech me so with the tempest, and woude me out of measure without a cause. He wil not let my spere be in rest, but fliteth me wth byternesse.

If men will speake of strength, he is the strongest of all: yf me will speake of righte-nes, who darre demy recorde: yf I will iusti-fie my self, myne owne mouth shall condemne me: yf I will put forth my self for a perfect man, he shal pique me a wicked dea: In that I shulde be an innocente, my officina knoweth it not, yet I my self am wery of my life.

This onerhige wil I saye: he destroyedh both the rightuous & vngodly. And though he slaye sdenly wth the scourge, yet laugheth he at the punishment of the innocente. He for the world, he geureth out into the power of the wicked, such as the rulers be, wher of all lonkes are full. Is it not so: where is there ery, but he is soch one?

My dayes haue bene moie swifte, then a runner: they are gone soderly, and haue sun no good thinge. They are passed awaye, as the shippe that be good vnder sale, and as the Agle that hasteth to the pray. When I am purposed to forget my complainynges to chaunge my countenance, and to cheere my self: then am I afrayed of all my wor-kes, for I knowe, thou fauourest not an old deer. If I be then a wicked one, why haue I laboured in wayne: Though I washed my self with snowe water, and made myne bodis muer so cleane, yet shuldest thou byp-pe me in yf myre, & myne owne clothes shulde bypsyle me. So the yf I must geue answeere vnto and with whom I go to lawe, is not a man as Jam Tether is there eny dayes man v reproue both the parties, or to laye his bodi betwixt vs. Let him take his rod awaye from me, yet let him make me nomore a strayd of him, and then shal I answer him without eny feare. For as longe as I am in fear fulnesse, I can make no answeere: How why: I greutch my soule to louse.

The X. Chapter.

Wherthe esse, now will I put my wordes: I will speake out of the very heaynesse off my soule, and wil ſpeake to God: O do not condemne me, but ſhew me the cauſe, wherefore thou iudgeſt me on this maner. Thinkeſt thou it well be-me, to oppreſſe me, to caſt me of beinge a worke of thy hande: and to maneyne the counſell of the vngodly: Haſt thou fleſhy eye then, or doeſt thou looke as man looke: Are thy dayes as the dayes of man, and thy yeares as mans yeares: that thou makeſt ſuch iudicacion for my wickedneſſe, and ſearcheſt equiuiſme: wherefore thou beareſt as (notwithſtandinge) thou knoweſt that I am no wicked perſon, & that there is no man able to deſigne me out of thine hande. Thy handes haue made me, & ſhal hold me alledge ther rounde aboute, wilt thou then deſtroye me ſoddeily: O remember (I beſeeche thee) howe that thou madeſt me of the mould of the earth, and ſhalt bringe to earth againe.

B Haſt thou not moulded me as it were mylk:
 and turned me to cruddes like cheſe: Thou haſt covered me with ſilke and fleſh, and armed me together with bones & ſynowes.
 Thou haſt granted me life, and done me good: and the diligence beſeecheth thou to keepe upon me, haſt preſerued my ſpree.

Though thou vnderſteſt theſe thinges in thi myght, yet am I ſure, that thou rememberſt theſe all. Wherefore doeſt thou keepe me, when I ſinne, and haſt not clenſed me from myne offence: If I do wickedly, woe is me therfor:
 If I be righteous, yet darre I not liſt vpon my head: ſo full am I of confuſion, and I ſinne owne confuſion.

C Thou humeſt me out: (beinge in heuynelſke) as it were a Lyon, and troubleſt me out of my ſure. Thou dungeſt freſh wiſeneſſe a-gainſt me, thy wrath increaſeth thou vpon me, very many are the plagies that I am in.

A Wherefore haſt thou brought me out of my mothers wombe: O that I had periſhed, & that no eye had ſene me. If they had caried me to my grave, as ſoone as I was borne, then ſhoulde I be now, as though I had never bene.

Shall not my ſhort life come ſoone to an ende: O helde the ſid me, let me alone, that I maye taſte my ſelf a litle: afore I go thy-der, from whence I ſhal not returne againe: I ſand, & corbe ſonde of darkneſſe & ſhadowe of death: yet in to that darke cloudy ſhadowe I be deadly ſhadowne, where as is no other, but terrible ſcare as in the darkeneſſe.

The XI. Chapter.

J ſon answered Sopbar the Taama-thite, and ſayde: Shoulde not he that maketh many wordes, be answered:

Shoulde he that bableth much, be commended therein: Shoulde men geue care vnto ſcoone, & ſhal no body nocke thee againe: Wilt thou ſaye vnto God: The thinge that I take in hande, is perfect, & I am cleane in thy ſight: O that God wolde ſpeake, and open his lippes againſt thee, that he might ſhewe thee (one of his ſecrets wiſdome) how many folde he lawe to: then ſhouldeſt thou knowe, that God had forgotten thee, becauſe of thy ſynes.

Wilt thou ſynde out God with thy ſylge: wilt thou attayne to the perfectione of the Almighty: he is byer the heauens, what wilt thou do: Doper the hell, how wilt thou then knowe him: his length excedeth the length of the earth, and his bredth yf breadth of the ſea. Though he turne all thinges vp ſyde downe, cloſt them in, or thruſt the cogge ther, who darre check him therfor:

So it is he, that knoweth the vanite of men: he ſeeth their wickedneſſe alſo, ſhoulde he not then conſider it: A wayne body exalteth him ſelf, and the ſonne of man is like a wyllow aſſe ſoule. If thou haddeſt new a right herte, & liſteſt vp thine handes towarde him: yf thou woldeſt put a waye the wic-kedneſſe, which thou haſt in hande, ſo that no vngodly myght dwell in thy houſe: Then mighteſt thou liſt vp thy face without ſha-me, the ſhouldeſt thou be ſure, and haue no neede to ſaare.

Then ſhouldeſt thou forget thy miſery, and thy nought nonore vpon it, then vpon the waters that runne by. Then ſhouldeſt thou be as cleare as the noone dayes, and ſprynge forth as the mourynge. Then mighteſt thou haue comfort, in the hope that thou haſt: & ſleepe quietly, when thou art buried. Then ſhouldeſt thou take thy reſt, and no man to make thee a frayde, yet many one ſhoulde ſer mocke by thee. As for the eyes of the vngodly, they ſhal be conſumed, and not eſcape ther hope ſhal be miſery and ſorrow of mynde.

The XII. Chapter.

S Job answered, and ſayde: Then (no doube) ye are the men alone, and wiſdome ſhal periſh with you. Now I haue vnderſtodinge as well as ye, and am no leſſe then ye. See who knoweth not theſe thinges: That he that calleth vps God, and whom God heareth, is mockt of his neighbour: the godly & iudgement man is laughed to ſcoome. Godlyneſſe is a lighte deſpi-ſed in yf herbes of the rich, & is ſer for the ſcoome vpon.

The houses of robbers are in wealch and prosperitee, & they that maliciously medle against God, dwell without care: yet God geuech all thinges richly with his hande.

B See the cattell, & they shal enforme the: the soules of the carye, and they shal tell y: Speake to the earch, and it shall shew the: O to the fishes of the see, and they shal certifie the: What is he, but he knowech, that y hode of the LORD made all these: In whose hande is the soule of euery lyuynge thinge, and the breath of all men, haue not the eares pleasure in hearinge, and the mouth in tastinge the thinge that it eateth: Amonge olde persones there is wysdome, and amonge the aged is vnderstandinge. See with God is wysdome and strengthe, it is he that hath counsell & foreknowledge. If he breake downe a thinge, who can see it vp agayne: If he shure a thinge, who wil open it: Beholde, yf he withhold the waters, they drye vp: If he let the go, they despoyle the earch. With him is strengthe and wysdome: he knowech boch the disceasur, and him that is disceasid.

holde youre tonges now, and let me speake, for there is some thinge come in to my mynd. Wperfore do I beare my flesh in my tect, and my soule in myne honde? Lete, there is nether cofort ner hope for me, yf he wil slaye me. But yf I sheme and reprocue myne owne waye in this sight, he is euen the same, that maketh me whole: and whytther maye no xpocting come before him, & reare my woe, and ponder my saynges with yours of rea. des, he can not go beyonde them. So from him, that he maye rest a litle: vntill his daye come, which he labereth for, like as an hyssop groweth.

- B If a tree be cutt downe, there is some hope yet, that it will sproute and shute forth the branches againe: for though a roce be wrenched oute and dead in the ground, yet whē the flood getteth the seat of water, it will budde, and bring forth bowes, like as when it was first planted. But as for man, when he is dead, perished and consumed a waye, what is the remembrance of him: The floudes when they be dried up, & the yeres when they be enipish, are filled againe: thow the flowing waters of the see: but when man slepeth, he riseth not againe, vntill the heauen perish: he shall not wake vp ner rise out of his slepe. O that thou wouldest keepe me, and hyde me in the hill, vntill thy wrath were stilled: & to open me a waye, when in thou mightest remember me. Make a deed manlye a gayner: B All the wayes of this my pilgrimage am I lyesse, when my chaunginge shal come. If thou wouldest but call me, I shulde obeye thee: only despise not the worke of thine owne handes.
- C For thou hast nombud all my goynges, yet be not thou to exteme upon my synnes. Thou hast staled upon myne offences, as it were in a bagg: but be mercifull vnto my wickednesse. The monaynes fall awaye at the last, the roces are removed out of their places, the waters pearsh thow the very stones by lide and lide, the floudes wash a waye the ground & earth: Euen so desirest thou the hope of man in like maner. Thou piewe yest agaynst him, so that he passeth awaye: thou chaungest his estate, and puttest him from thee. Whether his children come to morrowe or no, he can not tell: And yf they be men of later degre, he knoweth not. Why le behynde, his flesh must haue trauaile: and why the soule is in him, he must be in sorrowe.

The XV. Chapter.

- A Then answered Eliphaz the Themanite, and sayde: Shulde a wyse man gear such an answer: as it were one that spake in the ynde: and fill his stomack with anger: Thou reponest w' wordes, thou art nothinge woech: and speakest the things, which can do no good. As for shame, thou hast sit it asyde, do wouldest thou are made so many wordes before God: but thy wickednesse reacheth thy mouth, and so thou hast chosen thea crasie conge. Thine owne mouth cometh murther, and not I: yee thine owne lippes shappe the an answer. Art thou the first man, that euer was borne: Or, wast thou made before the hyles: hast thou beynde the secrete counsell of God, that all wylde doome is to lile for y: What knowest thou, yf we knowe not: What vnderstandest thou, but we can the same: With w' are olde and aged men, yee such as haue lpyed longer then thy forespecters.

D Dost thou nomore regarde the comfort of God: but thy wicked wordes wil not suffice thee. Why doth thine herre make the so proud: Why standest thou so greatly in thine owne conceite: Where vnto lokest thine eyes, yf thymynde is so puffed up agaynst God: & lestest such wordes go out of thy mouth: What is man, that he shalbe be vnderstander: what hath he (which is borne of a woman) wherby he might be knowne to be righteous: Beholde, he hath founde vnfaithfulness: as a bge his owne sanctua: yee the very heuens are viciate in his sight, so om much more then an abhominable and vile ma, which byndeth with double like water: I will tell thee, heare me: I will shewe the a thinge, that I knowe: which wyse men haue tolde, & hath not bene hyd from their fathers: vnto whom only the londe was geuen: & haue no straunger shulde come amonge them.

E The vngodly besparyeth alle the dayes of his life, & the number of a synners yeres is unknowne. A fearfull sounde is euer in his eares, & when it is peace, yet feareth he destruction: he feleth neuer to be deliuered out of darknesse, the securde is all waye before his eyes. When he goeth forth to get his lyvinge, he thynketh plainly, that the daye of darknesse is at hande. Sorow and carefulnesse make him a strayed, & cōpasse him rounde aboute, like as it were a Kinge with his hooded rebv to the hauen yll. For he hath stretched out his bondes agaynst God, & armed himself agaynst yf Allmightie. & exanmeth proudly upon him, & with a stiff necke fighteth he agaynst him: wher as he couereth his face with satnesse, and maketh his body well lpyng. Therefore shall his dwellinge be in desolate areas, & in houses which nomā inhabereth, but are become heapes of stones.

F He shall not be rich, neither shall he sustaunce continue, nor increase upon earth. He shal neuer come out of darknesse: the flame shal buye up his beamchen, with yf blasse of the mouth of God shal he be talt a waite. He wil neither supplye himself so fastidious ner crasie, so sore is he diseased w' vauant.

The booke of Job.

He shall perish, a fore his tyme be wome out, and his honde shall not be grene. He shall be plucked of as an vnwytely grape from y vine, and shall let his stoure fall, as the olyue doth. For the congregation of Apocruis is vnfructfull, & the fyre shall consume the houses of iob, as are greved to receaue gifts. The conceaith erasayle, he heard my cheere, & his body bringeth forth disceate.

The XVI. Chapter.

JOb answered, and sayde: I haue oft saynes herbe such chinges. Misurable geners of comforte are ye, all the sorte of you. Shall nor thy waite wordes come yec to an ende? Whast thou yett any more to saye? I cande speake, as ye do also. But wolde God, that your soule were in my soles steade: then shoulde I heape vp wordes agaynst you, and shake my heade at you. I shoulde comforte you with my mouth, and releafe your payne with yf talkinge of my trespes. But what shall I do: For all my wordes, my sorrow wil not cease: and though I holde my tyege, yett wil it not be parte fro me. And now that I am full of payne, and all that I haue destroyed (wherof my wynde cleare wryteth) there stideth vp a dyssembler to make me an iurere with yves to my face. He is angrie at me, he hateth me, and gnasheth vpon me with his teeth. Myne enemy shoulde vpon me with his eyes.

They haue opened their mouthes wybe vpon me, and smytten me vpon the cheeke despitfull y. they haue said the selues thow wote myne a duresite. God hath genen me ouer to the vn godly, and deliuered me into the honde of yf wyced. I was somtyme in wealch, but sodenly hath he brought me to naughte. He hath taken me by the neck, he hath rente me, and set me, as it were a marck for him to shute at. He hath compassed me rounde aboute with his darces, he hath wounded my loyrea, & not spared. My bowels hath he poued vpon the gronde. He hath gent me one wounde vpon another, and is fall vpon me like a gianne. I haue sowed a sack cloeth vpon my sayme, and tye with my strength in the dust.

My face is swolle with weeping, & myne eyes are wegen dymme. Howbeit there is no wicdnesse in my honde, and my prayer is clepe. O warrch, couer not my blende, and lett my crienge fynde no roume. For lo, my wicnesse is in heauen, and he that knoweth me, is aboute in the earth. My frende laugh me to scoone, but myne eye peareth out teares unto God. Though a body might please w

Witch sayeth, my dayes are shorten. I am harbe at deathes doore. I haue disceaned no man, yett wil myne eye continue in heuynesse. O deliuer me, and set me by the, who shall then be able to thrust my honde to gether: Thou hast not holdt their herces from vnderstanding, thofore shall they not be set vpon an hye. He punisheth his frende parte of his good, but his owne child aspende it. He hath made me as it were a bywoide of the comon people. I am his gestinge stocke amonge the. My countenance is heuy for very anger, & the members of my body are become like a shabone. Detrouous me therfore shall we consider this, and the innocents shall take parte agaynst the Apocruis.

The righteous wil tpe his waye, and yf hath cleane handes, wil euer be stronger & stronger. As for you, turne you, & see yeu face, for I can not see one wyfe mil amenge you. My dayes are past, my trespasmes are washed amaye, which haue wead myne ben, chaunginge the night into daye, & yf lighde to darcknes. Though I cry neuer so much, yett the grane is my house, and I must walk my bed in the darcke. I call courtpoyn my father, and the womes call I my mothe and my sister. What helpeth them my lough tarienge? O, who wil fulfill the thinge, that I loke for: All that I haue, shall go downe into the pyre, & I ly with me in the dust.

The XVIII. Chapter.

Then answered Balbad the Sabite, and sayde: when wil ye make an ende of your wordes? Marcke well, and confide, we wil speake alid. What ferce art counted as bestee, & repeated so vye in your sight? Why destroyedst thou thy self with anger? What yf earth be forsaken, and the fennes remoued out of their place be dead of yf? What nec the lichte of the vn godly be put out: yett the flame of his fyre shall not burne. The lichte shall be darcke in his dwelling, & his candle shall be put out with him. His presumptuous goings shall be kept in, and his owne counsell shall cast him downe. His fenes shall be taken in the net, and he shall walke in the snare. His fenes shall be taken in the snare, and the thurlyne shall catch him. The snare is layed for him in the gronde, and he pyre fall in the waye.

15 Fearfulness shall make him a frayed on every side, that he shall not knowe, where to get out. Tongue shall be his substance, and mystourne shall be auge upon him. He shall see his owne slayme, yet his owne armes shall be defence, beinge a firstborne of death. All his comforte and hope shall be roced out of his dwellinge, very fearfulness shall bringe him to the Pyng. Whether men shall dwell in his house (which now is none of his) and bysionnes shall be scattered upon his habitation, his roces shall be dryd vp beneath, reboue shall be his haruest be cut downe. His remembrance shall perish from the earth, & his name shall not be payed in the streete: he shall be dryen from the lighte into darkness, and be cast cleme out of the world. He shall neither haue children, nor kynfolke amonge his people, nor eny possire in his countreye: yonge & olde shall be astonysed at his death. Such are now the dwellinges of the wicked, and this is y place of him that hauech not God. The XIX. Chap.

1 JOb answered, & sayde: How longe wil ye dece my mynde, & trouble me with wordes? Lo, ten tymes haue yerepiod me: are ye not ashamed, for to laugh me froscant? If I go wronge, I go wronge to myselfe. But yf ye wil enhance ye felous agaynst me, & accuse me to be a wicked person because of the shame that is come upon me: knowe this then, y it is God, which hath binde me so violently, & hath compased me aboute with his scourges. Beholde, though I ait, ye wold: is done vnto me. I can not be here: though I complaine, there is none to geue succor with me. He hath hedged vp my path, I can not get awaye, he hath set watche in my gate.

2 He hath ipoyled me of myne honoure, & taken the crowne awaye from my heade. He hath destroyed me on every side, and I am alone: My hope hath he taken awaye from me: as it were a tre plucked vp by the roote. His watch is banded agaynst me, he taketh me, as though I were his enemy.

His men of warre came together, which made their waye ouer me, and beseged my dwellinge rounde aboute. He hath put my watchmen farre a waye from me, and soch as were of myne acquaintance, are become straitnes to me. Myne owne kynfolkes haue forsaken me, and my frendes haue put me out of remembrance. The seruantes and mayden of myne owne house take me for a strainger, and I am become as an aleaunt in their sighte.

When I call upon my seruante, he geareth me no answer: no though I puaie him with my mouth. Myne owne wyfe ma ye not abyde my beeth, I am fayne to speake saye vnto the children of myne owne body. And the very detest footes despise me, and when I am gone from them, they speake euell upon me. All soch as were my most familiar, & abhorred me: and they whom I loued best, are turned agaynst me. My bone hangeth on my slayme, and the flesh is awaye, only there is left me the slayme aboute my teeth. Haue pittie vpon me, haue pittie vpon me (o ye my frendes) for the hande of the LORDE hath touchid me. Scrynge God persecuteth me, wil ye verse me alfor: haue ye not yet ynough of the tribul of my flesh?

3 What my wordes were witten, & that they were put in a booke: wold God they were graued vnto an yron pynne made of iron stone. For I am sure, that my redemerth ysueh, and that I shall rise out of the earth in the latter daye: that I shall be alighted a gaine with this slayme, and se God in my flesh. See I myselfe shall beholde him, not with other but with these same eyes. My reynes are consumed with paine, when ye saye: Why do not we persecute him? we haue founde an occasion agaynst him. But be ware of the snare, be for the snare wyll be avenged of wickednesse, and be sure, that there is an iudgement.

The XX. Chapter.

1 Jhen answered Sopbar the Naamaite, and sayde: For the same cause do my thoughtes compe me to answer. And why my mynde is tossed here and there. I haue sufficientlye heard the cheeryng & reposit, therfore am I purposed to make answer: a ster my vnderstandinge. And wofull thou not this, naimely: that from the beginninge (euer since the creation of man upon earth) the playe of the vngodly hath bene shorte, and that: the ioye of Zepocoytes continued but y twinklinge of an eye. Though he be magnified vp to the heauens, so that his heade reacheth vnto the cloudes: yet he perisheth at the last like donger: In some daye they which haue sene him, saye: Where is he? He many spech as a beaume, so that he can no more be founde, & passeth awaye as a vision in y night. So that the eye which sawe him be sore, getteth now no sighte of him, & his place knoweth him nomore. His children ge a begginge, their banes bringe ebt to sorrowe and heynesse.

From his yowth his bones are ful of wyck, which shall be done w him in y earth. Wbē wickednesse is swere in his mouth, he hydech it vnder his tongue. That he fauoureth, that will he not forsake, but kepech it close in his throte. The meate that he eateth, shall be turned to the poison of serpentes within his body. The riches of he deuoureth, shall be peribicall agayn, for God shall deaue them out of his belly. The serpentes heade shall sucke him, and the adders tongue shall slay him: so that he shall nemoie se the ryues and brookes of shony and buter: But labour shall be, & yett haue noching to eate. Great traouyle shall he make for riches, but he shall not enioye them. And why? he hath oppressed the poore, and not helped them: houses hath he spoiled, and not buylded them. His belly coude neuer be fylled, therfore shall he perish in his concupisence. He deuoured so greedely, yf he leste noching behynde, therfore his goodes shall not persere. Though he had plentifulnesse of euerything, yett was he poore, & therfore he is but a wretch on euery syde.

C For though yf wicked haue neuer so much so fill his belly, yett God shall sende his wrath vpon him, and cause his battayll to rayne ouer him: so that yf he fle the yron weapons, he shall be shote with the stele bowe. The arrowe shall be taken forth, & go out at his backe, and a glistering sickeardethowr of stail of him, scare shall come vps him. There shall no darctnes be able to hyde him. An vntidled fyre shall consume him, and soe what remaineth in his house, it shall be destroyed. The heauen shall declare his wickednesse, & the earth shall take parte agaynst him. The substance that he hath in his house, shall be taken awaye and perish, in the daye of the LORD ES wrath. This is the percion that yf wicked shall haue of God, and the heretage that he maye lede for of the LRDE.

The XXX. Chapter.

J Ob answered, and sayde: O heare my wordes, and amende yo' silues. Suffre me a litle, that I maye speake also, and the laugh my wordes to scorne, yf ye will. As it with a man, that I make this dispensacion: Wchid yf it were so, shulde not my sinner be trespere trouble? Marck me well, be abasshed, and laye youre haue vpon youre mouth. For rebt I pondre & considere this, I am afrayde, and my flesh is in myren weich fyre. Wherefore do wicked me lye in health and prosperite, cometo their olde age, & increase in riches? bullocke gendereth, and that not out of your their cow calueth, and is not vntreue.

They sende forth their children by floud, & and their sonnes lede the bancke. They haue with them tabrettes and harpes, and haue instruments of musick at their pleasin. They spende their dayes in welchynesse: they ioyde they go downe to hell. They saye to God: go from vs, we desire not the inheritege of thy ryues. What maner of siluer is the siluer that, that we shalde serue him? What profit shulde we haue, to submytoure silues vnto him? So, there is vntreueynednesse in them, therfore will not J heare do with the concell of the vngodly. How esse shall the candle of yf wicked be put out: how oft cometh their distraccion vpon them? O what sorowes shall God geaue them for their parte in his wrath? Yett they shall euen as chaffe before the wynde, and as ball that the storme carrieth awaye.

And though God saue their childer from such sorow, yett wil he so reuarde the siluer, that they shall knowe it. Their owne distraccion and misery shall they se with their eyes, and vntreue of the fearfull wrath of the Almighty. For rebt cherech he, what becom of his bulshelde a ster his death? wherfor methes pouffe awaye first then an arrow. In as muche as God hath yf byest part of all, no can reach him eny knowlege: Curych new when he is mightie & at his best, rich and in prosperite: euen when his bones are at the fastest, and his bones full of may. Another dyeth in sorrowe and heuynesse, and neuer had good daies. How slepe they both a like in the earth, & the wormes conerth them. But J knowe what ye thinke, yett and wher ye ymagin agaynst me vnrighowly. For ye saye: where is the prynces palace: where is the dwellinge of the vngodly? As for any man that geeth by the waye, and yf he wil not regardeth their tokens & dedes: he shall tell you, that the wicked is kepte vnto the daye of destruction, and that the vngodly shall be brought forth in the daye of wrath. Wherfor reprove him for his wayes so his sinner who rewardeth him for the vngodly: As for that he doth: Yes shall he be brought to his grave, and watch amonge the heape of the dede. That shall he be sayne to be buried amonge the stones by the brecke of sea. All men shall folowe him, & there are innumerable yf he fore him. O how wayne is the complaynt ye geue me? Are not youre answeres contrary to right and trouth?

The XXXI. Chapter.

Soliphaz the Themanite gave an answer, he sayde: Maye a man be compared vnto God in wysdomme, though he seme to him self, for to be like him: What pleasure hath God in y^e thow art righteous?
 Or what doeth he profite him, yf thy woies are perfecte? Is he a frayed to reprove the, & to steppe forth wth the in to iudgment: Cometh he thys for y^e greate wickednesse, & for thine ungracious dooers which are innumerable:
 Thou hast take the pledge from thy brether for nauyge, & robbed the naked of their clothinge: To soch as were weery, hast thou ge-ad no water to drynte, thou hast with drawe had fro the hungrye. Shalbe soch one the as wylde wolues, wylde geze oppression (doinge all thynges of parcialyte, & hauyng respect of performe) dwell in the lode: Thou hast sine wyldommes awaye emperie and oppossed the poor sacherlesse.

Therfore art thou compassed aboute with furies on every syde, & soddily weert wth feare.
 Shaldest thou the se no darthenesse: Shalbe not the water floude runne ouer the: For because y^e God is hyer the heauens, & because thou fast y^e the starras are so hye, wylt thou therefore saye: Tush, how shalbe God knowe: Doth his dominion reach beyonde the cloudes: Tush, the cloudes couer him, yf he maye not se, for he dwelleth in heauen.
 Wylde thou wylt kepe the olde waye, yf all wic-domme haue gone: both olde & yonge, whose foundation is a rynnynge water, which saye vnto God: go from vs, and after this maner: Tush, what wylt the Allmyghtie do vnto vs where as he (not wylt stouyng) fyllethe thy bosom wth all good. Which meanynge of the vngodly be farre frome. For wth ioy shal the godly, and wylt gladnesse shal the innocente se: that their increase shal be heuen downe, & their posterite consumed wylt the fyre.

Therfore recorde the vnto God, & be confide, so shal all thynges profite wth the righte well. Because the lawe at his mouth, & laye vth his wordes in thine herte. For yf thou wylt turne to the Allmyghtie, thou shalt ston-de fast, & all vnyghteousnesse shall be farre from thy dwellinge: he shal geue the an har-nest, which in plenty & abundance shall exceede the dust of the earth, and the golde of Ophir like ryer stones. See the Allmyghtie his owne self shalbe thine hartest, & the bea-ste of thy monye. Then shalbe thou haue thy daye in the Allmyghtie, & life vth thy face vnto God. The shalbe thou make thy prayer vnto him, & he shal heare the, & thou shalt kepe thy promyse. The, see what thou callest in honde, he shal make it to profite wylt the,

 and the lighte shall shyne in thy wayes. For who so humbleth himself, him shal be set vp: and who so lotheth mekely, shalbe healed. If thou be vmoored, he shal save the: and thow the vnglytynesse of thine handes shalbe thou be deluyered.

The XXX. Chapter.

Job answered, and sayd: My sayenge is yet this daye in bytterne, and my handes be wylt amonge my gronnynges.
 O that I myght see him & synde him: O that I myght come before his seate, & please my cause before him, and to fyll my mouth wylt argumentes: That I myght knowe, what as swete he wolde geue me: & that I myght vnderstande, what he wolde saye vnto me. Wylt he please agaynst me wylt his greate power & strenght, or wylt he leane him self vcerely vpon me: Oh no, let him not do so wylt me.
 But let hym geue me lyke power to geu tola-we, then am I sure to wyne my matter. For though I go before, I fynde him not: yf I come behynde, I ca get no knowlege of him:
 If I go on the left syde to ponde his wokes, I can not acceyue vnto them: Agayne, yf I go on the right syde, he bydetch himself, yf I can not se him. But as for my waye, he knoweth it: & tricheth me as yf golde in y^e fyre.

Therfore my seate kepe his party, his hyestrete haue I holden, and not gone out of it: I haue not souaken the commaundem^t of his lippes, but loke what he charged me wylt his mouth, that haue I shurt vp in my herte. It is he himself alone, who wylt turne
